

TEXANS WOULD RECALL CURRENCY

RAINFALL GENERAL OVER THIS SECTION

"I'm just a little excited this morning," one cattleman remarked when he reported an inch and a half rain.

Rainfall, which registered .56 inch here, was general, although it was heavier to the southeast and east than in other directions.

The Arthur Judkins, McClintic Bros., Fasken and Proctor Stokes ranch and others had an inch and a half; Jay Floyd reported an inch and a quarter and the Fasken and Proctor Hutchison place reported an inch and three quarters.

To the northwest, the C ranch is reported to have had a three-inch snow with rain about like it was here.

Close to Midland farms received about half inch of rain. Farmers said it would make possible the breaking of land, preparatory to planting when additional moisture is received.

Cure for Prevalent Disease Is Discovered By Midland Minister

A remedy for Morbus Sincidos, better known as Sunday sickness, which is even more prevalent in Midland than golf or car riding fever, has been prescribed by K. C. Tucker, Minister of the Church of Christ.

In an interview with a reporter this morning, the minister said: "The attack comes on suddenly early Sunday; no symptoms are felt on Saturday night; the patient sleeps well; eats a hearty breakfast, but about church time the attack comes on and continues until services are over for the morning. Then the patient feels easy and eats dinner. In the afternoon he feels much better and is able to take a walk and read the Sunday papers. He eats a large supper but about church time he has another attack and stays at home. He wakes up Monday morning, refreshed and able to do his work. He does not have any symptoms of the disease until the following Sunday."

The minister offers as his remedy: "On Sunday morning arise at seven; use plenty of cold water on the face; eat a plain, scanty breakfast. Then take internally a dose composed of equal parts of the following ingredients: will, push, energy, determination and respect for yourself, for God's day, for God's Book, for God's house and a desire to be somebody. Stir well. Add a little love to make it sweet. Repeat dose every three minutes until relief comes sooner. If the day is stormy an external application of over-stores, rain coat and umbrella will be beneficial."

Will Start Revival At Karnes City Soon

The Rev. Kenneth C. Minter will start a revival at Karnes City April 2. The Midland minister, who was formerly pastor of a large Methodist church of Corpus Christi, is a long time friend of the Karnes City pastor, who asked him to conduct the series of revival services.

Mr. Minter will deliver conference sermon at a district meet at Brady in April, having been appointed to this place by the presiding elder. He will leave Midland next Sunday afternoon.

Tiny Speedster Is Started by Shaking Motor

When Roy Arbright wishes to start the engine of his tiny "Speedster" he just shakes it! The ignition is so delicate it can be shaken into life, but will stand as rough usage as that of a standard machine.

"Don't you have a lot of trouble with drunks, driving that baby model over various mountain roads?" he was asked.

"One look at this contraption racing along at something less than 70 miles an hour shows them," Arbright answered. "They want to know if it's their eyes or what they're drinking that has played such a prank on them. For this is the tiniest road car in the world," he explained.

Because of poor weather conditions, the driver believed it inexpedient to drive on Midland streets today. When visibility is not excellent he risks his neck every time he drives with other vehicles, as his car is so small he can easily be run over without being seen.

However, the car will be shown at evening building of the school system Tuesday, Arbright said.

Livestock Trading Is Slow in West Texas

SAN ANGELO (U.P.)—Livestock trading is slow over West Texas, lambing is in progress and cattle are lighter than at any other time of year.

Sellers and buyers have had difficulty getting together, the former wanting 5 to 5 1/2 cents a pound for steer yearlings, spring delivery. A few trades have been made at these figures, according to John Burns, manager of a Fort Worth commission firm.

He said his firm moved a good many sheep up to two weeks ago at 7 1/2 cents a pound.

The demand for Big Bend cattle continues good, according to Joe Mitchell of Marfa, who said his company had a number of orders it could not fill because of lack of cattle.

Al G. Dumain, Kansas City sheep buyer, has contracted about 6,000 mutton yearlings for delivery out of the wool. Bud Chandler of Denver, has bought about 8,000 sheep in recent days.

Rare books, old and faded pictures, worn table linens, dimmed and worn silver, brass kettles thin with age, spinning wheels, old household utensils and such relics of the farm yard as ox yokes, water carriers, saddles, single knives—anything pertaining to the primitive methods of sustaining life in the wilderness. These articles are being gathered and restored and will be carefully preserved in the museum.

Mrs. Paul Ingenhuett, a descendant of the Kapp and Flach families of this territory, has given the use of a two-story stone building to house the collection and the specimens are being labeled and placed on display.

Public hospitals and agencies of state and federal governments were exempted from credit terms. A code provision allowing acceptance of scrip or government warrants was cancelled.

Rivalry That Came Up at Caliente in Past Flares Again

The arrival of Riskulus and Tattane at Arlington Downs for the spring meeting, March 29 through April 21, has focussed the attention of the sports-loving public on the $100,000 odd Texas derby, for which both of these horses have been named. Riskulus and Tattane are both derby winners of 1934, the former having accounted for the Agua Caliente derby and the latter for the Jefferson derby at New Orleans.

Forty horses were nominated for the rich Texas classic, with some of the flashiest performers in the land slated to take part in the thoroughbred struggle which will be run on closing day of Arlington Downs, April 21. A champion ship boxing match between Barney Ross and Tony Herrera will take place on the evening of April 20 at Fort Worth, with the Texas Sports Writers association also in convention at that time. It will mark a gala sports holiday for Texas, with the Texas derby being the high spot in a blaze of glory.

Early Derby arrivals at Arlington Downs are John D. Speckles, III, good three-year-old, Bissagos, Hummer, a two-year-old, and Speedy Skippy and Billy Bit; Mrs. A. Vanden Ende's Black Peter; Mrs. John Zoeller's Tattane and the Northway Stable's Riskulus. Within forty days of the spring classic which is already sizing up the show in a blaze of glory.

The presence of both Bissagos and Riskulus at the Waggoner course recalls the running of the 1934 Caliente derby, in which Riskulus gained a nose verdict over Bissagos. Following the race John D. Speckles III challenged Riskulus to a battle with his filly at any distance from three-quarters to a mile and a quarter, the race to be run at Arlington Downs under the same conditions that applied in the Derby. Speckles added that he would wager $100,000 in cash that Bissagos would defeat Riskulus. A prominent Caliente bookmaker offers to accept another $10,000 wager from Speckles and made the offer in front of him, backed by cash.

Following the race John D. Speckles said, "I am willing to bet Bissagos against Riskulus at Arlington Downs in a race under the supervision of the Jockey club there, and I will bet Mr. Church, $10,000 on the side that Bissagos will beat Riskulus at any distance from six furlongs to a mile and a quarter."

The controversy grew out of an argument over the Caliente derby in which Speckles and his trainer, Harry Walters, maintained that Bissagos was fouled by Riskulus. Speckles protested the decision of the stewards, claiming his filly was leg locked by Jockey George Woolf in the final strides of the Derby running. Whether the match race will be held or not is a moot question. Trainer E. L. Fitzgerald, of the Northway stable, was not inclined to take the wager too seriously.

"Speckles hasn't ten thousand dollars to throw away," was his only comment. He is secure in the belief that his colt was not out of the best of the Caliente derby field, but will prove the master of his company in the $100,000 Texas derby as well.

By the first of next week practically all of the derby nominees are expected to be safely stabled in the Arlington Downs barns, and from March 29 through April 21, the beautiful Waggoner course will be the center of attention among racing fans from coast to coast.

DEPRESSION IS CITED AS CAUSE FOR EXPEDIENT

Possible Solution to Lindy Kidnaping Held out

WASHINGTON, March 26, (U.P.)—Recall of outstanding currency under conditions which would realize profit for the government, force possessors of illicit wealth to disgorge and possibly aid detection of the Lindbergh kidnapers was proposed today by Senator Tom Connally, democrat of Texas.

Connally said the bill would fix a time limit, probably two years, after which existing currency would cease to be negotiable. "Hard times force money into hiding. This measure will bring it out," he said.

ATLANTIC GETS WARD PRODUCER

The Atlantic Oil Producing company has completed another of the wells on the W. D. Johnson lease in Ward county. This completion, No. 19, is located 330 feet from the west or northwest line and 930 feet from the north or northeast line of section 9, block 34, H. & T. C. Railway survey, south Ward county. The twenty-four E. C. Green survey showed a total production of 600 barrels, and the total depth is 2530 feet. This completion makes a total of fourteen wells on the Johnson, with a potential production of 4,006 barrels.

The Trans-Texas Oil company of Angelo, is preparing to test the J. M. Shannon, No. 2, section 42, blk. EB, G. & S. E. survey, Crockett county in the World pool. The well has been off production for some three or four months, and the operators plan to test the well. The first part of the coming week, certainly the Trans-Texas put the No. 1 back on production, and after being shut in for some four months, the test showed a production of 28 barrels.

The Republic Petroleum company has treated with acid and tested the M. L. Baker, No. 6, section 32, block 2, section 42, blk. EB, G. & S. E. survey, Crockett county, in the Taylor-Lind county in the World pool. Before the treatment, the well was pumping ten barrels daily, and as a result of the work, the well is pumping 43 barrels. The total depth of the hole is 2317 feet.

The Arkansas Fuel Oil company has tested the University, No. 1, section 32, block 16, university lands, Pecos county, in the Taylor-Lind county in the World pool. The well has been reworked and cleaned out in an effort to increase production, and the test shows that the well pumped 130 barrels fluid in twenty-four hours, but 16 per cent of this fluid was water, leaving a net production of 101 barrels. Total depth is 1632 feet. Prior to the work, the well was making less than marginal allowance.

Bank Cash Higher Than Was Published

Total available cash shown in the report of condition of the First National bank, as of March 25, was $434,383.06, rather than $344,910.60 as quoted in a news item in the Reporter-Telegram Sunday. The latter figure referred only to the cash and exchange item and was almost $100,000 short of the total cash.

Both Midland banks reflected excellent condition in the statement. The Midland National reported total cash resources of $375,376.77.

Deposits of the First National were $768,002.70 and of the Midland National $584,722.29. Loans and discounts of the First National bank were $493,229.76 and of the Midland National were $295,485.20.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything without taking a stand on anything.)

They were engaged in a heated argument. "What's the matter?" one of them asked the other. "Is your hand caught in your pocket? Are you going Dutch or are you going Scotch?"

It was out West some place and an eastern girl was talking to an old westerner. "If you want to remember something, just have someone tie a string around your finger," he said. "Yes," he replied, "and if you want to forget something just have someone tie a piece of rope around your neck."

We wish to whisper this to the telephone girls: A certain man, who was always impudent to telephone girls, finally married a telephone girl, and three times a week she beats the life out of him. We think that is delightful news.

WHEN PUBLIC SERVANTS FLAIL AN ACCUSER

Nothing is much more instructive than to watch the violent indignation which a public servant displays when he has been accused of wrong-doing.

A fine illustration of this is the spectacle which the Kentucky legislature recently has been making of itself.

Someone not long ago wrote a letter to the editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, hinting rather broadly that certain legislators had been more or less corrupt in disposal of a certain bill.

The letter was printed over the signature, "One who believes in honest government, a member of the House of Representatives."

Instantly a storm broke loose. The legislators stood up on their hind legs, tore their hair, drew their claymores and sounded the tocsin.

Were they hunting for their dishonored colleagues, that they might expel them? Not at all. They were hunting the man who had made the accusation, so that they might have his scalp.

When NANA heard the news that she had been declared, she sank back on her sofa. Mentally weak and blank, her mind could hold no more. What was one war more or less to one who had been brought up in that fever of wars... that of living?

Even a pounding at the front door of her house hardly reached her consciousness. Not until there was an abrupt knock at her bedroom door did she bring her thoughts back to earth.

Thinking it was Andre returning to exact his last pound of flesh—it would be his last, she reflected joyously, now that the war was really on—she called out for him to enter.

The door burst open and she turned lazily in her chair. What she saw there electrified her; her heart really stopped beating, completely, for a long moment. There, attired in his dusty uniform, was George!

She gasped out one word—"George"—and rushed over to him, expecting to be enfolded in his arms, and to fill her long-empty arms with that which she loved most of all on earth.

"Yes, Nana," he said, "it's George," but he didn't hold out his arms, and on his face was no trace of love—only disgust, or some dark kind of curious malice.

"But why," faltered Nana, "I mean how—did you come here?"

"From Algeria," he said, harshly. "My troop came in just tonight, for the war. I found out where you lived and hurried here."

"Oh, my dear," she cried out, "just to see you! But my own, why didn't you write me?"

He sneered, his face black. "So that's it. I wondered what your excuse would be."

"Why," she said, "what do you mean?"

"You love me still, of course," he said, cruelly. "Go on, say you do, you miserable little double-crosser."

"George, don't," she begged, "let me tell you!"

"Tell me what?" George shouted angrily. "Tell me first of all why you didn't write—as you so blithely promised. Then tell me who's keeping you here—in all this luxury?" His hand swept dramatically around the room. For a moment she wanted to accuse him of being melodramatic.

And then to Nana came a realization that left her weak. This was Andre's house and Andre was George's brother—the man who had separated them! She must get George out of here before Andre came back. She must! She must!

"George," she pleaded, "come away with me. I wrote you, darling, I wrote you."

"Don't lie," cried George, "you needn't lie any more. I could kill you for what you've done to me... but I love you so, I love you so," he sobbed out.

"And I love you," she murmured. "But I can't stay here. I'll go with you and tell you the truth—but we must go anywhere, anywhere! Will you, George?"

"Yes," he said, reluctantly. "I'll go." He nodded his head. "I'll go"

They hailed before the legislative bar the Louisville editor, Vance Armentrout, and demanded that he give them the name of the letter writer. Armentrout invited them to go and climb a tree. They had him jailed, and he got out on a writ of habeas corpus.

They fined him $25; he refused to pay, and suggested that they sue him and see how far they would get. They asked President Roosevelt to fire the editor's boss, who is ambassador to the court of St. James.

Suppose, now, that the editor had given them the name of this letter writer. What would have happened? Something like this, probably.

The Story of NANA

EMILE ZOLA'S

Illustration of a woman in a dress

The letter writer would have been called in and questioned: "Did you ever, with your own eyes, see a legislator accept a bribe? Did you ever yourself give money to a legislator? Have you affidavits, documents, sworn witnesses to prove your charges?"

And when he admitted that he had none of these things, they would have called attention to their innocence and denounced him as a rumor-monger and a nitwit.

One would think that a legislative body accused of corruption would hasten to demonstrate its innocence. One would think it, that is, if one didn't know American legislators. Their instant reaction to such a charge is to have at their accuser and detach his scalp.

They never seem to realize that a legislative body which is always, unmistakably, working honestly and intelligently for the public interest is never in any danger of being besmirched by irresponsible mud-slingers.

anywhere with you, even after all this... "I'll get my wraps," Nana said, and leaving him alone in the hall-way, she rushed to her room, hunting madly for her coat. Even as she was looking for it she heard the outer door open. She heard a voice and recognized it as Andre's. It said only one word. "George!"

"Andre!" said George. "I am surprised to see you here," George walked over to Andre, thinking his brother had merely followed him to separate him again from Nana. He smiled grimly.

"It's no use, you can't separate us again. This time you have nothing to say. Nana is going away with me now."

Andre's face was stone, and when he spoke his voice was just as hard. "She's not going anywhere with you... you are in my apartment. Nana is my woman now!"

And Nana was hearing this; hearing the man she hated cutting the man she loved to ribbons with his words.

"No," said George incredulously. "I can't believe it. No, no!"

"I'm telling you the truth," Andre said bitterly, "now get out! Get out of my apartment and my life!"

And when the full realization of what was being said to him dawned on George, his face blanched ivory-white.

"Get out!" he roared. "Get out, you say? You rotten swine! You had me sent away so you might take her for yourself. Get out, will you? But not until I have killed you first, you dirty dog!"

Nana rushed to the door, hesitated, listening to the two men. "I have done enough harm," she thought. In the street below she heard the rattle of cannon along the cobble, the scraping of marching feet.

Her mind a riot of emotion, she took a revolver from her bureau drawer and, firmly pressing it to her heart, unhesitatingly, fired... The gun dropped idly from her hands. Nana, beautiful, desirable, sinful Nana—fell to the floor, blood slowly, redly seeping from her elegant gown.

The two men, united at last over the one thing they both held dear, leaped over her closely to catch her last words.

"Why did you?" moaned George. "Why did you do it, Nana?"

And softly, with the voice of a being already part of another world, Nana responded to both of them. She spoke to the one man, hard and cruel—her master; and to the other, young, and warm and full of the promise of life, her lover.

"I did it because I'm worth nothing to either of you. I'm worth nothing to anyone... you're both so necessary now. Listen."

And there in that elegant room, the two men leaned over the lovely woman, who to both of them was all things, and heard in the distance the "Marseillaise" being played by an army band. The music grew louder and each beat of the drum pounded in the hearts of the two men. They leaped over to catch her words, spoken slowly and

CAUSE OF INEFFICIENCY

Every so often we are told that the United States needs a Scotland Yard—which, to be sure, is undeniably true. The latest plea comes from Governor Ely of Massachusetts, who has asked the state legislature to draw up a plan for such institution.

What we usually fail to remember, however, is the fact that it is not so much new police machinery that is needed as a new spirit on the part of the office-holders to whom the police ultimately are responsible.

Scotland Yard would function no better than the Chicago police if Scotland Yard were subjected to the same kind of political pulling and hauling that afflicts the Chicago force.

Before our police system will stand comparison with the London system, we must divorce them from politics. And that, considering everything, will take some doing.

"You love me still, of course," he said, cruelly. "Go on, say you do, you miserable little double-crosser."

"George, don't," she begged, "let me tell you!"

"Tell me what?" George shouted angrily. "Tell me first of all why you didn't write—as you so blithely promised. Then tell me who's keeping you here—in all this luxury?" His hand swept dramatically around the room. For a moment she wanted to accuse him of being melodramatic.

And then to Nana came a realization that left her weak. This was Andre's house and Andre was George's brother—the man who had separated them! She must get George out of here before Andre came back. She must! She must!

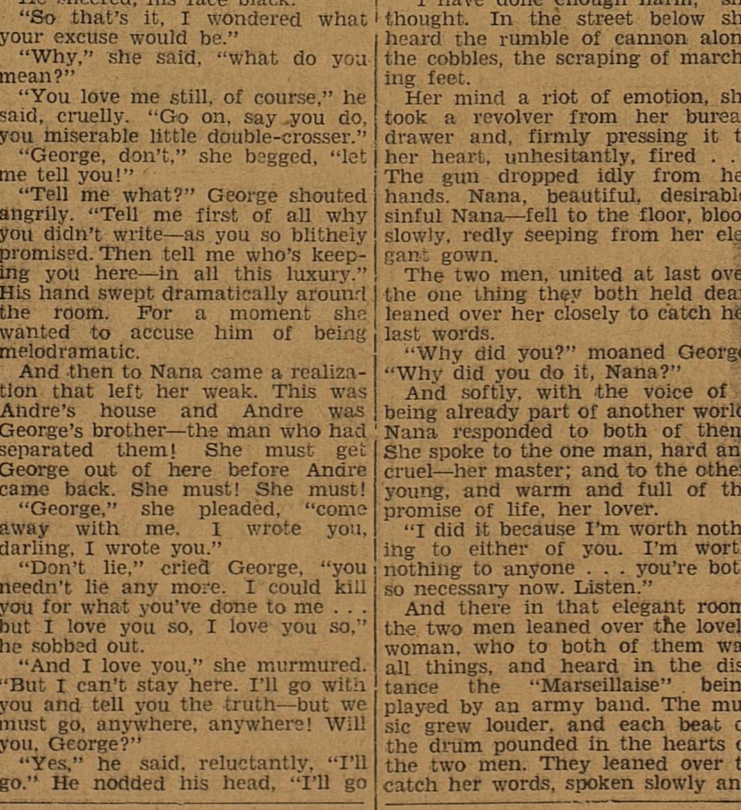

"George," she pleaded, "come away with me. I wrote you, darling, I wrote you."

"Don't lie," cried George, "you needn't lie any more. I could kill you for what you've done to me... but I love you so, I love you so," he sobbed out.

"And I love you," she murmured. "But I can't stay here. I'll go with you and tell you the truth—but we must go anywhere, anywhere! Will you, George?"

"Yes," he said, reluctantly. "I'll go." He nodded his head. "I'll go"

Convention Season Is Drawing Near

Reminder of the nearness of the convention season for the district divisions of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs is contained in announcements received from the state president Mrs. Volney W. Taylor.

Of importance to club preparing their reports for the district conventions, especially if they seek the distinction of winning high scores, are representing their district next November at the state convention, is the club score schedule. Each state president arranges the score card for her administration, stressing the particular objectives which have been set as the goal of the term's achievements.

With 100 points as perfection, the 1934-35 score card is divided as follows: Patron of permanent headquarters (meaning a contribution of $100 to the building fund for the headquarters at Austin), 20 points; headquarter of a junior or senior club, 20 points; general club program, 20 points; for 100 per cent subscriptions to the Texas Federation News by membership, 15 points; for contribution to community beautification, 15 points, and for participation in the sale of Texas Centennial seals, 10 points.

The district divisions something now for the federation and details of the sale have been announced by Mrs. Taylor. The federation and the American Legion are co-operating in the sale, designed to make Texas "centennial minded," and the proceeds from seals sold by clubwomen will be divided between the legion's state educational fund and the federation's permanent headquarters furnishings fund. Use of the seal and the purpose to which the money will be devoted have received sanction of the legislature. The seal, postage stamp size, has a blue ground, with the outline map of Texas contained in a red circle. The "Lone Star" is superimposed on the map. At the top of the seal is the inscription, "For the Texas Centennial," and at the bottom is the centennial year, 1936.

Mrs. Taylor will visit each of the seven district conventions next month, arranging her schedule so as to spend approximately two days at each convention. A formal address and an informal talk will be given by the state president at each convention.

The district conventions schedule follows: First district at Fort Worth, April 9, 10 and 11; Second district at Waxahachie, April 11, 12 and 13; Third district at Paris, April 16 and 17; Fourth district at Houston, April 23, 24 and 25; Fifth district at Cuero, April 25, 26 and 27; Sixth district at Sweetwater, April 3, 4 and 5, and Seventh district at Amarillo, April 16, 17 and 18.

At the district meetings Mrs. Taylor hopes to enlist interest of club women in attendance on the council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, to be held April 26-30 at Hot Springs, Ark. She hopes also secure a creditable representation for Texas at the general convention.

Another project of the state federation to receive attention at the district meetings is the statewide "Federation Day" at motion picture theatres on April 26, when a percentage of receipts will be given to the federation for the permanent headquarters fund.

ELEVEN TOWNS TO MEET HERE SUNDAY TO ORGANIZE BALL LOOP

OFFICERS ELECTED IN MEETING AT BIG SPRING SUNDAY; PAUL H. BLANKE PRESIDENT; CHET FOWLER OFFICIAL

Completion of organizing an independent baseball circuit formerly intended to include towns along the Broadway of America, but more recently modified to extend to several towns north and south of the arterial highway, will result at 2:30 Sunday afternoon at Hotel Scharbauer, Midland.

Representatives of five clubs made this decision Sunday afternoon in a meeting in the Settles hotel at Big Spring. They decided to invite the following towns to membership: Stanton, Coahoma, Lamesa, Crane, McAdams, Big Spring, Midland, Odessa, Colorado, Ackerly and Forsan. Letters were written by the secretary to each of these towns, asking that they send instructed representatives to the Midland meeting, ready to answer any question likely to come up for incorporation in by-laws and constitution.

Sunday's meeting resulted in election of Paul H. Blanke of Big Spring as president; R. C. Hankins of Midland, secretary, and Chet (Boob) Fowler of Big Spring, treasurer.

Representatives of five clubs debated the rules proposed to be included in the constitution, and named committees to meet with the officers following the meeting, so that recommendations might be recorded. Team representatives were George Elliott Jr. of Odessa, C. E. Henninger of Big Spring, Earl Reid of Coahoma, L. E. Gressett of Colorado and Dr. David M. Ellis of Midland. Total attendance at the meeting was almost 30.

In deciding to invite Crane and McAdams, representatives expressed themselves as having no ulterior motive in making the invitation; one spokesman said: "We are not trying to break up the Permian basin league; we have heard there was a likelihood of Crane and McAdams seeking new affiliation, and we are making this invitation on the strength of that rumor, and because of the strength of those clubs." Midland and Odessa were in the Permian last season, withdrawing because of the greater ease in traveling to towns on the Bankhead highway.

Representatives from 11 towns have been invited to meet at Midland Sunday. The secretary was instructed to send letters asking that team representatives come instructed to decide on the following matters:

1. Gate receipts—(The committee favored each member city setting its own admission price to games, and keeping all gate receipts.)
2. Player limit—(The committee suggested 15.)
3. Entrance fee—(The committee suggested that each club post $10 at the Sunday meeting at Midland, to guarantee its faith in playing under the schedule to be made that afternoon.)
4. Tentative schedule—(The committee voted to have the secretary authorized to make out two schedules for a six-team loop, one adapted to a one-game-a-week schedule, the other a two-games-a-week schedule. Wednesday and Sunday games were favored by most of those at the Big Spring meeting. Wednesday games would begin at 5 p. m., Sunday games at 3 p. m.)
5. Holiday games—(The committee favored setting these games for towns where the most attendance would appear likely—for instance, in Midland. Total attendance at the meeting was almost 30.)
6. Forfeit for non-appearance for scheduled game—(The committee favored a forfeit of $5 for every such offense, with reservations made for clubs who telephoned they were on the way but had broken down or were being held up for valid reasons, the forfeit to be transferred by the treasurer from the entrance fee of $10, which, in turn, would have to be rebuilt to the original $10.)
7. Contracts for players' use—(The committee favored making a rule that contracts for use of players must be in the hands of the secretary by Monday if the player are used in Wednesday games, by Friday if they play in Sunday games.)
8. Umpires—(The committee favored selection of umpires by the home club.)
9. Standard ball—(The committee favored selection of a price class ball at the Midland meeting, and expressed hope for determining upon a standard brand ball, as well, to lighten the pitching burden.)
10. Number of balls given umpire—(The committee favored giving the chief umpire six balls in good condition.)
11. The committee urged that every club work for good appearance of its members while on the diamond.
12. Responsibility for dressing places—(The committee favored the home club furnishing a place for visiting clubs to dress, but specified the desirability of visitors bringing their own towels.)
13. The committee favored payment of $1 per month per club for miscellaneous expenses, included in which will be the secretary's postage account. The secretary will use self-stamped envelopes sent him on requisition by the treasurer.
14. It was suggested by the committee that following games, the official score of each host town telegraph score to the secretary, who will get stories in leading state newspapers more quickly as a result.
15. It was favored that a player should become ineligible for a certain period in case he should quit the club he had been playing with and recruit with another club.

These and other matters will be taken up at the Midland meeting. Discussions incorporated into the by-laws and constitution. President Blanke will have a copy of standard organization for an independent ball loop, and will appoint a committee to make recommendations from it.

Members of the committee that met with officers were Lefty Bavers of Big Spring, George Elliott of Odessa and Earl Reid of Coahoma. Invitation to hold the Sunday meeting at Midland was made by Dr. Ellis. Incidentally, Dr. Ellis held out against the two-games-a-week

TRENCH SILOS

By M. R. Bentley, Extension Agricultural Engineer

Slilage should be considered a substitute for green pasture. It has about the same value in the ration of a dairy cow or beef animal as does green pasture, but no greater value unless there is some grain on the feed stuff made into silage.

A silo makes it possible to have green feed when it is too dry or too wet to have green pasture, or too wet to use the pasture. A silo should also be considered a container in which to store a surplus of feed to use when the drought year comes.

A trench furnishes the cheapest form of a silo from the standpoint of cash expenditure. Other advantages of a trench silo are: it may be constructed in a short time, it is convenient to place and pack the silage; it is less expensive to fill than the above-ground silo; it is wind-proof and frost-proof.

Some disadvantages of trench silos are: more silage may be wasted from spoilage; it is more expensive to cover the silage; the walls must be smoothed each year unless lined; they cannot be used if the water table is very high; laborers are exposed to the weather in removing silage; they are unsightly in the farmstead; and trouble may be encountered from rain water in the empty portion of the trench unless drainage is provided or a roof is built over the trench.

The advantages outweigh the disadvantages when one wishes to construct a cheap silo quickly and will take the necessary precautions in filling and covering.

Attractive Meal Service

In many homes meal time is the only occasion when the family is all together, and as such it should be a pleasant gathering in a well kept room.

No matter how elaborate or how simple a meal is to be served, it is more appetizing if the dishes, silver and glasses polished bright. Correct table service does not mean "putting on airs." It means setting the table in an orderly way with dishes and silver necessary for the meal. Even the oil cloth and steel knives and forks of the chuck wagon and the lumber camp can be clean and properly arranged.

The table may be of any size or shape. For general use most households prefer the regular family size in the dining room. Other families who need the dining room space serve the meals on a table in one corner of the kitchen or a breakfast nook. When there is company and the family table proves too small, folding or card tables may be set in the same or in an adjoining room.

SEVERAL MIDLAND DRUGGISTS TO GO

At least two Midland concerns plan to be represented at the Sweetwater convention. T. A. Fannin or L. D. Bayless will attend from the City Drug company, and H. P. Faag will represent the Petroleum pharmacy.

I. E. Daniel, proprietor of the Hotel pharmacy, said he likely will attend.

On pleasant summer days, folding or other tables can be set on the porch or a shady lawn.

The size of the table should be appropriate to the number of people to be served.

For the smaller size table a lunch cloth barely large enough to cover the top is attractive, especially for breakfast, lunch or Sunday night supper.

A white cloth of linen (or cotton), long enough to hang about 9 or 10 inches over the side of the table is always good taste, whether for breakfast, dinner or supper.

Some homes use a white oil cloth for every day. This should be well kept. A white cotton or linen cloth should be substituted occasionally so the children will grow accustomed to being careful not to stain the cloth by carelessness. Thus they will not be embarrassed when company comes and the cloth is used.

Some suggestions follow which will apply to the every-day family table of every club girl as well as to that same table linen when especially honored by visitors.

1. See that the room is dusted and free from flies.

2. Cover the table with a silence cloth. This may be one bought for the purpose or a clean white cotton blanket or heavy cotton flannel. This cloth is used to prevent the noise when dishes and silver are placed on an unprotected table.

3. Over this spread a clean table cloth large enough to fall on all sides, well over the edge of the table. Keep the center of the cloth with the crease up in the center of the table, its whole length.

Raven Formula

A number of requests have been coming in for formula to use for poisoning ravens. The following is recommended:

2 tablespoons starch; 1 ounce of powdered strychnine alkaloid in 1-2 pints of water and heat to boiling, stirring thoroughly after the starch begins to thicken.

Pour this mixture over 20 quarts of corn and stir until every kernel is coated. The grain may then be spread out and dried.

This has been used very effectively in the spring when ravens are following the planters and where the fresh earth is being turned, and the effectiveness of this poison remains for some time, so that one mixing of poisoned grain can be used for several weeks.
