It is powered by a nine-cylinder French Salmson motor, and Payne claims a speed of 120 miles an hour, using only three gallons of gas an hour at that speed.

Jess Conservative As He Outlines the Strength of Team

By JESS RODGERS
About this time last season I tried to make the baseball lovers of Midland believe that Midland had a club apt to go a long ways in the newly organized Mexican Basin league and how far wrong I was showed at the end of the season when the locals wound up in the cellar position. This year I am going to be more conservative and say that Midland has a fair ball club.

JUDGES CONFUSE SELVES

AUSTIN.—Judges, like others, are prone to write too much. This is the fly in the ointment of the supreme court's recent ruling that from now on commission opinions, approved by the court shall have the full force of opinions by the court itself. Heretofore the court approved or disapproved the decision; it did not attempt to endorse all the reasoning.

WILL MATCH SHOTS

HOUSTON (UP)—Machine gun desperadoes will be met by some of their own tactics if they ever encounter Sheriff T. A. Binford of Harris county. Targets, punctured with holes shot from Binford's sub-machine gun at 125 yards, adorn the wall of the sheriff's office. He and his chief deputy, Norbert Hill, keep in practice with the weapon which was given Binford by his deputies.

SIGN OF PROMISE

If there is anything to the theory that increased wages will, by boosting consumer purchasing power, create widespread business prosperity, we ought to be due for a pretty brisk revival in the immediate future.

Whatever else may be happening in the world of industry these days, wages at least are going up. Such basic industries as steel and automobiles have granted increases to hundreds of thousands of workers in the last few weeks, and other lines have followed suit.

The result is almost certain to be a very substantial increase in the buying of consumers' goods.

Despite all that has been said, it is not yet entirely clear just how much increased consumer buying power can do to restore prosperity. If it can do as much as its advocates say it can, we ought to have some pretty prosperous times ahead of us.

'I'LL TELL the WORLD'

The Romance and Thrills of Newsgathering for the United Press—From Universal's Screenplay.

SYNOPSIS: Brown, correspondent of the United Press, a world-wide newsgathering agency, and Briggs, correspondent of the Confederated Press, a rival organization, have been carrying a personal feud. Brown has just given Briggs a terrific beating on a story about a runaway dirigible which has crashed in northern Canada. Briggs has been transferred to Europe. Brown has reported back to New York City.

CHAPTER III Brown, boating with self-satisfaction over the way in which he had scooped his rival, Briggs, on the crash of the ill-fated dirigible, breezed into the New York offices of the United Press. As he passed down the long, main newsroom, he waved greetings to other correspondents, editors and sub-editors. Men hailed him, but he didn't pause. This was his hour of triumph, and he was going to make the most of it.

At the end of the room was the office of Frank Hardwick, the brusque news manager who had sent Brown by plane into northern Canada. Brown dashed into the office, a wide grin on his face. He began immediately to sing his own praises. Hardwick paid no attention to this "sales talk" other than to grunt a laconic greeting. The canny man pretended to be preoccupied with the study of an assignment sheet. Then he laid aside the assignment sheet and with a carefully studied gesture picked up a dispatch and began reading it. He theatrically revealed his great interest in the news which it contained. Brown forgot about yesterday's triumph, libbed his eyebrows with curiosity, walked around Hardwick's desk and began reading over his shoulder. The item revealed that Archduke Ferdinand, aged and venerable member of Europe's oldest royal family, had narrowly escaped death when an elevator in which he had been riding had plunged seventeen floors before safety devices had taken hold. "It happened right here in New York!" exclaimed Hardwick. "It looks as if there might be a great story there—if a man was clever enough to get beneath the surface."

"I can't see why you'd work up a temperatie over that," said Brown. "Modern elevators don't have such accidents, young man," suggested his employer. "Who is this Ferdinand guy?" Brown demanded, his inquiring mind beginning to function. "Well, he's eighty years old. He's been visiting in New York two weeks. He was killed in nineteen-hundred and thirteen on the Berengaria tonight," Hardwick replied. Brown's interest lessened. He yawned. "Well, Hardwick," he said, "inasmuch as I'm neither an archduke nor eighty years old, I'm going to keep a date with the sweetest little girl."

The teletype started tapping out a news item. Brown, alert again, leaned over and began reading from behind his boss' back once more. The printer said: "NEW YORK CITY, MAY 19. (UNITED PRESS).—ARCHDUKE FERDINAND HAD AN OTHER NARROW ESCAPE FROM SERIOUS INJURY."

The following poem, written by C. M. Duffey, was read before the Wednesday club this week at a service in memory of the late Mmes. Helen Russell Lloyd and Mamie Cowden Rowe:

Only yesterday it seems I saw you in the glory of your youth, And today they tell me you have left us—youth is truth. Can death's hand be this ruthless that to part us so? When fate was kind and linked our paths those happy days ago? Oh, the cherished friendships that time alone did yield, And the blessed memories that in my heart are sealed. God bless you dear ones wherever you may be: Deep in my soul I know you are still good friends to me.

SOCIETY

Home Economics Students Model Dresses At High School Tea Thursday Afternoon

The spotlight of high school society was centered Thursday on the Fashion Tea, given in the home economics room of the building, at 4 o'clock.

Guests, dressed in evening clothes, were Misses Crystelle Steele, Harriett Ticknor, Imogene Cox, Hale, Cloc Manning, Leola Keroy, Elizabeth Kimebrew, Melba Lee, Nora Mae Bizzell and Mae Betu Jenkins.

As guests entered the room, they registered in a home economics book, presided over by Miss Frances George. When the guests were seated, members of the home economics classes served tea, cheese and olive chops, chicken salad sandwiches, sand tarts, ice box cookies and coconut mints.

The affair was given in order that parents of the home economics students might see what they are doing.

Dresses made by clothing students were modeled. Heralding the approach of the models was Miss Don Black in a lovely evening gown. Mannequins entered a side door and paraded around a table placed in the center of the room. The table was laid with lace covered red satin and was centered with a bowl of red tulips on a mirror base. Bouquets of the same flowers were placed on the registration table and piano. Models of the room held baskets of bridal wreath.

Miss Black, official announcer for the afternoon, first introduced mannequins who modeled wash dresses.

These included Virginia Yeats, Lorena Dunagan, Willie Merle Coffey, Katherine Brown, Beulah Mae Coleman, Mona Harmon, Florin Hamlin, Christine Baker, Maxine Bell, Jewell White, Christine Pace, Adale Reiger, Pady Sue Whitcomb, Anna Beth Bedford, Margaret Hoffman and Laverne McMullan.

The high school girls' quartet, Misses Melba Lee, Alma Lee Hankins, Harriett Ticknor and Juanita Cox, sang two lovely numbers, "With a Whisper" and "Will o' the Wisp," accompanied by their director, Mrs. De Lo Douglas.

Tailored dresses were modeled next and mannequins in this group included Marceline Watts, Dorothy Barnes, Juanita Cox, Nell Hornsby, Dorothy Dunagan, Doris Tidwell, Bessie Flournoy, Josephine Ray, Mary Kimebrew, Katherine Beuchamp, Dorothy Hines, Lorena Dunagan, Betty Minter and Frances George.

After a piano selection by Mary Beth Scruggs, dresses for special occasions were exhibited by Crystelle Steele, May Beth Jenkins, Harriett Ticknor, Melba Lee, Nora Mae Bizzell, Leola Kerby, Imogene Hale, Cloc Manning, Josephine Ray, Doris Tidwell, Bessie Flournoy, Dorothy Dunagan, Katherine Brown, Nell Hornsby, Juanita Cox and Bessie Flournoy.

Winners in each of these groups were selected in a contest held Wednesday afternoon. Each dress was judged according to the following score card:

- I. Selection 25%
II. Material 15%
1. Color 5%
2. Condition of skin, 15%
3. Posture 5%
4. Poise 15%
5. General personality 5%
III. Construction 15%
IV. General effect 10%
Below is a list of the winners: Wash dress group: Lorena Dunagan, 1st; Willie Mae Coffey, 2nd; Christine Pace, 3rd. Evening dress group: Marcelle Scarborough, 1st; Juanita Cox and Lorena Dunagan, 2nd; Kathleen Brown, 3rd. Tailored dress group: Harriett Ticknor, 1st; Katherine Brown, 2nd; Nell Hornsby and Dorothy Dunagan, 3rd. Lela Mae Miles was selected as representative from the foods department. Story

OUS INJURY TONIGHT IN AN AUTO CRASH.

"THE AUTOMOBILE IN WHICH HE WAS RIDING WAS CROWDED INTO AN ELEVATED PILLAR BY A TRUCK WHOSE DRIVER PROCEEDED WITHOUT OFFERING ASSISTANCE."

Hardwick looked over his shoulder at his correspondent. "Looks like a bad night for archdukes," he said. "Hop a cab and go down to the pier. See him on the Berengaria before he sails."

Brown bridled. "Say—wait a minute. Why Eskimos to archdukes in twenty-four hours? I've got a date with the most charming young lady—"

"She can wait," Hardwick decided. "I want an interview."

Brown hesitated a moment. His news hunger got the best of him. He grabbed a telephone, got Lucile on the wire.

"Hello, honey! I'm just leaving the office. I'll be right there." He turned to Hardwick. "Lovely little thing. She's just discovered that a pinch of salt can be greatly improved by dropping it into a stein of beer. Now—"

Hardwick became irritated by this flow of words: "Listen, Brown—get down to that pier!" Brown shook his finger under his boss' nose. He harangued: "I date a blonde and you think of a balloon. I date a redhead and you think of an archduke. Some day you'll pay for this, Frank Hardwick!"

He dashed out of the office, leaped into an elevator, and reaching the main floor, ran to the street and hailed a taxicab. He ordered the driver to speed to the steamship pier. Arriving, he sprinted into a telephone booth to call his girl. She was thoroughly angry at his delay in keeping his appointment.

"I'm practically with you, honey," he said apologetically. "Hold everything... Goodbye."

Then he telephoned Hardwick. He was just reporting that he was "all eyes and ears" when another taxicab drove up. There was a terrific explosion. He staggered as the concussion struck him. The glass in the booth was shattered and it rcked. Pieces of taxicab came through the broken pane as he ducked.

"The archduke," reported the correspondent, "has just arrived."

Hurriedly, he gave Hardwick an eye-witness account of the bombing of the royalist's taxicab.

"They can't kill the old fellow!" he concluded. "He's running up the gangplank like a scared rabbit."

He sighed heavily, thinking his work was done. Now he could—

"Run after him!" ordered Hardwick. "Get on that boat and stick to him until you find out who's trying to kill him and why."

Brown was outraged. "Say—that boat's heading for Europe in five minutes!" he protested.

"That's nothing. So are you!" snapped Hardwick, who rang off. "But I gotta date—" Brown was panic-stricken when he found him-

YOUR GROCER HAS THIS SUNNY WAY TO BETTER HEALTH

Check Common Constipation with a Delicious Cereal

Food has a lot to do with how you feel and how you look. For instance, you need plenty of "bulk" with your meals to avoid the risk of common constipation.

This ailment frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet, in most cases, it can be overcome pleasantly and safely by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" in convenient and concentrated form. Laboratory tests show the "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is safe and effective. In fact, it is much like that found in leafy vegetables.

Within the body, the fiber of ALL-BRAN absorbs moisture, and forms a soft mass. Gently, this clears out the intestinal wastes.

In addition, ALL-BRAN provides vitamin B and iron.

Isn't this sunny way better than taking patent medicines—so often harmful? Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or cook into appetizing recipes. Be sure you get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. It contains much more needed "bulk" than part-bran products. In the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

business of finding out why there had been so many attempts on Archduke Ferdinand's life.

"As soon as I found out about that," he said, "you'll have a real story."

He hung up.

Brown asked Marshall if he had anyone on the staff who knew anything about the personal habits of aged archdukes who went around dodging bombs and trying to stay out of traffic accidents. Marshall said he did, and sent for Paul LeGendre, Marshall explained that LeGendre was an authority on royalty, such as it was, still existing in Europe.

In response to Brown's questions, he said that Ferdinand had returned to Europe to participate in a reunion of his family at his birthday dinner.

"All of the family is gathering at the old Hotel Europa at Vichy," LeGendre concluded.

Brown leaped to his feet, headed for the door.

"Where are you going?" asked Marshall, surprised at this sudden move.

"To Vichy!" Brown called back over his shoulder.

Paul Muni Coming To Ritz in First of Comedy Roles

"A newspaper story that's different."

That is the report preceding the Warner Bros. production, "Hi, Nellie!" starring Paul Muni, which comes to the Ritz theatre Sunday and Monday.

One of the "different" features of "Hi, Nellie!" is its star. No previous film with a city room background has featured a player of the theatrical importance, both on stage and screen, of Muni.

For Muni himself, "Hi, Nellie!" is a departure, too. Following the powerfully dramatic but sombre characterizations he has contributed to the screen in "I Am a Fugitive," "Scarface" and "The World Changes," his role in this fast-moving, lightly handled and breezy story is said to represent an amazing contrast.

For the first time in his motion picture career, the star essays comedy, in a fast action picture that combines thrills and hilarious laughter. As the hard-hitting managing editor of a big New York daily, he finds himself suddenly in the "dog house." He has failed to handle a sensational case as his publisher's commands. The "dog house" in this instance is the "Heart Throbs" column of the paper. He has to turn out daily reams of "lovelorn" copy—and the cruellest cut of all is his by-line: "Nellie Nelson."

But this ace newspaperman holds to his creed. While he writes balm for broken hearts, he still keeps working on the story that has brought him low. That is, on his theory of the story—which is to do with the sensational disappearance of a public figure. His resolution of the case and his restoration to the publisher's esteem provide the swift and dramatic climax.

Glenda Farrell, in her first assignment as a straight leading woman on the screen, is seen opposite the star.

Steps Made Toward A Softball League

At least one other league of eight teams and possibly two more will be organized to take care of all of the softball teams now being organized. Another meeting will be held next Tuesday night. In the meantime, a committee of Tiny Reed, Doyle Robinson and Tom Beasley will draft a schedule to submit at the next meeting. Play will start about April 30 and end about August 30. A split season was desired by those present.

It was decided that every team would have an eighteen player limit and that any player desiring to shift from one team to another would have to secure a release from his manager ten days before playing with the new team in a league game. Any player participating in a league game with any other team than his own will be suspended for ten days and the game will be forfeited.

Glenn Gulikey, Joe Pickle and H. H. Hannah were named to select a playing site and determine means
