Positive Identification of Bates Is Made by Urschel

"I DON'T KNOW YOU," CAPTIVE TELLS OILMAN

Armed Plane Carries Him to Face an Arraignment

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 31. (UP)—Albert Bates, accused kidnaper, was greeted at the airport here today by Charles Urschel after a flight in an armed plane from Denver.

"Hello, Albert," Urschel said. "I do not know you," the fugitive, guarded by machine gunners, said.

Urschel and his wife positively identified Bates as one of the two men who abducted him and Walter B. Jarrett on July 23 at midnight. Jarrett later was freed.

Bates was taken heavily guarded, to the county jail.

Bates, the Shannons, and seven suspects from Minneapolis face arraignment here tomorrow. There was no word regarding movement of Harvey Bailey who still was jailed at Dallas.

Photos Accuse Star as 'Love Thief'

These photographs are offered as evidence by Mrs. Marian Young Read, Oakland, Calif., society woman, in her $100,000 suit against Claire Windsor, blond movie actress, at Los Angeles. Mrs. Read accuses Miss Windsor of alienating the affections of Al Read, San Francisco broker and former University of California athlete, and submits these pictures of Read and Miss Windsor in support of her charges.

NEGROES JAILED IN ROUNDUP FOR GIRL'S ABDUCTORS

Fifty Suspects Are Held by Police At Dallas

DALLAS, Aug. 31. (UP)—The body of Catherine Prince, 21, Dallas county farmer's daughter, was found in a cotton field two miles from the home of two negroes, brothers, Bluey and Thurman Burley, who, officers said, confessed to killing her.

The girl was abducted and her escort, Mace Carver, 27, shot and probably fatally wounded last night as they sat in a parked car in a country lane.

Finding of the body culminated an intensive search by hundreds of policemen.

DALLAS, Aug. 31. (UP)—Fifty negroes were jailed today in a roundup seeking the abductors of Miss Catherine Prince and who shot her escort, Mace Carver, in a parked automobile near here.

Carver was found today three miles from his home at Mesquite after he failed to report to a job here. He said the negroes shot him twice and fled with the girl.

Carver and Miss Prince had visited here and were returning to their homes at Mesquite when the negroes approached the car.

STORES TO CLOSE HERE LABOR DAY

Stores of Midland will be closed Monday in observance of Labor day. Merchants including grocers, dry goods, hardware and variety dealers and other lines of general business favored closing. Not every merchant was seen, but a majority in each line was interviewed by chamber of commerce officials, a request of merchants themselves, and the sentiment was decidedly in favor of observing Labor day with a holiday.

Housewives and shoppers in general are reminded that Labor day follows Sunday, hence those desiring groceries, clothing, etc., for Monday, had better do their shopping Saturday for the two holidays in a row, Sunday and Monday.

Strikers Killed, Injured in Riot

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31. (UP)—Clem Norwood and Frank Milroy, striking hosiery workers, were shot and killed today and at least a dozen others wounded, including two policemen and several girls in a riot at the Cambria hosiery mills.

Secretary Asked to Make NRA Address

Paul T. Vickers, secretary of the Midland chamber of commerce, will address a mass meeting at Stanton Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock on NRA. Robert Hamilton, newly appointed district attorney, who is chairman of NRA forces in Martin county, asked Vickers to make an inspirational and interpretative talk as Stanton expects to put on its consumers' card signing campaign this week.

CCC BATTLES FOREST FIRES

SAN FRANCISCO, (UP)—A $200 cash present to a Citizens Conservation Corps for saving a home during a forest fire drew attention to accomplishments of corps members in California woods this season.

Leaders of the citizen-woodsmen pointed proudly to statistics which showed California had 17,698 forest fires last year and only 3,981 in the same territory so far in 1933.

The corps had many thrilling experiences as they fought stubborn blazes.

One group of 400 were trapped by a sudden shift in the wind in the Monterey district. Immediately they sought an open area which the flames hadn't reached. With red-hot sparks smoldering in their clothing and oppressive heat searing their hands and faces, they dug themselves under dirt until the fire passed over.

A corps at San Pedro had a similar experience.

Two companies from Ohio fought a fire at Mount Lassen for more than a week. Many lost their clothing. One boy reported having four pairs of shoes burned off his feet.

The corps members were given careful training in forest fire fighting when they came to this area. Each squad member received a burrap bag, a pick and a shovel for the larger fires. Daily fire drills were held.

Public Works Funds Delay Indefinite

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31. (UP)—Secretary of War Derr said today that the proposed $80,000,000 allocation of public works funds for military aircraft and mechanizing of the army were indefinitely postponed by President Roosevelt pending the outcome of the world disarmament conference.

Discovers New Use For 3.2 Beer Now

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UP)—A new use for 3.2 beer has been discovered by James I. Thomas, dog fancier.

During one of the hot summer days recently when six of his Great Dane puppies were distressed by the temperature, Thomas was enjoying a cooling glass of beer.

Feeling sorry for the dogs, he opened a bottle of beer for them. They gulped it down with such delight that he has added it to their daily menu.

Police Kill Farmer Who Beheads Wife

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 31. (UP)—Officers shot and killed A. Nelson Hansard, 46, farmer, today after he had beheaded his wife and attempted to burn her body, menaced children with an axe and attempted to burn the homes of neighbors.

Hansard's action was the outgrowth of a religious argument with a daughter. Her mother intervened.

ADMINISTRATION CONTEMPLATES A REVISION OF OIL CODE TO SET A BASE PRICE FOR CRUDE, NOT GAS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31. (UP)—It was learned today that the administration is contemplating revision of the oil code to establish a base price for crude instead of gasoline.

Administrator Ickes may propose the plan today at the planning and coordinating committee meeting. The president was said to be favorable to the crude base.

25-CENT PIPELINE RATE IS BLOCKED

AUSTIN, Aug. 31. (UP)—The 25-cent pipeline rate reduction was blocked today when it was discovered that the railroad commission proposed to make maximum rates only, not requiring lines to charge same. Some lines now are charging less.

Harry Pennington of San Antonio cut to twenty cents per barrel. The Humble pipeline answered that if East Texas is reduced West Texas reductions cannot be allowed.

Dairy Operator Here Fined $50

Fine of $50 and costs was assessed in justice court Wednesday afternoon against a local dairy operator after charges had been filed by the health officers that he was selling milk as Grade A when sanitary conditions made it Grade B.

Testimony said that health authorities had notified the operator to meet certain conditions at the dairy or to label the milk Grade B. Upon refusal, County Attorney Wilson was instructed to prosecute, securing a verdict against the defendant.

Sheriff, Wife to Interment of Kin

Sheriff and Mrs. A. C. Francis left Midland Wednesday for Brownwood, where Mrs. Francis' nephew, Glen Gill, died following a recent appendicitis operation. The funeral services were to be held this morning at 10 o'clock. Interment was to be at Santa Anna.

Gill, son of E. W. Gill, was manager of the Gill ranch at Whon in Coleman county and was one of the largest breeders of Polled Herefords in the United States. Many cattle from his ranch are shipped to Mississippi and other states.

PRICE AGREEMENT CAUSES SHOWDOWN

AUSTIN, Aug. 31. (UP)—A showdown between Attorney General Alford and the agricultural department was expected today as result of the uniform milk price agreement at Fort Worth and the uniform cotton ginning prices which were said to have been approved by Agricultural Commissioner J. E. McDonald.

Alford claimed that McDonald lacks authority and that he bungled efforts to prosecute ginners for anti-trust law violations.

PLANT LATE GARDENS, COUNTY HOME DEMONSTRATION AGENT SUGGESTING

Suggestions for late gardens were made Thursday by Miss Myrtle Miller, county home demonstration agent who hopes Midland county will take advantage of the recent rains, to grow as much produce as possible for the home table.

"The darker the skies the brighter the prospects for late gardens," she said. "It is to be hoped that everyone takes advantage of the opportunity."

The agent gave several hints on how to prepare ground and what seed to plant.

It is most difficult to get vegetables to grow in the open garden during the heat and drought of August. Some sort of shade must be provided if they are to grow. For starting the slow maturing vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers and the like, artificial shade may be provided by driving a few stakes into the ground, connecting these with hay wire and spreading out or bran sacks over the top. The cover should be 3-4 feet from the ground. In case old sacks are not available, small branches of trees with the leaves on may be cut and placed on a framework to provide shade. If tomato seed are planted in the open unprotected, it is best to stick up a single at an angle on the west and south sides of each hill to protect the tiny plants from the sun's moisture supply in the soil is limited, and care must be exercised to conserve it in every way in order to get the vegetables up. To do this the ground should be free of all weeds and plants that are left from the summer garden. Plowing under this material at this time is a bad practice, because it will prevent the moisture from rising to the upper soil surface, and the seed will not germinate. Then too, the unrotted plant material seriously interferes with the cultivation of the young fall vegetables and the heat resulting from the turned under vegetation dries out the soil.

The pictures above to the right show the ill-fated Golden State Limited, crack passenger train that crashed into a swollen stream of an arroyo near Tucuman, N. M. this week. Below is shown the wreckage of a Transcontinental and Western Air night plane near the scene of the train wreck. Eight were killed in the train, and five in the plane wreck.

Assembly Report, Travelogue Heard

A report by President John P. Howe on the recent district assembly at Wichita Falls of Rotary club presidents and secretaries was made at the Rotary luncheon here today.

Paul T. Vickers gave a twenty-minute travelogue on a recent trip in which he and Mrs. Vickers, with A. E. Horst and wife, toured western states and the Pacific coast.

Jess McGee of Sherman, Barney Grafia, A. E. Horst, and Harvey Fry were guests at the meeting.

NAZI CONVENTION IN SESSION TODAY

NUREMBERG, Germany, Aug. 31. (UP)—A four-day convention of 350,000 Nazis that may write a flaming page in Europe's history opened here today. Hitler was scheduled for two speeches. Sixteen hundred newspaper men were covering the convention as all Europe watched proceedings.

Beer Applications To Be Filed Friday

Friday marks the first day set aside by law for making application for beer licenses. Hearings may not be held for five days thereafter, and beer will not be legalized until midnight, Sept. 14.

Only one application has been made here, and only a few others are in prospect.

Application blanks will not arrive until Saturday, it was learned today.

Cattlemen of 33 W. T. Counties Meet Here Today

Cattlemen, chamber of commerce officials and others, numbering about 50 persons from 33 West Texas counties, met in the Crystal room of Hotel Schorbauber and voted to draw up resolutions asking carriers to grant one-half regular tariff rates for livestock feed into this territory and half rates on livestock forced to be moved to feed on grass because of drought conditions, such rates to extend not later than May 1, 1934.

A vote decided the body would ask that the Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers' association present the resolutions to carriers, including railroads and bus lines.

Relief was asked because of insufficiency of rain and the attendant lack of grass on the ranges.

D. H. Snyder served as chairman of the meeting, J. H. Greene, secretary. Both are from Colorado, Texas. E. P. Spiller was named chairman of the resolutions committee. W. W. Brunson, Grady Bell and Paul T. Vickers being the other members.

It was explained that the idea for the meeting grew out of the Aug. 14 meeting of cattlemen of 21 north-west states with the National Livestock association at Denver, at which meeting a drought committee was named. Snyder, committee man of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers' association, was appointed chairman.

Resolutions drawn today follow:

"Cattlemen representing the following counties: Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Scurry, Andrews, Martin, Howard, Mitchell, El Paso, Hudspeth, Loving, Winkler, Ector, Midland, Glasscock, Sterling, Coke, Presidio, Brewster, Culberson, Reeves, Ward, Crane, Upson, Reagan, Tarrant, Tom Green, Pecos, Terrell, Crockett, Schleicher, Jeff Davis, and Sutton, assembled at Midland, Texas, August 31, 1933, adopted the following resolutions:

"Whereas, cattlemen of the above named counties are faced with a serious problem by reason of a drought existing through the past 10 months, which will necessitate the movement of cattle from this area and the movement into this area of abnormally large quantities of feed in order to preserve the herds, and

"Whereas, the recent rains in this section have covered only a portion of the area, and in those sections where rain has fallen, it has been insufficient to relieve the ranges to the extent that the movement of cattle or the use of large quantities of feed can be averted, and such rains as have fallen came too late to permit the growing of feed crops, and to permit the growing of sufficient grass to carry cattle through the winter.

"Therefore, be it resolved, that the carriers serving this territory be requested to grant one-half regular tariff rates for livestock feed into this territory, and half rates on livestock forced to be moved to feed on grass because of drought conditions, such rates to extend not later than May 1, 1934.

Signed: E. B. Spiller, Chairman; W. W. Brunson, Grady Bell, Paul T. Vickers."

MIDLAND'S PART IN PROGRAM

The N.R.A. plan is designed to put five million men back on payrolls in a short time. When this is done, 20,000,000 people (assuming four to each wage earner's family) will suddenly be placed in position to buy the normal necessities of life.

Midland will have a definite share in this increased prosperity to the extent that it participates in the plan, so there is a responsibility on every citizen here to cooperate to the utmost to make this gigantic national plan a complete success.

N.R.A. calls upon every employer to shorten hours of labor, so as to make room for more employes.

Each industry will before long adopt its own code which will fix the increased labor obligations to be assumed by all firms associated with that particular industry.

It is to the employers self-interest to do this, because more people working, with bigger payrolls, will increase the market for his goods.

Every individual, man and woman, who buys anything, owes it to himself and his community and to the nation, to buy only from those employers who have taken the increased burden of increasing payrolls to bring back prosperity.

So every employer should sign the president's agreement at once.

So every consumer should sign the consumer's pledge, which commits him to do his part in this great national economic experiment.

The duty of every citizen of Midland is therefore plain. The president has said: "On the basis of this simple principle of everybody doing things together, we are starting out on this nationwide attack on unemployment."

Midland must do its part in this great plan. It has never failed when the nation called and it will not fail now, officials said Wednesday.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Among those who are watching with interest the fall of the dollar are some hundreds of Civilian Conservation Corps workers in the Pacific Northwest.

Scotland's last bank failure was in 1878, a recent dispatch stated, and Americans may as well admit it takes more than a "Scotch joke" to explain that.

Madonna of Mount Carmel Is Returned

By THOMAS B. MORGAN, United Press Staff Correspondent

ROME, (UP)—Carried in a special train and later placed on an altar on the deck of the steamer Helouan, the famous statue of the Madonna of Mount Carmel will make its triumphant return to the Holy Land in September, accompanied by a pilgrimage of devout Italian Catholics.

The miraculous statue, which 100 years ago made another voyage round the Mediterranean where it is said to have saved the Catholics from a massacre, and according to the chronicle of those times, it "cured a rich American" (unnamed) who offered a gold case set in diamonds for it.

The statue could not be taken to Mount Carmel at that time, owing to the anti-Christian bigotry of the Pasha Abdallah. It was brought to the military hospital at Toulon, France, where it is claimed it was the cause of several miracles.

The statue recently has been brought back to Italy, the land of its origin, and the proposal to take it in solemn pilgrimage to Mount Carmel has received the approval of His Holiness.

GEMS AND JEWELS OF ANCIENT COURTS DWARF THOSE OF 1933

By MARY KNIGHT, United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, (UP)—The word "jewelry" comes from the old French jewel, a diminutive of joie, and from the Italian gioia, both meaning joy. The difference between a jewel and a gem is that the latter strictly is applicable only to precious stones as have been worked by engraving.

When the engraved design is sunk in the stone the gem forms an intaglio (sunk design), signet, or seal, and when the subject is in relief the gem is a Cameo. The most important gems are carnelian, sard, chrysoberyl, plasma, bloodstone, jasper, agate, and onyx.

The origin of fur coats begins with Mrs. Eve and has changed little since, with the exception of size and shade and variety of ornate linings. Single skins are draped happily over the shoulders today, as they were in the beginning.

moved and exquisitely carved ones of gold studded with precious stones—emeralds for eyes and rubies for ornamentation were supplemented.

In 1448 the good King Rene gave the wife of the seneschal of Anjou a gold mirror for which he paid a German goldsmith, Hennequin, 35 florins, a price representing a millionaire's purchase in present-day money.

The Electress Elizabeth of Brandenburg, consort of Joachim I, had in her trousseau three pearl-stitched (real pearls, mind you) petticoats, valued in all at 6,000 florins. An inventory taken in 1549 of the possessions of the Archduchess Catherine of Austria mentions 28 gowns heavily studded in pearls.

King Francis I ordered 13,600 gold buttons from his court jeweler for a single black velvet suit, and Queen Catherine of Poland had 60 gold buttons set with rubies and diamonds and valued at about 700 pounds in pre-war money, on a solitary rock.

The fortunes spent on fashions in these days would be sufficient to repay the war debts of the world today with plenty to spare for unemployment, light wines and beer.

Students Seek Their Own Level

AMES, Ia. (UP)—Collegians, like water, seek their own level in the matter of marriage, according to Dr. Martin F. Fritz, of the Iowa State College psychology department.

His research has shown that college men invariably—either intentionally or unintentionally—marry someone of approximately the same intelligence level.

For the past four years Professor Fritz has studied the society column of the college tri-weekly for announcements of engagements. He found 126 engagements.

The boy's intelligence rating, according to aptitude tests given each first year student at Iowa State, then was compared to that of his prospective wife. There was a positive mathematical correlation, indicating that mental equals were attracted more often than mental unequals, Dr. Fritz found.

Of 126 cases, 51 high-ranking boys became engaged to high-ranking girls, and 15 low-ranking boys became engaged to low-ranking girls.

Similar results have been obtained at Kansas State college, Professor Fritz said.

Buick Sales Are Mounting Steadily

Buick sales for the first 20 days of August were 166 per cent of the corresponding period in 1932, it is announced by W. F. Hufstader, Buick sales manager.

"On a comparative basis," says Hufstader, "Buick sales continue to show gratifying increases above last year's totals. August, it is well known, is ordinarily reckoned as a month of diminishing volume. This year, the August trend has been definitely upward, by 10-day periods. The second 10 days of the month developed sales that were 130 per cent of those in the first 10 days, which is a higher rate of increase than was shown last year in the corresponding periods. Our business is consistently showing increasing strength."

Yesterday's Stars Glad to Get Small Movie Roles Today

By DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD—This is a story for the movie followers of ten years ago—a story for them because the newer fans probably know nothing of the persons with whom it deals.

Once the names of these former stars glowed in electric lights, they were on every tongue, just as Garbo, Crawford, Gable, Chevalier, Arliss, Gaynor, and others are today.

Now Betty Blythe, Robert Warwick, Francis Ford, Jean Acker, Valentino, Clara Kimball Young, Florence Turner, Alice Lake, Snub Pollard, Florence Lawrence, and numerous other "stars of yesterday" can be found playing obscure bits in support of our new generation of stars.

What an all-star cast they would have comprised a few years back! Now their combined weekly salaries don't equal the stipend drawn by John Boles, star of the picture.

to as "the city without a soul." The fate of these one-time stars would indicate that such isn't exactly the case. All of them, at one time earned large salaries. Few saved any money. Today they are dependent upon the few dollars they can pick up here and there.

And to aid them, Hollywood's assistant directors have agreed to call them on every possible occasion.

Quite a number of the former celebrities will be found in "Only Yesterday"—quite an appropriate title for them, by the way.

If you watch closely while seeing this picture, now being completed, you will find among those playing small bits Marie Prevost, Ruth Clifford, Julia Faye, Florence Fitzgerald, Natalie Morehead, and Jack Richardson.

in Mae West's new film, "I'm No Angel." Fred Malatesta, a former villain, is doing likewise in the new Chevalier picture, "The Way to Love." Juvenile Johnston, once Douglas Fairbanks' leading lady, did a dance in a cafe sequence of "Midnight Club."

While out on the set of "Pilgrimage" recently I ran across five of the former movie greats, all working as bit players or extras. In this group were Betty Blythe, once the vamp queen of all moviedom; Ruth Clifford, who halted her career to become a mother; Robert Warwick, once one of the most popular leading men; Francis Ford, one of the biggest serial stars years ago and later a prominent director; Rosa Rosanova, one of the best character actresses of her day.

Still Have Hopes

None of these people have any bitter feelings toward Hollywood for their change of fortune. All take the philosophical outlook that the life of any film celebrity is short, that they had their day and that it was time for them to step out and

Mounted Wedding In Bridle Path

SAN ANTONIO, (UP)—A mounted wedding on a bridle path in Brackenridge Park here is planned for Sept. 10 by Miss Virginia Hope and Jay B. Moore. The bride, groom and attendants will be dressed in riding habits and attend the ceremony on horseback.

Justice of Peace John Onion, who will officiate at the ceremony, has been practicing the handling of bridle reins and matrimonial bonds.

Miss Hope, formerly of Del Rio, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hope. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Moore of Dallas.

FREE TEXTBOOKS

AUSTIN, (UP)—Free Spanish textbooks and instruction will be provided this year in elementary grades of Texas public schools along the Rio Grande, under a law enacted by the last legislature. Previously instruction in modern languages was confined to high schools.

Free instruction in Spanish in counties bordering on the Texas-Mexico boundary line is limited, however, to those counties having a city or cities of 5,000 or more inhabitants according to the census of 1920.

The UNITED
MEMBER N. R. A.—WE DO OUR PART

Under the Dome Of the Capital

By GORDON K. SHEARER United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, (UP).—Dan Moody, once known as the "boy governor," but an even 40 now with thinning hair, has no desire to hold another public office.

"I've seen too many political ghosts," said Moody recently when the prospect of becoming a candidate was broached.

"I quit when I was still young enough to get on and make a living. I have seen too many men give all their youth to public office. For a time it seems that they can get anything they want. But the time comes when they lose and, seemingly, are forgotten.

"Go to any political convention. You will find the corridors plentifully lined with men who once were prominent and now are forgotten."

Former Governor Pat M. Neff is another who quit public office in time to give unspent energies to a new vocation. He accepted the presidency of Baylor university.

Former Governor Will Hobby ended his public life early enough to return actively to the publishing business, banking and insurance.

Former Governor James E. Ferguson, at 68, seems to have reversed the program. He is expected to seek re-entry to public office. Meantime, he edits the Forum, runs his Bosque county farm and dairy, practices law and advises his wife, Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

Former Governor Ross S. Sterling, his once many-figured fortune wrecked by the depression, is said to be waiting favorable opportunity to re-enter the oil business in which he amassed wealth before.

Former Governor O. B. Colquitt, after leaving public life to go into an active oil business, returned to an appointive office when President Herbert Hoover made him member of a labor mediation board. Recently he visited Austin. He is oldest of the living former governors of Texas.

Governor Ferguson gives ear to her politically astute husband before appointments are announced. Therefore it will be no surprise if the new member of the state board of control comes from near the state border. It probably will be some one not mentioned so far.

Adrian Pool, retiring member, is the only one of the three men on the board not from central Texas. Claude Teer, chairman, is from Granger, Williamson county. John Wallace is from Teague, Freestone county. Pool came from El Paso.

The late R. B. Walthall, who was on the board before Pool, came from East Texas. Dr. H. H. Harrington, who antedated Walthall, was from the lower Rio Grande valley.

Lee Satterwhite of Odessa, former speaker of the house of representatives, might be named. He has not been politically aligned with the Fergusons, but "Governor Jim" knows how to make friends of opponents. Satterwhite is not only from West Texas; he has been from the Panhandle and from East Texas.

Satterwhite would accept the post. His appointment would probably clear the way for Roy McCarver of Temple to run for the race for state railroad commissioner in 1934. Tennant was appointed on the board of control by Mrs. Ferguson when she was the governor before Tennant and Satterwhite both ran for railroad commissioner last summer in different races. Both laid a foundation upon which to run again next year, when one commissioner is to be chosen.

Governor Ferguson should become a keen watcher of horse race results. She will have an entry named for her "Lady Governor," owned by Jo Ed Winfree, Jr., of Houston, will make her first race at the Arlington downs October meet. Winfree is a son of Col. J. E. Winfree of the governor's staff.

A group of high-retainer oil attorneys gathered here on August 21 for a pipe line rate hearing looked sheepish when some one read their pleas made to District Judge J. D. Moore not to set the state's anti-trust suit against oil companies for trial in Austin during the hot weather.

Texas auto license plates for 1934 are the last ones that will form a background for Hollywood girls seeking free publicity. In recent years the Texas plates have been made in Los Angeles. The plates were photographed with the girls as background or foreground and widely used. The background for the 1933 plates will be the "Big House" inside the walls at Huntsville. Manufacture there has been ordered.

The 1935 plates were ordered before the prison plate plant was approved by the legislature. The passenger car plates will have black figures and letters on orange. The colors will be reversed for trucks.

Formerly different colors were used. It was discovered that making the more than a million and a quarter plates, it is cheaper if one color combination is used.

Jig-saw puzzles are out of date in Austin. The latest puzzle is whether a contract has been let for the W. J. McDonald astronomical observatory, joint project of the University of Texas and the University of Chicago in the Davis mountains. Announcement came from Chicago the contract was let and work under way on the big reflector type telescope. The University of Texas reports the contract not yet let.

Modern Girls— Old Equippage

TULARE, Cal. (UP).—Four distinctly modern Tulare girls threw modernity aside the other day and made a tour of the district in a 1900 model buggy drawn by an aged mule.

The quartet—Gertrude Van Houten, Madeline Greaver, Dorothy Kemble and Mary Jane Garber—arose before dawn, harnessed the mule, and, 18 hours later, drove into the S. K. Skages summer home, some 30 miles away.

Only with the beginning of the 17th century was there recognized the need for a dictionary which should help Englishmen to a better knowledge of their language.

CHAPTER I

Bright, multi-colored lights blinked in dazzling radiance. A myriad heaven of man-made stars was Broadway as the milling thousands of humans pushed and tugged along the crowded thoroughfare.

Old Apple Annie yanked her basket angrily as it caught on the coat of a passing man.

"Hey! What's the idea? What do you think you're doing, you dirty old—"

Apple Annie's words bit out. "Aw, shut up, you nasty faced palooka!" She tossed her head defiantly and deliberately straightened her dress which had been twisted around her body. To emphasize her belligerent attitude, she ran the back of her hand across her mouth and back again in two short swipes. The Broadway lights seemed to laugh. Though they never laughed at Apple Annie—always with her. Apple Annie chuckled.

A mounted policeman eased his horse up to the curb and, bending over, took an apple from Annie's basket. He did it matter-of-factly, as though it were an every-day occurrence.

"Dave the Dude's looking for you, Annie—over at Missouri Martin's," said the officer.

Annie looked at him, grimaced, started away, then shot back over her shoulder. "Come around the house sometime, Mac. I gotta lotta silverware laying around loose."

She joggled away toward Missouri Martin's.

Missouri Martin was a Broadway institution. She owned and operated the night club "Missouri Martin's." Always the genial and wise-cracking hostess, she had prospered—made plenty. Her boisterous "Hello, Sucker!" was known from the Battery to the most remote foot-pace where Broadway ends.

Missouri walked from the dance floor upon which 30 gorgeous girls in abbreviated costumes danced. The head waiter stepped alongside and tapped her on the shoulder.

"Will you check this check? It's Dave the Dude's."

Missouri quietly tore up the check. "How many times did I tell you the Dude can't spend any money in my place?" She walked away.

Missouri approached a group of men and women who were crowded around one of the tables.

"Hey! What's going on here?" she asked.

"Sh-h-h!" whispered an onlooker. "Dave the Dude's got a big bet on."

"Yeah? What kinda bet?"

"Sh-h-h! You're liable to scare the flies!"

"The flies?" Missouri's eyes widened.

"Yeah. He's bettin' the Greek a fly lands on his piece of sugar first."

Missouri squinted her way through the spectators to view the sport. She watched Dave the Dude as the tall, handsome, suave gambler looked on amusedly. His two cohorts, Happy, a dour-looking individual, and Shakespeare, big, dumb, and tough, gripped the table tensely as a fly hovered between the two pieces of sugar.

Shakespeare leaned forward, pursing his lips and buzzing. "Bzz-z-z-z-zzzz."

Dave the Dude smiled. "What do you think you're doin', Shakespeare?"

Shakespeare whispered, "I'm deceivin' 'em over to your piece, boss."

"Lay off. You draw enough flies as it is."

Everyone became still; only the buzzing of a fly was heard. Suddenly, the fly swooped down and landed on one of the pieces of sugar. A shout went up. It was the Greek's piece.

The Greek gloated. "Tough luck, Dude. That's fifteen hundred you owe me."

The crowd dispersed and the Dude and his two henchmen stood up. They walked to the lobby, threw their checks to the girl and received their hats and coats.

"I knew I shouldn't bet without my apple. I got to find Annie," said the Dude, as he slipped into his coat.

Happy scowled. "You're not gonna start sparchin' for her now!"

"Listen, Happy—this is gonna be one of the biggest stud games I ever sat in. I ain't takin' any chances. Look what just happened to me. I even lost to the Greek."

"Did I ever tell you," said Happy, "about the guy that was superstitious about a hunchback? One day he's out searchin' for him and gets knocked over by a truck."

"Yeah," broke in Shakespeare, "a feller was tellin' me it's hard luck to be superstitious."

"Go out and find Apple Annie," said the Dude sharply.

"Sure, Dude, that's just where I was goin'," Shakespeare started out.

"I'm a first class monkey," said Happy, "if I can see how you can win pots by buying an apple off an old dame."

"All right. So you're a first class monkey."

Missouri walked up to them. "If you can't find your apple," she said, "here's something for good luck."

She kissed Dude behind the ear.

"Cut it out, willya?" the Dude was embarrassed, not lemons, said Happy.

Missouri grimaced. "Hey, Happy, if you happen to break anything, be sure it's your neck."

As Dude and Happy walked out the door they were confronted by Apple Annie.

"Hello, Annie," the Dude smiled.

"Hello, Dude. Haven't kept you waiting, have I?"

Dude selected an apple from her basket. The wrinkles in Apple Annie's face deepened as she grimaced. The Dude reached into his pocket for a bill.

"You got a great racket, Annie," Happy scowled. "Get a couple more suckers like the Dude and you can retire in a year."

"Pull your chin up, Happy. You're liable to slip on it," retorted Annie. The Dude handed her a bill. "Never mind the change."

"Bless you, Dude. How'd you do last week?"

"Okay." The Dude's tone became rough. "But where were you Saturday? Couldn't win a race?"

"I wasn't feelin' so good Saturday."

"Drinkin' again, huh?"

Annie's face was a mask of innocence. "Who? Me? Why, Dude, I haven't touched a drop in weeks."

"Well, cut it out. Doc Michel says your kidneys are all shot."

Annie flared up. "Doc Michel don't know what he's talkin' about."

Happy barked impatiently. "If you two are gonna discuss Annie's kidneys—"

The doorman touched his cap. "Your car's here, Dude."

Shakespeare, breathless, ran up to the group. "I couldn't find her, boss," he panted. Then he saw Annie. "Oh, here you are. Uh—Dude wants to see you."

"Nice work, Shakespeare," said the Dude. "Well, shoo, Annie." Shakespeare followed.

"I'll bet the cards treat you right tonight," said Annie.

Happy leaned out the window. "Oh, they'll treat him right. I'll tell them Dude bought an apple from Annie."

The powerful car eased into the heavy Broadway traffic. Annie tucked the money Dude had given her into her bosom, then ambled away. She rounded the corner and stopped before an electric sign which blazed to the world, "Hotel Marlberry."

Two uniformed footmen stood on either side of the door. Well-groomed people walked in and out. Smart, low-cut evening gowns, top hats, ebony canes— the Hotel Marlberry was indeed exclusive.

Annie walked past the long concourse and made her way to the employees' entrance in the alley. An old porter came to meet her at the door.

"Did you get it?" Annie asked guardedly.

Oscar, the porter, nodded. "Don't I always get it?"

He looked around surreptitiously, then extracted some paper from his pocket. "Classics, stationery in the house," he said.

Annie held out her hand. "Thanks, Oscar."

"This bunch is going to cost you fifty cents."

Annie was aghast. "Fifty cents? You never charged me more'n two bits."

"It's conditions, Annie. People don't leave things in their rooms any more. Gee, it's gotten so I hafta buy my own toothpaste."

Annie was genuinely sympathetic. "Why, that's awful, Oscar. Things'll get better, though."

"Yeah, I guess so. When you expectin' another letter?"

"There's a mail boat from Spain tomorrow."

Oscar nodded. "Okay, I'll watch but for it."

"That's a good boy. And I'll pay you end of the week."

"Yeah. Don't forget it. If they catch me stealin' letters for you, I'd get fired."

Fear came into Annie's eyes. "Oh, no—you musn't get fired!"

"Well, if they catch me—say, who you gettin' all these letters from, anyhow?"

"None of your business," Annie snapped, as she started away.

Oscar called after her. "A heavy lover, huh?"

Annie looked back over her shoulder. "Yeah. That's it. A heavy lover."

Says American Men Ordinary

HOLLYWOOD, (UP).—Mlle. Jacqueline Franca, a petite brunette with elfish eyes, believes Hollywood has the finest climate and the most beautiful women in the world—but the men and food are below par.

Mlle. Jacqueline, appearing with Maurice Chevalier in the French version of "The Way to Love," is impressed by the conviction that "every woman on the boulevard is a potential show girl."

"They all have such nice figures and are so chic and happy," she puts it.

"And to think," she adds, "I can indulge here the year around in my favorite sport, outdoor swimming."

"Food? Well, it's too substantial. I prefer ours and our leisurely manner of consuming it."

Insofar as concerns the local supply of homo sapiens, the actress confesses she has seen little of them.

"But," she says, "they seem too busy and—shall I say—a bit abrupt. Then, too, all of them dress alike."

The Mlle., born the first year of the war, remembers little of it, and hence she has none of the sadness of the generation before her that saw all the horrors of conflict.

In the last four years she has appeared only in light opera and musical comedy. Her role with Chevalier is her first serious endeavor, unless one could count a tour of the country five years ago with her father, Fernand Franca, who was an concert, as they say.

LEAGUE TO GET A NEW PALACE

GENEVA, (UP).—The exterior of the league's new $5,000,000 palace, the world's largest parliament building, capable of housing over 3,000 statesmen, diplomats, experts, officials, pressmen and public, is completed.

The building, which is about the same size as the Palace of Versailles, will be ready for occupancy in August, 1935, at which time the secretariat will be moved from its present cramped home in the Hotel National.

Over 300,000 sacks of cement, 700,000 bricks and 4,700 tons of steel girders have been used in the construction of the League Palace. It measures 572,000 cubic yards in volume and contains 38,400 cubic yards of French, Italian, and Swiss masonry placed against 500,000 tons of reinforced concrete.

The general lines of the League Palace represent an extreme simplification of classical Roman architectural tendencies.

Around the assembly hall, like boxes at an opera and only just above the heads of the diplomats, are a series of rooms exclusively for the use of movie men and press photographers. Behind the presidential chair of the assembly, a tall screen will probably be built with letters "SDN" in gold with blue background.

Pressmen have been well provided for in the new palace. They have three bars, 50 telephone boxes, 676 seats in the assembly and council halls, two big writing rooms, two telegraph offices, radio office, broadcasting studio and 55 information offices.

American architecture has influenced the construction of the new League Palace, according to Julian Flegenheimer, Geneva architect and first prize winner with Nimet, Paris, for a design for the new league home.

Slingshot Fails to Finance His Career

OAKLAND, Cal. (UP).—Jack London first sought to finance his literary career by hunting wildcats—with a slingshot.

This was revealed by Frank L. Atherton, Oakland violinist and boy-hood chum of the famed writer, in writing his memories of his literary chum. Atherton has prepared a manuscript which soon will be sent to eastern publishers.

Atherton and London perfected small leaden slugs which could be propelled from slingshots, and they planned to hunt wildcats and sell the meat to the Chinese, who were willing to pay premium prices.

"If we found our enterprise to be a paying proposition," Atherton said, "we both planned to quit school and after we had amassed a small fortune by 'wildcatting,' we expected to afford private teachers."

Then Jack could make a shortcut to success as an author and I could enter a conservatory of music."

Somehow the leaden slugs failed to bring down the cats—or, at least, the youthful hunters found none.

Mr. President!

The Humble Oil & Refining Company and its 10,000 employes subscribe without reservation to the NRA Code for the Oil Industry; we know that the principle behind your recovery program is not an experiment but a proved success.

The NRA Code for the Oil Industry lays down the broad principles of a "square deal" between employer and employe. The Humble Oil and Refining Company and its employes have recognized the soundness of these principles for many years, and insofar as it was practical for one company alone to do so, the Humble Company has put them into effect. The maximum hour week, minimum wage scales, and collective bargaining have been basic factors in Humble's management-employe relationship. In 1932 the Humble Company completed a progressive adoption of the five-day week, making it operative in all departments. Under this plan-- a leading feature of the President's recovery program-- personnel has been maintained at a maximum; hundreds have remained at work who must otherwise have been let out, and more people were put to work. In the year which has passed since the Company's adoption of the five-day week, personnel has been increased by more than 10 per cent. So we know from experience, Mr. President, that your recovery program is not an experiment but a proven success. It must be equally successful in its nation-wide application. We subscribe to it without reservation; we will follow the spirit as well as the letter of our code.

FORD EMPLOYEES BANNED FROM MARCH IN PARADE; MANUFACTURER IS SILENT

DETROIT, Aug. 31. (UP)—Employees of the Ford Motor company were barred from the NRA victory parade today because Henry Ford had not signed the automobile code permitting him to display the blue eagle.

Asked for his reaction if Ford should exceed the regular code in the matter of hours and wages, Johnson asserted that that would not be compliance and added: "The only way you can get people to act together is to get them to agree to act together. It does not make any difference what is done by an individual employer that he does on his own."

Asked if Ford would be classified as a recalcitrant, Johnson replied: "I hate to talk about Ford in this way in his absence. However, I have no discretion in the matter, it is in the law."

Johnson said Ford would not be required to join the automobile chamber of commerce if he signs the code but that he would have to open his books to the chamber to the extent that there is any opening of books."

What course he will adopt was not revealed here or at the summer White House, and it was assumed in official circles this would depend largely upon Johnson's report and recommendations.

"The code does not become effective until September 5, and if Ford should sign before then he would become eligible to display the NRA's Blue Eagle."

If he does not, Johnson told "Mayor of Hell"

Strong Drama of Reform Schools

"The Mayor of Hell," a Warner Bros. picture starring James Cagney, ending tonight at the Ritz theatre, is one of the most powerful and stirring dramas that has come to the notice of this reviewer in many a day.

Its fearless revelation of the shocking conditions that exist in a boys' reformatory governed by a political graft ring, is grimly realistic albeit intensely thrilling and dramatic.

The title of the picture is aptly expressive for it applies to a reformatory where boys are subjected to such mental and physical tortures as to embitter them and turn them into potential, if not actual, criminals, provided they live through their experience at all.

The deadly lash, the cat-o-nine-tails, and the solitary dungeon cell are the effective punishments for slight offenses while the daily routine is one of back breaking labor with food unfit to eat.

Madge Evans plays the leading feminine role, while Frankie Darro heads the cast of 500 juvenile players.

This picture should especially be seen by all young folks and their parents.

should be plowed shallow to a depth of four or five inches, or thoroughly disced. Immediately following the breaking of the soil it should be harrowed and the seed bed made as firm as possible to re-establish capillary attraction of the soil particles and to bring the moisture, if possible, to within 1-2 to 2 inches of the surface.

Where fertilizer is necessary, well rotted manure may be used, but quickly available commercial fertilizers are to be preferred at this time. This is so because of the relative slowness with which the plant food elements are made soluble in this season of comparative inactivity of the soil bacteria.

In purchasing seed for the fall garden it is advisable to secure one-fourth more seed for this planting than for the spring garden. The germination of seed at this season is poor, consequently, the extra quantity of seed will ordinarily be necessary to secure a good stand.

The dates for planting the vegetables in the fall garden depend upon the vegetable itself and the section of the state in which it is raised. Following is a list of vegetables suggested by Miss Miller for immediate planting here:

August—Cucumber, Can peas, Ladyfinger beans, Irish potatoes, Squash (bush).

September—Cabbage, Radish, Carrots, Beans (bush), Beets, Swiss Chard.

October—Spinach, Turnips (rutabaga), Kale, Lettuce, Mustard, Parsley, Onions.

Vegetables that will withstand light frosts are carrots, english peas, beets, lettuce, onions, radishes, Swiss chard, and turnips.

Vegetables that will withstand heavy frosts are collards, kale, rape, rutabaga, salsify, and spinach.

Tabulation Shows Midland Superior

Box scores for the Midland Stamford football series have been compiled by Jess Rodgers, official scorer during the past season of the North Texas league. In winning, Midland increased its all-season score against the Red Shirts to four games, with the margin in the state in the low show Midland had a superior club in most respects.

New Laws Aid Working Women

WASHINGTON. (UP)—More extensive regulations governing the welfare of women workers by state governments is indicated by a report of labor legislation during the six month period ended July 30.

New labor laws for women, or amendments to existing laws, were passed by at least 14 state legislatures, the bureau reports, with seven states setting machinery for creation of minimum wages.

Six of these states, New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Ohio, and Illinois passed laws similar in all essential points, patterning them after the model law advocated by the national consumers league while the seven others made changes in existing laws after the one in effect in California.

Two amendments to the existing Massachusetts law governing minimum wages for women were passed, both making the law more effective and more easily enforced. A minimum wage bill failed of passage in Rhode Island, but a legislative committee was set up to investigate working conditions and devise a bill for presentation to the next legislature.

Changes in maximum hour laws for women were effected in six states. A legal maximum of eight hours per day and 48 hours per week was carried in New Mexico and Wyoming for women workers, while Connecticut, Minnesota, North Carolina and Texas made various changes to existing statutes.

Breadline Here Assists the Poor

Midland has maintained a breadline during the summer, though few knew of it.

Almost every morning, W. F. Carroll of My Bakery distributes day-old bread to those important members of the poverty stricken group, sometimes as many as 34 loaves.

"It is necessary that I check on all cases, however," Carroll said. "For a time I found there were several taking advantage of my offer. A woman, for instance, got bread every day, and I found out some members of her family squandered their RFC wages at recreational games.

Others, however, needed bread to hold body and soul together, and to these we have narrowed our attention. But we check closely on all beneficiaries every week, in an effort to make certain the most deserving persons are being aided."

Charge Dime-a-Look Over Colony

PHILADELPHIA. (UP)—Though officially nudism has been banned here, there is many an eye-fol for anyone satisfied with a long-distance appraisal.

This was learned recently when an official inquiry was made into the sudden popularity of a powerful telescope atop the 36-floor Philadelphia Savings Fund Society building.

The telescope is a dime-a-look affair. It is mounted on a movable platform, has adjustable lenses and can be trained in any direction. Mostly it is trained upon three or four house-tops where nudists have found their place in the sun.

Seldom is it seen pointing to any historic spot, of which there are many, and never does a visitor to the tower bother about looking via the telescope, at such mundane things as League Island, the Delaware River, or Camden, N. J. Since the existence of the sun worshippers on near or remote house-tops has been revealed, all other attractions have been overlooked.

HOG SHIPPERS MEET

County Agent O. P. Griffin was in Midland Thursday to meet with farmers and hog shippers. Several hog shippers obtained information on forwarding their hogs to the Fort Worth market under the government bonus plan.

In spite of the Processing Tax, etc., we offer a better cotton blanket, size 72x80, in pretty pastel plaids, at $1.35 the pair. Last year this same blanket in size 66x80 sold at $1.25. The larger size is only a dime more.

We offer a big (70x80) sateen bound, three and a half pound, part wool double blanket at $2.50, that last year brought $2.95 the pair.

We offer Fields No. 3011, 40 per cent wool size 70x80, a blanket that we have sold hundreds of pairs of right here in Midland at $4.85, and have never offered this before for less than $3.50. This year it is priced at $3.50 the pair.

We offer the famous Stylepark hats, for 90c LESS this year than these have ever been sold for. Last year, $4.85, this year, $3.95 and twice as many to select from.

SHOES are not high. We are still selling Friendly Five shoes for $5.00 in spite of the fact that they must bring six when we buy again.

Ladies' shoes are priced at identically the same prices for the same quality as last fall.

School shoes are priced just the same as a year ago.

THIS STORE BOUGHT MERCHANDISE EARLY and we have checked in thousands of dollars worth of Fall Merchandise before there was an advance.

We believe that a legitimate profit is all any one is entitled to and this store passes the savings we have made on to our customers.

We tell you frankly, that we don't know what is ahead of us. We do know that when present stocks are gone, we will have to pay much more for merchandise, but we believe that at this time, this store will sell you GOOD merchandise for less than any store in West Texas (or any place else).
