LOCAL AMUSEMENTS FOR COMING WEEK

Sari Maritza Leads Cast Of "Forgotten Commandments"

Disregard Of Decalogue Is Cause Of Woe

Two Happy, Innocent Lovers Caught In Maelstrom Of Mad World

Suffering brought on under new commandments practiced with regard for the Ten Commandments is depicted in the colorful, startling picture, "Forgotten Commandments," opening today at the R & R Ritz for a two-day engagement.

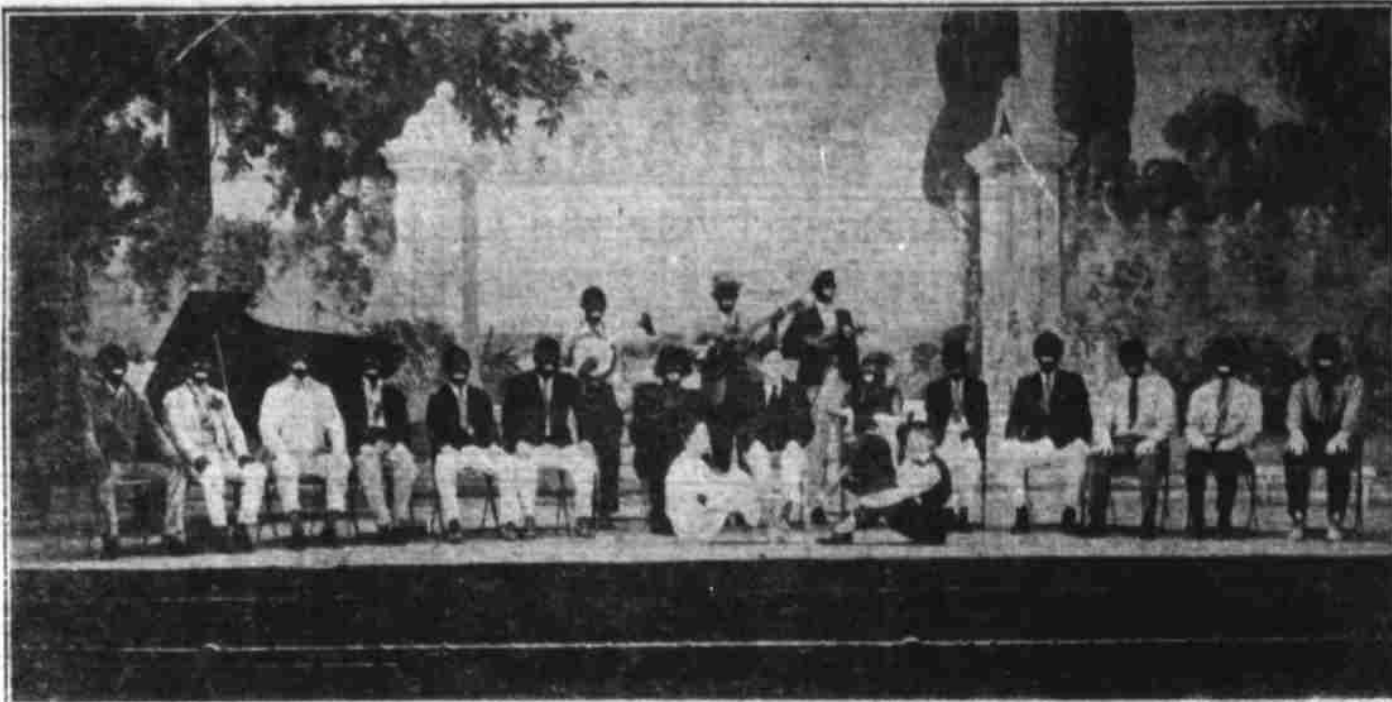

These new commandments shatter love itself, you learn by seeing this picture.

Margaret Churchill, the same sweet, admirable girl she has been in many beautiful roles, is one of the pair of innocent lovers caught in the mad rush of a world gone mad with new ideals—ideals you sort of decide are false before the picture is finished.

Sari Maritza, with all her seductive charm and beauty, has a hand in all this madness. Gene Raymond and Irving Pichel are the other leading members of the cast. "Forgotten Commandments" is glorified by spectacular episodes from Cecil B. DeMille's epic, "The Ten Commandments."

They'll Stage Minstrel Show For Benefit Of Pythian Home

Pictures above is the cast of the Knights of Pythias show to be presented at high school auditorium here Friday evening at 8 o'clock under auspices of the local K. of P. lodge for benefit of the Pythian Home, for old people, at Weatherford. The cast includes a

D. Taggart as Wigwag; Wiley Caffey as Egghed; E. H. Moore as Buzzsaw; George Oscar Parker as Dewdrop; T. C. North, interlocutor; Mrs. Holmes Sullivan as Shoutin'; Mamie Smith; M. L. Grimes as Crampuff; Benton Collins as Bones; Robert Keller as

Joe E. Brown In 'Tenderfoot' Tuesday & Wednesday Play On Great Bill At R & R Ritz

Joe E. Brown, affectionately regarded as the current king of comedians, follows up his "Fireman, Save My Child," a First National picture coming to the Ritz Theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday.

In his latest, wide-mouthed Joe portrays a Texas rancher who comes to New York with the last of his money, which he intends to invest profitably so he can lift the mortgage on his ranch. Armed with his money and his six-shooters, Joe becomes involved with a theatrical producer, falls in love, buys a show which is a failure, miraculously and unwittingly turns the show into a howling success, gets mixed up with lawyers and ladies, eventually overcoming all obstacles, lifting the mortgage and winning the gal.

The script of Brown's latest film funning story was written by Arthur Caesar, Monty Banks and Earl Baldwin, generally regarded as Hollywood's best concocters of comedy. Monty Banks will be remembered as a former comedian on stage and screen. The direction is by Ray Enright, co-author of the previous Brown success, "Fireman, Save My Child."

In "The Tenderfoot," Joe is supported by an especially selected cast, with Ginger Rogers in the feminine lead. Lew Cody and Robert Greig appear as theatrical producers. Vivian Oakland is seen as a temperamental star. Others in the exception a large cast are Wilfred Lucas, Spencer Charters, Ralph Ince, Mae Madison, Marian Byron, Harry Seymour, Jill Dennett and Alan Lane.

The producers have given "The Tenderfoot" a more elaborate setting than any previous Joe E. Brown picture, with the result that the combination of story, cast, direction and settings bring to the screen what has been hailed by metropolitan critics as one of the funniest films of all time, bringing new laurels to Brown's successful record of hit after hit.

Tom Tyler At Queen Today

"Two-Fisted Justice" Title Of Newest Western Success

Tom Tyler, the sensational Monogram Western star will ride into the hearts of Queen Theatre audiences today, Monday and Tuesday in "Two-Fisted Justice," one of the most thrilling and dramatic stories of the Old West ever produced.

From its opening scenes wherein Abraham Lincoln presents Tyler with his commission to preserve law and order on the frontier during the Civil War days to its gripping denouement wherein Tyler engages in a death struggle with Bill Walling, cast as a leader of a terror gang, the picture is replete with action and thrill from start to finish.

Just a few of its many gripping scenes are the attack of a covered wagon by Indians and their subsequent routing by Tom Tyler, the holdup of the stage and a thrilling jump from a horse's back to the driver's seat, a sensational jump from the balcony on to the back of a horse, high-speed pony express

Maurice Chevalier Stars In Friday-Saturday Program At Ritz In 'One Hour With You'

Making songs and musical score rise out of the action and belong to the story being told is the basis of the new technique of screen music inaugurated by "The Smiling Lieutenant," and being followed today in Maurice Chevalier's new picture.

This is the explanation given by Oscar Straus, composer of "The Chocolate Soldier." Straus wrote the music for Maurice Chevalier's "The Smiling Lieutenant" and is the composer of the musical score for that star's new Paramount production, "One Hour With You."

"There is little secret in the method employed so successfully in 'The Smiling Lieutenant,'" Straus says. "It is merely a matter of judicious placing and construction of these songs."

"The easy lazy way would be to place musical numbers at certain intervals. Then, one merely would have to think of a tune and force it in. This would merely interrupt the story, thus hurting the plot and annoying the audience."

"So, our method is to make the songs natural and an integral part of our story. Audiences come to see a play. Music should help the audience to enjoy the play. Music and action must flow together. Music should fit the situation and conversation."

"This is always true of successful operas or operettas. If audiences merely want to hear music they go to concerts. The best 'hit' songs ever written in operas were to accentuate action. One of my most successful songs, 'My Hero' in 'The Chocolate Soldier,' was written to express a young girl's feelings. We had no idea it was a hit. But, because it expressed the feeling the audience had with the heroine, it became a 'hit' song."

The songs Maurice Chevalier sings in his recent pictures all fit into the structure of the play just as a cut-out section fits into a picture puzzle. His song "Louise" in "Innocents of Paris," aptly illustrates the point in question, as does also the one so effectively sung by Claudette Colbert and Miriam Hopkins in "The Smiling Lieutenant," "Per Up Your Lingette."

This structural synchronization of songs with the story of the play has been carefully observed in Chevalier's new picture, "One Hour With You," which comes to the Ritz theatre Friday and Saturday. In this picture Jeanette MacDonald again plays the leading feminine role, as she did in "The Love Parade."

Blue heron prefer snakes and mice to fish diet.

Accidental Shots Seen In Western

'South Of Santa Fe' To Be Shown At Queen Two Days

Some of the best scenes in western pictures are taken quite by accident, and these are the shots that usually thrill the heart of the observer into a breath-taking flutter.

Whenever forty or fifty men are riding break-neck speed over broken and rough ground, sooner or later one or more of them will suffer an accident. Horses trip, stumble into deep holes—and a highly spectacular fall results.

Two of these thrilling tumbles are shown in the current Bob Steele western, "South of Santa Fe" which will be on the bill at the Queen theatre Friday and Saturday and fortunately the camera was focused on the spot where the accidents happened. Scenes impossible to duplicate were secured and those were made a part of the picture.

In the first of these, Bob Steele, popular western star, is seen riding through thick brush. His horse stepped into a deep rut, throwing himself and rider in a spectacular and thrilling fall. In the other, a trailing vine precipitated the spill in which Eddie Dunn and his horse were the participants.

Miss Day Weds Continental Co. Engineer

Rites Performed In Fort Worth Saturday By Dr. White

Miss Corine Lillian Day and Elton V. McCollum were married in Fort Worth Saturday in the home of Dr. W. R. White, who officiated with a beautiful ring ceremony.

The young couple are spending a short honeymoon in San Antonio.

The bride was attractively gowned in traveling suit of two tones of blue with blue accessories.

She is the youngest daughter of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Day of this city. She came here with her parents about 18 months ago when her father accepted the pastorate of the First Baptist Church.

She has been very popular socially and has taken a great interest in church work and has also substituted in the public schools. She is a graduate of Simmons University and did her high school at San Marcos Baptist Academy.

The groom is the chief-of-party for the Continental Oil Company's Seismograph crew which has been located in Big Spring for the past three months. His home was originally in Helena, Okla., and more recently in Ponca City, where his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. McCollum now live.

He obtained his M. A. degree in physics from the University of Oklahoma. He has been connected with the Continental Oil Company for the past six years.

When Mr. and Mrs. McCollum return they will live in the John Hodges home on south Runnels street.

Two New York writers, Allen Rivkin and P. J. Wolfson, who wrote "Bodies Are Dust," wrote this story and a New York director, Hobart Henley put it on the screen.

The absorbing story is that of a single night's happenings in a crowded supper club, which involve a disillusioned young millionaire, seeking forgetfulness. A sympathetic chorus girl, knowing his story, attempts to comfort him and in so doing discovers that love is the cure. However, at this point, both become enmeshed in a series of exciting situations resulting from the underworld activities of the proprietor and his scheming mate. Things move fast, bringing the lovers to what appears to be desperate impasse, and here comes the surprise which is said to make "Night World" one of the most thrilling pictures displayed for a long time in Big Spring.

Law Ayres, the accomplished screen writer who has won well merited fame, is starred in "Night World," with Mae Clarke in the leading feminine role of the night club entertainer. Boris Karloff, of "Frankenstein," is seen in an important part and Dorothy Peterson, Clarence Muse, Bert Roach, Hedda Hopper, Florence Lake, and other film favorites round out the large cast.

"Night World" contains some spectacular chorus effects, created by the celebrated Busby Berkeley, especially for this production, Berkeley's picked chorus of the twelve most ravishing beauties in Hollywood dances to the strains of Hal Grayson's Recording Orchestra in the glittering night club scenes.

TO MIDLAND Mr. Bok, who has been connected with the Crawford Hotel Beauty Shoppe is leaving today to make his home in Midland. Mrs. Ina Smith, formerly of the Permanent Wave Shop will take the place at the Crawford, vacated by Dr. Bok.

YOUR CHOICE... Mid-continent's oldest crude or Pennsylvania's costliest crude...

SOME motorists prefer a rich, paraffin base Mid-continent motor oil—others demand the purest Pennsylvania. Sinclair offers you the finest of both. Sinclair Opaline Motor Oil is blended from the oldest Mid-continent crudes, mellowed and filtered for an average of more than eighty million years, according to geological estimates. Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oil is refined 100% from Bradford-Allegany crude of the Pennsylvania field—Pennsylvania's costliest crude. Bradford-Allegany crude was formed in the Devonian Age—that wonderful age in earth's history when conditions of heat and pressure were most perfect for the forming of crude oil—so perfect that today, after a hundred million years of mellowing and filtering, Bradford-Allegany crude commands the highest price of all Pennsylvania grade crude oils! In process of manufacture, Sinclair Opaline and Sinclair Pennsylvania are not only de-waxed—they are also freed from heavy, sluggish petroleum jelly at as low as 60° F. below zero. Sinclair Opaline and Sinclair Pennsylvania are the finest oils of their respective classes. Note how these oils stand up in hard, fast driving. Note, especially, at draining time how little oil has been used up—positive, visible proof of protection for the last mile as well as the first.

Spanish In The Grades

LANGUAGE IS the great bond that binds people as well as men together. Blood is something—race is something, but they are insignificant in their influence upon people who compared to language.

Language offers understanding. Understanding provides peace. Good will, friendship.

On this great Western Hemisphere there are but two real languages spoken by the 200 million people who inhabit this side of the globe. No other part in the world is in such an ideal situation.

Very few of those of us who call the English language our mother tongue, are able to speak or read Spanish. Even in Texas with its far-flung border separating us from the greatest of all Latin-American Republics, there is but an infinitesimal number who can speak even a mattering of Spanish.

It does not take much thought to perceive that the next major business development will take place in Latin-America. We should be prepared to take advantage of our peculiar situation in relation to this business.

This hemisphere is dedicated to the republican form of government—it is unbound by tradition—by strife—by history. All American republics have much in common.

THE LAST CHAPTER IN THE HISTORY OF THE NOBLE REDSKIN—CHIEF RAIN-IN-A-BEAR'S-EAR SCOUTING FOR A FOURTH

Our business ties are numerous. We are the largest customer for South and Central American products and they are one of our great customers. Business must be reciprocal. It can only be carried on in the final analysis in the utilization of trade balances. A nation can only buy where it can sell.

Latin-American business is going to go to those countries that understand best. Only through language can this understanding be perfected. The automobile is doing a lot to make it possible for the average American to take a vacation in beautiful Mexico. Already we have a hard surface road as far into Mexico as Monterey. Chihuahua is building a road toward El Paso. Highway 67 which begins at Washington City and comes down through Texas to Presidio is going to be paved to Mexico City.

This traffic meaning millions of dollars worth of American money is going into Mexico and there purchasing Mexican goods and Mexican accommodations. It is going to open up great opportunity for American as well as Mexican business.

The people of Mexico will become accustomed to our styles in clothes—to our taste—to our motor cars—to our tires—and to a certain extent our tourists will create in the minds of the Mexican people a demand for the manufactured articles of the United States. Our tourists will advertise United States business by their presence in Mexico.

The same will be true for Mexico. Our travelers will bring back not only stories of the wonders of the land—but a knowledge and appreciation of the people of Mexico and their country.

All of this means commerce. If Texas is to capitalize upon it as it should—our children should be able to speak the language of Latin-America. The place to learn a language is in the elementary grades. If the schools of Europe can require their students to have a speaking knowledge of at least three languages—we in Texas should see to it that our children know at least two.

It will be impossible to make this compulsory in all schools for a number of years. However, in any school district that has as many as 500 students, it should be accomplished at little additional cost and eventually at no additional cost.

Opossum is America's only native pouched animal.

The French Elections

Any interpretation of the French elections must at this distance be largely guess work. What appears to have happened is that the combination of factions which have been governing France are defeated while no new combination is clearly in sight. There is some reason to think that France emerges from her elections without having spoken decisively enough to insure herself a strong and stable government.

The names of the French parties are very confusing to any foreigner and for purposes of general discussion it is better to ignore them. Otherwise, it is necessary to remind ourselves constantly that Mr. Herriot's party, now the largest in the chamber, which calls itself Radical Socialist, is in the American sense neither radical nor socialist, that M. Blum's party, the United Socialists, represent a doctrine somewhere between the British Labor party's and let us say, Senator La Follette's and that M. Tardieu's party, the Left Republicans, are in fact highly conservative though they sit in the center.

For a board understanding of the position it is simpler to reduce the matter to personalities and to speak of the followers of Tardieu, Herriot and Blum.

The chamber which has just been elected is the fourth since the war. The first which sat from 1919 to 1924, was dominated by those who have recently been supporting M. Tardieu, that is to say, by the conservatives. The second chamber sat from 1924 to 1928. It had a majority composed of those who now follow M. Herriot and M. Blum. But owing to the inability of these two groups to co-operate and deal with the financial crisis, it was the conservatives, led by M. Poincare, who actually governed most of the time. The third Chamber sat from 1928 to 1932. It was dominated by a small majority of the conservatives. The fourth chamber, which has just been elected, is not unlike the second, which sat from 1924 to 1928. There is theoretically a fairly good majority composed of the followers of M. Herriot and M. Blum.

But neither of these men has anything like a majority of his own. Now in the 1924-1928 chamber, M. Blum's socialists supported M. Herriot's government but refused to participate in it. As a result that government could not govern. During the recent campaign M. Herriot declared that he would not again make such an arrangement. He declared also that he would not make a combination with M. Tardieu. Therefore, as matters stand, the formation of a government would appear to depend upon some sort of arrangement between two out of the three principal factions.

More specifically, it would seem that the matter must be decided in one of two ways: either M. Blum must agree to join, not merely to support, a Herriot ministry, or M.

through which Britain passed last summer, is now beginning for them. Their problem, as posed by the outcome of the elections, would appear to be very much like the problem in Washington today: how to form a governing power out of discordant factions and how to obtain concerted, decisive national action which can deal with the financial and economic crisis.

In attempting to forecast the prospects of an international understanding this summer, it is necessary to face the fact that among the five principal western powers only two have governments which are free to take decisive action. They are the British and the Italian. In the other three nations, in Germany, France and the United States, there is at present no governing power which is not the prisoner of its own opposition. In this fundamental respect the positions of Dr. Brüning, M. Herriot, and Mr. Hoover are alike. All three are likely to be in office this summer but none of them has much power.

It takes a strong government to be moderate and positive. A weak government is compelled to be ir-reconcilable and to temporize. Therefore, while hoping for the best and striving for it, it is the part of prudence to look for no decisive and invigorating conclusions this summer in the realm of debts, reparations and armaments. There is no use becoming depressed and disappointed over an outcome which is now so probable.

Then, if by some turn of fortune, or by the display of some kind of inspired leadership working with an awakened public opinion, the nations should at Lausanne and Geneva really make progress, it will be so much to the good. But no one should count on it. The task before us is to do the things we can and must do to set our own affairs in order, to reconstruct our public finances, to continue the readjustment of costs in industry, to provide relief for the unemployed and to proceed resolutely with the measures now under way to counteract the deflation of credit. These things have to be done regardless of the prospect in international relations. They will contribute to the solution of the crisis in America whatever is done at Lausanne and Geneva. They would have to be carried through even if the prospects at Lausanne and Geneva were brilliant.

But they would be much easier measures to bear and the results would be more quickly favorable if the western nations, our own most of all, were sufficiently coherent and bold to move decisively for an international settlement.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Prosser, Mrs. Jessie Irma Prosser and daughter, Iris Irma, all of Roscoe, are spending the day with Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Hamilton.

AUSTIN—His decision to open the way for all candidates to file in the primary ballot for the place he vacates means that former Gov. Pat M. Neff has sacrificed from $1500 to $1800 of income...

Plans had been made for operation of Baylor university's summer school, with Acting Pres. Allen at its head. Mr. Neff had originally intended resigning Sept. 1, the date he is likely to assume his duties at Baylor...

But when it was finally determined the state executive committee could not select his successor, he decided to resign before the ballot close June 6...

And railroad commissioners get $500 a month salary... Former Gov. Neff, confirmed in an oral statement the reports that he had intended, and possibly may still make one parting speech reviewing the railroad commission's differences of policy...

If made, it will, of course, be made before Mr. Neff takes up his duties with Baylor, but it may be after he actually has retired from the commission. However, the decision to this week give up his state duties and a long list of non-political affairs and other engagements, may prevent fulfillment of the purpose of submitting the issue between the two factions to a jury of Texas voters.

County governments, goaded by their citizens toward tax relief action, that will be effective this week, all will be called on by the Jones county commissioners' court in a questionnaire now being sent out to join in an official appeal to Gov. In many instances, this tax relief would amount to 20 to 25 cents, or equivalent to all the taxes raised for state government purposes, and a considerable margin besides.

Former Holder Of 5-Mile Air Speed Record Flies Here

Former holder of the world's speed record over a five mile course, Ira M. McConaughy, (above) who has been flying for American Airways for the past four years, has been transferred to the Dallas-El Paso line from the New Orleans-Chicago run.

McConaughy made his world's record while a pilot for the Travelair factory in Kansas City in 1928, shortly before booming connected with American Airways.

Although he has been flying out of New Orleans for the last year, McConaughy is no stranger to Texas, having flown the El Paso, Amarillo and Brownsville lines for several years previous to being transferred to New Orleans. McConaughy has been a pilot for the last ten years and has approximately 7,200 hours in the air to his credit.

come far more popular than day flying, due to the smoothness of the night air was expressed by Jesse Maxwell, local representative.

"After sunset and the resultant elimination of heat waves because of the effect of the sun on the earth, night air becomes heavier as it cools, and upward currents of air encountered during the daytime disappear," Mr. Maxwell said. "Night flying is remarkably smooth."

Both the meteorological experts of American Airways and the weather bureau, it was said, have completed a survey of night flying conditions which indicate that the southern transcontinental low altitude route will permit not only smoother flying but will make possible a faster speed between the Pacific Coast and Dallas.

Rough flying weather occasionally experienced during the day is due to alternate currents of air. American Airways employees said, currents of hot air from sun on land rising and cool air descending to lakes, forests, etc. Complete elimination of such conditions occurs at night when even temperatures prevail. In addition, it was claimed that night air is cleaner, due to the settling of dust particles.

SWEETWATER BEACON STATION IS EQUIPPED
SWEETWATER—All equipment has been installed for the government radio beacon station near the Sweetwater Municipal Airport. The only remaining work on the project, is erection of the four steel antenna towers and construction of the antennas, it was said. This station is one of the series being installed on the southern transcontinental air route. From it will be broadcast a directional radio beam guiding pilots along the course at night or in bad weather. The next stations are at Fort Worth on the east, and Wink on the west. Joseph Dockendorf, of the light-house division of the Department of Commerce, is in charge of installation of the station here.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lee BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
CHERRY DIXON, 19 and pretty, tells her mother she is going to a club meeting but instead meets DAN PHILLIPS, newspaper reporter with whom she is in love. Her wealthy parents do not know she is acquainted with Dan. Cherry goes with him to interview a bank robber's sweetheart. She blunders into underworld headquarters and a bullet strikes her arm. Dan takes her to a doctor's office, and then home. He is trying to explain what has happened when MR. DIXON appears. He is very angry and brandishes a newspaper containing Cherry's picture and an account of the shooting. Mr. Dixon orders Dan from the house.

Days pass in which Cherry has no word from Dan. Then SARAH, Cherry's maid, discovers that he has telephoned and been told the girl is out of town. Cherry steals out of the house, meets Dan and explains. Dan tells Cherry he loves her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

"I can't believe it's real, Dan. I mean—everything happening the way it has. I'm afraid I'll wake up in another minute and find it's just a dream!"

Phillips said, "And I can't believe you're really here. I can't believe a girl like you would even look at me—"

She silenced him with gentle fingers pressed to his lips. "I've told you not to say those things! I don't want to hear them."

"But it's true, Cherry. Why everything about you—your sweetness and your coming to meet me this afternoon and, well, everything—just goes to show the difference between us. Oh, I love you for it. You know that. But, Cherry, you're worlds above me. I'm Dan Phillips, reporter—the guy your father told never to enter his house! It's—well, don't you see, dear?"

"Don't I see what?"

"That if things were different I could say a lot of things I can't now? Your father's a rich man. All your life you've lived in a fine home with lots of servants. You've worn beautiful clothes and traveled and all your friends have been rich people—"

"But Dan, what difference does that make?"

"If I live to be 90," Phillips went on, deaf to the interruption, "I'll never have a fourth of the money your father has. I couldn't give you any of the things you're accustomed to, Cherry. Do you know how I think of you?"

"How?"

"As a beautiful princess who's so sweet and wonderful as she is beautiful. That's what you are! A princess!"

Cherry shrugged uncomfortably. "I don't want to be a princess," she said. "It sounds lonely. Oh, Dan, let's not talk. Let's just be happy together."

She put a small hand over Dan's larger one. The dark eyes she raised were luminous.

"All right," Dan agreed. "It's a remarkable fact but every time I look at you you're prettier. Isn't that remarkable? How do you account for it?"

"By telling you to see an oculist."

They laughed. Familiar jokes seemed suddenly the height of sparkling wit. The cab was rolling along the smooth circling drive through Jefferson park. For a time they fell silent. There was so much they should have talked about, yet all this was forgotten. How could anything in the world go wrong for Cherry again so long as Dan loved her? How could Dan Phillips be matter-of-fact with those brown eyes and provocative lips so near?

Suddenly the elysium was shattered. Phillips said abruptly:

"Look here, there isn't going to be any trouble about your coming to meet me this afternoon, is there? Do you think your family—"

She assured him everything would be all right. No one knew she had left the house. She would be back before her absence had been noticed.

"What time is it?" Cherry asked. The sun had lowered behind the tree top. Phillips turned his wrist so that the girl could see the watch dial.

"After five!" she exclaimed. "Oh, I'll have to get back. Why, I'd no idea it was so late—"

The driver headed the taxicab toward Sherwood Heights. Resolutely Cherry thrust aside misgivings that had begun to force themselves on her consciousness. There would be just time to fling on another dress and appear at dinner. Sarah would help her. If she entered the living room at the usual time no one would suspect she had been out of the house.

Oh, of course it would be all right.

These last minutes with Dan were too precious to waste on foolish presentiments.

"You do understand about everything now, don't you?" she whispered. "That it wasn't my fault? I didn't answer your phone calls?"

"I don't understand anything when you look up at me that way."

"But, Dan, I'll admit I was an idiot to doubt you even for a minute. I'll never do it again. Do you really have to go back to that stone castle of yours right away? Isn't there any way in the world you could escape and have dinner with me? Why not telephone—"

"Oh, I couldn't. Don't you see, no one knows I'm away. I don't want them to find out."

"But, Cherry, we'll have to find some way out of all this. How're we ever going to see each other if you have to run away like Cinderella at the stroke of midnight? Something's got to be done. Maybe if I had a talk with your father—"

"Don't do that, Dan. It wouldn't do any good. We'll manage some way, though. I'm so happy about finding you and knowing you care. I'm just certain everything's going to be all right!"

"Just the same, Cherry—"

"Please! I tell you everything's going to be all right."

"Can I call you tomorrow?"

"No. I'd better call you. Sometime between two and three in the afternoon. If you're not in I'll leave a message."

"I'll be thinking about you every minute."

"I'll be thinking about you, too!"

Precious moments. Ecstasy to be treasured and relived again and again in memory.

The cab stopped a block from the Dixon home. It was time to say goodbye. Cherry's lips formed the words but they were crushed against Dan's. His arm tightened about the girl. Realization that they were leaving one another suddenly became a cruelty not to be endured.

"I must go now, Dan. I must!"

She spoke the words but still she hesitated. Shyly she took Phillips' face between her two hands, lightly and swiftly placed a kiss on his forehead, then drew away.

Phillips whistled softly, made a quick search of his pockets.

"Hey, buddy," he said to the driver. "Let me out at the next corner, will you?"

There was 25 cents in Dan Phillips' pocket after he had paid the fare. He walked four blocks, crossed the garden and reached the side door of the house. Glancing quickly over her shoulder she turned the knob and entered.

There was no one in sight. Noiselessly Cherry mounted the rear staircase. She had almost reached her room when she heard a door open. Panic-stricken, the girl turned.

It was only Sarah!

The woman came bustling forward. "Wherever have you been?" she demanded in a smothered voice. "Do you know what time it is?"

Cherry turned a dazzling smile upon her. "Come and help me, Sarah. I'll tell you all about it!"

What she had to tell, however, waited until later. Dinner in the Dixon household was served punctually at 6:15. It was five minutes after six by the gold clock on Cherry's dressing table. As the girl flung off her coat and street dress Sarah extracted a fragile crepe gown from its hanger. Frantically

Cherry pulled the gown over her head, stepped into black pumps and ran a comb through her rumpled hair.

"I'll have to do," she murmured as she made for the door. There were bright spots in each of Cherry's cheeks as she hurried down the stairs.

Her father stood with his back toward her, looking through a window. Her mother was busy over a square of needle-point. Thank fortune, she was in time!

Cherry said, "Good evening, Mother," as she came forward. At the sound Walter Dixon turned.

"Well," he said to the girl, "you seem to be feeling better this evening."

She was surprised, off her guard. "Why—yes, I do feel better."

Dixon moved nearer. He eyed the girl critically. "Bill I'm not satisfied," he said. "Not at all satisfied with your health. I've a surprise for you, Cherry. You and your mother are leaving for California tomorrow. Two or three months on the coast will be good for you. Excuse me."

The girl's face had whitened. Appearingly she turned to her mother. "Please, Mother," she begged, "I don't want to go away now. Why, I don't need a trip anywhere. I'm perfectly well!" Dixon's voice cut in. "You will do as I say," he told the girl warningly. "Suppose I tell you that I saw you this afternoon in a taxi cab on Sixth street. Suppose I tell you I saw the young good-for-nothing you were with! You had my instructions that you were not to see that scoundrel again, yet you deliberately disobeyed! Deliberately broke your word! Well, I'll see you don't have a second chance to break it. You're going to California!" "I didn't break my word!" the girl denied angrily. "And Dan isn't a scoundrel!" "Silence!" Suddenly the girl threw her head back. "I won't be silent!" she cried.

Marital Law Personally Status Still Speaking Is Undecided

U. S. Supreme Court, Taking Case Under Review, Adjourns

AUSTIN—Status of marital law in the East Texas oil field will stay undecided until next October at the earliest. U. S. supreme court, which has taken under review the decision of a three-judge federal court holding the exercise of martial law void as to regulating specified wells in the field, has adjourned from May 30 to its new term in October, leaving this among the few questions undispensed of on its docket. Meantime martial law remains in effect in the field. The decision involves the whole question of a state's power to exercise military control over an area, since the federal courts are to pass upon its "reasonableness" of Gov. Sterling's having called out the troops to prevent disorders and to protect the property of the East Texas field.

Following are the listed campaign officials for Gov. Ross S. Sterling's re-election drive: Ernest Alexander, Fort Worth, state chairman; Myron G. Blalock, of Marshall, chairman of speakers' bureau; Major Paul J. Wakefield of Austin, publicity director.

Rep. Harry N. Graves of Georgetown has indicated to fellow-members of the house the report and recommendations of the efficiency-economy joint committee will be ready for submission to the legislature in September or October. If the special session now being petitioned by many counties for assumption of county and district highway bonds, is held, as now indicated.

Reps. Lawrence Westbrook, Waco, and Dewey Young, Wellington, and Sens. Carl C. Hardin of Stephenville and T. J. Holbrook of Galveston are among prominent members of the legislature who do not intend to come back for the next session. Sen. Holbrook was reported at Austin to have entered the congressional race, rather than seeking re-election. The others have definitely retired from the legislative races, and Mr. Westbrook is running for congress.

The Texas capitol suffers considerably from holidays... May 30, closed; June 2, closed... July 4, to be closed.

Members Of Religious Order Stop Here On Way To Conference

Traveling by special buses from Canada and the extreme eastern section of the United States to the far west for their annual conference in Oplin, Calif., 47 members of the Church of Brethren in Christ stopped in Big Spring briefly Friday to re-fuel the buses.

Each man in the party had a long, flowing Van Duke beard and the women wore black, stilked bonnets and broad prayer veils. The movement from the east to the convention set for this year in the west started in Canada, explained Bishop J. T. Giner of Manheim, Penn., who was at the head of the group. Others were added in Pennsylvania and Naples, Ind., where two modern buses were chartered for the remainder of the trip.

"We are not a large church," said Bishop Giner, "but we are very devout. We believe in the baptism of believers in water by immersion, in the ordinance of washing the saints' feet, in modest, uniform, non-conformity in the world in dress, in non-resistance in a qualified sense—that war, duelling, suicide or murder, as well as other forms of life-taking.

"Yes, we believe in the wearing of beards," said the bishop, "but like all church, there has been some breaking away. The women all wear bonnets and the black veiling. Headquarters of the congregation are at Parrisburg, Penn., at the Messiah Rescue and Benevolent Home. There are about 6,000 members in the United States, 900 in the Arican mission field, 200 or more in India.

Buick-Pontiac Sales Sale of a 1932 Buick 91 sedan to Mrs. E. J. Mary and a 1932 Pontiac sedan to E. F. LeFever were announced Saturday by the J. L. Webb Motor company.

"You've bullied everyone in this house as long as I can remember but now I'm going to talk. You're not going to send me to California because I won't go! Do you hear that—I won't go! And there's no use telling me I can't see Dan Phillips because I'm going to see him. Just as often and whenever I want to."

"Cherry, you don't know what you're saying!" Mrs. Dixon's voice was hoarse-stricken. "Oh, yes I do!" the girl insisted. She turned blazing eyes on both parents. "I know how you and father told the servants to lie and tried to keep Dan away from me. Well, I love Dan n'Phillips. Yes, and I'm going to marry him!" "Cherry!" The mother's protest was drowned by Walter Dixon's roar: "You'll apologize for what you've said, young woman, or you'll leave this house!" For an instant father and daughter eyed each other. Then with a little cry Cherry turned. "I'll never apologize!" she flung over her shoulder. "I'm going away!" "Cherry!" (To Be Continued)

Seeks Office

Ernest C. Ozro Cox (above) of Austin has tendered his resignation as National Executive Committee member and chairman of the legislative committee of the American Legion and has announced his candidacy for Congressman-at-Large, Place No. 1, subject to the action of the democratic primaries, according to a statement issued here today.

Mr. Cox was born on a farm at Ozro, Ellis county, Texas, where he received his public school education. Later he attended Cleburne college and the University of Texas from which latter institution he went into the military service and served as an enlisted man in the 38th Division until the close of the World War.

He has served successively as superintendent of the municipal and U. S. Employment Service, manager of boys at the State Orphan Home, Corsicana, six years as a member of the state legislature from Navarro county, resigning from that body to serve as State Commander of the American Legion in Texas in 1925-30.

During his legislative career he was the author of numerous measures in the fields of education, child welfare, agriculture and industrial development, and service to disabled war veterans and their dependents.

He is affiliated with the Christian church, Masonic bodies, Shrines, Texas National Guard, American Legion and other civic and benevolent bodies.

Mr. Cox will open his campaign for Congressman-at-Large at Ozro on Tuesday afternoon, June 7, at which time, speaking from the steps of the country school house where he received his early education, he will announce his platform which he states will be "a simple pledge or earnest endeavor in economy and service." His friends throughout the state are making plans to be on hand at Ozro for this formal opening of Mr. Cox's campaign.

Mr. Cox spoke before the Rotary club here about 3 years ago.

Platform

During this administration, honesty and integrity have been kept foremost in administering the affairs of the state government, and it can truly be said that not a breath of scandal or corruption has been heard.

Under this administration, a senate investigating committee, with the assistance of the administration, uncovered a system of graft that was going on among some of the county officials of the state, whereby the state was being robbed through the collection of fees based on falsified accounts. This practice has been stopped. Numerous offenders have been convicted. Stopping this leakage is saving the state hundreds of thousands of dollars every year.

Under this administration, a system of oil theft in the state's largest oil field was uncovered and the grand juries of Gregg and Rusk counties have indicted those charged with the theft. State agencies instrumental in the cleanup were highly commended by the grand juries for their work.

I have advocated and have cooperated in the survey that has been made of the state departments by this joint committee on organization and economy, created by the 42nd legislature, looking to consolidation, eliminations and re-organization. The recommendations to be made by this committee to the next legislature will point the way to more effective and businesslike government, at less expense.

Further efficiency and economy is assured by the act sponsored by the administration, setting up a uniform budget system for state and local governments. Under its authority, I shall exert every effort and influence to reduce state expenditures. Rigid economy and retrenchment have been and shall be the watchwords of this administration.

I point with pride to the improvement in the management of the penitentiary system. Large sums of money have been saved by the splendid work of the prison board and its managers; but above all, the morale and condition of the prisoners has increased wonderfully, due largely to the parole policy I have followed.

Pardons The pardon power has been exercised not loosely but humanely and no money or pull has obtained a pardon. In truth, full pardons granted were few. The policy has been to grant full pardons and paroles, based on merit and the ability of the prisoner to find employment; so that if the prisoner fails to obey the law, he is promptly returned to prison.

For more than four years, I have advocated that the money for the construction of state highways should be derived solely from the traffic—that is, the gasoline tax, together with license fees. I have also advocated that the money provided by counties and road districts for the construction of state highways be refunded to them by the state, or that their bonds to the extent of money used in the highways be assumed by the state, thereby lessening the burden of taxes upon homes, farms, ranches and property of the people. Under present economic conditions, I am opposed to the voting of bonds of any character for any purpose by town, city, county or state.

A bill passed by the legislature last year, designed to give the counties part of the gasoline tax revenues, was vetoed because it was impractical as drawn, and lawyers declared it unconstitutional. I will do everything proper in my power to give the counties relief in a constitutional way.

Highways Highway development has been continued under my administration until nearly all parts of the state can now be reached on all-weather roads. All work has been done at bed-rock cost.

Under the present administration, the state government has very decidedly regulated and restricted the operation of trucks on public highways. In fact, a study of the opinions of the courts, wherein these restrictions and regulations have been sustained and upheld, can lead only to the conclusion that truck regulation could not, under constitutional guarantees, have been carried further.

Ernest efforts were made by the administration to aid Texas agriculture and with a substantial degree of success. The soil conservation law, carrying out principles advocated in my first campaign, is enabling farmers to check erosion and save millions of dollars in crop value.

Notwithstanding the failure of the other southern states to join with Texas in a cotton acreage reduction law, the ability of other industries to regulate their production to consumption makes it reasonable to assume that the farmer should be able, by some constitutional means, to protect himself likewise. I shall support any measure giving reasonable promise of aiding agriculture. Meanwhile, the encouragement to voluntary crop reduction and diversification given by the cotton session last fall is worth the cost of the session.

Not Alone. In administering the industrial laws, I have given fullest co-operation to the officers charged with their enforcement. Hazards to workers have been reduced, health standards have been raised, and greater protection has been given women and children employees. Wage claims collected through the state labor department during the 16 months of my administration amount to five times as much as during any previous two-year administration. Our efforts to induce employers to shorten working hours have kept many people employed.

I am seeking re-election to the office of governor solely on the record of my administration. The people of the state generally know that I have suffered large financial losses since I have been in public office, but that is a personal matter and does not affect them. I make no appeal for sympathy. In truth, I have plenty of company—so much company that if all those who have lost money in the past few years were to vote for me, I would be elected by the largest majority a candidate for office ever received.

Farming Of Road Contracts Stopped

AUSTIN—The highway commission today issued an order against "farming" highway contracts by general contractors. The order is effective with contracts awarded at the June meeting of the commission.

Under the order all bidders are to be equipped and actually perform with their own forces the major items in the contract. However, the contractors may sublet one major item in a contract calling for two major items.

In addition, the contractors are required to maintain a superintendent on each project awarded them.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Hatbeck have returned from Dallas where they went to visit their daughter, Mrs. Lighthorn Wetzel and to attend the graduation exercises of the Baylor Medical school, in which their son-in-law, Lee Rogers, obtained his M. D. degree.

Women Discuss Joint Problems In Two Sessions And Listen To Good Conference Speakers

One hundred delegates from Methodist churches in the Sweetwater district attended the meeting of the women's Missionary Society held at the church Friday at an all day session.

Three officers of the North Texas Conference were present and delivered stirring talks on the various phases of women's work.

Mrs. E. Clyde Smith, of Stanton, presided over the meeting. Mrs. P. H. Gates, of Stanton, gave the morning devotional, which consisted of a beautifully rendered reading of a drama concerning "Jesus and His Disciples."

Mrs. Geo. C. Wolforth brought greetings to the members assembled from the Lubbock district. Mrs. J. Frank Potts of Lubbock gave the address of the morning on "Spiritual Cultivation," in which she stressed the need for private devotions and declared that every woman should set aside a time for herself each day.

Two resolutions were endorsed by the group. One was to recommend to their congressmen that they oppose the insertion of a wet plank in the platforms of either democratic or republican parties. The other was to uphold the anti-lynching law.

Friday was designated as a day for a mass meeting of all church women in order to arouse them to importance of up-holding the eighteenth amendment.

Luncheon was served by the local Methodist women to 125 guests. Sixteen members of the Children's Work gathered around one table, to discuss their problems informally with Mrs. R. A. Metcalfe, chairman of that work.

In the afternoon Mrs. Garrett of Colorado, made a talk and so did Mrs. Metcalfe on children's work. Several of Mrs. V. H. Fiewellen's young workers in the World Friendship club sang a negro spiritual, "Lord, I Want to be a Christian."

The following children took part: Gene Hardy Fiewellen, Joyce Glenn Croft, Margie Hudson, R. H. Miller, Clara Sue Vastine, Ruth, Don, and Peggy Thomas.

The Business and Professional Women's Circle put on a play, called "Modernizing Young Mrs. Patton," which was so greatly enjoyed that they have been asked to repeat it for next day. In the play Mrs. T. H. Reeves sang a solo and Miss Roberta Gay accompanied her on the piano. The other characters were: Mrs. Patton, Sr., Mrs. C. S. Diltz; Young Mrs. Patton, Miss Zelma Chadd; a society woman, Mrs. Van Reynolds, Mrs. Wallace Ford; a missionary, Miss Powell, Miss Jeanette Pickle; Mrs. Harris, delegate from the City, Mrs. Irma Smith; Mrs. Jackson, delegate from the country, Mrs. Lee Levering.

For Congress

J. E. Boog-Scott of Coleman has entered the race for congressman-at-large, place 3, with the following statement:

"I solicit your support of my candidacy for the nomination in the Democratic primary for congressman-at-large, place No. 3, upon my record of public service for six years as a member of the agricultural experiment station board of Texas and as chairman of the Texas Live Stock Sanitary Board 1920-1925, and my close identification with the live stock and agricultural interests of our state for many years. I am unalterably opposed to governmental extravagance and pork barrel politics. I believe in a tariff on raw materials where the manufactured article is protected and that our present tariff should be generally lowered. I favor the abolition of useless and business hampering bureaus and commissions. I will support . . ."

poems. It follows:
I COULD cry once, tears came readily,
I could laugh easily and dance long.
I went with April, running untidily,
Drunkenly following a star and a song.
Somehow the lute broke, time dried the fountain.
Where did the star go? What quenched the flames?
Back of the years that tower like a mountain
One is lost who answered to my name.
Now I go sullenly, saved from creeping
By the whip that life cracks overhead.
Oh, love, come back and rouse my heart from sleeping
The slow, long sleep of the frozen dead.

FIGHTING MEN OF THE WEST By Dane Coolidge

(E. P. Dutton and Co.)

As Dane Coolidge says, the time to write history is when the subject is still alive, or survived by men who knew him.
Therefore, he has presented lives of many of the most famous and colorful southwestern pioneers, whom he has had an opportunity to know. In some cases he has talked to friends. In all cases his subject matter is as close to the truth as one can make it under the circumstances.

The roster of fighting men includes several interesting Texans. Among them is Clay Allison, who made his claim for fame (among other incidents) for his severity to a dentist. The dentist pulled the wrong tooth and Clay called on him later drunk and pulled most of the dentist's front teeth to teach him a lesson.

The three most interesting characters for Texas readers, are Colonel Charles Goodnight, John Chisum and Captain John R. Hughes, Texas ranger, who was said to have kicked down more doors and gone through smoke after more bad Mexicans than any other officer in Texas. He never lost a prisoner or got whipped in a battle.

The author begins his tales of these men with a bang, usually characterizing their outstanding traits. The following account of John Chisum, is an example:
"John Chisum was so good-natured that nobody could shoot him, if he ever got near enough to talk. He was always laughing and telling funny stories; and more than one hired killer, holding a pistol to his head, had to lower his gun to laugh. Even Billy, the Kid, with a record of twenty men for the twenty short years of his life—and at a time when he had just killed a cowboy on a bet—let Uncle John talk him out of when he had sworn to have his life. It was just a way he had.

I can't think of a book that would be more liked by the men around here, many of whom still the famous characters in these chapters.
Of the June number of the Kaleidoscope, there were only a half dozen or so Texas poets represented. We pondered over them somewhat, because we hope that some of these poems are being clipped—which is the ultimate aim of every newspaper poem.
We believe that with all detachment we preferred "Transformation" by our own Grace Gaddis, because it has a lyrical not that is the essence of true poetry of this type and for that reason is the most appealing of the Texas part all sound and wise legislation designed to remove or alleviate the economic depression afflicting our country and to restore confidence and faith in the stability of our government. If I should be selected as your congressman-at-large, I pledge unfaltering loyalty to the interest of the common people among whom I am proud to be numbered, and honest and faithful service to the limit of my ability.
