ALL PRODUCTION RECORDS OF E. T. FIELD SHATTERED

Unrestrained Flow Hikes Total to 1,073,000 Bbls

TULSA, May 15. (UP)—Crude production neared 3,000,000 barrels daily last week, the unrestrained East Texas flow causing an increase of 81,500 barrels. All previous records of production were broken. Kilgore was up 29,000 to 329,000. The total East Texas production was up 70,000 to 1,073,000. Total production for Texas was up 90,000 to 1,600,000 for the week.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF CAUSE OF CONFERENCE

AUSTIN, May 16. (UP)—Lawrence Westbrook, director of federal relief work in Texas, Roy Miller of Houston, Gutzon Borgum of San Antonio, State Reclamation Engineer E. F. Williams and State Water Engineer John Norris planned today to leave Wednesday for Washington to confer on projects for the Texas unemployment relief army.

County quotas must be completed by May 25, it was announced. Action of the legislature in submitting the resolution for the $20,000,000 state bond relief issue was expected to insure early federal funds for the state.

SAN ANTONIO, May 16. (UP)—Six thousand Texans will be ordered to the Camp Bullis reforestation army before June 7, it was announced today.

MILES CATTLE TOP THE MARKET

Heifer yearlings fattened by J. C. Miles, Midland farmer, topped the Fort Worth market Tuesday morning, when they brought 5-3 cents. The load averaged 736 pounds.

Miles put the heifers, bought from Glenn Brunson, on feed Jan. 1. He fed them a ration of corn, grains, sorghums, mineralized salt and cottonseed meal. The last 30 days of feeding before the load was shipped to Fort Worth the cattle were on a corn ration.

The shrinkage was only 15 pounds, the heifers having weighed 751 pounds at the stockpens here. They average 431 pounds when put on feed. Cattlemen said Tuesday the farmer feeder would make a long profit as he not only evidently did expert feeding, Miles got the advantage of low priced feed and a rising beef price. Miles bought the heifers at 4 cents a pound. He had 100 head on full feed.

City Polo Stars Now See Service

Two former members of the Midland Polo club are in tournaments at present, Jay H. Floyd playing with a Shreveport aggregation and Pete Patterson with San Angelo.

The Shreveport team was to have engaged in a tournament at New Orleans but had been prevented by rains from playing.

San Angelo, with a picked team from two clubs, including Captain Lee Aldwell, Alf House, Pete Patterson and Len Metz, was beginning a 30 day tournament on the El Ranchito field near Fort Worth.

Both players distinguished themselves while playing with the Midland team three years ago and have seen service on other clubs. Floyd formerly carried a one-goal handicap but had not played in tournaments for three years.

Few Passes Will Be Issued Here

Due to the difficulty of financing the baseball season, no passes to Permian Basin Baseball league games here will be issued except to players and their wives, an announcement today said.

"The skippers of each club in the league are liable for expenses of their clubs and must not run into a deficit," the expression continued. "From the showing Sunday, when Midland battled out a decision over the fast and hard hitting club from Wink, it is easily assumed that Midland should be glad to pay to see the Indians in action. Gate charges are nominal and the club should be supported."

Millions of Indians to whom he is a holy man and millions who look upon him as one of the world's most interesting men are watching the progress of the Mahatma M. K. Gandhi's 21-day, death-threatening fast. Released from jail on May 8 when he started his fast, Gandhi now is at the Poona home of Lady Vittal Das Thackersey, a Brahmin, wears a diamond in her nose. Gandhi is nursed during his fast by Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, upper right, revered Indian poetess. During his fast Gandhi partakes only of water to which he occasionally adds a pinch of salt or soda. Because of the heat and his weakened condition damp towels are constantly applied to his head.

Cycle Races for July 4 Proposed

Motorcycle races are being proposed as one of the major attractions in Midland for a July 4 celebration.

Donovan H. Gwyn, himself a motorcycle fan, believes cyclists from Big Spring and Stanton would come here for a race meet. These riders and Gwyn raced and played motorcycle polo in Odessa weeks ago. They will hold another meet soon.

Gwyn has conferred with local fans who are enthusiastic about the proposed races. He will go to Big Spring this week and take the matter up with riders who might be interested. If plans for a celebration materialize, the Midland rider offers his cooperation in getting up a racing meet.

Kat Klaw Results Not Complete and Standings Unknown

Hobb's Kat Klaw golf club defeated Stanton Sunday 26-14, the same margin with which Midland defeated Seminole in play on the country club links here.

Midland was awaking news from Lamesa, which club had been knotted with Midland for first place.

Harry Adams, sometimes of the Sand Belt and sometimes of the Kat Klaw, is back from a fishing trip that temporarily diverted his interest from golf. He is not to be distinguished from the rest of the Isaac Walters—he also let a big one "get away."

Billy Moran probably hit the longest ball in flight for golfers of the Sand Belt. It was at Sweetwater Sunday. Bill's shot rode 271 yards before touching up with the turf. A long driver at any time, he shells the distant horizon when he puts a bit of extra wrist action into his shot.

Frank Day was never beat so bad as the drubbing administered him in a match for position with Gen. E. Kidd. Kidd won Saturday 7-6, but Day was hitting them well enough to dispute the way with most of the boys on a given day. But Kidd came up to the tee on No. 14 an even par. Day had halved three holes at the turn, but had not taken one. Kidd was down for an edge in the scoring six times by that stage. He was three over when his ball fell into the cup on No. 18 Day's score was an 81. One of those days.

Most of the men could take putting instruction from Mrs. Charlie Mix. Anywhere within a reasonable distance of the cup she is likely to ram the putt down.

M. D. Johnson not only plays a good, though conservative, brand of golf—he makes his team side do the same. Playing with Bill Simpson in the Kat Klaw match Sunday he continually talked Bill into "giving the ball a chance" on the green.

As a result, Bill sank several long putts. "I sincerely try to get close (See GOLF, page 4)

FIRST "MAJOR POLITICAL ERROR" OF DEMOCRATIC ADMINISTRATION SHOWN

WASHINGTON, May 16. (UP)—At last the farm bill with its farm mortgage and inflation amendments has been passed by the house and senate.

In my judgment the first major political error of the administration was made when it insisted that the amendment, sponsored by the Farmers union, permitting the secretary of agriculture to fix the price of any of the farm products at the cost of production, be stricken from the bill. That amendment did not bind the secretary to fix the price at the cost of production but gave him the option of doing so. Secretary Wallace insisted that this provision should not be retained in the bill and he was supported by a vote of 283 to 109 in the house and 48 to 33 in the senate.

As a result of the secretary's opposition to this amendment four thousand delegates to the farm convention in Minnesota wired the president asking that he be removed from his post as secretary of agriculture. Very probably the secretary was not personally responsible for the opposition to the amendment.

As a result of the vote today on this amendment the Farm Holiday association declares it will push the strike called for May 13 to the full limit of their power.

The Farmers union will undoubtedly support the strike as that organization was vigorously opposed to the mortgage plan contained in the bill. This mortgage refinancing to the extent of two billion dollars provides for a five per cent interest rate which they oppose as too high.

The members of that union at their meeting here and before the committee insisted that this mortgage refinancing was for the benefit of mortgage companies and insurance companies and of no real benefit to the farmers. When the cost of production amendment was added to the farm bill in the senate these farmers suspended their fight on the mortgage clause.

Now that their cost of production amendment is killed at the request of the administration there will be great bitterness in their ranks. The Farmers union is the most aggressive farm organization in America and is officered by men with real leadership and courage.

It was their understanding that the cost of production would be applied this year to wheat. The department of agriculture estimates the average cost of producing a bushel of wheat in 1932 at $1.01. It is difficult to understand why the administration thought it necessary to antagonize these farmers. The short wheat crop will probably put wheat up to a dollar anyway.

It does not seem possible that the Holiday association can win their strike for better farm prices. To be successful they will have to stop nearly all food shipments. That would apply to train shipments as well as trucks.

Many people have always believed the fiction that the farmers are the peaceful element of our population. As a matter of fact they are, and always were, the most dangerous (See HOGAN, page 4)

Tiffin Opens Bank But Makes Teller Identify Himself

A cayuse almost prevented the opening of the First National bank at Stanton one day last week. The horse was so fractious that Mr. Lewis, one of the tellers, lost his key.

L. H. Tiffin, Midland wizard with locks, was called out of bed during the night and hurried by automobile to Stanton. In an hour and a half he had succeeded in getting into the vault.

Tiffin was a bit dubious at first about whether he should accompany Lewis to Stanton, and required the teller to identify himself at length.

"I don't want to slip up on myself and open a bank for some safe cracker who figures it would be easier for me to solve the combination than for him to set out some soup and blow it open," he grinned.

S. W. CONFERENCE MEETS THURSDAY

FORT WORTH—The Southwest conference tennis and golf tournament will get under way here Thursday morning and will continue through Saturday when the survivors of the preliminary rounds meet in the final brackets to determine the conference champions. The tennis matches will be played on the Meadowmere country club courts while the golfers will compete on the Worth Hills country club course.

The University of Texas looms as the favorite to make a clean sweep of the net laurels with one of the strongest collegiate teams in the nation. Karl Kramath, Texas star netter, is hoped to win the singles crown while a pair of his team mates, Martin Buxy and Bert Welton, look like sure winners in the doubles. Judy Truelson, lanky T. C. U. star, is expected to furnish the opposition plenty of competition before the final match is played. Truelson has been slow getting started this year and should be at the top of his form by Thursday.

Doc Lart, S. M. U. star, is also expected to be high in the running as Jack Hess, Rice Institute racket wielder.

Dennis Lavender, O'Harra Watts, S. M. U. pivot diggers, and Jimmy Walkup of T. C. U. hold the lime-light in the coming golf tests. Walkup holds a victory over Lavender while Lavender recently set back Watts, who won the conference championship last year. Rice Institute and Texas university will more than likely stage a battle royal for team honors as both T. C. U. and S. M. U. boast only individual stars. Texas Aggies and Arkansas will not be entered in either meet.

1200 Hear Concert of Band on School Terrace

The open air concert of the high school band last night drew a large audience for the third time since these concerts became a feature of the commencement programs. The band was seated on the beautiful high school terrace and cars were allowed to park in any convenient place in the streets and on the school campus.

The best received numbers on the varied program were the opera selection from Bohemian Girl by Balfe, the popular, Mardi Gras, the overture Panorama, and the bass solo played by Locksley Hall, standing before the band. The number for bass solo is written for BEB bass only as this instrument is the only bass used that will reach the lower register F, which is the last note in the solo. The band played the accompaniment to this number.

The following regular members of the Midland high school band gave this concert: Flute: George Walker; Eb clarinet: Merwin Haag, Allen Dorsey; Joe Beane; Jack Carroll; Jamie McMullan; Theo Cospier; Robert Howe; John Nobles, Jr.; James Connor; Ewing Lee; Eb clarinet; Nell Wayne Carlisle, Roberta Dunagan; alto saxophones: Malcolm Brennenhan, E. FIFTY-FOUR OF WORLD POWERS ARE ADDRESSED

Unprecedented Note Sounds Warning Of Future

WASHINGTON, May 16. (UP)—President Roosevelt in a message to 54 countries, including Russia, summoned all nations to pledge themselves to send no armies across their borders. He issued a sharp call for peace.

Roosevelt urged world wide acceptance of the MacDonald plan for peace consultations when war threatens and that "all nations of the world should enter a solemn and definite pact of non-aggression" and should "individually agree they will send no armed forces of whatsoever nature across their frontiers."

He warned any nation refusing not to "assume such responsibility" as the world "will know where to place the blame."

The president's unprecedented act addressing himself direct to the rulers, made the statement a historic utterance.

Germany was not mentioned but the message was delivered on the eve of Hitler's statements to the Reichstag in which it was feared he may open old war wounds.

Roosevelt bespoke success of the Geneva peace and London economic conferences.

"Happiness, prosperity and the very lives of men, women and children who inhabit the world are bound up in decisions their governments will make in the near future," he said.

Roosevelt proposed that no nation increase existing armaments pending outcome of the Geneva conference, and that in the meantime all should enter a non-aggression pact. Before it is imperative to call this great duty, petty obstacles must be swept away and petty aims forgotten, he said.

CALL AIMED AT HITLER, THOUGHT
WASHINGTON, May 16. (UP)—The Roosevelt peace call was interpreted here today as a well timed attempt to avert a crisis in Germany and France. The non-aggression pact would insure against attack and make it unnecessary for Germany to return, it was pointed out.

INCLUSION OF RUSSIA PRAISED

WASHINGTON, May 16. (UP)—Senate Majority Leader Robinson expressed the opinion today that Roosevelt's inclusion of Russia in his peace message may have the effect of recognizing the Soviet union. Senator Borah said the inclusion of Russia was a "bright spot."

CHANGING IDEAS ON BUSINESS CONTROL

If someone sat down to write a history of the Sherman anti-trust law, and the varying attitudes which the public has displayed toward it, he would find when he got through that he had also written the history of one of the most significant phases of the whole industrial revolution.

The Sherman act bridges the gap between two diametrically opposite ways of looking at the fruits of the machine age.

It was born when the whole nation looked with suspicion and an uneasy distrust on the giant combines of industry and finance. Mere size, in itself, seemed bad in those days. Our ideal was still the small business man, the small industrialist, the man who knew all of his employees by name and carried most of the details of his business in his own head.

But the tide was running the other way. Instead of small shops we got vast plants employing men by the thousands; great networks of interlocking businesses that blanketed the entire country, with a maze of security setups that seemed to put ownership and management above the reach of public control.

So we adopted the Sherman law, hoping to stem the tide. But the tide kept on moving; and as it moved our ideas changed.

We began to discover that "big business" was an inevitable outgrowth of the age of machinery. The trend couldn't possibly be stopped. The day of large-scale operations and giant combinations had arrived and we could do little but make the best of it.

And this, we began to see, might not be so bad, after all. If we could somehow foster this bigness, help it to become even bigger and more widespread, and at the same time work out some scheme by which social values would weigh just as heavily as profits, we might do very well for ourselves.

So now leaders in the administration discuss with industrial leaders the possibility of modifying the Sherman law—partly in the interest of business, but chiefly in the interest of the ordinary citizen.

It is a strange and significant shift which has taken place.

Granby, a mining town in Missouri, seems to be an unusual municipality. Not only is it grubstaking seventy-five of its unemployed citizens to enable them to dig and ship zinc ore to a profitable market, but the money is being taken from a $4000 surplus that the city, having neither debts nor bonds outstanding, had on deposit in local banks.

As Premier Mussolini excavates the Circus Maximus, archaeologists watch for Etruscan and Italian relics, but the deeply interested schoolboy wants to know what it was that passed, in Augustus' time, for peanuts and pink lemonade.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

They tell me Jess Miles surely did put on a party out at his place last night, with barbecued beef and goat for the Rotarians, their families and a lot of other Midland people and Jess's neighbors. And he really has just shipped out a car of the biggest and best finished yearlings he has been feeding, but the string he had left looked like they were ready for the packer. Hogs, goats, poultry, a first class dairy herd, big stout mules, good farm machinery, well kept buildings, fences and grounds—that's what greets the eye of a visitor to Jess Miles' place. And what hospitality! If any of the hundred and some odd visitors didn't feel at home it was because they didn't know how. Mr. and Mrs. Miles certainly are the real hosts.

It's been said that love is what makes the world go round. I notice that a lot of blondes are dizzier at this time of the year.

Johnson Phillips, on a recent trip to the Rio Grande with Ben Whitefield, stopped at a camping spot and said it ought to be a good place to fish because no million mosquitoes can't be wrong.

When Percy Mims was in the army he addressed a letter to the Intelligent Officer and was bawled out by a captain who said, "You ought to know there isn't a man like that in the army."

A story going the rounds is about Hoover knocking on the golden gates.

"Who are you?" asked St. Peter. "Herbert Hoover," was the reply. "Come right in," said St. Peter. "You're well enough, well or are you?" And there was another knock and St. Peter called out again.

"It's Franklin Delano Roosevelt," was the reply. "Come on in," called out St. Peter. "You too have suffered plenty." And then there was a third knock. "Who's that?" asked St. Peter. "Bill Murray," was the reply, "and if you don't open the golden gates right now I'll call out the militia."

Jim Bradier, founder of the Alianza Petroleum Corporation in Northern Arizona, returns to the oil fields after a long trip to America. He finds the Alianza in constant warfare with a gang of native desperados under the leadership of General Rayon. Bradier has quit the Alianza and refuses to help them combat Rayon. Bradier is in love with Vida Corey, wife of Stephen Corey, field superintendent of the Alianza, and has just told Corey that he (Bradier) and Vida are going to leave together. Corey directs a vitriolic blast against Bradier, but Vida is adamant. They are to leave in the morning.

CHAPTER FOUR The next morning found Jim Bradier talking loudly with a group of the oil men on the field. Vida drove up in her car. She honked her horn and Jim strode over. He smiled sheepishly at having been caught talking of oil. "Somebody's gone and changed this oil company into a university, of all the silly academic—"

Vida laughed. "What do we care, Jim? We're leaving. I'm all packed. Are you ready?" Jim spoke slowly. "I can get ready in a few minutes."

"Get in. I'll drop you by your bungalow." Bradier started to enter the car when a sweat-soaked horse drove up and pulled in sharply before him. The driver was breathless and excited.

"There's been a pipe line cut five miles out, Rayon again," the man gasped. "Any orders, sir?" Vida looked at Bradier with a questioning stare. Bradier, aware of her scrutiny, answered: "What have I got to do with it? Ask Corey—his boss here."

Surprised, the man stared at Bradier for a moment, and then wheeled his horse and rode off to find Corey. Jim watched the man dismount to enter the superintendent's office.

Vida became impatient. "Well, come on dear. Get in." "Tell me," said Bradier slowly. "What Stephen said last night—that I was wrecking this company to try to impress you—you don't believe I'd do anything like that to convince you, do you?"

Vida smiled. "If you did, I wouldn't mind. I'd love to think you'd wreck a company to please me. It flatters me."

"The smile disappeared from Vida's lips. 'Well, are we going?' There was no answer from Bradier. 'Tell me—do you want to go back to New York alone with nothing at all to think about?'"

"I can't leave and let him think I'm doing this to him," answered Jim. "It will only take me a little while to straighten it out. After all, another day—"

Before he could finish the sentence, Vida started the motor and drove abruptly away without another word. He started after her with an expression of bewilderment at the unreasonableness of women. Bradier entered Corey's office. Corey, still seething over the injustice done him by Bradier and Vida, would listen to no argument of Jim's regarding methods of fight-

ed to pack his grips; his mind was made up, he was leaving with Vida as soon as possible. Then, as if noticing the girl for the first time, he walked over to the bed, reached down and pulled the struggling girl to her feet. Lifting her bodily, he carried her outside the house and unceremoniously dumped her on the ground.

Jim Bradier walked along the sand street that was dark in the night shadows. He paused before Corey's office. There was a light within. He peered in the window. Corey sat slumped forward in a chair, his head buried in his arms on the desk—weeping. Something snapped in Bradier at sight of the man's anguish. He could not fathom the scene. Men do not weep for love of a woman. . . or for the loss of that love. . . the sensation was strange to him. Infuriated, he turned away.

A group of horsemen was coming down the street. It was the crew that had been sent out to repair the broken pipe line. Two figures, covered with burlap cloths, were tied to a pair of mules. Bradier walked up.

"What have you got there?" he asked.

"I wouldn't look if I were you," was the answer.

Bradier ignored the remark and lifted the cloth.

One of the men said: "I can't tell whether it's Floyd or Grimshaw. Those ants make it hard to identify anybody."

Bradier growled. "Are those the men who guarded the pipe line that was wrecked?"

"All that's left of them." Another said: "You're going to find it pretty hard to get men to take their places, too."

"If somebody doesn't stop that Rayon guy—"

"They'll never get me to go out on those lines." Bradier walked away silently, his face a hard mask. He turned in at his room and stopped before his half-packed bags. He put a few more things in the case, then, suddenly, he banged down the cover of the bag and walked over to his desk. He started to write:

"Dearest Vida: It occurs to me that for the sake of appearances, it might be better for you to leave alone. I'll follow later and meet you at the hotel."

Beginning a week of gala affairs, juniors and seniors Monday night went on a "tour of inspection" of homes of their various teachers.

After a visit with each, they went to the home of Miss Doris Black, where they enjoyed dancing and were served ice cream and cake.

Plans are being made by both juniors and seniors for a dance Thursday night and is expected that other affairs will be given.

Class night exercises will be held at the high school tonight at 8 o'clock. The public is invited.

Victory Against Rare Disease Is Predicted

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind (UP)—An apparently successful fight against the ravages of Landry's paralysis, a rare disease commonly known as the "creeping death" is being waged by William Kruman, 23, Culver, Ind. Physicians had little hope for recovery of the stricken youth when he was brought to a hospital here several months ago. He hovered between life and death for weeks, then showed a slight improvement.

About 10 days ago he was permitted to sit in a wheel chair. Kruman described first symptoms of the rare malady as a feeling of "sand in my shoes." This sensation spread from his feet to his abdomen, almost completely paralyzing him.

The earliest elections held in America were probably those of delegates to the Virginia Assembly in 1619, but the earliest date specified was that of the election of John Winthrop as governor of Massachusetts in 1631.

Audience Is Given Minute to Solve a Crime at the Ritz

"Lock me up, I am going to commit a crime."

That's how "The Crime of the Century" starts off and from then on, this rapid-fire Paramount picture that opens at the Ritz theatre today, is guaranteed to tangle up the most alert audience in a mass of clues and counter-clues in the most original mystery of the new season.

B. P. Schulberg, who produced "The Crime of the Century," has introduced in this picture the first innovation in thriller technique that film audiences have witnessed in ages and ages. It is the one-minute intermission, at the moment of greatest suspense, during which the audience is given an opportunity to survey all clues and to outguess both the police and the criminal. The audience, for the first time in screen history, is let in on the fun of trapping the criminal.

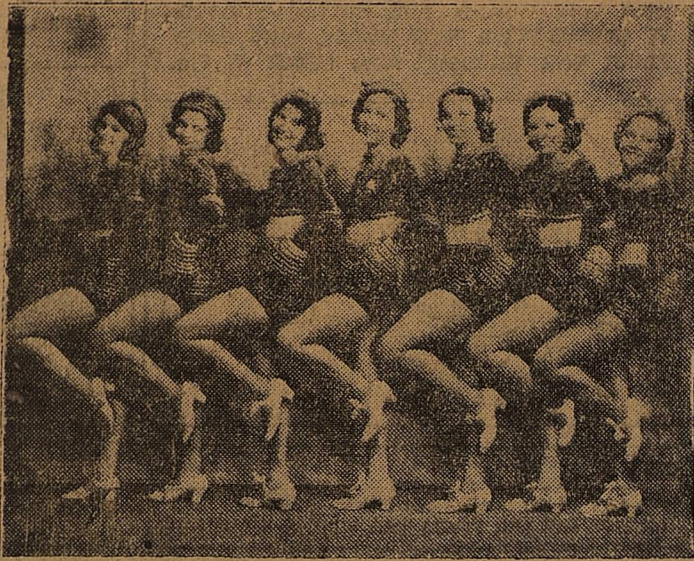

Though the audience and the police know all about the perfect crime long before it is committed, you'll find yourself up a tree during that 60-second pause for guesses, and, as a matter of fact, right up to the very last moment when the murderer is found to be a person whose name will not be divulged by anyone who has seen the picture.

We will tell you, however, that it is Stuart Erwin, in the role of the wise reporter, who solves the problem and makes the world safe against people who plan "perfect" crimes. You'll like, too, Wynne Gibson and Frances Dee, in the leading feminine roles.

See "The Crime of the Century" and set your wits to unravelling the "perfect" crimes. The clues are all there—and so is the picture.

Beetles exist in every part of the world. There are 100,000 classified species, and new kinds being discovered constantly.

Chevrolet Gives Free Fair Trips

More than 1,000 free trips to the Chicago World's fair will be awarded to the Chevrolet field organization by the company this summer on the basis of meritorious sales work during May and June. H. J. Klingler, vice-president and general sales manager announced Saturday. The trips will include two days and two nights in Chicago and transportation both ways, Klingler said. Awards will go to retail salesmen making the best sales record against the quota established for them during the two months ending June 30, he explained. Each zone in the company's field set-up has been allotted a definite number of free awards, and the ranking members of the selling organization in that zone will win the Chicago

Unpatented Tracts Of Ranch Surveyed

Survey of unpatented tracts of the Stokes ranch, which sold recently to Andrew Fasken, has been made in the field recently. Under laws of about 1850 certain tracts of land were given by the legislature to the public free school fund and such lands as are classified under these laws the public school fund held a debt over, so that any owner by paying this school debt receives from the state a patent, or a quit claim deed.

The public free school land debts where they are in existence are payable any time. The interest is payable annually at the rate of 3 per cent. Texas lands patents are signed by the governor. United States public lands filed on by individuals and proved up by individuals bear the name of the president on the patents.

The Stokes ranch survey was made by Ralph Buoy.

ATTEND CONVENTION

Barney Greathouse and wife are in Galveston this week, attending the state convention of druggists, representing the Midland Drug company.

PLAYGROUND GAME

A playground ball practice game will be engaged in by the Southern Ice and the Magnolia service station teams at 6 o'clock this afternoon.

Play will be at the southside diamond. H. Howard is manager of the Ice men, Clarence Day of the Oil men.

Hokus Pokus and the Bill Blackman service station clubs plan a game at 6:15 Wednesday afternoon.

At one point the ceiling of the Carlsbad Caverns, New Mexico, is 300 feet high.

The company had a dual motive in offering the awards, Klingler said. First, to give the field men a worth-while incentive to reach their quotas by offering as prizes the world's premier attraction of the summer, and second, to give the winners an opportunity while at Chicago, to see the assembly plant which Chevrolet will operate in the special General Motors building on the exposition grounds.

Golf

enough to sink the second putt," Bill said. "Johnson is an indispensible in a match as one's favorite iron."

Kidd still has a match to lose. He's won everything entered to date.

C. L. Jackson continues to set the pace, however. He plays No. 1 man consistently at match date roll around. He probably hits the longest ball for his weight of any golfer in the association and generally is straight down the middle. He gets his distance by standing almost as far from the ball as Pat Riley—which is almost good putting distance. A natural athlete he does well in almost any sport he enters, he simply looks at the ball, winds up and swats it like a blacksmith.

Red Knight's Irish temperament is making allowances for plenty of grinning, whereas he used to "ride" his ball and clubs. Down the column of scoring one day and high the next he's about to decide a fly speak on his ball didn't cause that long hook into the rough. Good when he's good, bad when he's bad—and quite philosophical about it these days.

Don Sivalls keeps hanging on the lower rung of the Sand Belt ladder. That's a sticky position, but he seems to like competition. Henry Shaw and Harry Adams make most of the faces at him.

Doc Ellis and his Indians must have gone on a rampage for certain, judging from the compliments one hears. The club played the strong Winkler aggregation and made the monumental Letty Lybrand look like he had feet of clay. There may be better ball games played, but those who were out Sunday say such engagements are "few and far between." If editing may be allowed, this is the time to infuse the club with life. There may be supported by large crowds each time it plays.

Standing of the first five clubs of the Sand Belt is known, but the Odessa Statonky scores have not been learned. Big Spring slipped into second place through Sweetwater's holding of the first-place Midland club to a halved score. Revised standings are:

Midland	130
Big Spring	122
Sweetwater	116
Colorado	112
Snyder	84

Medal scores for Sand Belt golfers Sunday: Jackson 85, Day 81, Kidd 80, Miller 82, Moran 87, Douglas 80, Chambers 83, Sivalls 87. Bear in mind, the game was played on a course so muddy that water had to be dragged away from the cups before putting could follow.

ous element when thoroughly aroused. It may surprise and shock the nation to see what the reaction to this farmers strike will be. In Minnesota, Governor Olson will give them the moral support of the state government. In Wisconsin they claim 115,000 members out of a total of 180,000 farmers in the state. In Iowa there is a bitterness that could easily lead to bloodshed.

The situation is not helped by some rattle brained fanatics who are rushing into print to charge the farmers with being led by communists. Having seen the leaders of this movement in action and knowing the deadly seriousness with which they reluctantly went into this farm strike, I view its outcome

Under the Dome Of the Capital

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN (UP).—A small news item from Washington recently carried great political significance in Texas.

The item was a mere announcement that Congressman-at-Large Joe Bailey Jr., of Dallas, would not be a candidate for the new Dallas county district against Congressman Hutton Summers, a fellow townsman.

Those who remember the enthusiasm with which the junior Bailey was received on the stump in Texas last summer, at once began to figure on what else he may run for.

Suppose he should announce for the United States senate against Morris Sheppard. Suppose he should enter the race for governor. Either move would cause some quick readjustments of the prospects.

Bailey's entry into either race might also determine Attorney General James V. Allred's decision on what office he will next seek. Allred with his big anti-trust suit against motor oil companies still pending, would like to finish up that bit of business. It may not be over when the governorship race gets under way. He probably will be free for the next senatorial race. But with Bailey and Allred both in that race it would likely make it a cinch for Sheppard.

That Allred is being figured on by politicians as a likely entry in the governor's race is only too apparent.

When Rep. Sarah Hughes of Dallas, referred to him in the House of Representatives as "the next governor of Texas" friends of Speaker Coke Stevenson were quick to come out with a statement that Stevenson will be an announced candidate.

Stevenson, canny as he is, wittily, merely looked wise. The personal and political strength of former Governor James E. Ferguson was exerted to elect Stevenson speaker. Stevenson had not been a Ferguson stalwart, in fact he had scratched that name. But Stevenson was preferred to Rep. A. P. Johnson, whose admiration of Governor Ross Sterling approached close to hero-worship.

With Bailey and Stevenson both in the governor race, the Ferguson forces would split. Bailey was a law partner of the late Luther Nichols, drafter of the Ferguson sales tax plan and counsel for Ferguson in political litigation.

In any event, the next gubernatorial race seems to be rounding into a shape with no room for Mrs. Ferguson in it. Indications point to there being several such outstanding candidates, that there will not again be an opportunity for the Ferguson "vest pocket vote" to slip Mrs. Ferguson into second place for a run-off.

The entry of Congressman Bailey into the race for the United States senate would be more interesting. Senator Morris Sheppard's term expires in 1937.

Sheppard succeeded Bailey's father in the place when the latter resigned and was not a candidate. In his recent campaign speeches, Joe Bailey Jr., expressed the hope he might follow the principles and views of his father.

"I can't hope to match him," he said.

The man who runs against Senator Sheppard is not going to have an easy time of it. Despite the present trend away from prohibition, public feeling has a habit of swinging like a pendulum.

If the regulated liquor traffic fails to show a big improvement over the speak-easy type of thirst-quenching by the summer of 1936, when the senatorial campaign is on public opinion may have swung back stronger than ever to prohibition.

Senator Sheppard, too, has for 20 years been looking after matters for Texas constituents, whether they with much misgivings. It can easily develop into the most dangerous national problem of recent years.

were political friends or foes. Many times when all other means failed to untangle Washington red tape, the Texarkana senator got results. Twenty years of that sort of service builds up a friendship that will stand him in good stead.

Sam Johnson, motor division of the state railroad commission, has a son, Lyndon B. Johnson who is speaker of the "Little Congress," composed of secretaries to senators and congressmen.

Lyndon Johnson is secretary to Rep. Richard Kleberg of the 14th Texas district.

In honor of his fellow-Texasan's election, Vice President Garner presented the speaker of the "Little Congress," a gavel made from a tree planted by Sam Houston.

With practical assurance that Speaker Coke Stevenson of the Texas house will be in the race for governor next year, Albert G. Walker, of Vernon, is being put forward as a candidate for speaker of the 44th legislature. His important bill of the present session was one providing penalties for violation of oil regulations.

Walker, born near Mineral Wells, has lived also at Denton and Cisco.

A recent visit of Former Governor Ross S. Sterling to Austin led a reported "political conference."

First it was reported he conferred with Former Governor Dan Moody, then that he had conferred with Attorney General James V. Allred. It developed neither Moody nor Allred had conferred with Sterling so the "conference" was a one man affair.
