JEFF DAVIS CO. MAN CANDIDATE FOR LEGISLATURE 22-Year-Old Willis McCutcheon Third To Announce

Announcement of Willis McCutcheon Jr., of Jeff Davis county as a candidate for state representative from the 88th district was authorized here today by his father, W. W. McCutcheon of Fort Davis, and a friend, J. F. Ross of Balmeria.

The candidate himself was in an automobile accident a few days ago and was forced to go to an El Paso hospital for a few days but was expected to begin an active campaign here shortly.

McCutcheon is 22 years of age and is associated with his father in operation of their ranch in Jeff Davis county. The Madera Valley News, published at Balmeria, made the following statement about the candidate:

'Yessing' Mussolini in a Big Way

The answer was 'Yes' and was Mussolini surprised? Italy held an election recently, to name new deputies to legislate their chamber out of existence. The vote was overwhelmingly in favor of the Duce's proposal, and this giant billboard, covered with 'yesses' and bearing a huge mask of Mussolini, was erected at Braschi palace in Rome, Fascist headquarters, to inform the populace of the result.

EDITOR'S NOTE: "A united effort by all is imperative to complete recovery," said Max Agrest, Dallas, vice president of the Texas Potash corporation, which is about to begin construction of a plant in Midland county, and member of the Committee for the Nation. He will send continuing articles to The Reporter-Telegram soon.

By MAX AGREST Under the leadership of the president and the enormous government spending we have been moving rapidly out of the depression. We must realize that the government means work which employed several millions of idle men and women there-by. Putting purchasing power in the pockets of these millions of workers...

THE DEMOCRATIC IDEAL MUST BE MAINTAINED

Several prominent Englishmen recently united to make a public protest against the rising wave of discontent with democratic institutions.

All across Europe—from Germany, from Russia, from Italy, from Austria, and from lesser countries—comes a steadily growing chorus of derision for parliamentary government.

Democracy, it is said, is a worn out thing, and liberty is an empty word; only by an iron-clad dictatorship can a people hope to meet the problems of the modern world.

All this, naturally, is beginning to stir echoes in the British Isles; and these Englishmen, therefore, have called on their countrymen to rally in defense of the democratic ideal and to reaffirm their conviction of the supreme importance of human liberty.

Something very similar might be done profitably on this side of the water. Europe is a long way off, but this attack on the old, Anglo-Saxon concept of freedom is a menacing and contagious thing—chiefly, perhaps, because we have grown so used to the blessings of liberty that we taken them for granted.

We pick up our daily paper, for instance, knowing that it will give us a full and impartial story of the news of the day, and that the editor will speak his mind freely about current issues. We go to a political meeting perfectly confident that the speaker will say precisely what he pleases.

If we don't like the actions of our mayor, our congressman, our governor, or our president, we wait our chance to vote against him at the next election—and, meanwhile, express ourselves as bitterly as we choose to anyone who will listen.

We read such books as we wish to read, attend whatever church we please, educate our children in the way that seems best to us.

We don't look on these things as privileges. They are part of our daily life. We hardly can conceive of living under circumstances where such things do not exist.

Yet we need to remember constantly that these are the very blessings of democracy which now are under attack. People fought and died that we might have these privileges, and did it so effectively that we no longer look on them as privileges.

We imbibe freedom with the very air that we breathe, but a price was paid for it, and it is our task to defend it everlastingly.

Under fascism, under communism, under any kind of dictatorship, we would lose it.

PRESS OR PRESS AGENT?

Bankers' representatives continue to assail the pending stock market bill. One of their latest complaints is that it menaces the freedom of the press by its penalties for the dissemination of false and misleading information about corporate securities.

Offhand, one might suggest that this provision menaces not so much the freedom of the press as the freedom of the press agent. Do you know how the press agent works, when a powerful pool seeks to boost the price of a certain stock beyond its true worth, so that its members can unload at a profit?

He circulates phony bits of news about it. He lets it be known that the company in question has landed a big foreign contract, or bought important patent rights, or entered into a profitable merger arrangement.

It all makes the stock sound valuable, the suckers rush to buy, the insiders unload—and, when the smoke clears away, the stock price drops to where it ought to be, while the insiders congratulate the press agent and bank their profit.

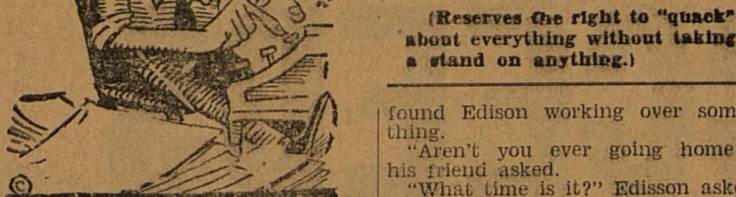

That's the sort of "freedom" that this bill endangers.

The Town Quack

You probably read the story printed in this paper recently about the tourists who romped over at Big Spring, that they should get an early start and drive through Midland before the traffic got too thick.

And now comes a story about a tourist who drove up to Crawford's to fill up with gas.

"I'm surprised at the size of Midland," he said. "Isn't it supposed to be the biggest town in Texas?"

"Well, Dallas, Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth and a few others may be a little larger," he was told. "Never heard of any of them," said the tourist, "but I've read a lot about Midland. I just supposed it was the biggest town in Texas."

Many a man who is a fine judge of whiskey goes even farther than that. He is a merciless excruciator as well.

FASHION FORECAST A visit to our clothing II class will give you a fair idea of what is being worn for spring tailored clothes. Linen has been a popular material with the girls, however, some attractive things are designed of Indian head, cotton suiting, and cotton seer-sucker.

A very attractive tailored dress of green linen is stitched with brown thread and has tailored button holes with brown crocheted buttons. Another three piece tailored suit has skirt and coat of chocolate brown linen and blouse of brown checked gingham. A strikingly youthful design is an ensemble consisting of a green linen dress with coat of green and tan checked linen. A more expensive ensemble is made of linen crash which is beautifully tailored with set-in pockets and platts, and tailored buttonholes. Still another girl has used checked seersucker for a dress to be worn with a swagger length line coat. These and many other equally attractive designs are nearing completion.

cludes at least one salad in her days menu. They deserve this important place in the diet because of the vitamins and minerals and cellulose they furnish. Nothing is so appetizing as a well made salad, but a poorly made salad has no place in the diet. If a few suggestions are followed one may always be assured of attractive and pleasing salads.

- 1. Choose appropriate salads for the occasion—a simple salad of green for dinner, preferably fruit or vegetable salads and heavier salads such as chicken, meat, fish, cheese and eggs for luncheon or supper.
2. The ingredients should be fresh and crisp.
3. They should be cold and served on a chilled salad plate.
4. A salad should be colorful and enticing but simply garnished. Remember that some fruits as apples, peaches, and bananas change color on standing so cover them with lemon juice to prevent this.
5. Complicated combinations should be avoided.
6. Meat fish or vegetables should be neatly cut in fair sized pieces instead of being chopped.
7. Fish should be marinated in French dressing about an hour before being made into a salad marinade.
8. See that the green does not extend over the edge of the plate.
9. Select the dressing suggested by the flavors of the salad.

At this time when we are all practicing economy we should stress the use of left over foods. Much money is saved by utilizing them wisely and many delightful dishes can be made from them. For example it means several cents when you keep a pork chop to be served later. It may be ground with other pieces of meat and used in salads for stuffing green peppers, or for sandwiches. The following is a suggested list for using some of the left overs in attractive dishes.

- 1. Asparagus:
(a) Added to vegetable soup.
(b) In deviled eggs and asparagus salad.
(c) In vegetable casserole.
(d) Creamed asparagus soup.
(e) Creamed on toast.
2. Baked Beans:

(b) Scalloped with vegetables.
(c) Added to vegetable soup.
4. Cabbage:
(a) Cold slaw made over into hot slaw.
(b) Creamed.
(c) Added to vegetable soup.

What Has Happened

Mary refuses to open her door when Tommy bangs on it or to answer him when his phone rings. Wild with rage and disappointment, he tries to leap from a balcony to the one outside her suite, but crashes down the two stories to the cafe below.

CHAPTER VII

"Is he dead?" gasped the manager of the hotel when the doctor had examined Tommy. He shook his head. He was unconscious but he was breathing. It had been a bad fall however and he must be taken at once to the hospital. Even that would require the best of care. Even that the doctor said solemnly—might not avail. There might be serious internal injuries. Lady Riversleigh arrived at the hotel a few minutes after Tommy's leap. Loving any excitement she would have stopped to see what was going on, but she was anxious to find Mary, so she went at once to her suite.

"Isn't Tommy here?" she asked. "Of course not. What do you think I am?" "A very pretty and mischievous little baggage—on the loose. What happened, exactly? I know about Tommy's pulling you in the pool—his chase after you."

SNEAKER

Hello everybody—I'm glad to gossip with you a while. The editor has been so busy with debate and in tournaments, and the assistant editor has spent so much time in one act play practice that I've had to hold my tongue too long. I'll have to talk fast and furiously to catch up, so don't interrupt. Here goes.

Jessie Lou pretended she did not like the end of the play—just for John's benefit. Miss Cartwright had a light in her car in the daytime. I'm not sure but it is probable that Lou Ell a Cobb is the girl Glenn Sheppard described as his ideal. I make the suggestion that when Lowell comes home and Billy leaves that Kenneth and Eliza beth patch things up. Mark Dorsey seems to know the new girl better than any one else. The outside bubbles are being forgotten since the new boys have come to town. The Western Union boys seem to be quite popular with high school girls—so congratulations, Lavern Bedine! Diamonds seem to be the fad—not among the girls but among the boys. I'll bet my new silk hat that James Franklin has Betty's ring. The carnival is looked forward to by Pauline and Miss McKenzie. Pauline looks out for her Stanton boy friend but Miss McKenzie, Melba Lee said she would like to recite part of Whittier's "Schooldays" to a jolly good sophomore. We wonder how many get to read Annice Johnson's weekly mail from Arkansas. It's rumored that during home room period each morning J. W. slips down stairs and talks to Bill Pratt's ex. What's become of our farmer boys, Hunter and Tommy? The girls thought the overalls were "cute." Hunter bought Edna Mae some ear rings just so he could pull them while her ears were sore from being pierced. Dorothy Dugan always picks on the "fish." Now it's Elmer or is it? Wait—I'll have to get my breath!

Midland Golfers Break Own Individual Scoring Record of Sand Belt Here Sun.

Failing to win but one of the 12 matches, Midland lacked only two points of clean-sweeping Lamesa's Sand Belt golfers Sunday afternoon on the Midland links—and set up a new association record for average scoring of team members. The score was 30-10. With only two members shooting out of the seventies, the Midland club averaged 77 3/4 for the 18 holes, chipping off a fraction of its own record of 78 established in last year's clean-sweep of Snyder.

Oddly enough, the 2 points lost Sunday by Midland was the low ball match in the No. 1 foursome—in the face of Midland's representatives winning their individual matches. Summed up, every Midland player won his individual match, and every low ball match except that in the No. 1 foursome was won. The match of Gentry Kidd and Frank Rose, Kidd winning on the 18th hole. C. L. Jackson, playing No. 2 position for the first time in several indigo moons, beat out Norman easily, 6 and 5. Elliott Miller won from Smalling, Neil beat Bernard, Chambers won from Vaughn, Riley, member of J. Rose and Sivalis and Shaw won.

Scoring was especially brilliant when it is considered the course was slow because of heavy showers the day before, and team members have played relatively little golf this year. Jackson was low with 74, Neil (Odessa's No. 1 man last year) shot 75, Miller 76, Kidd 78, Shaw 78.

When Mary reached the hospital, Erskine told her Tommy was alive that he had been given something to deaden the pain, that later a more thorough examination would be made. When Mary said she wanted to be allowed to see Tommy for a minute at least, Erskine agreed it might be wise. The doctor said she might go in if she stayed but a minute and did not excite him.

"Do you care, Mary—really care what happens to me?" "Of course. What do you think I'm made of?" "Rainbows—right across the sky." "I wish I could do something. Is there anything I can do, Tommy, to make you feel better?" "Yes, Will you kiss me?" "Quite simply and naturally, as she might have done to a suffering child, she bent over and kissed him. There was a flash of light. She turned quickly. It was Clegg and his camera had snapped again. He tried to interview her as she left the room, but she refused and when he persisted, her anger overcame her judgment. The worst thing she could have done she did—she slapped him in the face.

"I have said so. By what right do you come here to question me?" The officer strode out to the balcony. He drew a card from his pocket, read it slowly, looked up, paused a moment to heighten the dramatic effect and said, "Then how is Madame, that Mr. Trent—Mr. Thomas L. Trent—capitalist—New York—"

"What about Mr. Trent?" broke in Mary. "I think he must have thrown himself from your window," said the manager. "Tommy!" cried Mary. "Tommy! Threw himself from a window! Is he badly hurt? Then, hardly able to gasp the words, frantic at the silence of the officer and the manager: "Is he—dead?"

"No, he is not dead," said the officer. "But, of a naturness, he is badly hurt. It is only that the awning broke his fall, that still he breathes." "You have had a doctor?" demanded Lady Riversleigh. "Of a certainty," said the manager. "The best one in Cannes. All we can do, we do. But what can we do with these Americans who drink as like fish and then have the hanging-over?"

"I must go to him," said Mary starting for the door. "He has been taken to the hospital," said the officer. "It was of necessity, the most immediate." Mary ran into her bedroom to get a wrap and when she came back into the room she did not notice that another man had entered, and that the manager was entreating him to leave, explaining it was a private matter. The man, whose name was Clegg, was a correspondent for The Echo, one of New York's most sensational newspapers. He was, as usual, drunk. But he was not too drunk to sense the value of this story, nor did his hand shake too much for him to snap a picture of Mary and the others.

Lady Riversleigh went to Mary and put her arm around her. "Mary, dear, you can't go." "What do you mean?" demanded Mary. "Tommy is a friend of mine—an old friend. He is in trouble. Of course I'm going to him." Lady Riversleigh held her close for a minute. "It will be terrible—in all the papers—you know what construction they can put on it—it will be a scandal! But though I don't approve, I'd do the same thing if I were with you. Of course I understand. Never doubt that I love you. I will always understand." (To Be Continued)

MIDLAND NUDGES BIG SPRING IN A SCORING MELEE SUNDAY BY 18 TO 17

It wasn't much of a baseball game, that slam-bang affair of Sunday afternoon, but the click of the bats in the 18-17 marathon won by Midland had the effect of publicly announcing baseball time is here. The Cosden Oilers of Big Spring, Howard county entry in the U. S. 80 league, lost the ragged game by virtue of making a few more errors than the locals, getting just one hit less than the 20 collected by Midland, but booting the ball eight times while the Midland club was making only four bobbles.

Midland used four pitchers, former Coach D. D. Shifflett of the high school giving up but one earned run in four innings before retiring to let Bill Howard and Fred Girdley try out their slants. Howard and Girdley took only sketchy interest in what happened when they delivered the ball, merely taking a light workout, but gave up only 2 and 3 earned runs, respectively. Big Spring used Brown, Baber, Baker and Martin in the box. Midland pushed across six runs in the first inning and remained in the van until the 8th, when Big Spring evened the count at 16 all.

E. B. Estes, Midland seige gun, hit a home run, two doubles and a single in six appearances, not to mention one time when he drew a pass. He hit the first ball pitched him this season for a four-ply trip. Martin of Big Spring tripped, doubled and singled in six trips. Midland used Heath, Hill, Mills, Estes, Hurst, Warren, Hedges, Robertson, Shifflett, Howard and Girdley; Big Spring, Moffett, Moxley, Martin, Baber, Terrazas, Morton, Baker, Patton, Harvey, Hopper and Brown.

are finding it profitable to safeguard their cars and assure care free operation with Magnolia "Summer-ize" service, J. M. Marnan, chief engineer for Magnolia's technical department, reports, "summer-ize" is a coined word describing the 7-point protective service provided only by stations and dealers of the Magnolia Petroleum company. "Both owners of new cars who want to insure them against wear, and those less fortunate motorists who must keep their old cars running at least another year, are finding 'Summer-ize' service their best protection," Marnan said. "The many car owners who have 'Summer-ize' in former years have learned the value of Magnolia's 7-point protection and are among the first driving in for the improved service this spring."
