"Sky Devils," Hughes' Latest Offering, Billed At Ritz

Adventures Of 3 U.S. Flyers In World War

Comedy, Thrills, Features In New "Sky Devils" Film

Laughs and thrills in plenty are provided in Howard Hughes' latest film offering "Sky Devils." For sheer entertainment value, this nine-minute movie of fighting flying fools unquestionably tops them all.

Action, romance, comedy and spectacle, all combined in one story—that is "Sky Devils," which opens at the Ritz Theatre Sunday.

"Sky Devils" contains some of the most spectacular air scenes shown on the screen since "Hell's Angels," and its comedy is reminiscent of Producer Hughes' first great laugh-bit, "Two Arabian Knights."

Three Clowns in the War The story of "Sky Devils" is based on the adventures of three American flyers during the World War, played by Spencer Tracy, William Boyd and George Cooper, with abundant heart-interest supplied by Ann Dvorak.

The American air men get into the flying service accidentally and of course humorously and their experience in training camps and in air battles over the Western Front, including a run-in with Von Richthofen's flying circus, are as exciting as they are funny.

There is never a dull moment in this thrilling comedy of the air. When you are not laughing uproariously, you are tense with excitement as the film unfolds on the screen at a breathless tempo.

Here is one picture which is unqualifiedly recommended for every person who patronizes pictures—it is equally enjoyed by children and grown-ups—and by both sexes. The theatre fairly shook with laughter at the opening.

Two Fine Performers Spencer Tracy, in the role of the rough, but romantic, air-man and William Boyd, as the hard-flying two-tisted sergeant, have never given better performances. They are immense—and so is George Cooper third of the flying thrills—some who make history in the air and on the ground in some of the most amazing exploits ever filmed.

Ann Dvorak, the new Howard Hughes discovery, is a sensation—she is positively fascinating in the leading feminine role, opposite Tracy.

Billy Bevan, as the flying colonel, provides his share of laughs as well and Yola D'Avril clicks as never before in her part of the vampish French girl who causes endless complications for the reckless air-fighters.

"Sky Devils" was directed by Edward G. Robinson, the man who turned out both of Eddie Cantor's latest laugh-bits, "Whoopie" and "Palmie Days." This is by far the outstanding comedy he has ever directed.

Dr. E. O. Ellington will leave Monday night for Dallas to attend the four day post graduate course put on by the State Dental Society and the Dallas mid-winter clinic.

Film Depicts Backstage Of Radio World

Broadcasting Station, Vivid Locale Of "Are You Listening?"

"Are You Listening," a dramatic romance based on J. P. McEvoy's magazine story of radio broadcasting, will be the attraction starting Sunday at the Queen Theatre.

The story is set behind the scenes of a national broadcasting station, gives William Haines his first dramatic role in which he abandons his more familiar comedy tricks for a compelling delineation of a radio operator whose happiness crumbles about his ears as the result of an unfortunate marriage.

Tells Threefold Romance
The plot revolves about a threefold romance and depicts the various careers of three small-town sisters who come to New York to win fame and fortune. All of them end up in radio work and it is the inside slant on their broadcasting activities combined with the depiction of what goes on in their private lives which gives the picture its dramatic structure. Humorous interludes in the broadcasting station, a jazz party in a New York penthouse apartment and other frolicsome details lend comedy relief to the serious narrative which underlies the drama.

The story includes what is believed to be one of the most exciting "chases" yet depicted on the screen. It is in this sequence that Haines, accused of the murder of his wife, attempts to make his getaway by automobile, but is subsequently tricked into revealing his whereabouts by the ruthless editor of a tabloid newspaper who makes an ingenious use of radio in catching his prey.

Besides Haines, the large cast of featured players includes Madge

Claudette Colbert And Gary Cooper Together In "His Woman"

One of the very newest and a very good one, too, of starring teams in the movies, is being introduced at the Ritz Theatre Friday and Saturday where the Paramount dramatization of Dale Collins' novel, "The Sentimentalist," is being offered as "His Woman."

The team is that of Gary Cooper, lank hero of many heroic westerns and flatcuffs, and that fascinating lady who knocks 'em for a loop with her heavenly expressionistic orbs, Claudette Colbert.

And this attractive team is not the only feature that will stop your heart in its cardiac tracks; for there's a serious little fellow of some dimpled nine months, one Richard Spiro, who does some solo captivating all on his own.

Direction is by Edward Stolan, who has given proper consideration to the developing of the plot with scenes in which spectacle is permitted to harmonize with mood, rather than overpower them with sheer mechanical weight.

The story is that of an abandoned girl from a tropical port, strangely attracted and attached to a handsome and aggressive young man who sees in her only a chance to mother his founding. The manner in which real love and mutual understanding ultimately dissolves both their pasts, and leads them to a happy goal arm-in-arm, but only after the most dramatic kind of adventures, is sure-fire as a screen formula.

Cast supernumeraries are Averill Harris, Charlotte Winters, Hershel Mayall, Hamtree Harrington and Sidney Easton.

Lions To Stage Peppy Benefit During Week

Bathing Beauties And Hula Hulas To Be Part Of Show

A chorus of beautiful girls in beach pajamas will strut their stuff on the stage of the Ritz Theatre Wednesday night in the big, peppy, mirth-producing benefit entertainment which the Lions are giving to raise money for the unemployed.

As in New York, the talent of Big Spring will unite to make this a worthwhile show. Mrs. Lee Weathers will direct the girls and have charge of the show and promise something that is absolutely and positively unique and she doesn't mean maybe.

In addition to her part of the show, the Lions quartet will put their heads together and sing some unforgettable songs. If that doesn't touch the hearts of the audience, Bob Fyandt's famed hula-hula dance will wake them up.

The bathing beauty burlesque will be the big climax with all Evans, who recently scored in "Lovers Courageous," Anita Page, Karen Morley, Neil Hamilton, Wallace Ford, Jean Hersholt and Joan Marsh. The production was directed by Harry Beaumont of "Our Blushing Brides" fame.

AIRPLANE CRASH—THRILLING STUNT—IN "THE BROKEN WING"

Going Eighty Miles An Hour Plane Smashes Through House

An airplane, traveling at an estimated speed of 80 miles an hour, was crashed into the hacienda on the Paramount ranch, forty miles from Hollywood, for a scene in "The Broken Wing," in which Lupe Velez, Leo Carrillo and Melvyn Douglas are featured and which comes to the Ritz theatre for two days, beginning Tuesday.

The feat was performed under the supervision of Capt. E. R. Robinson, a flight commander of the California National Guard. No one was injured.

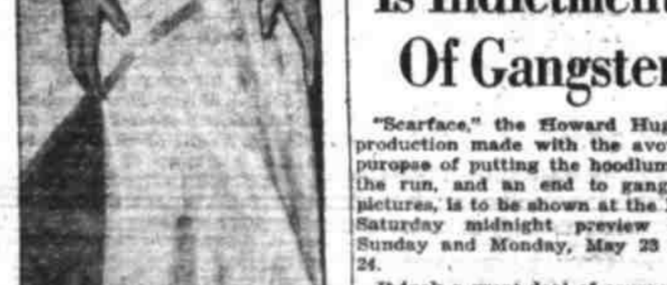

Captain Robinson knows how to crash an airplane and perform all kinds of hazardous feats in the air. But he won't do any of these things himself.

Recognized as one of the leading camera pilots in Hollywood, Captain Robinson was assigned to handle the technical details for two Paramount pictures, "The Broken Wing" and "Sky Bride," the latter featuring Richard Arlen and Jack Oakie.

Lupe Velez Stars In "The Broken Wing"

Hughes' Film Is Indictment Of Gangsters

"Scarface," the Howard Hughes production made with the avowed purpose of putting the hoodlum on the run, and an end to gangster pictures, is to be shown at the Ritz Saturday midnight preview and Sunday and Monday, May 23 and 24.

It took a great deal of courage to produce "Scarface." Howard Hughes met with opposition from Will Hays, czar of moviedom, when he announced that he would produce the picture. Just what Mr. Hays' objections to the filming of the Armitage Trail novel were has never been made clear. Mr. Hughes was steadfast in his determination and called in Ben Hecht, co-author of "The Front Page," a newspaperman, who is considered a foremost authority on gangland, and told him to "shoot the works." And with a corps of newshawks who had reported the several gang outbreaks of the Copepans and rival gangs, Hecht did just that, turning out a script which is admittedly a comprehensive and historically accurate account of the racketeering industry from its inception to its present day.

A purely imaginary but highly logical ending is given the story, otherwise its every incident is based on actual occurrences.

Mr. Hughes' next step was to make careful preparation in selecting a cast and building sets so that the production would be the epitome of realism. He gave the industry surprise after surprise as he announced the selection of this and that actor for his cast. He was not after names with box office prestige but after actors who would give life to the characters of the story, as a result of which "Scarface" is a picture which critics agree is the most perfectly enacted in the entire history of the screen. It has been acclaimed a perfect picture.

Boyd Portrays "Master Mind" In Film Play

Villain of "The Spoilers," Is Back In Character Type He Enacted

William Boyd, that "double-dyed" deceiver of the film plots, is back in his celluloid element again in "The False Madonna," Paramount romance-drama of modern life which comes to the Ritz Theatre Thursday.

Boyd's most memorable characterizations have been those of "bad men." He was Gary Cooper's antagonist in "The Spoilers," and tried to spoil the romance of Richard Arlen and Mary Brian in "Gun Smoke." In "The Gang Buster" he tried to bust things up between Jack Oakie and Jean Arthur. In "The Road to Reno" he was the would-be nemesis of Ruddy Rogers and Peggy Shannon.

In "The False Madonna" Boyd appears as the master-mind of a gang of crooks who operate in three continents, snatching their victims of millions of dollars. Kay Francis is seen as one of the gang an erstwhile respectable society woman, beautiful, stylish, well-mannered. It is when Kay is sent out as the chief decoy in a scheme to return the missing mother to a youth who will inherit a vast fortune that Boyd's empire of crookedness falls about his head. For Kay balks at the deceitfulness of her errand, after she develops a motherly love for their youthful intended victim.

It is a fine role for Boyd. He plays it with strength and compelling conviction.

In the cast with Boyd and Miss Francis are Conway Tearle, as the lawyer friend of the wealthy heir who falls in love with Kay; Charles D. Brown, Broadway comedian, in a comedy part; Marjorie Gateson legitimate stage favorite as Brown's "side-partner" in the comedy department of the film; John Breeden, young juvenile, and other capable players.

Bob Steele And His Dad A Unique Pair

A classic Hollywood example of a combination of talents, co-operation and real comradeship is presented by Bob Steele, the famous young Western screen star and his well known father, R. N. Bradbury. For years Mr. Bradbury has been one of filmdom's most prolific authors of screen stories in addition to being a most competent production executive and capable director.

Bradbury, Sr., first introduced his son Robert into pictures when the boy was twelve years of age, adopting the surname of "Steele" for professional purposes. After making a series of pictures during his summer vacation period, young secured additional screen contracts for his son with Universal, E.S.O. and other companies.

The fond father has always personally coached his son for each part he has played and has often written the screen stories in which Bob Steele has appeared.

In "Law of the West," which will be seen on Friday at the Queen Theatre, father and son have attained a life-long ambition inasmuch as Bob Steele is starring in a picture of which his father is the director and also author of the story. It is a pulse stirring drama of the eternal clash between the law and the lawless in a land where each man is a law unto himself, with fast riding and faster shooting.

AUSTIN'S WOMEN'S CLUB
A Unique Handsome Structure Erected On Three Levels Showing What Can Be Done With A Hillside Lot

By O.R.F.
I advise every visitor to Austin not to see the Austin's Women's Club until after she has visited the Governor's Mansion—in order to appreciate the Mansion.
The Women's Club is so handsome that it puts everything else in the shade. It probably cost three or four times what the Mansion did. Its charm lies in its woodwork and its unique grounds. Like the Mansion, it was built in an earlier day; but its builders were a wealthy family; not the state. The club women bought it about two years ago.
The interior is done in walnut—and what an abundance of walnut. One enters a hall at the end of which is a wooden grill of this wood carved in an intricate design. The wood work above the doors and windows is also very handsome and ornate and even the big double doors leading into the dining room are beautifully carved. It would keep one person busy all day long gazing and polishing—if it were in West Texas.
The dining room where coffee was served has been furnished by the Colonial Dames in Colonial furniture, including a lovely Duncan Phyfe table, and the blue draperies that go so well with mahogany furniture. The walnut woodwork of the built-in china closet in that room has deepened with age until it has attained a richness that harmonizes well with mahogany.
Old Fireplace
On the stone mantel of the fireplace in the hall, which was probably made from nearby red stone, were engraved the words: "Old books to read; old wood to burn; old friends to talk."
The house is built on three levels and each level a good story high. From the various balconies on the different levels one looks out over a series of terraces and high stone retaining walls on the top of which are planted yuccas and vines in niches. The last terrace slopes gradually to the street. (The lot extends a full block).
One looks down on the top of a widespread oak tree, growing in the corner of this last terrace. The lawn surrounding it is an ideal spot for garden parties and summer picnics and is used for that purpose.
The dining room is located on the second level and opens onto a shaded porch where the tables are placed in the summer for the weekly club luncheons.
The upper story is devoted to bedrooms which bring in a small income. Alongside of them runs a balcony that commands a magnificent view of the wooded hills of Austin.
The house was purchased by the club women, uniting in a body somewhat as the clubs of Big Spring are members of the City Federation. The family owners had dwindled to two old bachelors neither of whom lived in Austin who were glad to sell the property.
Headquarters Permanent
The permanent headquarters of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs is located in Austin on 24th and Pease streets, not far out but exceedingly difficult to find.
Its building, following the Colonial style of architecture so appropriate to the Austin setting, is well designed and makes a splendid appearance but lacks space for necessary grounds to do it justice.
Austin women are greatly disappointed that it has not developed all its possibilities in setting as the city offers. It is a very extensive

State Highway Problems Topic Of C. E. Thomas

LAMESA—At a political banquet held here early in the week Clyde E. Thomas of Big Spring, candidate for the Democratic nomination to the state senate from the 50th district, dealt almost exclusively with highway problems. A number of his friends in Dawson, Terry and Lynn counties have had several thousand copies of the address printed and distributed throughout the district.

Mr. Thomas' address follows, in part: "Beginning my campaign early in January, I was the first in the State to announce that since the Highway Department has taken over certain roads and designated them as State Highways that about $5,000,000 of the Highway funds should be used to take care of the annual demands for the bond issues upon these highways and thus relieve the counties of their heavy taxation. This plan will result in a reduction of the county tax rate, the county tax rate itself—of anywhere up to 30 per cent, in nearly all the counties.

"But there are some counties that have not yet issued county road bonds, and have not rendered unto the public the road service heretofore given by other counties that have built substantial highways. It is true that as a general rule, these smaller counties do not have a county tax rate as high as the counties who have gone in heavily for roads.

"But these smaller counties do have a claim. Frankly, they have a right to some sort of participation in the funds of the highway department. Hockley, Dawson, Lynn, Lamb, Bailey and Floyd and one or two other counties of the 50th Senatorial District are without county road bonds and their claims to a part of the gasoline fund is worthy of serious consideration. These counties are not burdened with county road bonds issued upon roads that have been taken over by the state; and these counties therefore would not participate under the principle announced in my platform January 22, and their county tax rate would not be therefore reduced, specially or directly by such method.

"But I want to talk to you, with particular reference to these counties, upon what I shall call the 'New Highway Policy.' I don't like to refer to it as a 'New Highway Policy,' for the politicians that have been running our state heretofore have had no policy: $45,000,000 have been spent every year as a patch work proposition. Only 40 cents out of every highway dollar goes into roads. Nearly half of our state government, counting dollars, has heretofore been run without the formulation of a policy, and these millions of dollars have been spent, controlled and overseen by three commissioners, on part-time pay, themselves, of $2500.00 a year. This harum-scarum, patch work policy, and 'let-George-do-it' has resulted in a waste of funds and a general dissatisfaction, until it is inadvisable today, and will remain so even though prosperity returns, unless we adopt a business-like highway policy—it is inadvisable that any county issue bonds under any circumstances to build highways. In other words, the building of our state highways, through county aid, is past history. We have since the old. What are we now going to do?

"We are now face to face squarely with the problem of formulating a state highway policy. The politicians are not going to do this work for us. The matter has got to be discussed among the people and by the people and their voice has got to determine the future course.

Frankly, I am against any cutting of a melon by way of slicing the highway funds and spreading it out over the counties according to population: There is no statesmanship in such a general levy. Such a division is confiscation of the resources of the highway department. Such a division, to counties by population giving unto those counties that have not shouldered the burden as to highway building, would have no principle or policy to justify the same.

"I believe in an elective highway commission; I believe in a state highway system, controlled, managed and financed by the commission itself, and maintained out of the gasoline funds, and without assistance from the county tax rate whatsoever.

"I do not believe, however, in giving to the highway commission the absolute control as to the place and direction of the state highways. I don't believe the commission should come into Dawson county, or Hockley, or Cochran, or Terry, or Lynn, or Floyd counties and have the absolute control as to whether your highway should miss your small communities or not. An unrestrained highway commission as Austin could and would in many instances kill your small communities, ruin your small merchants, and tend to dislodge your centers of community interest, by building the state highway around these communities, or missing the towns by a few miles, leaving, as testimonials of such centralized power, vacant stores, abandoned farms, and desolate schools.

"I believe the commissioners' court should be duty bound to furnish the right of way and determine where that right of way should go through the county. In this method the communities would have a voice, through their own officers living among them, in their own immediate affairs—matters vital to their own existence.

"The highway department then under such conditions would not have the right to split across a little 60-acre farm cutting it into two little triangular plots and thus ruining all that this poor farmer may have. The commission couldn't make the farms exist for a fine roads; but the roads would exist for the small farmer, the little merchant—the fellow who only wants a fair chance to make a living without being robbed. In other words, I am for a local management as to the right of way.

"While this would not directly reduce your county tax rate, yet, it would tend to bring prosperity to you farmers and you business men by the immediate spending of millions of dollars in your midst: The state contracts should call for its non-skilled labor to be performed by the men and citizens of your own county: it would leave thousands of dollars here among you farmers and you merchants, with which to pay your taxes and tide you over the depression; and all of this would be equivalent to the good and beneficence that would come to these other counties through a material reduction of their tax rate in relieving the tax burden they may have been carrying heretofore.

"In the future if any county road bonds are issued, it should be the law that none of the funds are to be used on the state highways, but such bonds should be used for building purely county roads, the lateral roads for the use of the immediate citizens and farmers of the particular community or county.

"Thus under this policy of highways we will have a complete highway system separate and apart from the county system co-operative only with the local communities as to how and where these highways shall or shall not run.

"Thus, while $5,000,000 annually will go to about three-fourths of our counties for meeting the interest demands on roads already built, more than $1,000,000 annually will be spent in the other counties, each year till a complete state-wide connected highway system is, in the main, effected and established.

"This will bring prosperity by way of new money into your communities; it will help you farmers pay the interest upon your land; it will help you pay your taxes. No self-respecting man wants something given to him. But every citizen has a right to an opportunity to make an honest living and pay his honest debts. And this, my highway policy, that I am advocating, will give tax relief and bring prosperity, immediately to these small communities and give you people an opportunity to make an honest living and a chance to live up to your obligations and will tend to bring prosperity back to this our country, the greatest in the world—West Texas.

"If you approve of this state highway policy, county tax relief, and measures to bring prosperity to these smaller counties, say so, and help me advocate the gospel of tax relief and prosperity as I have just now outlined briefly and vote for me and use your influence for me as a candidate as your next senator."

Jim Dobbins, of Elbow, who suffered a broken collar bone when struck by a baseball recently, continues to improve.

KING COTTON RULES

Week Of May 16 To 21 Designed As National Cotton Week To Emphasize Values Of Material

Monday usher in National Cotton Week. To see how popular cotton is, one has only to drop into the show rooms of any department store and look over the lovely displays.

Paris is making more use of cotton than in any past year. The following style note reveals the trend of the times:

The Big Parade
The great Paris dressmakers gave more prominence than ever to cotton at their latest fashion shows displaying summer models. Space permits of mention of only a few.

602
Petroleum Bldg.
PHONE 306

but they are enough to prove that cotton has taken the lead in many smart creations for the warm season.

WORTH: Among the cotton creations featured by this distinguished house were: A cotton lace jacket for evening wear. A cotton lavender evening dress. A white cotton evening costume trimmed in red.

JENNY: The most striking cotton outfit shown by this house was a dark blue top suit worn with a cotton pique blouse in which is repeated the design of the sulking material.

VERA BOREA: Several items featured in this collection need to be mentioned. There were white webbed cotton blouses, white woven cotton pajamas worn with short blue jackets, and an evening gown in glazed cotton chinos of a striking mulberry shade.

LYOLINE: This Russian-Paris designer who had such a success in the United States not long ago, offered a collection of Rodier fabric designed, oyster white, coars for summer, to be worn with blue and white, and pink and white, gingham dresses. The coats are lined with the same dress material. Two other items shown in the collection of this house were a black cotton drill dress with a black and red cotton scarf tied in a snaky bow, and some cotton percale dresses in dark background colors carrying small figures.

When Summer Comes
One of the most prominent of the American style experts located in Paris made a special tour of all the fashionable seaside resorts last September to discover what was then most in the vogue, as experience has established that the favorites here at that time will usually be most popular in America the following summer.

"I am fortunate in being able to give you a digest of this investigation. For morning wear the tendency was to discard the pajamas which were giving place to mannish white duck trousers and cotton shorts. For the afternoon pajamas still held their own. For evening wear the trend was toward plainly fashioned chiffon dresses usually printed in enormous patterns."

These Are the Colors
"As to colors for actual beach wear, white had the lead. Various shades of green came next, followed by light and dark blues, pastel pinks and white in combination with other colors. Gray, yellow and black did not seem to be in the picture.

"Few fussy accessories and little jewelry were seen. Attention was centered on fabrics and colors, for all lines were tailored and pure decorations eliminated. Blue and white and red and white gingham dresses were much in evidence for those who were not always content with pajamas or duck pants. The dresses had full, straight skirts with high waisted bodices and wide shoulder straps.

"Handkerchief scarves of the same material as the dress are worn over the shoulders and knotted in front, or wound around the head. Corduroy top coats, also manish cut, usually in beige, and cottonny pajama pants in white or navy blue, also had their innings. Even at smart Biarritz informal evening dress carried the lead."

History of Cotton
Some people think that cotton is a rather exclusive product of the southern United States. This short history reveals its antiquity:

Cotton was high fashion long before Christianity was founded. In the statutes of Manu, rules for the guidance of the Guild of Cotton Weavers were laid down in 300 B. C. "Incredibly light muslins" were used to drape images of Buddha in India. The ancient muslims of Dacca were "but misty veils" in their sheerness. The Greek physician, Ktesias, speaks in 400 B. C. of figured cotton emblazoned with glowing colors, much coveted by Persian beauties and exported from India. The name is derived from the Arabic koton, one authority says.

Through the Ages
Cotton persists in importance throughout the ages. It is reported that the Chinese cultivated cotton as a decorative plant in 600 A. D. In 1500 John Mercer patented his "mercerization" process which eventually gave us the soft material we know today.

Early names for cotton, among them, calico, lawn, percale, chints, dimity, gingham, and musucker, were inspirations. No other fabric names conjure up such images of cleanliness, quaint simplicity, and freshness. They are redolent of rural romance.

The cotton story goes triumphantly on and on. The new 1932 many-surfaced plaques, meshes, corduroys, organies, dotted Swisses, tweeds, homespuns, terry cloths, batistes, and laces, to name only a few, are a definite part of the fashion picture. The Washington Bicentennial gives the legitimate excuse for wearing calicoes and percales of chints design.

When one chooses fine cottons one is not only indulging a practical, inexpensive fabric, but is lining up with an historic pageant in which beauty of design, fineness of weave, and superb quality are the traditions.

Mrs. Omar Pitman left today for New Braunfels where she will stay for a month or more.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hodges and little daughter are leaving Sunday morning for an extended trip to points in New Mexico, Arizona and California. They will make the trip by automobile. They expect to return some time next month.

How Long Is 18 Years?

If you will give a moment's thought to this question it will impress you as representing a very important part of the time allotted to most men. When you take 18 years out of man's life you take out more than one-third of the period usually known as "the earning period."

There is no trade, business or profession so exacting in its demands for qualifications for service as the Medical Profession.

To further visualize this point think what it would have meant to you to have taken away your earning power during any 18 years of your life.

Yet that is the average time a competent physician must put into preparatory work and study before he is eligible to enter the profession fully qualified to serve humanity.

When you call a physician who is qualified to add M. D. after his name, you know he has put in 18 years gaining his experience. In addition to his common and high school years he must attend college for at least 2 years, medical college for 4 years and also serve in a hospital.

Tradition and the ideal of service has established a schedule of fees that are the lowest in the universe for the character of service rendered. No skilled trade calls for so much preparation. But others insure a greater return—and most of the trades and professions also provide for a cash payment.

If human life is priceless, certainly the men who have given at great expense, eighteen of the best years of life to study that qualifies them to help us to retain and enjoy life, are entitled to fair consideration in the matter of receiving payment for service rendered.

Pay your physician promptly! If you can't pay cash the least you can do is to place his claim at as near the top of the bills you will pay on the first of the month.

the MAN HUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY
SUSAN CAREY, pretty secretary who is in love with BOB DUNBAR, has a proposal of marriage from BEN LAMPMAN, penniless young musician. She refuses him. Ben is jealous and several weeks later when Susan agrees to marry ERNEST SCATTIE, her employer, Ben shoots at Heath, then turning the gun on himself. Meantime DENISE ACKROYD, an informant of Bob that Susan is going to marry Ben, Ben's condition is serious and Susan is distressed. JACK WARING, Heath's assistant, tells Bob that Susan is still free. Bob tries to find her but can not. Susan's aunt who is ill goes south and Susan stays with friends. She does not get Bob's message. Ben begins to show signs of recovering and Susan tries to tell Heath she can not marry him because she does not love him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVII
After wavering in the balance for several days Ben LAMPMAN's condition suddenly improved. The doctor announced that Ben would recover. Susan did not make another trip to the hospital. From Ernest Heath she heard the details of Ben's convalescence. As soon as the young man was strong enough to travel he would go to California where a job in an orchestra awaited him.

Poor Ben! There was something pitiful about him, even about his magnificently foolish behavior. His was a certain but the inevitable reaction had set in. She was annoyed with Ben for having made her conspicuous. She felt he had placed her in a false and ridiculous position. It wasn't as if she had ever encouraged him. She hadn't. And she had him to thank for opening up the whole problem of her marriage.

Before the shooting her course had seemed so simple and so plain. It had seemed both generous and wise of her to accept Ernest Heath's name and protection. Now she saw that love was never wise but always irrational, wild and passionate. It was Ben who had made that clear to her. She knew he had not meant to do it but he had accomplished it just the same.

She procrastinated. She let the days pass without coming to a decision. She even wore, nowadays, on the third finger of her left hand a ring with a single, shining stone. She would plan each night how to tell Ernest Heath on the morrow of her change of heart but always at the last minute her courage would fail. Then, too, she had to think of Aunt Jessie. She had promised herself she would take care of Aunt Jessie always.

She tried to talk to Rose. But there was not much help from this quarter since she did not dare to speak of Bob Dunbar. After all, what was there to tell? She and Bob had shared a few glorious moments of perfect mutual comprehension. Once in a life time, fools and wise men say, one meets his mate. Whether this be true or not, Susan thought she had found hers in this tall, fair, sunburned young man whose world was so different from hers. But how could she explain all that to Rose? Practical Rose would ask, "Did he ever say anything? I mean did he ask you to marry him?" And Rose would be sure to shake her head sadly over the admission that he had not. Rose approved of Ernest Heath. She said she thought that Susan was a lucky girl.

So the days slipped by and nearer came the date set for the wedding. Aunt Jessie wrote glowing letters from Florida. She was feeling ever so much better, she said. She would be home soon.

One afternoon when Susan went over to the little house to see if all was well there she met Mr. Schultz, the next door neighbor.

"Young fellow's been around asking about you," he told her.

Susan's heart gave a wild leap. It was preposterous, of course, but suppose Bob should have been looking for her! She forced herself to speak casually. "What was he like?" she asked.

Mr. Schultz was, as he would have put it, "no great hand at description." He fumbled for words. "Oh, a sort of medium sized—well maybe he was tallish, young fellow," he said slowly. "He wore a gray overcoat and no hat like these college boys selling magazines."

Her disappointment was keen. "I guess maybe he was one of those," Mr. Schultz said, feeling he had failed her but not quite knowing why.

"I suppose so," Susan answered. When she went into the house she heard the telephone bell ringing and sped for it but just before she reached the dining room the bell gave a final gasp and stopped. Susan picked up the receiver with fingers that trembled. The operator's matter-of-face voice droned, "Number please."

"You called this number," Susan told her fiercely.

"Sorry but there's no one on the wire now."

The girl could have wept at the words. Someone had been trying to reach her. All her immediate friends knew she was staying at Rose's. It might have been her. It might have been the one person she longed to hear from!

For the hundredth time Susan chided herself for her folly. How could she go on hoping in the face of so many disappointments? If she had known that at that instant Bob Dunbar was disconnected, quitting a pay station in the loop, her heart would have leapt for joy. But Susan had no way of knowing that. Everyone seemed to push her toward this marriage—Heath—who wished to give her so much. Mrs. Milton whose sound common sense and innate worldliness rejoiced in a good match. Aunt Jessie who was so helpless.

"It's too late to back out now," the girl told herself recklessly. "I must go through with it."

Heath was taking her to dinner and to the theater that evening. Lately, the girl rubbed and arrayed herself. How different it was, she thought, to be going out with one man and with the only man! She took no pleasure tonight in her appearance although her mirror gave back the image of a slim, glowing girl in a simple white frock. She knew she looked well but she didn't care. It didn't seem to matter. The thought of that telephone call remained persistently in the back of her mind. Of course it might have been no one. It might have been a wrong number but there was always the chance—

Mrs. Milton appeared at the door of the bedroom, beaming at her. "My, but you do look fine," she said. "Guess what I've got for you!"

Susan widened her eyes. "I never could. Did you make a devil's food cake?"

Mrs. Milton snorted. "Listen to the girl," she implored the ceiling. "No, it's nothing like that. Can't you think of something better?"

Susan said she could not. She was brushing her hair, pressing it into sleek waves around her face. Mrs. Milton with the air of a conjuror produced a huge green dressmaker's box.

"There must be a mistake," Susan said. "It must be something for Rose. I didn't buy a thing."

"Your name is on it, large as life," Mrs. Milton told her triumphantly.

Excitedly she took the strings and folded back the tissue.

"My great glory!" muttered Mrs. Milton, almost reverently. "Lift it out, child." She was frankly impatient. Susan obeyed, draping over her arm the soft, rich coat of leaf brown fur.

"It doesn't look like mine," muttered Mrs. Milton. "I don't know as I ever saw aible at close range but I believe that's what this is." She gazed at the girl with awe.

Susan stammered. "I can't take it from him." So this was what Heath had meant the night before when he spoke of a surprise.

"Can't take it? I'd like to know why," demanded Mrs. Milton roundly. "Aren't you going to be married in two weeks? It's perfectly proper. Anyhow you'll have to wear it tonight or he'll be disappointed. Men," concluded Mrs. Milton sagely, "don't like to be disappointed."

Half fearfully Susan slipped the sumptuous wrap. Above the tier face rose clear and pale and proud. It changed her, subtly altered her whole aspect.

"You look stunning," Mrs. Milton whispered. She ran her hands over the velvet-soft surface of the fur and Susan did likewise. The girl thought she knew now why women were entranced by the promise of riches. There was something invidious about such a coat.

When Heath arrived a few moments later his eyes shown with pleasure at the sight of her. "It's much too fine for me," Susan told him shyly.

"My dear," said the man with some emotion, "nothing in." He drew her to him. Susan rested her palms against the silk lapels of his dinner coat. She hated herself for the thought but she hoped he wasn't going to kiss her.

Almost as if he divined her thoughts, the man looked at her shyly, smiled, and let her go. "There, we shall be late if we don't hurry."

Simon smiled at her as he helped her into the car. Was this all true, Susan wondered, or was she dreaming? Was she soon to be mistress of so much grandeur?

They rode through shabby streets where children pelled each other with snow balls and tired workmen plodded home through the dark. Susan shivered, pulling the fur closer around her throat. Why was she here when her heart blinged somewhere else?

and President Kelly of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, might have decided to cast all of their city's 125 votes for Mineral Wells if they had been governed solely by the personal desires and convenience of its business men. But, believing the welfare of the organization called for at least some support of Big Spring, which never had had the convention, they gave her 75 votes and Mineral Wells 50.

Which prompts us to remind our own people that they will be paying a debt of gratitude if they will support Wichita Falls for any convention she may seek in the future.

Lubbock's support also should be greatly appreciated. With 170 votes her decision meant much to Big Spring.

When Spencer Wells, the Lubbock delegation spokesman, and his fellow townsmen, decided to support Big Spring instead of Amarillo, their closer neighbor and ally in many a convention campaign, they showed courage to back up their best judgment as to what would be best for the organization. A few of the Amarillo boys sort of got hot under the collar about this action but we feel certain they'll forget it in a little while.

As soon as President Harte had announced the result of the balloting the 124th Cavalry Band from Mineral Wells struck up a tune, thus delaying momentarily statement of a motion by George Barber of Mineral Wells that selection of Big Spring be made unanimous.

Immediately, Wilbur Hawk, who had presented Amarillo's bid, seconded the motion and it was carried.

Big Spring is fortunate in winning the convention in a year when a man so able as Wilbur Hawk is president of the organization. Mr. Hawk is one of the most finest men in the southwest, one who does things in a big, substantial way. Whatever he decides to do he usually accomplishes. Spencer Wells of Lubbock and Walter D. Cline of Wichita Falls, the vice-presidents, complete a trio of leaders that could hardly be matched in West Texas.

It is great to be able to come home from a strenuous convention trip knowing that you accomplished your purpose.

Too much credit cannot be accorded Manager C. T. Watson of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, with President Tom Ashley; Ray Wilcox, this year's Big Spring director of the W.T.C.C., E. V. Spence, Carl Riomahfeld, Fox Stripling, B. F. Robbins and several other local men who worked hard all through the convention to line up the votes.

Big Spring

Many faces familiar to Big Spring appeared on the stage. Law Parker and Bob Allen, singing and dancing pair from Abilene, and Brock Havens, Abilene accordionist, all of whom played the Crawford hotel's dances and floor shows here several months, were featured performers. Irene Jay of Abilene, a brilliant dancer, who has appeared here several times, was another hit.

AS THE BIG SPRING parade got started from the depot Thursday morning a man with a Wichita Falls hat was seen weaving in and out of the ranks, shaking hands right and left. It was Vernon Smitham, former Big Spring city manager, and you didn't have to be told who he was boosting for 1932.

Paul Vickers and Charlie McClintic of Midland stayed over until the end of the convention to cast Midland's votes for Big Spring. Odessa was in there too. Among others voting for Big Spring were Dumas, Rotan, Spur, Big Lake, Claco, Brownwood, Eastland, Post.

Wichita Falls gave Big Spring 75 of her 125 votes and Stamford followed her custom of dividing her votes equally among all contestants. Stamford is site of the headquarters of the W. T. C. C.

Big Spring had Abilene's 120 votes voluntarily pledged before the convention. When San Angelo withdrew in her favor she gained 125 more. When Lubbock fell in for her 170 more were counted. Wichita Falls' 75 made a total of 500 votes from four cities.

A. E. Pistoia, division superintendent of the T. & P., had his private car attached to the Big Spring special train. The attitude of Frank Jensen, general passenger agent, toward the local campaign for the convention, brought expressions of appreciation from many. When the hour for departure neared with more than 25 of the previously prescribed minimum of 200 tickets unsold, those who had been working ten days in an effort to sell them put the facts before the local agent, R. H. Jones. As soon as he had communicated with Mr. Jensen he told the committee "the train will run, just continue selling tickets until time for it to leave." Mr. Jensen expressed appreciation for the effort put forth here for the convention and showed the T. & P. was ready to do its part.

organization this year makes necessary the largest attendance attracted by the best program in the history of the organization.

Efforts will be made to obtain Lee Nichols, Bristow, Okla., president of the National Editorial Association, Amos G. Carter, Fort Worth, publisher of the Star-Telegram, Dorrance D. Roderick, publisher of the El Paso Times, and H. H. Jackson, Coleman, publisher of the Democrat-Voice as speakers.

A meeting of committee chairman, officers and directors will be held, probably in Sweetwater, three or four weeks before the con-

Ralph Shuffler of Odessa is vice-president and Miss Trema Miller of Rotan secretary-treasurer of the association.

President Guy appointed the following committees: attendance, W. S. Cooper, Colorado, chairman; C. T. Watson, Big Spring; George L. Inglish, Stamford; N. D. Starcher, Spur; Troy Simpson, Ballinger; Jack Hawkins, Pecos; Albert S. Law, Lamona.

Program: Wendell Bedichek, Big Spring, chairman; Ralph Shuffler, Odessa; W. S. Cooper, Colorado; Max Bentley, Abilene; J. C. Smyth, Snyder; Luther Watson, Sweetwater.

An entertainment committee consisting of Wendell Bedichek, C. T. Watson and President Guy also was named.

Those attending the Sweetwater meeting were C. T. Watson, Mrs. Gordon Phillips, Wendell Bedichek, Big Spring; Trema Miller, Rotan; President Guy, W. S. Cooper, Colorado; Ralph Shuffler, Odessa; Bill Parker, Dallas; Eddie Warren, Post; Jake Smyth, Snyder; Millard Cope, Luther Watson, Sweetwater; Max Bentley, Abilene.

The trophy, offered annually by Bill Parker of Omsstead-Kirk company, Dallas, will again be presented the winner of the association golf championship held during the convention. Parker Prouty of Lubbock was the 1931 winner.

Results Of Well Shot Unreported

Definite report of results of a 400-quart shot of producing formations in the F. H. E. Oil company's No. 1 Denman test in southeastern Howard county had not been received last night.

The well, however, appeared to be the best yet drilled in the Denman-Dodge area. Total depth was 2,810 feet, 45 feet less than the Wallace No. 1 Well, northeast of the F. H. E. well. The Wallace test will be shot as soon as a burned rig can be replaced.

Shine Phillips Goes To Austin Convention

Shine Phillips will leave this morning by automobile for Austin with Rupert Townsend, Lamona, member of the state board of pharmacy, and Bruce Spencer, to attend the 33rd annual meeting of the Texas Pharmaceutical association, which will open Monday morning and continue to Thursday.

Mr. Phillips, a past-president of the organization, said that Lee Stinson of Snyder was slated for the first vice-presidency for the coming year. L. C. Brenner of Gonzales is expected to be made president. E. B. Oliver of Longview is now president. Mr. Phillips has attended the past 12 conventions of the organization.

Mrs. Ringhoffer Succumbs Friday

Mrs. Annie Ringhoffer, 56, died at 5:30 p. m. Friday at the home of her son, Emil Ringhoffer, in the Richland community. She will be buried in Mt. Olive cemetery this evening following services at 4 p. m. at the graveside with Rev. B. G. Hinchburg, Baptist minister, officiating.

Mrs. Ringhoffer, a native of Germany, is survived by her husband, Alex Ringhoffer, of Segoe, Utah, her son in the Richland community, a daughter, Mrs. Lowmie Grey and a son, Oscar Ringhoffer, of Glasscock county.

Roy Farrar of Dallas visited his aunt, Mrs. L. Y. Moore, recently.

Well, Mr. Grauman starts his shows. He thinks the later they are started the better they are. Ryd don't know or has perhaps forgot that all the big first nights in New York are started on time anyhow, no matter when they are finished. Well this one didn't start till nine thirty, and was over, the picture at one fifteen. Now that's pretty

MITCHELL PARK

The World War ended a promising diplomatic career for a Big Spring boy, located in Berlin with the American Embassy in the summer of 1914.

He was Mitchell Park, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Park, the town's first photographer and jeweler. His parents were close friends of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alec Mitchell for whom he was named; and most of Mitchell's friends associate him with the rose-covered cottage on Gregg and Fourth streets, which was the Mitchell home until Mrs. Mitchell passed away.

Mitchell interrupted his schooling at Harvard College to go to Germany for a short period, unaware that he was selecting a hot-bed of international strife in which to work at a crisis in the world's history. He toured Germany, Holland and England and returned to Harvard to obtain his A. B. and be student assistant there in a Government course.

Law next beckoned Mitchell. He was attending the University of Texas Law School and lacked only a year toward his degree when again war interrupted. The United States was involved this time and Mitchell entered the R. O. T. C. at Leon Springs and was commissioned second lieutenant.

He went at Hoboken on board ship when the armistice was signed. He spent the greater part of the following year, detailed to the Military Intelligence Division at Washington, D. C.

He almost went back into diplomatic service when the war was over. He had passed his examination and was appointed third secretary when he received a business offer that appealed to him.

So, for the second time, the diplomatic career was checked. Mitchell accepted the business offer which placed him with Prescott and Snider, investment bankers, of Kansas City, Mo.

That was in 1919. He has been in the investment banking business ever since.

In 1924, he became resident manager of the Kansas City office of E. H. Rollins and Sons, Inc., New York investment bankers, the position he holds today.

In 1925, he was married to Evelyn Seavey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Seavey. There are no children.

In his various clubs, Mitchell remains in contact with the interesting phases of his life. He is a member of the Kansas City Country Club; the University Club of Kansas City; the Harvard Club; the Rockhill Tennis Club and the Bond Men's Club.

He plays tennis and golf but his recreation is his garden at his Mission Hills home.

Oldtimers who recall the yellow blossoms that bloomed on Mrs. Mitchell's climbing rose in a period when roses were a magnificent triumph of gardening in gusty West Texas, know where Mitchell received his inspiration to produce beauty of blossoms from the raw materials of soil, sunshine and water.

With Mitchell lives his mother.

Children Show Great Interest In Library Fees

The splendid idea of the Public Library to arrange a special membership for children during the summer months of twenty-five cents (good from end of school to the beginning) has resulted in a greatly increased membership on part of the youngsters.

Mrs. B. T. Cardwell, librarian, has ordered many new children's books for the children and made new arrangements for shelving them. She invites parents to drop by and see what has been done, also to see the new children's books already in and learn of those coming.

Among the new adult books are two most recent arrivals, "State Fair" by Phil Stong and "Captain Archer's Daughter" by Margaret Deland.

Reprints of popular light fiction for which there has been a great request are now coming in. Twenty five books have already arrived.

There is also a shipment of the novels which the Hyperion Club members are studying next year and other books by the authors whose lives the members will take up.

The library is open every day except Sunday from 3 to 5 o'clock. Its fee is a dollar a year or fifty cents for six months. The membership is gradually growing but

WILL ROGERS-- Will Thinks He Made A Mistake In Fooling The Old Home Town

By WILL ROGERS... Well all I know is just what I read in the papers and what I run into prowling around Hollywood. You remember one time when I was on the Radio and did a little imitation of Mr. Coolidge. Well some of em raised Cain. Said I shouldn't have done it. I even went so far as to ask Mr. Coolidge if it had offended him and he replied, "Why I didn't even pay any attention to it."

But its a great "Yoke!" show. This was an especially big one for it was the biggest cast picture ever made. Think of Greta Grobo, the two Barrymores, Joan Crawford, Wally Beery, Jean Harsholt, Tully Marshall and about half the other pay roll of Hollywood. Well it was a bear of a night, judging by people standing outside on soap boxes, and folks inside with old overhauled emkins. They have an intermission and everybody goes out and looks at each other and you can't get em back in again. They would rather look at each other than the show. But it was what the Society reporter would call "The Elite," what the film fan reporter would call "Aristocracy of Filmdom" and what the poor folks on the street that some of em wasn't eating regular would call "The Nuts."

But all joking aside they was our best bunch. New York hasn't got it on Hollywood for clothes. It was lovely looking out there. And some mighty fine substantial folks there is some pretty down to earth people in our business and lots of em have been into it long enough to realize that its a kind of business after all. This fellow Grauman had a wonderful prologue He put on
