GRANDMOTHER IS VINDICATED

It is exceedingly interesting to read that Dr. Knight Dunlap, professor of psychology at Johns Hopkins University, heartily disapproves of the modern, let-him-cry-it's-good-for-him method of rearing babies.

"When a baby cried in grandmother's time," says Dr. Dunlap, "they figured something was wrong—and it was the same way with the Indians. After all, grandmother and the Indians knew a great deal about babies."

And he adds that the highly recommended method of leaving babies severely alone "is richly productive of social maladjustments later."

Plenty of parents will find in this a vindication of their own private reactions. They have suspected that there was a good deal of hooey to the modern method of caring for infants. Now they get corroboration—from an expert.

"Is a man insane when he bets on two pair?" asked the judge. "In my opinion he is," said the witness.

LIBERAL GOVERNMENT NECESSARY TO UNIT PROGRESS, WRITES MAX AGRSS

EDITOR'S NOTE: "A united effort by all is imperative to complete recovery," writes Max Agress, vice president of the Texas Potosi corporation, in the following article, a continuation of a series recently released to this newspaper. Another article follows.

BY MAX AGRSS Any government or phase of government, whether from design or necessity, be it political or economic, which pursues a policy or expedient that will permanently curtail the rights and liberties of the individual citizen, that government ceases to be a democracy. An economic order that will permanently restrict the lawful action of the individual citizen as necessarily the negation of freedom and strikes at the root of government by the people. Such a state of affairs may be tolerable, or even acceptable to some of our people who would be willing to buy the vitamins for their babies at the price of political slavery, but I believe that to the great majority of our people liberty is life, and priceless, and when the real question as it has been presented is really understood by them they will answer with the immortal words of Patrick Henry: "Give us liberty, or give us death."

It is thinkable that the vast natural resources of our country are the invisible enemies of our nation which must be restricted and subdued—that our liberty must be circumscribed, and that our productive genius controlled to save us from being drowned in a flood of affluence and plenty?

Secretary Wallace's pamphlet, "America Must Choose" is a challenge to the common sense of the American people. He bids us stop, that we can not continue to travel the same economic road which brought us to an economic situation; that an increase of wealth carries with it an increase in the number of the poor; that a section of our population is starving because as a nation we have too much foodstuff; that millions of Americans are suffering for want of the bare necessities of life because we have too much grain, too much cotton, too much iron, too much coal, too much oil; that in these rich United States we should have hard times because we have too much gold; that business should be stagnant when our savings banks are bulging with money; that an abundance of every necessity of life should bring on an economic condition which forces proud and law-abiding American citizens into the degradation of beggary and crime. Have the American people reached citizen political freedom, but also economic security. The accomplishment of democracy. In the Eighteenth Century the people of North America took a forward step, inaugurating a new political system founded on the doctrine that all men are born equal and are endowed by the Creator with equal rights to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. This championship of liberty has drawn to it the best of mankind from every part of the world, who have in the shortest time known to man developed a colossal wilderness into the greatest and most prosperous country on the face of the earth. No nation or group of nations can be compared with the geological setup, with the tremendous natural resources, energy and power of this country. Here we have not only unlimited supply of any and all raw materials, but a rich and productive soil with the greatest number of trained persons and skilled labor, and installed physical equipment to produce and manufacture every necessity and luxury known to civilization. America's way out: The way the United States must adopt to get out and stay out of this economic crisis is not a blind internationalism or a strict nationalistic policy, but well-planned national economy based on common sense principles in keeping with the American standard of living and in consonance with our democratic doctrine of individual liberty. Such a national economic plan must have for its purpose the broadening of the base of democratic government, to secure to the individual citizen not only the equal right to life, property and happiness, but also the opportunity to earn a living by which life, liberty and the pursuits of happiness are made possible. This is the objective of the American people. To reach this objective the people have given a mandate to Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is keeping the people which has built this great new deal is but his grand purpose of bringing the American people to a better, happier and fuller life. Democracy and freedom are the power which has built this great country. Its entire structure rests on the pillars of democratic principles. As long as these mighty pillars of freedom are unimpaired America need have no fear of its economic future.

America can, for an endless period of time, isolate itself from the rest of the world and provide a vastly greater population than it now has, or will have through the natural increase of a thousand years, with a higher standard of living than it has ever known. Yet the people of the richest country on earth are suffering from poverty and want, the people with the greatest surplus of food, clothing and shelter are standing in line receiving alms, begging for bread and shivering from cold, and this paradoxical state of affairs has been going on now for over four years, and the end is not yet in sight. Now can we turn this tide of misery which is engulfing our best powers and is destroying the livelihood of American citizenship? Is there a way out of this economic jungle of broken-down old systems which we have no courage to clear away, in order that the flow of the necessities of life may resume its normal course? We stubbornly cling to the old process of working hard and long hours. This idea belongs to the time when there was not enough food provisions and necessities of life to go around to give everyone all he wanted, because

Durante Deplores There Is No Rest For the Handsome

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Jimmy Durante deplores that there is no rest for the handsome. People won't let him alone, hounding him for his beauty secrets.

Jimmy, the romantic love interest in RKO's "Strictly Dynamite," avers that men following his system will land in a harem, if they don't in a sideshow.

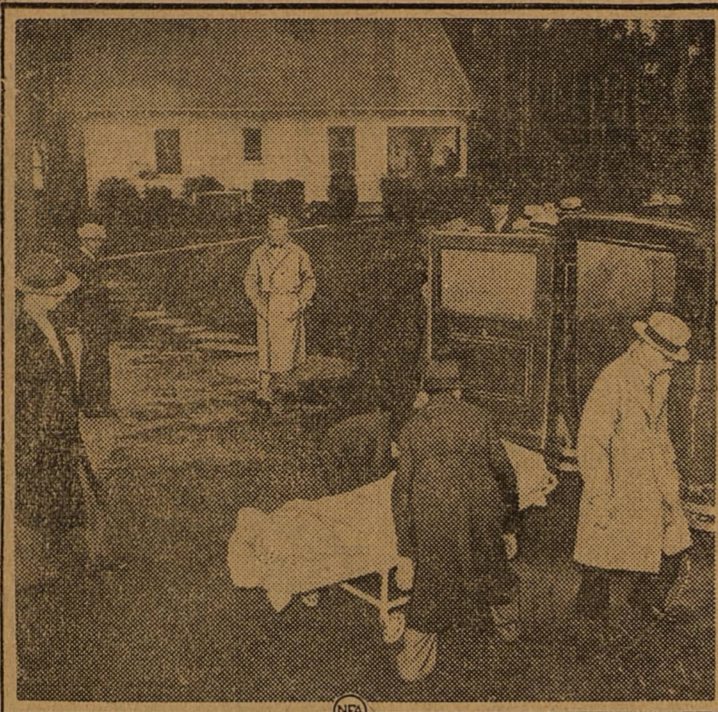

"First and foremost, what most men need is bigger and better noses," the great Durante proclaimed. "Of course not every man can have a Durante nose, but there's no use gettin' discouraged. You're more to be pitied than blamed if nature ain't done by you what she done by me, but maybe settin' up exercises will help.

"The settin' up exercises I use follow in rapid order: "Number One—Twist the nose upward, try to make the tip reach the bridge of your eyebrows. If you ain't one of the 400 just skip this one. Repeat 50 times and take a rest. You'll need it.

"Number Two—Roll the nose sideways with a rotary motion, placing the left nostril in the approximate position ordinarily occupied by the right. After you gets up to 110,000 come back down the numbers with an opposite motion.

"Number Three—This is great for election bettors. Place a peanut on the floor and propel it gently with the tip of the schnozzle. You can work up to bigger things by degrees. I uses the kitchen stove.

Where Six Died in Massacre

Four men and two women were beaten, stabbed and shot to death in the summer home of Frank Flieder near Bremerton, Wash., shown above. The rooms bore evidence of a drinking party and the interior of the house was wrecked. Police say they know the slayers of Flieder, his wife, and their four guests, and that arrests are near. The picture shows one of the bodies being removed.

Championship for Ailments Claimed

BEAUMONT (AP)—Bobbie Bridges, nine, recently read a news dispatch from Quincy, Ill., in which Howard Holzagra was pictured as having recovered from tonsillitis, diphtheria, mumps, measles, chicken pox and whooping cough.

"You ain't heard nothing yet," says Bobbie, and rises to claim the "world ailment" championship.

Bobbie's list runs like this: Bronchitis, severe head injury resulting from a fall; both knees dislocated at the same time, the result of a fall; whooping cough, chicken pox, mumps, broken right shoulder, diphtheria, emergency operation for appendicitis, tonsil operation, granulated eyelids and the measles.

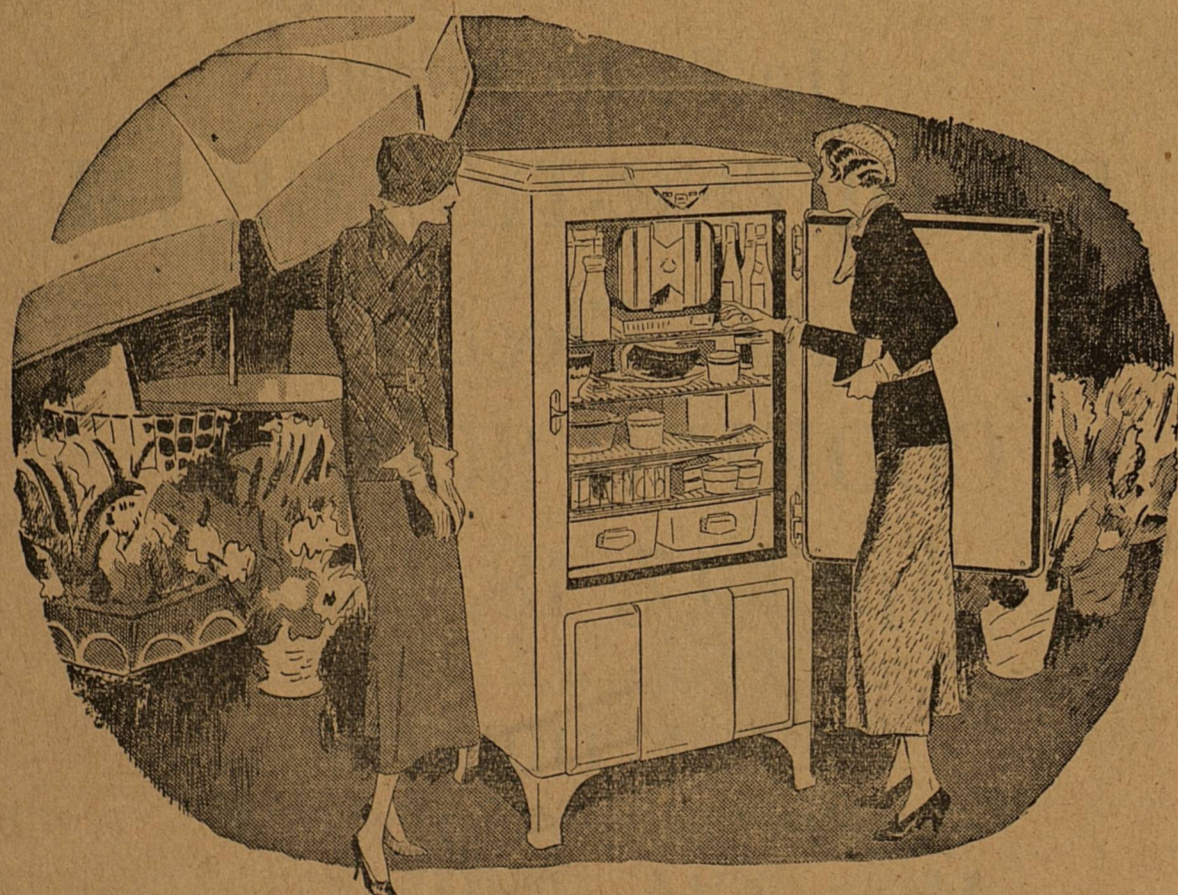

The Bridges' family physician verified the lad's list, but said it was not entirely correct, since Bobbie had forgotten to name some of his ailments.

The United States Naval Academy originally was located in Newport, R. I.

Plight and Indian Salute have both won at Arlington Downs and will prove a strong entry, running in the colors of William Sachsenmayer.

Blitzybit and Speedy Skippy are coupled as the A. A. Baron entry. Sixteen of the Texas Derby nominees have been entered in the 1934 Kentucky Derby.

The Sports Horn

THE TEXAS DERBY

Two more weeks and the $10,000 added Texas Derby will be turf history. Interest in this Southwest classic is gripping turf followers all over the country, and many eyes will be focused on Arlington Downs April 21 when the field of 16 or more thoroughbreds goes prancing towards the post for glory and money.

The Texas Derby brings together three of the first four Derby winners of 1934 and the most capable field of three-year-olds to be entered in any race this year. Included are Riskulus, Norman W. Church's good son of Stamulus and winner of the Agua Caliente Derby; Tatanne, Mrs. John Zoeller's daughter of St. James which won the Jefferson Derby; and W. C. Reichert's Hickory Lad, winner of the Louisiana Derby.

OLD TURF ADAGE

It is an old turf adage, however, that the best three-year-olds do not race during the winter, and that all find strong support for such as Counselor Cream, Dartle, Sgt. Ryan and many others. They will have work cut out for them to down some of the winter runners who have been carefully prepared for a winning race in the Texas Derby.

Riskulus was beaten by a head by his stable mate, Gallant Sir, in the 1934 renewal of the Caliente Handicap, the race being run in the fast time of 2:02 4-5. This is one of the fastest races ever run that early in the season by a three-year-old and is mainly responsible for Riskulus' odds of 10 to 1 in the Kentucky Derby, for which race he is co-favorite with Mata Hari, Chie-

Texas Longhorns

The University of Texas football players have learned enough about the Notre Dame system to look like a football team—almost.

Weldon Hart of the Austin American-Statesman, wrote the following about the new Longhorns:

"The Texas Longhorns have reached the half-way point in their initiation into the Notre Dame football system in which a play either fails completely or works for long yardage. They have the first points down perfectly.

"In a recent scrimmage they had their moments in which plays clicked and blockers blocked and all the ball toters had to do was run. Big Jay Arnold from Greenville, broke through a quick-opening hole once for a 40-yard gallop, and Paul Pitzer, a freshman, and Buster Jurecka contributed several nice jaunts around wings and off tackles.

"Coaches Jack Chevigny and Tim Moynihan, looking ahead to April 13 when a 'round-up game' will be played, took advantage of a recent scrimmage to work every man on the squad on one of the scrimmage teams. Game conditions prevailed except that coaches remained on the field and stopped plays, checked signals and ran plays over when things went wrong.

"The general impression received by the customers was that the Texas Longhorns had gone far since their first semi-game under the Notre Dame system. They were blocking better, driving harder and apparently getting their plays fairly well in mind. In fact, at times they looked almost like a football team."

All University of Texas coaches have been placed on a one-year employment basis by the university regents. The three-year contract of former Coach Clyde Littlefield was the last of a period longer than one year.

This means that Chevigny, new football mentor, has a one-year and not a three-year contract as many persons claimed.

Fish Hatchery Unit Is Near Completion

SAN ANGELO (AP)—Representing an outlay of approximately $21,000 and covering about 130 acres with ponds, the San Angelo federal fish hatchery will be the largest of 88 similar plants over the United States if present plans are carried out.

The first unit of the hatchery is expected to be completed in about 60 days. It will contain five ponds of about 50 acres of water.

Land for the hatchery given by the city is valued at $10,000, including CWA and PWA labor. Sixty men are now employed under the direction of Charles E. Grater, superintendent in Texas for the federal hatcheries.

The bureau of fisheries has asked for $100,000 more to extend original plans but this must be approved by congress.

G. C. Leach, chief of fish culture, and Frank T. Bell, commissioner of the Federal Bureau of Fisheries, will be in San Angelo soon to inspect work.
