

Invisible Specs Are Latest Fads

LONDON. (UP)—The person who has had eyesight, but hates wearing frame, or pincez glasses, now may have invisible spectacles made for each eye.

This entirely new departure in optical wear is now on the market here. Each eye-piece is a tiny, shell-like slip of glass, slightly larger than a dime, fitting directly on top of the cornea of the eye, under the lid, and adhering to it by suction. "Contact glasses" is the name of the new invention. They positively cannot be seen even at close range.

The average eyepiece costs about $25 each, but prices vary according to the lens required. It is impossible, however, to just walk in to the opticians and buy a pair right away. They are supplied only to the prescription of an ophthalmic surgeon. The adoption of these contact glasses would be quite a delicate business at first. Each eyepiece is gripped by suction of a little rubber bulb which comes away when pinched, leaving the eye covered with the thin, transparent scrap of glass that cannot be felt, even with the eyelid. The glass is withdrawn in a second and adhering to it by suction. "Contact glasses" is the name of the new invention. They positively cannot be seen even at close range.

Big Spring Steers Down to Business

BIG SPRING—High school football players, some of whom already have been working out, started preliminary exercises this past week under the direction of Coach Obie Bristow.

The line will not be a major worry for the time being at least, as a group of hefty reserves will make a formidable wall. Bob Flowers will fill the pivot position in the place of the veteran Dyer.

There are a number of likely prospects for the backfield, although most of them are light and have very little experience.

George Brown will return to coach the line which will average better than six feet in height and more than 170 pounds. The Steer mentor is working for passing perfection.

"Heroes for Sale" Is Barthelmiss Role

The picture that is rated as the finest Richard Barthelmiss characterization of the past few years comes to the Ritz Theatre for preview Saturday night, Sunday and Monday. It is the First National production, "Heroes for Sale," a story of love, romance and depression.

While telling an entertaining story, the picture also graphically details a man's struggle through the post-war period and the present era. The story opens with the World war in which Barthelmiss is severely wounded, carrying his afflictions with him into the life he resumes at home. The veteran's ups and downs in his attempts at rehabilitation, the callous indifference of employers and civic officials to his plight, and the problems that have faced the unemployed men during the present time all form an integral part of this vivid, realistic story which paints things as they are.

The element of romance mingles with tragedy and comedy in lifelike proportions. The important role of the girl was assigned to beautiful Loretta Young.

compelled to sit on Carver's lap for a drive of several miles. Carver then was forced out of the car and was shot when he hesitated in obeying an order to start walking in the woods.

The negroes then drove on with Miss Prince. When they stopped, Thurman said, his brother asked him to turn the car around. That done, he said, Bluit told him he had killed the girl.

No trace was found of the watch or contents of Miss Prince's purse which the negroes took away with them.

The couple had started to return to the girl's home after a trip to Dallas when the negroes came upon them. They had gone together many months, Miss Prince's family said.

Upon leaving the home of friends here Carver drove to the ice plant where he was employed and told his fellow workers he would return at about midnight after he had taken Miss Prince home.

When he failed to appear for his regular midnight to 8 a. m. tour of duty, a friend began looking for him. Apprised at his home that he had not returned, he notified officers and the search began.

A young man riding a bicycle to his work in a cotton field just before daybreak heard cries from the side of the road and upon investigation found Carver in bushes and brush. His clothing was covered in blood.

CITRUS SEASON STARTS TODAY

McALLEN, Sept. 1. (UP)—The lower Rio Grande valley opened the Texas citrus shipping season today.

More than 5,000 persons had employment operating one of the Southwest's most important agricultural industries which has physical properties valued at more than $125,000,000 and expected to produce more than $5,000,000 of marketable merchandise during the eight-month shipping season.

The valley faces its most promising citrus season. Commercial shipment of citrus fruit from Texas first began in 1921-22. It was not until 1923-24 that citrus began moving in large quantities. A half-dozen conditions indicate nothing short of a catastrophe can prevent valley growers and shippers from reaping a handsome profit this year.

A bumper crop, estimated by experienced citrus men to total from 10,000 to 16,500 cars as compared with the average yield of 14,000 cars is forecast. Care has been taken to prevent glutting of citrus markets and price collapses. For the first time in the history of the industry, there is co-operation between independent shippers and the big co-operative marketing agencies. This has been brought about by rules and regulations under the Texas citrus standardization act and extension of the national citrus code. Rigid control of fruit grades and fruit movements will be exercised by state and federal officials.

Careful preparations for marketing the crop have been made. The Rio Grande Valley Citrus exchange, with headquarters at Weslaco, has local associations in as many citrus-producing sections. The Texas Citrus Fruit Growers' exchange of Mission has local organization in half a dozen valley communities. The Rio Grande Valley Citrus Growers' association operates in the Mercedes community. The three co-operatives last year handled about one-third of the total crop. They have made wholesale contacts to all parts of the United States and to world-wide citrus markets.

Extension of the shipping season by the Texas department of agriculture and the United States department of agriculture from a five-month season to an eight-month season was brought about by cooperative efforts of growers and the two departments in extermination of the Mexican fruit fly.

Senators and Giants Clash Is Natural Card

By HENRY SUPER

United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, (UP)—One of baseball's "naturals" that are few and far between will occur this Fall if the Senators and Giants clash in the World Series.

Nine years ago these teams met in the battle for the world championship and the Senators won—four games to three—in what was considered the most thrilling and closely-fought World Series in history.

Senators Repeated

Since 1924 the Giants have not won a pennant, while the Senators repeated in 1925 only to lose in the inter-league battle to the Pirates.

Now, with the season almost over, it seems as if these teams will fight it out once more.

But it will be a different cast in this year's drama.

Of the players who participated in the 1924 series only five are with these teams—two with the Giants and three with Washington.

Terry Manager Now

Bill Terry, who helped George Kelly cover first base for the Giants in 1924 now is managing that outfit and his leadership, as well as batting and fielding, is one of the main reasons the New York team is so near the pennant. Travis Jackson, now almost through as a major-leaguer, is still with New York, but he isn't as spry as he was against Washington in the meeting. His place at shortstop has been filled by a younger star, "Blondy" Ryan.

Washington has Ossie Bluege at third base, "Goose" Goslin and Sam Rice, outfielders, left from the 1924 team. Its manager, Joe Cronin, is a comparatively young player who replaced the veteran Walter Johnson.

He, like Terry, also is given much credit for putting Washington on top.

A Greater Advantage FOR FOOD BUYERS

Effective Saturday night, September 2, our Number One store is being closed and consolidated with the Number Two store.

Under the new arrangement we will carry a larger stock of both staple and fancy groceries in the building which has housed the Number Two store. We will have a larger sales force in both the store and the market and will be able to give better and more systematic service.

In addition to this, our overhead expense will be greatly reduced, having all of our grocery and market business under one roof. We will be able in this way to pass the savings on to our customers in the way of lower prices, every day in the year.

We greatly appreciate the patronage we have had at the Number One store on Main street and earnestly solicit a continuance of your trade at our Number Two store at 200 West Texas avenue. New customers are invited to give us a trial at our Number Two store.

We will carry in our market the very best meats to be had and hope to please the most exacting housewife, both with quality meats and service.

"Tugboat Annie" Is Coming to Yucca

Screen fans, who have been clamoring for a return to the screen of Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery ever since "Min and Bill" will have their wish granted at the Yucca theatre, where "Tugboat Annie" with the beloved Marie as the redoubtable feminine tugboat skipper of Puget Sound, is coming at a preview Sat. night, and for regular showings Sunday and Monday.

Based on Norman Reilly Raine's Saturday Evening Post stories, filmed on actual locales, with real thrills of ship rescues in storms, and the amazing feat of Beery who repairs a boiler, by going into a blazing firebox at sea, the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture shows the pair in comical quarrels, mingled with episodes of poignant heart interest.

Mervyn Le Roy, who directed "I Am a Fugitive" and other hits, directed the picture, adapted to a preview Sat. night, and for regular showings Sunday and Monday.
