CRIME CONTROL DOESN'T END WITH ARREST

Few Americans are apt to quarrel with Attorney General Cummings' plea that broad powers be given the federal government to move against gangsters, kidnapers, racketeers and other criminals.

The offensive against organized crime, somehow or other, has taken on new life in recent months. A nation that looked on its crime record with more or less complacency for a long time seems at last to be determined to do something about it.

The program suggested by Mr. Cummings probably will meet a sympathetic reception.

But it is worth remembering that such a program, in itself, isn't nearly enough.

We need to broaden our powers to catch criminals, surely; but we need also—and we need it very badly—to do something effective about the problem of handling them after we have caught them.

The best crime detection service in the world can be no stronger, in the last analysis, than the criminal court into which it feeds its product.

And it would take a very great optimist to say that our criminal courts today are anywhere nearly as effective as they ought to be.

The American criminal court is cursed by many things; by archaic rules of procedure, which give the criminal all the breaks; by politically minded judges, who periodically must run for re-election; by a jury system which too frequently keeps off the panel any man who is aware even moderately of what is going on in the world about him; by a vast horde of unscrupulous attorneys who will stop at nothing to get their clients off, and whose only question, when a case is offered him, is, "How much is there in it?"

If we had the best federal and municipal police systems on earth, we still would come up against this criminal court barrier.

We still would find smart lawyers interposing delay after delay between arrest and trial, until the case against the criminal collapsed of its own weight. We still would find judges granting continuance after continuance to defendants who "had an in."

We still would find the machinery of paroles and suspended sentences being perverted by politicians against the public good. We still would find juries being fixed, witnesses being tampered with, and legal technicalities being used to block the course of justice.

Before we can make real headway in our war on crime, we must overhaul our criminal court system—and the overhauling must be pretty drastic.

Two quinquains (after the modern manner) for no ascertainable reason:

Too many lawyers, doctors,
Engineers, farmers, everything!

"Provocation a Mystery," says a headline over a report of the Austrian bloodshed. It's that way with armed strife. No sooner does the smoke clear away than one fact becomes clear—that it is not clear what the fighting was about.

Strange, but when guns are lying about there seem no other ways of reaching agreement.

It takes one finger to start a war and perhaps the sacrifice of millions of human lives and the efforts of all the world's wisest men to stop it.

Washington writer suggests the formation of a third party. What name can we give Huey Long?

die immediately sat up and began blinking his eyes.

Believe it or not taken from a newspaper: In McAllen, Texas, Charles J. King, undertaker's assistant about to be married, was offered by his employer as long a honeymoon as he wished with all expenses paid, if he would deliver a corpse to Stillwater, Minn., in the course of it. King and his bride set off in the undertaker's truck with the corpse, delivered it, and then continued on their honeymoon.

An old believe-it-or-not: The King of Siam used to present a white elephant to the courtiers whom he wished to ruin. As the elephant was sacred, it could not be disposed of in any way, and the expense of keeping it usually proved sufficiently disastrous.

A negro who was more or less wayward was talking to his pastor about the temptation that Satan places in the paths of men and women. The pastor grunted. "Yes," he said, "folks make me tired representin' Satan as running after dem to tempt dem. De truth is, my friend, dere is so many people pullin' at de debil's coat-tails dat he ain't got much time to chass nobody."

Laredo to Become Divorce Center of The United States

LAREDO—This border city is out to make itself the divorce center (Mecca) of the United States and to draw to Texas and through Texas these swarms of people who heretofore have been going to Reno, Nevada, and to other Mexican points for release from marriage ties that have become unendurable. Tamaulipas which is the Mexican state across the Rio Grande from Laredo has just passed a new law which more effectually meets the requirements of Americans desiring divorce than does any other anywhere. It provides divorce without the necessity of coming to Mexico on the part of those seeking it. They can get decrees that deny all legal attacks while staying quietly at home. They can get them quickly and economically with the records sealed against publicity. When this opportunity presented itself at its very door Laredo decided that if these easy divorces are to be granted the money might as well go to Texas as some other community. It therefore has created the Mexican Divorce Institute with its headquarters in Laredo's biggest hotel, the Hamilton, and from that center is answering inquiries from all over the country as to methods of procedure in making use of these new divorce opportunities. It is explained that other Mexican states such as Yucatan, Morelos and Sonora have, for some time, had laws that provide easy divorce of the Mexican type. The number of Americans who have taken advantage of these laws has steadily increased. They have been turning gradually away from Nevada and toward Mexico. Now it has come to pass that Mexico provides more divorces for Americans than does Nevada. Laredo is the logical gateway into Mexico, nearest point of contact by means of those great arteries of travel, the Mexican National Railway and the new Pan American automobile highway, quickest reached by mail by the mass of Americans. Nevo Laredo, across the handsomest concrete bridge on the Rio Grande, is one of the most picturesque and romantic of Mexican towns. It is here that the court is situated and applies the new Tamaulipas law. The Mexican Divorce Institute tells anybody who wants to come in person to Laredo to get a divorce just what preparations to make. Under the Tamaulipas law and the constitution of Mexico marriage is a simple civil contract. It is handled as is any other civil contract. The marriage certificate constitutes the contract. To get it before the court it is not necessary to file the marriage certificate or a certified copy of it. The document may be brought down personally or power of attorney may be sent to a lawyer entitled to practice before the court. Under the latter circumstances the applicant for a divorce does not appear. If the other party to the marriage is willing that the divorce should issue he also sends a power of attorney. The Mexican court holds that when both parties want the contract, which is the marriage, broken, the divorce should issue with no further question. It may be secured in a single day after the papers are filed. But, possibly, one party to the

Women Travel in Safety in Mexico

HARLINGEN (AP)—Mrs. A. C. Baker, a resident of Mexico City, while here recently, told of a two months' journey she made through the southern republic in company with Dr. Sally Hughes-Schraeder, cytologist of Columbia university, New York. The two women scientists made the journey on horseback, cooking over camp fires and sleeping in the open. Mrs. Baker said. They traveled across the roughest section of Mexico down to the isthmus of Tehuantepec, east through the mahogany forests and north along the eastern lowlands. Mrs. Baker said the country was orderly and safe and Dr. Schraeder traveled in complete safety. Mrs. Baker has a modern chemical laboratory adjoining her home in Mexico City. Dr. Baker, her husband, was sent

Bull Session Held in Lieu of Base Ball Meeting; but Pyron All Primed

BY R. C. HANKINS
Joe Pyron, that colorful gent who bears most of the brunt of managing a baseball club hereabouts this year, must have smoked "Ball" most of his natural life. There's no drawing on the bag of his baseball story reporter.

At a bull session that of necessity passed for a baseball meeting Friday night, he gave one and sundry to understand that baseball is just what it's cracked up to be—a madley of hard work, matched wits and amusing incidents.

It is down at Waco (Pyron now has the floor and he's got his hat rakishly cocked) and Art (The Great) Shires is out there on first, manfully struggling to lift himself by his own bootstraps out of the rookie division. He works hard and says little, remembering that was several years before. But the big had wolf appears on the scene and starts huffing and puffing, which makes Mr. Shires very sad indeed.

There's nothing Mr. G. the great catcher with the ham-like hands doesn't think of—and he says even more that that. Finally, it gets so bad Mr. Shires has to forget baseball and get out of there.

Mr. Shires: Them's pretty hard words, Mr. G.
Mr. G.: So you can't take it, eh?
Mr. Shires: Go ahead and dish it out: this is the last practice session you'll ever see.

Mr. G.: Oh yeah? But the big had wolf appears on the scene and starts huffing and puffing, which makes Mr. Shires very sad indeed. There's nothing Mr. G. the great catcher with the ham-like hands doesn't think of—and he says even more that that.

What Has Happened
Ellie Andrews marries King Westley. Alexander Andrews, her father and powerful financier, promptly kidnaps Ellie on the day of her wedding, threatening to have the marriage annulled. He feels that Westley is marrying for money.

CHAPTER II
Peter grimaced. "I'm not that much interested. You, King Westley, your father, he all a lot of hokey to me."

Eight o'clock that night found them both on the bus again, bound for New York. This time, they had separate seats.

Alongside Ellie sat a Mr. Shapeley—a very talkative Mr. Shapeley. Talk was Mr. Shapeley's offerings to the Gods—for he was a traveling salesman. He looked down at Ellie's perfectly-turned ankles, then at her perfectly-molded calves, then up until his eyes beheld a perfectly perfect nose.

His smooth oratory suddenly stopped when Ellie snipped, "I love you, me, you bore me to distraction!"

Shapeley guffawed. He liked a woman "who fought."
"Hey, you!"
Shapeley's laugh died in his throat. He looked up dumbly into Peter's menacing face.

Peter pointed toward his own seat. "There's a seat over there for you."
"What's the idea?" demanded Shapeley.
"I'd like to sit with my—uh—wife—if you don't mind."

OKLAHOMA CITY BASEBALL CLUB IN NEED OF CATCHER, RIGHT HANDERS

BY SAM D. HALES
United Press Staff Correspondent
OKLAHOMA. (UP)—The Oklahoma City Indians were looking for an experienced catcher and right-handed pitching strength today as they prepared for their second Texas league season.

convinced of the need for speed and high quality baseball if they are to finish high up in the standings. They were collar holders last year. The prospective roster includes 22 players, divided as follows: two catchers, both rookies; eight pitchers, five of them southpaws; eight infielders; four outfielders. Contracts went out several weeks ago and were coming in with signatures at a steady pace.

Star players from sandlot teams within a 100-mile radius of Fort Worth have asked for tryouts, Pratt said. Just how many of these can pay their own is uncertain, Pratt said, but many of them offered to do so.

Who May Obtain a Loan

To be eligible for a loan, an applicant must be a farmer. The term "farmer" includes an individual, partnership, or corporation engaged in the business of farming or of breeding, raising, or fattening of livestock.

The majority of loans are made in accordance with the popular song "By a Waterfall."

for periods not exceeding 12 months. They are intended to be of a self-liquidating character and in each case will mature at the anticipated time for marketing the crops or livestock through the sale of which the loan is expected to be repaid.

Each borrower is required to own class B stock in the association of a fair book value, not exceeding part equal to $5 for every $100 or part of $100 he borrows.

Class A stock is nonvoting and is preferred as to assets in case of liquidation. Both class A and B shareholders participate equally in dividend distribution and are not subject to any stockholders' liability.

Tyler Man Jarred Out of Somnolence By Deer on Street

TYLER (U.P.)—Jessie Ridings of Tyler pulled up an easy chair near a window overlooking a street in front of his home and settled down for a quiet restful afternoon.

For further assurance that he was not suffering from some hallucination, Ridings again blinked his eyes and shook his head, then took another look to see if any pink elephants followed the deer.

Ridings jumped from his car, grabbed the animal around the neck and dragged it into a garage. Then the fun began, with the kicking and shouting, that caused someone to call the police, Ridings managed to hog-tie the captive.

Baseball Prospects At TCU Said Good

FORT WORTH (U.P.)—With 10 lettermen returning from last year's championship squad, Texas Christian university's baseball prospects will be the brightest in several seasons when training gets under way here March 1.

The largest array of baseball talent, with 25 contenders expected to report, will provide the material from which Coach Dutch Meyer will assemble his team.

Texas Christian nosed out Texas university for the title last year, largely through the mastery work of Hershel Kinzy, Texas Christian mound ace, who again will lead the Frogs' pitching staff.

For catchers Meyer has Wallace Meyers, Jackboro football and basketball star, and Fred Miller from last year's squad.

Besides these Boaz Hoskins, Fort Worth pitcher, and Bill Hudson, Newark, outfielder, are squadmen from last year who did not letter.

At least six outstanding sophomores will compete with the veterans for regular places in the infield and outfield, including Jimmy Lawrence, football star from Harlingen.

Only four conference schools, Texas, A. & M., Baylor and Texas Christian, will compete in baseball this year, Meyer said.
