36 ATTEND FIRST SCHOOL LECTURE

Thirty-six were in attendance at 9:30 this morning when the initial session of the Red Cross home-serve hygiene course was held in the county court room.

The next class will be held from 9:30 until 10:30 Wednesday morning, rather than on Friday morning, it was announced this morning, when it was learned the instructor, Mrs. W. E. Ryan, would attend the state hospital meeting this week.

After this week, however, the classes will be conducted on regular dates, Tuesdays and Fridays.

Tells Experiences While Traveling in Foreign Countries

BIG SPRING.—With a two year stay in Europe abruptly cut to three days, Raymond Wolf, who says he has travelled 150,000 miles through 34 countries in the past few years as a vagabond traveler, stopped here Saturday enroute to Los Angeles.

After several years in the orient, Wolf said he returned to Los Angeles to write a book only to find that he lacked material to put into the volume.

So he slung his knapsack across his shoulder and made the east coast and Europe where he intended to live among peasants for two years.

He entered at Brussels and spent three days before he was sent back as an "undesirable," he said. Wolf blamed his khaki garb for his poor fortune. "They must have thought I was a spy."

The troubadour said he has spent the past week in Los Angeles, appearing before several organizations.

He has visited the Orient and participated in China holds most fascination for him.

Most of the Chinese, crowded by a mass of population, live in abject filth around Shanghai. "But if one sees behind all the dirt and filth," he added, "China holds a fascination not approached by any other country."

The northern and southern parts of China are very different, he continued. In North China there is little or no rice and bread is the principal fare, according to Wolf.

Japanese attempts at migration to Manchukuo have utterly failed in Wolf's opinion. Manchukuo is a situation which will force a show down by Japan in the Orient.

If China becomes solidly organized, he believes that overtures in that direction are now meeting with success. Japan will not be able to cope with the sleeping giant, he contends.

Success of Japan thus far, he thinks, is attributed to patriotism of the people who are willing to sacrifice most anything for the emperor and nation. Alarming expenditures, he asserts, have created a situation which will force a show down by Japan in the Orient.

He thinks that Britain is getting ready for it by strengthening her position in Shanghai.

United States, according to Wolf, is in a position to gain friendship of China because most of the budding leaders have been schooled in this country.

"I wish that the people of this country could realize the potentialities of sound trade relations with China," said he. "If the earning power of China were increased to about 30 cents a day we wouldn't be able to supply their needs."

But with all their dirt, backwardness, superstition, he declared, "I wish these have something we haven't got. They have peace of mind. They live happily with what they have and are contented."

Wolf puts in the best word for his native land. "The United States has and will continue to be for years to come the most enlightened country in the world. Its the best place to live."

TWO CHILDREN DIE IN FLAMES

KANSAS CITY, March 20. (UP)—Joe Shevovich, 3, and his brother, Frank, aged nine months, were burned to death today when their mother, Mrs. Lottie Chenoweth, threw kerosene into a stove while she was cooking breakfast.

Mrs. Chenoweth was critically burned. Neighbors found Mrs. Chenoweth praying on the porch, her clothing afire. The flames, spreading over the house, halted efforts to rescue the children.

Transformation of Valley Is Hurried

EAGLE PASS. (AP)—Two years ago Quemado valley was a dusty, mesquite and cactus studded region fronting the Rio Grande. Building of the gravity irrigation canal has transformed the 13,500-acre region into a green-checked agricultural district every week by settlers. Most of the newcomers are from West Texas.

Where only four poll taxes were paid in 1932, 230 were registered in 1934. Two communities of farm folk, one 12 and the other 15 miles north of Eagle Pass, are rapidly growing to town-size. Quemado, Texas, now has two lumber yards, three grocery stores, four garages and filling stations, a real estate office and a community meeting place. Lehmanville has 12 houses, a general store and a filling station. The valley is traversed by a 32-mile canal which is a part of the Del Rio highway.

One cross-road recently constructed between the Del Rio highway and the Brackettville highway bears the name of "Roosevelt Drive." Another now being graded by the county will be called "Garner Avenue."

Water for Quemado valley irrigation is brought by a 32-mile canal which takes it from the Rio Grande by gravity intake through three large steel gates. The gates shut out the river during floods.

FARMING'S A PLEASURE

LUBBOCK. (AP)—A. G. Sawyer, big cotton farmer near Seagraves, believes in comfort and speed.

Sawyer, who will plant 500 acres of cotton this spring, recently bought a new tractor with air-inflated tires and equipped it with lights and a radio. In a test run to try out his new equipment, Sawyer plowed 30 acres in five hours pulling a three-row lister at a speed in excess of five miles an hour.

DETROIT, March 20. (UP)—An automobile strike was called today by the American Federation of Labor for 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Hudson plant here unless the national administration and manufacturers make acceptable offers by tonight.

Meanwhile 750 workers of the Bower Roller Bearing company struck here, virtually tying up production.

WASHINGTON, March 20. (UP)—President Roosevelt today warned railroad managements and labor that unless they reach by speedy agreement on wage controversies it may be necessary for him to act in the public interest.

Meanwhile union leaders demanded a 20 per cent wage increase.

WASHINGTON, March 20. (UP)—Rail unions again defied the president today by insisting for a second time that the basic wages of more than a million employes be increased 10 per cent upon June 30. The railroads were told that the unions objected to any pay reduction.

WATSON TO MAKE REPORT OF TRIP

County judges of the so-called Midland drought area will hear a report from C. T. Watson Friday morning at 10 o'clock at the Bluebonnet hotel in Sweetwater on his trip to Washington to seek special relief.

The Midland county judge notified all follow judges of this area Monday of the Sweetwater meeting, and Mrs. Alice Phillips notified the judges nearest Big Spring. Watson, manager of the Big Spring chamber of commerce, was chosen by judges, mayors and chamber secretaries in session at Midland two weeks ago to go to Washington to seek special aid. The Midland judge, also selected to go, was prevented by illness.

Watson, fired back to Midland for data and supporting wires which were sent out by Midland and other counties affected. He will give the judges an account of his conferences at Washington.

STUDY, CONDITIONS

DALHART. (AP)—Rancher Boseman of South Africa, accompanied by W. H. Black of the U. S. department of agriculture, visited the Coon & Culbertson ranches in this territory recently to study range methods of cattle production. Coon & Culbertson are the world's largest producers of purebred Herefords.

Boseman and Black about two years ago in South Africa selected the Afghanistan breed of cattle now being raised with success by the King ranch on the South Texas coast. Boseman told H. Coon that aside from the Afghanistan breed the Brahma-Hereford cross developed by Coon & Culbertson does best in the Texas coast section. The Brahma-Hereford cross, he said, matured for market at two years while other breeds required from three to four.

NEW SCHEDULE

A new production schedule has been issued by W. R. Bowden, deputy supervisor for the railroad commission at Midland, covering the Itan and East Howard pool. The area has a total of 45 wells, potential is shown at 2,487 barrels and the allowable is 1,200 barrels per day.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

"To understand what happened to me, you must know a little about the Cossacks," she explained. "We have no troubles or rank except of the army. As a captain's daughter and a colonel's granddaughter, I had a French governess and a German nurse to look after me, but was brought up with the villagers because every Cossack believes himself the equal of anybody."

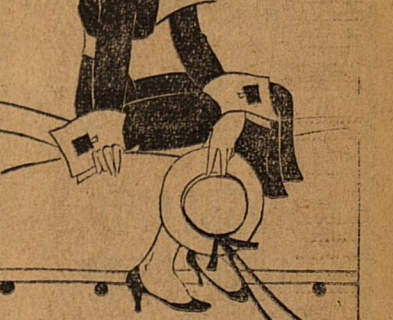

"So it was not strange that one bright summer morning, I should beg to be allowed to go to the fields with the workers and have my petition granted. I had done it many times before. But this was a fateful day."

"When we were in the fields, suddenly the church bells in the village started ringing wildly. We all ran toward the square. Then came the Cossack soldiers riding over the hills, crying 'War! War!' They were about to take train to fight for czar and country."

"I was large for my age and strong. I pushed ahead with the women toward the station. When they crowded into a train to follow their men to the battlefield, I wedged myself in, too. Nobody paid any attention to me."

"When finally somebody did ask questions, I said I had no mother and my father was in the train ahead—a soldier. It was not true, of course. My family were left behind in our village and I have never seen their place."

"I went on to a life so strange I went SOLDIER, page 4)

The Town Quack

There's a lot of improvement being done to lawns over town. The way this "dirt" is being spread reminds me of a newspaper men's convention.

The press is going to be color blind if it doesn't lay off of such subjects as the yellow peril, the red menace, the black shirts and the blue laws.

News develops fast. Take for instance the hurricane which starts up at midday and rates an inch paragraph in the news. By the next afternoon it is spread all over the front page with pictures of the damage.

An astronomer says that if the sun should explode it would give us only 133 hours to live. That would give the newspaper time for a lot of extras.

A successful editor is one who tells the truth so plainly that a large per cent of his readers stop the paper and borrow it from his neighbors. That is, he's successful from the editorial standpoint. However, to stay in business an editor

New Technique Marks New Film Showing at Ritz

A new and completely different screen technique is presented in the picture, "The Sin of Nora Moran," showing today only at the Ritz theatre. In an unusual and extremely effective manner this film has been beautifully directed by Phil Goldstone.

"The Sin of Nora Moran" is the life story of a young girl, raised by foster parents and left orphaned at the age of two. Nora is forced to fend for herself and she gets a job in a circus. She is brutally introduced to the art of love by another circus performer, a lion tamer, Paulino. She runs away from him and gets a job in New York, where she meets Bill Crawford, an influential lawyer and the prospective candidate for Governor. Bill and Nora fall in love and although, he cannot offer or promise her the sanctity of marriage, she finds happiness with him for the first time in her life. However, her happiness is short lived, since Paulino appears on the scene and doesn't waste any time in blackmailing Crawford. In an attempted assault of Crawford at Nora's home, Paulino is killed by Crawford. Nora takes the blame for the murder so that nothing will interfere with Crawford's career. Nora is tried and found guilty of murder in the first degree. She is sentenced to the electric chair and the picture opens with Nora writhing on her prison cot. Nora dreams of her sweet past and it is through this medium of the subconscious mind that the picture is unfolded. The climax is entirely out of keeping with the average movie ending. All in the picture is high above the standard of screen entertainment and in addition to its brilliant depiction in directorial skill it offers picture-goes splendid performances by Zita Johann, Alan Dinehart, Paul Cavanagh and the master villain, John Miljan.

Articles for Sick Needed in Closet

The health department is attempting in Midland today collect enough needed articles to complete a Loan closet. The purpose of this closet is to have a supply of articles needed by the sick and crippled and to allow them to borrow any article they need.

The articles on the following list are yet needed to complete the closet: crutches, a wheel-chair, six pairs of pillow cases, four pairs of sheets, a metal hot water bottle and an ice bag.

Donation of any one of these articles will be appreciated, members of the department said. Articles may be taken to the county nurse's office.

SOCIETY

Methodist Circles Hold Joint Meeting At Minter Home

Mrs. J. M. Prothro was hostess to all circles of the auxiliary of the First Methodist church Monday afternoon at the Kenneth C. Minter home.

Members of the Laura Haygood circle presented an interesting program which included a playlet, "When the Whistle Blows," taken from the mission study book lately completed by the auxiliary. Characters were Mmes. Everett Klebold, L. B. Hankins, Frank Prothro, Luther Tidwell, J. A. Andrews.

A dialogue discussion, "Does Brazil Constitute a Foreign Missionary Problem?" was conducted by Mrs. Iva M. Noyes and Mrs. Tidwell.

Mrs. Hankins, program leader, presented a devotional taken from Isaiah 56:6-7 and John 10:16.

Mrs. Jess Prothro, auxiliary president, conducted a business session during which first quarterly reports were made by auxiliary officers and circle chairmen.

Refreshments were served to approximately 50.

Health Board Meets, Tuberculosis Subject Discussed

A recent program of the Midland county health board meeting consisted of an outline of the history of tuberculosis, the organization and campaign of the National and State Health Board association, given by Miss Pansy Nichols, secretary of the State Tuberculosis association.

Tuberculosis is the oldest disease on record, as is proved by the discovery of the germs in Egyptian mummies. The same preventives, good food, fresh air and rest—were used in that time.

Very little was done about the disease in the Middle Ages. Later the discovery of tubercles and the fact that they preceded the disease caused an intensive study of the disease and scientists experimented with dogs and guinea pigs and proved that it was contagious. Still later it was proved that the disease in animals was different from that which human beings had.

A national association was organized with the objectives—study, prevention and cure of tuberculosis. In 1915, the National Board of Directors began in the schools and developed the "Modern Health Crusade."

The two main committees of the association are the research committee and the social committee. The social committee has found the death rate among young women is much higher than among young men.

Each year in April, Health week includes vigorous campaigns against tuberculosis. Plans for further study and campaigns among the negroes and Latin Americans are being made.

Man Has Complete Collection of Eggs

WESLACO.—What is said to be a complete collection of eggs of the birds on the North and South American continents is owned by D. A. Cleveland, citrus orchardist who lives near Weslaco. He has over 1,000 specimens said to represent every species of bird in the western hemisphere.

The largest egg is ten inches in circumference and the smallest could be placed inside a locket. Cleveland also has a large collection of ancient firearms and war clubs. Along with aboriginal weapons he has a number of African and South American idols. The valley man, who moved here some years ago from Michigan, is an expert taxidermist and has a large number of mounted animals.

RAFFLE DIDN'T HELP HIM
 FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP)—Fined $20 for drunken driving after his automobile had hit a traffic stand, injuring a policeman, Stanley Hughes raffled off his automobile among his friends and the tickets netted him $22. Then, before he could pay his fine, somebody stole the money.

The bamboo plant has been known to grow 18 inches in one day, and reaches a height of 116 feet.

What Has Happened

Nana, girl of the shadows of Paris in 1868, just before France entered the Franco-Prussian war, has been made into a sensational actress by Greiner, the owner of the Apollo theatre. Greiner in the meantime has made Nana his plaything, threatening her with discharge and ruin if she doesn't accede to his demands. Now she is in her summer villa next door to George Muffat, a handsome young soldier who is her real love. He lives with his brother, Andre Muffat, a moral prig, who is also a soldier, and his wife and child. Nana and George meet each other every night in her rooms. George wants her to marry him, but she wants to burn her candle at both ends by keeping George as her lover, unbeknownst to Greiner, and also keeping Greiner as her employer—and, when he insists, posing as his sweetheart. George has just left Nana, in the early morning, after one of their love-filled nights.

final... and if you're wise you won't forget it.

Andre stamped out, leaving George alone with the realization that, as a soldier, he must report to his commanding officer.

Later in the morning Nana had a surprising visitor. It was Andre. He walked into Nana's room while she was still in bed, dressed only in her sheerest nightgown, with her soft rounded contours plainly visible through the gown.

Andre bowed.

"I felt almost from the first," he said, "that I should be obliged to make this call. So this morning I told my brother a few facts—realizing that he would accept them as facts and act accordingly."

"You told George what?" Nana asked.

"I know you are too sensible to think otherwise," said Andre, suavely. "Therefore, I have with me 20,000 francs. I am going to give it to you."

"But why?" questioned Nana.

"You are giving up George. I know it will cause you a great deal of pain, so this is to recompense you. I'm giving you this money before you ask for it. You see, Mamselle, I know your kind."

Nana's face was white.

"Does George know this?" she asked Andre. "Does he know what you're doing?"

"I know all I want to know," said Andre. "I'm doing this for his own good. You didn't think I'd let him wreck his life over a woman like you, did you?"

Nana's eyes narrowed. "What do you know of a woman like me?"

"No," said Andre. "I know you're bad, thoroughly bad."

Nana got up from her bed, her eyes blazing fire. Andre stepped back, and inadvertently his eyes traveled up and down her lithe body, seeing her charms in all their softness.

Then she said to him, her face drawn tightly: "It isn't love that makes you do this for George. I know your kind. I've seen many men like you. All your life you've played at being a monk. I love George with all my heart, and he loves me, and you would crucify him, just because you have never known what love is. That's what's wrong with you... it's not love for your brother. Here," she snarled, "take your money; and, to prove that you don't know anything about me or love, take this!"

Nana threw her arms about him, clinging close to him with all the sham artifice of a girl paid to make love, all the acting talent and fervor she could put into it, and gave him a kiss. She was right; Andre was a changed man when he wrenched loose from her embrace. Cruel desire, relentless desire for this incredibly lovely woman ran riot in his blood—showed itself in his gaze. He seemed a famished lion, hesitating a moment before the spring on a succulent deer.

Nana laughed derisively at him.

"Look at yourself," she said, "and you will see what a hypocrite you are! You will see how your mind has led to your body all these years. Now get out and stay out... for I shall hate myself all my life for having touched you."

Andre, no longer an upright strong man, but merely a man hungry for the love of a beautiful woman, left, turning at the door to catch a last look at Nana, with the sunlight playing about her, framing her in a halo of diaphanous delight.

When he had gone, Nana's world collapsed. Her head swam with dismay, and her heart beat to her head, pounding out a dismal message. But always as with a woman brought up like Nana to believe only in the day before her, and never in the tomorrow, sometimes told her everything would turn out well.

And she was glad of this tiny, reassuring voice within her, but at the same time she realized there was

Kitts Gets Cage Tips from Bible

HOUSTON (AP)—During the month of spring football training at Rice Institute, Jimmy Kitts, the new gridiron mentor, will be able to give his charges some pointers borrowed from Dana X. Bible, the successful coach at the University of Nebraska.

An admirer of Bible ever since Bible guided the football destinies of Texas A. & M., Kitts spent several days watching the Nebraska coach send the Cornhuskers through their spring drills.

En route home, he stopped at Kansas City to witness some of the nation's leading basketball teams in action in the A. A. U. tournament. Although he produced two national championship high school quintets at Athens and his Rice cagers this year, made up largely of sophomores and juniors, tied for third place in the Southwest conference, Kitts feels that he still can learn much about basketball as well as football.

High School Squad Begins Spring Grind

PECOS—Coach Buddy Withers of Pecos high school assembled his 1934 prospective football squad at Rotary field Monday afternoon of last week and mapped out plans for a spring training season. Spring training has been tried by Buddy for several years and has proven a big aid to the more extensive work given the boys in the regular football season. The spring season instills in the boys the fundamentals of football and, literally, gives the coach a good head start when fall training date arrives. There was a good turnout of the boys.

something lacking. The sureness that in the end everything would be adjusted was, somehow, not quite so strong in her now. There was doubt, horrible doubt, that maybe—somehow, in some inconceivable brutal fashion—she could be separated from George. It was too much for her. George was all she had. Then poor, worldly Nana, woman of the streets, toast of Paris, fainted dead away, for that one force which knows no barriers, love, had completely overpowered her poor being.

And the gods that plunge in supreme power were beginning to have their sport with one little mortal who had tried their innermost secrets—and had seemingly failed! The noose of fate was tightening about Nana—lovely, famous, beautiful, but withal human.

Baseball League Slightly Altered

BIG SPRING.—Organization of the baseball league was altered slightly in a confab at Colorado Sunday afternoon. It was the second meeting held in the interest of organizing a circuit.

Six Teams Enter

Six teams, Odessa, Big Spring, Gulf of Midland, Stanton, Coahoma and Colfax of Colorado, will make up the league. Odessa and Midland, Permian basin members, expressed a desire to quit the Permian outfit for the new organization. The other four teams are definitely in the line-up, and Odessa and Midland are expected to meet entrance requirements at the final meeting to be held here next Sunday afternoon.

At the final parley, scheduled for 2:30 p. m. in the Settles hotel, the league will be named, officers elected, rules adopted and arrangements made to map a schedule.

Interest in baseball here is gaining rapidly. Merchants made donations for uniforms and they have already been ordered. The suits will be gray trimmed in red.

Slaughter and Coast Help

Sheriff Jess Slaughter has taken the initiative in the drive for a ball park, and a rodeo will be staged to help raise money for its construction. J. W. Coast, superintendent of Cosden refinery, is another man behind the baseball idea here, and plenty of support is seen for the Big Spring entry.

The local team, the Cosden Oilers, will be an all-Cosden squad. The six teams lined up at the present time, all located on a paved highway, will make an idea circuit. Big Spring has the best location, about midway. Instead of playing two games a week, it was voted to play only one, and that on Sunday afternoons.

150 Annually Toll Of Lockjaw Cases

AUSTIN.—Every year there are about one hundred and fifty deaths in Texas from lockjaw, according to W. Brown, state health officer. Most of these deaths have resulted from the most trivial or minor wounds or injury. Only recently a small child died from a splinter caused by a splinter being stuck in the toe.

Lockjaw or tetanus patients die an agonizing death following frequent convulsions, which are set forth by the slightest stimulation to the central nervous system. The slamming of a door or the slightest noise may cause a patient to have violent convulsions. Stiffening of the muscles in the jaw is one of the first symptoms, and it is from this fact that the disease gets its name of lockjaw.

Puncture wounds, such as those resulting from sticking a nail or torn in the foot or hand, are the most dangerous. The reason for this is that the tetanus germs can thrive only in a wound that is closed or in the presence of other germs that use up the air present. Tetanus germs do not thrive in the open air.

The prevention of lockjaw depends upon the proper care of all minor injuries. Closed wounds should be made open wounds and kept thoroughly clean. Anti-tetanus serum should be given after a puncture wound; gun powder wounds are also frequently followed by lockjaw. The period of time for the disease to develop in man is usually from six to fourteen days, according to the amount of infection. In man, with a short period of incubation, six days or less, the disease is almost always fatal. With a longer period, the disease is usually milder and the chances for recovery greater.

FOOD INSPECTOR WAS VICTIM

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Ivan Pollett, Santa Barbara health inspector and food expert, came here to study pure food laws preparatory to drafting ordinances in his town and was stricken with ptomaine poisoning and forced to enter a local hospital.

CORNS AS BAROMETER

AMARILLO (AP)—Where the weather is concerned, grannies' rheumatics and Aunt Sophronia's corns may mean something.

Human pains severe as fairly accurate barometers, H. T. Colman, U. S. weather observer in Amarillo, says.

"It is the air pressure," Colman explained. "The same thing that makes cattle restless before a storm also reacts on human beings. People are not so sensitive to changes because they depend less upon instinct for protection against the elements, but when cattle start milling and hunting shelter the same sensation is experienced by people to a lesser degree."

STATE CROW HUNT PLANNED

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Nebraska hunters have been invited to participate in a statewide crow shoot, sponsored by the Nebraska Isaac Walton League. Predictions have been made that the large, unloved, black-plumed birds will fall in great numbers during the contest which will continue throughout 1934. Awards are to be made to the crow hunters turning in the largest number of "scalps" for the year.

Soldier

that it seems unbelievable sometimes even to me. For days we were traveling in the Caucasus on that train and finally we came to the Turkish border. There I was handed from one person to another until I was finally adopted by my own regiment. They took care of me while they tried to find my father. They gave me a uniform just like a boy's and I made myself useful currying horses, building fires, making tea.

"I did not when the meat began to let me drill and learn in regular duty. After while they forgot about my father and I was simply one of them, though of course they knew I was a girl.

"I went to battle with them, was one of thirteen who volunteered to blow up a bridge and was the only one who came back from that exploit. I can remember crying only once. That was when the doctors were going to cut off my leg. Then I yelled so that they left my leg on and today I have only a scar to show for the wound."

Before adventure was finished with her, Marina underwent the Russian revolution and was passed along from the White army to the Red, needing medical treatment all the time, and finally getting it at an American hospital in Japan. Her first stop in the United States was California, but she prefers New York because of its opportunity.

Her education since the age of nine has been self-acquired, but she can make herself understood in at least six languages, has worked as nurse, governess, stenographer, map-maker and teacher of dancing. She wrote the stories of her adventures in six weeks, but the thing she cares most about is her "art," as she calls dancing.
