Arlington Downs Seen Great as Kentucky Derby

ARLINGTON DOWNS, Oct. 30. (UP).—Attendance at the Texas Jockey club's first racing meet has exceeded 90,000 for the first time since the war.

ARLINGTON DOWNS, Tex., Oct. 30. (UP).—It is but a matter of time, believes Judge Joseph A. Murphy, director of the racing meet here, until Arlington Downs will have an event comparable to the Kentucky Derby.

Murphy is extremely optimistic over the future of Arlington Downs. He is one of the best versed men in America on horse racing operations.

In Arlington Downs, Texas has a plant which is conceded to be one of the finest in the country, and I do not hesitate to predict that the stakes race of national-wide importance will soon be staged here, Murphy said.

I can speak familiarly of conditions in Texas racing because of my office at various meets here in the past and have naturally watched recent developments with much interest. I am elated over the future prospects of horse racing in Texas.

Murphy is one of the most famous officials in the United States. Through his efforts horse racing has been brought back to Louisiana, Illinois and California, and he had a prominent part in returning the sport to Texas.

The distinctive-looking, middle-aged director began his career as a sports writer in St. Louis. He was a star sprinter on the St. Louis University track team while in college.

Later he worked in Chicago. Then he became racing secretary and associate judge at the old Harlow track.

Murphy said the Texas pari-mutuel system of betting is a commendable feature of the sport. It eliminates all possibility of collusion between bookmaker and rider. Practically all the money placed on a race here goes back to the winning winners.

Under the Texas system, eight per cent of the bets go to the track, two per cent to the state as a tax, and the remainder to the bettors.

Two Planes Crash at Amarillo

Above are scenes of the two ships which crashed at Amarillo Sunday morning, in which three men were killed and one critically injured. The top picture shows the wreck of the plane in which three men were killed. Those dead are Frank Clay, pilot, 23, Morrill, Neb., Bill Tullis, 25, Liberal, Kan., and Ezra Higgins, 27, Hooker, Okla. The plane fell in the street. The bottom view pictures the ship, piloted by Arthur Stude, 38, Woodward, Oklahoma, which crashed through the roof of a laundry. Stude suffered a broken right arm, deep cuts and a possible broken right leg. NEA Photo

FRANCE MOURNS PAINLEVE'S DEATH

PARIS, Oct. 30. (UP).—France today mourned the last of wartime premiers, Paul Painleve, who died yesterday. The nation prepared to honor him with burial in Pantheon, reserved for France's greatest men.

It was Premier Painleve who named Foch as generalissimo and coordinated the western front and organized the Salonica front during the world war.

WHAT PRICE JAIL?

The county commissioners of a certain Ohio county had a difficult problem in human values to determine this month.

Some time ago a citizen of that county was arrested for murder. He was tried, convicted, sentenced to death, and lodged in the death house of the Ohio penitentiary. For 22 months he stayed there, awaiting what looked like certain doom, with other condemned men for his only companions.

Finally, another man confessed to the crime. The first man was exonerated and was given his freedom, all stain removed from his name. So finally he asked the county commissioners for compensation for those 22 months in the death house, and they awarded him a verdict of $12,000.

How much money would it take to make up for so long a sojourn in the shadow of the electric chair? Does the sum agreed on seem fair to you?

BOLD, BAD MEN

The big shot gangsters of the modern underworld thrive on terrible reputations. They like to be known as "Machine-gun so-and-so," much as the Texas bad man of former days liked to be called "the terror of the plains." But very often their reputations are more blood-and-thunder-ish than they really deserve.

Joseph B. Keenan, assistant U. S. attorney general, tells a Senate sub-committee that the notorious George (Machine-Gun) Kelly really is an errant coward who had his hands on a machine gun only twice in his whole life.

When Kelly was trapped at Memphis, says Mr. Keenan, he had better than a 50-50 chance to shoot his way to freedom. Instead, he meekly surrendered, raising his hands as high as the length of his arms would permit.

It is rather important that facts of this kind be brought out. The really bold desperado moves in an ominous sort of glamour; the cowardly rat who hides behind a synthetic reputation has no glamour at all.

And that's the kind of "bad man" the ordinary gangster really is.

One presumes, of course, that barbers and hairdressers do their "part."

bridge party. A man here in town who drags around like he wouldn't work if he had a chance claims to have pellagra. If the emphasis is on the syllable "lag," I believe he's right.

A man who lives out west of town came from Alabama, Kentucky or some good old southern state. When he first hit Texas he stopped at Fort Worth and appeared one morning at the police station with this statement: "I was robbed of twenty dollars, suh. I would like to have the police find the robber but I don't want him arrested, suh. I merely want to lay my hands on him, suh."

If whiskers could be converted into breakfast foods, Russia's problem would be solved. I understand the first nudist colony was started by two people who got so fat they couldn't find any clothes to fit them.

Many people still think the first colony was established by women who are always saying, "I haven't a thing to wear."

After all, many of us are like the Indian we read about in 1898. The Indian was permitted to look at water through a microscope. In the water the Indian saw countless wiggling germs. Becoming angry at the sight, the Indian broke the microscope, drank the water and died with typhoid fever.

INMATE PLAYS WITH DOLLS

ST. LOUIS (UP)—"Betty Sue," the St. Louis Zoo's infant orangutan, daily amuses visitors by antics with her dolls. Zoo attendants gave the primate several dolls to play with. "Betty Sue" constantly hugs at least one doll, even while pursuing her other pet diversion—playing with her toes.

Aged Prisoner Wants To Stay in N. M. Pen

SANTA FE—The state penitentiary is the only home "Tuti Frutti" has, and he intends to stay there.

Offered commutations, which would make him a free man, he has declined with thanks. Former Governor Dick Dillon was the first chief executive to offer him liberty, but he refused, hoping the governor would not issue it. He was eligible for clemency under the later Governor Arthur Seligman's pardon policy, but again he signified his preference to retain his cell.

"Tuti Frutti" is Pesus Ramirez, sent up from Dona Ana county to serve from 40 to 5 years for assault. He began his sentence February 8, 1924. He is 77 years old.

Governor Seligman's policy was to pardon on each holiday the prisoner who had the most seniority, in point of service, that is, who had violated none of the prison rules. Ramirez was one of the first to meet his requirement, but he waived his right.

Ramirez says he is an old man and if he were cast out upon the world, especially in this time of unemployment, he would be unable to get a job—at least, not a job that would enable him to live in the comfort that he enjoys in his present station in life, according to Warden E. B. Swope.

"He said something, too, 'about wishing to pay his debt to society,'" said Swope. Ramirez isn't entirely excluded from the world beyond the walls, however. He is a gardener.

Prison officials believe, however, he has not entirely forgotten the "great outside," despite his self-imposed imprisonment. It is said he has painted windows on the wall of his cell. Warden Swope was not prepared to say whether there was anything in this story, however. Ramirez has tastefully decorated his cell, he said, but all the warden could remember about the decorations was that there were some pictures of "santos."

Lake Erie Grape Vineyards Busy

SANDUSKY, O. (UP)—Tons of big, juicy grapes are being taken to the wineries here by vinyardists, happy because they once more have a market for their crop after many lean years.

With prices double those of last year, the huge pressing machines are kept busy night and day crushing the grapes as the juice flows into heavy casks.

Most of this year's crop is being converted into grape juice. By mid-winter, nature will have converted the juice into something much stronger.

Most of the grapes grown in this region are the Concord grapes, famed for the delicious wine they produce. The sugar content is about 22 per cent, with a relatively high alcoholic content in the wine.

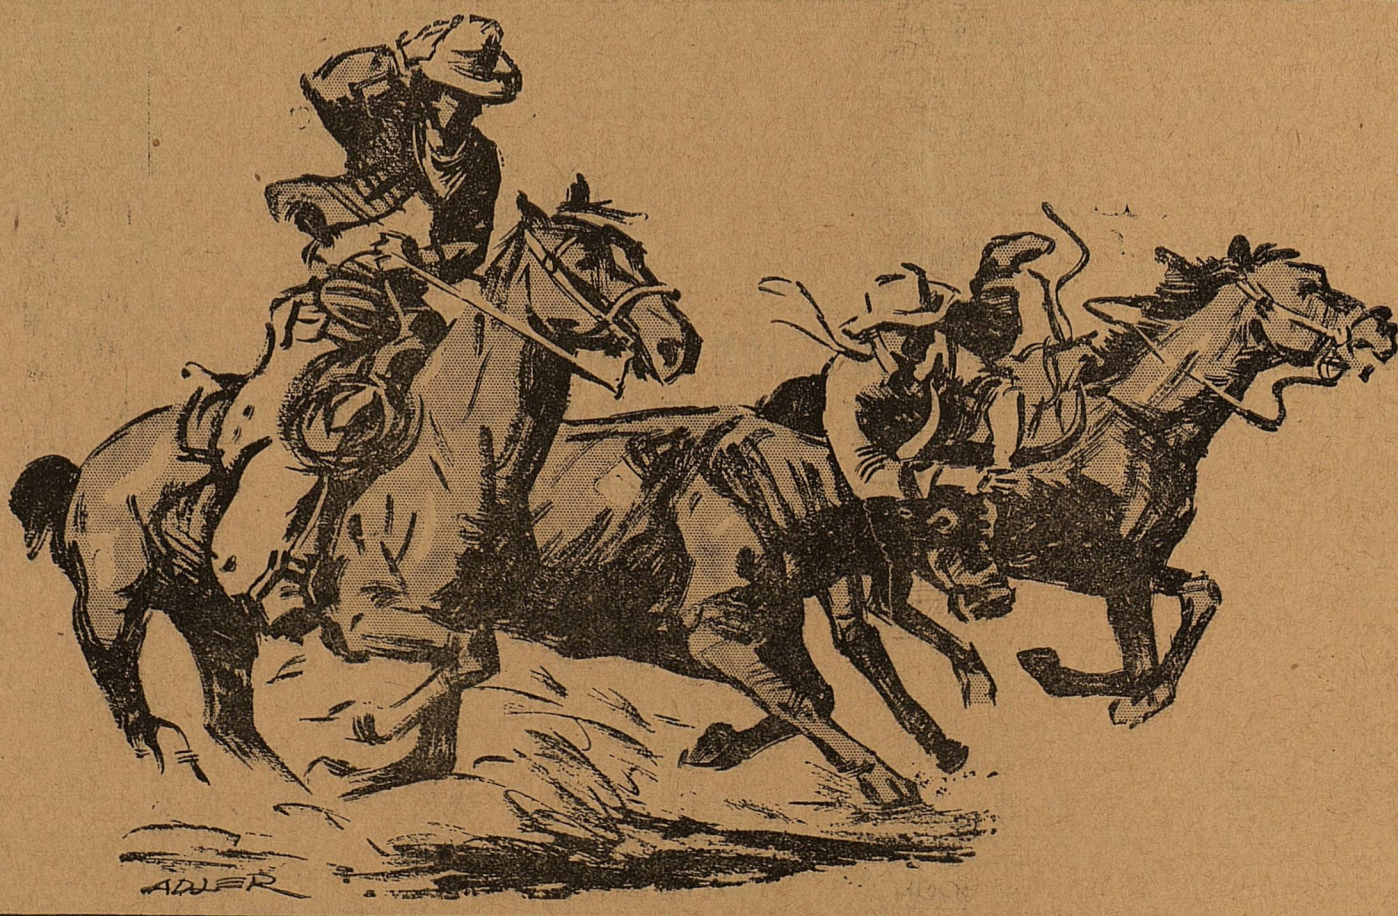

A ton of grapes usually produces 150 to 175 gallons of juice. Prices for Concord grapes last year fell as low as $15 to $20 per ton. Present prices are from $35 to $45, with some growers asking as high as $50.

Football Queen to Be Chosen at Pecos

PECOS—Twenty winsome young girls from the high school have been nominated by members of the high school football team as candidates for the unique honor of Queen of Football for 1933.

The queen will be chosen, by ballot, on the night of November 10, the coronation program being the high spot on the school social calendar.

The young lady receiving the greatest number of votes will be designated as queen; the remaining ones will act as princesses for the coronation program.

The first "queen" was Mae Oates. Next year Nell Betty Anderson received the honor. Last year Nancy Camp resigned over the princess and princesses of football. This year the ruler will be chosen from Sylvia Pulley, Dot Nabers, Mary Dee Holley, Beverly Chambers, Bobbie Stoker, Jessie Bell, Stella Mae Card, Lucille Stephen, Barbara Dor, Gladys Wolf, Aurilla Beams, Elizabeth Chatham, Mary Elton Hinkle, Alice Fitzgerald, Janice Wadley, Lillian Bryan, Eyroneet Keer, Willie

E. Starley, La Mae O'Neil, Mary E. Chapman.

Princess and princesses will be entertained at the court from other nearby schools. Odessa has already made her entry and Wink, Fort Stockton, Monahans, Barstow, Ballmorhea and other towns are expected to come in later.

WHITEFISH AIDED SLUMP

HARBOR BEACH, Mich. (UP).—Unemployment here was dissipated completely when whitefish, sought along the lake shore for many seasons, established themselves right outside the harbor. Commercial fishing concerns increased from four to 35, ice plants operated at full capacity and general trade improved.

FISHING DATE EXTENDED

WASHINGTON, (UP).—The open season for fishing in waters within the District of Columbia has been extended from Oct. 1 to Nov. 15. Reason: Economic conditions have forced so many people to depend on catching fish for their food supplies that welfare agents fear stopping this source would cause great suffering.

MUSKALUNGE CAUGHT MEMONINEE, Mich. (UP)—A 40-inch muskallunge, one of the few ever to be caught on the Memoninee River, is being exhibited by Emil Kossow as evidence of his skill. The fish was captured after a 35-minute battle.

FISHING DATE DELAYED TRIAL—BALTIMORE (UP)—A new reason for delaying a trial has been found. Judge C. G. Grason, an ardent disciple of Izak Walton, was asked for a postponement of a certain case. When he asked why, he was told the principal witness of the case had a date to go fishing. The delay was granted.

Planes Vie With Gulf-Dymaxion In Thrilling Air Pageant Throng

Top: The Gulf-Dymaxion. Below: Captain Alford J. Williams, American speed and aerobatic ace, director of events at National Air Pageant, Roosevelt Field.

By Don Mockler (Feature Writer, "U. S. Air Services") ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y. (Special).—With the calm and efficient hand of Captain Alford J. Williams, the controls as Director of Events, the aeronautical extravaganza staged for charity and billed as the National Air Pageant held here October 7 and 8, came to a glorious conclusion. More than 75,000 New Yorkers had their first real taste of aviation activity on their "home grounds" since the races here in 1925...
