Serves as Field Representative

AUSTIN, (U.P.)—H. F. Alvey, director of research and accounting of the state department of education, is serving as special field representative of the Federal Emergency Relief administration. His work is in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arizona and New Mexico.

The emergency education program will provide aid in the form of teachers' salaries to keep the public schools open a normal term with the present teaching staffs in communities of less than 5,000 population where the school units or districts have made a maximum financial effort to keep their schools going.

A normal school term has been defined as the period a school was open during the 1930-31 term.

Teachers now employed in the schools who have no income other than their salaries for teaching are eligible to receive payment from relief funds.

MIDLAND DROUGHT AREA PROMISED HIGHWAY AID IF STATE CONTRIBUTES

Andalusian Devil, Dance Scene, High Spots of Offering

The devil in a modern robe-benevolent and rakish, wise-cracking and somewhat a Cupid—visiting Alcaraz, Spanish hamlet transported for Monday evening to the stage of the high school auditorium.

His satirical appearance was not met in the least by having to tuck in his tail—for he had no tail! As for that, he had no horns either!

His only devilish moment was his choice of pitchforks when Spanish grandee felt nothing but an affair of honor would save his Andalusian pride. He had moments, however, plenty of them, and his puns were good. What he lacked in mythically approved appearance he made up at the last with a disappearance pleasing to the most exacting student—there was a flash of flame, the devil was suddenly gone, and a smell of brimstone (one fancied it that) hung over the audience.

Sophisticated conversation, good make up of characters, interesting plot, several spots of excellent acting coming to a focus in the constantly amusing interview between Alcaraz, Graham Brown, Don Julio, and his puns were good. What he lacked in mythically approved appearance he made up at the last with a disappearance pleasing to the most exacting student—there was a flash of flame, the devil was suddenly gone, and a smell of brimstone (one fancied it that) hung over the audience.

Following is the cast of characters: Casilda, Jessie Lou Armstrong; Dona Josefa, her mother; Helen Foster; Dona Maria, Dorothy Cummings; Isabella and Carmelita, daughters of Dona Maria, Eddie Blanche Cowden and Marcelle Scarborough; Don Ricardo, mayor of Alcaraz, Graham Brown; Don Julio, his son, Robert Rankin; Don Marco, friend to Julio, Robert Howe; Bonito, aide to the mayor, C. A. Goldsmith; Don Nicholas, Roy Skipper.

Singers Invited To Aid in Service

All Midland singers are invited to help with the sunrise Easter service at 6:30 Sunday morning at the high school auditorium. They are requested to come to the high school each remaining morning from 8:30 to 9 to rehearse the musical numbers to be used.

The high school chorus of 300 voices, the junior high school choir of 100, and the high school band of 50 will participate in the program. "It is earnestly desired that all the town singers come and help with the service," said Supt. W. W. Lackey. "A large number was present this morning, and plan to be back Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday mornings. This will serve as an urgent and cordial invitation to all who will come and take parts in the program."

Decorated Ravens Chase away Flight On Midland Farm

Had there been any doubt the adage "birds of a feather flock together" works both ways, a study of conditions on the M. W. Whitmire farm would be revealing.

Because two ravens were caught and decorated with white streamers they turned loose with others of their kind, the Whitmire farm suddenly drained itself of the voracious birds, the air being filled with decorated black streamers.

County Agent S. A. Debnam had planned to construct a raven trap on the Whitmire farm, hoping to interest many ranchmen and farmers in building similar inexpensive and effective traps.

SAM HAYS ALSO KILLED IN BAD HIGHWAY SMASH

Four Others Sent to Hospitals as a Result

By WENDELL BEDICHEK
ODESSA, March 27.—

Supt. J. A. Summerhill of the Monahans public schools and Sam Hays, insurance man of Pyote, were instantly killed today in a collision of automobiles six miles east of Pyote.

The Summerhill machine, being towed behind a car driven by a man named Estridge, member of the Monahans faculty, swung out into the center of the road as Estridge attempted to slow down when meeting a tourist car from Ohio, and the two cars met head on. Summerhill's car was reduced to a tangled mass of wreckage and both occupants were dead when removed. The Ohio tourists, two boxers and a woman, were only slightly hurt, the woman escaping with practically no injury. Their car was thrown off a 12-foot embankment. They were given emergency treatment at Pecos.

Two hitchhikers sitting on the rail of a bridge nearby were dashed from their perch and slightly injured. They were taken to Monahans for treatment.

Supt. Summerhill left his car at Pyote Monday night when it went "dead," and was returning with it to Monahans when the accident happened.

Arrangements had not been made this afternoon.

FISTIC CONTENDER To Begin Training

PORT WORTH, March 27.—Tony Herrera, El Paso Scotch-Mexican and Texas No. 1 contender for national fistic honors, will arrive in Fort Worth early next week to begin training for his junior welterweight championship battle with Barney Ross April 20. This will be the first world's title scrap ever staged in Texas.

For the past two weeks the challenger has been sojourning in the New Mexican mountains, communicating with nature and taking life easy. He is slated to leave the border city Sunday or Monday.

A rib, broken in training for a Pacific coast bout several weeks ago, is completely healed and will be "as good as new" in another week, Herrera wired Griffin, The skinny Mexican will begin working out immediately upon his arrival, taking light exercise at first and gradually slipping into the more rigorous routine of training. After a month's rest, his three weeks' training should put him in top shape for the match.

With the fight still a month away, tickets were put on sale last week with a record-breaking reservation list reported. There are only 7,000 of the pasteboards available but all seats are reserved and afford a clear view of the ring. Prices have been held down to $5.00, $3.50 and $2.50 and a sell-out is predicted.

FAMED BAZAAR MAY GO

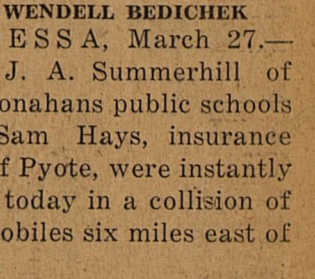

ISTANBUL, (U.P.)—It is proposed to destroy the vast Grand Bazaar at Stamboul, which is one of the chief points of interest for American and other foreign visitors. For centuries this maze of vaulted alleys, with crazy stone pavements and tiny shops, covering a square mile of Stamboul's heights, has been the scene of innumerable bargainings. The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

Up in part of the drought stricken country times got so hard that the printers printed the bank checks on bogs.

There used to be a farmer in this county who had a hook worm. Some bird came along and tried to sell him a book on better farming.

One man, who made reference to this column resembling a "barrow" pit, because I clip so much stuff, said the correct way to spell that word is "barrow" pit, meaning the ditch along the side of the road where wheel barrows can operate.

The weather prognosticators don't miss every time, contrary to what the public thinks. Take for instance yesterday. The approaching weather was so uncertain for West Texas that the bureau merely said "Partly cloudy."

GRIM REAPER SPURNED HIM

GILROY, Cal. (UP)—The grim reaper simply was not ready to take Daniel Conley. Three times he sought death, and each time he failed. He attempted to cut his throat with a knife, but it was too dull to inflict a fatal wound. Then he tried to sever the artery of his wrist, but could only inflict a surface wound. He found a rope and slung it across a branch of a tree after slipping a noose around his neck. But the rope broke, and Conley fell into a shallow creek, where he couldn't even drown.

Farm Column

Building a clothes closet out of scrap lumber and beaver board, Mrs. Floyd Countess Jr., wardrobe demonstrator of the Cotton Flat community, has provided adequate storage for her and her husband's clothes.

Shelves were made across one end for head-wear, foot wear and folded clothes, and a rod runs the full length of the closet for hanging clothes.

By using light paper inside, the lighting was improved.

There was no cash expenditure.

Woman's Part in the 1934 Cotton Adjustment Program

A radio talk by Mrs. Ola Powell Malcolm, Extension Service, delivered in the department of agriculture period, National Farm and Home hour:

"No nation can be great without thrift." So then, acres retired from growing cotton will need to be used in growing better and more food for the farm family and feed for the livestock used for producing food for the family. Judging from the estimates, many states have made more acres than those retired from cotton will be needed for growing food if cotton belt farm families produce, preserve and prepare on their farms an adequate variety and supply of foods.

A recent survey in one state where there are more than 200,000 farms, many of these operated by tenants, showed that 40,000 of them are now without milk cows; 30,000 without poultry, and more than half without hogs.

This live-at-home demonstration calls for the production of fruits, vegetables, and other food crops, and for the following livestock: 2 meat hogs, a flock of 50 hens, 1 beef animal, 4 milk cows, and if desired, a few sheep. Under average conditions such a program would call for the use of one-half acre in garden, one-half acre in orchard, 2 acres for such crops as sweet potatoes, melons, cane for syrup, and field peas, 6 acres for pasture in summer and small grain pasture in winter, 12 acres in grain crops, and 4 acres in hay and silage crops.

Such system will produce all the food needed for a family of five and all the feed required for the poultry, meat animals and workstock. It will hold cash expense down to about $100. That will be needed for buying cans and jars, sugar, coffee, some flour and spices, seed, medicines and incidentals.

Such an opportunity for securing the best quality of food is well worth while when we consider that if all food is bought it costs an average family of five about $600 per year if every member is properly nourished. Where the farm garden is not big enough to supply the needs of the family I suggest a family scheme of cooperation where the

Stavisky Scandal Wrecks Haunts of Paris Butterflies

PARIS, March 27. (NEA)—The death of "Sasha" Stavisky, unleashing Parisian passions and scandals unequalled since the founding of the Third Republic, also has left a trail of desolation in Paris night life. Some of the handsome swindler's former haunts have been closed, others are empty, and the city's celebrated gaiety has suffered in consequence.

A new sensation was provided when police swooped down on "Frolics" in the Rue de Gammonet near the grand boulevards that are Paris' gay ways. For it is believed that this former night club, the basement of which housed the notorious "Cercle Hippique," a private gambling club, was the scene of the plotting of the murder of Judge Albert Prince, an important witness in the Stavisky case.

Rendezvous of "Bandits" "Frolics" was a resort of bandits, according to Leon Daudet, one of a few courageous journalists who made grave charges regarding the place. "Some of these bandits," the royalist Daudet continued in his relentless attack on French republican political organization, "are high officials of the Surete Generale (The French Scotland Yard), others fences for stolen jewelry, others proprietors of evil resorts. It was from there that Stavisky and Hayotte took flight."

Theatre Attacked by Rioters Locked iron grilles shut off the entrance to Stavisky's theatre in the Avenue de Wagram and the big house is dark. Here the lovely Rita Georg sang and danced in "Katinka" while Stavisky's showman pal, Hayotte, coined money at the box office and touched other sums from the master-crook himself. When Paris burst into riotous fury early in February, the Empire was among the first places to feel the destructive passion of the mob.

Where Stavisky Met Friends Close by, near the Etoile, stood the little night club called "Rio Rita" in the rue Arsene-Houssaye. Here it has been reported, Stavisky used to meet his friends Rita Georg, Marianne Kupfer, Hayotte, the monogamous Teulon industrialist, Karl Busch-Bauer and Dubarry, editor of the ill-fated paper "La Volonte," which according to current accusations was run on Stavisky money—and had a decidedly pro-Hitler tinge.

"Rio Rita" is now closed. A small hand-written notice stuck in the window tells the story. Ugly curtains wall off the formerly charming bar from the sight of
