SOCIETY

Paul C. Wilson Becomes First Cabinet Husband

NEW YORK.—Being the first "cabinet husband" in the United States may seem like an honor that men in general might not appreciate having. However, it is doubtful if anyone could carry off the title with more perspective and quiet humor than a man like Paul C. Wilson, husband of Frances Perkins, new secretary of labor in the Roosevelt cabinet.

Paul Wilson is an aloof intellectual, an expert statistician who can analyze figures and get down to fundamental meanings behind them as few men can today. He has been consultant for some of the best standing insurance and financial companies in America.

He looks like a professor, yet his dry humor can send a dinner party into gales of laughter. He is in his early 50's, slender, frail-looking, fair, of sensitive, high-strung temperament, wears glasses, is something of a social recluse, yet is deeply devoted to his close friends, and kind to everybody who really needs something done.

One of his friends described the difference between him and his wife in this way: "If you were interested in a bug in a meadow and asked Paul about it, he would go deep and profoundly into the social and personal life of the bug. Nothing could divert his attention until he has finished his analysis. Frances, on the other hand, might look at the bug, but again she might miss it altogether, and see the sweep of the meadow and the meaning of it to the culture at large."

A Village Romance

The Wilson-Perkins romance and marriage harks back to the early Village days of 1915-19. They were part of the Sinclair Lewis, Arthur Bullard, Lincoln Steffens, Hypolyte Havel, Howard Brubaker, Max Eastman, John Reed, Mary Heaton Vorse group that used to meet in the Dutch restaurant that Nora Van Loeven opened just off Washington Square. It was one of the first of these eating places by which the village became famous. Frances Perkins had a little apartment on Waverly place where the crowd often adjourned. Paul Wilson lived, along with most of the bachelors in the above mentioned group, in the famous old Benedict Club on Washington Square, a site which New York university now occupies.

Both Paul Wilson and Frances Perkins were interested in social problems, in internationalism, in votes for women and all the other "causes" that stirred intellectuals of that era. Paul was one of the few who had a responsible position in those days. Whenever anybody wanted anything, the whole group would say, "Ask Paul. Paul will help you."

Home Folks

When they were married, in 1917, there was one of the very first village doorways that held two cards over the bell—Frances Perkins and "Paul C. Wilson."

They still have the same house in the village. They also have a pretty blonde daughter in her early teens. Home means much to both of them, and nowhere in New York does one find a more fascinating or cosmopolitan group of intellectuals than those who gather together when they entertain.

Wilson is proud of his wife, and is interested in the things that hold her attention. He has perhaps a sure grasp of politics that she has ever had, and undoubtedly his aloof perspective on labor and other problems has been of great benefit to her.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH
"Man" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in all Churches of Christ Scientist, Sunday March 5.
The Golden Text is from I Corinthians 2: "What man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him?"
Among the passages to be read from the Bible will be the following from II Corinthians 3: "Not that we are sufficient of ourselves to think anything, as of ourselves, but our sufficiency is of God: Who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament, not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life. . . . But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord."
The lesson-sermon will also include citations from the Christian Science textbook by Mary Baker Eddy, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," one of which will be as follows (p. 90): "The admission to one's self that man is God's own likeness sets the man free to master the infinite idea. This conviction shuts the door on death, and opens it wide towards immortality. The understanding and recognition of Spirit must finally come, and we may as well improve our time in solving the mysteries of being through an apprehension of divine Principle."

Wife of Secretary Of War a Staunch Believer in Peace

SALT LAKE CITY.—The wife of the new secretary of war is a staunch believer in world peace. For eight years First Lady of Utah, Mrs. George H. Dern takes a keen interest in governmental affairs and is her husband's closest personal adviser.

"Being the wife of a public official," she says, "is a job! It is a lot more than just a social position. Many times a wife's opinion will have an indirect effect on events, so she has to be careful what she says."

Mrs. Dern brings to official Washington a note of true western simplicity. For five years between 1904 and 1909, she lived in the little Utah gold camp of Mercur, where her husband was general manager and superintendent of a mining company. "Those five years," Mrs. Dern says, "were among the happiest of our lives and we learned a sense of life's real values that will always stay with us."

She was born Charlotte Brown, on a farm in Dodge county, Nebraska, not far from her husband's birthplace. A daughter of a Union war veteran, she is a direct descendant of the founder of Brown university. She studied at Oberlin col-

FOUND—AN HONEST MAN

BIRMINGHAM.—It's too bad Dickens couldn't have lived until the present day. He could have found an honest man in the person of Dr. V. V. Florence. Dr. Florence found a purse containing a large sum of money in a downtown store. The purse contained no marks by which it could be identified, but Dr. Florence is determined that the person who earned the money should have it.

Two years ago Dr. Florence showed his honesty by locating the owner of a lost payroll envelope, containing $74.67.

Wolf Does $1,000 Damage in Lifetime

AUSTIN—Representatives of the federal government working in Texas for predatory animal control have ascertained that a wolf in its lifetime can do $1,000 worth of damage preying upon chickens, turkeys, hogs, sheep and goats.

The wolf or coyote, thrives on the mesquite and huisache sections of South Texas. He has been a subject of worry to farmers and ranchmen in that section for many years. Only in recent years has there been any concerted action to exterminate him.

Legislators are threatening to cut the allotment for this work in half, reducing it from $70,000 to $35,000. The work is financed by federal, state and local contributions.

Landon pointed out that last year nearly $37,000 less was spent for the work than in 1931, and the catch 7,244 more animals than in the previous year. The cost per animal of carrying on the work was reduced one-half, from $12 to $6. Last year 20,379 predatory animals were destroyed by traps and poison. Of these, 17,070 were coyotes, 2,660 bob cats, 599 red wolves, 45 mountain lions and five ocelots.

Landon said this protection cost $121,107, divided as follows: state funds, $58,639; federal aid $24,326; local contributions, $38,142.

Robbins Author of Club Constitution

WHITTIER, N. C. (UP)—On the day Col. Raymond Robbins, posing as "Reynolds Rogers," was found here near the end of his 80 day lapse of memory, he wrote the constitution of the Whittier Lyceum club which since has flourished into a membership of more than 50.

On the day that federal prohibition agents and relatives took Col. Robbins to Asheville, where he regained his memory in three days, the constitution of the club was adopted by 19 original members and John Ashe was elected president.

When 38 additional members were admitted on Nov. 22 an educational program of bible reading, a speech on "The Originality of Thanksgiving Day" by the president, and reading of poems was conducted.

Scope of the club's work has been broadened by organization of separate dramatic, glee clubs and a boys and girls basketball league.

AUSTIN. (UP)—A New York newspaper article listing Dr. David F. Houston, former University of Texas president, among the deceased members of Woodrow Wilson's cabinet brought much concern to his friends here.

Dr. Houston, who served as secretary of agriculture and secretary of treasury under Wilson, was located in New York, very much alive and enjoying good health.

BATTLE FOR RICHEST PRIZE MAY BE BETWEEN STABLEMATES THIS SEASON

Gallant Sir . . . his chances to win the winter's richest race are considered good.

By MAX RIDDLE
NEA Service Sports Writer
In the far west smart horsemen say that the Agua Caliente Handicap in March, richest race of the winter season and one of the richest in the world, lies at the mercy of Norman W. Church's Northway Stable. The same horsemen, about this time last year, looked over the big Australasian entry, Phar Lap, and predicted it would be just a breeze for him—and they may be right twice in a row.

The Northway Stable has three entries nominated, and two of them, Gallant Sir and Plucky Play, at least, are in the highest class of race horses. The third, Whizz James, is not much to boast of.

Plucky Play is probably the better known of the two top ones. As the "giant killer," the "spoiler" and other such nick-names suggest, he has been a fly in the oats of three or four championship contenders during the last few years. He also has been a Santa Claus to that frequently seen critter, the long shot player.

When Gallant Knight tried to give Plucky Play 21 pounds and a beating, he failed. The son of My Play won fairly easily to the tune of 47-1. He then slipped the lead pipe to Sun Beau when that great horse was trying to hang up a high money winning record. The odds on this occasion were only 9-1.

Following these surprise victories he hung it on Equipose to spoil that great horse's long string of victories, and then administered something of a bad beating to Fairno and Gusto, the two crack three-year-olds.

Incidentally, Plucky Play is no stranger, either to Agua Caliente or the Agua Caliente Handicap. Two

Flawless Production and Performances Distinguish Ritz Theatre's Production

If you like hilarious entertainment and performances that are like cut crystals, if you find stimulation in gaily and brilliant humor, you were today Ernst Lubitsch's new picture, "Trouble in Paradise."

To say that the film towers head and shoulders above any Lubitsch picture that has preceded it, is praise indeed. Yet it is not misplaced. So deftly has the director told his story, so surely has he guided the talented actors in their various roles, so magnificently has he used his camera to attain sometimes startling effects, that the film seems to promise the beginning of a new era in picture making.

In addition to the three leads, moreover, there are Charlie Ruggles and Edward Everett Horton, teamed for comedy and providing a constant stream of hilarity. And in what would ordinarily be minor roles are C. Aubrey Smith and Robert Gneig, two of the most talented character actors of both stage and screen.

This can be said with greater confidence than for any other film of the current season: "Trouble in Paradise" must not be missed.

BAD BANDITS BEWARE
DEKALB.—The city detective bureau is keeping its eyes on 14-year-old Tommy Caler. The watch isn't being kept because Tommy's suspicious of some crime, but because he's a likely candidate for the "snooper's" squad when he grows up.

Recently, after Tommy's brother had brought about the capture of three robbers and received a job as his reward, Tommy decided he'd capture a few bold bandits, too. He loaded himself up with toy pistol and knife and set about "shadowing" a suspicious looking character who was walking in an alley.

But while Tommy shadowed his man, the man was also shadowing Tommy. The suspected turned out to be a plain clothes detective, who caught the boy and took him to police headquarters. There the antics of both parties were cleared up, and Tommy went home with the promise of a detective job when he grows up.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT

FORT WORTH.—Patrolman Pettigrew was very polite when he way-laid four youthful bandits. "Pardon me for interrupting, boys," he said, as he stepped from a doorway and stopped their work. He had been watching them for five minutes as they stripped an automobile.

It is apparent that this horse really can run. And furthermore he

Negro Married to Beat Depression

MEMPHIS. (UP)—Getting married was a new way to beat the depression, according to the way one old negro, who appeared before Squire Douglass, had it figured out.

When the negro appeared with a woman, he asked what the cost of marrying was. Squire Douglass told him the marriage license cost $5 and the fee to the squire would be $2.

"What I wants to know, Squire, is, will you marry us so I can pay you the $7 at a dollar a week," the negro asked.

"You haven't any business getting married if you don't even have the price of the marriage license," the Squire replied.

"But Squire, I'd be a heap more able to pay you after the ceremony," answered the grinning negro. "You see Squire, the folks down at that Welfare office says they would give me a job if I had someone to support, like a wife or some children."

VIOLATIONS OF RULES

WASHINGTON.—A total of 140 miscellaneous violations of the air commerce regulations was dealt with by the aeronautics branch of the U. S. department of commerce in the third quarter of 1932. Of this total, 107 flying violations were dealt with. Other offenses included 53 unlicensed pilots flying licensed planes, 26 and night flying without position lights, 15.

HOME FIRES BURNING

DENVER.—"The home fires" were kept burning while J. F. Calloway and his family were away on a week-end visit, although they were not the kind of fires one likes to have burning. Some trash in the basement of Calloway's home caught fire and burned an eight-foot hole through the first floor before neighbors saw the smoke and called the fire department.

NO SENTIMENT THERE

VANCOUVER, B. C.—"I've been robbed," declared an ex-convict indignantly as he presented himself before J. Dinnage Holden, secretary of the society for re-establishing discharged prisoners. What made the man angry, more than the loss of his hard earned money, was the fact that the holdup man had been a friend of his when both were convicts. But though he hated the holdup man for forgetting his friends, the man took the cash and escaped.

armed to the teeth. Johnson grabbed the burglar and while they were milling about the bedroom two shots were fired by the intruder. While Johnson was wrestling with Guild, Mrs. Johnson and Myrtle were bustling around the outskirts of the melee trying to get in a telling blow. Mrs. Johnson finally was successful when she cracked the burglar over the head with a butcher knife and laid him low.

Neighbors, hearing the sounds of battle, telephoned police who arrived after the scrap and took the burglar to jail.

CONFIDENCE...

OUR NATION HAS A NEW OUTLOOK!

The change of administration yesterday has sent a spirit of optimism and courage throughout the entire world. President Roosevelt has asked for powers invested in a President only in times of war. If given those powers, he and those selected to assist him will bring about immediate measures to iron out our financial difficulties so far as is humanly possible.

The nation must move forward as a unit . . . We are going to keep our confidence in our ability to forge ahead — we must do it to come out victorious.
