Midland Wins Fight to Remain in Common Point Zone

FREIGHT SAVING TO AREA INESTIMABLE

Midland definitely remains in common point territory! This is the extraordinary important information received Friday by the Midland chamber of commerce, which has conducted a fight for common point rights at Midland for the past six or seven years.

Text of the letter from Frank A. Leffingwell, secretary of the Texas Industrial Traffic league to the Midland chamber of commerce follows:

"We have now received final decision from the commission in our differential case in which they order the differential line to remain at Midland as today and prescribe a 25 per cent reduction in the differential rates west of Midland.

"This is a complete victory so far as Midland is concerned and a 25 per cent victory so far as points actually located in differential territory are concerned. The reductions in differential rates are to be made on or before January 20, 1934."

This victory insures the saving of a good many thousands of dollars annually on freight rates to Midland. Through this freight rate saving is directly to business men, grocers, hardware dealers, feed stores, and all lines of merchandising, it is passed on to the ultimate consumer by eliminating necessity of adding a differential freight rate onto the buyer's price.

Not only does the winning of this fight, which permanently places Midland in common point territory, mean an annual saving of thousands of dollars to Midland people and the surrounding territory which buys at Midland, but it means a better chance to realize the ambition of the Midland business men through their chamber of commerce to bring back to Midland the Seminole and Gaines county business.

Gaines county people have already said that when a road project on which the county commissioners and chamber are now working is finished, and the state highway department has given positive assurance the road will be built, they will return to Midland, and this return to doing business at Midland was largely predicated on Midland's being in common point territory.

A half dozen years ago the Midland chamber of commerce through its membership in the West Texas chamber started a fight to get Midland put into common point territory, the differential line then being at Big Spring. The traffic department of the West Texas chamber, later joined by the Texas Industrial Traffic league, conducted the fight for the Midland chamber to get the differential line moved back to Midland.

This was achieved, and the railroads immediately filed exceptions claiming Big Spring was the nearest differential line. The Texas Industrial Traffic league, at this point, through Leffingwell, conducted the fight for Midland. Twice officials of the Midland chamber appeared as witnesses in hearings, and collected a vast amount of data, which Leffingwell used as exhibits.

The Midland chamber took out a membership directly in the Texas league and that organization conducted a vigorous fight for Midland with the result announced Friday in Leffingwell's letter of complete victory for Midland. During the height of boom days it was estimated that Midland's position in common point territory might save as much as $60,000 annually in freights. Officials "guessed" Friday that the victory for Midland might mean an annual freight saving of $15,000 to $20,000.

Midland Thanked For Dam Support

An official expression of thanks to Midland for help rendered in securing the Red Bluff dam appropriation was received from Pecos Friday.

H. P. Davis, chamber of commerce secretary at Pecos, writes the appreciation of the citizenship of Pecos for cooperation given by Midland. Davis also praised Frank Dale for his pink boll worm bill work.

Kidnaped, Girl Powders Nose

HOUSTON, Oct. 20, (UP).—Alice Heister, 16, told police two men abducted her from a theatre where a nudist film was showing, took her blindfolded 15 miles into the country, where they discovered her to be the "wrong woman."

They returned her to the theatre unharmed, she said.

The girl powdered her nose, bought another admission and sat through the show again before reporting the matter to the police.

Einstein Here to Teach at Princeton

Wearing a floppy dark raincoat and big velvet hat, and carrying his violin, Professor Albert Einstein is shown as he arrived in New York to assume his duties as professor of mathematics at the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton University, Princeton, N. J. In an attempt to dodge interviews, the famed physicist secretly left his liner on a special tug that came down the harbor to meet him.

TENTATIVE PLANS FOR COTTON ACREAGE CONTROL HERE ARE OUTLINED

Tentative plans for cotton acreage control in Midland and other counties are contained in the following letter from O. P. Griffin, county agent at Big Spring, to the Midland chamber of commerce:

"In reply to your favor of yesterday, acreage control associations are to be formed in each county. The government will give each county an acreage and bale quota or allotment, the average acreage and bales for the years 1928 to 32. Then the growers will with the help of the county agent and interested parties allot a certain acreage to each farm based on the best information that can be had. The growers in each community elect a chairman. These chairmen constitute the county board which selects from their number three men to serve as a control committee. This committee acts somewhat like a board of equalization in adjusting the acreage of the farms with government statistics.

"The acreage reduction is forty per cent from the five year average as above determined. We were told that all of the processing tax would be paid to those who sign the contract except county expenses. If only a few sign their payment would be large, but if all sign the payment might be small, but in that event cotton would be high. The plan covers two years. It is thought the acreage can be increased in 1935 over 1934.

"We have one of the details of the plan. A conference of county agents has been called for Nov. 8. Doubtless the campaign will start right after that conference."

Harvey Colt Is Haskell Winner

Paul Harvey's two-year old chestnut colt, Dutch Veda, was ridden by Doc Bloss in a five-eighths mile race at Haskell yesterday to win over the other juveniles by six lengths, including those which had beaten the Odessa colt at Amarillo.

Both Foreign Relations and George Keith will be run today, the former against a fast Montana mare and other entries in the three-quarter event. George will be run against such horses as Gold Crevis, the well known Ray stallion from Cisco.

Radio Singer to Come to Midland

Mrs. R. R. Holmes, former radio singer of Shrineport, and now wife of a Wink oil man, who is said by some critics to be the best soloist in West Texas, will sing Sunday for the Men's class of Hotel Scharbauer. Andrew Northington made this plan for the program.

A male quartet composed of Percy J. Mims, Rev. Winston F. Borum, W. W. Lackey and Ray V. Hyatt from the Baptist church will also sing Sunday for the Men's class of Hotel Scharbauer. The quartet has made a hit especially with its negro spirituals. All men who expect to attend the barbecue are asked to attend the class at 9:45 to receive final notice of plans for the dinner.

FARLEY, GARNER PARTY GOES TO SANTONE TODAY

Will Rogers 'Almost Steals Show at Reception

DALLAS, Oct. 20, (UP).—The Farley and Garner party went to San Antonio and the R. W. Morrison ranch today, after seeing the Arlington Downs race inaugural and attending a banquet here last night. Will Rogers almost stole the show at the banquet, pouring oil on troubled Texas political waters. Looking at Governor and James Ferguson and attending a banquet here last night, Rogers said, "It's time for folks who have had any difficulties to get together" referring to the estrangement between the Fergusons and Aron G. Carter, Fort Worth publisher.

Vice President Garner and Postmaster General Farley addressed the State fair crowd, Farley complimenting Garner and Texas, declaring that the recovery program was just starting and that its success depends on continued loyalty of "all our people."

Garner commended Texas for its political leadership and praised Texas for supporting Roosevelt. At Farley's request the party will visit the Alamo today.

Roosting Pigeons Give Good Alibi

NORMAL, Ill. (UP).—Pigeons which have a habit of roosting on the hands of the lower block at Normal University, are giving students an alibi for being late for classes.

The pigeons slow down the progress of the hands of the clock with the result that it runs slow.

When students report for classes late they contend they were going by the tower clock and point to it as an alibi for their lateness.

Dog Saved Watchman From Rattler's Bite

COALINGA, Cal. (UP).—William Paul, an oil company watchman, was alive today because of his dog, Jack.

Paul, making his rounds in the dusk, stopped to pick up a coil of rope he had left the day before. Jack, who was trotting at his heels, snarled, threw himself at Paul, knocking him aside, and then lunged at the rope. It wasn't rope. It was a large rattlesnake. Jack's better eyesight in the dim light had distinguished the difference.

Kingfish's Daughter To Emulate Her Dad

NEW ORLEANS, (UP).—Senator Huey P. Long's daughter, Rose, 16, says she is going to follow her father into politics some day.

She registered as a freshman at Newcomb College, fashionable girls' school here, and plans to major in economics and political history. "It would be great fun to be in politics," Rose said. "I guess I'm qualified to say that politicians are grand people."

BIG OSPREY KILLED

WACO, (UP).—B. T. Bean is exhibiting an osprey with a five-foot wingspread which he shot out of a tree near Lake Waco.

When the fish hawk fell it held a live 13-inch bass clutched in its talons.

Capt. Hegenberger Makes Forced Landing at Field

Capt. Albert F. Hegenberger, intrepid air bird who blazed a trail across the Pacific to Hawaii six years ago in company with Lieut. (now Capt.) Lester Maitland, was injured in a remarkable landing at Sloan field about 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Five miles west of Midland, the starboard engine of his duo-motored O-27 Fokker plane had to be shut off when a Prestone cooling fluid line snapped, and he was faced with the necessity of bringing the plane in on one motor.

This he did, in spite of the fact he cut the switch of his right motor when flying at an altitude of only 800 feet. The dead weight of the useless motor forced him to fly a crab course, made the more difficult because of the necessity of keeping his left wing low. Low altitude and lessened power made necessary a gliding angle that gradually caused his controls to become more sloppy, and he could not have made the field had the trouble occurred a few hundred feet farther back.

When the captain glided in over the western boundaries of the field he scarcely had enough flying speed left for safe maneuvering of a necessary 135 degree turn into the field for a series of blind flights, but for landing, but did so safely—even though he had not been able to pump down his retractable landing gear. He set the big ship down on the exposed fuselage and skidded to a stop with only negligible damage to the under fabric and without nosing over. Four blades of his two three-blade propellers were slightly bent.

Officials at the port said the landing was particularly difficult and that Hegenberger exhibited great skill in both getting to the port and setting down his ship without washing it out entirely.

Preliminary inspection evidenced little or no damage to supports of the two 800 h.p. engines.

Capt. Hegenberger, whose name will continue in aviation history as one of the most noted contributors to the art of flying, was made a captain two years ago. He has since that time been affiliated closely with experiments in blind flying, and was en route indirectly to Wright field, Dayton, O., at the time of the accident here. He was to inspect a new plane which had been fitted for a series of blind flights, several of which are to be conducted at Kelly field, San Antonio. He was planning to fly the O-27 to Brooks, from which point it was to ferry a plane to Chanuck field, and there take a plane to Wright field.

The captain received a reporter in his room before arising this morning. With the innate courtesy which he is known throughout the country, he spoke freely of recent developments in motor development, stream-lining, innovations in blind flying and other factors. He was interested in this section of the state, and asked several questions.

Capt. Hegenberger was somewhat wistful in asking that correspondents for major telegraph news services "play down" the story. He explained that Mrs. Hegenberger recently died and that his two children scan the newspapers for any information regarding him.

"Anyway," he smiled, "this sort of thing is not unexpected by those who continue to fly, or by those who have a habit of keeping in. I am believed likely this morning to be formed on flying news. It really amounted to little."

He smiled again and asked the reporter to have breakfast with him, explaining he could not sleep with the sun above the horizon.

Another result, no doubt, of having been in the service so long. The captain expected to leave Midland by plane this afternoon. It was believed likely this morning that a plane would be flown here from Kelly field.

PRESIDENT TO MOVE AT ONCE AGAINST COUP

25 States Supposed To Join Strike Saturday

By UNITED PRESS

Governors of three mid-western states are leading the agrarian protest against the status of the farmer in the present phase of the recovery drive.

Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska, with former Governor Keith Neville, resigned as the state head of the NRA, declaring that the farmer is getting decreased prices for what he sells while he is paying more for what he buys.

Neville said the NRA is a failure. Milo Reno called his national farmers association to lead a strike of farmers in 25 states effective at noon Saturday. He said millions would join, refusing to sell or buy and meet due payments.

Gov. William Langer of North Dakota ordered the enforcement of the wheat embargo as a "gesture" of a protest.

Gov. Elrod B. Olson of Minnesota said a farmer rebellion is inevitable.

President Roosevelt contemplates immediate action in the farm strike. Secretary Wallace expresses a sympathetic concern, although disagreeing with the methods of the farmers' leaders.

LONGVIEW BLAST IS PROBED TODAY

LONGVIEW, Oct. 20, (UP).—Clark Sample, Texas manager of the Gregg-Tex Gasoline corp., investigated an explosion which killed one and injured five at the plant near here last night.

Jack Thomas, 30, died, and T. P. O'Neal and A. B. Willis are in a critical condition. Several others are expected to recover.

A compressor still exploded twice. The plant was recently completed at a cost of a quarter million dollars.

Yale Grid Star Excels in Class

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP).—Robert Lassiter, Jr., Yale's football captain, is one player whose scholastic eligibility never gives a coach any worry, for Bob is as adept at his studies as he is at starting a ball.

Starting his final year at Yale Lassiter looks like a good bet to win the coveted Phi Beta Kappa key. His grades always have been high, and he is on the Yale honor list, recently announced.

Lassiter, whose home is in Charlotte, N. C., doesn't confine his athletic endeavors to the gridiron. He is a good boxer, plays the average of tennis, and football is his favorite, and apparently the liking runs through the family. His older brother was a fullback at South Carolina, and a younger brother, Fred, is a candidate for a backfield berth on the Yale team.

BAND NEWS

The band practiced with the pep squad this week for a stunt for today's game.

Several students received new instruments and are working hard, so that some day they may get into the band. Russell Wright received a slide trombone, Graham Brown a tenor saxophone.

The band is also working on a medley of old Southern songs such as "Dixie", "The Old Folks at Home", and "Listen to the Mocking Bird".

PICTURES CAUSE DELAY

The work on the M. H. S. year-book has been delayed considerably due to the fact that some of the students have failed to have their pictures made on time, but the annual staff predicts that the work will be in full swing again before the middle of next week.

The Catocis is expected to be better this year than ever before.

MUSIC CLUB

Last year's members of the choral club met Monday afternoon in the high school auditorium for the purpose of reenrollment.

Other students wishing to try out for the club will be given an opportunity some time this week. Mrs. DeLo Douglas said.

TICKET SALES

Students of the various schools have been very busy this week selling tickets for the Colorado-Midland game this afternoon. The students are canvassing the town thoroughly and the results so far have been satisfactory, even though some of the merchants have put up "keep away" signs on their windows.

Supt. W. W. Lackey made a proposition to the schools Wednesday morning, saying that tickets would be given out free to each school selling as much as $50 each or to any room selling as much as $5 worth of tickets. In this way there will be about 1000 students at the football game, and this support will be felt greatly by the football team.

The Bulldogs need the support of every student and citizen and it would cheer the hearts of the team, wonderfully if they could see the stadium crowded with people at the game.

The Town Quack

It's finally been brought to my attention that Holt Jowell, the day his baby girl arrived, threw his crutches and walking canes away and didn't feel his sprained ankle for several hours. He had been practically unable to walk for a month or more.

The man on Main street who fought in the trenches but dreads the dentist, sends word that he can say one thing. He doesn't have to have a pulled tooth for an excuse to drink a glass of beer when he wants it. Now let me see, who's had a tooth pulled?

I've been hearing reports of a man sitting nicely on a fine looking chestnut horse up in the west end. Investigation leads me to believe it is Elliott Cowden, an old timer who was reared in the saddle and is an exponent of bringing back the custom of having a good saddle horse in the back yard.

Our paper Thursday said there are 1,000 horses at Arlington Downs and that there were 15,000 spectators for the opening races. One horse for every 15 people ought to provide plenty of business for the certificate handlers.

I see one entry is named Gold Dollar. Gold Digger, eh?

Friends and former supporters of Ross Sterling, disappointed at his failure politically, will be interested in the following clipping from the column of Old Tack in the Amarillo News and will be glad to learn that Ross has come back strong financially.

"Here is just a little low-down: 'It is reported by those who should know that ex-Governor Ross Sterling is on his way back. A few months ago Mr. Sterling was considered hopelessly broke. He owed better than $500,000 and didn't have anything left, but some potential oil lands which he could not have sold for more than a few thousand dollars. He was in one awful fix, despite the fact that before the depression he was actually rated at $12,000,000. 'But do you know what that old fool has done? Why he went ahead and got some oil casing and sold off some leases and got a well down on one of his leases. And he brought in a 10,000-barrel well. And he's drilled two other big ones and the other day he was offered a cool million for these oil leases. He could pay off the $500,000 he owes and have $500,000 left.

"Ross Sterling is a better man than the people of Texas ever gave him credit for being. Because he was rich he became prejudiced against him. It's true he isn't so very keen and has little or no political sense—but he sure has courage and he's honest. The only reason the people of Texas ever had for thinking he wasn't honest was because he happened to strike it in oil and sold out to the Humble.

"Ross Sterling was an uneducated old farmer boy who left the farm and started up a small store. And then oil was struck in his neighborhood and he became a drilling contractor. And then he acquired some oil leases and oil was struck. And Ross sold out for millions.

"Lightning had struck him. Instead of being so smart he was just lucky and plenty lucky. And he took it as a great compliment upon himself and he started out to become the biggest man of big business in the South. And then he thought he'd like to be governor and he put out plenty and plenty of money and was elected. He wasn't serving or representing anyone except his own personal ambition and his own pride. And then the whole world that he knew crashed about him and he was in debris up to his knees.

"But the old boy held his head up and walked out of the governor's office penniless. He could have stolen plenty and plenty. More power to old Ross Sterling. I hope he hits some more 10,000-barrel oil wells. Politically he's an honest man. And politically the people of Texas surely put him on the spot."

right arm; the youth refused the offer. Then he offered him a quarter of a million for his left arm, but again the young man refused. Next he said he would give the youth a million dollars if he would allow him to destroy his eyesight. The youth was quick in his rejection. As a final offer the boss said, "I will give you five hundred million dollars if you will let me destroy your power to reason, to think, to know, to love—your brain, in other words." The offer had no appeal to the young man.

"Then, go," said the man, "and never complain of poverty again. You are a multimillionaire."

Mr. Cole prefaced his talk with several amusing anecdotes. He told the story of a certain deaf man who was exceedingly sensitive above being hard of hearing. One day this man went squirrel hunting. As he was walking along he saw a stranger coming toward him. He thought to himself that the stranger

Professor Really Is Absent-Minded

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UP)—In a volume of personal reminiscences of William Graham Sumner, written by A. G. Keller, Professor of Science and Society at Yale and just published by the University Press, Professor Keller recalls the inability of the great Sumner to remember the names of the students of his class, and illustrates it with an anecdote.

He said he had mentioned this forgetfulness to Professor Sumner, and the latter asked him if he had ever heard of an athlete named Stagg. Keller had, "Stagg" being Yale's famous Amos Alonzo Stagg. "Pretty prominent fellow, wasn't he?" asked Professor Sumner. "Thought so. Well, once I called him up to recite and while he was on his feet I forgot his name. I often did that. So I asked, when I got through with him, 'Name?' and the whole class seemed to be a little shocked."

Warren William,
Joan Blondell at The Ritz Sunday

Warren William and Joan Blondell make as fine a screen team as is to be found in motion pictures. They have been paired together three times in the last few months, and Warner Bros. First National is planning to keep them together in future productions because of their excellent teamwork.

William is more than six feet tall and dark haired and complexioned while Joan, a fairly tall girl, who comes just above his shoulder, is a decided blonde. The contrast makes an excellent physical match. Mentally Joan is quick witted and inclined to wisecrack, while William is ponderous and dignified. Again

LETTERS to the EDITOR

Dear Sir:
Chapter Two, Stock Laws, Title 121, R. C. S. regulating the slaughter and shipment of live stock provides, among other things, for the inspection of hides from animals slaughtered for the sale of meat. In the absence of an inspector it becomes the duty of some magistrate... to keep a records of the marks, brands, color and general description of such hides, and for whom inspected, with the date of inspection, and return a copy of the same to the county clerk of the county in which it was inspected within 30 days after said inspection."

It is the duty of every person engaged in slaughtering cattle to have the hide and ear of such animal inspected by the inspector, or SOME MAGISTRATE of the county, within 20 days after it is slaughtered, and that he will not purchase any cattle that has been slaughtered by another unless the hide and ears of such slaughtered animal accompany said animal offered for sale, and that he will not purchase any animal that has been slaughtered by another when the ear marks, or brands on the hide accompanying such animal, when offered for sale, have been changed, mutilated or destroyed."

The Commissioner's Court have requested that this work be carried on in the office of the Justice of the Peace and that every practical facility be provided to enable the public to easily comply with these provisions. It is plain that considerable inconvenience would result if persons were required to make a stop at the courthouse and come to the second story of this office for the purpose of exhibiting hides for inspection.

I have therefore made arrangements with Mr. Jas. V. Gowll who is located at the office of the Midland Transfer Company, 108 E. Missouri St., just north of the T. & P. Depot as my deputy for this purpose. In cases when for any reason he is not available I, too will have certificates and will be glad to attend to the inspection.

The necessary certificate blanks, record books, etc., have not yet arrived but in the mean time Mr. Gowll or I will take the necessary records and make memorandum certificates of inspections to be inscribed when the blanks arrive.

—B. C. GIRDLEY,
Midland Justice of the Peace,
Precinct No. 1.

"Beauty for Sale" Coming to Yucca Theatre on Sunday

"Beauty for Sale," the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature which opens at a preview Saturday night at the Yucca theatre, is a daring re-creation of the sensational Faith Baldwin novel, "Beauty." It is a drama of modern city life, with a particularly intimate locale behind the scenes in a fashionable beauty salon. The story, which ran serially in Cosmopolitan Magazine, was one of the most popular of the past season.

Heading an impressive cast are Madge Evans, Alice Brady, Otto Kruger, Una Merkel, May Robson and Phillips Holmes.

TIM MCCOY COMES TO SCREEN SATURDAY

Tim McCoy, popular Western star, plays aside his familiar chaps, ten-gallon hat and high-heeled boots and dons the trim, blue uniform of the Radio Police in "Police Car 17," the Columbia action-drama Saturday, on view at the Yucca theatre.

This production is the first to use the intrepid radio patrolman's adventurous life as the background for a picture. Lambert Hillyer, the director, has made the most of the story's possibilities. The plot is unfolded in terse, rapid fire episodes with nerve-tingling thrills and sustained suspense maintained throughout.

Chases in high powered cars, thrilling gun battles and daring rescues, enough love interest to appeal to lovers of romance and really splendid performances by McCoy down to the smallest "bit" player are features of this new film. It is, incidentally, McCoy's first non-western portrayal and he proves just as effective and competent in this type of role as in the more familiar western character.

In the cast with him are Evelyn Knapp, Harold Huber, Ward Bond and DeWitt Jennings.

IOWAN HAS JEFFERSON'S GUN

IOWA FALLS, Ia. (UP).—Included in the collection of firearms maintained by M. M. Kicketts here is a gun once owned by Joseph Jefferson, famous actor. The gun is said to have been used by the actor in the play, "The Rivals." Kicketts possesses one of the finest gun collections in the Middle West.

"Devil Child," a Freak, at Ritz

The "Devil Child," described as one of the world's strangest freaks, is exhibited at the Ritz theatre today and tonight in connection with the regular program which features "Gambling Ship."

The freak is said to have the long body and features of a human, horns on his head, long claws on his fingers, a tail and hooves on its feet. The attraction was brought here on a motorized locomotive called the "Prosperity Special No. 1933," the machine carrying sound equipment.

spoke in assembly Thursday morning. Strange is a humorist of the first order. He began by telling the students of Midland high school how extremely fortunate they were in having such excellent chances afforded them. Strange asserted he had no such chances offered him. In the first place he was born at an early age in the mountains in a log cabin which he helped his father build. Strange was born in Oklahoma, and both Ardmore and Lone Oak have disputed hotly over his birthplace. Ardmore insisting he was born in Lone Oak and Lone Oak insisting he was born in Ardmore.

Most of his education was secured from Sears Roebuck catalogue, but that was all right as he was of the mind order. Later Strange went to college, where he played football, but his father, who "fooled his bills," has always been peeved because he spent two thousand dollars and only got a quarterback.
