WHITE WALKER GETS 99 YEARS

FUNERAL TODAY FOR CHILD WHO TOUCHED WIRE

Investigation Made As to Cause of Tragedy

Funeral services will be conducted at the Greenwood Baptist church this afternoon for Robert Wren, 12, who was electrocuted when he came in contact with a charged wire near the Prairie Lee school Thursday afternoon.

Reports reaching Midland said the wire evidently had been thrown over the electric line and that the child received the full power load when he grasped it. An investigation was being launched this afternoon to determine who threw the wire over the line and other details.

If had not been announced early this afternoon who would read the services, but the family announced interment would be at Greenwood cemetery.

The father, Homer Wren, formerly was pastor of the Greenwood church. Nine other children and the mother survive.

THICKET YIELDS BODIES OF TWO

HOUSTON, June 1. (U.P.)—The bodies of a man and a woman were found in a thicket near the city today. Officers estimated they had been dead for two weeks. This condition of the bodies made identification and cause of the deaths difficult.

The couple appeared to be elderly. The man's body lay on its back, one hand extended toward the woman. Near the other hand was an empty pint jar and two glasses. The woman's hand had contained several bottles of poison bearing the label of a La Grange drug store.

Minister to Point Way to Find Peace

Did you ever experience any troubles with yourself or do external circumstances ever come to disquiet you?

If you are so fortunate as to be able to answer these two questions in the negative it is not essential that you hear the message at the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning. But, if your nerves are frayed, jangling, on edge; if the trials of life and times ever disturb you; if you ever long for that serene state of being, peaceful serenity, attained by a few persons but possible for all, then you cannot afford to miss this message.

Actual experiences and tragedies of life, experienced by the minister, "prove he has discovered the secret of peace," a church announcement reads, so the message will not be just theological dogma or abstract theories. The theme will be: "How You May Have Peace."

Colts Play Game At Courtney Today

The Midland pastor is assisting the Big Spring man in holding a revival. He goes to Lamesa Thursday for an address on "The Pastor and the Layman Working Together." The occasion is the quarterly district meeting of Dist. 8.

Youth Reflects New Tendency—That Of Toleration for Parents, Elders

BY MARY MARGARET McBRIDE
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1934, NEA Service, Inc.)

BALTIMORE.—"The young of today have no faith in their parents," mused F. Scott Fitzgerald. "In fact, they obviously consider their fathers and mothers pliable lacking in common sense—just pots, old back numbers who must be petted and babied and endured."

"You are right," composedly spoke up Miss Frances Scott Fitzgerald from the other side of the room. "We don't think our parents know much about the world. You know why? Well, it's because of the way they act and the things they tell us we ought to do."

Mr. Fitzgerald and his pretty blonde school-girl daughter, known to her intimates as Scottie, agree about the way youth today acts but are not quite of one mind as to the propriety thereof.

It was Scott Fitzgerald, you remember, who practically invented the younger generation of a decade and a half ago. He did it with a book called "This Side of Paradise" which produced such a stir that the nation has been in a flutter ever since over what youth thinks and feels and means to do with itself.

In the meantime, the author has acquired a younger generation of his own—what naturally makes his interest a bit less academic than it was.

"My daughter's generation spends most of its time looking at itself in its several mirrors and figuring out how to be like Garbo," he commented, to anybody in particular.

Scottie accepted the challenge with a toss of her yellow bobbed head.

"Well, and if we do?" she countered. "Surely it's a good thing for us to want to make the best of ourselves. We don't really look into mirrors all the time, though. We haven't time. We're too busy reading what life is all about. We have to decide these matters for ourselves since our parents don't understand our problems."

The girl turned her deep blue eyes gravely in my direction. She looked very young and appealing, sitting there in her white blouse, red tie and blue pleated skirt, so sure of herself and her ability to cope with the future.

"Daddy is a fine writer," she confided, exactly as if he had not been in the room. "But as for knowing about life, he doesn't. He's just a child. He hasn't the vaguest idea what is going on today. He knows only things that happened a long time ago—oh, ten, maybe twenty years ago!"

Not the shadow of a smile crossed Scott Fitzgerald's attentive face. If this sentiment of his daughter's reminded him of his own youth he gave no sign. He simply waited while the even, self-assured young voice continued.

"My generation is not really being brought up by its parents," Scottie startlingly asserted. "Very few parents even make any effort to bring up their children. Oh, some are a little strict, or try to be, but it doesn't matter. All that matters is example."

"A girl knows well enough it's the bunk if her parents tell her one thing and then do the opposite. Can you blame her? We've learned to use our minds!"

"What is your ambition, Scottie?" inquired her father, amiably. "Do you want to marry and have a home of your own, or do you want to get out and make a career for yourself?"

Scottie did not need to weigh that very long.

"I want to design scenery and produce shows," she retorted crisply. "I want to have a great deal of money and to make it myself. But you'll probably marry, too."

When his daughter had departed to put a few locks on her next day's French lesson, her father smiled and nodded.

"You see? That is what her generation is really like—fond of their parents but completely unimpressed by them, ambitious, positive, cock-sure that it can get whatever it wants; emancipated from the old ways."

In short, "Scottie and her contemporaries are the cumulative result of what has happened since Scottie's father set the world by the ears with his talk of tin-tyer generation. Perhaps Scott Fitzgerald has kept track of the successive changes in young people.

"In 1915," he says, "they didn't yet know what it was all about. They were still almost Victorian, with only here and there a young man or a young woman beginning to suspect that a lot of unlit-there sacred beliefs were only bunk and junk. Nineteen seventeen saw the real beginning of dissatisfaction with the existing order. Then the way came along and knocked both men and girls sidewise.

"About 1922, you got the flapper and her boy friend. These young things were created by public opinion and they did their best to live up to what was expected of them. The girls wore their skirts as short as they could get them and any excess of behavior was considered smart. In 1924 came a sharp reaction which took the form of condemning the older brothers and sisters. Dresses got snisterly longer, morals stricter, and the blue laws took a leap forward.

"By 1929 these rather primish young people had given place to a generation with a curious kind of conservatism. (See YOUTH, page 6)

DALLAS MAN IS BADLY BEATEN

TERRELL, June 1. (U.P.)—B. X. Burks, Dallas real estate man, was seriously injured today when two hitch hikers beat him unconscious and threw him from a car near Colton.

'MORAL SUPPORT' OFFERED TURNER

Moral support of Midland for a proposed new air line of aircraft stock selling to finance a such line would be impossible and the chamber of commerce could not aid in it, R. H. Turner was told Thursday night by members of the aviation committee.

Turner, a pilot and business promotion manager for the Paso Del Norte hotel of El Paso, is much interested in aviation, and believes air lines from El Paso to Oklahoma City via Amarillo and from Amarillo to San Antonio via Midland and from El Paso to San Antonio via Alpine would be required.

He believes capital of $100,000 would be required. The Midland committee promised every possible aid except the financing, citing the fact that an attempt made in 1929 to sell air line stock at Midland failed completely and the further fact that few people have money to invest, not to mention speculation.

Harvey Sloan, chairman of the committee, and Bob Martin, member, took part in the discussions.

PARIS IS PICKING 1937 FAIR SITE

PARIS, (U.P.)—The site for the World fair scheduled here for 1937 has been chosen at the center of the city, extending along the banks of the Seine in the vicinity of the Trocadero and the Eiffel tower.

If the plans, as now drawn up, are completed and approved by municipal authorities, the famous Trocadero gardens will have to be destroyed to make way for the temporary buildings.

To finance the fair, the state plans a subsidy of 15,000,000 francs, and the City of Paris, 285,000,000 francs, which will be recovered by a 700,000,000 franc lottery, resembling the national lottery, with tickets to be sold concurrently in 1936.

The Trocadero Palais was built in 1878 by Davioud and Bourdais for the World's fair. It is one of the largest auditoriums in the world and today houses the Musée d'Ethnographie and the Musée de Sculpture Comparee. From the Palais of the Trocadero magnificent gardens outlined by enormous trees extend to the river on the right bank and continue after crossing the Pont Alma on the left side of the river to the Eiffel tower, also a part of the previous exposition.

The City of Paris is offering three portions of ground cleared by demolishing old fortifications, three and a half hectares in size. The department of the Seine will likewise hand over the Orangerie in the domain of Sceaux and 11 hectares of the Park of Sceaux for the horticultural exhibits.

Courting Turk Sought the Aid of Ottoman Officials

ISTANBUL (U.P.)—A love-sick Turk has sought the aid of the prosecutor-general to bring about his marriage to a Turkish beauty contest winner.

Stalking into the prosecutor-general's office, the would-be beneficiary announced himself as Tudjar Sade Tchahghirli Mehmed. He showed 20 photographs of his many beauty queens under the official's nose.

"Nineteen of these have asked me to wed them," he said, "but the other, my true love, who has promised to marry me, keeps putting me off. She has also expended 500 pounds of my money in presents."

The wistful lover requested the prosecutor-general to issue an order compelling his desired beauty queen to become Madame Tudjar Sade Tchahghirli Mehmed.

'Boy Messiah' Is Fearful of Strife

OJAI, Calif. (U.P.)—Jeddu Krishnamurti, one-time "Boy Messiah" protege of the late Annie Besant, believes the world is heading for unbelievable catastrophes, "unless men learn to think."

The young Hindu, more mature than when he came here seven years ago as a mere boy, has established a camp of followers for the summer in the sun-burned foothills on the Southern California coast.

World Tour

"Since his last visit here, he has been to all parts of Europe, Australia and New Zealand, and his native India.

Of Europe, he said:

"Conditions are appalling, with another war certain and soon, unless something happens.

"Millions are dying of hunger in India and in China this year all because men are too lazy to think.

The Trouble

"Man through the centuries has accepted an economic structure based on the idea of his possessions. On the other hand, we have the Communists, who would do away with possession. Between the two extremes, circumstances are making things very difficult.

"Millions are dying of hunger in India and in China this year all because men are too lazy to think.

Russia, Krishnamurti believes, is making strides. Though he has not visited there, he is keenly interested in the outcome of the "efforts to thwart man's traditional love of possession."

There is a strong nationalistic feeling in India, he said; a belief that if only India can be freed from British rule, the starting will be fed and all will be righted.

Statue Moved when Imperfection Found

HARTFORD, Conn. (U.P.)—They talk about the "Forgotten Man," but how about the statue of the Civil war veteran now standing in the rear of a monumental works for nearly a score of years, whose sculptor made the mistake of putting the wrong foot forward at "parade rest"?

Many years ago, so the story goes, the statue, in granite, was to be placed near the capitol. There was to have been much ceremony about the unveiling and even the date was set.

A committee of Civil war soldiers viewed the accomplishment of the sculptor prior to erection of the monument. Laymen declared it an outstanding piece of art.

However, one old veteran nudged his way to the front, cast a quick eye over the masterpiece and tersely remarked:

"Hell, he may have been a good soldier, but he was a poor sculptor."

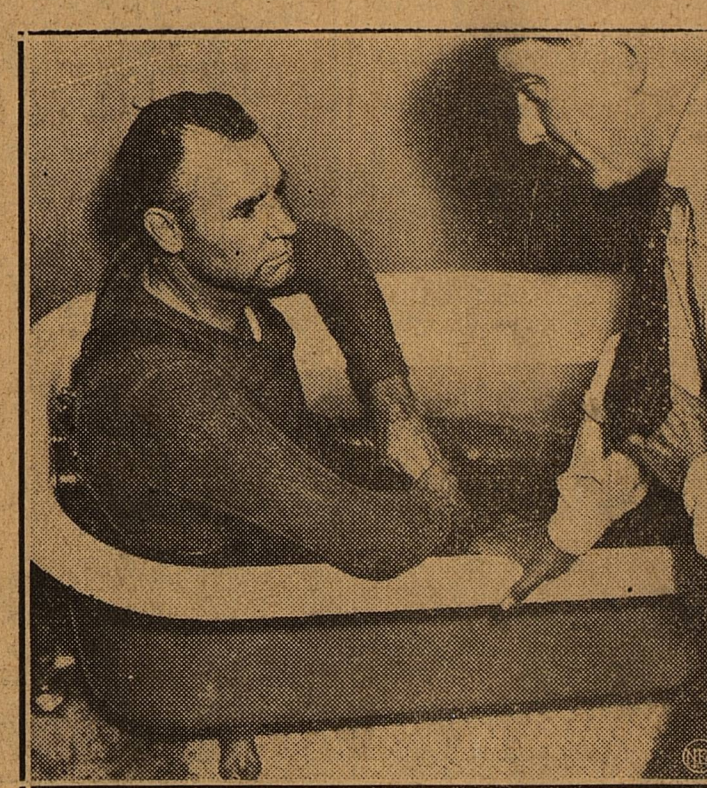

It was then noticed for the first time, that instead of the right foot being drawn back in the military form of "parade rest," the left foot was in the rear. Otherwise, the statue was perfect.

Hence, after nearly a score of years, the forgotten statue occupies an outstanding spot in the capitol building, but still forgotten.

Midland Drought Stricken Area's Plea Wired Capital

Telegrams were sent Marvin Jones, chairman of the agricultural committee of congress, Senator Tom Connally and Congressman R. E. Thomson by county judges, commissioners and chamber of commerce officials in session in Midland Thursday, urging them to use their influence with the department of agriculture to designate Midland, Reeves counties as being eligible for special drought relief from the $8,900,000 fund set aside by the government.

Telegrams followed others sent earlier in the week by the county and Midland chamber of commerce. County Judge Elliott H. Barron of Midland was elected chairman of the meeting and Secretary H. E. Davis of the Pecos chamber of commerce secretary. The principal task explaining the object of the meeting was made by Secretary Grady Davis of Odessa, who, with Commissioner L. E. Johnson, called the meeting. Commissioners H. G. Bedford of Midland and Charles Miller of Barstow spoke briefly.

(U.P.)—District Attorney Roy Jackson of El Paso today asked Congressman Ewing Thomson in Washington to use his influence to detain Robert Wilson at Georgetown, British Guiana, until extradition papers are ready. Jones was held as a suspect in the desert slaying of Mrs. Irene Dehott near Van Horn, Texas, in November, 1933.

Soviet Inspector Mocked by Camera

ARCHANGEL (U.P.)—Modern science, marvelous though it may be, has not produced a camera that can register foul odors. And thereby hangs a tale.

A certain Soviet inspector, nameless here, recently was ordered to make a survey of the government stores in his district. Disliking travel, he belittled himself of the wonders of science and decided that they should save him a trip.

Summoning several photographers, the official ordered them to tour the stores in his district and photograph their managers, clerks and stocks.

In time the photographers returned with their pictorial reports. The official gazed at the first picture, that of a store manager.

"I don't like his face," the official observed. "He looks as though he were given to drink and embezzlement."

"Discharge for drinking and a tendency toward embezzlement," the official wrote on the back of the photograph.

He looked at a second picture, that of a girl clerk.

"This girl is decidedly a flapper type," he commented. "Go out with him and is late to work next morning."

"Politically backward," was written on her photograph.

He looked at a third picture, that of a store-keeper. It showed fowls neatly suspended in rows from the ceiling. There were well-arranged barrels of pickles and sauerkraut. Ox-tails protruded from carefully spaced baskets.

"Excellent!" the official said. "This store-keeper must be commended."

All was well until another inspector visited the "model grocery." When he walked into the store-room, he nearly fainted from the stench. The neat-looking fowls and ox-tails had been there, unrefrigerated, for months.

Old Oaken Bucket Well Still Gives Good Water

SITUATE, Mass. (U.P.)—Descendants of the poet Samuel Woodworth still drink from the well which inspired his immortal poem, "The Old Oaken Bucket."

The original bucket has long since rotted and been discarded, for the poem was written 117 years ago. But the well remains to attract tourists and historians from every state in the union.

Visitors are not permitted to drink from the well, however. Mrs. Isabelle N. Murray, a descendant of the poet, now occupies the home on the site of the old Woodworth house. She permits no commercialization of the shrine—not even the sale of postcards picturing the well and bucket.

Turkish Youth Fights the Continued Use of Veils

ISTANBUL (U.P.)—Turkish women who cling to the old-fashioned veil are being criticized severely by the modern youth of Turkey.

Despite Mustafa Kemal's emancipation of the former harem-dwellers, many women obstinately retain the square piece of black cloth which covers all the features from the eyes to the chin.

The Kemal youth of Aydin, near Smyrna, have plastered the town with posters which read:

"It is repulsive to wear a veil in the street. An uncovered brow is the Turkish woman's greatest honor; it is shameful to walk about with the face covered; Turkish citizen, do not allow your wife, sister, or mother, to go about veiled; suppress the veil, but do not tear it up; use it for some other purpose."

Huge Black Rats Invade Great African District

JOHANNESBURG (U.P.)—An influx of thousands of huge black rats is terrorizing the natives of the Bizana district in the northeastern part of the Cape.

The natives have been reduced to near starvation through the depletion of their crops. They are reported to be three times the size of ordinary rats.

The rats are said to be equipped with sharp fangs, the bites from which often are poisonous. Cats have proved of no avail, as the rats attack and kill them.

Emboldened by hunger, the rats are reported to have even gnawed the toes of sleeping natives and one native chief tells of how they devoured the whole carcass of a sheep.

STRIKE WARS TELL US HOW PEOPLE FEEL

When a strike boils over into pitched warfare of the kind seen recently in Minneapolis and Toledo, it ceases to be an industrial dispute and comes ridiculously close to being class war.

The violence of the current strikes, therefore, gives them a significance far more weighty than that usually involved in an argument between workers and employers. It is futile, that is, to try to understand these troubles simply by looking at the specific things the strikers are demanding and the specific things which the employers are willing to give them.

Fighting as bad as that which has been seen in these two cities has a deeper reason than any mere disagreement about hours and wages.

Something is on the workers' minds—something that makes them angry and reckless enough to risk policemen's clubs, tear gas, and national guardsmen's bullets.

No matter how much we may deplore the results, we should be very foolish if we did not try hard to find out just what it is that is wrong.

It is probable that basically the trouble comes from a deep discontent with the way the recovery program is working out.

We are just emerging from a period of extreme hardship for the working man. All of us have suffered during the depression, but hardly any of us had quite such a thin time of it as the wage-earner.

It has left him with what you might call a psychic scar that will be a long time healing.

Now, hearing that scar, the worker makes ready for the new deal and finds that in many cases it is being played with the same old cards, in the same old way. Fine words about human rights have been said in Washington, but they haven't been put into effect.

There are still employers who look back to Homestead for lessons in the way to handle labor troubles. And Washington still postpones the job of formulating a definite and clear-cut labor policy.

All this, of course, does not excuse the violence which breaks out in places like Toledo and Minneapolis. It doesn't bring dead men back to life, or make it right to toss bricks at policemen and troopers.

But it does help us to understand why men feel as they do feel. And it is vital that we get such understanding.

TRIBUTE TO AMERICA

It was a fine tribute to the skill of American airplane designers and builders that Col. James Fitzmaurice, famous Irish pilot, recently voiced.

Colonel Fitzmaurice plans to enter the London-Melbourne race, which will be held under British auspices—and he's going to fly an American plane.

"I've had a look at everything the Germans have to offer, and also the Dutch, French, British, and Italians," he says, "and I must say that the progress the United States has made in motors and in aircraft far surpasses anything else I have seen.

"Unquestionably, your long distance speed planes are the finest in the world."

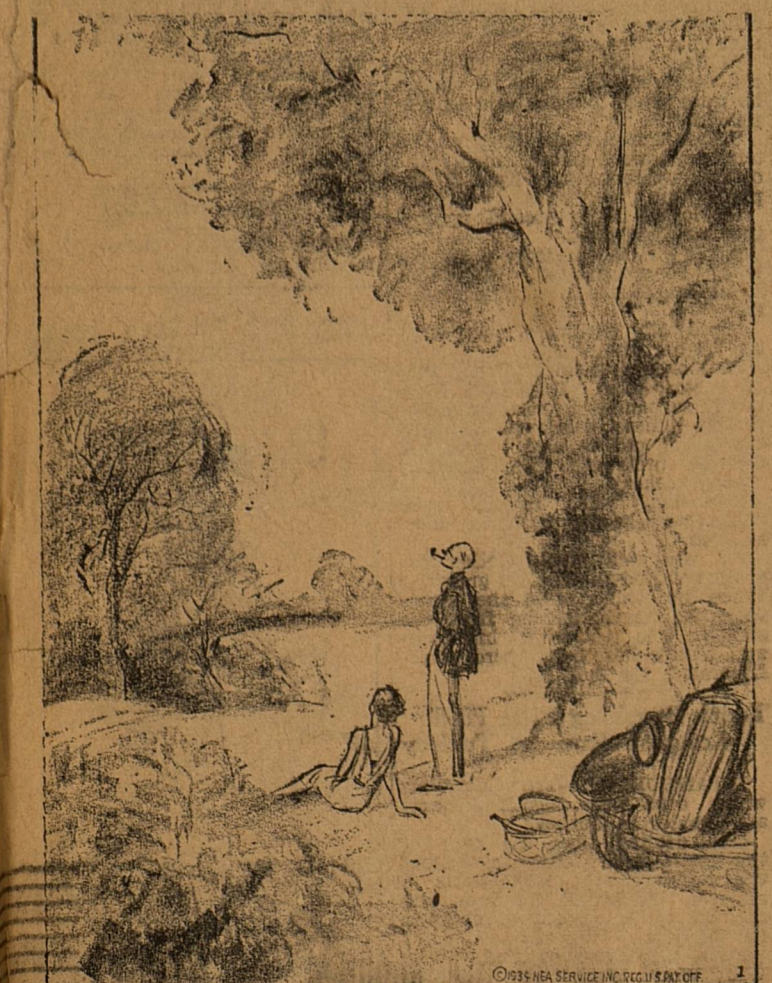

Coming from a man who has done his full share of long-distance flying, and is in a position to know what he is talking about, this is a notable tribute.

In 64 years, the world won't have enough iron to meet its needs, says a German chemist. But chemicals are fast replacing cannons already.

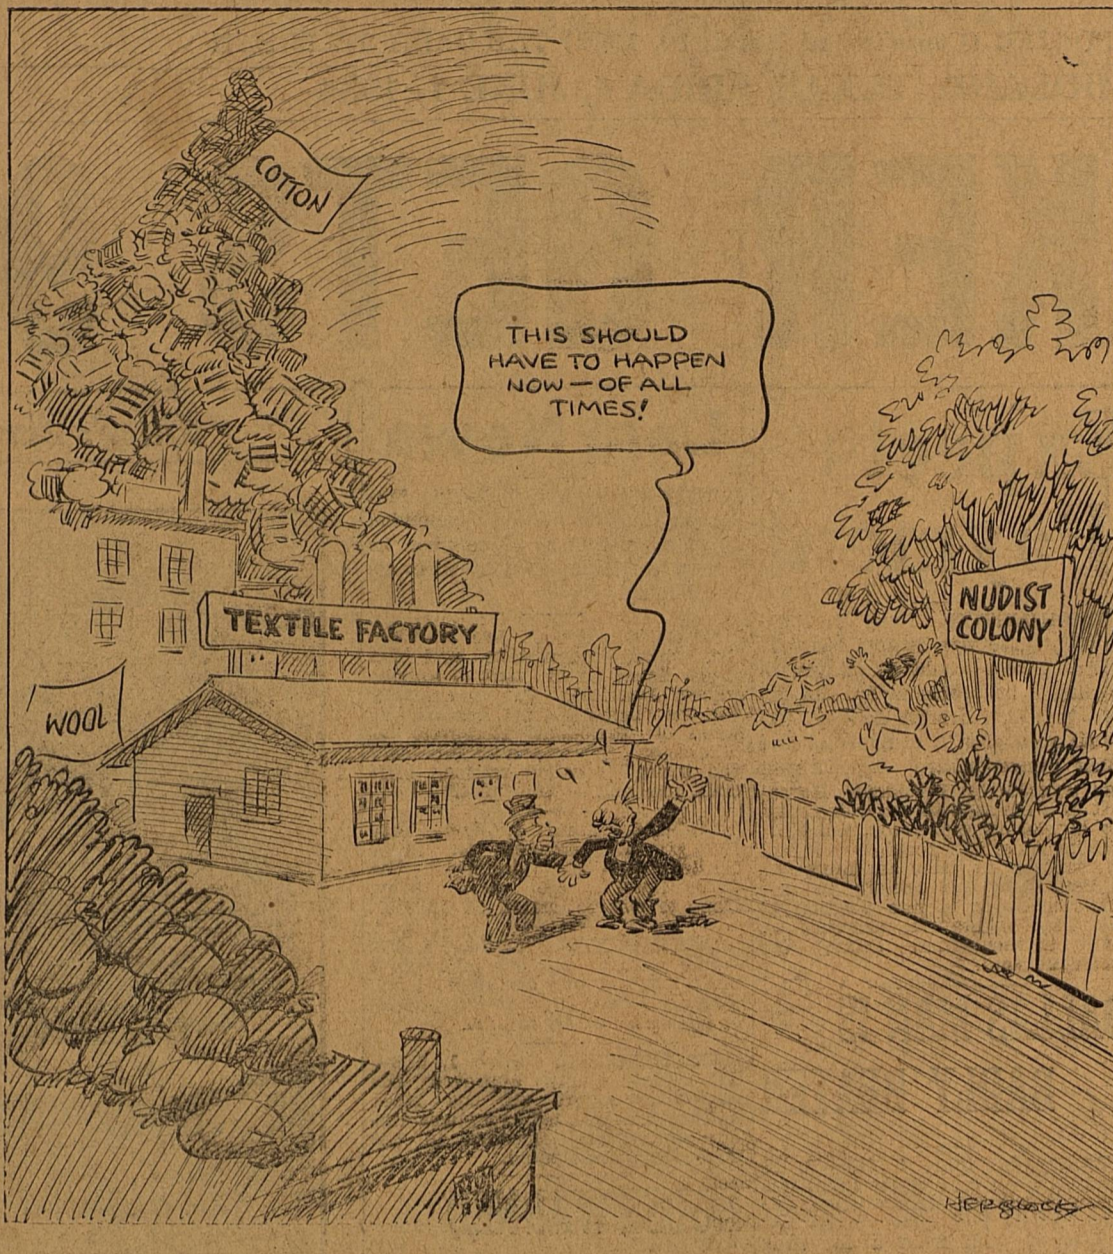

Al Smith is heading a commission to draw up a new charter for New York. Tammany doesn't mind, so long as it can handle the elections.

A book giving the full names of all the initialed federal bureaus is titled the Manual of Emergency Recovery Agencies and Facilities—and now another book will have to explain the MERAF.

Osage Indians May Buy Famous Ranch Close to Clarendon

CLARENDON (U.P.)—The Redskins came to town this week. There were many braves and a few squaws but no papooses.

Clarendon was host to a delegation of leaders from the rich Osage tribe of Indians, who live around Pawhusky and Hominy, in Oklahoma.

They came to this city for only one purpose, the leaders readily admitted to newspapermen. They were here with the view of inspecting the famous old million-acre J.A. The day when the law has to wink its eye at vice is fast getting away. It used to be that officers here could make arrests in liquor cases, etc., and the defendant almost invariably got turned loose. It seemed that the public didn't want the laws too well enforced. But times are changing. Men are

Col. Walters accompanied them, as also did Chief R. Maker and his son, James Maker, and others. Clarendon welcomed them but the real welcome was at headquarters on the big ranch where Col. T. D. Hobart, 72-year-old manager of the ranch, and President W. H. Patrick of the First National bank of this city headed the welcoming committee. The big pot and the chuck wagon were immediately filled with beefs killed for the occasion. Rodeos were improvised overnight for entertainment.

The Indians were given saddle horses to ride about the cañons and pastures. One of them, James Sirkeaxe, a husky athletic young brave, was "bounced" by his pony dians were shown every attention and left for their Oklahoma home after four days on the ranch.

Now comes the real news. Chief R. Maker declares he is going to bring a delegation of 400 of his tribe over here on June 1 to make a personal inspection of the big ranch.

"If we buy the ranch, we will move 150 or 200 of our people over here to reside on the ranch," he said. "As our tribal law requires all our money to be kept together, we must have their decision on a move as important as this."

Business men of Clarendon already are planning a big reception for the Indians when they come back with their families.

ALL-BRAN RELIEVED HIS CONSTIPATION

Delicious Cereal Brought New Health to Mr. Bartholomew

We quote from his voluntary letter: "I had considerable trouble with my stomach. Digestion was out of the question. I got medicine which gave me only temporary relief.

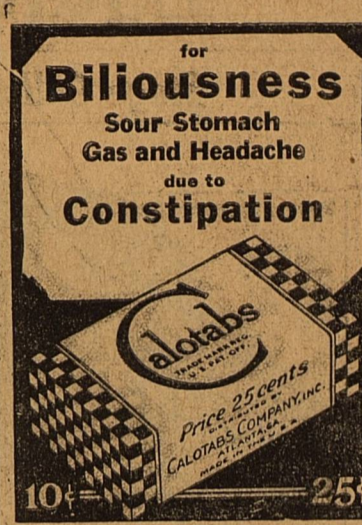

"Then I thought of taking ALL-BRAN. I started eating a cereal dishful two or three times a day. "It has been over a year now since I ate that first dish of bran, but from that day to this I have had the pleasure of enjoying the proper functioning of my digestive organs."

"Thanks to ALL-BRAN, I still eat it regularly and like it better all the time."—Lester Bartholomew, Cadillac, Mich.

Constipation is usually due to lack of "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to promote elimination. ALL-BRAN supplies both, as well as iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Certainly this food is more natural than taking harmful patent medicines. Two tablespoons daily will usually overcome most types of constipation. With each meal in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Step Up, Tomato, And Take a Prize For Easy Canning

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mary E. Dague gives helpful hints about the canning of tomatoes, in the article below. It's the fifth of six which she has written for The Reporter-Telegram on home canning subjects.

Painstaking study over a period of years has proved beyond doubt that canned foods are safe substitutes for fresh, and since tomatoes are one of the easiest and most satisfactory vegetables to can every home-maker will find it wise economy to can them in quantity. Nutrition specialists consider them so valuable from a nutrition viewpoint that they advise serving them four times a week, and when fresh fruits and a variety of vegetables are lacking, canned tomatoes may be depended upon to supply vitamins and minerals so necessary to growth and health.

An insulated oven with temperature control provides equipment for the coolest method of canning tomatoes. A water-bath canner, pressure cooker steamer, or a waterless cooker are all suitable ways for the canning of tomatoes.

Avoid Over-Ripe Fruit
Be sure not to use over-ripe tomatoes and can them as soon after gathering as possible. Although they show a smaller percentage of spoilage than other vegetables, experiments prove that the longer they are stored after gathering from the vines the longer they must be processed in order to keep them.

To can tomatoes for general use, seal them by placing in a large pan and pouring boiling water over them, completely covering. Let the tomatoes stand one minute and drain off water. Cover with cold water and slip skins. Do not let tomatoes stand too long in the scalding water because the hot water makes them soft. After slipping skins cut out stem end and hard core. Cut away any soft parts. It takes only a little bit of over-ripe tomato to spoil an entire jar, so cut deep enough to avoid danger of spoilage.

Pack at once into hot sterilized jars and add 1-2 teaspoon salt to each pint. Pour over boiling water or tomato juice to cover, half seal and process in hot water bath for 25 minutes, in oven preheated to 275 degrees F. for 45 minutes and in steam pressure cooker for 10 minutes at 15 pounds pressure.

If you do can tomatoes, or any other fruit for that matter, in the oven, it's a good plan to put the cans in a large dripping pan of hot water. Do not let the cans touch each other.

Can Whole for Salads
Tomatoes canned whole are nice for salads in winter. Choose rather small, uniform, round ones. Use poorly shaped ones for juice. Scald tomatoes, slip skins and pack whole in jars. Cut other tomatoes in small pieces and simmer ten or fifteen minutes, until you are sure they are soft enough to press out the juice. Strain and pour hot over tomatoes in cans, filling cans full. Half seal and process as usual.

So many women have asked me why their tomato juice failed to keep that I'm going to give detailed and precise directions for making it.

Scald tomatoes as usual and slip skins. Even though the tomatoes must be strained this is necessary. Cut in quarters and put in preserving kettle. Bring quickly to the boiling point, keeping the kettle covered. Crush with a wooden potato masher and cook ten minutes. Strain through a nut sieve, forcing through as much pulp as possible. Reheat to the boiling point and pour into sterilized jars, adding 1 teaspoon lemon juice and 1-2 teaspoon salt to each pint. Half seal and process as usual.

If you put your tomato juice in bottles, process them after capping just as you do the pint jars. This processing insures against spoilage. Of course, if your jars or bottles are filled perfectly full and your tomato juice is boiling hot when sealed, there is no reason why the juice shouldn't keep perfectly.

To can tomatoes for soup, scald and cut in pieces as preceding rule. To each quart of cut tomatoes add 1-4 cup chopped onion and 1-4 cup chopped celery. Simmer 20 minutes and rub through a sieve, forcing through as much pulp as possible. Reheat to the boiling point, add salt to jars, half seal and process as usual.

Tomato Catsup
Eight quarts ripe tomatoes, 1 pound dry onions, 3 tablespoons salt, 2 teaspoons white pepper, 1-2 teaspoon cayenne pepper, 2 cups medium brown sugar, 3 cups vinegar, 2 tablespoons broken stick cinnamon, 1 tablespoon whole cloves, 1 tablespoon celery seed, 1 tablespoon peppercorns, 1 tablespoon allspice berries.
Remove stems and cut tomatoes in quarters. Peel and slice onions. Cook until soft and rub through a sieve. Return to kettle with spices tied in a cheesecloth bag. Boil until reduced one-third. Add salt, sugar, white and cayenne pepper and vinegar. Boil until thick, stirring with a long-handled spoon to prevent sticking. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal.

Catsup must be more or less seasoned to "taste." The seasonings suggested in the recipe will make a zesty hot not "hot"

Don't Say Can't — Say Can

It's the season of fresh fruits and vegetables—and for home canning too. New but simple methods of canning... the quantities in which vegetables should be preserved... the latest recipes. These and other pertinent pieces of information for the economical housewife are contained in an article by Mary E. Dague in today's issue of The Reporter-Telegram.

Long Hair Will Gradually Pass, Coiffeur Tells

PARIS.—Antoine, internationally celebrated coiffeur whose skilled fingers have cut and curled the hair of all the crowned heads of feminine Europe, has issued the following proclamation: "Long hair never again will be worn by any woman who claims to be discriminating and chic. Long hair is as buried as the yet undiscovered relics of antiquity. Hairpins, hairnets and all the accessories to long hair never have been aids to beauty, neatness or comfort.

"I believe that the most attractive coiffeur for the modern woman is short, but not boyish, fewer curls and brushed back from the face and off the ears, ing. Subject: "Neglect."

but with an upward movement which is fresh and youthful.

"It should be so arranged that it needs nothing whatever to keep it in place—not a single hairpin, or metal clip, no matter how small or apparently invisible. The head should be free, and create an effect of fluffiness that is completely natural. The curls should roll toward the head and the hair at the nape of the neck should be short and brushed into a natural point from the two sides of the head, or, if a point is not natural, sweep it from one side to the other, letting the ends terminate in a soft curl, or roll at one side of the head."
For evening, Antoine prescribes diadems and flower and feather effects made of varnished hair. These should blend with the natural coiffeur and may be ornamented with a brilliant jewel.

RECITE FLAG PLEDGE

BOSTON. (U.P.)—Because Communists are "almost uncontrollable" in some Boston schools, the school committee has ordered that the pupils recite the pledge of allegiance to the American flag at least once a week. Maurice J. Tobin, chairman, also reminded the teachers, who are American citizens, that they would be discharged immediately if they refused to pledge allegiance.

Birds helped in the discovery of America. Columbus altered his course to follow the line of flight of migrating birds, the sighting of which gave the discouraged sailors the heart to go on.

APPROACHING RING BATTLES BRING CLOSE ATTENTION OF OLD MEXICO

BY C. G. LEE
Associated Press Foreign Service Writer

MEXICO, D. F. (AP)—Boxing fans in this country are waiting in hopeful suspense for the coming of three ring battles in the United States within the next month. Three dark-skinned little fighting men will engage in crucial contests which may decide whether Mexico is to realize its ambition for its first world championship in any sport.

Of all the Mexican boxers who have come close to titles since the day years ago, when the re-fleeced and unconscious Ad Wolgast and declared him winner over Joe Rivers in the semi-discussed double knockout ending to their championship battle, the three hard-chinned and hard-fisted present day boxers seem to have the best chances of giving their countrymen a reason for dancing in the streets.

If one of the three should win there will be dancing in the streets by thousands of fans who gather outside newspaper offices to follow blow-by-blow descriptions every time one of their idols goes into an important fight.

Two of the three little men are running for the featherweight championship on opposite coasts of the United States. Roderic Casanova, 18-year-old Guanajuato Tullian with dynamite punch, holds title, hopes that by beating Freddie Miller, the N. B. A. champion, in an over-weight battle at Los Angeles May 29, he will force Miller to give him a rematch for the championship. Baby Arizmendi, the Tampico boxing master, expects to win similar recognition in New York state by defeating Mike Bellows in the finals of the Madison Square garden elimination tournament next month.

Kid Azteca, Mexican welterweight champion who learned to fight along the Texas border, will be in the position of logical contender for the welterweight crown if he beats the hard punching negro, young Peter Jackson, in Los Angeles June 5.

Casanova, who found that he could punch after knocking out numerous opponents in street brawls when he was a street cleaner or and later pushed an ice cream vendor's cart, is already recognized as world's bantamweight champion by the Mexican boxing commission since Panama Al Brown walked out on a contract to defend his title here. Other commissions have been asked to acknowledge Casanova's claim or to aid in getting Brown into the ring with the slugging Mexican.

Holding victories over such first class fighters as Young Tommy, Speedy Dado and Newsway Brown, Casanova has never been knocked out in the ring and the only K. O. against him was scored by an unidentified bottle wielder in a cabaret engagement.

Fighters who have opposed him say there is a phenomenon connected with his punch. "After he hits you squarely on the jaw or on his favorite target in the back of your neck," one of his victims explained, "you don't feel anything and keep on going. About a minute later, without him hitting you again, something explodes and you wake up with water running down your back and an awful headache."

Arizmendi has no punch to compare with Casanova's but he has a record of never having been knocked off his feet in a score of fights against first-class opponents. Although he lost to Miller in a title match, the fact he came back to beat the feather champion in an over-weight contest has convinced

ARCTIC TRAGEDY WAS NOT IN VAIN

MOSCOW, (AP)—Despite the tragic sinking of the Soviet steamer Cheliuskin, in the Arctic ocean, its journey was not in vain, in the opinion of N. V. Pinyegin, Arctic explorer.

Valuable data on the course of Arctic streams, on temperatures, and on the location and types of sea fauna were gathered by Professor Otto Schmidt and his hardy band, Pinyegin pointed out in a press statement here.

Also some changes in the Arctic map may be made as a result of the Cheliuskin's voyage, he added. For instance, Schmidt found that some of the Arctic islands had been placed erroneously on the map. One, Solitude island, was found 30 miles from its supposed location. Pinyegin further reasoned that the experience of the Cheliuskin, which lacked only a few miles of completing its journey through to Behring strait, would teach masters of other vessels the best route through the Polar seas in the future.

After the Cheliuskin sank last February, Schmidt and his crew established a camp on an ice floe from which they eventually were rescued by airplanes.

Marriage Course at Ohio College Proves Popular

BLUFFTON, O. (AP)—Interest in Bluffton college's new course in marriage, offered to upper freshmen in the second semester, has spread to other Ohio colleges, which expect to adopt the course.

At a recent meeting of the State Y. M. C. A. at Otterbein college, Westerville, representatives from Wooster, Miami, Oberlin and Otterbein were among those from institutions which expect to add the subject to their curricula.

For juniors and seniors voluntarily signed up for the course have the latter part of January. The course, designed to minimize future marital difficulties, was planned and inaugurated by officers of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. Dean F. L. Panmacker and Prof. D. W. Bowman, of the faculty, later were asked to serve as sponsors.

Thus far, 10 lectures have been delivered by various specialists on marital problems. These have included: "Honeymoon and Marriage Ceremony," "Economic Adjustments," and "Physiological Basis."

Wonder Bar, Mammoth Musicale Will Open Sunday; Al Jolson Is Featured

The First National mammoth musical and dramatic spectacle "Wonder Bar," opens at the Ritz theatre Sunday for a three-day run. The picture is based on the internationally famous play that was the sensation of Europe a few years ago when it played before king and commoner in Continental capitals. Again it was a sensation on the American stage with Al Jolson in the stellar role.

Al Jolson in the film version, plays the same role as an entertainer de luxe. Other members of the stellar array include Kay Francis, Dolores Del Rio, Ricardo Cortez, Dick Powell and Hal Le Roy.

The supporting cast is quite as imposing including such notable players of stage and screen as Guy Kibbee, Ruth Donnelly, Hugh Herbert, Louise Fazenda, Fifi O'Neil, Merna Kennedy, Henry O'Neill, Robert Barrat and Henry Kolker. In addition there are three hundred beautiful chorus girls picked from 9,000 applicants who dance and sing clad in diaphanous gowns the upper dome, plying his brush with unconcern. He does the hazardous house-cleaning at his regular wage.

The dome is 310 feet from ground to top. There are galleries at the second, third and fourth floors. Above that, ledges replace galleries. They become narrower as they approach the top of the dome. The highest barely leaves room for Langlin's body, pressed against the wall.

The dome, old timers will tell you, is not the one originally fabricated for the Texas state capitol. That one was made in Belgium. The ship bringing it across the Atlantic foundered and a second dome had to be made. The dome was put up without loss of life. One capitol workman, since, has been killed by a fall while painting it.

The capitol's visitors are seasonal. In May, school children by the hundreds flock through the building. Many come from far distant school districts on Saturday by school bus. Railroad excursions have school bus. Railroad excursions have brought them from Dallas and Fort Worth.

In June, brides and bridegrooms register in great numbers. There is a visitors' book in the hall of the house of representatives.

Mid-summer brings the family groups. They stop at the capitol on automobile tours. Besides papa and the children, mamma is usually along, uncomfortable in high heeled shoes and unaccustomed khaki. Fall brings its group of freshmen, arriving in Austin early for the opening of the college term. Winter's visitors are mostly men.

PONY EXPRESS RIDER DEAD

MARYSVILLE, Kan. (AP)—One of the last of the pony express riders in this section has made his last ride. John Brandenburger, 80, buffalo hunter and Indian fighter, is dead. Capitol Has Its Own Human Fly-a Nerveless Porter

AUSTIN, (AP)—The Texas capitol has its own "human fly." State employees dizzily watched Walter Langlin, porter, as he dusted the capitol dome's interior this week. Langlin does it twice a year. He walks sure-footed along the narrow ledges that simulate galleries in

SUNDAY'S GAME WITH ODESSA HERE IS CALLED A "NATURAL"

STIMULUS INFUSED THROUGH LAST SUNDAY'S WIN

The Midland-Odesa baseball feud, embers of which were fanned into lambent flame Sunday when realization dawned that the Midland club at last has achieved a strength sufficient to dispute the right of Odesa to perennial champs of the area, will be continued Sunday under dramatic circumstances.

Odesa loser of Sunday's heated 2-1 encounter in her own ballpark, will bring two-thirds the town here to give the club a mental push, said Manager George Elliott.

"Odesa concedes the fact that Midland earned that Sunday game. Rose was unbeatable that day, giving up only five scratch hits. His infield was inspired. Our left-hander, Briggs, pitched good ball, but all except two of the seven hits he gave up were hard and clean, and were sufficiently bunched to mean the difference.

"I am without the service of two crack players, White, first baseman, and Surratt, short stop, left the club following the Midland game. Brooks Travis, who played with us last year, will be available to throw into the breach, as will two or three other eligibles.

"I shall shift my lineup to best advantage, but am not prepared to say who will play where.

"I will say, however, that Lefty Briggs wants to be back on the mound. When he learned that his conqueror of last Sunday is to hurl for Midland again this week—well, Rip Henson's foot is still giving him trouble anyway!"

The game will draw the greatest crowd to attend a baseball game in Midland since the days of the West Texas league.

That much has been determined.

LOG CHURCH TO CELEBRATE

DELAVAN, Wis. (U.P.)—The Westworth Baptist church here originally built of logs, which were rolled onto the site by women and children as well as men, will celebrate its 90th anniversary June 3. Not one nail was used in its construction. Wooden pins whittled by children hold the logs in place. The first minister received a salary of $100 a year without expenses or a parsonage.

Home Brewed

BY R. C. HANKINS

Personal journalism: De Lo Douglas and Job have a lot in common, and we don't mean patience. Casting around this morning to get the starters for Sunday's Sand Belt match at Big Spring, we learned the cherubic one can't sit—furthermore that he sleeps on his stomach. Joe Chambers, too, may be lost to the club ye approaching Sabbath. He is not bothered with bolts, and his style of sleeping is not relevant, but his shots have showed a tendency to stray into the rough. Being a methodical fairway brand of golfer, he allowed as how he might stay home and let someone else play.

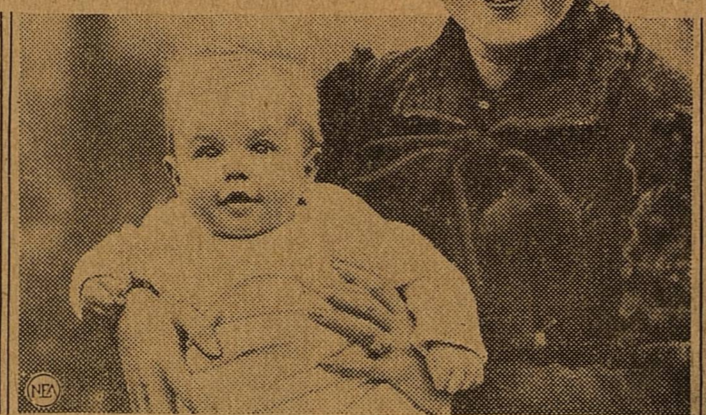

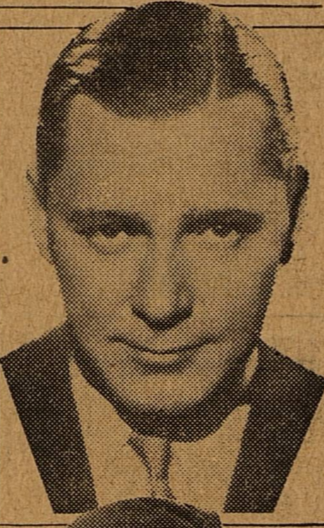

Joe's aired intention puts our curiosity on a level with that of Pandora and the first bird who got his fingers in a mouse trap. Why should he keep out of the match. He's played five Sand Belt matches on the Big Spring links, and has yet to feel a defeat. Several times he was off form when he left for the Howard county hill and dale layout. Mayhap the law of averages thumbed its nose at him last night while he slept.

Have you noticed that C. L. Jackson seldom plays No. 1 position in Sand Belt matches at home, but that he is seldom out of that place away from home? Disclaiming any intention to build a wall of superstition about the Midland ace, we offer for your consideration the following record: Jack in losing six matches last season dropped five of them on the home course. Four locals have alternated at No. 1 at home this year, yet Jack has not been "knocked off."

Manager Joe Pyron believes he suffered a broken, or at least a displaced, rib the other day when a barber "popped" his neck after shaving him. It wouldn't surprise this bureau, research records disclosing the thing that weakened Sampson was prodding he didn't want a shampoo and massage. Another thing we can't possibly get under mental hatches is why a man would allow his neck to be popped just to make his face look better.

Briton May Be No. 5 for Gloria

Herbert Marshall, noted English actor, will be No. 5 on the list of Gloria Swanson's husbands, unless the Hollywood rumor market errs badly. Report that Gloria, upper left, will seek a divorce, met with the reply from her present mate, Michael Farmer, that she'd have to wait six months and think it over, to make sure it's not just a whim. Marshall is shown upper right and his wife, Edna Best, English actress, below, with the Marshall's daughter.

Ranger Boy with Cards Real Hero

RANGER, Tex. (U.P.)—Easter Mills, who has been playing the hero role as a utility outfielder for the St. Louis Cardinals; this season, has the "hero" habit.

As a member of the Ranger high school football team several years ago he became a hero as one of the two outstanding backs of the state. At Oklahoma university his name became famous, for such feats as this:

In 1931 Mills was playing with the Oklahoma U. baseball team at Norman against Kansas state. At the same time on an adjacent field Oklahoma was engaging Kansas state in a closely contested dual track meet. Each team needed every point.

The Oklahoma track coach had on javelin thrower and needed a victory in that event. He thought of Mills' strong baseball arm. Rushing to the baseball field, he grabbed Mills, who had just hit his team ahead with a triple with two men on.

Mills ran over to the track meet, picked up a javelin and tossed it 180 feet. He returned nonchalantly to the baseball game. His javelin throw won first place. The young rookie also will be remembered as the hero of the 1930 East-West football game. He won the game for the West team with a field goal, the only score of the game.

Veteran Pilot Makes Speed Record

The above picture shows L. S. Andrews, veteran pilot of the American airlines, a few moments after he landed at the El Paso airport of the American airlines, having made the record-breaking time of three hours and forty-two minutes from Los Angeles to the pass city, in the latest type ship, a Vultee, which the airways company is using on the route. H. W. "Dusty" Walter, president of the West Texas Hotel Men's association, and manager of the El Paso Hilton hotel, is shown presenting Andrews with a new mascot to be delivered to C. R. Smith, vice president of the American airlines, Fort Worth—a horned toad. Connie Hilton, president of the Hilton hotels, is also in the picture, seated behind Andrews. Walter, former manager of Hotel Scharbauer, Midland, is standing at the right of Andrews. With them is Paul Stanley, passenger representative of American Airlines in El Paso. Others in the group include representatives of various civic organizations, and also M. L. Burleson, El Paso postmaster.

Courting Mirrors in John Alden Home Are Treasured

DUXBURY, Mass. (U.P.)—Two "courting mirrors" used by the Pilgrims when they wanted to ask young women to marry them are among the treasured antiques at the John Alden home here.

They hang in a bedroom of the three-century-old house. In those days, when a young man was about to propose, he carried a "courting mirror" to her home. When he was admitted, he laid it on the living room table. If she picked it up and looked into it during his visit, it was her way of accepting him. If she did not gaze into it, the young swain was out of luck.

The John Alden house is the only one in existence in which any of the original Pilgrims lived.

TOO MANY DUTIES

EAST HAMPTON, Conn. (U.P.)—So many are the duties of first selectman Merton Weir, who also is police and fire chief, that he is apt to be forgetful at times. One of those times was the night he looked his wife, who is his official secretary, in the town hall when he left early to go home and mow the lawn. Mrs. Weir secured her release when she called the town clerk.

Great Britain had about twice as many fatal accidents per thousand vehicles as the United States.

Dance Recital at Ritz One of Best

Gorgeous costumes, timing and footwork aided in making the recital given by pupils of Miss Martha Louise Robertson of Big Spring at the Ritz theatre Thursday evening one of the best ever seen in Midland.

The program was divided into two parts, stage revue and "Toymaker's Dream."

Fredda, Fae Turner and Anna Beth Bedford, pupils of Miss Louise McCormick, announced each number. They were dressed in eccentric costumes of black patent leather and silver.

Each pupil appearing in the first division of the recital showed excellent training. Ease and grace marked dance interpretations. The second division, "Toymaker's Dream," was written by Miss Robertson. The scene was in a doll shop, where, as the clock struck 12, dolls came alive. Each doll was dressed in appropriate costumes and interpreted a native dance.

Climax of the program came when Miss Robertson did two interpretive dances, "The Waltz You Saved for Me" and "Moonlight and Roses."

She was dressed in a chiffon and silver sequins costume with white fur trimming. Rhinestones in her hair caught the changing colors of the lights. Mrs. Roy Parks, accompanied by Mrs. Rawlins Clark, sang while Miss Robertson danced.

Mrs. W. A. Robertson, mother of the instructor, played for the other numbers.

The program follows:
Part I

fidence that there's now no word for, a generation that had the world by the tail, never dreaming there would be an era to the good things that came their way. That the end came and you saw a sickening look of fear and puzzlement grow in girl's eyes.

"By 1933, boys and girls were being more wisely brought out into life. These youngsters know more than any generation ever did out of course they think they know more even than they do. The only way to handle them is to let life deal with them. I have a feeling they are going to make out better than any of us who have gone before, at that."

"Tender Is the Night," Mr. Fitzgerald's most recently published novel, deals with the later lives of members of the generation which he called, lost and made famous. Written in his own, exquisite prose, it tragically proves his original contention.
