Anxiety Caused By Forecast Of More Rainfall

CHICKASHA, Okla., (UP)—Sudden floods in south central Oklahoma Monday were credited with having taken six lives. Forecast of additional rain caused new anxiety.

Five drowned in Rusk Creek when a bridge collapsed under a wagon carrying thirteen returning from church at Kilgore school house. Three bodies were recovered. Hundreds were seeking refuge in trees.

Thomas Wade, Waukita, highway worker, drove his automobile off a washed out bridge approach at Sandy Creek. He was drowned.

Lightning apparently struck Foley Dam at Pennington Cree 13 miles north of Tishomingo, releasing waters that washed out bridge approach at Sandy Creek and Rock Creek. Waters were apparently receding.

Home Town Talk by Betty

John Garner maintained his reputation for consistency in his statement outlining his position on the important issues confronting America.

Garner is no straddler and never has been. He is one man who has gone through thirty years in congress without having taken any action or cast any vote that today could be used to "tie him in a knot," politically; that is, to prove he has never been inconsistent.

To men of his calibre with courage, integrity and full knowledge of the government and its problems America must turn today if she is to pull out of her economic troubles. To men who keep their ears always to the ground trying to get advance tips on what the people want so that they may frame their platform accordingly, America has turned too often and too long to be able to blame anybody except its own people for whatever troubles it may have.

The charge that John Garner was "cowardly" in not having made before Tuesday public expression of his position with reference to the Eighteenth Amendment is a cowardly charge itself. Such a policy by professional political agitators will help rather than hinder Mr. Garner's candidacy for the presidential nomination, because it is no patently unfair to discuss controversial issues not immediately before congress since having been elected Speaker of the House.

Temperance is righteous; intolerance is iniquitous. To women the country always has turned for preservation of its moral fibre; for upbringing of its young as temperate individuals in all things. When we can not depend upon our women for that type of influence we will be in a bad fix.

So long as our women preserve the home in its true role as the supreme agency for instilling temperance into the citizens of later generations our future will be pretty secure.

But in cases where children grow to young manhood and womanhood without such principles instilled into them so strongly that they can never fall away from proper home influences of earlier years the idea of changing their characters by legislation always has been and always will be futile.

Those whose children have been born since saloon days and who since enactment of the eighteenth amendment have not been a part of the "younger generation" perhaps would have different ideas about whether the method by which America is seeking to enforce prohibition has promoted or defeated temperance. If they could know first-hand the real effect upon younger people of conditions brought about by the prohibition plan now in effect many of them who shut their eyes and ears to any suggestion of a change in the prohibition laws might change their opinions.

Nothing worse than return of the open saloon could happen to this country. The actual number of Americans who would favor such a move is very low. But the fact remains that the people of this country are of such nature that efforts at legislating their morals aggravates rather than cure. Not because we believe the liquor traffic should not be regulated strongly, or do not believe evils of drink are so great they can not be computed but because our own observation and experience has shown without doubt that the nation has become less moral, more intemperate.

Barkley Lays Ills Of Nations Before G.O.P.

Garner Sets Precedent Appears Personally To Direct Senate-House Negotiations On Relief

WASHINGTON (UP)—John Garner shattered a precedent Monday by assuming personal direction of negotiations between the house and senate for a compromise on the $2,300,000,000 unemployment relief bill. He appeared personally before the meeting as a conferee. He said afterwards he had done considerable "orating."

He confined his remarks to the sections of the bill dealing with emergency relief funds and expanding the borrowing power reconstruction corporation for construction loans. He said he had not discussed the controversial public works section, feeling it a matter for conferees to adjust.

Keynoter
Sen. Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, keynoter at the democratic national convention in Chicago, arrived to rally the forces of democracy to the party standard.

John Curtis Enters Trial

Col. Lindbergh Watches Proceedings In Flemington N. J. Court

FLEMINGTON, N. J. (UP)—With Colonel Lindbergh watching from a nearby table, John Hughes Curtis went to trial Monday for impending justice in a search for the kidnapers and murderers of the Lindbergh baby.

Curtis and Lindbergh did not look at each other.

Defense attorneys motioned for the removal of Harry Stout, aged Flemington lawyer, from the prosecutor's staff, asserting that Stout earlier had been considered as one of the defense attorneys, therefore had knowledge of the defense strategy.

Judge Robbins refused to consider the motion in open court. Witnesses in addition to Lindbergh were Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, and Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Wheatley, the Lindbergh butler and housekeeper.

33 Entrants Are Listed In Baby Contest

Ten Prizes Are Offered; Clothes Have No Bearing On Outcome

When the better baby show begins Thursday morning on the mezzanine floor of the Settles hotel as a part of the "Carnival of Values" Big Spring's best infants will be vying for ten prizes offered by merchants sponsoring the carnival. At noon Monday thirty-three had been entered.

Clothes will have no bearing on the outcome of the contest, according to Mrs. W. D. McDonald, who, assisted by Mrs. Louis Paine and Mrs. Garland Woodward, is in charge of the affair. Babies will be judged strictly on medical standards. Three doctors, Charles K. Bivings, J. R. Dillard and P. W. Malone, will act as judges.

Program following the judging and presentation of awards has been arranged. Miss Nancy Dawes will play a piano solo and Miss Jeanette Pickle will give a reading. Brooks Ambassador's orchestra will play several special arrangements during the judging.

Grand prize going to the most perfect baby will be a 11x16 photograph. Smaller prizes, $20.00 will be given first place winners in each of the three classes. Second and third place prizes in all classes will be given. Souvenirs will be given all entries.

Babies under six months will come under the first class. Babies over six and under twelve will be in the second class. The final class is composed of babies over twelve but under two years.

Party Fails To Make Good Its Promises

Senator Delivers Keynote Address At National Convention

CHICAGO, (UP)—In a keynote speech bristling with denunciation of the Hoover administration, Senator Alben W. Barkley urged the Democratic national convention to favor a vote by the people on repealing the Eighteenth Amendment and called upon the nation to turn the Republicans out of office.

Describing the Republican plank on prohibition as "a promiscuous agglomeration of scrap-lumber," the Kentuckian said the Democrats should recommend passage of a congressional resolution repealing the 18th amendment, to be voted on by state conventions chosen solely for that purpose.

Barkley denounced the Republicans and President Hoover for the "exorbitant and indefensible rates" of the Smoot-Hawley tariff act and promised to "lift tariff-making above the sordid processes of log-rollers and back-scratchers."

He excoriated the administration's farm policy and said the Democrats would undertake to "remove from the shoulders of agriculture a portion of the unnatural burden which it bears because others have been able to shift it there through special legislation in their own behalf."

Promises Fail

Paying his respects to the Hoover administration, the keynoter recalled that the President "and his Republican congress took charge of the government" on March 4, 1929, and added:

"But every prediction every promise, every assurance made by them to obtain voter has turned to ashes in their hands, and every promise has been exposed in all its naked affection."

"Agriculture has continued its collapse. Industry has languished beyond any previous record. Credit has been restricted until finance and productive enterprises are frightened and stagnant and there is constantly marching a greater army of unemployed men and women search of honest toil than has ever been experienced by this or any other nation."

"There is nothing wrong with this republic," he added, "except that it has been mismanaged, exploited and demoralized for more than a decade by a leadership incomparably short-sighted and bereft of true statesmanship, incapable of understanding and dealing with fundamental causes and incapable even now in the midst of its fearful havoc of understanding the extent of its own mischief."

Major Operation

Declaring that "we must by a major operation remove from the body of our nation and the world, both of which are sick and dejected, the dead flesh and decayed bones resulting from 12 years of Republican quackery," Barkley continued:

"We must apply to the hopeful but misused patient the recuperative processes of a democracy which responded to the emergencies which have always beset us at the end of every period of republican control which lasted long enough for its virtue to take effect."

Concerning the Eighteenth amendment, Barkley said "so long as it is a part" of the Constitution "no citizen of the republic has a legal or moral right to violate it," and added:

"Whatever may be the divergent views of men and women on the merits or demerits of the Eighteenth Amendment as a national policy, it is inconceivable that this or any

Davis Takes Tennis Match From Bishop

Dabney And Bishop Beat Dunagan-Davis Team In Doubles

In a three hour and forty-five minute battle under a blazing sun 16 year old Joe Davis, the defending champion, beat Kent Bishop in the finals of the city qualifying play 6-4, 10-12, 6-4, 2-6, 6-4.

Bishop paired with George Dabney to walk away with doubles laurels, defeating H. B. Dunagan, Jr., and Davis, 7-5, 6-3, 6-3.

Both finalists defied the heat to put on one of the best tennis exhibitions ever seen on the local courts, the sixty minute marathon being a clash between a player who was master of a single stroke, a reckless, flashy volleying attack, and a boy who was proficient with every kind of return from the baseline. Bishop was the aggressor throughout the match and for four sets his volleys, many of them almost impossible returns, staved off defeat.

Davis won the first set 6-4, running up a 3-1 lead and coasting in behind a strong service and consistent baseline play. Then in the second frame Bishop took a one-game advantage at 5-4, but Davis stubbornly held his own service for six consecutive games before dropping the set 12-10.

The third was a replica of the first except that the play was faster. Davis' baseline game was at its best as he overcame a 3-1 lead to take the set 6-4.

The fourth frame found Bishop clearly the master of the situation. He won the first five games without any of them being deuced, and his sharply angled volleys kept Davis moving from one side of the court to the other. Davis rallied for a moment to win two games but dropped the set 6-2.

Bishop took the first game of the last set but Davis went into a 2-1 lead then 4-3, and 5-4 as he took his opponent's service. The last game was a hard-fought affair that saw each player having the advantage several times. Davis finally won out, his determined defensive play

Business Atmosphere Clears In Spite Of Downward Current

Bankers Examination Shows

While the first half of 1932 has witnessed no reversal of the long downward movements in business activity and in price levels, there has at least been a clearing of the atmosphere during the past month that gives some promise of brighter prospects, states the Guaranty Trust company of New York in the current issue of the Guaranty survey, its monthly review of business and financial conditions in the United States and abroad, which has just been published.

Some Disipation Of The Fog

"Some disipation of the fog of gloom that has hung over the situation since last autumn is here and there evident, and there is even the suggestion that the forces of liquidation may have spent themselves and the forces of recuperation may be about to operate."

Some Discouraging

"The obvious facts of business are still discouraging and what little there is in the way of tangible evidence to warrant optimism is largely negative. There are fewer bank closings and smaller declines in bank deposits. Bond prices have ceased to decline and in some instances are better, indicating a faint revival of investment hope. The raids on the dollar abroad have ceased, which would seem to indicate that Europe's pessimism regarding American investments has diminished. The near adjournment of congress without radical or destructive legislation and the operation of the tax law, which will at least partly balance the budget, restore some confidence. Per-

Raskob Calls First Session At 12:47 P. M.

ROOSEVELTES TEMPORARILY TAKE CHARGE OF TEMPORARY ORGANIZATION

CHICAGO, (UP)—Governor Roosevelt today telegraphed his supporters at the Democratic national convention to cease their efforts to abrogate the two-thirds convention rule.

CHICAGO, (UP)—True to the promise of months of tumultuous preparation, the Democratic party opened its national convention Monday, keyed high with partisan enthusiasm and torn by internal strife over Roosevelt's bid for the presidency.

National Chairman John J. Raskob called the first session to order at 12:47, day light saving time.

Temporarily in the saddle, the Rooseveltites took complete charge of the temporary organization, being unopposed on every convention committee. However, some concern was caused by pledged southern delegations against abrogation of the two-thirds rule. Some members of the Roosevelt board of strategy were seriously considering abandoning the fight to scrap the precedent.

It was a cheering, soothing traditional convention that nevertheless almost started parading and demonstrating before it came into official being.

Continuous ovations were registered as McAdoo, Davis, Ritchie, Murray and others came on the floor and platform.

Senator Barkley, Kentucky, received a special ovation when he appeared on the flag draped platform to deliver the keynote address, the high peak of a largely cut and dried program of first day preliminaries.

The real work begins late Monday when committee meet to hear credentials, write a platform, and consider the embattled subject of a two-thirds nominating rule.

CHAPTER XXVI

Cherry was on her feet now. The eager hope that had shone in her eyes vanished as quickly as it had appeared.

Her father remained in the doorway. Not so much as a muscle seemed to change in that relentless face.

"Dr. Knowles?" Cherry began. "He's in the living room. We're to go there."

They went down the stairs. Cherry just a little ahead. She did not look at her father again. Through the doorway of the living room she saw the doctor standing before the fireplace.

There was a great bowl of roses on the table at the right. Cherry's mother had always kept flowers in that bowl, cutting and arranging them herself each morning. There was the basket where her mother kept the bit of sewing she liked to have handy for the hours before dinner. Nothing was changed and yet the whole room seemed empty now.

Cherry rushed forward. "Oh, Dr. Knowles, tell me!" she cried. "I can't bear this waiting. I can't bear it! I've got to know—"

Dr. Knowles put an arm about the girl's shoulders. "There, there!" he said soothingly. "You promised me you'd be brave and have control of yourself. We're not discouraged. Not in the least. We're making the biggest fight we know how. You must help us!"

He had known Cherry almost since babyhood, had seen her through the attack of chickenpox which, at 5, was her first illness. The girl buried her face in his shoulder. A moment later when she looked up she was dry-eyed.

Walter Dixon's deep voice broke in. He said crisply, "How is she doctor? Has there been any change?"

The doctor nodded. "Mrs. Dixon has been resting," he said, "and rest is what she needs above all else. She slept for almost two hours this afternoon. She's awake now but we're hoping she'll drop off again before long."

He turned to Cherry. "Will you promise," he said firmly, "that if I let you see your mother for a few moments you won't become hysterical? Will you promise to go in quietly and say just a word or two and then leave?"

"Oh yes, doctor—I promise."

"Well, then," Dr. Knowles considered, "I think it might be a good idea. Nothing must happen that could disturb her. You understand that? If she should suddenly become aroused—worried—any slight emotional disturbance just now would be dangerous. On the other hand I think she'd be pleased to know you're here. Well?"

"I'll go exactly as you say, doctor," Cherry said earnestly. "I'll be brave!"

The doctor looked across at the other man. "I think you'd better come too, Walter," he said quietly.

The three mounted the stairs and walked down the hall to Mrs. Dixon's room. A nurse—not the one Cherry had seen before—opened the door in answer to the doctor's light knock.

"She's awake," the nurse whispered and stepped back for them to enter.

A single lamp, heavily shaded, gave the only light in the room. The shades at the windows had been drawn and the furniture showed only as dark outlines casting black shadows. Against the Dixon's arm tightened about his daughter. "There's no use saying such things," he told her heavily. "Or thinking them. We've all made mistakes."

"I can't help it!" Cherry protested. "Oh, if anything should happen—"

"Knowles says she has a chance. It all depends on these next few days."

The girl did not answer. Her sobbing continued less violently. Dixon patted her shoulders. It was as near a caress as Cherry could remember having received from her father.

"I think you'd better spend the night here," he told her. "The nurse will let us know if there's any change. Now, Cherry, you must pull yourself together—"

She raised her head and the tremulous lips made an effort at steadiness. For an instant Cherry's eyes met her father's. Neither spoke but in that instant each understood the other.

Dixon went downstairs and Cherry returned to her bedroom. She saw that Sarah had laid out a dainty nightgown and dressing robe. The light from the dressing table fell on rose satin cushions, throwing them into dazzling brilliancy. There was a soft breeze stirring the curtain gently.

The girl paused. Was it real or all some horrible nightmare? Here she was in her own room. Had she ever been away? Could it be true that her mother lay in that bed in a room down the hall as though undecided between life and death?

Cherry was swept by an impulse she had not known since childhood. She crossed the room, knelt at the side of the bed and pressing the palms of her two hands together, began to pray.

When Sarah entered 10 minutes later the girl was standing before the open window. Sarah carried a tray.

"You must eat something," she urged soothingly. "You know you can't make yourself sick."

"I don't want to eat," Cherry said wearily.

However she sat down in the big chair before which Sarah had drawn a small table and set down the tray. There was hot broth, a salad and tea. The food was appetizing and Cherry ate more than she had expected to. Presently she pushed the tray away.

"I'll have to telephone," she said. "I'm going to stay here tonight."

She called the number of the apartment and after a time Dan answered.

First Experiments In Agriculture Were Held On Spur Ranch

AUSTIN—The Spur Ranch, located in Garza, Kent, Crosby and Dickens counties, was the forerunner of the state agricultural experiment stations, now an established, authoritative agency for obtaining and disseminating new and scientific methods of farming, according to W. C. Holden, professor of history at Texas Technological College, who points out that experimental agriculture was carried on in a scientific manner on this ranch nearly fifty years ago. He has contributed an article to the current issue of the Southwestern Social Science Quarterly, published by the social science department of the University of Texas, in which he traces the development of this project.

A patent has been issued to a nation picture actor for a motor truck that is invented to carry six horses in separate stalls, to which entrance is provided by slides that lower to the ground.

Rally For Shaver Scheduled July 9

AUSTIN—Campaign leaders for State Supt. C. N. Shaver, candidate for election to the office to which Gov. Ross S. Sterling recently appointed him, are planning a statewide rally here July 9, when his candidacy will be placed before many of the school superintendents, principals and teachers of the state, and to his friends and supporters generally.

A dutch-treat luncheon will be held at the university cafeteria the night of July 9, at which Mr. Shaver has been invited to speak. This meeting will provide an opportunity for the hundreds of school people attending university summer school, and school visitors from many Central Texas communities, to hear Mr. Shaver. Austin citizens and people from the entire section have been asked to take part in the meeting.

The meeting here was planned to facilitate Mr. Shaver's meeting and addressing many of the several thousand school people attending the university summer session, and to provide a big rally of his Texas supporters.

The Travis county Shaver club was recently organized, with J. Murray Ramsey its president; Mrs. W. T. Decherd, first vice president; I. W. Popham, Manor, second vice president, and W. L. Darnell, secretary.

SUNDAY'S STORM INTERRUPTS NIGHT CHURCH SERVICES
The Sunday night's storm made church services difficult. It forced the First Methodists to break up after Dr. Spann had preached for about 15 minutes. Dr. Spann says, however, that the services will continue on the lawn and that seating arrangements will be made to accommodate more people. He is convinced that there will not be a rain every Sunday evening. At the First Baptist church Mr. Day was forced to baptize the last of the three candidates in the dark. The storm drove home most of the

New System Of Taxes Urged By Tom F. Hunter

A new tax system to replace the old, broken-down system that now exists in Texas, a system that will take some 70 per cent of the taxes off of real estate; the charge that the utility companies are taking some 70 millions of dollars annually out of Texas and sending it to the East, never to return; the assertion that utility rates can and must be reduced; the expressed opposition to a state-wide road bond issue, stating that one cent of the present gasoline tax can and must be used to retire the road bonds of the counties of Texas—these are some of the things advocated by Tom F. Hunter of Wichita Falls, democratic candidate for Governor of Texas who speaks here Friday, July 1, at 8:30 o'clock, at the court house, furthering his candidacy.

Mr. Hunter also expresses his views on poll tax charges, stating that the prices must be reduced to a nominal sum that will suffice for registration purposes. He assaults the chain store organizations and Majors; Misses Thelma Mason, Charlene Fallon, Ruth Bug; Messrs. Joe and B. W. Earnest, Kenneth Fallon, Dub Coats, Ray Alexander; and Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Heath.

declares that they must be curbed by a greater and more efficient tax and a law to prohibit foreign corporations from owning stock in domestic corporations. Mr. Hunter says that it should be made a penal offense for any official of Texas, drawing money from the state to receive pay from a corporation. These are only a few of the things advocated by Mr. Hunter and it is desired that a large crowd of citizens of this section be on hand to hear him when he speaks at Big Spring.

Why not a Superiority Complex

WE HAVE all heard much about "inferiority complex." Perhaps that is what business is suffering from — too much emphasis on the negative side of the picture. Why not emphasize the other side for a change? Why not have a superiority complex? A true superiority complex is not snobbish or high-brow. It is expressed in a wholesome and honest pride, a cheerful attitude, a confident outlook.

You will agree that cheerful surroundings have a great influence on your work—in fact, on your whole life. The idea can easily, and with real benefit, be extended to each one's everyday life — right now. Buy the things you need—things which you may have been doing without—and see how much it improves your self-confidence. Clean up, paint up, and dress up—all around.

Today's advertising is full of attractive buying opportunities. And you can depend upon the value of any well advertised product.

Make advertising the guide in all your purchasing, and your dollars will go farther and bring you more real, lasting satisfaction.

BUSINESS

has this period might be characterized as one that may mark the beginning of the flight from fear.
"As a survey is made of the last six months, the importance of this changing attitude may be realized. Many bogies that public apprehension created have been disposed of in that period. There was the fear that this country would be forced off the gold standard and was facing complete economic catastrophe. Foreign security selling, and the export of gold followed persistently; but with the final export of foreign balances, that spectre disappears. Fear of deflationary banking legislation again possessed the public mind, but congress will apparently adjourn without such legislation. Fear that we might not balance our national budget again obsessed us, but the new revenue law and attendant economies give assurance of our purpose to preserve the credit standing of the nation beyond question.

Many Fears Dispelled
"Many minor fears disturbed the situation and obsessed the minds of men at intervals, such as fear of prohibitive tax on security transactions, the possible passage of the soldiers' bonus legislation and the various plans for inflation. None of these fears has been realized and with their disappearance one by one the atmosphere has been cleared to a considerable extent. The presidential election still looms as a disturbing factor, largely imaginary, for its actual economic influence will be of little importance.

"The formation, early this month, of a $100,000,000 corporation to acquire sound securities at present low prices for indefinite holding by a number of large banks is expected to have a favorable effect on security markets. The organization of the committee of twelve bankers and industrialists at New York last month to find ways of giving effectiveness to the expansion of federal reserve credit has been followed by the formation of similar committees in several other Federal Reserve districts, including Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond and Atlanta. The withdrawal of the last remaining short term balance of the Bank of France from this market has practically removed any danger of further large drains on the American gold stock in the early future. The report of the League of Nations committee on gold, openly advocating the earliest possible return to the gold standard throughout the world, has improved the outlook for international currency stabilization.

"Until public confidence has been further restored and nervousness further reduced, fluctuating markets are inevitable, but with the progressive banishment of bogies; quiet but impressive strength should follow. Such a movement would be greatly stimulated if the European conference at Lausanne and Geneva should result in any approach to agreement and concord.

Effort to Balance Budget
"Despite the passage of the revenue law, it is not yet certain that a balanced budget for the coming fiscal year will actually be achieved, even without allowance for the probable passage of the $500,000,000 unemployment relief bill. Important economies are needed to close the gap between expenditures and revenues, as now estimated; and Congress has not yet agreed on how all of these economies shall be effected. Moreover, the estimates themselves are subject to wide margins of error.

"Aside from these uncertainties, there are two specific ways in which the balance may be upset. On the revenue side, the budget contemplates the resumption of war-debt payments at the close of the moratorium period on June 30. It is very questionable whether such payments will be made. With regard to expenditures, it is possible that an absence of any substantial increase in employment during the summer and autumn may oblige the Federal government to adopt relief measures on a scale far beyond anything that has yet been seriously considered. This is a question that will not arise until Congress reconvenes next December; but as long as unemployment remains at its present low level the uncertainty will continue to be a factor of major importance in the outlook for governmental finance. It is by no means impossible that by next winter a need for further tax increases may have become clearly apparent. By that time, the burdensomeness of the rates imposed by the new law will have been impressed on taxpayers throughout the country; and it is not unlikely that, rather than submit to unnecessary further increases in tax rates, public opinion will force much more drastic steps than have yet been taken to reduce public expenditures."

"Such a nation, such a people need only the glimmer of a new hope, the inspiration of a new goal, the stimulus of a new battle-cry, and the marching orders of a new commander.

"That hope, that goal, that battle-cry, that commander we shall present to them ere we shall adjourn this convention. He will be the choice no less of farmers than of city dwellers. When chosen to the high station whereunto we shall nominate him, we pledge his dediinstrument declares that 'this Constitution and the laws made in pursuance thereof shall be the supreme law of the land.' But it cannot be the supreme law of the land if it can be abrogated by the people of a part of the land while remaining in force over the rest of them. Such a conception destroys the very nature and structure of the Constitution, for if it can be made thus to qualify one of its provisions it may be made to qualify all of them. This would be the end of the Constitution itself.

Be Clear
"Under these circumstances this convention owes it to the people of the nation to make its declaration upon this subject clear, understandable and unequivocal. There is no reason why the people should be deceived or deluded. There is no reason why a political declaration should look in every direction and see nothing.

"In order, therefore, to obtain the present will of the American people on this subject of universal controversy, this convention should in the platform here to be adopted recommend the passage by Congress of a Resolution repealing the Eighteenth Amendment and its submission to the people of the states through conventions whose delegates shall be chosen upon this issue alone.

Be Bold
"If the people are to pass again upon this question, let them pass upon it in such bold, naked and unequivocal terms as to make their decision intelligent and certain. If their verdict shall be in favor of retaining the Eighteenth Amendment in the Constitution, let every true citizen of the nation accept the decision and abide by it in letter and in spirit.

"If the verdict shall be for the repeal of the Amendment then let every branch of the national government exercise all the powers they possess to protect the states in the observance and enforcement of the laws which they shall enact to control, regulate or prohibit the traffic in intoxicating liquors."

The temporary chairman went back to 1920 and reviewed the intervening years of Republican leadership.

The Harding administration he described as "the darkest chapter of public betrayal in the history of this or any nation."

On President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon he heaped the blame for "an orgy of speculation and inflation that had no foundation in real values."

Stocks Manipulated
"Stocks were manipulated, prices pyramided, then split up, then distributed among innocent people under the opiate of fabulous financial hopes built up by the most gigantic campaign of official belly-aching ever witnessed in the annals of American history," he exclaimed.

Under President Coolidge, Barkley said, expenses of the national government increased "more than $200,000,000." He gave credit to the present Democratic House for reducing President Hoover's requests for appropriations "by more than $100,000,000."

He promised that the Democrats would "abolish every useless office, every unnecessary bureau and commission which has grown by what it fed on until the total has become an insufferable weight upon all the activities and resources of the American people."

"They will never be abolished by those who now operate them," he said. "A new Hercules must clean out these Augean stables."

In dealing with the tariff, Barkley proposed that the Democrats inaugurate friendly international trade conferences with a view to reopening normal trade channels in the world and make the tariff commission a fact finding body for Congress.

For agriculture's relief, he advocated the enactment of laws setting up co-operative agencies through which the farmer may work out his own problems over a period of years, taking the government out of the "dubious adventure of speculation" in farm products, and installation at the head of the Department of Agriculture a Secretary who has "some knowledge of the subject and some sympathy for those who struggle with it."

For strengthening the banking structure, he proposed giving consideration to revision of the federal reserve act to insure more direct contact with commercial banks and borrowers.

Speaking of unemployment, he ridiculed "fine spun distinctions between local and national responsibility and deplored 'sophomoric dispute over the identity of first aid' while the nation's 'defenders' and their dependents suffer from want or neglect."

Society, he said, must find a way by which members displaced by invention and advances may sustain themselves and their families in comfort and self respect.

He advocated the consideration of the five day week or the six hour day as a possible solution of employment problems growing out of the country's industrial advances.

HOME TOWN

der the existing plan of controlling the liquor traffic is it our considered opinion that some type of change is essential to the preservation of the nation and its fundamental institutions and to the moral welfare of her every citizen and of generations yet to be born.

When we express that opinion we express a change of opinion. When the 18th amendment was adopted we rejected. Through years we turned deaf ears to arguments against it. "Make 'em obey," we'd argue. We can honestly say that we have arrived at our present opinion unwillingly, simply because the evidence has grown and pyramided until we can not sincerely hide it long from ourselves.

And, as to resubmission of prohibition to the states; it is obvious a great portion of the people wish re-submission. That being true we can not oppose re-submission without ignoring fundamental principles laid down in the constitution. The people have a right to express themselves at the polls on any public question.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

Just another day or so and Big Spring will be thrown into an athletic turmoil. Tennis, golf, horse racing, terrapin derby, motorcycle polo and races, baseball—and still no sign of an increase in a certain sports writer's pay.

Most of the plans for the various forms of competition have already been arranged. Lois Madison, a chap from Foran whose name might have been Shorty Walden and indeed we think it was, and yours truly scattered ten baseball nines in a sixteen bracket Saturday night and ended up with having the following games booked for the first day, June 30th:

Hart Wells vs Foran.
Fairview vs Vealmore.
Big Spring vs Ackery.

The time for the games, they will not of course be played simultaneously, has yet to be set but we can guess very near to the exact hour. The Fairview-Vealmore contest will lead the ticket, as they're saying in the political world now, at about ten-thirty a. m. Then comes the Big Springs-Ackery set, with the umpire due to announce "play ball" at around 2:30 that afternoon. The Foran-Hart Wells contest will follow immediately after.

Our personal nomination is that Lois Madison and his slugging crew will cop the title. You're welcome.

Politics may keep Charles Cook the good-looking captain of the Wichita Falls tennis team, from being here for the Carnival of Values. "Everybody and his dog," he writes, adding (mostly dogs) "know whether I can make it or not. But enter a team for me."

Miss Mona Lee Spencer, on the other hand, is quite positive she will be here. The Breckenridge girl writes, "It may be a bit unconventional but I've played men all of my life and enjoy competing against them much more than women. I think men are twice as sportsmanlike and courteous."

You know she may get somewhere in this West Texas tournament after all.

Our attention is called by the editor of the Colorado Record to the inaccuracy of the Sand Belt standings published in this newspaper sometime last week. Our thanks to Mr. Cooper, and at present they rank like this: Lamesa 171, Colorado 160, Sweetwater 153, Big Spring 151, Texon 131, Midland 120, Snyder 106, Odessa 64.

Big Spring will play Odessa Sunday in the next Sand Belt activities. Goody, goody! Lamesa meets Colorado and Sweetwater plays Texon. If "rank Rose, E. C. Nix and Co. are not checked by the Mitchell county clan over the weekend it seems quite probable that they will go through the year without losing a match.

Two questions answered last week:

- Q. Where is Forest Hills, the scene of the tennis matches?
A. In Long Island, New York.
- Q. Where was Gene Tunney born?
A. The Bronx section of New York.

There's a lot to it!

THE ARTIST blends colors. The cigarette maker blends tobaccos. The artist must use just the right amount of each color to get a pleasing effect. And the cigarette blender must use just the right amount of the right kinds of tobacco to get a better and more pleasing taste. Both must know how!

The right BLEND... the right BALANCE

A "balanced" blend... the right Domestic and Turkish tobaccos in the right amounts... blended in a different way... "welded" together.
That's the Chesterfield Cross-Blend... an important reason why Chesterfields are milder and taste better.
It isn't just taking the tobaccos and mixing them hit-or-miss.

The Chesterfield Cross-Blend makes one type or one variety of tobacco partake of the qualities of another. It "welds" together all that is best in each variety.
It's a balanced blend in the truest sense... giving you what really amounts to a new kind of tobacco... Chesterfield tobacco... milder, more fragrant, better-tasting.

that's why Chesterfields TASTE BETTER
