STATE OPENS A PROBE IN DEATH

LA GRANGE, April 20. (UP)—District Attorney Fred Blundell was considering today the prosecution of Mrs. Anton Dach, 36, confessed slayer of Henry Stoeber, 58 year old farm hand whose body was disinterred at the Dach farm.

She said he assaulted and refused to marry her, that she shot him, burned and buried the body February 23.

LA GRANGE, Tex., Apr. 20.—Mrs. Anton Dach 36, buxom farm woman last night made a statement to District Attorney Fred Blundell through a German interpreter, in connection with the death of Henry Stoeber, 58, hired man at the Dach farm, whose body was dug from a pit on the farm Tuesday.

No charges had been filed in the case.

Two men still were held for questioning but Sheriff Will Loessin said neither had been implicated in the killing.

Stoeber had been shot in the head and his body buried.

Meers Exchanged at Bridge For Alleged Father Slayer

EL PASO, Apr. 20. (UP)—W. J. Meers, 27, of El Paso was released today in exchange for Jose Carrasco, Mexican held in the Texas prison at Huntsville serving a life term.

Meers was serving eleven years as result of shooting Antonio Visconti, Juarez waiter who was mistaken for Manuel Villareal, alleged slayer of Meers' father.

Meers first was sentenced to death. Carrasco was serving a sentence for holdup and robbery in which the elder Meers and a payroll guard were killed here in 1924.

Meers killed Manuel Visconti, in a Juarez saloon, but the jail warden impression that he was the man who had killed his father several years before. His trial was held a short time after two Oklahoma deputy sheriffs had slain two Mexican students who were en route home after attending school in the United States.

James E. Ferguson, husband of Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, said last night the governor of Texas had made no agreement with Governor Rodrigo Quevedo of Chihuahua, Mexico, for the release of William Jefferson Meers, in exchange for the release of Jose Carrasco, a Mexican now serving a prison term in Texas.

Ferguson said such an agreement was considered during the administration of former Governor R. S. Sterling but that negotiations were not continued by the new Texas administration because the new governor believed such an agreement impractical.

NEW OIL ORDER SAID UNCERTAIN

AUSTIN, Apr. 20. (UP)—Chairman Loh A. Smith of the railroad commission was uncertain today of the new oil production order to be issued before expiration of the shut down period at seven o'clock tomorrow morning.

Issuance of orders depended on receipt of reports from the East Texas advertising office. If the order is not made, the old order effective at the time of the shut down still will hold. Smith did not indicate the basis on which the new order will rest.

NEWSPAPERS FAVOR BEER ADVERTISING

By UNITED PRESS

Majority of daily newspapers in Texas will accept advertising of 3.2 per cent beer when, and if, it is legalized in this state a United Press survey today revealed.

Many of these in prohibition days declined advertising of alcoholic beverages. The congress has said that 3.2 per cent is not intoxicating but advertising sale in Texas is forbidden until state laws are altered.

Several newspaper editors in replying to the United Press questionnaire said campaigns for "temperance" in use of alcoholic beverages would be continued or renewed with sale of beer in Texas.

Advertising men in Dallas have said that Texas is one of the largest beer markets in the country. The fact that this state has long drawn out summer tends to increase sales in Texas. Malt sales in Texas have been large, the United Press was told. Malt is used in manufacture of home-brew.

Several newspapers are undecided about beer advertising. The list includes the Dallas News and Journal, the Dallas Dispatch, the Fort Worth News, the San Antonio Standard-Times said he would not accept beer advertising as did the editor of the Brownwood Bulletin.

Newspapers replying in favor of accepting beer advertising included the Fort Worth Press, The Beaumont Enterprise and Journal, The Del Rio Evening News, The Henderson News and Herald, The Marshall News and Messenger, The Texarkana Gazette, The Galveston News and Tribune, The Palestine Press, The Houston Press, The Cleburne Times-Review, The Denison Herald, The Corsicana Daily Sun, The Breckenridge American, The Dalhart Texan, The Kilgore Daily News, The El Paso Herald-Post, The Corpus Christi Caller-Times, The Fort Arthur News, The San Antonio Express and Evening News, The Waxahachie Daily Light, The Midland Reporter-Telegram, The Big Spring Herald, The El Paso Times, The Austin American and Statesman, The Waco News-Tribune and Times-Herald, The Brownsville Herald, The Laredo Times and The Dallas Times-Herald.

Advertising men told the United Press that judging from beer advertising in other states the total advertising budget for Texas would run as high as $1,000,000 for the first year. They estimated much of this would go to newspapers.

TO COMBINE TWO SCOUT TROOPS

Combination of two Midland scouting units, Troops 52 and 51, has been authorized, according to A. C. Williamson, area executive of Sweetwater. Williamson was in Midland today for a meeting. He goes to Odessa Friday for work in connection with a scout financial drive.

The wedding of the two Midland troops is due to Troop 52's having no leader since the resignation of Wallace Wimberly. C. C. Day is head of 51, and the composite troop to be under his supervision will approximate 35 members.

The other Midland troop, 54, is headed by Buster Howard. It is made up of nearly 40 boys, all of whom are exceptionally active in scouting.

There will be no decrease in membership as a result of the shift, Williamson said. "On the contrary, there will be a slight increase, inasmuch as boys of Troop 52 will have a more definite work program. In the fall it will be necessary to organize another troop to take care of new members."

The combination of the two troops, Williamson pointed out, is more logical when it is considered that 51's charter expires this month and that of 52 sometime in May. As to the scouting progress for the council, Williamson said 500 boys are expected to attend the May 5-6 jamboree at Big Spring. Boys will cook two meals and be served one by Big Spring committeemen. Four heaves have been donated by Big Spring eatmen.

A parade of Mexican scouts, whipped into a drum and bugle corps, will be one of the features of the jamboree, as will the athletic events in which all scouts may participate. Relative to the proposed camp, Williamson believes the Barksdale-on-Nueces site will again be selected. This place offers a combination of improved and natural resources, with permanent buildings, plenty of shade and water. The date will fall about the middle of June and likely will be for two weeks, the cost per scout to be $5 for one week, $9 for two.

A camp head training camp will be conducted April 27-30 in New Mexico for West Texas and New Mexico scouts. This will be under supervision of the national scout service and the regional staff. Several expect to attend from the Buffalo Trail council, but none from Midland has signified registration.

WOULD LIMIT PRESIDENT IN MONEY POWER

Great Drive Goes on To Hike Commodity Prices of U. S.

(By United Press)

Senate Majority Leader Robinson said today that Senator Thomas of Oklahoma will introduce the administration's currency inflation amendment to the farm bill probably today.

The measure was likely to limit the president fifty per cent in his power to raise and lower the gold content of the dollar, contemplating retirement of government bonds with authorized federal notes.

The senate voted $100,000,000 to begin the program to raise commodity prices.

House Majority Leader Byrnes pledged full congressional support to any monetary program decided on by Roosevelt. Rainey charged abandonment of the gold standard as defense against "planned and concerted effort of nations tied up with the English pound" and an attack on the monetary position of the United States.

Commodity markets continued an upward rush today, stocks rising one to nine points.

New importance was attached to the Roosevelt conferences beginning tomorrow with European statesmen. Settling of relations between the dollar, pound sterling and the franc was expected to be the major discussion.

Premier MacDonald of Great Britain was due to arrive tomorrow. Former Premier Herriot of France will arrive Sunday. His mission was regarded as more complicated since France is the only major power still on the gold standard.

Boy Accidentally Killed at Merkel

MERKEL, April 20.—Jack Reddin, 17-year-old youth of the 85th community, was killed Wednesday afternoon when a shotgun he was holding as he cracked a car accidentally discharged. The full charge struck him in the left side, below the heart.

Douglas Reddin, an older brother who was seated in the car at the time, said death occurred immediately.

The two had been taking part in a rabbit drive which had formed this morning at the farm of their father, Sam Reddin. The accident occurred at the end of a noon intermission, as the brothers started to join other hunters.

Funeral service will be held from the 85th Methodist church at 3 o'clock this afternoon, with the Rev. L. H. Davis officiating. Burial will be in the Stith cemetery.

Yesterday's gale on the surface was 64 miles an hour at its maximum, at 3:20 p. m.

Temperatures dropped last night and this morning, the low 27 degrees, lasting for a half hour beginning at 3 this morning.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now that the United States corn belt has managed to postpone the mortgage sale of farms, it is sorely in need of a word. The farmers who have scored over the sheriff do not relish being called either revolutionists or anarchists. They are not evading debts, but asking time in which to pay them, they explain. So they are looking for some sincere term which will indicate that they are merely bide-a-wee-ists.

North Caucasian collective farmers say they can't work because the Soviet won't feed them, and the Soviet says it can't feed them because they won't work; and, alas, there is no superior judge at hand to decide the ancient question of whether one should eat before or after working.

Under the Dome Of the Capital

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN. (UP)—A canvass of the members of the present legislature reveals all the talking that has been done on the floor of the house and senate hasn't altered a single vote this session.

Some talk for the galleries; some because they have "microphoneitis", some to bolster up the ones who are voting with them and want a valid excuse for the vote, and some (knowing ones) to delay the vote.

The house and senate both have the power to cut off apparent filibustering against a vote. But there is another kind of talking which seeks merely to delay a vote. That is done to kill time while a private bill is made to determine whether to make a motion that will delay a vote or to risk a direct decision.

An orator usually is chosen for this purpose who can talk regardless of sequence of thought. He can also stop at the crucial moment. Meanwhile whips are circulating asking doubtful members how they stand. When the required number to pass or defeat a measure is assured, the floor leader will inform the speaker. Then the oratory stops and a vote is pushed.

Talk to delay action is very effective. Anywhere within half an hour of noon or of 5 p. m. it can be used effectively. By keeping the argument going past these hours, members get restless and are ready to recess or adjourn.

Many legislators live at boarding houses. Boarding houses have set meal hours. If the session goes past those hours, the member is out of a meal.

During discussion on the educational appropriation bill, one senator wanted to know what a bureau of social science was and "when and how" it made its research.

Two senators he asked pleaded ignorance. One senator defined the bureau of economic geology at the University of Texas for him.

Rep. Harold Kayton of San Antonio, who was responsible for buzzers being installed in committee and reception rooms to notify members when a vote is taken, was the first to be called by the buzzer.

He was in a committee conference when a local bill for Bexar county was reached on the calendar. Kayton was greeted with shouts as he rushed from the committee room in response to the buzzer.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED Three million dollars in gold is sunk off Point Diego, in the Bahama Islands. Karl Schlemmer, duly certified ship's captain, is the only one knowing the position of the treasure. He receives financing for a boat from Lily, the madam of a San Francisco waterfront crib, to go after the gold. Schlemmer agrees to split the gold three ways with Lily, Steve McCreary, an undersea diver, who is to bring up the treasure, and himself. Schlemmer doublecrosses Lily by leaving her behind when the boat sails. On the trip the ship runs into a storm.

The lad rose and faced Schlemmer. "Well, I know. You doublecrossed her. You gave orders to weigh anchor eight hours before we were supposed to sail." "Well, I suppose I did? Any objections?" "Not from me." "Sure." The Captain again put his hand on McCreary's shoulder in a gesture of comradery. "I think we've understood each other. It's just a matter of mathematics. Half is better than a third." McCreary was without emotion. "I signed on for a third and it's all I want. You can hold out on Lily if you want to. You can cheat anybody you like—except me." "Ach—foolish! Why should I cheat the only man dot can bring dot gold up from vhere it is?" "Where is it?" "When ve get there, I'll tell you." "You're going to tell me now! If you don't, those men are ready to listen to me. I'll take this ship over and we'll head back home." Schlemmer was furious. "That's mutiny. She's registered in my name." "Yeah, but she really belongs to a lady named Lily. Now give me that chart!" He moved toward Schlemmer, who retreated before his menacing advance. The skipper was terrified. "Vait, Mac—I change my mind—you get it—." The captain fumbled with the safe as McCreary stood watching grimly. "Yah—you get it—." Turning quickly, he leveled a gun at Steve. "In the belly, you ver-damner must get out!"

CHAPTER TWO Jagged flashes of lightning broke through the clouds. The ship rocked and tossed. The mate fought desperately to keep it off the reef, while in his cabin Schlemmer ate and drank. In desperation, McCreary sought the Captain. "Sit down, Mac. Have a drink?" Schlemmer asked. "We're in trouble. Why aren't you on the bridge where you belong?" Schlemmer looked up. "So you could stay down here and look around—and maybe find something?" He shook his head. "Neh-uh-uh." The man resumed his eating. "What do you want, Mac?" "I want that chart—the one showing where the U-170 went down." "Ah—I tot so. I tell you, I haff no chart—except here, in my head." "You're a liar."

"So? Vell, nobody on dis ship finds out vhere ve are going until ve get there." "You dumb pig—we'll never get there unless you set a straight course. McCreary was disgusted, and determined to put sense into the head of the man. The Captain smiled. "Mac—I'm only protecting you, too. Suppose something happens when ve get there—suppose ve don't bring up the stuff the first time? Then every man in the crew knows how to get it. I know what I'm doing." He rose and put a cajoling hand on McCreary's shoulder. "Sit down, Mac." The lad obeyed. "How long you been on this job?" A week! "been twelve years. Twelve long years. You think this is the first time I try?" A loud crash of thunder made him pause. "Dirty weather. Sure! I expected it. I been hoodooed from the start. But no hoodoo's going to stop me—notings going to stop me. You remember the John C. Truckee?" "The freighter that caught fire while she was tied up at the docks?" McCreary asked. "Yah!" The Captain became bitter. "An hour before she was due to sail. He leaned over the table toward the diver. "Dat vos my ship. Dat vos the first try. And I had to wait five years before I could get this ship." "With Lily's money," Steve casually remarked. The Captain looked at the lad suspiciously, out of the corner of his eye. "Yah." "She had her things on this boat. She was supposed to come with us. She never showed up." There was a moment's silence, then McCreary asked, "What became of her?" "I told you before, I don't know!"

McCAMEY WILL CELEBRATE 6TH BIRTHDAY WED.

By BILL COLLINS

MCCAMEY, April 20.—Between five and ten thousand visitors are expected here next Wednesday, April 26, when McCamey is to celebrate her sixth birthday anniversary with an all day celebration to which the entire citizenship of West Texas is most cordially invited to attend. A special invitation is being extended to all persons who formerly resided here, but who now make their homes in other parts of the state.

The city of McCamey was incorporated and received her charter six years ago this month, although the town was originally started a little more than a year previous. T. A. Ohlshausen, who still resides here, purchased a lot and started McCamey's first building on the 18th of November, 1925, completing it on the 25th day of the same month. People began flocking here in droves in 1926 and houses and shacks began to spring up over the grasswood flats like mushrooms. More than 10,000 people resided here at one time during the boom. The town was named after George and Ray McCamey, who drilled in the discovery oil well two miles north of here in November of 1925.

Today, McCamey is a permanent, thriving and well established little city of some 3,500 people, and the story of her transformation from an oil boom town into one of the permanent and prosperous little cities of West Texas will be depicted at the celebration, which is being given for every man, woman and child of this section.

The birthday party is being sponsored by the McCamey Business Men's league in connection with the local Lions club and other civic organizations, and efforts are being made to make this the largest and most successful affairs of its kind ever staged in West Texas. It will likely become an annual event.

A varied assortment of entertainment and displays have been arranged, and amusements to please the most exacting has been promised by the various committees. The feature attraction will be a big free barbecue, which will be served near the city hall at noon. The goats, sheep and hives for the barbecue have been donated by ranchmen of this vicinity.

The day's entertainment will start at 10 o'clock in the morning with a band concert, after which a first class rodeo, under the direction of Sam Tanner, will get under way at the Tanner place immediately north of the city. Goat and calf roping, bronc riding, wild cow milking and other Western sports will be included in the rodeo events. Prizes will be offered and cowhands from over the state are urged to enter the events. Quite a number of rodeo stars from this section have already made known their intentions of entering.

A jackass polo game, and potato and sack races have been arranged and will be staged in connection with the rodeo.

Stock and poultry displays, saddle and harness exhibits and automobile displays will be open throughout the day. A parade of new 1933 model automobiles will be staged at 3:30 p. m. by the dealers.

A baseball game between the Iraan and McCamey entries in the Permian basin league will be staged at 4 p. m. on the Humble diamond.

PREVIEW SAT. NIGHT SUNDAY—MONDAY RICHARD DIX in "The Great Jasper"

Hi-Jacker Is Found Guilty

SWEETWATER—Pleading guilty to charges of robbery with firearms, Phillip Etie, former convict, was sentenced to seven and a half years in the state penitentiary by Judge James Brooks Monday afternoon in the special session of district court.

The case grew out of the hold-up of Roy Thompson, Sweetwater insurance agent, February 21, when Etie, at the point of a gun, forced Thompson to hand over his pocketbook containing some $50, and open the safe from which he took $25 more.

Thompson was at work in his office on West Third street, after supper, when the gunman asked admission into the building, which Thompson refused. However, later he opened the door and Etie drew a gun on the agent, forcing him to open the safe, then telling him to stay in the building 15 minutes.

Releasing himself from a room in which he had been locked, Thompson notified officers and through help of his son, George Thompson, Etie was caught and placed in jail.

FEAR CLOSING OF MANY SCHOOLS AS RESULT TAX LOSS

FT. WORTH, Apr. 20. (UP)—Fear was expressed today by officials of the Texas State Teacher's association that many public schools will be closed next year due to lack of funds.

It was estimated that there will be $3,000,000 less revenue due to exemption of homesteads from taxation. The probable deficit this year was estimated at $5,700,000.

The appropriation for next year was computed at $9.60 per child, or $6.40 under the figure for this year.

Executive Secretary R. T. Ellis said terms and salaries must be further reduced or taxes must be increased.

after which the Boy and His Dog event will be held.

A public wedding will be performed at the Grand theatre early in the evening, and will be followed by a free street dance which will last until midnight.

The above are the major events of the day, and many more will be added before next Wednesday. Everything will be free with the exception of the ball game and public wedding.

NO GROUNDS FOR DIVORCE

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—Nightmares do not constitute cruel and inhuman treatment, Circuit Judge August E. Braun ruled in a divorce suit here. Mrs. Mary Thorsen testified her husband, George, often dragged her from bed and pummeled her during a nightmare. The judge granted her a divorce on the grounds that her husband stayed away from home for long periods.

Lee Tracy Shows At Yucca Theatre

Laughter is Lee Tracy's formula for everything. The actor, playing the fast-moving news correspondent in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Clear All Wires," today at the Yucca theatre, has this philosophy so worked out that it's not only his panacea for all ills, but his working rules for any task.

"You can't respect troubles that you can laugh at—and if you don't respect them they won't trouble you," says Lee. For instance, he was handed a script with long speeches, and told to learn them by morning.

"I looked at 'em and saw the funny side of 'em," he declared. "Once you laugh at something, you remember it. So it was a cinch. I had every line down pat."

Lee Tracy's experiences in life have been many. He was a lieutenant in the army. He's been a vaudeville star and a stage celebrity. His Hildy Johnson in "The Front Page" is a stage classic. "Oh Promise Me," "Doctor X" and other foollight hits were followed by screen triumphs in "Private Jones," "Washington Merry-Go-Round," and "Blessed Event" among others.

State Probes

notes from Sloever and a few days later he disappeared.

"I told Mrs. Daeh that there had been a lot of talk about Sloever's disappearance and that I wanted to look around the farm a bit. She said that was all right and we got busy."

"I had a thin steel rod with me and probed all around the house. In the chicken house I found a place where the rod went down real deep. I told the negro to get his spade and start digging."

"About seven feet down we came on several live oak chunks that were partly burned and about a foot and half of charcoal from other pieces of wood."

"We dug around in the charcoal and came across part of a man's body. The skull had been cracked and there were some loose pieces of bone."

"The rest of the body was burned up, except for a few old bones."

"At first Mrs. Daeh wouldn't say anything about the case, but later she said Sloever had killed himself and that she had burned and buried the body. She wouldn't say why. She said Sloever dug the hole before he left," the sheriff said.

Below the Sea

his dry, crusted lips. "You forget how thirsty you are when you're asleep."

"I stay awake."

"Afraid I might take the chart from under your shirt. What good is it? I'd give my share of that gold right now for one glass of cold, fresh water. Wouldn't you?" Schlemmer again licked his lips. "You don't want to fall asleep, do you?"

"I stay awake."

"You were a little balmy this morning when the sun began to bother you. You were raving about some guy named Steffens. Who's Steffens? Anybody I know?"

"He was somebody who tried to steal my secret. I killed him."

"Why don't you kill me, too? Then you won't have to worry about that hunk of paper. All you got to do is plug me once. Then you can go to sleep and dream about water—nice, fresh, cold water."

"Maybe that ain't a bad idea. Maybe I do it."

"Go ahead. I'd mean sleep for both of us. And it might solve one of around 2 cents. Cotton at New York gained some $2 a bale.

Bar silver at New York leaped 3 1-2 cents an ounce. Crude rubber futures jumped about 1-2 cent a pound in the largest turnover in the history of the New York rubber exchange. Similar advances occurred in hide and copper futures.

Raw silk jumped 15 to 17 cents a pound; coffee futures, between 1-4 and 1-2 cent; the spot raw sugar market advanced 1-16 of a cent to 3.20 cents a pound, the highest of the year; wool top futures jumped about 3 cents.

Pending clarification of the administration program to manage the purchasing power of the dollar, financial quarters were confused as to the probable level at which the American dollar would be stabilized. It was suggested that stabilization of currencies generally might await the world economic conference.

International bankers pointed out Wednesday that the dollar might logically be expected to turn strong in the exchange markets again, after the current flurry of selling, inasmuch as this country is both a creditor nation and has a favorable balance of trade. This, technically, the dollar is much more strongly situated than was the pound sterling when England suspended gold payments. Also, of course, the United States has huge supplies of gold, while Great Britain at that time was faced with a shortage.

The effect of a lower dollar on commodities, over a period of time, also was regarded as problematical, pending further developments.

What may be the effect of a lower dollar, foreign exchange experts pointed out, may be dependent upon the action of other currencies now off the gold standard, such as the pound sterling.
