THE TRAGEDY OF HILL 60

The great German attack near Hill 60, in Flanders, in the spring of 1915 is marked down in military histories as one of the important events of the war; for it was then that poison gas was first used and that modern chemical warfare really came into being.

Great cylinders of chlorine, previously stored along the German lines, were opened. The greenish-yellow gas, driven by a favorable wind, drifted into the allied trenches. Between Hill 60 and Ypres the allied line—temporarily, at least—simply ceased to exist. Canadians, Frenchmen and a detachment of old British regulars were taken by surprise, victims of a weapon against which they had no defense. Had the Germans been alert to exploit the surprise to the full, Ypres would probably have fallen.

All of this, of course, is pretty well known. But an odd little footnote is being written to it now; it is being charged that the French and British high commands had ample warning of the pending gas attack and did nothing to get ready for it.

A German war veteran was tried recently at Leipzig and sentenced to a long prison term for having betrayed the secret to the French. This man was captured by a French patrol two weeks before the attack, and at his trial it was charged that he gave his captors full details of the project.

Furthermore, two weeks before that the French command issued a bulletin telling about the proposed gas attack, the information having come from other German prisoners. The British command was notified, and several reconnaissances were undertaken to try to find out about it; but the British official war history remarks that in general "the warning seems to have been not only disregarded but forgotten."

So the attack, when it came, found the defenders utterly unprepared. The line was breached, and a good many young men died horribly—some of them making pathetic last-minute attempts to improvise gas masks out of their puttees.

Just why the warnings were disregarded is something that may never be learned. But the incident is a tragic example of the responsibility that rests on an army's high command in wartime.

"JACKALS OF SLANDER"

When Judge Peter Schmuck of the New York supreme court summarily dismissed the lawsuit which centered around that curious book, "The Strange Case of Mr. Hoover Under Two Flags," and remarked that none of the parties involved came into court with clean hands, he simply expressed what a great many American citizens have been feeling for a long time.

His comments about the "patient unfairness and untruthfulness" of the book and "the yapping of the jackals of slander" were certainly no more severe than the facts in the case justify.

During the past year a good deal of criticism has been leveled against President Hoover. Some of it was perfectly fair; but the kind that was represented in this and similar books was an insult to the nation as a whole. It is refreshing to see a judge lambasting the people responsible for the book, and no fair-minded person can feel that his language was too strong.

There is nothing undignified in the use of slang, maintains Dean Ralph B. Dennis of Northwestern University, the slang of today being the vigorous English of tomorrow. The diggity dean's wise words may be the berries, but it takes a hot prof to let them loose.

The new Mayor of the city of Rochester, N. H., had to milk his cows and do his other farm chores before going to the City Hall for his recent inauguration. A mayor in overalls may seem incongruous, but the self-reliant frugality of a "dirt farmer" might be a big improvement to many finely clothed politicians.

OBEDIENT THE LAW with LEO CARILLO with DICKIE MOORE - LOIS WILSON. Serialization by arrangement with COLUMBIA PICTURES...

WHAT HAS HAPPENED "Big Joe" Rierdon, political boss, sees that Tony Pasqual, an honest man who has recently become a citizen, has won the love of the community, and on the way toward becoming a powerful figure, Rierdon plays up to Tony's better senses, helping the poor. Tony is impressed with the kind act and promises Rierdon his whole-hearted support. Rierdon takes a liking to Grace Chester, widowed sister of Bob Richards, who was killed in a gambling house run mysteriously by Rierdon. Tony is in love with the girl, Dickie, Grace's son, is lured into a crap game while playing on the street, and shows phenomenal luck—although he doesn't play for luck.

Two of the gambling ring men see him and, after giving him a half dollar, persuade him to accompany them. One of the other children runs to tell Grace about it.

Grace was alarmed at the information given her by the youngsters. She went about the neighborhood inquiring, "Did you see Dickie?" Everywhere she received a negative reply, until she met Tony in the vicinities in front of a cigar store. "Are you looking for Dickie, Mrs. Chester?" one of them inquired. "Yes, where is he?" The individual pointed into the cigar store. "I saw two men take him in there."

Grace rushed into the store and past the counter. "Where's Dickie?" she cried. She went through a door into the back room. There she saw her son on a pool table throwing dice against money lying before him. She grabbed her boy up and took him in her arms. Then she turned and went to the door. "You should be ashamed of yourselves, teaching a young boy like that to gamble!" she exclaimed. "It's all in fun," the croupier replied. "He's lucky."

"I'm going to complain to the police," Grace threatened. "Now look here—" Before he could finish the sentence the woman rushed from the store, carrying her son with her. That evening when Tony came to call, Grace asked: "Where do you think I found Dickie? In a gambling place down the block."

"I fix that," Tony declared, and walked out, determined that Joe Rierdon should hear of it and stop gambling in his district. A meeting of the club was in session when Tony arrived. "Hello, Tony," Rierdon greeted him with extended hand and a broad smile. "Hello, Boss. I come to tell you something. There's a gambling place a block from me." "Ain't that a surprise!" said Rierdon. "It was a surprise to me. Two men took Dickie into it." "Tony, you're always bringing me surprises," Rierdon said. "Everybody laughed. "This is no laughing matter," Tony declared, trying to hide his anger. "If children can be taken into gambling houses, they're dangerous to the morals of our district."

"Forget it," cautioned Rierdon. "I can't forget it, Boss. You like the neighborhood. You did things for it. Why don't you close the joint?" The group laughed again. Tony commenced to understand. "I said forget it," Rierdon laughed. "We got something else to talk about. We just nominated Klein for alderman."

"Klein!" Tony exclaimed. "Ted Klein! Why, I just found out he runs all the gambling places. We can't run him for alderman!" Rierdon was emphatic. "We? Who's we? I can run him for alderman—and I said he runs."

Tony was just as emphatic in his reply. "And I say I'll not vote for him. And nobody I know will vote for him! Anybody that supports him is a gambler, a crook and an enemy of his people—a common thief!" Rierdon grabbed Tony by the lapel furiously. "Listen, you four-flushing town speaker, while you think you get all the money you give away? Where does that jack come from that pays the fines for your peddle friends? Who put up for those shoes you gave away? I—Joe Rierdon, and I'm no sucker. I got to be paid back. I want protection. I want votes, and you're going to get them for me. You double cross me and I'll break you like I made you."

Rierdon threw Tony down into a chair. The Italian arose, grabbed his hat and walked over to the door, where he turned and said: "Sure you'll break me, but not until I tell them about the real Joe Rierdon. Joe Rierdon, the cashier of every gambling place in the neighborhood. Joe Rierdon, the buddy of vice and the pal of the devil. Break me, Joe Rierdon! Break me, before I crush you, because I'm going out of here to shout from the rooftops, beware of Joe Rierdon." Tony rushed from the room. Rierdon turned to his henchmen, "That garlic smelling peasant! I'm running this place and I'm running this district. If that son of a ditch-digger tries anything, I'll get him and this time we won't miss."

"Boss, I got some nice fresh pin-apples," suggested one of the boys. "Great!" Rierdon exclaimed. "Make them nice and juicy and deliver them to his barber shop with the compliments of Joe Rierdon." Tony returned to his shop and ordered a sign made which appeared in front of it early the next morning. It read: "I'll requital tell all at Lincoln hall." A few hours later there was an explosion in the shop which set the place afire and destroyed the Italian's business, but failed to frighten the American patriot, who stood for clean politics. Tony was more determined than ever to expose Joe Rierdon and his machine.

The boss, feeling that the way to a man is through his sweetheart, tried to impress Grace with the following of Tony's threat. He succeeded, too, for that night when Tony called (in fact, after the explosion Tony had sought temporary shelter at Grace's home), she said: "You saw what they did to your shop. Don't you understand they'll stop at nothing?"

"I'm going to speak over that radio. Would you love a man that would do that?" Grace maternally embraced the Italian and tried to make him understand. "Tony, I love you. I love you because I respect you. I've always respected you, but now that I love you, I want you near me; near, close—I want to protect you. But you're only—you're only—" Tony had but one thought. "I've got to speak over that radio. I want you to understand that."

"I owe you everything." There was deep feeling in Tony's voice. "Grace was hurt. No, Tony, you're right—nothing. What have I to offer? They have much more—newspapers—and your picture on the front page."

Tony took her by the shoulder and shook her. "Don't say that. I love you, Grace!" "You love me. Don't be foolish, Tony. What is love and the tender caresses of a woman against signs and ballyhoo and posters. You're right, Tony. They have much more to offer." She swung from his embrace. "Go to them! The photographers won't wait. The morning papers will go to press without your pictures." She became hysterical. "Go to them! They need you more than I do. They want you more than I do." She walked to the door and opened it.

Tony was frantic. "Grace!" he exclaimed. "Go ahead, big shot! Go ahead! I'll see you in the morning papers!" Tony was infuriated. "So you think I'm a man who wants his picture in the paper—above everything in the world—I—Well, I'm afraid you loved the wrong man and I loved the wrong woman."

He rushed from the room. Grace stood by the door a minute and then ran after him calling, "Tony! Tony!" She followed him down the stairs crying, "Hell kill you, Tony. They'll kill you if you go to that meeting, Tony, they'll kill you!" But Tony paid no heed. He went on, determined to do his duty as he saw it. When Grace reached the street, the Italian was out of sight. She stood looking up and down the highway in hope of catching a glimpse of the man she loved so dearly.

Mexican Pupil Reads and Sings at Sunbeam Meeting

Miss Anna Lee King, assisted by a pupil, Dolores Mormolejo, presented a program on Mexico at the Sunbeam meeting Monday afternoon in the Baptist annex. Dolores sang three songs and read two selections in Spanish.

Mexican men and women were colored for handwork. These will be placed in the adobe houses made at the last meeting. A review of the study of Mexico was conducted.

Five new members. Mary Jo McCarter, Lou Nell Hudman, Edna Jean and Erlene Roberts and Sarah Jean Smith, were added to the roll.

A story by Mrs. H. A. Palmer and a prayer by Mrs. H. S. Collins concluded the program. Sixteen members were present.

Movie Quiz

By DAN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—How well do you know your movies? The claim often is made—with perhaps some degree of truth—that the real experts in motion picture subjects are folks far removed from Hollywood. So to let you test your knowledge, I've drawn up 15 questions which you might try on your saxonone sometime when the neighbors aren't home. Here we go:

1. What was the most expensive motion picture made?

2. Who was Gloria Swanson's second husband?

3. What actor and actress, although married for several years, always have lived in separate homes?

4. What actress also is a recognized novelist?

5. Where was Ricardo Cortez born and what is his real name?

6. What actor, now actively engaged in screen work, has two daughters also active on the screen?

7. What actor, now one of the most popular stars, tried unsuccessfully to get into pictures about five years ago?

8. Who directed "Seventh Heaven"?

9. What director, now dead, was responsible for bringing Greta Garbo to this country?

10. What picture contained a greater list of star names than any other film ever made?

11. Who was the star of "The Black Pirate"?

12. How many times has John Gilbert been married?

13. What studio is an incorporated city all by itself?

14. What famous star, twice divorced, is reported ready to try married life a third time?

15. What picture in which Norma Talmadge starred later was made with Mary Pickford as the star?

How many can you answer? (Answers on Page 4)

RELIGION AN OPIATE? HOUSTON, (UP)—Religion is a series of attitudes—fear, awe, love—that one generation transmits to another, and sometimes it serves as "opium" to the people.

That opinion was expressed here by Dr. Horace M. Kallen, New York psychologist and leading exponent of pragmatism.

When asked if he agreed with Karl Marx that religion is an opium for the people, Dr. Kallen said: "Religions arrive in times of crisis and often function when nothing else will. Religion serves as an opiate when you have lost something dear, because it helps you beat the loss."

"If you fear death, it serves as an opiate on that dread. In calling it an opiate, however, you must think of the word opium only in its effect and meaning, and not in its derivation."

Trinity Chapel Praised by Other Churches

Reviews of the sessions at Convocation were given by Mrs. John E. Adams and Mrs. Joe L. Crump, Monday afternoon at a meeting of the Episcopal auxiliary. They reported that Midland and Albany are the only churches in this district, which covers 80 counties, that have fully paid their church dues. A record of the achievements of the church during the year of 1932 is being sent as a circular letter to all churches of this district.

Calendars for Christmas boxes were distributed and twelve tea towels were started for Seaman Hall at Texas Tech.

Mrs. E. M. Miller was appointed corresponding secretary of the auxiliary. A report of the Lectern Bible that was given to Trinity chapel by Bishop Creighton was read.

Mrs. Mayfield and Mrs. A. N. Hendrickson read prayers. Twelve members and two visitors were present.

the First Public Showing of the

NEW OLDSMOBILE 6 and 8

STYLE LEADERS FOR 1933

THE NEW SIX

THE NEW EIGHT

We take great pleasure in announcing our appointment as dealer for the Oldsmobile 6 and 8 in this community.

These two new style leaders for 1933—a roomier, more powerful Oldsmobile Six at $745, and a larger, more luxurious Eight at $845—are now on display at our salesrooms, where we cordially invite you to see them and have a demonstration.

They are entirely different from anything you ever saw. New Fisher bodies—radiators—lamps—hoods. New fenders and wheels. New rear contours. Everywhere, a striking new smartness that would win acclaim at double the price.

And with all this style appeal, the 1933 Oldsmobiles are brilliant, dependable performers, greatly advanced in engineering. Both the 80 h.p. Six engine and the 90 h.p. Straight Eight engine are cradled in rubber with a three-point mounting of new scientific design, making these inherently smooth power plants still quieter and smoother throughout the entire speed range. Fisher No Draft Ventilation, Individually Controlled, beyond question the greatest contribution to comfort, health and safety since the introduction of the closed body, is built into all 1933 Oldsmobile closed cars.

In addition to our display of the new Oldsmobiles, we invite you to inspect our facilities for servicing Oldsmobile cars. Our service department is already stocked with genuine Oldsmobile parts and equipped with factory-approved machines and tools, in charge of expert mechanics, assuring a high standard of prompt, efficient service. We will also continue to provide Chevrolet owners with the same complete service they have enjoyed in the past.

See the new Oldsmobiles at your earliest convenience, and arrange a trial ride for a demonstration of the balanced excellence now available in these cars, at the lowest prices in ten years—$745 and up, f. o. b. Lansing—bumpers and spare tire extra.

DRASTIC LAWS PROPOSED FOR SCHOOL SPORTS

AUSTIN, (UP).—Banning of high school football games on Saturday and limiting of basketball to Friday and Saturday nights were proposed in a report of the state board of education to the governor.

Holding football games on school days should be discontinued because of interference with school work, the report said.

"We find no argument for it," the board said.

"It is true that some high school coaches wish to be free to attend college games on Saturdays. It is true that gate receipts in some communities will be smaller on Saturday; it is true some boys have to work on Saturdays and hence could not participate in or attend Saturday games.

"None of these reasons has an appreciable weight when compared with the interference with the school program.

"Actual schedules show 1,742 games, or 70.9 per cent of all games, scheduled for school days, it was pointed out. Of the 232 schools reporting, 127 sometimes dismiss school for games; 53 show attendance is "appreciably" cut down in school on days of football games, and in 72 schools the time lost is not made up, the report showed.

"Eight inter-school football games a season appears sufficient to secure all the advantages claimed by inter-school football," the report said.

"Not only do the majority of Texas school men believe eight a maximum number, but school men all over the country designate eight or less as sufficient."

The board recommended limitation of basketball games to 15, between Dec. 1 and March 1, and providing that tournaments should admit only a limited number of teams.

Regarding "scholastic favors to athletes," the board said that was due to "too great enthusiasm for winning games."

"The community has become frenzied," the board continued. "It is a symptom of athletic disease. The honesty of scholastic standards must be upheld even if the whole inter-school sport program should have to be abandoned to uphold them."

Coaches should be required by law to have a certain amount of credit in physical education, and the state board of education should be given certain regulatory powers in order to deal with "mob enthusiasm that has developed in several communities."

UNFULFILLED ORDERS

AUSTIN, (UP).—Unfulfilled orders of Texas textile mills at the close of 1932 amounted to 5,893,000 yards, the highest total since the close of 1929, according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

The total at the close of 1929 was 7,032,000.

Several other evidences of improved conditions in this industry were pointed out. First, the rate of decline in production for 1932 was not as great as for the preceding year. Total production reached $6,962,000 for 1932, a decrease of 1.8 per cent from the 46,822,000 yards produced in 1931 which was 15 per cent under 1930.

Although unfilled orders and sales usually decline during December, the report said, in 1932 there was an increase in both.

Mrs. C. C. Hiett Hostess to Comrade Class

Mrs. C. C. Hiett was hostess to the Comrade Sunday school class of the Baptist church Monday evening at her home, 407 North Main. Jig-saw puzzles, corn-popping and candy-making were the amusements of the evening. Guests included Marcelline Wyatt, Marcelle Scarborough, Carlean White, Joanna Wilson, Mary Hows, Marie Warren, Helen Ruth Merrill and Mrs. C. B. Ligon, who is sponsor of the intermediate department.

Class Plans New Program Features

Special program features will be presented each Sunday morning at the Brotherhood Bible class at the appointment of L. K. Barry and C. M. Goldsmith as a program committee. The class at present is engaged in a contest on percentage of attendance and the six-point record system with the Evangelists class, an organization of women taught by Mrs. Winston F. Borum. The Rev. Borum teaches the men's class.

All-day Meeting Honored T. E. L. Class Monday

As a compliment to members of the T. E. L. class of the Baptist church, Mrs. D. W. Brunson entertained with an enjoyable all-day meeting and dinner at her home northeast of Midland Monday. The occasion also marked the birthday of the hostess. Completion of a quilt, recently pieced by the class, furnished diversion during the day. At the noon hour, a lovely appointed dinner was served to twenty-two visitors. As the guests entered the dining room, where two large tables were laid for the dinner, they drew for places from a decorated basket which also contained a beautiful assortment of handkerchiefs given to the hostess by members of the class. She also received an attractively decorated cake. Special guests were Mrs. Isadora Harmon of San Angelo, who for several years was president of the Midland Baptist missionary society and who recently celebrated her 92nd birthday, her daughter, Mrs. Charles Gibbs, also of San Angelo, and Mrs. E. L. Harwell, former Midland resident, now of Ballinger. Mrs. O. J. Hull, another former resident, had planned to attend the event. Class members present were Misses W. H. Spaulding, Gay, V. Z. Wron, T. O. Midkiff, Martha, Holloway, Basham, Frank Lord, W. N. Connell, Brooks, Pemberton, Ella Youngblood, Willis, Wyatt and Brunson. Other guests were the Rev. and Mrs. W. F. Borum, W. W. Lackey, Mrs. Stella Reville, Mrs. R. E. Witty and Mr. Brunson. Mrs. J. A. Uday, Mrs. Fred Middleton and Fred Gordon Middleton called during the afternoon.

YOUR INCOME TAX
Forms for Making Returns

Forms for filing returns of income for 1932 have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time, on or before March 15 if the return is made on the calendar-year basis, as is the case with most individuals. Lowering of the personal exemption will require many hundreds of thousands of individuals to file returns this year who did not do so in 1932. Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors. Persons whose net income for 1932 was derived chiefly from salary or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should make their returns on Form 1040A, a single sheet. Persons whose net income was in excess of $5,000, or, regardless of amount, was derived from a business, profession, rents or sale of property, are required to use a larger form, 1040. Failure to use the proper form presents difficulties to both the taxpayer and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Therefore, it is emphasized that a taxpayer engaged in a business or profession from which he derived a net income of less than $5,000 is required to use the larger form. The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his legal residence or principal place of business on or before midnight of March 15, 1933. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

New Oldsmobiles On Elder's Floor

True distinction in motor cars has heretofore, been expensive. Now the Elder Chevrolet company demonstrates in the new Oldsmobile that distinction can be made relatively inexpensive. The best ideas of modern automobile design are reflected in these splendid new motor cars—the Oldsmobile six and straight eight for 1933. Elder has three models on display. Long, low, graceful, they possess that genuine smartness and pleasing individuality which always go with style leadership. Yet the prices are actually the lowest that Oldsmobile has quoted in 10 years! Style, however, is only one reason for pride and satisfaction. Elder points out. The new Oldsmobiles offer every modern refinement in comfort, ease of control and convenience. 15. "Kiki" in which Norma Tallmadge starred, was remade with Mary Pickford in the lead.

At the Yucca

WILLIAM HAINES and MADGE EVANS in "FAST LIFE"

The new Fisher bodies are larger, roomier, more smartly tailored. All closed models have the revolutionary new Fisher No-Draft ventilation, individually controlled, an exclusive feature of General Motors cars for 1933. . . . On the road, few cars will challenge these new Oldsmobiles, Elder says. They are fleet as the most daring driver could wish . . . and astonishingly smooth. For their powerful engines are encased in rubber with a 3-point mounting of scientific new design. Even more important is the matchless dependability which has made Oldsmobile "the car that owners recommend," Elder said. "Oldsmobile brings you all the essentials of motoring satisfaction—style, performance and durability—at prices that represent real value," Elder concluded.

RAFT CAPTURES PUBLIC FANCY IN HIS ROLES

George Raft, young movie player who, in minor roles in three films, developed popularity rivaling that of any star-ranking actor in Hollywood, has his first important role in "Night After Night," screen adaptation of the Louis Bromfield story.

"Single Night," which comes to the Ritz theatre today and tomorrow.

Raft heads a cast which includes Constance Cummings, Wynne Gibson, Mae West and Alison Skipworth. The actor presents a strange enigma to Hollywood producers. He has played supporting roles to stars in "Scarface," "Madame Racketeer" and "Dancers in the Dark." These three films mark the limit of his movie appearances. Yet he has caught on with audiences. His fan mail is tremendous. Exhibitors throughout the country report their patrons demand more and more Raft.

Under the able direction of Archie Mayo, these talented players have succeeded in making the film constantly amusing and entertaining. It is not without its drama—tense and stirring—but in the long run, its comedy triumphs. The dinner which Joe gives for Miss Park Avenue touches a high point in dramatic comedy. "Night After Night" is unusual! It's superb!

Get Official Entry Blank from Conoco Stations and Dealers.

RULES:

- Names must be not more than 12 letters; slogans not more than 12 words. Submit either or both on single sheet; plain white paper; one side only; but preferably on official contest information-and-entry blank, free at Conoco dealers and stations. Elaborate presentations receive no extra credit.
- Contest closes midnight, February 23, 1933. Entries must be postmarked before that date and hour.
- Continental employees, members of their families and others connected directly or indirectly cannot compete.
- Should more than one person submit exactly the same name or slogan, each will receive full amount of any prize such entry may win. All entries become Continental Oil Company property, and none will be returned.
- The Company reserves prior rights to phrases and slogans of its own creation, already in prepared advertising. Also it reserves the names "Continental" or "Conoco" gasoline, "Conogas", and "101" gasoline. Whether or not the winning contest name is adopted, prize money will be paid; but the Company reserves the right to use a name of its own creation if decided more suitable and more protectable under trade-mark laws.
- No purchase is required of contestants. Continental Oil Company executives will be the judges and their decisions final. Winners will be announced over radio, and prize money paid as soon as possible after contest closes.

You'll say: "Whoa, Engine! what's got into you?"

Here's gas to excite motors. It makes them quick on the trigger . . . fast on the move. Choking is hardly required for a quick, snappy start and a take-off like a quail on the wing.

Even old motors . . . wheezy, snorting, complaining motors . . . cut capers you just can't believe. If you doubt it, just try it. It's like rich, racing blood injected into old veins.

This gasoline is so new . . . so "different" . . . so quick, fast, powerful, and economical, it's hard to give it a name. Perhaps YOU can. When you FEEL your motor's response, it may come to you like a flash.

Ask at any Conoco station for the new bronze-colored, high-test gasoline—and an entry blank. Help name it and describe it. You may win a part of $10,000.00. You are SURE to win a grand, new thrill, and that is worth a heap. Make the test TODAY.
