RELIEF BOARDS FOR COUNTIES OKAYED TODAY

Midland County Gets Mention Among 58 Others

AUSTIN, Nov. 22. (UP)—Local relief boards of 59 Texas counties had approval of the state relief commission today under the new relief law whereby county commissioners name a board subject to state approval, Midland county was included.

Midland county representatives at the relief commission conferences at Austin today included W. B. Simpson, president of the local welfare association, County Judge E. H. Barron and E. C. Taggart, local relief administrator.

FARMERS URGED TO MAKE HASTE

The pink boll worm commission is asking farmers to register their names and addresses as soon as possible so that warrants may be issued to farmers at the earliest date according to a letter received Wednesday by the Midland chamber of commerce.

About 150 farmers have already registered their names. They may register at the chamber office or may send their names direct to Fred W. Davis, Department of Agriculture, Austin.

The letter to the Midland organization follows:

"The governor has just recently appointed the pink bollworm commission claim board.

"The personnel of the board is honorable Fred P. Davis, chairman, Austin; R. J. Murray, Lubbock; and Joe E. Edmundson, Palestine, Texas.

"On last Monday, November 13th, the board had its first meeting here in Austin. Under the law creating the board, the commissioner of agriculture is ex officio secretary to the board. I have been designated by the commissioner to act in his stead as such secretary.

"Upon the suggestion of the board at its first meeting this office is endeavoring to speedily obtain as nearly as possible a complete registration of all parties who may have claims against the state that can be paid out of the appropriation made by the legislature. May we urge that you encourage and do whatever you can to cause all claimants to immediately register by getting in communication with this office?

"Just as soon as the registration has progressed far enough blanks and letters of instructions will be mailed back to the claimants of record, so that they may properly prepare and file their claims. The law then provides that there shall be public hearings held in the several counties affected. In addition to publication notices of such meetings claimants will also be notified by return mail. It is the desire of this commission to expedite all these matters as speedily as can be in order that whatever claims may be approved, warrants can be issued therefor and placed in the hands of the proper parties at the earliest time.

"The board would respectfully appreciate your good cooperation and assistance in its efforts to assemble proper information and to speedily make the proper distribution of the funds that may be due the farmers from this appropriation."

Doom of Tijuana Sounded by Repeal Vote

Fewer cars will pass through the barrier above, now that repeal has eliminated most of the difference seen in crossing the Tijuana border into Mexico. Beer drinking contests like that above, and Salvation lassies inviting contributions outside liquor shops, right, will be found nearer home than Tijuana, where the famous racetrack there, above, will lose part of its charm.

Ghosts Will Walk in Revelry Palaces That Are Now Headed for Last Round-up

TJUANA, Mexico, Nov. 22.—The town that could come to no good end is headed for the "last round-up." Created to meet an emergency—national prohibition—Tijuana, the "Queen of Hellholes" and the "Ace of Dives," faces the prospect of becoming just another "ghost town" if the repeal of the 18th amendment is carried out as possible through the code authorities of the industries and trade associations, he said. The NRA will supervise directly where the industry is unable or fails to carry out as much as possible through the agencies where complaints may be referred.

American Hotels Seek Wine Lists of France

PARIS (UP)—American hotel and restaurant keepers evidently are studying French wine lists with a great deal of concentration. For recently one Paris hotel director received more than 100 requests for copies of his wine list. A typical letter, from one of the best known New York hotels, reads as follows:

"The law still forbids the importation of wines, but it authorizes the entry of wine lists. For purposes of guidance, when the 18th Amendment is finally repealed, would you please send me a copy of your wine card? Within a short time we shall likely have wine cards of our own, and we should like to arrange them in the best Parisian fashion. In brief, we want to model our wine list after yours, if you are willing to be reprinted next year."

EUGENE, Ore. (UP)—University of Oregon's international house, which attracted nation-wide attention for several years, is closed. Unicyclist, Who Is At Home on Ledges Above Street, Here

To a man who has perched precariously atop a unicycle on the lip of the Cheops pyramid, 482 feet from the desert floor, and who has ridden the flimsy one-wheeled contraption on the 18th-story ledge of the Hodge building, Seattle, the transcontinental ride of Walter Nilsson is more prosaic "outing."

Unicyclist, Who Is At Home on Ledges Above Street, Here

The champion unicyclist reached Midland on his New York to San Francisco ride Tuesday afternoon. It was at Pisa, Italy, last May that Nilsson, an American of Swedish extraction, pitched into an old, quaint cafe of the historic citadel of medieval culture. At a table he eyed another tourist, an old friend, Charles Johnston, Canadian sportsman and retired broker. They talked. Nilsson's escapades on dizzy ledges, Nilsson's appearances in many foreign countries, his vaudeville engagements in every state of the American union.

Sprague's Remarks Make For Heavy Bond Selling

NEW YORK, Nov. 22. (UP)—There was heavy selling of government bonds today as Wall Street interpreted remarks of Dr. O. M. V. Sprague as a warning that the government would be forced to print greenbacks.

Sprague resigned as financial adviser for the treasury department yesterday. He said he was prepared to lead such a fight and planned to write syndicate articles setting forth his views.

W. G. Riddle is providing venison for the luncheon Thursday, the meat being prepared by Joe Flynn and Percy J. Mims. It will be served by women's committees in charge of the club luncheon for the day.

District Governor Sellers addressed the Big Spring Rotary club Tuesday, J. E. Hill, Fred Wemple, W. I. Pratt and T. Paul Barron attending from here. The official went then to Lubbock for his official visit today. Midland will be the fifth club to be addressed by Sellers. There are 61 clubs in the district.

Hog Raisers Are Getting "Breaks"

Hog raisers of Midland are getting the breaks this year under the government processing tax plan.

Steven A. Debnam, new county farm agent for Midland and Martin counties, pointed out Wednesday that grain sorghums were not classified as "corn" under the government's processing tax plan.

Farmers may feed grain sorghums to their hogs and get for themselves the 2-1-2 cents per pound in addition to the regular price, provided they fatten, kill cure and sell the meat themselves and it must be sold locally.

ENRAGED SUITOR FIRES SHOT INTO HIS OWN SKULL

MADILL, Okla., Nov. 22. (UP)—Beal Turney, 29, in a Sherman hospital was not expected to live today from a self-inflicted wound after he had killed a former sweetheart, Miss Anne Ables, last night as her mother looked on.

Jealousy was blamed. The woman's life was threatened three months ago. Turney was held pending filing of sanity charges but was released on promise to stay out of the county.

The girl, the daughter of the late John T. Ables, died instantly. Turney was shot in the head. He lived at Van Alstyne near Sherman.

Turney has relatives in Midland, it was reported.

WILLIAMS SPEAKS TO JOINT MEETING

J. R. Williams, principal of the junior high school, will give a Thanksgiving address at the joint meeting of Lions and Rotary clubs Wednesday, November 29.

The program committee, with George H. Phillipps and A. E. Horst representing the Lions and W. I. Pratt, Fred Wemple and T. Paul Barron the Rotarians, mapped plans for the event at a meeting yesterday.

De Lo Douglas will be song leader for the day. George Phillipps and Percy J. Mims will act as a seating committee to see that Lions and Rotarians are placed in alternating positions, rather than to sit in groups.

Ned Watson and Frank Carpenter have been billed for a musical feature. Other details of the meeting had not been completed at the first meeting.

WINK ENJOYING MUCH BUSINESS

Wink continues one of the best business towns in the heart of the oil fields, Midland visitors to that city Tuesday declared. The Wink county metropolis is not so crowded in the daytime, but parking places are hard to find when the oil field workers come to town.

The town and its immediate environs has from 5,000 to 6,000 people, though probably only about one-fourth that number live in Wink. The Lions club is the chief civic organization, as well as functioning as a luncheon club. The Lions are active in all kinds of programs for the betterment of the community.

Wink citizens are enthusiastic about their champion football team this season. Wink men have made history this season, and many believe their prospects in the bi-district are good. They will have to play either Crane or Iran first for the championship of the entire district.

SUPPOSE WE TRIED MUSSOLINI'S PLAN

Whatever else may be said about Mussolini's scheme for the government of Italy, it is at least one of the most interesting departures from orthodox political practice ever attempted.

To understand fully what it means, it is instructive to make an imaginative transfer of the whole business to the United States. Pretend that Franklin Roosevelt is Mussolini, and that the Fascist scheme replaces the present set-up over here. What happens?

Congress, to begin with, is permitted to die of malnutrition. It is suffered to exist for a few years longer as a sort of vermiform appendix, but its functions are gone.

IN ITS PLACE RISES A COUNCIL OF CORPORATIONS.

Here we have representatives from the great industries. One group represents the steel trust, another the coal trust, another the oil trust, another the tobacco trust, another agriculture, and so on, down the line.

It is a nice question whether you could say that these industries are under government control or that they control government.

At any rate, we go on down the line and find all our existing labor unions put on the scrap heap, to be replaced by huge vertical organizations, or guilds. All the workers in the steel industry are grouped in one body, all the automobile workers in another, and so on. And these unions are not like any labor unions we previously have known. They cannot call strikes. They are not independent.

And in politics? There is only one party—the Democrats. It is a rubber stamp for the president and his advisers. Its members never dissent from the policies of the inner circle.

They are disciplined perfectly. Republicans, if they open their mouths, are sent to the new prison on Alcatraz Island. Newspaper editors submit their editorials to Jim Farley for correction. Herbert Hoover and Norman Thomas migrate to Canada. William Z. Foster is shot.

It would be pretty hard to think of a more topsy-turvy arrangement. By imagining what life in such a castron straitjacket would be like, we can get a new conception of the supreme importance of bringing our democratic institutions through the present trying times intact.

SAVING THE FARMS

The value of the work of the "forest army" is familiar to everyone by now. What is not realized so often, however, is the fact that a good deal of this army's work is connected only indirectly with forests.

Right now a considerable number of the forest army lads are at work on an ambitious scheme for preventing further loss of soil through erosion.

In southeastern Ohio, for example, ten camps are at work on this job. Streams which traverse country which formerly was wooded, but which now is under cultivation, tend to form gullies, or washes, which become progressively larger each year. As they grow larger, they carry away increasing quantities of farm land.

The forest army is building checks, dams, and the like to keep such streams under control. Good farm land is no longer to be carried downstream to the Gulf of Mexico.

The forest army, designed to save the forest, is also helping to save the farmer.

EVASION OF NRA

When General Johnson told President Roosevelt that infractions of the NRA codes in America are numerous and that a widespread spirit of evasion is manifest in certain quarters, he touched on the Achilles heel of the whole NRA program.

All in all, this program can be an exceedingly valuable thing for the country as a whole. But it is an open secret that chislers and slackers have vitiated its force in many localities.

You cannot sit down at a luncheon table to discuss the NRA without hearing plenty of remarks about firms which fly the Blue Eagle without living up to the regulations.

If the government is preparing to see to it that fuller compliance with the various codes is forthcoming, it will correct a very large flaw in the recovery program.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A huge "circulating library" has started on its travels. Known as "The Peace Book," it stands seven and one-half feet high, is three and one-half feet thick, and weighs 2380 pounds. When filled with signatures of the citizens of all the nations, it is to be presented to the Geneva Disarmament Conference as a petition requesting the outlawing of war. And, as is always the case, its authors are hopeful that it will prove a "best seller."

The citizens of Turkey recently were given until October 29, the date of the Republic's tenth anniversary, to learn its new national anthem. Similar orders in the United States as to the "Star-Spangled Banner" would no doubt result in patriotism reaching a new "high."

Although they did not find the traditional pot of gold when they followed the flaming course of a meteor to its point of contact with the earth, Austrian researchers no doubt regard the large deposits of phosphorite, discovered as a result of the search and now selling at $250 a carload, as a satisfactory substitute.

A suspicion that the sobriquet of "Gloomy Dean" Inge was inspired by the "gentlemen of the press," rather than by his pronouncements, is not allayed by reading that, with retirement, he has purchased for his future residence a place called Brightwell Manor.

"Did he buy anything?"

"Only an ice cream."

"Oh, he did, did he? Well, if that's all he thinks of you, you're not to go out with him any more. Here's fourpence to pay for the ice cream."

It was some time before the girl saw her Scotch friend, and when she did she held the fourpence out to him and said:

"I'm awfully sorry, Jock, but father told me to give you this money to pay for the ice cream you bought me."

"That's all right," replied Jock. "I wasn't in a hurry for it."

Edmondson, Palestine, Texas, desires that you kindly give notice in the next issue of your paper that all cotton growers who have claims against the State for expenditures in the fumigation of cotton and/or the sterilization of cotton seed on account of any requirements for complying with the quarantine regulations during the years 1929 to 1932, inclusive, are requested to register their name and address at once with Fred W. Davis, care of the Department of Agriculture, Austin, Texas.

The law requires official notice by advertisement in county papers ten days prior to such public hearings, giving in said advertisements the date and place of public hearings, and also a claimant of record, mailed to each claimant of record.

Fred W. Davis, Chairman of Board.

Of the 191 air records officially recognized by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, Great Britain did hold one, that for speed over a 100 kilometer course. It was held by Flight Lieutenant Boothman, when he won in the Schneider Cup races in 1931, but this was captured by the Italian aviator Casimelli on Oct. 8, 1932.

BIRDS GET HOUSES

STOCKHOLM. (UP)—Bird houses by the thousands have been set up by the Swedish government forestry service to get the birds' aid in the fight against insects. It has been found that when dead trees are systematically cleaned, trunks left for the birds to use as nests, and destructive pests have consequently been gaining in force. So far about 7,000 government bird houses have been put up and the private owners of forestry land are asked to follow the example.

Chapter I

Malto Grosso, in South America, was the haven of refugees from all over the world.

Parrish sat drinking when Allen entered the tavern. "What do you keep guzzling that stuff for?" he asked.

"Horrid word, guzzle," said Parrish. "I never guzzle—I imbibe."

Chita leaned up to the table and leaned over toward Parrish. "Don't feel so good, Doctor. You think you have fever?"

The doctor patted her on the hand. "You're all right. There's nothing the matter with you."

"You're kind of new around here," Taggart interrupted, as he came up to the group.

Allen did not remove her arm as she snuggled close to him. His voice was brittle, and then, too, there was a twinkle in his eye.

Allen took the girl's hand from his arm and held it. "Well, Chita, there are two kinds of women."

"Tell me what kind you like so that I can be like that," said Chita.

"There isn't any kind I like, and besides you're big enough to walk on your own feet."

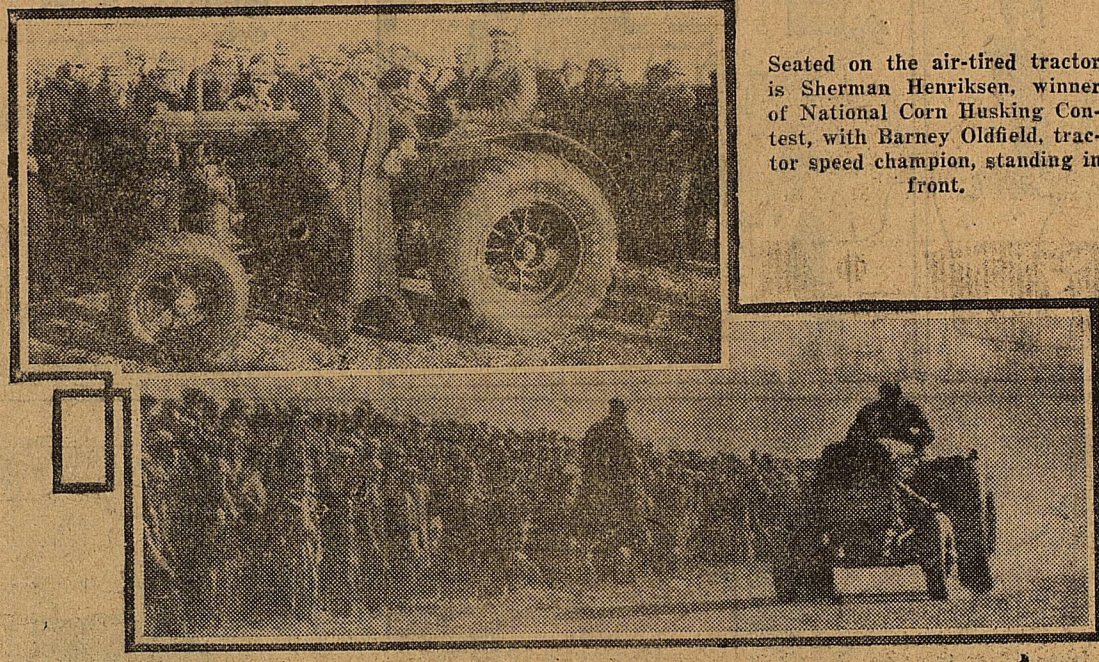

"I'm not afraid," said Joan. "Is there any place where we can stay?"

"Let me think." The doctor meditated for a moment. "Well, Miss, the best I can offer you is Mr. Allen's but it isn't exactly a suite at the Savoy, but it's reasonably comfortable."

"You'd better pack your things," said the doctor. "I'll take your brother ashore."

"After the girl had left, Allen came over to the doctor. "Some pal you are. What's the matter with her bunking in your hut?"

Mothers' Self-Culture Club Is Noted For Many Services to the Community

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is a continuation of a series of histories of Midland clubs and other organizations. Notes for other articles are being prepared by club members.

Any resume of the work of the Mothers' Self-Culture club would take early cognizance of community service. Organized in April, 1925, the club has since bought pictures for the schools (1926), conducted story hour for children (undated), contributed furniture for the high school dining room (1926), gave lantern slides to school children, contributed liberally to funds for dental work and eye glasses among charity patients.

Tragedy and comedy mingled in those days when Tijuana was famous for the reign of the "purple goddess" beloved of Bacchus. One tragedy, in particular, stands out from hundreds of others recounted from time to time in the nation's newspapers.

It was an incident which created a tremendous stir all over the land, and which resulted in the United States government closing border gates into Tijuana between sunset and sunrise.

The episode occurred in February, 1926. From their home in San Diego, came Thomas Petzet, his wife, and his two grown daughters, for a night of merrymaking in the border resort.

1926. From their home in San Diego, came Thomas Petzet, his wife, and his two grown daughters, for a night of merrymaking in the border resort.

Pleat to shun lair of vice unheeded. Mexican authorities made a great show of a drastic investigation. Four men, including the Tijuana police chief, were arrested and accused of the crime.

"Americans could reform Tijuana from without—by staying out," was the general cry in the nation's press.

Now repeal spells doom for Tijuana, "the town where anything goes," the town where anything goes.

As the famous old bars, gambling dens, and dance halls close their doors, the scarlet women, the bar-keepers, and the gambling game operators are leaving.

The glamour long since has left. On a recent Saturday night, Tijuana's main "drag" could have been used as an auto speedway. It was deserted.

Admission of children to the marriage of the Yucca theatre Thursday will be allowed for the presentation of 10 tin cans—in an effort of Manager Hal Grady in conjunction with the Rotary club to clean the city of refuse.

It is hoped by the Yucca manager that children will bring more than 10 cans, that the stack of cans will be greater than in years past.

The city trucks will haul the cans away. The picture will be "Meet the Baron," one of the greatest comedy releases of the year.

"The Great Drive," actual scenes taken during the World War, continues to show at the Yucca today, and is attracting large crowds.

A part of the box office receipts goes to the Veterans of Foreign Wars post of Midland.

Farmers Urged File Boll Worm Claims

Ben F. Chapman, secretary to the compensation claims board, has written to R. M. Barron of Midland, asking that farmers be given specific instructions as to filing applications for their claims for pink boll worm remuneration.

Upon the suggestion of the board at its first meeting this office is endeavoring to speedily obtain as nearly as possible a complete registration of all parties who may have claims against the state that can be paid out of the appropriation made by the legislature.

Just as soon as the registration has progressed far enough blanks and letters of instruction will be mailed back to the claimants of record, so that they may properly prepare and file their claims.

The board will respectfully appreciate your good cooperation and assistance in its efforts to assemble proper information and to speedily make the proper distribution of the funds that may be due the farmers from this appropriation.
