MIDLAND CITY BANK ROBBED TODAY

THOMPSON SAYS MAJORS CONTROL CAPITAL PARLEY

Little Men Not Able To Get Hearings, He Charges
LONGVIEW, March 30. (UP).—Railroad Commissioner Thompson today charged that a federal conference he attended at Washington was dominated by major oil company representatives.
He was en route to Kilgore. He declared that little men did not get a hearing.
Thompson opposed price fixing. Representatives from Texas and California objected to the federal control plan submitted to Roosevelt by Secretary of the Interior. Talks following the three day session.

UNDERTONE OF CONFIDENCE IN RESERVE DIST.

DALLAS, March 30. (UP).—Evidence of a strong undertone of confidence, accompanied by a broadening of demand for merchandise, is seen by the Federal Reserve bank of Dallas in its monthly business review of the Eleventh district.
This trend has been noted during the last 10 days notwithstanding the fact that business and industry during February was somewhat quiet and uneven, the review says.
February sales of department stores in principal cities were two per cent larger than in the previous month, but were still 22 per cent below the corresponding month of 1932, the review said. "Wholesale distribution was on a smaller scale than in either January this year or February last year. Retailers have continued to cover actual consumer demand, but recently orders have been increasing. Collections were slow during February."
"Both the number of commercial failures and the amount of indebtedness involved were smaller than in either the previous month or the corresponding month of last year."
The review says that farm operations have progressed rapidly despite damage resulting from freezes early in February.
"Construction activity showed some improvements during February, the valuation of building permits issued at principal cities being 45 per cent above January, but still 33 per cent lower than a year ago," the review said. "The production and shipments of cement reflected substantial declines as compared with both the previous month and the corresponding month of last year."
Exports of cotton during February from the ports of Houston and Galveston, the review said, were seasonally smaller than in the previous month, and there was a reduction from 1,190,500 from a year ago, as compared with a like decrease of 3,631,850 barrels in January," the review said.

MAT KING MAKES GOOD AS SHERIFF

ALBANY, N. Y. (UP).—Carroll (Pink) Gardner, generally recognized as world's light heavyweight wrestling champion, has proven a success as Sheriff of Schenectady county.
The State Department of Correction, in a report of inspection, commended Gardner for his administration of the affairs of the county jail.
"The sheriff," the report declared, "devotes a large amount of personal attention to the management of the jail and seems to be making strenuous efforts to bring the jail up to the proper standards."
When not wrestling, or tending to the duties of sheriff, Gardner supervises a prosperous monument making business in Schenectady.
Gardner's mat activities the past dozen years have taken him to all parts of the United States, Australia and other countries.

LOWERING THEIR SCORES

The women are shooting to break 50.
Mrs. Alice Mason turned in a 51 and Mrs. Charles Mix a 53.
Several others are shooting in the early fifties and expect to break that mark before another month.
FATHER IS ILL.
Bob Pate, manager of the M. System stores, received news this morning that his father, at Albany, is ill. Pate awaited further news, expecting to leave in case the relative showed no improvement.

REPLACE LANDMARK

BOSTON. (UP).—The new East Boston vehicular tunnel is going to this city of a landmark, for the Hanover street entrance to the tunnel is to be located at the spot where for 42 years Rocco Rinaldi's shoe shine shop has stood. Rocco's shop is little more than a shanty, but it is famous locally because it was the first enclosed bootblack parlor Boston had.

Mrs. Haley Nominated for Director of Texas Tech

AUSTIN, March 30. (UP).—Nomination of Mrs. John A. Haley of Midland as a director in Texas Technological college was sent to the senate today by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.
Appointment of R. S. Bowers of Burleson as a member of the board of education was made by the governor and, at the same time, nomination of Ward Templeton of Navasota as a member of the board of regents at state teachers' colleges was sent to the senate.

Examined In Administration

Mrs. Haley, 423 W. Wall, was a director of Texas Tech during the former administration of Mrs. Ferguson. Amos G. Carter, prominent Texas newspaper publisher, was president of the board at that time.
Mrs. Haley taught several years in the public schools of Texas prior to her serving on the college board, and at one time taught in Navasota. She is a district chairman of the Women's Federated clubs, and is well known for her championing of the cause of the Fergusons during the past few years.

Casey Bats Out Laughs as Rotes Stage Melodrama

Using the time honored plot of saving the mortgage foreclosure of the old homestead, Rotarians indulged in melodrama at the luncheon today, attempting to prove that the club excelled in histrionic as well as forensic activities.
"Casey at the Bar" was the title of a three act play, written, produced and directed by Fred Wemple, composed of the following characters: Mr. Casey, by Wadsworth Adley; played by John Howe; Haley O'Pratt, the villain and mortgage holder, by Bill Simpson; Judge McElliot Headache, the constable, by T. Paul Barron; Mrs. Below Mims, the hero and hired hand, by Bill Barron; O'Rourke, Mrs. Clarence Scarf-pin, by Offie Walker; music and sound effects, Wallace Wimbler; Fred Wemple, announcer.
The simple plot dealt with the mortgaging of Casey's farm to pay for the education of his children, who were, who was engaged to marry Nell O'Pratt, who held the mortgage, attempted to foreclose on the homestead unless Nell agreed to marry him.
"The farm is mine," said O'Pratt. "No it ain't," yelled Below, arriving from college with the winnings of a fraternity house crap game in time to pay the mortgage and claim the school racket.
Cleve Barker, visitor at the club, sang a baritone solo, "Perfect Day," accompanied at the piano by Miss Edna Marie Jones.

PRIEST NARROWLY ESCAPES AS BOMB EXPLODES NEARBY

ROYAL OAK, Mich., March 30. (UP)—Father Charles E. Coughlin, Catholic priest and militant leader in the Detroit banking difficulties, narrowly escaped death early today when a bomb exploded in the basement underneath the room where he was sleeping.
Two other priests in the house also were not injured. It was believed that rival intrigues, seeking to intimidate him, ordered the bombing.
"Construction activity showed some improvements during February, the valuation of building permits issued at principal cities being 45 per cent above January, but still 33 per cent lower than a year ago," the review said. "The production and shipments of cement reflected substantial declines as compared with both the previous month and the corresponding month of last year."

Two School Studies Sustain Injuries

A fracture of the fibula, small bone of his right ankle, resulted when Fred Hallman, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hallman, who live five miles southeast of Midland, lost control of a motorcycle in sand and loose dirt Wednesday.
No other injury resulted, a surgeon said.
Miss Janie McMillan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. H. McMillan, of Midland, sustained a serious sprain when she fell on the steps at the high school during rehearsal of a play Wednesday evening.
Neither was at school today.

Girl Buys Show Gist Show Calf

Miss Dorothy Smith of Plainfield, near Mason, has bought her second Gist calf and will fatten it for showing. Her first was reserve champion at San Angelo and was third in the calf club work and fourth in the single class.
Miss Lorraine Messick has bought her third Gist calf. Her second won second at Lubbock, and Gist bought it back.

Flag Pole King Seeking Divorce

MEMPHIS, (UP).—Alvin Kelly is "shipwrecked" again—this time the Ship of Matrimony has gone on the rocks.
Shipwreck Kelly, of flag pole sitting fame, has taken up residence in Arkansas where he intends to gain a divorce under the 90-day divorce law.
He plans to obtain his divorce on April Fool's day in Little Rock, Ark. "You can't blame a woman for wanting a divorce from a man who spends most of his time sitting on flag poles," Shipwreck said. But he made it plain he is the one getting this divorce. During the last ten and a half years he has perched on flag poles 577 days.
His wife is the former Frances Vivian Steele, of Dallas. They have one child.
Shipwreck obtained his nick-name by the many sea escapades in which he has figured. He was lost at sea 21 times during the World war; he was one of the survivors of the ill-fated Titanic; and he saw six ships go to Davy Jones' locker while he was a member of their crews.

BEEES SPOIL PLANTS

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UP).—Twelve years' research has disclosed that bees are to blame for the failure of sweet cherry culture in Vermont. Professor M. B. Cummings of the University of Vermont, who conducted the experiments reported that "the lack of proper pollen bearers and the absence of bees for the crossing of flowers," why sweet cherries didn't flourish in his state.

'Rags' to Riches

Penniless when she began her career, Mile, Galina Sazarino (above) today is reported to be the highest paid rag-time dancer in Central Europe. Although she is only 22, she has won widespread acclaim through engagements in Italy, Austria, Hungary, and France.

Attorneys for M. C. Teague, former Ward county oil field worker whose 16-year sentence assessed in the slaying of Kitty Gordon was affirmed by the court of criminal appeals at Austin Wednesday, announced they will file a motion for rehearing before the higher court.
Miss Gordon, a rooming house waitress, was fatally shot at Poyote in February, 1928. Teague, tried in Ward county, was convicted and given a 35-year sentence. Reversed and sent to Abilene on a change of venue the case was tried before Judge M. S. Long in 42nd court last September. Teague has been in jail there since the trial.
W. E. Martin and J. C. Shipman represented the defendant by court appointment. Roy I. Biggs, district attorney at Ward county, was there to conduct prosecution, with assistance of J. R. Black, 42nd district attorney.
Martin and Shipman were in Austin last week to present oral arguments in the Teague case.

TEAGUE CASE AFFIRMED BY HIGHER COURT

STUDENTS BOARD FOR $2
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa. (UP).—Room and board for "from $2.00 to $2.25 per week" were the rates quoted for college students before the Civil war, according to an 1859 issue of the "Students' Journal," Westminster college publication. A copy of the paper recently was sent to the college by Dr. Herbert M. Moore, president of Lake Forest college, Illinois.

Angelo Money Racket Halted

SAN ANGELO.—Merchants approached for donations, advertising or soliciting of any kind should first learn if the applicant has a permit signed by the city manager. Then they will at least know if the solicitor has been investigated. Otherwise they stand to lose some money. W. S. Pickett, manager of the Merchants' board of trade, warned Tuesday, when a stranger just evaded officers after working a school racket.
The man's approach in securing money for a certain advertisement at the wall school was to present credentials allegedly signed by the trustees of the school. One merchant investigated, found the names spurious and that the real trustees knew nothing of the solicitation. The man had gotten some money. Officers were put on trail of the man, but he had disappeared.

COUNTY INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE TO DRAW 100 ON FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

AUSTIN, March 30. (UP).—The senate today voted to send Senator Walter Woodul to Washington to confer with the Reconstruction Finance corporation relative to Texas search in old trunk bureau drawers and flower vases in quest of change.
It was the cause of Charles W. Porter, rediscovering some ancient silverware, which he sent word to visit him in his room at nine twenty—and that doesn't mean nine nineteen, either!"

Crisis Brought Out Old Coins

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP).—The banking crisis caused a wholesale search in old trunk bureau drawers and flower vases in quest of change.
It was the cause of Charles W. Porter, rediscovering some ancient silverware, which he sent word to visit him in his room at nine twenty—and that doesn't mean nine nineteen, either!"
A more ancient coin Porter found was a half dollar issued in 1925. It is somewhat larger than the present half dollar. On the other side of the coin is the figure of Liberty with 13 stars. On the other side is the American eagle and the familiar "E Pluribus Unum."

Young Completes His 20th Well

Dr. J. D. Young of Midland, former president of Texas Women's college at Fort Worth, is completing the twentieth oil test in Crockett county.
The new test is five miles west of the Powell field, in section 35, block 1, G. O. S. F. survey.
Big Loker business made a few days ago purchased an 80-acre lease within a mile of the well.

Petroleum Building Architect Is Here

With the exception of chaotic conditions in the East Texas oil fields, Texas is "looking upward" in a business way, said Wyatt C. Hedrick, noted architect of Fort Worth, here this morning en route to Pecos. He has a contract for the new federal building to be located there.
Hedrick, who constantly travels over the state, said unemployment has decreased slightly but perceptibly, stability is in sight in several industries and a new complexion in general is being found in business.

Gen. Pershing Tells His Friends He Is Fit Again

"My purpose in going to Tucson has been accomplished, and I am feeling particularly fit again. I am now ready to get back to my home."
So spoke General John J. Pershing, war time commander of America's expeditionary forces in France. He spent the night at Hotel Scharbauer, driving here from El Paso. He and his party, made up otherwise of his sister, Miss May Pershing and Master Sergeant Robert C. Schaeffer, reached the hotel before 9 o'clock last night, and left this morning shortly after that hour.
No evidence of an admitted run down condition that characterized his last visit remains. The general has color in his face, his step is more elastic, and his smiles are more frequent. He smiles genially as he frays the hands of those presented to him, and his grip once more has the crushing power of his cavalry officer days.
"Not too much about me, please," the general said smilingly. "I have been at Tucson practically all the time since leaving Midland. I stayed in the sun most of the night, although most of it on the gallery of the hotel." He played golf a couple of afternoons.
"Yes, I've ridden some, too. Arizona was just beginning to take on its spring coloring when I left. That is a great country, and I enjoyed my vacation."
The general said he left the Arizona town Wednesday morning and drove out in El Paso at 11 o'clock, 12, Midland time. He intimated he would spend the night at Fort Worth or Ardmore, Okla., depending on whether he tired of the long reach. Much luggage was stowed in the tonneau of the car, making riding long distances a bit irksome.
He told Clarence Scharbauer and Dr. Ryan that he planned to stay a month at his home. Afterward, he likely will return to Washington, where he has an advisory position in the war department.
Sgt. Schaeffer has been out of the hospital only 10 days, but was feeling much stronger. He was taken from Midland Feb. 13 to William Beaumont hospital, El Paso, in an army plane and was operated on several days later. The general was here a week at the time.

REFORESTATION BILL CARRIES TO OFFER JOBS

WASHINGTON, March 30. (UP).—Congress finally passed today the reforestation bill to recruit a quarter of a million jobs.
The senate interpolated consideration of the half billion dollar Wagner unemployment relief measure and approved the amendments inserted by the house.
Justice's Pet Sheep Is Accused of Theft
NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex. (UP).—Mrs. Ben C. Faust, wife of Justice of the Peace Faust, has filed a complaint in her husband's court in which she alleges theft of eggs from the hen house at the rear of the Faust home.
And by filing the complaint Mrs. Faust created a puzzling case for her husband. For the defendant in the action is the judge's own pet sheep, guilty of eating the eggs. After extensive investigation following a series of mysterious egg thefts, the animal, she learned, has developed a special fondness for an egg diet.
Justice Faust has not fixed date for hearing.

ATHLETE HAS CORK LEG

LONGVIEW (UP).—The most valuable basketball player in the Pine Tree school, near here, has an artificial leg. J. W. Dale was voted that honor at the close of the season just ended. He played football last fall and has participated in most of the sports at the school.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Leaving England for America, Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, said to reporters: "There is little more that I can tell you, for I have gone on a gold standard of silence." This would be another ideal world medium of exchange for those in high places or low who have nothing to say.

The old saying that "talk is cheap" seems not to apply at Washington where, during the current session of Congress, the cost of printing speeches, resolutions and "extension of remarks" is reported as averaging in excess of $4000 per day.

A Hartford (Conn.) sand and gravel firm is offering to trade its products for shoes, clothing and other merchandise that can be used by the fifty employees. Here is one house built upon sand that is making a commendable effort to weather the storm.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.) The army has had to take charge of Greece. Grave political troubles in Austria. Earthquakes in California. And then he said, "Of course, beer will cure all of these troubles."

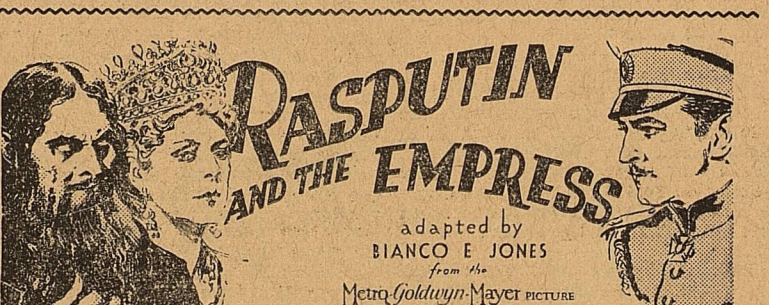

It's getting to where when people escape from an asylum it's hard to pick them up out of the crowd. The reason some of us don't want to "see ourselves as others see us" is because we want to be happy as long as possible. A lot of happiness is protected by ignorance.

Within the past year, two sets of twins have been born in one county. Looks like a substantial expression of confidence. Heard over in Arkansas: "Sal, don't you fall in that well, I don't like to have to tote water from the creek."

The Reporter-Telegram presents this serialization of "Rasputin and the Empress." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture version of the dramatic fall of the Romanoff family, starring the three Barrymores: Ethel, John and Lionel. Yesterday we left the Empress just as the dread shadow of a huge man came through the door and crept toward the hem of her skirt.

CHAPTER SEVEN The shortening shadow still stretched across the room from the doorway, gigantic even as the man who cast it came closer. The Empress straightened in her chair. Through the doorway came a black-bearded peasant, dressed in a laborer's smock and boots oiled with goose grease, a black beard flowing luxuriantly over his chest. Her amazement that a man of this sort should come unannounced into the palace grew even greater as she lifted her eyes to his. His eyes, black, glowing, held hers with a magnetic, frightening stare. She could not find her voice to ask him who he was and what his business could be. Still peering into her eyes, the gigantic Mujik was the first to speak. In a commanding voice, he asked: "Where is the boy?"

The Empress looked from the peasant to Natasha. She regained her composure, and asked calmly: "Who is this man?" The girl turned to look into the magnetic eyes of the gigantic peasant. A look of devout respect came into her own eyes. She answered in a low voice. "Rasputin." The Empress showed no recognition. The name meant nothing to her. Still addressing herself to Natasha she repeated: "Who?" Natasha answered swiftly, passionately. Her entire heart and soul went into her voice as she answered earnestly. "Gregory Rasputin—a man of God. He can cure him, he's cured so many. A woman named Nariskin—she was dying. Rasputin stood silent, yet smiling, as the girl turned to him. "Wasn't she, Father? And the boy, the one who was run down by the Cossacks— Slowly, the Empress forced herself to look into Rasputin's glowing eyes. Unconsciously, she sought to bring those words to her lips which would dismiss this peasant from the Imperial Palace. "He healed them." Natasha was saying. "He can heal Alexei." "Who brought him here?" the Empress demanded. "I did, Majesty!" Natasha answered quickly. "The doctors admitted they were helpless. Rasputin has the power of God!" At her words, Rasputin made the sign of the cross. He nodded slightly. (See RASPUTAN, page 4)

Mrs. Joe Capriola won high score.

An ice course was served to Mmes. Houston Sikes, Victor Smith, Capriola, Harvey Thompson, Tom Jackson, Jake Price, and Kirby Sims.

Woodman Circle Official Here

Mrs. Janie B. Garner, district manager of the Woodman circle from Fort Stockton, is in Midland transacting business with the remaining members of the Midland circle, which has been inactive for several years.

Mrs. Garner was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. William Jones of Colorado.

Threshold Thinkers Have Business Meet

Mrs. Fletcher Currie was re-elected teacher of the Threshold Thinkers class of the First Methodist church Wednesday evening when members of the class met at the home of Mrs. John Davis, 810 West Louisiana. She was presented a shower of linen handkerchiefs.

Plans for a party to be given next week were made, and other business attended to.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Quick Chop Suet 2 lbs. lean pork, diced 2 tablespoons fat salt and pepper 1 cup celery, chopped 1 green pepper, shredded 1 1/2 cups flake soda crackers 1 1/2 cups meat stock or hot water

Brown pork quickly in hot fat in frying pan. Season and add vegetables and cook covered over low flame until tender, adding a little water occasionally to prevent sticking. Crumble crackers fine and pour over them the hot stock or water. When meat and vegetables are tender combine with crackers. Serve hot. Six portions.

Water in which eggs are to be poached, should have one tablespoon full of vinegar added. This will make the egg white firm.

"Red Star" Day Observed by Club

"Red Star" day, the day when mothers visit, was observed Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the Robyn club of the Watson school of Music.

Miss Lydia Watson read a letter the club received from Miss Robyn of the American Conservatory of Music at Chicago, thanking members for naming the club after her.

Mrs. Kenneth C. Minter addressed the club before the program, which follows, began: Piano solo, Lulu Vanlandingham; violin solo, Louis Ray; Beverly, piano solo, Edith Wempie; piano solo, Jane Bounds; violin solo, Frances Wade; piano duet, Marie and Marian Newton.

The following students received prizes for receiving the most gold stars since October and for not missing a meeting of the club: Dorothy Sue Miles, Lulu Vanlandingham, Reynour Schneider, and Mary Ruth Roy.

Methodist Circle To Have Party

Climaxing a contest between two groups of members of the Belle Bennett circle of the Methodist auxiliary, a party will be given Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. James S. Noland.

Mrs. Fletcher Currie, captain of the losing side, and members of her group will be hostesses. Mrs. Terry Ellen is captain of the winning side.

Each member is asked to bring an Easter novelty and to wear a house dress. Those failing to do so will be fined a dime.

W. W. Emery of Pecos, I. M. Isbill of San Angelo, and H. E. Ellwood of San Antonio, all of whom are representatives of the Texas company, spent last night in Midland transacting business.

W. H. Sloan made a business trip to Hobbs today.

Wednesday Club Chooses Next Study Course

The study course for members of the Wednesday club during the next year will be "Alaska," a course sent by the University of Wisconsin. It was decided at a meeting Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. W. G. Whitehouse.

Mrs. Andrew Fasken read a paper on ways to distinguish standard dishware, and illustrated her paper with china owned by Midland people.

Members present were Mmes. S. R. Preston, Fasken, Elliott Cowden, Clarence Scharbauer, Frank Elkin, J. M. DeArmond, M. R. Hill and the hostess.

Another special and fundamental national interest in oil is the matter of national defense.

While we all hope and trust that the occasion of controlling oil for that purpose will never arise one would have to ignore the whole trend of current world events to be blind to the possibility, if not probability, of international conflict.

There is another interest both special and general which any intelligent national government must plan to protect, not only in this crisis, but through the coming years in order that the federal revenues from a multitude of sources may be protected and also in order to protect the whole business structure of the country.

I refer to the fact that there are over thirty million oil powered motors in this country used in transportation and in stationary units which represent an investment direct and indirect of approximately thirty billion dollars.

To meet the necessity of a sudden shift from oil to some other source of power would be beyond the resources of all the financial institutions of the country.

For that reason, the obligation rests on the government to so conserve its oil resources, now and in the future, that when time of change comes it may be without disturbance to the economic national structure.

In addition to these general and special reasons the state of chaos which exists in the oil business itself makes action by the federal government imperative.

For the purpose of impressing on public opinion the importance of the oil business it may be well to make a few brief comparisons.

Rasputin

ly at the Tsarina.

"Let me pray with your son," he said almost in a coaxing tone.

"All the priests in Russia are praying for him," the Empress said simply.

Rasputin smiled reassuringly.

"I'm no priest, my daughter," he said to the Empress. "I'm a simple man who believes God answers prayers."

The Empress smiled wanly.

All the man wanted was to pray for her son. And for this he had come to the Palace to ask permission. She made a courteous gesture of dismissal.

"We are grateful for everyone's prayers. Will you pray in the Cathedral, Father? They're all there."

"The man's eyes seemed to bore into her. He never wavered in his stare as he slowly raised his hand to his heart.

"The cathedral of God is here," he said impressively. "It's the simple prayer that reaches Him more than all the chants and choirs in the world. Only, you must believe."

The Empress returned Rasputin's insistent stare.

"I do believe."

"No, or your hands wouldn't be trembling. Those tear stains would not be there. Why, if you believed as a little child, you would say to me: 'My son is getting well because I asked God to make him so.' And then God would know that you trusted Him and raise him up."

As Rasputin looked toward the sick room, the murmur of a voice penetrated to them. He looked questioningly at the Tsarina.

"Who's with your son?" he asked.

"The doctor who brought him into the world."

There was a sudden scream. The Empress, tears filling her eyes, clenched her hands. The peasant was watching her narrowly.

"You trust doctors?" he asked.

"Won't you believe God can do more than they can?"

The boy's scream echoed in the Tsarina's mind. She winced at the acute mental pain.

"If he could be spared that!" she said fervently.

"There are no 'ifs,' my daughter," Rasputin said. "I can heal him. All the pain that is twisting his little body will leave him."

Another, a more plaintive cry, assailed their ears. The man's arguments were being driven home.

"Believe, my child, and tomorrow you will have him in your arms again. He will be happy and strong and alive. All this will have been a bad dream." He paused to let the full import of his words sink in.

Then, "Won't you believe?" he whispered persuasively. "Come, say after me: 'My son will live!'"

Fascinated, the Tsarina repeated his words:

"My son—will live."

"Not like that!" Rasputin's voice rose in sharp crescendo, jubiliantly. He raised his arms high. A note of ecstasy crept into his voice. "My son will live!"

And then the Empress caught the man's fervor. Her eyes gleamed with a new hope.

However repulsive this man may have seemed to her at first, with his greasy clothes, and uncouth black beard, and penetrating black eyes, was it not possible that he could help restore the little Tsarvich to health? Must it always be a well-groomed, well-fed, learned physician-in-ordinary who would stand and ponder and shake his head in despair? The life of the heir to the throne of all the Russians must not be disposed of with a mere shake of the head. And this man before her was so sincere, so full of religious ecstasy! Surely he would be able to dispel some of the gloom which hung over the entire Imperial Palace.

"My son will live!" she exclaimed in measured tones.
