LIONS CLUB BENEFIT BALL TICKETS GOING FAST, SAYS SALES COMMITTEE

By HARRY L. HAIGHT

The committee selling tickets for the benefit dance to be given Tuesday night at the Scharbauer hotel for the benefit of underprivileged children in Midland reports an unprecedented demand for the opportunity to aid in this meritorious affair. The purpose of the dance is to raise money with which to purchase glasses for children who badly need them.

The Lions club sponsors this movement and, upon investigation, it has been found that approximately 10 children in Midland can have their eye sight protected and possibly prevent blindness by the use of properly adjusted glasses. Dr. John B. Thomas will make the examinations and the glasses will be purchased from the proceeds of the dance.

Mrs. Glenn Lewis reported one case that requires glasses almost at once. The child's parents are unable to supply the funds necessary to relieve the affliction. This child has been added to the Lions' list and will be supplied with the necessary glasses. Mrs. Lewis has sold many tickets in aid of this particular case, but there are more urgent cases. The Lions report that this has been one of their main objectives, each year carrying out this program. The club says people of Midland have been responsive in their attitude toward this charity.

Don Murray and his Californians, an excellent orchestra composed of from seven to nine pieces, will play for the Tuesday dance from 9 p. m. until up in the morning. It will be held in the Scharbauer crystal ball room, the use of which has been donated by Clarence Scharbauer.

Tickets, the Lions club reports, can be had at the Midland drug store, Scharbauer cigar stand, Hotel pharmacy, Petroleum pharmacy, the desk in the Scharbauer, the First National bank, Jimmie Noland, De Lo Douglas, Harry L. Haight and other Lions. The treasurer of the Lions, John P. Butler, says practically every Lion has purchased tickets for his family.

Great attendance is indicated.

NEW ALLOWABLE FOR TEXAS SET; ALSO FOR W. T.

West Texas Figure Is 119,713, Cut of 3292 Bbls

AUSTIN, Oct. 28 (UP)—The railroad commission order issued today, effective Monday, cut oil production approximately 90,000 barrels to 879,892 per day. Administrator Jakes asked for the reduction to offset the state's past over production.

East Texas wells, under the order, will be allowed to produce 3-4 per cent of their average hourly potential for a maximum of 400,000 barrels; West Central Texas was left a maximum of 25,000; North Texas was boosted 7,500 barrels to 56,500, meeting requirements of the marginal well law; West Texas was allowed 119,713; South Texas 45,897; East Central Texas 43,911 and the Gulf Coast field 140,029 barrels.

Simultaneously the commission called a statewide prorating hearing for November 9.

WEST TEXAS ALLOWABLE FIGURES ARE RELEASED

W. R. Bowden, deputy supervisor for the West Texas district of the Texas Railroad commission, after telephone conversation with R. D. Parker, chief supervisor of the Oil and Gas division, announced the new allowable effective in the West Texas area Monday morning at 7 o'clock, as follows:

FORD AMENABLE TO NRA REQUEST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (UP)—Negotiations between the Ford Motor company and striking workers in eastern plants seemed to hold the key to the controversy between Henry Ford and the administration today.

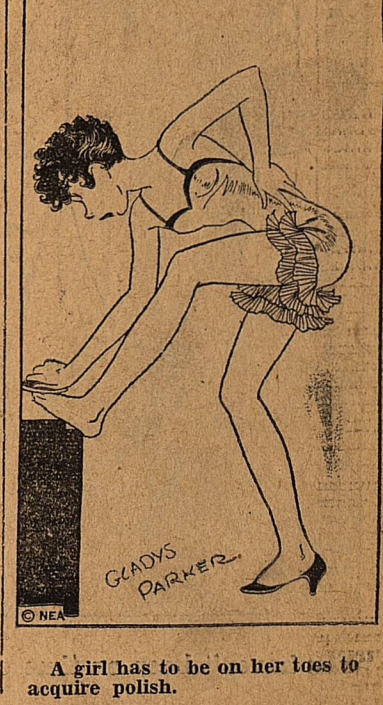

Ford claimed to have better conditions than the maximum hour and minimum wage schedules provided by the automobile code and assured the administration that he will submit reports of operations when formally asked.

However, there was no indication that he will permit employees to organize and bargain collectively.

THE FUTURE REMAINS UP TO INDUSTRY

It commonly is said these days that we are in the midst of a bloodless revolution in the United States. The statement is either pleasing or terrifying, depending on your mental attitude—and, perhaps, on the number of high-powered securities you have in your safety deposit box. But it is not quite accurate.

That there has been a revolution in the realm of ideas is too obvious to need comment. Both the boom-time psychology of the Coolidge era and the what's-the-use attitude of more recent years are gone for good. But whether we are to have an actual revolution in political and economic life—a full transfer of power from one class to another—still is a matter for the future to determine.

We haven't had it yet. Whether we are to have it depends largely on how well the owners of the means of production, transportation, and distribution are willing to play ball under the new rules that have been devised.

Willis Thornton pointed out recently in a dispatch from Washington that there are two courses open to the NRA set-up.

It can go ahead to a more or less complete socialization, under full control of Uncle Sam; or it can become a referee in the competitive struggle, standing by to enforce the rules of fair play and to see that every contestant gets all the breaks that are coming to him.

That the capitalist would prefer the second alternative goes without saying. Whether the second alternative is what he gets depends almost entirely on him. If he plays ball, well and good; if not, he is likely to wake up some morning and find that this bloodless revolution which people are talking about already has taken place.

What does all this mean, in actual practice? Simply this: Industry must adapt itself to the new rules as they are drawn up in Washington. The industrialist who shuts down a plant rather than deal with strikers, who chisels at his NRA code, sabotages the New Deal and tries to continue in industrial relations the attitude of a steel baron of 1919 simply is persuading people that the evils of capitalism can't be abolished without abolition of capitalism as well.

Given the present temper of the American people generally, it is certain that failure of the NRA will be followed by measures immeasurably more stringent. And success or failure of the NRA depends, in the last analysis, on the intelligence and good will of the rulers of industry.

WHEN OPTIMISM IS NOT MUCH HELP

Suicide has a tragic quality all its own, unlike that which attends any other form of death.

Relatives and friends are not only left to mourn a departure from life; they are forced to think that life itself, through some mischance, had got so unendurably difficult that the strongest of all instincts, the instinct of self-preservation, had been killed.

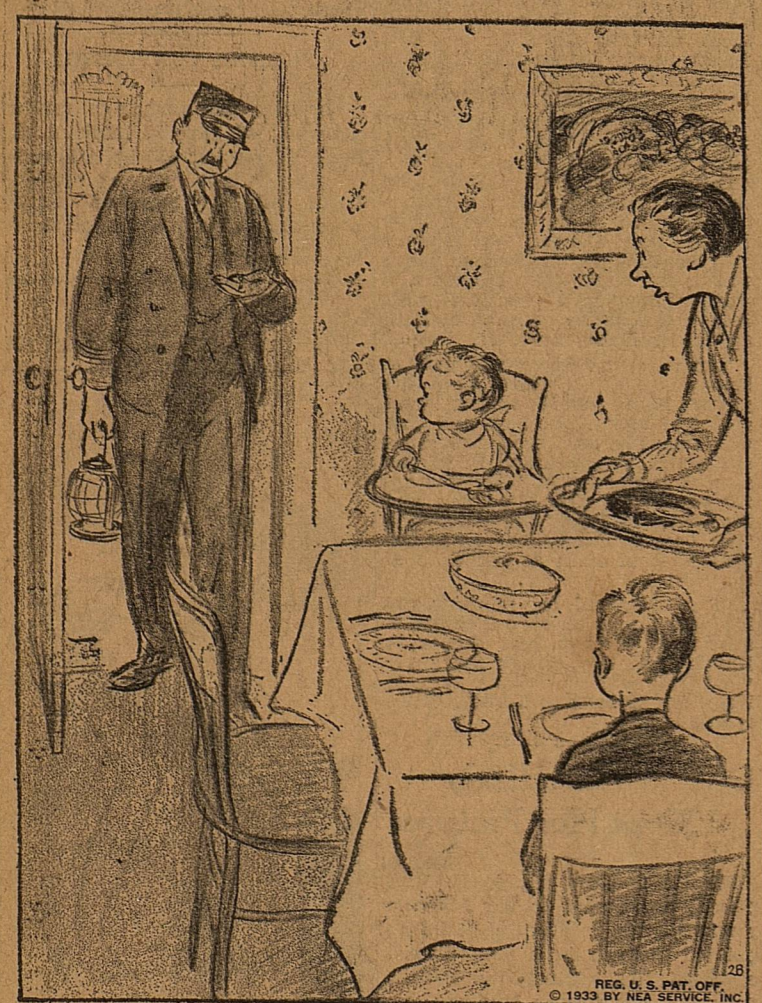

Robert E. Farley, former president of the New York state Rotary Club, was found hanging from a rafter in his home the other day. And what gave his death a peculiarly tragic quality was the fact that only three years ago he had written, for the Rotary Club magazine, a code for living.

In it he included these rules: "Don't worry—smile; laugh it off; serve with sacrifice; do it now and have peace; relax—ease mind, nerves and muscles; do not get out of poise; get next to God and stay there; think of the things that make you happy and not of the things that make you sad."

A new proposed law before the Turkish parliament provides for the serenading of delinquent taxpayers by six drummers for one hour each day until their taxes are paid. This would seem to be an earnest endeavor to drum up tax money.

A specimen of Agaricus campestris, found recently near South Bend, Ind., measured eighteen inches across and weighed eleven pounds. Henceforth "mushroom growth" may be used to express size, as well as speed, of development.

Harvest Moon

Under the Dome Of the Capital

BY GORDON K. SHEARER, United Press Staff Correspondent AUSTIN (UP).—When Will Rogers brought the Governors Ferguson and Amon Carter, Fort Worth publisher, to amity, he healed a breach that far antedated the snub received by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson when she went to Dallas to greet Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and was not invited to the breakfast arranged by Carter.

The time dates back to Thanksgiving Day, 1925, when Texas A. & M. College cadets defeated the University of Texas, 28 to 0, at Kyle field.

Ferguson occupied a box at the game with President T. O. Walton of Texas A. & M. Carter had a seat near the governor.

At that time there was much turmoil over highway contracts let by the highway commission appointed by Mrs. Ferguson. Attorney General Dan Moody, who had attacked the contracts in court, was being mentioned as a possible candidate against Mrs. Ferguson.

and defied her to remove him. He became one of the chief supporters of Dan Moody in the campaign in which Mrs. Ferguson was defeated. When he broke later with Moody, he did not align himself with the Ferguson.

If the breach really is permanent, it may play an important part in selection of a successor to the late Albert W. Walker as United States Collector of Internal Revenue.

Ewell Nalle is an aspirant for the place. He is an uncle of George Nalle, a son-in-law of Governor Ferguson. Carter has undoubtedly influence with leaders of the national administration. If Nalle should get the appointment through a kindly work from Carter, the Ferguson-Carter wounds would really appear to be healed. There would also be balm on the wounds the Ferguson administration has suffered in seeing so many friends of Moody and Carter get federal plums recently.

Frank Scofield of Hillsboro and Frank Bushick, finance-commissioner of San Antonio, have also been mentioned in connection with the post vacated by Collector Walker's death.

Scofield originally was the chief snipe of the Traylor-for-president campaign in Texas. They had once been fellow townsmen. This Traylor advocacy is not likely to hurt Scofield's chances for he worked just as assiduously for Roosevelt and Carter after the ticket was named at Chicago. He was an active leader in the campaign for finances.

Senator Tom Connally may find it advisable to put in a good word for Bushick. With his own senatorial race coming up soon, Connally wants to cement his peace recently made with Bexar county party leaders. They had been offended at what they thought was Connally's unwarranted interference in the selection of the United States District Attorney for their district.

DESTRUCTION OF STALKS URGED

Boll weevils are now abundant in the cotton fields. New growth of cotton furnishes the best feed for the weevils and favors successful winter hibernation, according to Dr. F. L. Thomas, chief of the division of entomology, Texas agricultural experiment station, who urges the earliest possible destruction of cotton stalks in order to reduce the number of weevils to go into hibernation.

"Destruction of cotton stalks early in the fall is one of the most important steps in boll weevil control," says the bureau of entomology, U. S. department of agriculture, which has been advocating this method for more than 25 years. "Cotton should be picked as rapidly as possible," says the bureau. "As soon as picking is completed the stalks should be plowed under. In cases where it is impractical to plow under the stalks farmers will do well to turn cattle, sheep or goats into the field to graze. There are large areas where cotton is already almost if not completely picked out and hence is an unusual opportunity now to clean up cotton fields as a weevil control measure. If the cotton stalks on these farms are destroyed promptly the weevil population for next spring will be greatly reduced. Community action will produce the best results but every farmer should destroy the stalks on his farm as early as possible whether his neighbor does or not. The individual farmer who destroys his cotton stalks early will benefit, because boll weevils do not move in large numbers until late in the season, so that his fields will not be infested by many weevils until the 1934 crop is so far advanced that it is not likely to be injured."

Early destruction of the stalks prevents the development of weevils. Plowing the stalks under or grazing destroys the immature stages of the weevils in squares and bolls now infested and it stops the growth squares in which weevils might develop later this season. This stops the development of weevils many of which would hibernate successfully, and this in turn, decreases the number of weevils which will emerge in the spring. The destruction of the stalks will also cause many weevils now in the adult stage to starve before cold weather arrives. Others will be in a weakened condition from lack of food and will not survive the hibernation period.

Many experiments have shown that the earlier the cotton stalks are destroyed in the fall the fewer the boll weevils in the following spring."

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

For instance, a man was in the witness chair in court. "Are you married or single," asked the lawyer. "Married," was the reply. "How long?" "Five years." "Have you formed any opinion?" "Not for five years."

An example of the other type of husband is the local man who told his wife right after the supper the other evening, "I'm going to flip a dime. If it falls heads I'll go to lodge. If it's tails I'm going to the pool hall. If it stays on edge I'll stay at home."

Buffalo Bill used to tell a story about an Englishman who was a visitor at Buffalo Bill's ranch. It was some place where the wind blew as hard as it does here in Midland. Anyway, they were driving over the plains when a particularly lusty gust of wind actually blew the Englishman off the seat of the buckboard. "Buffalo Bill laughed at him and the Englishman laughed back. "What do you think of this country, anyway?" Buffalo Bill asked. "It's all right, except there is a little too much ventilation," the Englishman replied.

Wouldn't you hate to meet up with the mother-in-law of this woman who was described in the El Paso Times as follows: She charged out of a cave astride a big grizzly bear. Just cussin' and ravin' tear her hair. She had a machine gun hung on each side. And her scanties were made of rattlesnake hide. A brassiere she sported of humming bird skin. And the rest of her wardrobe was what you'll call thin. She yanked out a bowie knife, this rantankerous old jade. And bit a big hunk right out of the blade. Then she drank blue vitriol till it ran down her chin. And she stood on her head and licked it back in. But she got all excited and says, "listen in there. My mother-in-law's ravin' and its time to take air." So she dashed down the hill, through the wild prickly pear. 'Till she rode plump to death that big grizzly bear. —J. F. Gray.

El Ranchito '4' Cops Polo Title

FORT WORTH.—El Ranchito poloists made a clean sweep of the third annual tournament Sunday afternoon, when the Blues, captained by Dr. Rayworth Williams, and including Dock Weir, Cliff Frates and George Oliver, Newark, N. J., defeated the Dallas quartet, 9 to 4, for the championship. El Ranchito's Reds previously had defeated Wichita Falls in the consolation.

Mrs. W. T. Waggoner II presented the Blues with the Hoot Gibson trophy and player cups. A. B. Wharton Jr., Cecil Childers, Frank Johnson and Deane Gill, members of the Reds quartet, also received cups for their victory.

Sunday's title tilt, which attracted 2,000, was hotly contested, and the losers never gave up until the final bell. Oliver was an outstanding star, his riding and stick work being of exceptional brilliance. He scored five goals. Frates and Dr. Williams each tallied twice, and although Weir didn't score he played a fine game.

Dallas sent its regular lineup, Randolph Allen, J. Hardy Neal, Capt. Bub Newman and Johnny Colt, onto the field, alternating George Prendegast with Allen in three periods.

Dallas started with one goal handicap. Capt. Ted Voight, assisted by A. B. Wharton, Jr., refereed, with Earl Shaw, crack Pacific Coast poloist, and Warren Waring, San Angelo breeder, acting as judges.

Georgetown polo team was the first winner of the Hoot Gibson trophy. El Ranchito's Reds won last year, and with the Blues winning in 1932, the trophy will remain on El Ranchito's shelf until Spring at least, when the 1934 Spring tournament will be decided.

Festive Parties This Week Climax Last of Indian Summer

Affairs of Last Week Ushered in the New Season; PTA Carnival, Benefit Dance Lead This Week's Functions; Classes Entertain

Festive Halloween parties during the last week, as well as balls, carnivals and other parties the fore part of this week, climax the last days of Indian summer. Hostesses have planned colorful entertainment for Monday and Tuesday nights.

Parties for grown-ups will blend black and orange shades and weird symbols of black cats, witches and yellow pumpkins in appointments for games, combined with gorgeous autumn blossoms in tones of orange and bronze and purple.

With the dignified and formal entertainments for grown-ups of the past week were informal and hilarious parties for children who look forward to the Halloween season with an interest akin to Thanksgiving and Christmas. What fun they get in donning the spooky and bizarre costumes of high peaked hats and flapping black coats and carrying Jack-o'-lanterns made of pumpkins with grinning faces and cavernous eyes to lend reality to the setting.

DANCE FIRST FUNCTION OF THE NEW SEASON

One of the first social functions last week to mark the new season was given Thursday evening at the country club with Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pyron and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dickson as hosts and hostesses.

Thirty-six were complimented at the event, a Halloween dance, of smart appointments. Autumn flowers added an attractive decorative touch.

FOURTEEN-TABLE BRIDGE PARTY AT COUNTRY CLUB

One of the prettiest parties given last week was on Friday afternoon, a 14-table bridge at country club with Mmes. Joe D. Chambers, Joe Haygood and Percy Bridgewater.

The club was a riotous blend of orange, black and bronze reflected in streamer hangings, table appointments and late flowers. Ingenious decoration of floor and table lamps created separate areas of light and semi-darkness, where linked grinning masks that traditionally people Halloween atmosphere.

Mrs. Harvey Conger won high score and Mrs. E. M. Miller second high. High cut was received by Mrs. J. M. Speed, Mrs. Hugh Burchfield, who leaves soon to spend the winter season at Miami, Fla., before joining her husband in Arabia, was presented a bangle as a farewell gift.

Guests playing were Mmes. Leon Goodman, Joe Ballanforte, J. A. Given of Odessa, Delson Breeding of McCombs, Paul Ryan, J. R. Ashley, Miller, Eugene Conger, John Dublin, Addison, Clarence Scharbauer, Sam Cummings, Joe Pyron, R. C. Crabb, C. D. Hodges, Speed, Harvey Sloan, S. S. Stinson, Dick Nelson, R. E. Kinsey, Roy Parks, J. B. Flood, Hugh Corrigan, J. R. Martin, Gentry Kidd, R. R. Holmes of Wink, Holtzman, W. E. Wallace, E. H. Shaw, E. B. Soper, J. F. Blount, Fred Wright, J. Howard Hedge, M. S. Nicholson, Vance Sibley of Wink, Bryan Henderson, Charles Lingo, Rawlins Clark, George Klingaman, Elliott Cowden, Paul Brown of Odessa, Hugh West, Johnson Phillips, De Lo Douglas, Al Luskamp, Paul Moore, C. C. Jeffrey, Davidson of Fort Worth, Knickerbocker, Wills and Bedford Taylor, Misses Dorothy and Bessie Sue Ratliff and Pauline Sills.

WOMEN'S CLASS TO HAVE PARTIES

Two women's classes have announced that they will have Halloween parties.

The Naomi class is completing arrangements for a masked party to be held Monday evening at 7:30 in the assembly room of the country court house.

Invitations have been sent to active and inactive members of the Evangelists class and their husbands for a novel party to given Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Baptist annex.

CHILDREN HAVE PARTY FRIDAY

A hilarious party for a Baptist Sunday school class of which Mrs. J. W. Arnett is teacher was given Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Dona Dunagan, 509 West Texas.

Costumes lent a festive atmosphere to the rooms of the home which were decorated with black symbols of Halloween.

Guests were Willie Merle Caffey, Jane Dunagan, Doris Dunagan, Lorena Dunagan, Vera Stevens, Pauline Stevens, Peggy Joe Houze, Josephine Ray, Alta Merrell, Jack Carroll, James Conner, Robert Dunagan and Kenneth Webb.

P. T. A. CARNIVAL TUESDAY EVENING

Spooks and goblins will convene in the vicinity of the old Midland Auto Supply building Tuesday night introduced this year. The chapter at the North Ward P-T-A. will hold its annual Halloween carnival.

In true carnival spirit, a number of mystery booths have been introduced this year. The chapter of horrors, the fun house and the half man-half woman are features which are exciting the curiosity of the prospective crowd.

Halloween Party Saturday Evening At Link Home

Frances Ellen Link and Shirley Ruth Jolly entertained at the Link home, 611 North Pecos, Saturday evening with a Halloween party.

Decorations emblematic of Halloween adorned the walls of the home. Appropriate games were played by twenty costumed guests.

Mrs. Link was assisted by Mrs. R. E. Witty and Mrs. O. W. Jolly.

T. E. L. Class Meets Thursday Afternoon

The T. E. L. class of the Baptist church met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. H. Williamson for a business meeting.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. J. H. Spaulding, Mrs. Brooks Pemberton brought a devotional from the twenty-third Psalm. After a prayer by Mrs. P. C. Ratcliff, business matters of the class were discussed.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent piecing a quilt.

Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served to Mmes. Ratcliff, Martha Holloway, Pemberton, Lizzie Quinn, Lord, H. B. Duragan, T. O. Midkiff, Ada Basham, Wren, and visitors, Mmes. Wade Heath, Tom Aycock, Creek, Charles Kerr and children, Mary and James.

Theatre Party Honors Antis

Mrs. J. Howard Hodge was hostess Thursday evening to members of the Anti club with a theatre party.

Guests were first entertained at the A. J. Norwood home with a bridge party, after which they saw "Her Bodyguard" at the Ritz.

try store, where everyone wins and no one loses; the chili, doughnut and coffee booth which has always done a land office business in the past and which will open at noon Tuesday.

Other attractions will include a merry-go-round, slide, fun house, ring-the-duck, chunk-the-negro-baby, marble-o and fortune telling novelties.

All proceeds above expenses will go toward financing the organization's milk fund for undernourished children.

A Halloween dance will be given at the Scharbauer hotel Tuesday evening from 9 o'clock until early morning under the auspices of the Midland Lion club. The proceeds will go to buy glasses for underprivileged children.

A colored orchestra from San Angelo has been secured to play. Special entertainment features have been planned.

Novels by Popular Authors Are Now on Library Rent Shelf

Several of the latest novels of the season have been placed on the rent shelf of the county library. These represent the best sellers of the most popular fiction writers. A list of those received by the library Friday follow:

"Enchanted Ground" by Temple Bailey. This is an appealing romance of a young doctor who casts his lot with his unfortunate neighbors in Florida after the land boom rather than return to a lucrative practice in Baltimore.

"Donna Celestis" by Ethel M. Dell. In "Donna Celestis" Ethel M. Dell has given us all the action and clean love interest that have characterized all of her tremendously popular novels. With the sympathy and human understanding for which she is famous, she tells the moving story of a ruthless man and what happened to the loving heart that trusted him.

"Two Black Sheep" by Warwick Deering. "There is here in rich measure the compassionate understanding of love and sorrow that has made Mr. Deering one of the best-known and best-loved of novelists of our day."

"Miss Bishop" by Bess Streeter Aldrich. "Once in her youth she had started to weave a tapestry at the loom of life with a spindle of hope and dreams—and the centre of the fabric was to have been a little house in a garden and red fire and light and the man she loved and children. But the threads had been broken and the spindle lost, and she had woven another."

"The Fault of the Angels" by Paul Horgan. "An ironic novel portraying a group of musicians and their friends, all associated with the musical center which an eccentric millionaire had established in an eastern city. It is chiefly the story of Nina, the temperamental Russian wife of the orchestra leader and of her attempts to introduce European sophistication and culture into the life of the city. It is related as it appeared to her youthful admirer."

"The Clock Ticks On" by Valentine Williams. "An intriguing mystery in which a clever young English detective arrives in New York with just seventy-two hours in which to find a murderer and save an innocent man from the gallows in England. Exciting events follow each other in rapid succession making a dramatic story in which your interest never flags."

On the seven day shelf: "The Crime of Cuba" by Carleton Beals. "Mr. Beals begins this timely and enlightening study of Cuba with a section called 'Pattern' in which he analyzes her races and cultures. He continues with an outline of her history, the main part of which is devoted to political and economic conditions since the Spanish-American war. The picture he presents is a devastating indictment of American policy in Cuba, and shows the responsibility for the present deplorable state of affairs directly upon the United States."

"The Story of the Confederacy" by Robert Selph Henry.

Says New Record Set by Firestone

M. H. Crawford, manager of the Firestone Service Stores, Inc., here, believes Harvey S. Firestone set some sort of a record at a recent gathering of dealers and salesmen at A Century of Progress, Chicago, when he shook hands with the 1,253 delegates registered.

Crawford attended the meeting and reported an enthusiastic and instructive event. A Firestone sales school was conducted. A picture of the entire group appeared in the most recent issue of the Firestone trade journal received by the Midland manager.

TOUCHDOWN SHOWER GREET'S MIDLAND IN WINK GAME YESTERDAY

BULLDOGS 21ST CONSECUTIVE PREY ON WINKLER COUNTY GRID; SCORE IS 32-0; TEAM FIGHT IS UNAVAILING

WINK, Oct. 28. (Special)—Wink's scrapping contenders for the B district grid title made it 21 straight wins on the home gridiron this afternoon when they soundly drubbed the brilliantly dressed Bulldogs of the Midland high school, 32-0.

Midland did not make a serious scoring threat, never penetrating the Wink 20-yard line. Their aerials were batted down and their thrusts and sweeps effectively stopped by the more alert and harder tackling hosts.

First downs were: Wink 18, Midland 6.

Wink was superior in every department of play, and the club looked much faster as compared with its performance the week before, when it rolled up 400 yards gain from scrimmage and allowed

Betting on Horse Racing Draws a Frown and Wink

AUSTIN. (UP)—Despite the thousands of dollars changing hands as each pack of horses dash across the finish line at Arlington Downs, betting on horse racing still draws a frown from official Texas—and a sly wink besides.

Articles 645, 647 and 648 of the penal code of the state of Texas, title 2, chapter 6 of the 1925 revision, constitute the frown.

The act permitting a "certificate system" of wagering on horse races which, however, "shall not be construed to be either pool selling, betting or book-making," constitutes the sly wink.

"Certificate" wagering works thus: You are not a gambler, but you do admire good horses. Pass by the stables a while ago, you noticed Appleby Fitzbottom's "Risky Miss," so you put $10 on the counter in the belief she'll win the race.

In return you receive a certificate, a little piece of cardboard of questionable value which bears the number of the race, the amount contributed, the name and number of your horse, and which means that you own a $10 interest in "Risky Miss."

The barriers fall. Around the oval race track the horses stream. And behold! There's "Risky Miss" leaping with sweating flanks across the finish line ahead of the entire field.

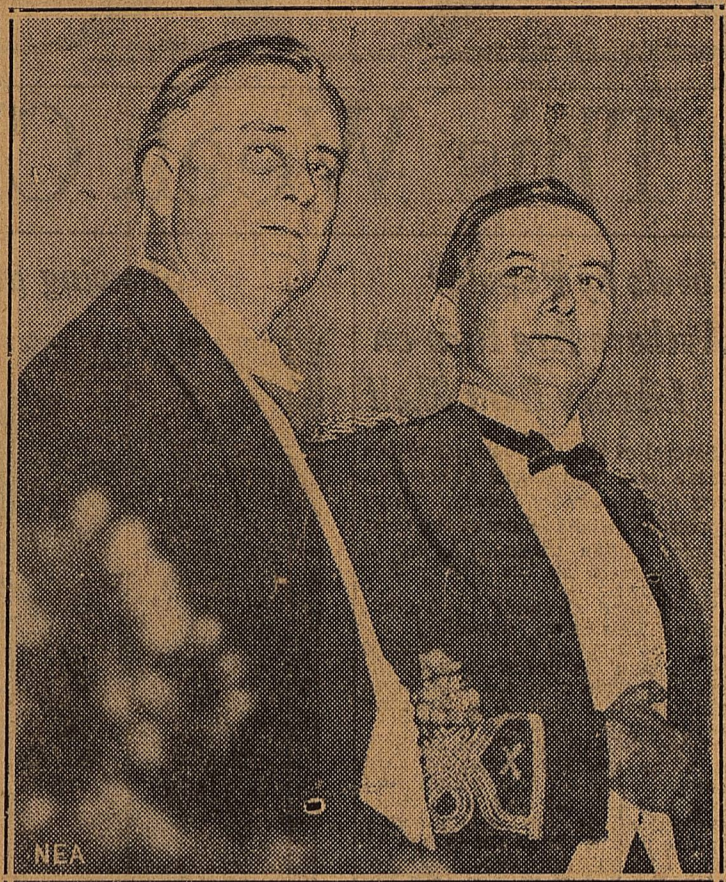

By winning that race, "Risky Miss" has suddenly endeared herself to Mr. Appleby Fitzbottom, who wouldn't part with her for a potful of money. He will pay several times over your $10 to buy back your interest.

You take your little piece of cardboard back to the race track cashier, who is acting as Mr. Fitzbottom's agent.

He discovers ten 10-dollar interests had been purchased in "Risky Miss" while $1,000, less 10 per cent and a few odd cents which Arlington Downs took to make the sum an even one, was paid for "interests" in other horses which also ran in the same race. The cashier pays you $100 for your $10 in "Risky Miss."

You get $90 from your investment, Mr. Fitzbottom keeps "Risky Miss" the state has received a tax from the afternoon's race, and everybody is happy—except a few misjudging

President Pleads for Nation's Needy

"It is for us to redouble our efforts for those who must still depend upon relief . . . to stand by the victims of the depression until it is definitely past . . ." Such was the plea made by President Roosevelt at the colorful Catholic Charities conference in New York, where he here is pictured with his military aide, Colonel Edwin Watson.

Trousered Girl with One Golf Club Is Panicky Sensation at British Tourney

LONDON (UP)—The name of Miss Gloria D. Minorpio will go down in golfing history as the first woman to wear trousers on a golf course—at least in an important tournament.

There were gasps of astonishment among the players and officials during the recent British women's championship at Westward Ho, Devonshire, when a vision appeared in long black trousers, a dainty little black shirt, and a tiny black beret, appeared on the first tee.

It was Miss Minorpio. But that's not all. She seemed to have acquired some of Walter Hagen's showmanship. Twice her name was called before she strolled up to the starter's box, and even then she did not seem to be ready, for she carried one club only—a small shafted No. 1 iron, with a particularly long face.

But—and this was another note in women's golfing history—Miss

Minorpio played her round entirely with that club! She drove, approached and puted with it. Her trousers and her iron were almost too much for her opponent, who, however, won because Gloria's iron work was having an off-day.

Until she burst into the headlines at this championship, Miss Minorpio was unknown. She was entered from the Littlestone club, Kent, where she had a handicap of four, returning scores of 76, 78 and 80 to obtain it—no mean performance for a woman.

She undoubtedly can hit a long ball with her one club, built to her own design, and during the three years she has been playing the game, she averaged around 240 yards from the tee. Often she touches the 300 mark. She relies more on swing and timing for her lengths, rather than hitting power, but her short game is not nearly so good as her long one.

World Recovery Signs Seen in Nations First Hit by Slump; Optimism Results

BY HENRY T. RUSSELL
United Press Staff Correspondent
LONDON (UP)—The first signs of world recovery came from Australia, which was the country from which, together with Australia, indications of the depression first emanated, according to Sir Walter Layton, economist.

Australia's staple industry, wool, now is improving gradually," explained Layton in an interview with the United Press. Just before the revolution in Germany, he said, there were signs of recovery in Australia, despite the reported precarious financial condition in that country. Had it not been for central European unrest, there is little doubt, in the opinion of Sir Walter, that Australia would today be well on the way to recovery.

"Austria's international trade was showing signs of revival before the Hitler revolution," he said. "In 1932 her tourist trade earnings were good, and her trade generally had begun to show that the wheels once more had started to turn."

Discussing inflation, Layton said, history of unbalanced currencies: First—Inflation occurred in Russia and Germany, "which created destructive influences, fear the belief that currency inflation means hell." Second—The British way, "showing that if you have control of your currency, that currency can be adjusted to trade conditions without the heavens falling." Third—Going off gold in the belief that it will enable you to inflate.

The experience of Russia and Germany and certain Continental European countries in depreciating, or allowing their currencies to be depreciated, mainly was responsible for the current fear of inflation, he said. The "British way" is proof sufficient that general fear of inflation can be highly exaggerated, especially if when being "forced off" gold, you keep a sane control of your currency and budget.

"The fear that a cataclysm will occur through attempting to step down the relative values of currencies is, in my view, often exaggerated," said Sir Walter.

"There is no reason why currencies should not be readjusted to trade conditions. Everything depends upon the manner in which the readjustment is carried out. Hence most countries, while deliberately trying to avoid inflating, have tried to devalue their currencies within reason. A good example is Austria, who first pretended that she had not done so, then gradually admitted it. Hence while she still is nominally on gold, her currency has been readjusted to trade conditions."

CONVERSATION IN A CLOTHES CLOSET

FIRST COAT-HANGER: "I wish the boss would get a new overcoat—I've been holding this one for him a terrible long time."

SECOND COAT-HANGER: "Say, you're lucky—I've been hanging here without holding ANYTHING for almost four years!"

FOR TWO, three years you've been saying, "This overcoat's in fair shape—guess it'll do another winter," or "I think I can get along without buying a new suit."

And probably you could still make them do a while longer . . . but should you? Isn't this the time to give your clothes closet a "new deal"? Is there any real economy in looking shabby? Certainly, so far as price is concerned, you couldn't choose a better moment. For clothing prices today are lower than they are ever likely to be again!

In the past four years everything in the clothing industry has been topsyturvy. Because people were making their old clothes do, retailers couldn't sell their stocks. Because retailers couldn't sell, they couldn't buy from the manufacturer. Because the manufacturer had no orders, had to stop buying cloth. Because the cloth makers had no business, they stopped buying yarn. Because the yarn spinners were idle, they stopped buying wool.

All along the line wages were cut, labor was laid off, and the worth of a man's head or hands kept shrinking away. It was a situation in which neither a human being nor his handiwork had any true value any more.

Now the tide has turned. Under the terms of the NRA code a worker has to receive a fair living wage. The Government has set out to make everything . . . both a man's time and the product of his labor . . . worth something again.

Wool . . . yarn . . . cloth . . . clothing . . . all are necessary to cover our nakedness, and all need human labor to produce. Therefore the final cost of the finished product is bound to go up.

This process is now under way. Since February pay rolls in the clothing industry have increased 32 1/2%. Wool has gone up 49%. Cotton goods are up 90%. Other materials have kept pace. But now . . . today . . . there are still new winter stocks to be had at amazingly low prices . . . real bargains for keen buyers. Only remember this—such opportunities are limited. Now is the time to buy!

HOWARD HIGHWAY WORK IS STARTED

BIG SPRING.—Hannah and Hall of Waco, contractors for construction of grading and small drainage structures on Highway 9 between Big Spring and the Glasscock county line, have started actual operations on the project, E. L. Landingham, superintendent for the contractors, said.

The south project on No. 9 was the first highway construction job placed under contract in Howard county. Work preliminary to starting actual construction of grades is now under way and operations will be continued unabated as rapidly as weather conditions and sound construction practices will allow, it was indicated.

PLANS ON HIGHWAY NORTH OF TOWN TO AUSTIN

BIG SPRING.—Plans and specifications for construction of Highway No. 9 from Big Spring northward to Dawson county have been forwarded to the highway department, said M. E. Savage, resident engineer.

Conversations in Austin last week with highway department officials led local newspapermen to believe a contract for construction of the north road will be let soon.

No. 9 northward will be built under contract as a project financed by part of the $24,000,000 federal allotment made last summer. Highway No. 1 in Howard county will be built with R. F. C. money recently allocated this section as emergency drought work relief.

The county commissioners court is busily engaged in procuring right-of-way both north and east of the city.

Beat Midland Is Pecos' War Cry

PECOS.—"Beat Midland" a refrain that rocked the rafters in the Pecos school auditorium back in 1920 and 1921, when football first became a major sport for Pecos high, and which has echoed and re-echoed throughout the intervening years, will be heard again on this campus and on the streets this week as Pecos prepares to meet her traditional gridiron enemy.

In the period from 1921-29, the Pecos-Midland game was the feature football encounter of this entire section. In those days the teams were usually of about equal strength.

In 1930 Midland began to feel her oats, so to speak, and began showing around for faster competition. She withdrew from Class B football and took on Class A. The seasons of 1931 and 1932 convinced her rather rudely of her mistake. Midland became the football champion which other teams of the district took out their anger and last year she won only one game in her district.

During those years, when Midland was neglecting the Class B teams, Pecos and Wink became the traditional rivals and the Pecos-Wink game replaced the old Midland encounter as the outstanding date on the calendar.

This year it will be like old times. Pecos will be battling to keep in the conference race. Midland will be striving for the same goal. Both teams are Class B again and, so far, Midland has appeared not so strong as usual.

Everything points to a close, tense, thrilling game . . . one that will keep the fans on edge and in which the team that fights the hardest will win.

Not since the fall of 1930 has a Midland team played in Pecos and school authorities are making preparations to entertain the large crowd that will be here.

Showing at the Ritz Today

Last night on the screen of the Ritz theatre, Hermann Sudermann's great literary classic, "The Song of Songs," with Marlene Dietrich as the star, brought to local movie fans one of the most interesting films yet seen in this city.

Played with restraint by every member of the notable cast, the story of the lovely young girl who meets tragedy solely because of her intense desire for love, is fine screen entertainment from the very beginning to the end. Each member of the cast contributed his bit in excellent fashion.

Miss Dietrich is especially appealing. She looks more beautiful than we have ever seen her look, and it can easily be said that "The Song of Songs" gives her her finest role to date. This is doubly impressive when one realizes that, in this picture, she plays, for the first time in her screen career, an innocent young girl who gets buffeted about by life.

The leading man, Brian Aherne, makes his screen debut with this picture. One glance at him on the screen and the spectator realizes why he has been dubbed the most romantic lover in Hollywood. Incidentally, he is the young Englishman who created a sensation on the New York stage with his role opposite Katharine Cornell in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

Beautifully produced, dramatic, human to the extreme and with interesting, understandable dialogue, "The Song of Songs" bids fair to remain within our midst for a long time.

RED BLUFF FIGHT WAGED 26 YEARS

Continual Disappointments Met with Proposals for Impounding Water; Appropriation for Big Job Occasion for Celebration Throughout the Valley

Drama, and some tragedy, too is written into the record of the 26-year old fight for an irrigation project on the Pecos river, brought to a successful climax last week when the public works administration approved a $2,600,000 loan for the Red Bluff irrigation-water power project.

A canvass among old time residents of Pecos tells of a fight into which entered the spirit of the West—the spirit that refused to know defeat or discouragement—but by which one generation picked up the fight where another left off.

Ever since homesteaders settled in the semi-desert region along the Pecos men of vision have dreamed that one day the valley flanking the mucky stream would blossom into productive fields, would be dotted with prosperous farm houses.

It was in 1907, however, that the first tangible move looking toward an irrigation system on the river was made. In that year J. W. Moore, still a resident of Pecos, on behalf of a Kansas City colonizer, took out a permit to take water from the river at old Red Bluff, a site just across the state line in New Mexico.

The intention of the Kansas City colonizer was to acquire some 30,000 acres of land and sell it in small tracts to farmers from the east in search of new lands on which to wrest a livelihood.

Moore was aided in his petition by H. A. Shannon, and Thomas Bombar. It is interesting to recall at that time that T. H. Beauchamp received the petition as county clerk, and that H. N. McKellar, former county judge, was then his deputy.

This plan fell through because at that time Texas irrigation laws were vague and incomplete and offered no safeguard on legal rights to the water supply.

In 1909, T. A. Ezell, who was then ranching along the river, decided to make a supreme effort to colonize the fertile river lands. He obtained the Moore filing and sought in vain to interest private capital in development of this nature.

Three years later, J. N. Levin, promoter of the luxury representing Philadelphia capital, moved to the west. He had grandiose notions of creating overnight a garden from a wilderness. Crystal Water ranch, house, $100,000 monument to his will, still rears her three stories in palatial grandeur over barren ranch lands south of Pecos.

Levin brought engineers and surveyors and worked out a complete set of plans for an irrigation system to start with a central reservoir near the site of the present Red Bluff dam; with auxiliary reservoirs around the town of Pecos and canals tapping lands southeast of Pecos where he built his Crystal Water palace as the then intended capital of it all.

Estimates submitted by Levin's engineers were revealing. They included $450,000 for the main reservoir, near Red Bluff; $600,000 for making Sand Lake feasible as a sub-storage lake; and $90,000 for covering Toyah lake into a sub-reservoir.

Dream World Falls Levin's dream world collapsed, however, the Crystal Water mansion in time became the abode of sheep herders and their lames and the plans that he had had so carefully compiled reposed in dust as security for an unpaid office bill, owed to J. W. Moore. Of his own accord, Engineer Vernon L. Sullivan, (present engineer of the project) unearthed these plans and carried them to Washington to exhibit before governmental authorities.

Following Levin, the fight for the project was taken up by a determined group of farmers who had been fighting the combination of soil and farm water supply. For a time their scattered farms had produced crops that took prizes in world competition. Then the U. S. Reclamation Service built a series of dams upstream near Carlsbad. This checked the flow of the river in normal seasons. In flood season, when enough water might have been stored, the "raged" river would burst its banks and have no reservoir to catch the precious waters that were being so wantonly wasted.

Water Users Fight About 1914 farmers organized what they called the Pecos Valley Water Users' association. Clay Coove, later a Fort Worth attorney, was president; C. K. McKnight, still at Pecos, was secretary.

They concentrated their efforts on the reclamation service and

Expect Work on Highway Soon

MENTONE.—All but three property owners on which deeds for rights of way for the new highway to be a part of No. 27, connecting at the Reeves county line on the Pecos river have been secured. These three who have so far failed to grant the request for the land are non-residents, and in case they have not acquired soon legal steps to procure them will be taken, stated H. T. Easterling, county attorney.

Work on the stretch of roadway, one and six tenths miles from the Pecos river to about the location of old Forterville, will then be started and according to estimates of county officials it is expected it will begin within thirty days.

Objections of other property owners from Forterville on to Mentone may delay immediate completion of the road to town.

Citizens of Ward county, interested in building of a highway from Grandfalls through Barslow and into Mentone and ultimately the Red Bluff damsite, appeared before the state highway commission last week. What success they met with has not been disclosed but this gesture on the part of Barslow has stirred up some interest at Pecos.

Wink likewise started a movement to get a good road through. Government aid of some $20,000 has been promised Winkler county for the project.

Old Pecos River Bridge Torn Down

PECOS.—One of the old Pecos river landmarks is being torn down. It is the old steel bridge over the Pecos river, located about a hundred yards north of the present highway bridge.

R. F. C. workers from Ward county are doing the labor. The bridge has not been used in recent years but prior to completion of the present Barkshead route it bore up under thousands and thousands of heavily-laden cars and trucks during the early days of the oil boom in this vicinity.

what he was called on to do. Thomason made it his problem as well as ours. And so—with actual construction scheduled to start soon grey-haired farmers, their faces lined with the toil of a quarter century, again face the future with a gleam of hope in their eyes and with the satisfaction of having seen, literally, a dream come true.

Tutt to Receive NRA Complaints

Complaints of violation of approved codes in this district are to be referred to Ernest L. Tutt, district manager of the United States department of commerce at Houston, according to J. O. Nobles, chairman of the Midland compliance board in a statement issued today. Tutt was appointed by General Hugh S. Johnson as director of compliance.

Nobles stated further that this does not alter the functions of the local compliance board in obtaining 100 per cent compliance with the president's agreement. "Our local compliance board will continue to handle all complaints alleging violations of the blanket code, but complaints of permanent codes should be made to Tutt."

The approval by the president of an increasing number of permanent codes of fair competition necessitated the creation of a regional code compliance system in addition to the administrative agencies within the industries, which brought about Tutt's appointment as district compliance director.

Nobles entered a plea for citizens to put a stop to false rumors and to report to his board complaints of violation of the president's agreement so his board may take the proper action. "We stand ready to investigate such complaints if people will but report them to us. It is harmful to an honest and sincere employer who may be misinformed by his duties to have such rumors being spread."

Once upon a time there was a little dog named Penny that wanted to go to a dog show, but his little master would not let him. He got mad and the master, Jim, was afraid and started for the dog show as fast as he could go.

When he reached there, the dog got away and Jim started to cry. A kind old man told him not to cry as he would get his dog for him. Jim said, "How can you?"

The man said, "Wait and see." Jim took his hands down from his face and watched the old man who soon came back. "Where is the dog?" asked Jim.

"Oh, I gave him to your mother." "What's wrong with him?" "The mother said, 'He is hot.' " "That's what he gets for running away."

"That's what you get for bringing him down here," said Mother. "Well, he got mad," said Jim. Mother said, "Why didn't you tell me? 'Where were you?'"

"Well, a man helped me anyway," said Jim. Mother said, "It was your Uncle Albert. I know it was. 'I wonder why he didn't come to see me while he was in town?'"

"Maybe he had too much work to tend to. He told me he was going to Dallas and now he has disappeared."

"We may hear from him later. Now, come on home with me and bring your dog," said Mother, starting the car. When they got home, Jim said, "I like Uncle Albert. May I go see him next summer?"

"I guess so. Oh, where is that dog?" It is under the bed. I am going to take him back to the show now. "Wait a minute. I want you to wash the dishes. "No, I am going to the dog show." "All right. Then you can dry them tonight."
