MORTGAGE MORATORIUM PASSED

Roosevelt Demands Legislation Protecting Home Owner

BIG BOND ISSUE WOULD PROVIDE FOR FINANCING

Subscription of the Government Would Start Campaign

WASHINGTON, Apr. 13. (UP).—President Roosevelt sent a message to congress today demanding legislation to lift the mortgage burden of the small home owner and to protect home ownership as a guarantee of social and economic stability. He asked a two billion dollar bond issue to allow refinancing of mortgages, exchange of bonds for mortgages, with the treasury guaranteeing the bonds four per cent interest, the owner to pay the obligation at five per cent with a loan maximum of eighty per cent on homes appraised up to $10,000; federal loan and savings institutions under the home loan bank, with the government subscribing one hundred million dollars to start functioning. Executing of the bill was referred to the senate banking and currency committee.

Declarers Speak On Rotary Program

Merwin Haag and Melba Lee, Midland high school entrants at the district meet in senior boys and girls declamation contests, spoke before the Rotary club today, just before leaving for competition at San Angelo. Mrs. Foy Proctor sang at the luncheon. Mrs. Holt Jewell played the piano accompaniment. The club members then went to the high school auditorium and heard a rehearsal of the Easter service to be given at the school Sunday morning at 7 o'clock. The other entrants in various contests at the district meet were introduced.

British Officer Readmits Points

MOSCOW, April 13. (UP).—After repudiating his confession, William MacDonald, one of six Britishers charged with high crimes against the Soviet government, was forced substantially to readmit major points. He admitted collecting state secrets, paying informers. William H. Thornton maintained denials of his previous statements. The Thornton confession accused the British secret service of extensive spying on Soviet activities through the high official British Metropolitan company which he employed. He admitted he wrote the confession but declared it was untrue.

Huge Refinery for Houston Is Likely

HOUSTON, April 13. (UP).—There were strong indications today that the Pan-American Petroleum Transport company will build a ten million dollar refinery here. It was learned reliably that a tract of 180 acres along the canal was chosen as a site. Moving of three large subsidiary Crown Central storage tanks from Winkler county here was reported.

Fossilized Remains Found in County

Emm Bulsterbaum, Midland county farmer, found a fossil on his farm that has the amateur archaeologist guessing. No one seems to know what species the fossil belongs, but some believe it was not buried for more than 50 years. The fossil is exhibited at the chamber of commerce.

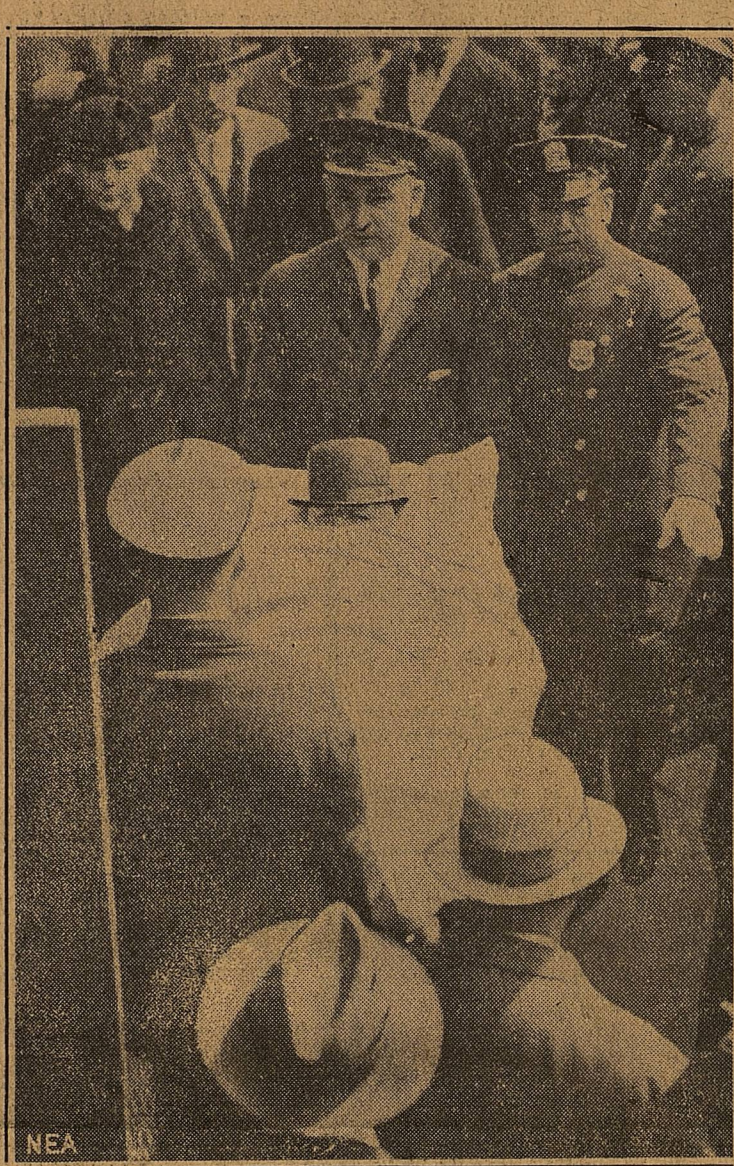

Founder of Town Victim of Suicide

SAN ANGELO, April 13.—T. J. Clegg, 70, pioneer rancher, real estate man and founder of the town of Carlsbad as a health resort, later to become the site of the state tuberculosis sanatorium, shot and killed himself at his ranch house Wednesday evening. A suicide verdict was returned.

TO PRESENT CANTATA

An Easter cantata will be presented Sunday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock, at the Mt. Rose Baptist church (negro). Spirituals will be sung. J. S. Shellman is pastor, Edgar Tisdell president, and Aurelia August director.

Harriman Carried Into Court

Muffled in blankets, Joseph W. Harriman, former head of the closed Harriman National Bank & Trust Co. of New York, is carried into the Federal Building in New York where he pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging him with false entries totaling $1,113,225. Harriman is ill with heart disease. Mrs. Harriman is at the upper left.

AMENDMENTS IN SCORES OCCUPY TIME OF SOLONS

AUSTIN, April 13.—The Texas legislature took final action Wednesday on the first of several scores of resolutions proposing to submit constitutional amendments to the electorate. The house passed a senate resolution proposing to amend the constitution to allow the legislature, by a two-thirds vote, to create new counties or change the boundaries of existing counties. If adopted, the legislature would be empowered to authorize the merger of counties. Submitted 110 to 20. The amendment was submitted by the house 110 to 20. Each house separately has approved numerous proposed amendments, but the county merger amendment is the only one to be accorded final action. It was sponsored by Senator W. R. Poage of Waco.

NEW GIN PLANT TO BE STARTED

Starting of construction next week on a new four-stand, all-electric gin was announced today by E. E. Major General Edward B. Winans, chairman of the state corps, area, recommended today that 6,000 workers under the Roosevelt reforestation program be cared for in his district which includes Texas, Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado; with 2,000 at Fort Sam Houston and 800 at Fort Bliss.

History in Making Youth's Opportunity

WASHINGTON, April 13.—The young people of today, if they survive the depression, can, in future years, tell their grandchildren, "You read history; we made it." For as surely as the sun rises and sets there are the greatest history making days in all the ecored story of mankind. In saying this it is not necessary to overlook the rise and fall of ancient empires, the growth and decline of past civilizations, nor the great industrial and inventive changes of the past century. Having accorded these past events all the historic significance, the fact remains that the present economic, social and spiritual changes dwarf all past history into relative unimportance. True, we have neither seer nor prophet who can predict with accuracy the coming changes nor put on scroll canvases a picture of the future re-made world. That it will be different, almost beyond recognition, is the only reality assured fact. A few of the outstanding innovations that system are: universal education including the continuation of education through the adult life of the people as well as in

WARNINGS TO STOCKMEN ARE ISSUED TODAY

Freezing in Some of West Texas Forecast for Fri.

Freezing temperatures for this section of West Texas Friday morning were warned of in a telegram to the banks this morning from New Orleans, and in weather reports from Dallas. Stockmen were warned to regard the forecasts.

Forecast from Dallas read: "Cloudy and thundershowers in the southeast portion. Colder to freezing in the north, frost in the northwest tonight. Friday, fair and colder in the southeast. Livestock warnings affect north portion, where freezing temperatures are likely." A sand storm blanketed Midland with choking dust all morning and interrupted no interruption in the early afternoon. Suspended said filled the air about 9 o'clock after a clear dawn of day and the dust, coming from the direction of Seminole. At first there was no surface wind, but a gale raged aloft.

Reports that Wink had been "blown out" by the wind, which were without basis. Conditions there were much like those of Midland over the past 24 hours. No wind storm of any violence was reported by any town in the Wink section today. Aiders here said the storm of this morning was only a taste of those felt in the past. They cite the blow of Feb. 6, 1934, when chickens roosted by day and the day was so dark ranchmen (and there were few inhabitants who didn't run cattle for a living) lit their kerosene lamps in order to keep from the crop loan fund, may be used to continue to have the day arrives. Grass has not made much growth during the past 10 days because of the high, dry winds.

Late News

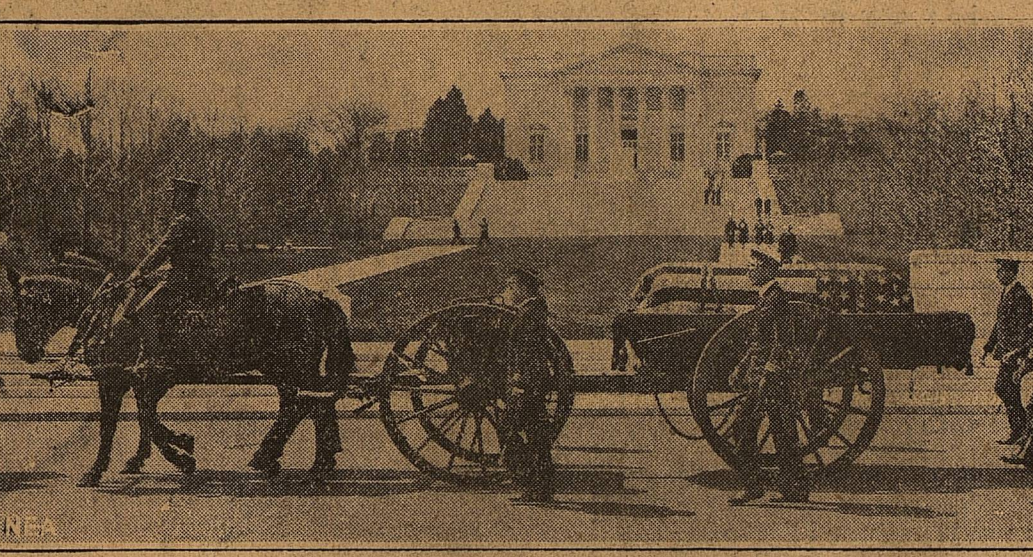

WASHINGTON, April 13. (UP).—Mort Frankling, D. Roosevelt, was thrown as her horse stumbled in Potomac park today. She landed in mud and was not injured. Her horse, Patches, apparently became frightened by nearby traffic. He reared and stumbled. She re-mounted and continued her ride.

LONDON, April 13. (UP).—Lieut. Norman Baile-Stewart, convicted of betraying British military secrets, was sentenced to five years imprisonment today.

BERLIN, April 13. (UP).—Three communists were fatally shot today while attempting to escape from the political prisoners' camp at Dachau, Bavaria. Thousands had been imprisoned by the Hitler government in various camps.

SAN ANTONIO, April 13. (UP).—Major General Edward B. Winans, chairman of the state corps, area, recommended today that 6,000 workers under the Roosevelt reforestation program be cared for in his district which includes Texas, Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico and Colorado; with 2,000 at Fort Sam Houston and 800 at Fort Bliss.

Akron Victim Borne To Grave Among Nation's Heroes

With full naval honors, the body of Lieut. Commander Harold E. MacLellan, of Westley, R. I., one of the Akron's dead, was buried among the nation's heroes in Arlington National Cemetery at Washington. The photo shows the caisson bearing the flag-draped casket past the amphitheater and tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington.

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOL

The Kat Klaw Golf league was reorganized at a meeting in Midland Wednesday night. Representatives from Seminole and Stanton pledged membership of their clubs, and the Seminole group was instructed to act for Lamesa and Hobbs, which also wish to enter the league. Midland representatives reported having received letter from Big Spring and Hobbs, each of those clubs signifying they will join. Thus, the loop will include Midland, Stanton, Seminole, Lamesa, Big Spring and Hobbs.

Opening matches will be Sunday, April 23. The schedule will be worked out today. The San Belt regulations will be adopted with the exception that qualifying for the junior loop's ladder will be via the 18 hole route. Lloyd of Midland was elected president and James P. Harrison of Midland secretary.

Those present were: A. L. Duff, G. C. Coches, H. N. Stone and C. E. Evans of Seminole; E. W. Hamilton and Jim Kelly of Stanton; J. Ellis Cowden, Red Knight and Harrison of Midland.

Musicians Believe Beer Will Change Prohibition Jazz

HOUSTON, (UP).—The hiss of foam through a spigot will be a heavenly sound to this city's professional musicians, who are sounding a paean of hope in the key of B-flat for beer. Just let the Texas legislature legalize beer, they say, and unemployment brought on by the "talkies" will disappear. Now, during hours playing dominoes and checkers at union headquarters, the boys dream of beer gardens with string orchestras twanging away, hotels employing dozens of players, a possible return of vaudeville, picnics with music, dances galore, and street bands. Moreover, the prophets among them are predicting a complete change in the nature of popular music, because of beer.

Prizes drawn today were as follows: One pair of Belle Sharmeer hosiery, given by Wilson Dry Goods company, drawn by Mrs. C. F. Francis; carnations, donated for the cooking school by Mrs. L. C. Waterman, dealer in ribbons, flowers, Big Spring; to Mrs. Addison Young; cans of K. C. Baking Powder, to Mrs. Marvin Jamison, Mrs. J. M. White, Mrs. W. L. Jimerson, Mrs. F. Winger, Mrs. H. L. Britton; six pound sacks of La France flour to Miss Charlie Ethridge, Mrs. W. E. Collier; bread and cookies given by My Bakery, W. F. Carrill, proprietor, to Mrs. R. C. Crabb, Mrs. T. B. Simpson, Mrs. J. W. Pace, Miss Algerine Feeler; chicken dinners, given by Leland L. Martin, to Mrs. Bettie Wilson and Mrs. L. D. White, cases of soda pop, given by Midland Bottling company, to Mrs. M. D. Cox, and Mrs. T. M. Jackson Jr.; food given at a cooking school to Mrs. M. E. Cole, Jr.; light bread, Mrs. Ralph Snyder; baked dinner, Mrs. C. W. Post; Boston brown bread, Mrs. F. A. Stout, and chicken pie, Mrs. E. M. Robinson.

Now look at Turkey. As history goes it was only yesterday when the mention of its name brought visions of a benighted empire dominated by the calliphs of the Mohammedan religion, while stories of brigandage, assassinations and massacres of minorities gave common usage to the phrase, "the unspeakable Turk." Today, under the brilliant leadership of Mustafa Kemal Pasha it occupies an honored place in the family of progressive nations. It was (See HOGAN, page 6)

THE BILL IS A SUBSTITUTE FOR HOUSE MEASURE

Prohibition Repeal Consideration To Begin

AUSTIN, April 13. (UP).—The senate passed the bill for a moratorium on mortgage foreclosures of real property until May 1 next year. The measure is a substitute for the house bill providing a general moratorium. The vote was 20 to 7.

The senate was expected to begin consideration of the prohibition repeal ratification bill late today. A fight was looming over a resolution of twenty senators to delay legalization of Texas beer until a referendum November 7. The committee hearing on the resolution was set for tonight. The Hughes bill was due to come up today, calling for election of delegates to a convention in November of next year. The house bill remained subject to call and vote was expected Monday.

BEER DOESN'T HINGE ON AMENDMENT

DALLAS, April 13. (UP).—Maury Hughes, chairman of the state democratic central committee, said today that a constitutional amendment to legalize beer is unnecessary. It will result in a two-year delay before sale will be permitted, he said, and declared that the legislature has authority to legalize beer.

LA WHISTLES SOUND RETURN TO BREW

Louisiana quenched thirsts of neighbors today as noon whistles announced the return of legal beer. There were 480,000 barrels ready for distribution. Trains, buses, boats and planes carried Texans and other neighbors into Louisiana. The Tennessee beer bill, effective May 1, awaits the governor's signature. The South Carolina house of representatives was considering a bill passed by the senate, legalizing beer and not restricting sale. Michigan will act on beer probably Wednesday, the house considering the bill approved by the senate to repeal state prohibition and authorizing sale of beer. Chief Attorney Edward E. Dufford of the anti-saloon league, said at Washington that an immediate court attack on 3.2 per cent beer was unwise.

Lions Listen to Easter Program

Following their luncheon Wednesday, the Lions club marched 438 strong, to the high school for listening to music which will be presented at the Sunrise Easter service at the high school Sunday morning. Several Lions made brief talks. More than 350 voices will be heard in the presentation.

THE FUTURE OF DIRIGIBLES

"There won't be any more big airships built," says Congressman Carl Vinson.

"Those things never were safe and they never will be," says the man in the street.

These remarks probably sum up pretty accurately the reaction of the nation following the tragic loss of the Akron. A country which had become one of the two foremost advocates of giant lighter-than-air craft seems now, stunned by an unexpected disaster, to be ready to wash its hands of the dirigible altogether.

Certainly there seems to be plenty of warrant for such a feeling.

The aviation records of the last decade are dotted with dirigible accidents. In this country we have seen the Shenandoah and the Akron crash; England still recalls the loss of the R-101; going back a little farther we can remember the destruction of the Roma, the ZR-2, and others. Each ship, when launched, was the "last word" in aerial safety and comfort; each came, inexplicably and suddenly, to disaster.

Is the giant dirigible an invention which cannot, in the very nature of things, be made safe and reliable? Is this triumph of the inventor and the engineer a development which, having been experimented with at great cost in lives and money, must be abandoned? Must the conquest of the air depend henceforth solely on the airplane?

Right now probably most of us would answer all of those questions in the affirmative.

And yet, even now, we might be wise to delay rendering a final verdict. Herr Eckener and the Graf Zeppelin stand as cogent arguments on the other side of the case. Lieutenant Commander Wiley, fresh from the wreckage of the Akron, urges that development of the dirigible be continued. The new Macon is yet to be tested, and the navy contains plenty of men ready to stake their lives on her soundness.

Meanwhile, we can only sorrow over the loss of the men who died in the Akron. Their deaths, and not the destruction of the dirigible, constitute our greatest loss.

BANKERS' FORESIGHT

The New Republic for April 5 contains a little item that compresses a column-length editorial into a few lines. This item points out that last spring, when the Senate committee was just beginning its search for banking abuses, the Harriman National Bank in New York decided to voice a protest against such impudence. An advertisement inserted in a New York paper by the bank contained this statement:

"Washington is ill-equipped to investigate important matters of commerce and finance affecting the public welfare; and, in the present instance, there is no certainty that it will not uncover things much better left sealed."

It is the Harriman bank, you remember, which was unable to reopen when the bank holiday ended, and whose chairman is now under arrest. . . . Who says our bankers have no foresight?

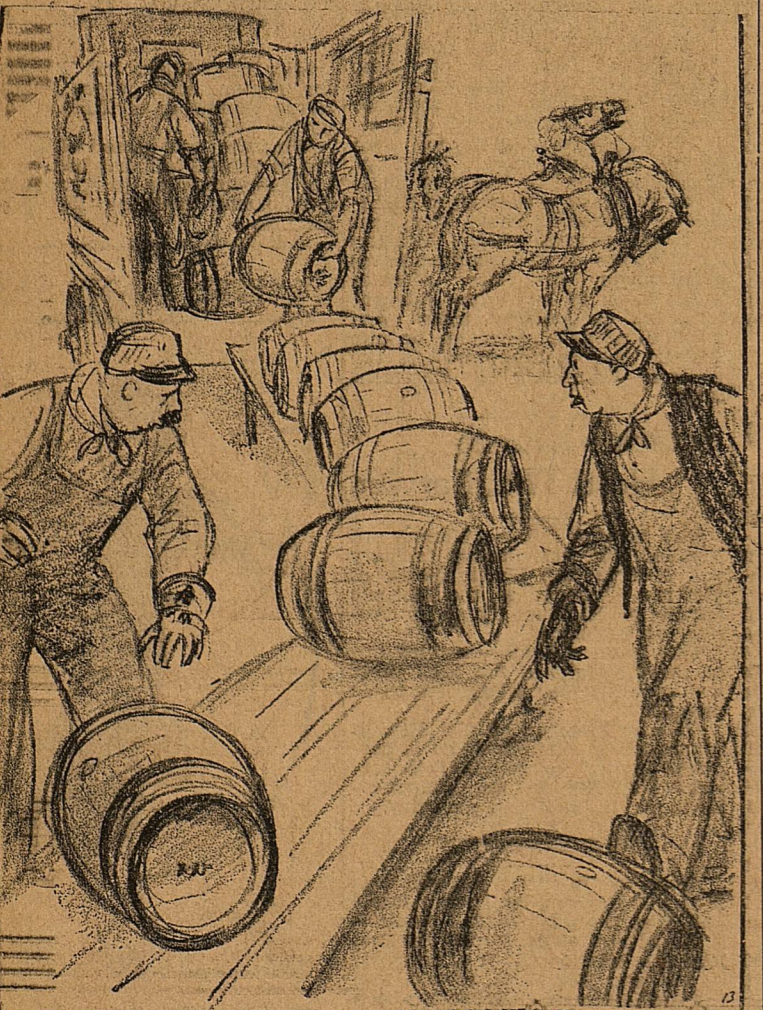

SELF-SUSTAINING FARMERS

The Department of Agriculture predicts that American farmers during the coming year will produce a far higher proportion of their own foodstuffs than has been the case for many years.

An ever-increasing percentage of farmers, the department has found, are grinding their own flour, keeping more eggs and milk for home use, canning and preserving more fruits and vegetables and slaughtering more animals for their own consumption.

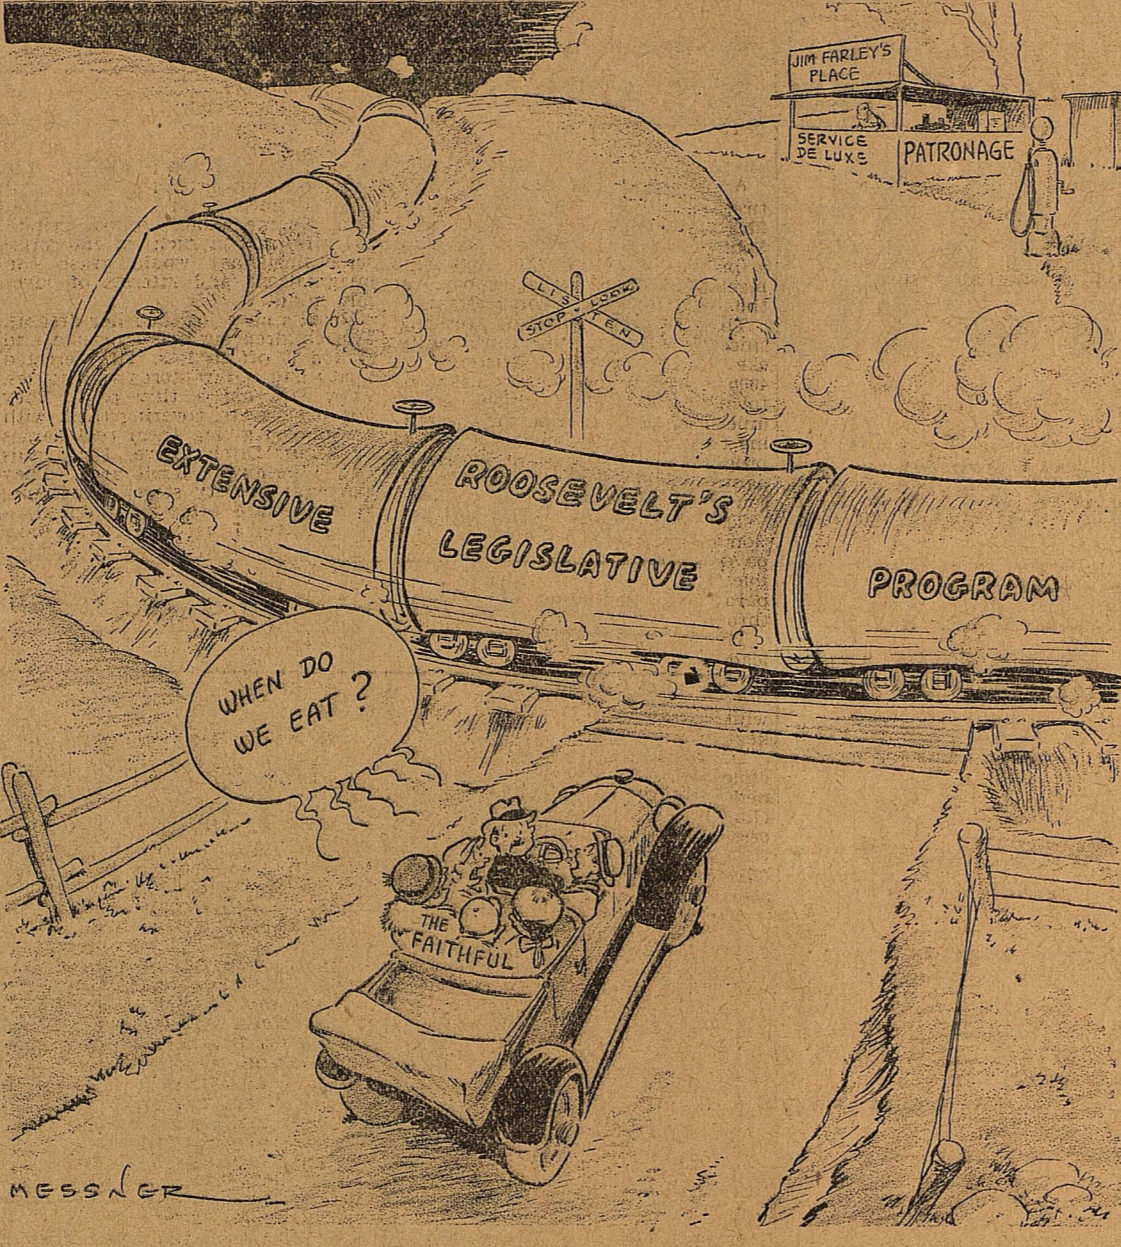

Although this development was brought about by hard times, it probably represents a healthy trend. The one-crop farmers, who buys all his food at the village grocery and turns his farm into a kind of factory for the production of one staple commodity, is especially vulnerable to any depression. The farmer who raises his own food is at least sure that he will never go hungry. And that, in times like those through which we have been passing, is an assurance worth having.

Justifiable Delay

Coast Guard Men Made Running Trip Great Nightmare

By MORRIS GILBERT NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—It's an old adage of the enforcement service that if you can "plant" an undercover man in a liquor gang you're likely to get action.

It has been done, and still is being done. It takes nerve and wits, and luck. Government agents have come to violent and very unhappy ends through mislaying this combination. Others have done better for themselves—and the law.

Time enough has passed so they say in enforcement quarters here—to tell the story of the last cruise of the storm-battered auxiliary schooner Pegasus, out of Havana with rum to peddle.

"Slim" Dolan tells it. As he talks—though he doesn't say it—you never forget that every moment of that cruise he and his mate, Pete Busch, also of the coast guard, balanced their lives on the footing of a very thin tightrope.

A Nightmare Cruise "It was a nightmare from start to finish and me and Pete certainly helped to make it so. We were the worst they ever hired aboard that lugger. It was our business to be 'winkin' against them' all the time, it's a wonder they landed any booze at all. But they did, in spite of all we could do to hold 'em back—till we got 'em in the end."

"And they kept wonderin' all the time why 'n thunder every last little thing seemed to go wrong on that ship. It had been a home, the crew said, until that cruise. Then all their luck left 'em, and the ship was a madhouse."

"Slim" chuckled. "We could have told 'em why things kept happenin'." he said. "Only they never thought to ask us!"

"You see," Slim continued, "Pete and I had orders to proceed to Havana, Cuba, and get aboard a rummy somehow—anyhow—and hang on till we turned 'em in. Nice easy assignment, what?"

"When we reached town we stayed at—let's say the Nevada hotel. It's a pretty tough dump down by what they call Muelle Luz, not far from the customs house—and all sorts of places. Full of rummies and their agents, that hotel was. And like nothing on earth so much as a mining town in boom-times. Fights and booze and parties, and more fights and more booze night and day. All it needed was Helen Twelveths and George Bancroft to make it just like the pictures."

The Pegasus "Well, Pete and me hung around and played dumb, and sure enough, pretty soon a guy comes up and asks us do we want a job. So, of course we said we did."

"He takes us to the owners of the schooner and the consignee—they were glad to get that information in Washington later—and there is a load ready to go, and they look us over and sign us on. Me as cook and Pete as engineer. What I don't know about cooking is only equalled by what Pete don't know about combustion engines.

"This motor was the old make-and-break type—spin the flywheel and pray she starts—and it could kick us along in calm weather at about two miles an hour. It might have been a Swiss watch for all Pete knew. But since all he wanted to do was break it down at the proper moment, he didn't care much. As for me in the galley—it was all but mutiny from start to finish with the stuff I dished up and I would be the first to acquit them if they'd hanged me from the gaff."

"First few days we had a little wind so there wasn't much Pete could do but pour a little gas over the side on the quiet now and then. With me, of course, the crew was all hospital cases in 24 hours. I'd sneak a little ham and eggs for Pete and me on the side, but finally I took pity on the boys and got an old sailor—he was a Spaniard—to give me a tip or two. I had needed the job, I told him. But he couldn't imagine how much I needed it."

What Tough Luck! "Our plan was to wait till we got inside American territorial waters and then stage a breakdown so we could take a chance on signaling some coast guard boat or other. Of course we wanted to get evidence of unloading contraband, too. That happened soon enough. Off Tarpon Springs when a Greek sponge boat came alongside and we sold them a load."

"Next time we got close to shore was off Boca Grande about 100 miles above Key West. It was dead calm, and Pete got inspired momentary she gives a terrible cry like a dying mule, the fly-wheel came up on an angle of sixty degrees, and the whole thing shakes like she's going crazy."

"All Pete had done was loosen all the bolts he could get a spanner on. It seems a little risky, now I look back at it, but the Old Man never seemed to tumble."

"What we wanted then was for the Pegasus to hang there, unable to get out to open sea again. We figured sooner or later the old striped flag would show up on the horizon. Then we could find some way to spill the beans."

Pete Gets Fired "But the Old Man—he was a squarehead—would have none of it. He was all for keeping moving. So we had the whole crew perspiring over the fly-wheel and cursing Pete, trying to shake the thing down into its moorings again. When the skipper had just about decided to heave Pete overboard to the likeliest looking shark in the neighborhood, up comes the wind, and we got under way again. So our plans went phooey."

"From that time on things began to drag. Day after day passed, and we still had liquor aboard and couldn't seem to make any contacts no radio, of course.

"We cruised around up the East Coast. By this time things had got so bad between Pete and his old motor that the skipper barred him from coming within ten yards of it. A fellow on a shore boat had put it right, as well as he could, and pretty soon when another boat came out, the skipper hired an engineer off it and sent Pete ashore. Of course that was jake with us, because Pete could report and get a cutter on our trail."

Meanwhile, I managed to lose most of our store of coffee overboard, and the grubbing was terrible. I peeled potatoes so thick I wasted most of a whole crate. I put salt in the pudding instead of sugar on Sundays and did my best to make the rest of the food taste like kitchen soap. Frightfulness, that was the basis of my campaign. Make everybody so fed up they wouldn't care if school kept or not. "Well, we were three weeks out of Havana when I spotted the sight I was looking for—the little gray boat with the one-inch gun on the bow. That was off Daytona and we were in territorial waters again as it happened. I just waved a dish towel and she came right alongside."

A Bewitched Ship? "After that it was only a case of towing the poor old Pegasus around to Savannah where there was the kind of court we needed. The government seized her."

"But I don't believe by that time crew or skipper cared what happened. As far as they were concerned, the schooner was bewitched."

"Slim" chuckled. "Well, maybe she was," he said.

Santa Fe and Taos Program Wednesday

In Santa Fe the young men still go counting with a guitar and a bunch of flowers, and some of them can trace their ancestry back more than 400 years, says Carveth Wells, Continental Oil company radio entertainer, who plans to devote his regular Wednesday night broadcast on April 19 to Santa Fe and Taos, New Mexico, two of the most historic cities in the United States.

One dramatic portion of this program, which will be heard over 20 NBC stations, is the characterization of Kit Carson, pioneer trapper and Indian fighter, whose old home is now one of the show places of Taos. Taos, by the way, says Wells, is a Chinese name as well as an Indian one.

The Conoco program may be heard by local listeners who tune in on station WFAA Wednesday night at 9:30 o'clock.

The Maharajah of Nawanagar has presented the London zoo with a tiger, an animal which had a lioness for a mother and a tiger for a father.

Two bad combinations for an automobile: a loose tire and a tight driver.

Shorty Holster tells us every day about his fine laying hens but I don't believe the one he told this morning about a trained White Leghorn hen which comes in the house, climbs up on the kitchen stove and lays in the skillet.

A farmer said yesterday he had a mortgage on his farm, a plaster on his cow and a jig-saw puzzle in the house.

A tight-wad reformer said that if American women would quit spending what they spend at beauty parlors, that money would pay the public debt of Greece and liquidate the budget of Puerto Rico.

Addison Wadley says the worst thing that could happen to him would be to get shot with a revolver bought from a mail order house.

I wonder how many of the boys got caught in the draft April 7.

Church work, if done right, is very hard work.

A very handy man is he who can use his mouth and his brains at the same time. It is seldom done.

Of course, it is easy to go with the crowd. But, we hope you realize that the crowd sometimes is crazy.

In many instances you create your environment. So don't always blame things on your environment.

A broad minded man is one who admits his prejudice.

We have always hated mail order stores. We were very indignant when we were shot by a woman who was armed with a revolver she bought from a mail order house.

From a modern drama: "Yes, I killed him. I shot him down as if he were a dog. I have no regrets. I feel no sense of remorse. I'll do the same violence again if anybody slaps me on the back while I am working a jig saw puzzle."

The Pathfinder: "Scoffers stop to sneer at the simplicity of the jig saw puzzle, then remain to be fascinated and hopelessly involved."

Chinese Violated The Cat Tradition

SAN FRANCISCO. (UP)—Gee Ni Gow, Chinatown shopkeeper, violated the Chinese tradition that prohibits drowning for any wildcat destined for a feast—but he proved there is more than one way to kill a cat. Field for the opening of the "Yeah Mow" season, the wildcat escaped its cage and took possession of Gow's shop. With the aid of a mallet, two revolvers, 15 howling Chinese and a couple of policemen, Gow brought to an abrupt end the cat's nine lives. Then the animal was prepared for the feast. However, Gow and his fellow banqueteers are fearful that the unorthodox slaying of the wildcat robbed it of the stamina legend teaches Chinese to believe they will reap from feasting on wildcats. The "Yeah Mow" season feast calls for a wildcat that has been "choked with butter."

Says Her Husband Lost 16 Pounds In 4 Weeks

"I have never found a medicine that 'peps' you up like Kruschen Salts and better still, leaves you 'pepped up.' I take it two or three times a week—not to reduce but merely to feel good and clean. My husband took it to reduce, he lost 16 pounds in 4 weeks." Mrs. E. A. Ferris, Washington, D. C. (December 29, 1932).

To lose fat and at the same time gain in physical attractiveness and feel spirited and youthful take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

A jar that lasts 4 weeks costs but a trifle at any drugstore in the world but be sure and get Kruschen Salts the SAFE way to reduce wild hips, prominent front and double chin and again feel the joy of living—money back if dissatisfied after the first jar. (Adv.)

Felice Club Entertains Husbands

The Felice Bridge club entertained members and their husbands at the Victor Smith home, 313 West Louisiana, Wednesday at a four-course dinner.

Sgt. Joseph Capriota was high for men and Mrs. Capriota high for women. Both received prizes.

The home was decorated in Easter colors. An ice course was served. Present were: Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Connor, Houston Sikes, Joseph Capriota, Jolly Johnson, Harvey Thompson, Kirby Simms, Tom Jackson Jr. and the host and hostess.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Prune Pudding Pronto

3-4 cup finely crumbled soda crackers
 1-3 cup sugar
 1-2 cup milk
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1-2 teaspoon baking powder
 1-2 cup cooked prunes, chopped
 1-2 cup nutmeats, broken
 1 tablespoon butter, melted

Finely crumble crackers, add sugar, milk, vanilla and baking powder. Combine this mixture with chopped prunes and broken nut meats and butter. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (375 F.) 25 to 30 minutes or until mixture is firm. Serve with plain or whipped cream.

Six portions.

Prunes served this way become a delicacy and are less expensive than any other fruit.

THIS MORNING'S COOKING SCHOOL PROGRAM

Oven Secrets of Modern Cookery

Tomato Bread	Simple	Chocolate Meringue Cake
Turban of Parsnips	Certain	Chicken Pie
Date-Nut-Marshmallow Pie		Banana Pudding
Mixed Grill		Macaroni & Chicken Salad

Thrifty Cooker Cookery

RECIPE NO. 1—TOMATO BREAD

Two cups of tomato juice, add two tbsps. shortening, one tsp. salt and three tbsps. sugar. When mixture is lukewarm add one cake of yeast mixed with one-half cup of lukewarm water and white bread flour to knead. (About 7 cups). It is better to use earthen bowl and mix the ingredients with a knife. Knead until elastic. Let rise in a temperature of about 75 deg. Fah. When double in bulk, shape into loaves, place in well buttered bread pan. When light, bake in Electric Oven at 375 Deg. Fah. about one hour.

RECIPE NO. 2—TURBAN OF PARSNIPS

Grate enough raw parsnips to make two cups. Mix with 1/4 cup grated pecan meats (grated very fine). Add two beaten eggs and a cup of thin cream and 1/4 cup fine cracker crumbs. Season the whole with one tsp. of salt, one-fourth tsp. pepper and one-half tsp. sugar. Grease very thickly a ring mould, pour in the parsnip mixture and pour in slow oven, 325 deg. Fah, until firm. (Pouching in this content means setting the ring mould on several thicknesses of paper in a pan of hot water and placing the whole thing in the oven). Invert on platter, fill with hashed or minced or creamed meat or fish, garnish with sliced cucumber pickles and serve hot.

RECIPE NO. 3—DATE-NUT-MARSHMALLOW PIE

1 Pkg. dates
 1 cup marshmallows
 1 cup pecan or almond meats
 1 tbsps. gelatin
 1/4 cup water (cold)
 1 cup milk (half milk, half cream)
 1/2 cup maple or white sugar

Remove stones from dates, cut each date into six pieces. Similarly cut marshmallows. Cut pecans or almonds very fine. Hydrate gelatin in water—dissolve in hot milk or cream. The milk and cream heated nearly to boiling point. Then add sugar, let cool, beat with egg beater until frothy, add dates, nuts, and marshmallows, and pour into already baked pastry shell. Do not use until cold and firm. This filling is especially well adapted to rusk or crumb pie crust.

RECIPE NO. 4—CHOCOLATE MERINGUE CAKE

1/2 cup shortening
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 cup milk
 4 egg yolks
 2 squares chocolate (melted)
 1/4 cup pastry flour
 2 tsp. baking powder
 Pinch salt
 1 tsp. vanilla

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and mix thoroughly. Add melted chocolate and egg yolks. Sift flour, salt and baking powder together, and add alternately with the milk to first mixture. Lastly, add flavoring. Pour into well greased oblong pan and cover with meringue made from 4 egg whites, 1/4 cups powdered sugar, 1/4 cup blanched and shredded almonds.

Beat egg whites until stiff, add sugar and beat again. Spread on cake batter. Sprinkle shredded almonds over top. Bake in moderately hot oven 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

RECIPE NO. 5—CHICKEN PIE

3 cups cooked or canned chicken
 12 small cooked white onions
 1 cup cooked sliced carrots
 2 cups well-seasoned chicken broth
 4 tbsps. flour
 6 tbsps. water
 Baking powder biscuit dough

Arrange the chicken, onions and carrots in a 1 1/2 qt. casserole. Meanwhile heat the chicken broth, stir in the flour mixed to smooth paste with the water, and boil 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Pour this sauce over the chicken and vegetables. Prepare the baking powder biscuit dough by the standard recipe, using 2 cups flour as a basis. Roll to 1/4 inch thickness and cut into rings. Arrange on chicken. Bake in hot oven of 425 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Serves 6 to 8. Canned chicken broth or chicken bouillon cubes may be used for the broth.

RECIPE NO. 6—BANANA PUDDING

5 bananas
 1/2 lemon, grated rind and juice
 1 1/2 tbsps. butter
 Fine bread crumbs
 1 1/2 cups milk
 2 eggs
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/4 tsp. salt
 1 1/2 tsp. vanilla
 Jelly (current)

Line bottom of a well greased baking dish with a layer of bananas. Cut into slices. Dot with bits of butter, sprinkle with lemon juice and cover with fine bread crumbs. Repeat the process. Mix milk and lemon rind together and scald—combine the slightly beaten eggs, sugar and salt. Pour the hot milk over egg mixtures, add vanilla and pour over bananas. Set dish in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven 350 degrees about 30 or 40 minutes. Spread with currant jelly top with whipped cream or meringue.

Alabama Indians Studied by the Fine Arts Club

A tribe of Indians that are entirely different from the small boy's idea of that race and that live in Southeast Texas formed a basis for a program at the Fine Arts club meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Glass.

The Alabama peaceful, retiring, sincerely devoted to Christianity, live out a precarious existence on 4000 acres in Polk county near the town of Livingston, which is 30 miles northeast of Houston, according to Mrs. De Lo Douglas, who was program leader and who read a pamphlet prepared by Mary Donaldson Wade.

The road connecting the reservation with the outside world is unpaved and becomes almost impassible in rainy weather, hence comparatively few tourists ever pass through the village.

The Alabamas, as the name would lead one to suppose, originally came from the state of that name. They have never intermarried with whites, Indians or negroes, but have kept their racial integrity intact.

During the summer of 1931, the children had their first party, planned by workers of the Presbyterian church. The party was a great success, until a game of marbles that required a lot of talking. The children would not participate. Instead, they stood, politely but grimly silent as the tribe appeared to have a special aversion to the white people's seeing them eat, but they have overcome that feeling. Many used to run and hide when they saw a white person coming.

For some reason up until recently the Alabamas had received no help from the federal government. However, a few years ago, the Indian agent journeyed to Washington with a small party of the Indians that they personally could present their needs to the authorities. Then, the Texas Federation of Women's clubs became interested and did much toward equipping the people of Texas with the situation.

The poverty of the Alabamas is clearly shown on their burial grounds. It is the custom to place on the graves treasured possessions, but on some there is nothing, showing that the family could not afford to keep adding treasures as old ones disappeared.

The tribe has a peculiar kind of game that they play with racquets. They gave it up some time ago because there was so much evil, drunkenness and gambling associated with it. The white people have, however, persuaded them to revive it.

The Alabamas are still ruled by a chief and still maintain the clan system. Another thing the tribe has clung to faithfully is their language. Then, they give only one name to their children and that is usually English, but they call their children by some descriptive name.

Practically the entire population attend church and Sunday school. It is said by white people, that the minister there, Dr. Chambers, can at any time ring the church bell and within a few minutes the church will be filled. Considering the pathetically small amount of money they have, the Indians give liberally to the church. Men working on farms think nothing of walking ten or twelve miles to church services.

Mrs. Douglas and Miss Stella Maye persuaded who reviewed, in the last part of the pamphlet, also told of the work Dr. and Mrs. Chambers are doing there on the reservation.

Two songs sung by the girls quartet of the high school completed the program.

Student's 'New Deal' Dimmed Roosevelt's

AMES, Iowa (UP)—Roosevelt's "new deal" has been dimmed in the public eye here by a "new deal" asked for by Paul Petty, an Iowa State College student.

Petty asked a new deal when he drew 13 hearts in a bridge game at the Kappa Sigma fraternity house.

His request was protested by Betty Wells, Chadron, Neb., and Virginia Johnson, Des Moines, Ia., and Petty, reluctant but gallant, withdrew his demand.

To ret the bid, however, he ultimately had to declare a slam because Miss Johnson had declared a slam in clubs.

"I was so surprised by those 13 hearts I thought something was wrong with the deal, so I asked or a new one," Petty explained.

Children Run Their Own City

SANTA MARIA, Calif. (UP)—A few miles from here, in Cat Canyon, Blochman City is thrashing out its municipal problems and worries, like any grown-up city.

It isn't a grown-up city, because it is peopled by youngsters who haven't yet reached high school age. There are 47 of them. They own it, built it, maintain it and rule it.

The "city" occupies a tract of land 20,000 square feet, adjoining the Blochman elementary school. It was designed seven years ago by Mrs. George Fuller, school principal, who saw in such an enterprise something that would grasp the imaginations and interests of juvenile minds.

Results have justified her dreams. The children surveyed the site and staked it off in lots. They erected a city hall, a few stores and houses. They laid out a tiny park. They laid out streets, covering them with gravel and giving them real names as Main, Ditch Drive, Eucalyptus and Speedway Boulevard. They started a grocery store, a museum, a real estate office, a hospital, a post office, a bank, a floral shop. They even entered the publishing field with a weekly newspaper, The Siatric.

The children winnowed passing truck drivers and salesmen for samples and stocked the stores. Now you can even buy cosmetics in Blochman City.

Lighthouse Keeper For 51 Years Dies

PAIMPOL, Brittany (UP)—The world's first and only "Professor of Lighthouse Keeping" has just died at 69, after 51 years of service in the Paon Lighthouse on the Ile de Brehat, off the Breton coast.

She is Mme. Marie Perrine Durand, acclaimed throughout Brittany as the "Breton Vestal." No Frenchwoman ever had been named keeper of a lighthouse before Madame Durand was appointed. She remained in active service until the day of her death.

Every year several "apprentice" lighthouse keepers were sent to her for instruction. She was named "Professor of Lighthouse Keeping" by the French Merchant Marine Ministry. During her 51 years' service Madame Durand trained more than 50 expert keepers, two of this number her own daughters, Mme. Pierre Taldu, in charge of the Port-ic-Chain, Pleu-

CUPID SAVES HIM

WACO (UP)—Wilmer Conover, brother of J. E. Conover of Waco, owes his life to the darts of Dan Cupid.

A member of the crew of the ill-fated Akron, which crashed into the sea, Conover missed the fatal flight because he had obtained leave to get married.

J. E. Conover was greatly concerned here Tuesday and feared his brother had been killed until he received a wire from Edensburg, Pa. "Thanks to Clara, married Tuesday. Am I lucky?" read the message from Wilmer.

The full name of the bride had not been learned by the Waco man.

AT THE UNITED

NOTED SLAYER DROWNS WHILE IN PRESERVER

By United Press

Henry J. Toussaint, fugitive Texas murderer, who spoke meticulous English and disposed of his father, a well known Wichita Falls business man, rather than let his parents interfere with his plans of living, never intended the life he had so carefully preserved should perish ignominiously as it did in the muddy waters of the Mississippi river.

So say those who knew him. Escape, they declare, was the motive of the crafty man who had twice slipped from the encircling arms of the law as he dived from the deck of the steamer which was returning him from the Canal Zone where his identity became known.

Toussaint was deported from Panama, where he had been in hiding after his escape from the Huntsville penitentiary on October 22, 1928. Texas had shown little interest in Toussaint's return. It refused to bear the expenses to send an officer to Panama to return the fugitive although Attorney General James V. Allred had brought about identification through a woman whom Toussaint married at Denver before fleeing to Central America.

But once in the United States, especially as conveniently close as New Orleans, Texas officers may have revived interest in the case. That, undoubtedly, the wary fugitive guessed.

Toussaint boarded the steamer at Panama without guards. He left the ship at Honduras and its officers said at New Orleans he had undoubtedly fled into the interior. But such was not the case, for on the next New Orleans bound steamer Toussaint was a passenger. His uneasiness increased as the steamer neared American shores. While the boat was waiting its way up the Mississippi to dock at New Orleans, Toussaint, his bag packed, jumped from the deck.

A lifeboat was lowered and the fugitive's lifeless form was brought to the ship. The man who had slipped from eight years before, who had been graduated with honors from Harvard university, had strapped the life preserver he wore upside down.

So died Toussaint, the man who had walked free from one jail, had been caught and years later slipped quietly away from the state's carefully policed prison.

Toussaint was convicted in Jones county criminal courts of patricide. The jury sentenced him to death, modifying the court's first sentence of death.

He went to Huntsville prison a marked man.

"Watch that fellow," guards were told. "He's smart. He can make a key from a spoon that will unlock anything."

That literally was true. In 1922, while waiting trial for the second

Toussaint fashioned a key from a spoon, unlocked four massive doors of the Wichita county jail and slipped away. He was caught and taken to Anson, Texas, where the second trial was held. Guards watched him night and day at Anson. They walked into his cell without notice, examined it often and once moved him to another cell. In the abandoned cell they found a key shaped from a spoon. It unlocked every lock in the jail! But Toussaint had patience. Days dragged into months, months into years, before he could dream of an escape from Huntsville. The golden opportunity came while Toussaint

FIVE HUNTERS CHARGED WITH 'JUMPING GUN'

ABILENE—Five prominent citizens of Sweetwater came to Abilene Tuesday to make bond in United States district court on charges they last fall they violated the federal migratory bird treaty act. Defendants are: John M. Hendrix, manager of the board of city development; Sam Bothwell, city manager; C. E. Paxton, chief clerk at the mill; G. M. Landry, refinery superintendent; and Ben Roberts, branch manager of International Harvester company.

Facts learned: Last October 25 the five men went out to inspect Lake Sweetwater, newly filled from fall rains. They had a gun or two in the boat, and shot seven ducks. Under the state game law, duck shooting had become legal the week before, on October 16; but the federal migratory bird act, falling for the first time to coincide with the Texas law in setting season on dates, fixed the open season as beginning November 1.

When the men landed their boat, they were met by W. T. St. John, state game warden, who happened to be patrolling the lake. When they protested the warden had been open a week. St. John recited the federal act and told them he would have to refer the case to the federal authorities.

St. John told a newspaper man: "In November I referred the case to the federal warden in Houston, as I was uncertain about procedure, since it was the first case of the type I had handled. I got his reply in December in which he told me to pass it along to Washington. I did so, and then lost track of it."

Last Friday, evidently on instructions from Washington, the federal district attorney in Fort Worth instructed that information be filed against the men in the Abilene district. That was done last Friday, and late Monday the defendants were instructed to appear yesterday before Mrs. Ida M. James, U. S. commissioner, to learn of their counsel, each making bond for $200 for appearance next Monday before Judge James C. Wilson.

was on a four-day engineering trip. No one accompanied him. His conduct at prison warranted such faith. Toussaint fled and none saw him nor did Huntsville officers learn of his whereabouts until Allred received the information through Toussaint's estranged wife. She said he talked in his sleep, that she questioned him and learned of his break from jail. Toussaint said he was acquitted of a murder indictment charge, she said.

Allred studied court records from Wichita Falls, they unfolded the story of one of the most deliberate slayings in criminal history of Texas.

Toussaint, head-strong, brilliant young engineer, was in partnership with his father in the engineering business. He had come home to Wichita Falls from Harvard university an honor student. Few restrictions did his parents place upon their son. One of the few was, he must marry a Protestant girl. Toussaint did not. His father threatened disunion of the partnership, disinheritance.

"I didn't want him to beat me all the way round, so I disposed of him," the court records reveal the youth as testifying to the slaying of his 69-year-old father, Otto H. Toussaint.

The court reporter stopped the recital. "Killed is the word, is it not?" he asked.

The record says Toussaint advised the reporter that disposed was a "much better" word and from that point in the recital of the slaying watched the reporter to see no grammatical errors in recording his statement occurred.

How he "disposed" of his father was carefully told.

His father was at a neighbor's home visiting. Toussaint disconnected wires on the automobile of the senior Toussaint and then waylaid the elderly man and shot him. "Murdered by a robber," said police.

Toussaint appeared nonplussed. His bravado led to his undoing, a confession, two trials, escapes, a fugitive's life and death.
