GOSLAW KILLS IS ASSASSINATED

Dizzy Dean Hurls St. Louis to Baseball Championship

BREAKS RECORD ESTABLISHED BY CHRISTY IN '05
Other Records Fall; 6 Tiger Hurlers Are Blasted

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Oct. 9. (UP)—The great Dean, Dizzy himself, hurled the St. Louis Cardinals to a world championship this afternoon, smashing all kinds of records in doing so.

The 11-0 win broke the 1905 world's series shutout record of Christy Mathewson in New York. Hit two singles in one inning made a record for pitchers. Rothrock's two singles made him hit for the rightfielder in the series, one over the record. The sixth inning, punctuated by a shower of pop bottles directed at Ducky Waddy Medwick, Cardinal left fielder, and a fight between Medwick and Marty Owen, Cardinal third baseman, and a parade of projectiles, extended that inning to record length.

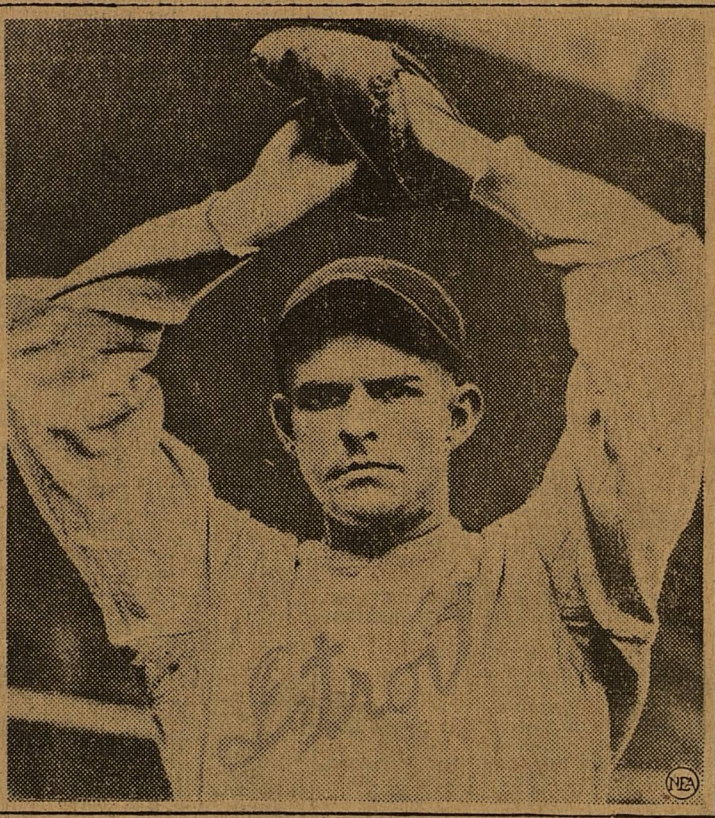

The great Dizzy gave up six hits, while his mates were pounding six Detroit hurlers for 17. Eldon Auker started for Detroit, going out in the third. Before that fatal inning was over three more Detroit hurlers, Schoolboy Rowe, Big Chief Hogsett and Tommy Bridges had tried without success to stem the riot. Seven runs were scored. Fred Marberry went to the mound in the fifth, and the veteran Gen. Alvin Crowder in the ninth. St. Louis continued to score, driving in two in the sixth and two in the seventh.

The champions scored 11 hits on 17 runs and two Tiger errors, and had nine men left on the base. Detroit hit six times and had five men left on base.

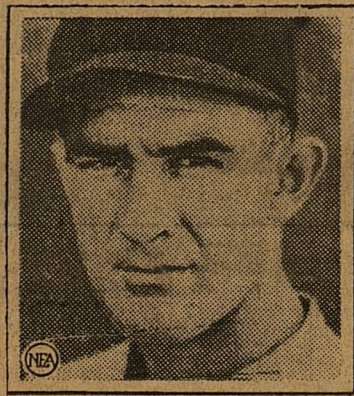

Every Cardinal scored at least once.

Ripper Collins, Cardinal first baseman, equaled the record for consecutive hits, four.

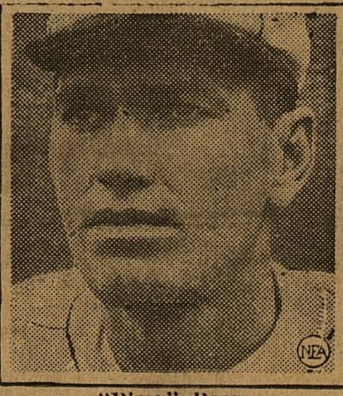

Great Dizzy Comes Back to Win Series

Tom Bridges

Eldon Auker

"Dizzy" Dean

Victim Sunday of the great pitching of young Tommy Bridges, Dizzy Dean's third attempt in the world's series was more auspicious. His mates blasted Eldon Auker from the box and continued their slugging against a procession of 3 more pitchers. Schoolboy Rowe, ace of the Detroit staff, fared no better than the rest, possibly less. The win makes two victories for Dizzy, two for Brother Paul. The brother act functioned. Joe Medwick was taken out of the game after pop bottles were showered at him.

Certificate Sale Brings a Warning

Sale of certificates in violation of the regulations subjects the certificate to cancellation. Parties to the transaction are liable to penalties provided by law. County Farm Agent S. A. Debanum has been informed in a wire from George E. Adams, assistant state agent, in answer to a query from Debanum.

Information was asked following the buying by speculators here of certificates. The certificates must not be sold outside the county, must be pooled.

Brisk demand for certificates in eastern states has been noted.

"List your certificates if you want to see, and so meet the demand," Debanum informed.

Medical Program Is Not Completed

Program for the Six-County Medical association, which meets in Midland Oct. 16, has not been completed.

The session will include medical men and dental surgeons, and will discuss the relation between oral hygiene and general medicine. Dr. L. B. Pemberton, dental surgeon, is on the program.

Counties to be represented are Ector, Midland, Martin, Howard, Glasscock and Andrews.

Dept. Heads for Co. Exhibit Named

The names of those who will head the different departments in the county exhibition sponsored by home demonstration club women during the latter part of October have been announced. They are:

Canned goods—Mrs. D. A. Ray.
Furniture—Mrs. Taylor of the Debenham club.
Curtains—Mrs. O. M. Tyner of the Busy Bee club.
Tuffed work, quilts and rugs—Mrs. Geo. Stewart of the Willing Workers club.
Miscellaneous—Mrs. Henry Locklear of Cotton Flat.

All exhibits must be in Wednesday, Oct. 24. They will be judged on Thursday, Oct. 25 and will be on display through Friday and Saturday, October 26-27.

All women in the county are invited to enter products in the exhibit.

FISH OUT OF WATER TRUE

BALTIMORE. (UP)—Nellie has made a fallacy of "like a fish out of water." Nellie is a walking and diving fish from China who apparently is able to remain out of water for hours without ill effects. She is property of the Fish Culturists of Maryland. Chinese walking fish (Chana fasciata) inhabit rice fields and in the dry season when only shallow pools remain, they are said to walk or wiggle over the ground to more suitable pools.

DOUBLE GOLDEN WEDDING

WEST PLAINS, Mo. (UP)—Mr. and Mrs. William W. Toler and Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson T. Kemp were married at a double ceremony 50 years ago when all four were students at Kennard College. They held a double golden wedding anniversary celebration recently.

EX-CONVICT IS UNDER CHARGES

HILLSBORO, Oct. 9. (UP)—H. R. Taylor, 42, former convict with a long prison record, was charged with murder today in connection with the slaying of Walter (Money) Jones, professional Cleburne money lender. Sheriff J. W. Freeland filed the complaint after Taylor had been identified as the alleged "stranger" and last person seen with Jones on Friday.

Warns Merchants Of Forged Checks

Warning merchants to watch for forged Sun Oil company checks, Frank Hampe, game warden, was assisting Justice of the Peace Ernest B. Van Zandt of McCamey today.

Hampe showed Midland banks one such check, made out on a clever imitation of the Sun company's check form for $59.76. The check was cashed at a McCamey hardware store.

"I've just been moved into this area by the Sun," the tall stranger said. "I want several things. My wife will call for them while I do some more shopping." His check was cashed, but his "wife" did not call for the merchandise.

The First National of Dallas refused payment.

PERU MAKES PROGRESS

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UP)—Peru, according to Ambassador Fred M. Dearing, is making great progress in bettering the country's financial and political conditions. Dearing, who visited his brother Frank here, served as ambassador to Portugal from 1922 to 1930, and then was sent to represent the United States in Peru.

UNIVERSITY BUILDING FAST

AUSTIN. (UP)—University of Texas' building program has been so fast that a lot of students are all mixed up. One freshman co-ed applied for a vaccination certificate at a boys' dormitory. Another co-ed confronted a pajama-clad young man in a corridor early one morning, and demanded to know if her English class met there. She was in a boy's dormitory.

BOHLS EXPLAINS SERVICES OF LAB

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

The duties of the state laboratories at Austin and the various services they render to the public were explained by Dr. S. W. Bohls, director, in an address before the county health board Monday night at the courthouse.

In developing his theme, Dr. Bohls gave a brief review of health conditions in the state.

Texas, he said, ranks 45th in the United States in disease prevention health work. He stressed the importance of periodic health examinations for all persons, particularly those who have reached the age of 35 or more.

The state department laboratory does not want to compete with private laboratories he assured his listeners, it wants to aid all health units and individuals. All work done at the laboratory is free of charge.

Here serums are made for diseases such as diphtheria and rabies; analysis are made of milk and water samples from over 700 dairies; work is done in various other diseases such as typhoid, anthrax, dysentery, testing of food and drugs for failure to reach required standards; testing is done for poisons and diphtheria and typhoid fever are the problems in this state," he said. "In 1933 there were 763 cases of diphtheria and 876 deaths from the disease."

"The typhoid situation is difficult. It can be controlled. It should be eliminated. Probably one-half of the counties have instituted an immunization program against typhoid."

Last month the laboratory examined over 20,000 samples of drinking water. Dr. Bohls said and added that San Antonio which boasts of its healthful climate and sunshine sends in a sample of water every week in order to be sure that its water supply is always kept up to standard.

Poisons are the big problem of the laboratory at Austin. It is the duty of this institution to make analyses in cases where death by poisoning is suspected, as well as in poison cases where no murderous intent is involved.

"Typhoid fever, known in three states, Georgia, Alabama, and Texas, is receiving interested attention from Dr. Bohls and his assistants, as the disease is rapidly gaining ground in Texas."

Data show that in 1929 there were only 8 known cases of typhoid in Texas, whereas in 1933 there were 398 cases. At first, confined to East Texas and the Gulf region, the disease is now spreading into West Texas.

Typhoid is spread by fleas which have lived on infected rats in order to destroy the disease, the rats must be killed out.

Typhoid is most often contracted, not by those who live in filth, as might be expected, but by the middle and upper classes, office workers, etc. from rats which stay about their places of business.

In order to avoid the disease the speaker warned that the town must be kept free of rats, and advocated starving the rodents out.

Dr. Bohls gave considerable time to the discussion of rabies and his method of spreading, symptoms, precautions and treatment.

"People get more scared over rabies than diphtheria," he said. "Statistics show 5 cases of rabies last year as opposed to several thousand cases of diphtheria."

The incubation period of rabies is between 40 and 70 days in men. Face bites require more treatment than bites on the hands or limbs.

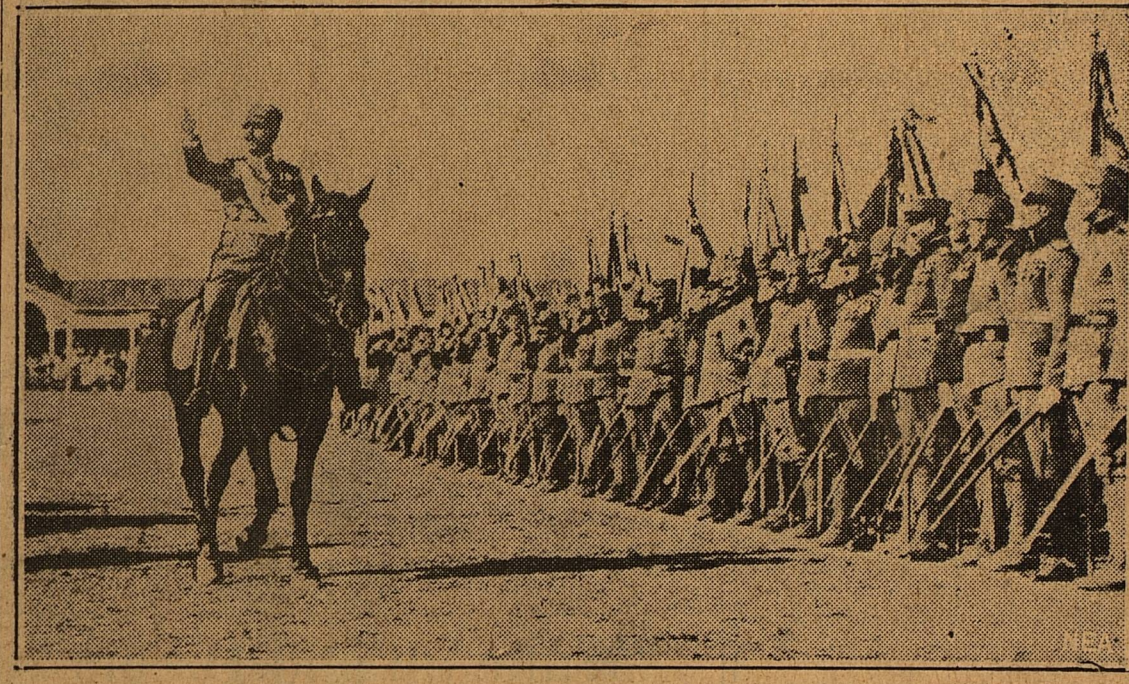

"Don't kill the dog too early," he warned. "Observe him for 10 days. If he is free of symptoms in 10 days, he is not infected."

"Can you contract rabies without being bitten by an animal that has it?" the speaker was asked.

"Absolutely not," he replied. "There is no natural carrier of rabies."

Other superstitions about the dreaded disease were denounced as such. It is not in the hot "dog days" that most cases of rabies are found but in the winter time. There (See SPEAKER, page 6)

Assassin's Bullet Cuts Down Yugoslav Ruler

MINISTER BARTOU FATALLY WOUNDED BY RAIN OF LEAD

Third Victim Is Gen. George; Assassin Is Shot Down

MARSEILLES, France, Oct. 9. (UP)—King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Foreign Minister Bartou of France were killed by an assassin today as the king arrived in France on one of the most diplomatic missions since the world war.

As King Alexander came from the dock he entered a car with Bartou and drove 150 feet when a young political exile, his name said to be Kalem Petrus, leaped through police lines to the running board of the car and opened fire at arms length. King Alexander collapsed to the floor of the car as troops whirled around on their horses and charged the crowd with sabres.

The assassin was felled by a sabre while he was shooting and was shot to death by police.

General George, French officer at the reception, was killed by bullets from the same assassin.

The French cabinet was taken to the police station, then to the prefecture where he died.

The French cabinet called a hurried session at Paris when it was learned that King Alexander was killed on French soil. Crown Prince Peter, 11 year old son of Alexander and now in school in England, will succeed to the throne.

Alexander was a young king with a passion for a unified Yugoslavia. He found the country in turmoil when he took the throne in 1921, declared a new constitution and tried to stamp out disputes as dictator. He married Princess Marie of Roumania and they had three sons. The family was very popular in Yugoslavia.

Admiral Berthelot, French maritime prefect at Toulon, was critically wounded.

Alignment of European nations was said to have depended on the visit of King Alexander to France.

ELLIS HEADS NEW DISTRICT SET-UP

Decision to organize the 16th district of Texas Federal Directors and Embalmers was acted on Monday afternoon, when the group from 18 counties met at Hotel Scharbauer. Newell Ellis of Midland was named chairman. H. A. Yates of Sweetwater vice-chairman and Mrs. Annabelle Eberly of Big Spring secretary-treasurer.

The afternoon program offered Dr. W. A. Davis, of the vital statistics bureau, Austin, and George Williamson, supervisor of the organization of morticians. A round table discussion followed, mostly on code provisions.

The session was culminated by a dinner in the ballroom of Hotel Scharbauer, during which an orchestra from El Paso played. Present were: Dr. W. A. Davis of Austin, Mrs. Annabelle Eberly of Big Spring, C. A. and Taylor Black of Barstow, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Kolar of Wink, G. T. Tindall of Colorado, A. D. Kikes of Colorado, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Yates of Sweetwater, R. C. Pevo of San Angelo, E. M. and Miss Alma Johnson of San Angelo, J. G. Murry of Peecos, M. S. Battle of Fort Stockton, Ben A. Owen of Fort Stockton, C. L. Ward of Abilene, G. C. Hubbard of Odessa, S. M. Johnson of Sweetwater, Edwin Pike of Jacksonville, J. S. Schow, Newell Ellis and A. F. Wilson of Midland, Mmes Schow and Ellis and Miss Witherspoon of Odessa attended the dinner as guests.

Late News

KERRVILLE, Oct. 9. (UP)—Charges of operating an automobile while intoxicated were filed against J. E. Stevenson, Junction attorney and brother of Coke Stevenson, speaker of the house of representatives, after an accident near here yesterday in which one woman was killed and three other persons were injured.

SAIN BEL, France, Oct. 9. (UP)—An explosion and fire in an iron pyrite mine near here today trapped 21 miners underground. The bodies of three were recovered.

MILITARY RULE IN SPAIN IS FORECAST

MADRID, Oct. 9. (UP)—A military dictatorship for revolted Spain was forecast in responsible congressional circles as nobles of the erstwhile monarchy joined 12,000 retired army officers in offering aid to the right-wing government of Premier Alejandro Lerroux.

A high ranking deputy whose name could not be revealed told the Associated Press "This uncertainty, if it continued, will end in military dictatorship."

"Recommend 'Drastic Steps'"

"The government should take the most drastic steps to end the revolt since otherwise the dictatorship seems inevitable," he said.

(A military dictatorship, that of General Primo de Rivera, ruled Spain from 1923 to 1930 in conjunction with the monarchy.)

As reports reaching the capital indicated the revolt's heavy fighting with its estimated thousands of casualties had hammered rebels in to mere sporadic activity except in northern Asturias, the Viscount of Cuba for the nobles offered the association's service to the republic.

"This they did, he said, 'because in these moments we should think only of Spain, not of political beliefs.'"

General Jose Sanjurjo, who headed the short-lived monarchist revolt of 1922, telegraphed from Lisbon to offer his services.

The lining up of nobles and retired army officers, many of them outcast when the republic's first leftist cabinet reorganized the army, served to draw still sharper the line dividing Lerroux from his socialist-communist allies.

Two Cities Recaptured

Only in the Asturias mining district of Mieres did organized opposition continue, dispatches filtering through wrecked communications systems indicated, while rebels elsewhere had been driven underground or, in desperation, to sniping and disorders.

What the toll of the artillery bombardment of Gijon and Oviedo, two major cities recaptured from the rebels, was none in Madrid knew, but estimates that took into account the four days of bitter fighting and the use of artillery in Catalonia and elsewhere and serial bombs placed the dead and wounded in the thousands.

With persistent snipers keeping the flame of revolt alive in the autonomous province of Catalonia, Madrid authorities sought some way to keep the snipers still in the capital.

The government, its prisoners in Catalonia alone numbering more than 2,000, began preparations to court martial Luis Companys, president of Catalonia, and his aides.

General Domingo Batet, heading Catalonia forces, denied that any prisoners already had been executed.

FOURTH SESSION CALLED BY GOV.

AUSTIN, Oct. 9. (UP)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson has called the forty-third legislature to convene in extra-ordinary session at noon Friday, Oct. 12.

It was the fourth time Governor Ferguson had called a special session of this legislature. The last session adjourned Sept. 25.

The text of the governor's proclamation follows:

"I, Miriam A. Ferguson, governor of the state of Texas, do by virtue of authority vested in me by the constitution of this state, hereby call a special session of the forty-third legislature to be convened in the city of Austin at 12 o'clock noon on Friday, the twelfth day of October, A. D. 1934, for the consideration of the following matters:

Topics Proposed

- 1—Remission of penalties and interest on delinquent taxes and
- 2—Authority for completion of what is known as the Buchanan dam on dams on the Colorado river and its tributaries, and other things the governor might submit.
- 3—The text of the governor's proclamation follows:
- 4—The Texas centennial and the provision for adequate funds therefor.
- 5—For additional and necessary relief for indigent and unemployed people of Texas as is now required.
- 6—To consider and act on such other subjects and questions as I as governor may from time to time during said called session submit by message or otherwise to the legislature.

The secretary of state will hereby take notice of this action and notify the members of the legislature at once."

Former Governor James E. Ferguson, husband of the governor, made the proclamation public at a conference with newspaper correspondents.

SALSBERY TRIAL IS CALLED TODAY

CENTREVILLE, Oct. 9. (UP)—The trial of Mrs. Daisy Salsberry, 25, and I. Bass, 27, on murder charges in connection with the death of Charles Salsberry, 28, whose body was found in their burning home here last August, was scheduled to start today at the Leon county court house.

The state claimed Salsberry was poisoned and left in the burning home because he was jealous of attentions of Bass to Mrs. Salsberry.

APPLES IN ALL STATES

SHOSHONE, Idaho. (UP)—The Darrah Ranch near here boasts an "everbearing" apple tree. The tree was discovered to be bearing ripe apples, small green, newly formed apples and blossoms—all at the same time.

Dozen Midland Horses Get In Money at Highland Fair

A dozen Midland horses shared in the purses paid at the recent Marfa race meet held in connection with the Highland fair.

Spence Jewell's two year old filly, Peggy O'Neill, sired by King O'Neill, that the night touted "Baby O'R", a three year old winner from the recent Amarillo meet, in a three-eighths race, running second to the fast colt another race of the same distance.

Jewell's four year old Paint won a first in the quarter mile and a third in the same distance. His four year old King F won two third places in the five-eighths distance.

Madrid (parliament) gathered for a session expected to bring stern measures to suppress the stubborn, or waning, socialist revolt.

HUGE SALMON CAUGHT

ABERDEEN, Wash. (UP)—What was believed the largest salmon ever caught in an Olympic Peninsula stream was taken by Jim Baker in the Queets River. It weighed 77 pounds.

The Nolley horse, Sammy Branton, won a second and a third in the quarter mile and a second in the three-eighths. The Figure 5 mare, Patsy S, ran second in a quarter mile race.

L. E. Cook's bay mare, Clara Bow, got a first and a second in the quarter mile and a third in the three-eighths.

Miss Slaughter's roping horse, Three Point, won a third in the quarter mile.

The Marfa derby, in which Foreign Relations got the place, was won by a fast mare, Sweetie, owned by W. M. Waters. She won three firsts at Marfa and was declared to be a fast animal. Escapate won second in the derby.

James Kenney, youthful Midland roper, stood a chance at highest general average in the roping but it was discovered that through some error his first day time was not recorded. He won two first day moneys. He also shared in the day money in the filly-taming contest, an event in which two ropers roped and placed a hackamore on wild fillies.

ANDREWS TEST DRILLS AHEAD

The Honolulu No. 1 Parker, Andrews county wildcat, last night had made nearly 20 feet of new hole in drilling to 4590 feet in lime. The well has been drilled several weeks by losing a string of tools in the hole at 4484 feet and then drilling by them and cementing them in place. The Permitt line and about 7, block A-44, public school land survey, in the central part of the county, is approaching the pay zone in the Permian lime and should prove interesting in the near future.

In drilling to 2842 feet in lime, an increase in pay zone was reported in the Sayre et al No. 1 Howe, latest Winkler county strike. The well is now making an estimated 35-40 barrels of oil per day. Location is in section 12, block 26, public school land survey.

Rapid progress is being made in the Moore et al No. 1 Mc Dowell, Glasscock county Ordovician test in section 22, block 34, township 3 south. Rigging up rotary was completed only a week or so ago at 3925 feet, and the well is now drilling below 4492 feet in lime.

Steamer's Crew Is Rescued off China

HONG KONG, Oct. 9. (UP)—Under extremely hazardous conditions, His Majesty's ship Suffolk rescued the entire crew of the steamer City of Cambridge while mountaineers seas were pounding the ship to pieces on Paria Reef. The rescuers frequently were compelled to lift lifeboats over the coral reefs. The Cambridge was a total loss.

FLAPPER FANNY SAYS

The most effective feminine stop sign reads "Sale."

Gets 73 Coyotes And Cat in Sept.

Guy West, trapper for Midland county under the predatory animal control work in which the county and state cooperate, caught 73 coyotes and a bobcat during the month of September, his report to the county showed.

West covers about twenty miles a day on his rounds of traps, taking care of the sheep ranges south of Midland. He makes the C. C. Francis ranch his headquarters.

Upton county has a trapper working parallel to West's territory and Glasscock county has a man to the east, making the control work more effective. Ector county also has carried on successful work of the same nature.

A PRINCELY CHAT OF MOURNFUL MEMORY

It was just a little story, buried away inside in a newspaper that was heavy with more important news. It bore the headline, "Romanoff has chat with Hohenzollern."

The time was the last part of July, in 1914. The shadow of war was falling long across Europe. Mobilization had been ordered in Germany and Russia.

What happened, it seems, was simply that Prince Frederick, grandson of the former German kaiser, was guest at a London party given by Prince and Princess Youssouppoff, the latter a niece of the last czar of Russia. And there was no particular reason why anyone should think twice about it—except that the headline itself was a melancholy reminder of the great opportunity which fate once gave to a Hohenzollern and a Romanoff, and which they both missed.

Then, just before the formal declarations of hostilities had been made, Romanoff and Hohenzollern tried to arrange a peaceful settlement. Monarch spoke to monarch—by telegraph. Each one, at the last minute, wanted peace.

Now if mortals could have the gift of second sight a little oftener, the history of this world would be a good deal different. Those declarations of war were the beginning of the end for both emperors. The czar's road was to lead to a musty cellar in Ekaterinburg; the kaiser's, to ignominious flight over the borders. Had they known, that eleventh-hour conversation would have been more fruitful.

But they didn't know, and they let the generals talk them out of their peace plans. The czar told his general staff to suspend mobilization, while he and Wilhelm talked peace; the kaiser told his staff to mobilize only against France, while the trouble with Russia was settled.

And each staff replied that the thing was impossible! The war machines were already in action; they were too cumbersome and uncontrollable to be halted. So this final chat between Hohenzollern and Romanoff went for nothing. They never had a chance to have another.

A tragic moment of history, that telegraph conversation—tragic for its missed opportunity, for its good impulses sacrificed to weak wills. This obscure headline in 1934 is a reminder of one of the greatest might-have-beens in all human affairs.

A DIPLOMATIC PROBLEM

The high naval officer whose duty it is to keep his country's fleet in shape to meet any emergency has a rather tough row to hoe, when you stop to think about it. Its toughness is revealed, indirectly, by dispatches from Tokio revealing that Japanese newspapers are all in a later because the United States fleet is to hold its 1935 maneuvers in the vicinity of Hawaii.

These maneuvers, say the Japanese, can be nothing less than preparation for war with Japan. Thus Japanese fears and suspicions are heightened once more, and the harassed American naval authorities seem to be at fault. But what is a poor strategist to do? He has to look ahead to possible war; he has to train his staff in the program that must be followed if some specific nation is the foe. If he doesn't, he isn't doing his job properly.

It is really much simpler for the French. When they hold maneuvers, they make no bones about the fact that they are anticipating war with Germany.

Other nations can't be so blunt. They must prepare for trouble—but they must pretend that they are going to fight an entirely imaginary foe.

While they're getting this new Liberty League on its feet, they might get Dizzy Dean for one of their pitchers. He's made a couple of breaks for liberty this season and knows how to go about it.

Here—This One Goes With It

"Wake up and Dream"

From screenplay by John Meehan Jr.

SYNOPSIS: It looks as if Paul Scotti, romantically handsome member of the stranded vaudeville troupe of Scotti, Brown and Sullivan, has been promoted, under very unusual circumstances, into the leading role of Earl Craft's famous "Nine o'Clock Frolics," now rehearsing at the Apollo Theatre in Atlantic City. The promoter is his partner and pal, Charley Sullivan. Charley has just discovered that Harold Seabrook, the actor who should have had Scotti's role, is in town, and is a menace to Scotti. He is busy getting Seabrook cockeyed in the Carlton Hotel while Scotti rehearses with the aid of the third partner, the beautiful Toby Brown.

Chapter IV There was no doubt about Paul's clicking at the rehearsal. After singing several numbers with Toby as accompanist, he found himself working with the chorus and doing a good job of it. Years of training on the road with Toby, who watched him with her fingers crossed for luck, and with the devoted Charley, stood him in good stead. In the back of the theatre, his tantrums forgotten, Craft watched the first rehearsal. When the number was finished, he smiled, rose and went down the aisle to the stage. He sought out Paul and, while chorines crowded about, he told him he was doing excellent work.

smile. "You're doing great," she said. He sat down beside her, all in interest. "On the level?" he demanded. "I wouldn't fool you," she said, her voice rich with sincerity and feeling. He asked for specific criticism of his work. While he was getting it, the next number drew to a close and he was called onto the stage again. 'Tis was upon an hour after hour, as he alternately studied his lines and his songs with Toby and then tried them out for Craft. While Paul and Toby made the most of their time, Charley was very busy with Seabrook, the drunken actor whose place Paul had taken. Charley had one major problem—that of ditching Seabrook for a few hours while he got Craft to sign a contract for Paul's services. This was a jickish job. Seabrook, after getting thoroughly liquored, decided that he and Charley should take a ride in his car. They left the hotel, got the car from the hotel garage and with Charley at the wheel, headed southward from Atlantic City. It was dark when they left the hotel, after several hours of serious drinking. Charley kept his eyes on the road and Seabrook kept his lips around a bottle, swigging at it low and then, he was very fishy-eyed. His clothes were mussed, and his toupee was on crooked. But he didn't mind. He was too busy regaling Charley with tales of his ability as an actor. "Boy—was I good in that show!" he exclaimed for the tenth time as Charley sent the car hurtling down a deserted highway. "I was terrific! I left 'em in the aisles. But I was even better in 'Eight o'Clock Girl."

What a hit! There's never been anything like it! You've always admired me, haven't you, Charley, old pal?" "Of course, Brookie," said Charley, stepping on the throttle. He glanced around him anxiously while driving, as if looking for something very important to him. For a long time there wasn't much to see, not even a house. Seabrook, with drunken intuition, sensed that something was wrong. "Where we going?" he asked. "Just a little trip," said Charley, soothingly. Seabrook seemed content with this explanation. A moment later his head nodded and he slumped down in his seat. Charley smiled grimly when he saw this. "Think I'll get—!—shleep!" said the actor. "Okay, Brookie, old pal—you do that," said Charley. Seabrook parked his head on Charley's shoulder and began to snore. Five miles farther on, Charley found exactly what he was looking for—a nice, quiet, deserted shack far from any other habitation. He jammed on his brakes and came to a halt in front of it. Then he got out of the car, walked around to Seabrook's side, opened the door and managed to pull the sleeping actor onto his shoulder, carrying him like a sack of flour. He crossed the threshold, leaned Seabrook against a wall and told him: "Have a nice nap, Brookie, old boy!"

A satisfied smile swept across his face as he returned to the car, got into it, swung it around and headed for Atlantic City. In doing all these things, from smiling to riding away, he overlooked two very important details—Seabrook's remarkable recuperative powers, which caused him to wake up a few minutes later—and the vigilance of the New Jersey State police, who found the dazed actor wandering aimlessly down the road, away from the deserted shack. It was almost midnight when Charley returned to the theatre. Toby and Scotti were sitting on a bench in the wings. Craft was up on the stage rehearsing a number with the girls. Scotti was in all his glory, for as everyone from the assistant stage manager to the lowliest stagehand passed, each gave him a smile which said, very clearly: "You're all right, fellow. You'll do."

Scotti turned to Toby. "Well," he said, "it looks as if one of Charley's promotions has clicked." Toby smiled up at him. "You mean you clicked?" "Scotti didn't like this attitude. "Wait a minute!" he protested. "This is his party, and you ought to be darned proud of him." Paul had no more than made his little speech when he looked up to see Charley himself approaching back stage. He gave a gasp of surprise and Toby looked up, too. They noticed that his clothes were mussed, as if he had been in a fight of some kind. Paul was the first to greet him. "Hello, Jesse James—where've you been?" he queried. Charley made a vague gesture. "Just out riding. I'd've been back long ago, but something happened to the car—had to stop and have it fixed."

Toby was the least bit suspicious about his story. "Who's car?" she asked. "Oh—belongs to a pal of mine," he replied, giving no matter a wave of dismissal. He sat down on the bench beside his partners. "Craft's been looking for you," admonished Paul. "Yeah," said Charley. "I want to see him soon's he gets through. Gotta get that contract signed."

"What's the rush?" asked Toby, lifting an eyebrow. "Our entry's 'way out in front of the rest,'" Charley hesitated, then said, soberly: "I've got a reason." Both Toby and Paul were about to ask him what it was when from the front of the theatre came a booming cry: "Hey, you!"

"Cue trio, well out of sight from the stage, looked at one another with surprise and a premonition that all was not well along the Boardwalk. Fortunately, they didn't dash onto the stage to investigate. At that moment, four men were walking down one of the aisles to the stage. The call had stopped the rehearsal. One man was Seabrook, who had completely perturbed company with his toupee. Two men were State Police. The fourth was a very small man with a very large black hat, a black suit and a frozen expression on his face. One of the policemen shouted at Craft: "Is there a guy here by the name of Charley Sullivan?" The foghorn voice boomed back stage. "Toby and Paul looked at Charley—and he looked nonplussed. Out front, Craft was taking the interruption impatiently, angrily. He demanded: "How dare you come in here like this and interfere with my rehearsal. Who are you?" "State police," said the second policeman. "We want to know if there is a Charley Sullivan here." On hearing this, Charley, Toby and Paul automatically got to their feet and started glancing around for the nearest exit. Craft leaned forward over the footlights, shading his eyes. He saw Seabrook, soiled and disheveled. "Oh, so it's you, Seabrook!" he snorted. "Yes," said Seabrook, loudly. "It's me."

Charley, Toby and Paul tried to decide whether to listen to more or make a run for it. Craft shouted angrily at Seabrook: "What's the idea of this? What's the riot for?" Seabrook stormed back, just as loudly: "I've been the victim of an outrage. We want this guy, Sullivan."

"What for?" bellowed Craft. Seabrook fumbled for words, and the first policeman came to his rescue with: "Kidnapping and stealing an automobile—that's what, your honor."

Back stage, Charley's hand flew to his head. Agonized, he groaned: "Oh! Why didn't I think of this?"

Toby and Paul crowded around him, realizing that something terrible had happened—that everything seems that the Odessa officers are so hard that they lock the court house and won't let the tramps use it for a flop house.

From the American Legion Monthly: Many are the stories told about the care General Smedley D. Butler always took in looking after the welfare of the men in his command—especially as regarded their food. One relates that when he was in command of Camp Pontenaze, France, he met two soldiers carrying a large soup kettle from the kitchen. "Here you," he ordered, "let me taste that!" "But, Gen—"

"Don't give me any buts—get a spoon!" "Yes, sir!" the soldier replied, and ran back in the kitchen and brought a spoon. The general took the desired taste, and gingerly spit it out. "You don't eat that stuff soup, do you?" he shouted. "No, sir," replied the soldier. "That's what I was trying to tell you—it's dishwasher, sir!"

had gone wrong. "What have you done?" demanded Scotti, tensely. "What is it?" (To Be Continued)

RING DOWN SPEAKERS

FORT WORTH, (U.P.)—Texas Christian university students do not like dull, after-dinner speakers and they have adopted an unique "ringing down" method to prevent it. There is nothing more boring, say these students, than to have a speaker repeat the worn out routine. "It affords me a great deal of pleasure to take part in this occasion, etc."

The practice of "ringing down" dull speakers is carried out every year at the welcoming dinner for Freshmen. The speaker had better have something interesting to say if he wants to continue speaking. Let his start dealing in formulae and platitudes and he will see every student at the table pick up a piece of silverware and start beating on his glass. Even if the speaker does not take the hint, he has to quit anyway. The din is too great.

That's what I was trying to tell you—it's dishwasher, sir!"

NERVIEST THIEF

EDINBURG, (U.P.)—Found: South Texas' nerviest thief, either very, very nery or very, very dumb, stole a 1934 model sedan of popular make from the streets of Edinburg. This thief would not have received nearly as much attention except for the fact that the sedan, nearly new, was the property of Sheriff Tom Gill of Hidalgo county.

Seabrook fumbled for words, and the first policeman came to his rescue with: "Kidnapping and stealing an automobile—that's what, your honor."

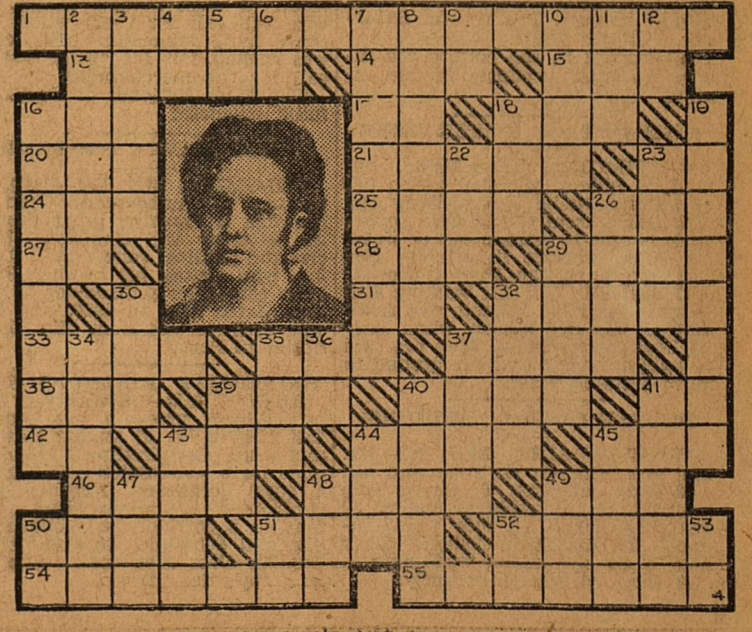

Back stage, Charley's hand flew to his head. Agonized, he groaned: "Oh! Why didn't I think of this?"

Toby and Paul crowded around him, realizing that something terrible had happened—that everything

Europe Sees Glint of Bayonets in Spades of Hitler's Labormen

"No one will live in Germany who views the work of his hands as inferior to other work! . . . In the future all young Germany will pass through your labor corps!" The thunderous cheer which answered these words of Reichleader Adolf Hitler as he proudly addressed 52,000 German youths—one-year conscripts in his Labor Corps—at Nuremberg, as shown in the larger photo, echoes ominously in France and throughout Europe. For Germany's neighbors suspect violation of the Treaty of Versailles in Hitler's labor battalions and vision a day when rifles may supplant the highly polished spades with which the goose-stepping labormen went through all the maneuvers normally made with rifles. A typical labor corpsman is shown left; Der Reichsfuhrer right; and a parading battalion behind the swastika, below.

Prairie Lee Girl Writes History of 4-H Club Work

The following history of her 4-H club work was written by Lola Livingston of Prairie Lee who left this morning for the State fair at Dallas.

Other Midland county club girls who were awarded trips to the fair were Dorothy Brunson of the Valley View community and Opal Whitley of Pleasant Valley.

Miss Myrtle Miller, county home demonstration agent, accompanied the three girls.

HISTORY OF MY 4-H CLUB WORK
By Lola Livingston
When Miss Myrtle Miller organized a 4-H club at Prairie Lee, I enrolled as a bedroom demonstrator, because I always had a desire to be a club worker.

We took sewing first. The first thing I made was a cup towel; second, I made a pair of shorts and one brassiere; third, I made a pair of pillow cases; and fourth, I made a wash dress for the conchist.

Next we took up refinishing furniture. The first thing we did was to refinish a dressing table. We took some lye water and removed the old paint, then sand-papered the table until it was smooth. Next I put a coat of varnish on the table. After letting it dry three days, I put a coat of varnish on the table three more days and put the third and finishing coat on. Later I refinished a chest and another piece of furniture.

I had planned to finish my bedroom for the contest, but since it seemed that we were going to make such a poor crop, I felt that I could not afford to be out the expense, because we were living in a rented house.

My garden consisted of a hot bed, in which I planted lettuce, mustard, turnip greens, and radishes for table use in the spring; I also had tomatoes, pepper and sweet potatoes which I later transplanted. My garden supplied fresh potatoes for table use for our family of ten through May and June, then after giving two of my neighbors some, I dug seven gallons. I then replanted this ground in beans.

We had English peas through May and June, and mother and I canned eight No. 2 cans. I replanted the English pea ground with cucumbers and we had fresh cucumbers for the table for two months, also made fourteen gallons of pickles.

We had fresh onions for four months, which were followed by butter beans. My carrots were followed by canteloupes.

We had fresh tomatoes through August. The vines were loaded with green tomatoes when the hail ruined them the 1st of September. We have had okra and sweet potatoes quite a while and will have until frost.

Eleven hundred thirty-six pounds of fourteen varieties of vegetables were harvested and used fresh at home, valued at $57.54. One hundred and forty-three containers, valued at $18.90, were canned. $2.15 worth of vegetables were sold fresh. The total value of the garden was $59.56, as garden seed were saved from last year, the cost of production including fertilizer, spray material and lids for containers was only $3.96, giving a net profit of $55.90.

I canned 55 half gallons and 85 quarts of fruit, fruit juice, and fruit butter, preserves and jellies, valued at $61.38.

The value of my food work for the year is $117.23.

The reason I like 4-H club work is because it is fun, and it is also helpful in many ways.

Brazil is the third largest nation in the world and is exceeded in size only by the Soviet Union and China. It comprises nearly one-half of the area of South America.

IRWIN KAYOES HIS MAN IN 5TH, BURRIS GETS TECHNICAL K. O.

BOTH BOUTS HARD FOUGHT; DUMAS GETS ENOUGH

Jack Irwin slipped a lethal left hook to the chin of Sam Smyer in the fifth round of a scheduled 10-round affair at Monahans last night, and Smyer heard the birds go sweet-sweet.

Paul Burris, who made his initial appearance under the reflector, was awarded a technical K. O. over Ray Cauthorn of Poyote after the second round had been finished.

The other fight was automatically stopped when O. C. Dumas of Wink refused to carry on in the second against Ruffin Roan of Poyote. Dumas tried to quit earlier.

Irwin and Smyer started with a flurry, and Smyer took a count of 8 before the gong sounded. Irwin's round, in the second, Smyer missed a wild swing and went down for a count of 9. They were mixing it at the bell. Irwin's round, Smyer landed six hard lefts and charged Irwin against the ropes in the third. Smyer's round, the fast round came in the fourth. Jack went down in his corner, but was up immediately. Smyer was knocked to the canvas for a count of 9. Jack grew careless and Smyer hit him the hardest blow of the fight, a long, looping punch to the chin. Jack was rocked, but came back with a flurry of right-fighting to get the nod for the round.

The fifth saw three knockdowns. Jack beat his man to the floor for a count of 9, then for a 7 count and then flattened him for the last time. The referee didn't even pick up the count. He raised Irwin's hands.

Burris' fight was much more close. The Midland boy lost the first round, taking three hard hay-makers, but had Cauthorn on the floor in the second for a count of nine. Cauthorn dislocated a thumb or badly sprained it and refused to go on in the third.

Ruffin Roan speared O. C. Dumas with more than the Wink boy liked. Dumas tried to quit in the middle of the first round, but the crowd howled at him. At the end of the round he had his gloves out off.

"Take him yourself if you want him," he said. "He's too tough for me!" The referee said after the fight that Dumas said when he and Roan shook hands at the beginning of the round, "Luck to you Roan, you'll need it."

Allison to Lay Off for Winter

AUSTIN (U.P.)—Wilmer Allison, who blasted his way to the top of American tennis this summer after having been denied a place on the Davis cup team, hopes that he "won't see a tennis racket until after Christmas."

Allison returned to his Austin home and to his radio tinkering after eight weeks of strenuous competition. He eliminated Sidney Wood and Lester Stoenen in national singles at Forrest Hills, only to lose an extra-game match to Fred Perry of England in the finals.

Davis cup team? Allison isn't even thinking of it. He does hope that he will replace Frank Shields as No. 1 man in American amateur tennis.

Dr. D. A. Penick, Greek and Latin professor who has developed many of the nation's outstanding tennis players, believes Allison will be at the top when tennis rankings are announced next spring.

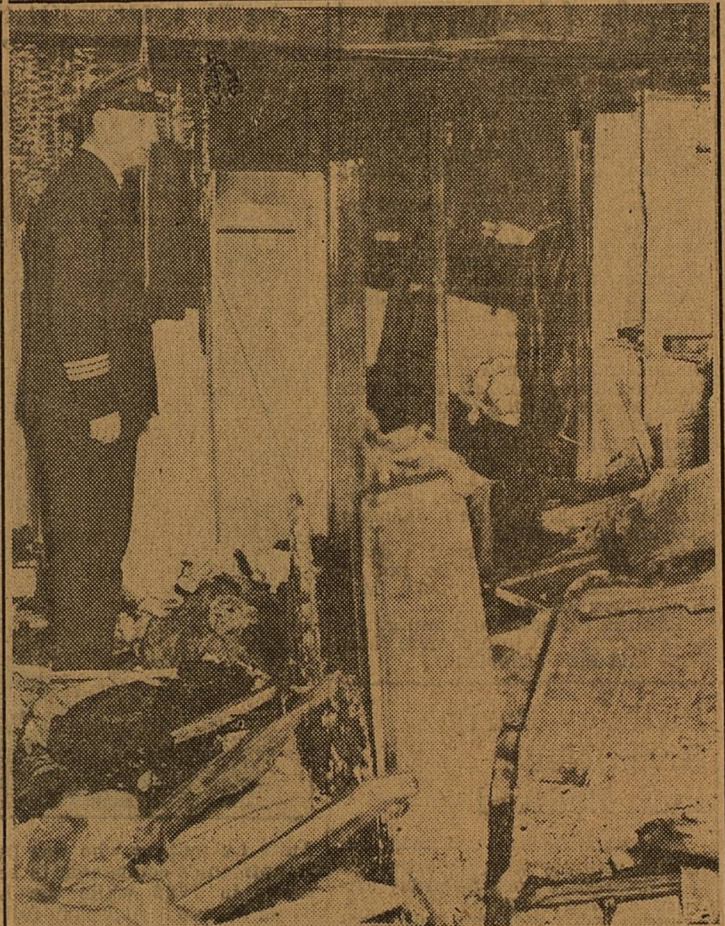

During the winter months Allison occupies himself with amateur radio transmission, and works with father-in-law W. T. Caswell of Austin in a brokerage office. Equipped to both send and receive short-wave messages, Allison's set has contacted amateurs in all civilized nations of the world.

Allison said he gets a great thrill meeting in foreign countries those persons to whom he has talked through the air. "In one trip to Australia, I met more than 200 persons to whom I had talked on my set."

Dr. Penick believed Allison was victim of bad management on this year's cup squad. Allison was shipped to England and shipped back again without hitting a ball for the United States.

Allison regretted the incident at the time. He is now convinced that the two-weeks lay-off caused by the boat ride was one of the principal factors in his excellent display in DALLAS—That southwestern football is being accepted on a par with brands played in other parts of the country is definitely proven by the number of intersectional games played by members of the conference this season.

The last decade has seen the game in this section improve by leaps and bounds, and the former "country cousin" of football has been welcomed into select circles of the east, mid-west, south and even the far west.

The climate in this section partly has been responsible for this, enabling us to play a long schedule of from 10 to 12 games a year, and being of great value in conditioning our players through the season.

We started slow in branching out into inter-conference competition, but this season sees the conference squads in addition to playing every member team for the first time in the history of the circuit, engaging in a total of 21 intersectional tilts.

Outstanding among these remaining games—Texas already has played Notre Dame, Rice has tangled with Purdue and Texas A. and M. and Temple have mixed—are: S. M. U. vs Fordham at New York, Oct. 27; Texas Christian vs Santa Clara at Ft. Worth, Dec. 8; Rice vs.

the playing of an ineligible man, could have held its own against any first rate squad in the land.

There have been several eras of power in football since the game was first played in the east. Its strength gradually went west, became apparent when little Centre college bowled over John Harvard, took a permanent seat in the mid-west during the Notre Dame era, and reached the end of its westward trend with the ascension of the Trojans to the throne.

Of late years the south and southwest have been forging to the front. I believe it marks a new era in the trend of the power of football.

100th BIRTHDAY

The stout-hearted Texans who declared Independence on March 2, 1836, at Washington-on-the-Brazos would be filled with pride to know that their efforts have not gone unrequited. Texans, today, are stout-hearted! Today they prepare for a birthday of a hundred years of achievement on the battlefield and in peaceful achievement.

Texas is a land of romance, love and adventure; of progress and memories. This hundredth anniversary will link its airways, seaports, highways and railroads of today with the oleander and jasmine of old-world towns of yesterday!

Texas started on its road of independence at San Jacinto. She fought valiantly through the years for worldly recognition and now is going to give a birthday party for the world, whose respect she has earnestly desired and so courageously won!

All Americans everywhere revere the memory of the men who contributed to the growth of our common country. We invite them to join us in holding a fitting celebration of the one hundredth birthday of Texas.

Fine Acting Marks "Side Streets," a Strong Love Drama

There is so much real drama in the First National picture, "Side Streets," playing at the Ritz Theatre Wednesday & Thursday, that one is apt to lose sight of the remarkable screen acting that characterizes the production.

Aline MacMahon, portraying the role of a sedate and matronly fur shop proprietor, who had fallen in love with and married an impecunious young sailor with a wandering foot and a roving heart, has been given a part that allows this really great actress to show to what heights she can rise in depicting suppressed emotion.

Fine work is done by other capable players including, Ann Dvorak, Paul Kelly, Charlotte Henry, Dorothy Peterson, Henry O'Neill and Paul Kaye.

HEIFETZ ON RADIO

JASCHA HEIFETZ, distinguished Russian violinist, will be featured as guest star with the Ford Symphony Orchestra Sunday evening, October 14, on the second program of the weekly series of Ford Sunday Evening Hours.

Heifetz, who first played in concert when he was five years old, will present a varied selection of violin compositions, beginning with the Mendelssohn concerto for violin and orchestra, followed by "Souvenir de Moscow" by Wieniawski, Brahms' Hungarian Dance Number Nine, and Schubert's Ave Maria.

The Ford Symphony Orchestra and chorus of twenty-four voices, conducted by Victor Kolar, will begin next Sunday's concert with Mozart's Overture to "The Magic Flute," the other numbers on the program being "The Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin, by Wagner; Strauss' "Wine, Woman and Song," and the Polka from Weinberger's opera "Schwanda."

Feminine Wiles Protect Hoboes of Fairer Sex

A few months ago, I chucked a government job as emergency relief worker, and went out on the high-road to discover for myself just why people roam around the country looking for jobs, the chances of landing one, and the treatment of a nomad job-hunter by his fellow citizens.

In telling my experiences, I am asked first—always: "What about the men you meet? Didn't you have trouble?" When I answer "Almost never," there is incredulous silence. And yet it is a fact that the men I have met when I have found myself broke or stranded, have for the most part been helpful.

My experience as a hitch-hiker had started off so well that I was over-sanguine. An elderly naval officer offered me a lift, even to drive his car half of the way. When we parted, you would have thought we had fought through a war together.

Tricks of the Road Within the first five minutes I discover that he has been drinking, is already half maudlin. Up goes the speedometer, 55, 60, 65. Around my shoulder I feel the hot breath on my cheek. We lurch around curves, skirt fences.

Mad tactics. That makes him mad. Up goes the speedometer. I must be shrewd and cunning. "Great! I call on my hunches, on my animal instinct or whatever you call it."

Girls who complain of their terrible experiences with men do not, as a rule, use their heads. Typical—a lovely blonde of 18 named Jewel, whom I met in a bus station in Mobile.

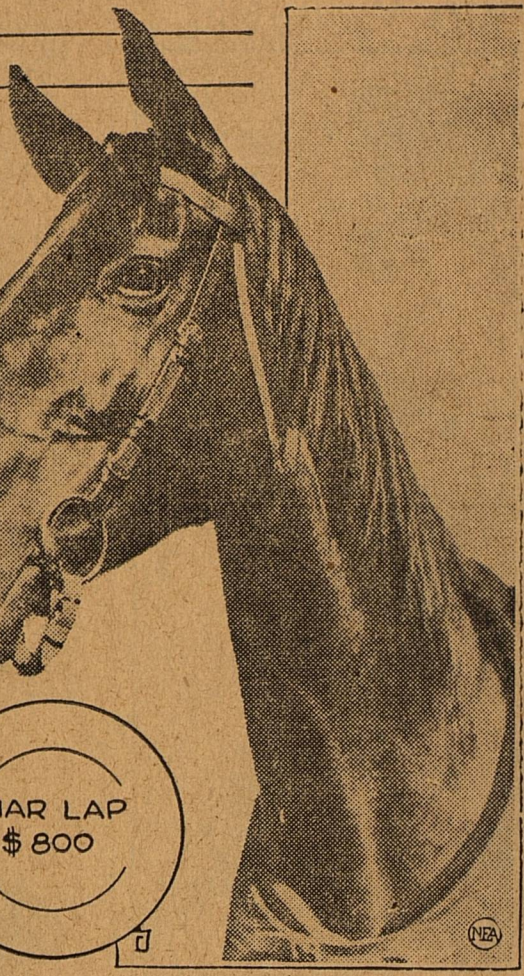

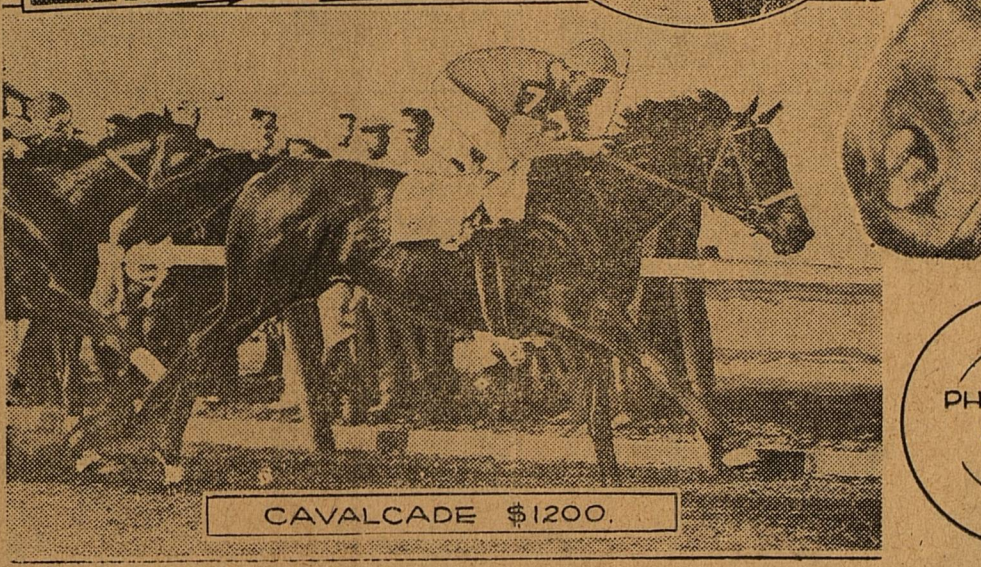

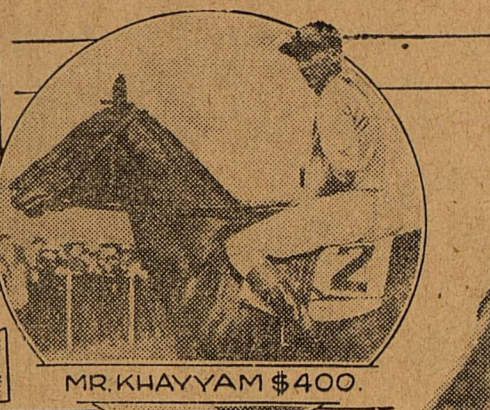

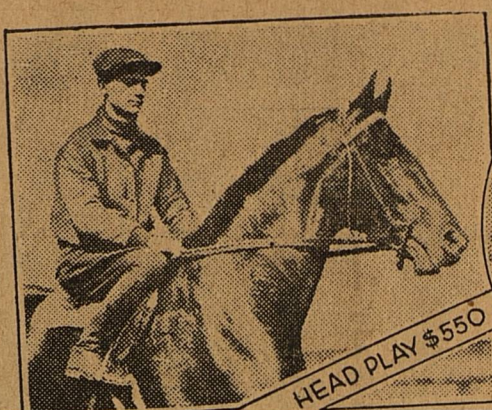

Just a Sponge She was going to meet Harry, a boy friend in New Orleans. But she was not always enthusiastic about Harry. She also mourned about Ralph. She had loved Ralph for a year, hadn't seen him for six months.

COFFIN STILL UNUSED GILBERT, Ark. (U.P.)—The coffin A. D. Morgan, 85, had made for himself 14 years ago is just as good as new—his never been used.

TWO-TAILED CALF BORN MERCED, Calif. (U.P.)—A potential menace to milkmaids, a two-tailed calf, was born on the ranch of A. Santl. The heifer had one normal tail and a second growing out of its neck.

But not Marion, another girl I met later in Miami. She was as sharp as a pawn broker, and as amusing as Beatrice Lillie. She entertained the gentlemen who gave her lifts and meals with wisecracks, and assured me that that was the extent of her entertainment.

Share Their Food and Warmth One brought me a chocolate bar, another an apple from the candy vendor.

Things you may not know about your TELEPHONE

Inventions of the research scientists at Bell Laboratories have been devoted, not to swelling profits, but to improvements and economies that have aided this company in giving good service at a fair cost to the telephone user.

The telephone had its birth 58 years ago in a makeshift research laboratory, where Bell watched a tiny straw attached to the eardrum from a human skull trace wavering lines on smoked glass. Since then, the history of the telephone has been told in the countless scientific problems solved.

This policy has been adopted in the belief that, as much from your standpoint as from our own, it is sound and workable. It is based upon the feeling that in an undertaking planned like the telephoneservice for the long pull, what is best for the telephone user is in the end the course that will bring us the surer, more enduring success.
