Wink Bringing Dangerous Offensive Team to Meet Dogs

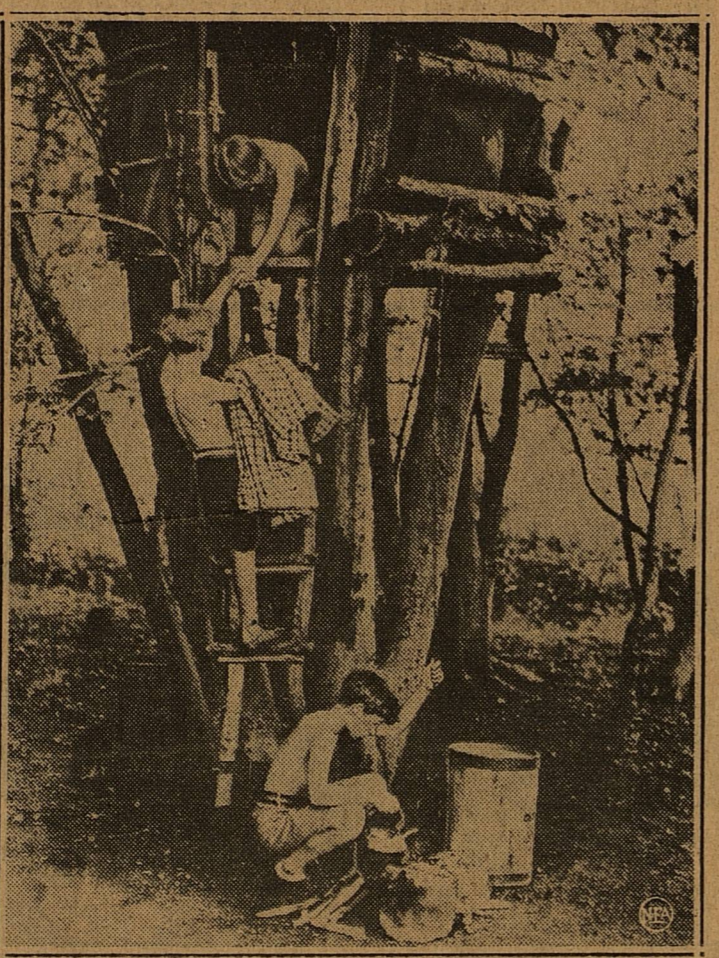

GAME WILL OPEN CONFERENCE FOR MIDLAND'S CLUB Wink to Bring Band and Its Crack Pep Squad

A restless pack of Wildcats, hungry for another kill to add to their three years record of no defeats, will arrive in Midland about 2 o'clock Friday afternoon, bringing with them a large per cent of Wink's population, a great pep squad and a band that has won the championship of West Texas for the past six years.

The Wildcats will pit their scoring strength at 8 o'clock this night against the Purple and Gold of Midland, in a game that will see Lackey field packed. Wink has reserved the entire east side of the field, and the clock set from the principal's office at the high school is showing brisk business.

Wink will bring a squad of 21 men, only four of whom are letter men of last year. Coach Lee Johnson does not hesitate, however, to credit great power and versatility to his charges. His offensive is built around Butler and Dandy, 178 and 164 pound tackles, and two flashing, hard driving backs, Brown 156 pounder, and Davis, 150. Brannon, 158, and Parks, 165, are ends who have been successful all season in harrying play in opponents' backfields and can grab aerial clicks with the precision that has made Wink the bane of B district football.

Clinging to Their Family Tree

How can he induce his sons to give up their aristocratic retreat and return to conventional life without the four walls of their home? That's the problem that has G. K. Thompson, British artist, stumped since the boys went back to nature on the family estate near Chalfont St. Peter, England. They are shown about to retire for the night, George, 9, giving Kenneth, 10, a hand up the ladder, while 12-year-old Paul puts out the fire.

FAMOUS 60-PIECE WINK BAND WILL PLAY FREE CONCERT AT HIGH SCHOOL

The famous 60 piece Wink high school band, in new uniforms, will appear in an informal concert in the Midland high school auditorium Friday afternoon at 2:45. The public is invited to hear the program.

Although this famous band has won in band contests for several years and one year was awarded a trip to the national contest at Tulsa, this will be its first appearance in Midland. This concert will be under the auspices of the Midland high school band, also famous for its excellent work at home and abroad, and will be free.

The local organization has been requested to loan the visitors its kettie drums, instruments which would be hard to transport and which would not be needed at the game. These instruments, essential to a well-equipped band, recently were furnished by the board of education for the midland band.

The Wink band has had such equipment for several years and until it was learned Midland had such equipment, planned to bring the kettie drums.

It is estimated that 900 people will hear the concert, a preliminary to the first conference game with the Wink Wildcats on Lackey field at 8 o'clock in the evening.

LEGION DEMANDS BONUS PAYMENT; DEBATE RESULTS If Granted a Sum of Three Billions Would Result

MIAMI, Oct. 25. (U.P.)—The American legion voted to request the 74th congress to pay the soldier's bonus immediately.

Action came at the 16th annual convention of the legion presented by the legislative committee. There was little debate.

The measure may cause the government to distribute $3,000,000,000.

The legion also demanded elimination of all interest accrued on a refund of interest already paid on previous payments of adjusted service certificates and not due until 1945.

AMERICAN FLYERS JAILED IN PERSIA

MELBOURNE, Oct. 25.—Anxiety over the fate of John H. Wright and John Polando, American derby flyers, ended today as word came from Basra, Iraq, that they landed near the Turco-Persian border, to be arrested, clapped into prison and held overnight.

A roaring welcome to the first three arrivals in the derby had given place to fear for the two Americans, flying the smallest ship in the race, when hour after hour passed without reports from them following their takeoff from Baghdad at 10:10 a. m. G. M. T. Tuesday.

The difficulties of the American pair, who previously had experienced engine trouble, served to emphasize the troubles of nine other entrants in the derby straggling back along the course as far back as Athens.

Delayed Over a Day

Their arrest and the consequent more than 24 hours delay apparently wiped out their chances of placing in the handicap division of the derby, in which they were entered.

Wright and Polando, who were spending the night at Shaiba near Basra, Iraq, said any chance they had in the race had been nullified by the action of Persian authorities who, even though their passports had been duly vised, paid no attention to their pleas for freedom.

They were taken down Tuesday afternoon just west of Monhaimerah, small Persian village at the head of the Persian gulf, and local Persian authorities held them prisoners until late Wednesday.

English residents finally obtained their release, but then it was too late to take off to the next control points.

Under the rules of the handicap race time spent at control points does not count against the fliers, but time spent elsewhere is added to total flying time.

Shatter Record

C. W. A. Scott, above, and T. C. Black. These flyers made the most astonishing aviation speed flight in history when they flew from England to Australia in 52 hours and 23 minutes and 15 seconds, breaking the record held by more than 109 hours in the London-Melbourne air race.

President Wemple gave to Mrs. Mims a specially constructed gavel, made by Rotarian L. H. Tiffin, and Mrs. Barron was presented a large pencil for use as secretary.

Announcement was made that the Halloween party of Rotarians and Rotary clubs will be held at the Settles Hotel Schabarbar.

An invitation from the Big Spring Rotary club was announced, calling an inter-city meet of that organization, the Midland and Sweetwater clubs at the Settles hotel November 13 when District Governor Taylor makes his annual visit there. Governor Taylor, president of Howard Payne college, Brownwood, addressed the high school assembly this morning.

District Governor Speaks At Honoring Rote Banquet

Reducing Rotary and its principles to the simple practice of instilling into individual members the application of the Golden Rule, Governor Thomas H. Taylor of the forty-first district of Rotary international addressed the Midland Rotary club, the newly organized Rotary Ann and several visitors today at a luncheon in Hotel Schabarbar.

Uplifting tribute to the principles upon which Rotary is founded, Governor Taylor said it was not the business of Rotary to make world peace, but to bring these principles into the hearts and lives of the individual members. Rotarians, through living these principles, will lead their places in community progress and international peace, he said.

The various branches of Rotary work merely comprise machinery through which these principles are brought into the lives of Rotarians, he said, outlining briefly the club service, community service, vocational service and international service groups.

Simple philosophy of wholesome living on the part of the individual business man was instilled into the memories of those hearing Governor Taylor today. He said the purpose of a conference with local club members and the district governor, advising upon details of handling the district Rotary conference here next May 7 and 8.

Mrs. Taylor, who accompanied her husband here from her home at Brownwood, was introduced by President Fred Wemple as an honored guest. He also introduced Ed Stewart, John Ray and Byron England, Abilene Rotarians who came here today for a conference with local club members and the district governor, advising upon details of handling the district Rotary conference here next May 7 and 8.

Much humor was injected into the talk, speaking in the present age, Governor Taylor said about the only liberty left is the right, upon arising in the morning, to put on either shoes or slippers.

SELF-DEFENSE ACTION LIKELY WILL FOLLOW

Oklahoma Refineries Cut Price Down To 62 Cents

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 25. (U.P.)—Small purchasers of oil in the Mid-continent area cut loose from dollar prices today while the federal government started its supreme efforts to stamp out hot oil in East Texas.

The Globe and the Kanotex refining companies cut the top prices in Blackwell and in Osage county, Okla., and Kansas areas to 62 cents.

The action concerns small purchasers, but is regarded as significant because of the self-defense angles forced on other and larger purchasers.

Standard Crude Oil Purchasing company, largest buyers in the Mid-continent, kept the price at $1.08, but brokers' offices had reports that company would cut today. Officials refuse to comment.

Twenty-five unnamed executives of Mid-continent oil companies were named for the congressional committee investigating situation.

ALRED WARNS THE ELECTORATE

FORT WORTH, Oct. 25. (U.P.)—James V. Allred, democratic nominee for governor, denounced "monied interests and designing politicians" for their efforts to confuse the people on constitutional amendments in the Nov. 6 election.

He urged the electorate to disregard any "Swat 'em All" slogan and advised not to be deceived about the proposed amendment.

His attack was made in an address before the opening session of the convention of County Judges and Commissioners Association of Texas.

Midland Boy in Calif. Schools

Dr. J. D. Young, formerly of Midland, but now of California is in the city this week looking after his varied oil interests. He says his son, James Jr., a straight-A student while here, is doing excellent work in the Franklin high school at Long Beach.

The boy was classified in the eighth grade in California, his classification in Midland being in the seventh grade. This classification was regular, since California schools use the 12-grade system and their eighth grade is their last grammar school year, whereas the Midland system with all other Texas schools work under the 11-grade system, in which the seventh grade is the highest grade in the grammar school.

Incidentally it might be mentioned that the California schools rank among the highest in the nation. Their state apportionment is $90 for elementary grade students, $80 for those in high school grades.

Oil Notes

BY F. D. GARDNER

Drilling has progressed to 4150 feet in the Landreth No. 1 Schabarbar, Ector county wildcat which now commands the interest of West Texas oilmen in general. With an estimated 100,000 cubic feet of gas, the well is making around 1-2 barrel of oil per hour. There is between 600 and 800 feet of oil in the hole.

The first oil was encountered at around 4120 feet, and there was a slight increase between 4135 and 4145 feet.

Location of the No. 1 Schabarbar is in section 29, block 14, township 1 north, T. & P. survey.

Landreth's other Ector county wildcat, No. 1 J. L. Johnson, in section 47, block 43, township 1 south, T. & P. survey, is drilling in sandy shale at 945 feet.

In Andrews county, Humble No. 1 J. S. Means, south offset to the discovery in section 5, block A-35, public school land survey, is drilling at 3754 feet in anhydrite. Roi and S. Bond et al. No. 1 McCarty in section 29, block 3, is drilling red beds at 3275 feet.

Humble No. 2 R. M. Means, most discussed Andrews county test, which encountered sulphur water in drilling to 4628 feet in white lime, has been plugged back to 4582 feet and is now waiting for cement to set. It will be tested again in three or four days.

The No. 2 R. M. Means is in section 5, block A-19, public school land survey, about 3-4 mile north-east of the No. 1 R. M. Means, the discovery.

John I. Moore's Glasscock county deep test, the No. 1 McDowell, in section 22, block 34, township 2 south, T. & P. survey, is drilling gray lime below 5588 feet. In the southwest part of the county in section 9, block B-11, public school land survey.

MIDLAND WOMEN ASSOCIATION'S STOCK IS HIKED

Three Midland women, Mrs. Harvey Sloan, Miss M. Elizabeth Wilson, and Mrs. Addison Young took part on the program of the West Texas Tuberculosis conference held at Colorado Wednesday.

Mrs. Sloan was presiding chairman at a luncheon given at Hotel Colorado and spoke on the program and future plans of the Midland County Health board acting as the Midland County Tuberculosis association. She also discussed personal solicitation.

Miss Wilson spoke on "The Value of the Nurse's Visits to Patients."

Mrs. Young gave a review of "Publicity for Results," an article written by Mrs. Mildred Cobb of the Beaumont Enterprise.

The morning session of the conference, held at Colorado theatre from 10 o'clock Wednesday morning until 1 o'clock in the afternoon, featured two talks, one by Dr. E. S. Norris, superintendent of the child hospital at the state sanatorium, the other by Dr. J. B. McKnight, general superintendent of the state sanatorium.

Following the luncheon, the afternoon session was held in Hotel Colorado.

An invitation was extended to those present to attend the meeting of the West Texas County Child Welfare boards to be held in Sweetwater, Nov. 3.

The meeting was attended by two other Midland women, Meses. Sam Cummings and J. K. Elder.

Mrs. Dallas Scarborough of Abilene was general chairman of the conference.

Mexican Assaults A 12-Year-old Girl; Not Allowed Bond

Francisco Torrez languishes in jail. Francisco looked upon Otilia, 12-year-old daughter of Vida Franco, and found her fair. He induced her to flee with him to the distant protection of Knott, Mardin county, giving little or no thought to benefit of clergy.

They were discovered in the bedroom of friends some time before the dawn and returned to Midland.

The offense being a capital one, Torrez was remanded to jail without bond, following an examining trial in this court.

Hunters Thronging Into Old Mexico

DEL RIO (U.P.)—Parties bound for hunting preserves in the Mexican state of Coahuila are passing through Del Rio in large numbers. The deer season opened October 16.

American hunters going into Mexico have a number of requisites with which they must comply. These requisites include a passport issued by the Mexican consulate in Del Rio at a cost of $1, or by the Mexican immigration authorities in Villa Acuna for two pesos, approximately 60 cents in American money.

They also must have a permit from the proprietor of the land where the hunt is to be stated and a bond for each automobile.

Admittance into Mexico is aided considerably if the tourist carries a letter from a civic organization, a county or city official in his home town for the purpose of identification.

'RED' IDEA, BUT GOOD!

It seems to be heresy of the blackest—or reddest—sort to suggest that the Russians ever had a notion worth copying in this country. Still, the land of the Soviets does seem to sprout a bright idea once in a while.

Probably you read about the solemn trial in which a pair of galoshes was convicted and found guilty of being of inferior workmanship. The galoshes were formally arraigned before a Moscow court. Witnesses testified that they just weren't good for anything—they leaked, they fell apart, they didn't fit, they looked like the Dickens.

The result was a sentence ordering the quality of the galoshes to be improved at once.

Now this notion that it is a crime to inflict shoddy goods on the public—well, those of us who have occasionally paid good money for articles that proved practically worthless might easily feel that that is a pretty sensible sort of idea.

It's hard to see how Upton Sinclair can carry California. His platform says nothing about the climate.

I have just read that a bill has been proposed in the Texas legislature whereby all habitual drunkards, upon being haled into court, will be branded or tattooed "H" on the back of the hand. The idea is to have it so anyone selling liquor to an habitual drunkard will be subject to fine. If that bill is passed in the legislature, you can put it down that new styles in men's coats will be seen. The sleeves will be longer, extending almost to the finger tips.

An old-time Texas story said to be true:

Governor Hogg always ate at the same hotel and he always was very generous with those who served him. At this particular hotel he had had the same waiter for years and had become accustomed to him. But one morning a strange negro waiter stepped up to take his order and his regular cue stayed over in the other part of the dining room. The governor called to him. "Scott," he said, "how is it that you are not waiting on me this morning?" The negro sputtered about but the governor demanded an explanation. "Well, Governor," the negro said finally, "I got in a crap game last night and all I had left was you. I put you up and that other boy here won you." "Texas must be a hell of a state when its governor can be put up in a bigger crap game and shot for," Hogg stated to his friends. But anyway, the story goes, the governor abided by the crap game rules and instead of complaining to the management of the hotel, he bought himself back for $5 from the strange waiter and Scott went back to spring him. Hogg was just that much of a real sport.

"Hide-Out" Will Entertain The Entire Family

Here is one motion picture that will find favor in every age, no matter how critical. The picture is "Hide-Out," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production that opens Friday at the Yucca theatre where it plays for two days. It brings Robert Montgomery back to us in one of his most entertaining characterizations—"Lucky" Wilson, the pranks post-repeal racketeer who finds reform through contact with a farmer's family in a typical rural setting. Maureen O'Sullivan, always dependable for an excellent performance, again repeats with her portrayal of Pauline, the farmer's daughter. Whitford Kane, for thirty years a leading character actor of the London and New York stage, makes his screen debut as Miller, the farmer. Mickey Rooney

12-year-old actor, appears as Willie the pestiferous boy, and Elizabeth Patterson plays the farmer's wife. Other performers worthy of mention are contributed by Edward Arnold, Edward Brophy and C. Henry Gordon.

FEMININE FANCIES

BY KATHLEEN EILAND

Three of the great Paris dress-makers, Chanel, Schiaparelli, and Violnet have displayed a great liking for satin.

Since it is so distinctly a blouse season, we might as well mention the blouses of ribbed velvet in all the light luminous colors which Paris is seeing now.

Another oddity is black patent leather so soft and pliable that it can be tied like ordinary ribbon.

Tailored evening gowns, a style started by Creed, are well-liked in Paris.

We notice that one interior decorator has the courage to say right out in print that it is no crime to have one article of furniture in a room of one period and a second article of another period.

Moreover this decorator practices what she preaches, for she says one room in her house spans a period of 200 years.

It is not the period but the harmony of the furnishings used that gives the desired effect, she believes.

Three cheers for this particular expert, we say. We always did believe that furniture was made for the comfort and convenience of man (and woman), and not simply to make up a picture-room that looked very pretty but didn't live well.

Woolen dresses with matching, fur-trimmed jackets, a fashion note says, are newer than two-piece suits.

"Wake up and Dream"

From screenplay by John Meehan Jr.

SYNOPSIS: Paul Scotti seems to have saved the day for himself and his two partners, the beautiful Toby Brown and Charley Sullivan, the amateur promoter, by attracting the attention of Ben Goldfarb, the producer, while singing at a roadhouse. Paul has been summoned to Goldfarb's offices.

It might be well if Charley wasn't sure that he was being trailed by a detective who he thought wanted him on a kidnaping charge—if Luigi Cellini, Paul's foster father, wasn't being pursued by Madame Rose, the seeress—if Mae La Rue, the star, wasn't so interested in Paul—and if Toby wasn't upset over the entire situation.

Chapter XIII
Paul saw Goldfarb, was given a screen test, and won a job because of the combination of his acting ability, his voice and his good looks. In one of those Hollywood fairy stories that actually do occur in real life, as is often attested, he found himself literally hurled to fame. His success was a matter of weeks as he worked with Mae La Rue in "Broadway Nights" at a salary which was beyond even his wildest dreams.

Charley Sullivan went the credit for getting him so much money each week, for Charley was a born promoter.

In less than three months after Paul, Toby, Charley and Cellini had come to Hollywood, Toby was winning a small success in parts in other pictures, and Charley was managing both his partners with marked ability. Cellini, even, had hung out his shingle as a singing teacher and was finding a vogue.

Opportunity had not knocked—it had smashed in the front door.

"Broadway Nights" was finally opened at the Chinese theatre, with a blaze of lights, a loud speaking system, thousands of spectators, in expensive cars, beautiful women, gowns of the latest design, men in full dress, and a radio hook-up which carried news of Paul's triumph across the United States and to foreign lands.

The newspaper and magazine reviews, praised Paul to such an extent that Goldfarb had no choice but to feature him in his second production, "You and Me," calling him "The New Sensation."

Paul came in for the usual Hollywood "build up" or exploitation. Newspapers and film magazines at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, at the M system store.

There will be a called meeting of the home demonstration council at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the assembly room of the courthouse. All members are urged to the present.

Toby, after the first shock of seeing Mae appropriate Paul, was shameless enough to follow them to the bar. She was standing near Goldfarb, the producer of the picture who, when he heard Mae's remark, gasped, saying "nasty or it's love."

"I never thought I'd live to see the day when a girl says that anybody else in one of her pictures is any good. She's either being nasty or it's love."

Toby eyed Scotti and Mae, saw their intimate pose.

"That's pictures for you," lamented Goldfarb. "She runs after him and now, instead of firing him—I've got to make a star out of him."

Toby shot the producer an oblique look.

"I thought you and Miss La Rue just had a business agreement—"

"Oh, er sure," replied Goldfarb. "Just business—"

He looked very depressed about the situation. Toby understood.

"I guess I've been kidding myself, too," she said, sadly, and turned away.

Paul saw Toby near him and wanted to leave Mae. A quick glance revealed that she was going to another part of the room and the laugh which had been on his lips died. He looked after her, suddenly sober. Mae laughed, too—until she saw the expression on his face and looked to see what his eyes were centered upon.

Then her face grew hard and brittle. Goldfarb was wagging his fingers, trying to attract Mae's attention. But Mae ignored him.

She turned back to Paul, a possessive look on her face, and started talking to him so rapidly that he didn't have a chance to get away. Goldfarb, aware that Mae had deliberately overlooked him, gave a disgusted gesture, turned away looking as if nothing mattered.

Another guest was Cellini. He had been very happy during the past few weeks—he had been able to let his appetite run riot. But tonight was the night of nights, for there was a buffet supper. Anyone could help himself to anything he wanted. He was going just that.

He was constructing—not making—a sandwich for himself when Madame Rose, dressed as she thought any girl of twenty should be dressed, with plenty of ruffles and curls and a tiara and a fan, swept into the living room. She stood tapping her foot at the entrance. She also tapped her fan against one hand. She searched the room with but a single thought.

"Who were you looking at when you said that?" asked Mae, smiling.

"She was looking at you, Mae, of course," said Paul, wisely.

Mae, who was clinging to his arm, patted it affectionately.

"It's quite all right," she said. "It's all coming to you, darling. You walked away with the honor's."

He made good his escape.

Egghead didn't go much for society. Neither did Charley at this moment. Charley felt a bit out of things, low in general. So Charley and Egghead were absorbing gin on the back steps of the house.

Charley leaned casually against a garbage can, holding the bottle. Egghead looked at it longingly for a moment—then reached for it. Charley held it away from him.

"As you were—" he said. "Wait a minute!" He took a long drink. Then he passed the bottle to Egghead who gulped the fluid lovingly. Charley snatched it back while there was still some left. Charley was a little tight, while Egghead was crooked.

"Let me hold it," said Charley. "We gotta celebrate th' nice, new picture with a nice, big party."

Egghead agreed to celebrate with him, but confided that he wasn't happy. Charley asked him what was the matter.

"It's Madame Rose," said Egghead. "She likes Cellini."

"Very lovely couple, don't you think?" asked Charley.

"Yeah, but I'm scared. What if she married him! If she gets married, she won't need me. And stoggin's hard work to get. Every good spot in town's filled."

"You could go to work, couldn't you?" suggested Charley, gravely.

Egghead said he couldn't work—didn't know how.

"I've got to get right now," he added. "All I gotta do is take walks, run errands and go on trips with her—but when Cellini takes that over, she won't need me."

"Eggie, old boy," said Charley. "Let me set your mind at rest. You'll have no further trouble with Cellini. You see, the whole thing's been a business move. Madame Rose likes Cellini, so we had a bungalow. But now that we're big shots, we've got this big place, see?"

Charley swung his arm in a wide arc.

"So you're all set again? He concluded, Egghead heaved a big sigh of relief, suggested:

"Let's have a drink."

Charley, to be on the safe side, took his drink first and then passed the bottle to his companion. When Egghead had finished, he said:

"You know some'n, Eggie—I'm not happy, either."

"Whassa matter?" asked Egghead.

"Toby—she's my girl," said Charley, very confidentially.

"Your girl?" exclaimed Egghead. "I thought she was Scotti's."

"That's what I'm afraid of—I'm beginning to think so, too," admitted Charley. "Of course, I see your angle. You figure if she liked one of us, it must be him. I ain't blame you."

"She's awful cute," said Egghead, irreverently.

"You're tellin' me" said Charley sadly. "I want 't marry her. But how're you goin' 't marry a girl that's in love with another guy?"

"How do you know she is?" pursued Egghead with sudden brilliance.

"At first we got along great."

Now, she doesn't even hear me talkin' to her," was the enlightening reply.

"And you're in love, eh?" asked Egghead, wishing he was enjoying the same emotion himself. "Just to be in love—"

"It's terrific," confessed Charley.

He sat staring glumly into space. Egghead reached for the gin bottle, but Charley, without even looking at him, switched it to his other hand, which disappointed Egghead.

"You're sure in a tough spot," he observed.

Unheard and unseen, Paul kicked had come into the kitchen, had heard the voices, and had been listening. He had not eavesdropped intentionally. However, he had heard most of the conversation.

He stood for a moment, as if reaching a decision. The whole situation was one big ache to him. Charley was his pal—had been for years. Charley loved Toby.

He could see nothing to do but step aside and give Charley the breaks. There was one way to do it—and that was to make Toby hate him!

He turned, left the kitchen as silently as he had come.

Hollywood Sirens Blamed For Slowing up Gridsters

By DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—When Jack Frankish, editor of the Daily Trojan, University of Southern California student paper, recently charged the Trojan grid squad with being "Hollywood struck," he told only half the story.

"The players are Hollywood struck toys to some henna-haired beauty," wrote Editor Frankish. But he stopped too soon. Behind his charges are numerous interesting facts.

Although looked upon as gods and goddesses themselves, Hollywood's shadowy celebrities are the most ardent hero-worshippers to be found anywhere. Anyone who breaks into the limelight in some other field is as great to them as they are to millions of theatre-goers.

Cotton to Cotton
Cotton Warburton, All-America quarterback, broke into the spotlight last year. He suddenly became the grid's rage of America. And at the same time he became one of the most important figures in Hollywood.

Mary Carlisle strutted like a peacock when he asked her for a date. Rochelle Hudson was the envy of every girl in the Coconut Grove when she appeared there with him. Naturally these young actresses made a fuss over the low-headed ball carrier. He was the rage of the hour and it meant a lot to them to be seen with him.

And Warburton didn't take their compliments with the proverbial grain of salt. Like the movie stars themselves, he believed everything—believed that he was a great fellow, and indispensable to the team. Warburton started the present campaign in the same frame of mind. All summer, Mary, Rochelle, Toby Wing, and Sally Blane continued to sing his praises. Each of them was sure that he would be greater than ever this fall.

Cotton had much the same idea. As long as he was packing the ball, the Trojans would win. How the rest of the team performed didn't make much difference.

The rest took him at his word. If he was so good, let him prove it. The result has been that Warburton has given a very poor account of himself in every game this season.

Cinema Casualties
Haskell (Hasky) Wotkins, who showed such promise at fullback last season, is another who failed to show anything at all this year. Wotkins, too, has been a target for Hollywood's younger beauties. He has dined at the Brown Derby with Judith Allen, and danced in the Biltmore Bowl with Dorothy Drake. And their praises apparently have been just a little too much for him.

Another who has fallen down is Ed Howard, who alternated as quarterback with Warburton. Last year he appeared to be a great bet. Now he looks bad against even weak competition.

Howard also has been subjected to the flattery of the beautiful young screen actresses. He, too, has been seen with Mary Carlisle, who apparently has some influence upon football players. They seem to value her comments above those of Coach Howard Jones.

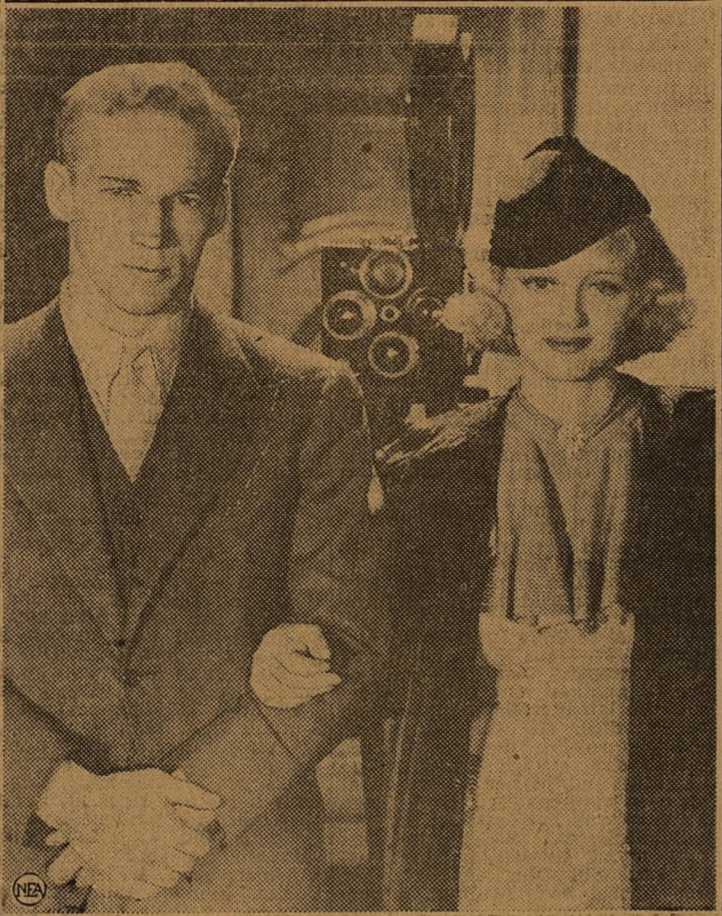

Filmland's beauties have been quick to absolve themselves of any blame for the team's downfall, however.

"Sure, I've had dates with some of the fellows," one actress told me. "They're good dancers and lots of fun. But I also have dates with other fellows and they don't get swelled up about it. So why should the football players?"

"If they're swell-headed, they got that way themselves. I'm sure I didn't do it. And I didn't try to make boys out of the boys, either."

Hollywood really is mad about being drawn into this attack upon the Trojans. In the past it already has been blamed for enough things—corrupting the morals of the nation, the decline of the legitimate stage, encouraging crime, popularizing drinking.

And it doesn't want the Trojans' downfall added to the list.

Charged with his teammates of having gone Hollywood, Irvine Warburton, the University of Southern California's All-America quarterback of 1933, probably would admit that he knows something of the ins and outs of the cinema village. Here he is visiting Bette Davis on a movie set.

ances. He should have knocked down a touchdown pass that was completed over his head.

In the end, with less than five minutes remaining and the Southern California situation desperate, the crowd of 55,000 saw Coach Howard Jones replace his All-America quarterback with Bill Howard, the second string man.

Warburton is the same nimble dodger that he was in 1933, but this fall there are no Aaron Rosenburg and Larry Stevens to lead

Jones' power plays, no Bob McNeish to take out would-be tacklers, and no Bon Erskine and Ford Palmer to rip holes through which the Scooter formerly scooted.

All-Americas fall with the mighty Diane Purvis, Purdue's All-America halfback of 1933, has been handicapped by a leg injury, but will have to make up kilometers of lost ground to qualify again.

And early returns indicate that this is going to be mighty hard to do with the Bollemakers, whose prospects have failed to measure up. And what All-America recognition will be given Michigan, usually so favored by the selectors, unless the Wolverines show a surprising reversal of form?

Jerry Ford was supposed to be as competent at center as Chuck Bernard, who drew the pivot post in the select group at the conclusion of the 1933 campaign.

Harry Kipke has a line that averages 200 pounds, and can field a combination that does not include a single sophomore, and including such supposed finished workmen as Regecki, right half; Austin, right tackle; Hildebrand and Borgmann, guards, and Ford, center.

But the Michigan State and Chicago disasters were unmistakable signs that either everything Michigan has depends on the incapacitated quarterback, Bill Renner, or that the team has run into one of those unaccountable slumps inevitably experienced at institutions that have enjoyed years of success.

PEN FOUND AFTER 9 YEARS
ALBANY, Ore. (UP)—Nine years ago Frank Fribert, fireman, lost a fountain pen in a cistern. Attempts to recover it were unsuccessful. This month a crew of SERA workers found the pen while cleaning the cistern. It was in a good state of preservation, contained ink and was sent to its owner.

Oher Sport Scribes

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEW YORK—Since the varsity days of Heffelfinger, Stagg, and Snakey Ames, football players have required plenty of assistance to make so-called All-America teams. Backs seldom crash the headlines without the aid of running guards, blockers, and intererers. Centers, linemen, and backs more adept at clearing the path require the presence of at least one excellent ball bouncer, for All-Americas rarely are selected from losing combinations. Irvine Warburton's rather feeble efforts to repeat as the All-America quarterback with an inexperienced and incapable Southern California squad again brings this home. Whatever hope the Cottontop had of succeeding himself seemed definitely to disappear with his poor showing against Pittsburgh, which came on the heels of a disappointing performance against Washington State. Opposed to the Panthers, Warburton looked like an All-America quarterback for only a few fleeting minutes—running and passing to the Trojans' only score in the closing seconds of the half. Outside of that, Warburton's work wasn't even ordinary. It was bad. The Cottontop's judgment on plays was faulty, causing one to suspect that perhaps similar errors were screened by his remarkable teammates of a year ago. Warburton had a quick kick, that shouldn't have been attempted, partly blocked. He permitted punts, that should have been caught and run back or touched down, to roll for great dis-

SATURDAY MAY SETTLE SECTIONAL GRID RACES OVER WHOLE COUNTRY

BY JOCK SUTHERLAND
Head Coach, University of Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH—Next Saturday, Oct. 27, ought to be declared a legal holiday for football fans, for the bill of fare is one of the most appetizing of the year.

Games of inter-sectional rivalry are not so frequent, but the leadership of various sections is going to be pretty well established by Saturday.

The two major inter-sectional battles find Southern Methodist meeting Fordham in New York, and Chicago playing host to Mississippi. Despite the fact that S. M. U. is not having a sensational season, I look for it to give Fordham a lot of trouble.

Chicago should have little trouble with Missouri.

Yale and Army headline the eastern tilt, and once again I can see nothing in sight but a decisive victory for Lieut. Gar Davidson's Cadets.

And while the Crimson is trouncing Yale, another service team, Tom Hamilton's navy eleven, will find the going tough at Philadelphia, but should come out on top of Penn.

After a graduated series of warm-ups, Dartmouth gets its initial test of real big league warfare when it engages Harvard. The Crimson sophomores are gaining experience, but not enough to stop the power attack that I look for Black's Big Green eleven to unleash.

Only Princeton and Columbia, with Cornell and Penn State furnishing the opposition, can be called real favorites.

In the middle-west, Minnesota, better than ever, will drive another spike in its title claims by winning over Iowa. Illinois is due to get a long-awaited chance to celebrate a victory over Michigan, unless Kipke's outfit gets back to a winning stride in a hurry. Ohio State should win against Northwestern as it pleases.

Home Brewed

BY R. C. HANKINS

Everybody from Wink except the nightwatchman will be here for Friday night's game, and he'll get play-by-play reports. The Ladies Aid has put on its regular weekly meeting, and the welfare board has been asked to furnish 300 gallons of gasoline so incipient may make the trip.

Supt. W. W. Lackey, generalissimo of the Midland institution, has been asked to reserve the entire east side of the field for Wink supporters, its crack band and pep squad. That is the first request of the sort to be made here in seasons. It's a certain sell-out, and you may have to sit in your children's laps.

A subtle difference in grid atmosphere overhangs the approaching battle. It is no secret here exists a half-outspoken hope Midland may annex the game and thereby accomplish something no other Class B aggregation, or any other, has done in 34 consecutive contests. Oil scouts tell us there will be a sizeable infusion of the football milled from throughout the Permian. In several reported cases, the faithful is choosing this game in preference to several Class A struggles. The reason seems to be a result of the leakage of optimistic reports from grid headquarters here.

Frankly, this department can only hope on paper to have too much to say. But it can be decided without too much mental effort that the confidence whipped into being by the Kemmel will result in so much light Wink may be lucky to get off with any kind of a sneaking win. This much is certain: if Midland takes Wink the club will be plenty salty the rest of the season. There are few clubs that have acquired more polish in the length of time Coach Baumgarten has been at the reins, and a Midland win could not go down in print as what is technically known as an upset.

Winkler county's squad will receive a welcome here that respect for the oil field city's past attainments on the grid is not all the contributes. There's an inherent dash and sparkle to the enthusiasm given off from the moment the motorcade from Wink hits town, a flourish that looks like a junior college aggregation is in the namlet. There is up-town stuff in everything about the visitors. Midland appreciates the friendly relations with the Wink high school and will do everything expected to promote the visitors' enjoyment of their stay.

Snatched—which means we didn't, someone else did.

The Abilene Eagles, when they take the field Saturday afternoon against the Ranger Bulldogs, will have a somewhat different team from the one the Bulldogs will put on the field. In other words, the Eagles, sometimes called the Elephants, will have an elephant line and an eagle backfield.

The Bulldog line will be out-weighted almost 10 pounds to the man, while the Ranger backfield will look like a quartet of heavyweights compared to those who do the main portion of the ball carrying for the Eagles.

Abilene's line weighs 175 pounds on figures furnished by the coach, while that of Ranger weighs only around 165. Possibly 167.

The heavyweight of the line is Schuback, who weighs 225, and plays at tackle, while the other tackle, Collins, weighs something like 185.

The guards are not so heavy—just about the size of the Ranger tackles, Ballanz weighing 185 and Howell weighing 161. Howell, if we are not mistaken, was a tackle last year, and a good one.

The ends are E. Jones and Blackman, who are listed at 165 and 155 respectively, while H. J. Jones, who has been playing center for a couple of years or so, weighs 165.

The backs are Walter, 128; Moser, 130; Galbraith, 125; and Shydes, 160. All are Eagles or Jack-rabbits, or something—they scamper here and there with the ball with much alacrity, not to say abandon and effectiveness, while they can take to the air with alarming rapidity and with equal effectiveness.

Incidentally, the Brownwood Lions can probably put the tallest team on the field, as they have men who are six feet or over, one being six feet four inches, two being six feet three, three being six feet two, three being six feet one and the others being mere midgets of six feet, while 12 men on the squad lack one inch of being up to the six-foot mark.

And while we are on figures,

Most Powerful Liner Afloat Takes Her First Dip

The mysterious giant passenger vessel "No. 534," on which the merged Cunard and White Star lines of England devoted more than three years' work, finally splashed into the River Clyde, near Glasgow, Scotland, when Queen Mary christened the ship with her own name. Although the most powerful ship afloat, the Queen Mary will be second in size to France's new super-liner, the Normandie, launched two years ago. The British ship, however, will carry 4000 passengers and will cost more than $30,000,000. It is shown warping the liner into her fitting basin in completion of her superstructure by 1935.

weights, and whatnot, the Breckenridge backfield, which Breckenridge claims is awfully light, weighs almost as much per man as the Ranger line. Two weigh 165 and two 155.

Mr. McLean of Sweetwater said he had it all figured out how Sweetwater could still win the district. He said Big Spring will lose to San Angelo and Sweetwater will take the Cats under to make it a three-way tie. Then, San Angelo could be eliminated without any argument because they have already said that they positively will not flip to break a tie. After that McLean said he could dispose of Big Spring easily in the court room. Authority is Tom Beasley of the Big Spring Herald.

TEX.-RICE GAME TO PROVIDE ARK. A POWERFUL FOE

BY RAY MORRISON

DALLAS—Probably the most important Southwestern conference gridiron battle so far this year will take place Oct. 27 when Texas tangles with Rice at Houston. The winner of that game probably will play Arkansas later in the year for conference honors.

Both teams have powerful squads, and I can personally vouch for the offense and defense of Rice, having seen our Mustangs bow before the Owls, 9-0. Jimmy Kitts, former S. M. U. star, has done a good job in his first year at Rice. His eleven's victory over Loyola of New Orleans, Purdue, Southern Methodist, and the tie with powerful Louisiana State attests to that.

But I am afraid that Jack Chevigny has done just a little better with his University of Texas Longhorns. The former Notre Dame star backfield man has turned out a squad in his first year at Austin that was able to beat his alma mater, 7-6. This victory looms up impressively when you consider that Rice beat Purdue, 14-0, and that the Irish proceeded to drub the Boiler-makers, 18-7.

The Longhorn's victory over Oklahoma, too, was impressive. Against one of the strongest teams in the Big Six, Chevigny loosed a passing attack after the Sooners had succeeded in stopping his running threat, Bohn Hilliard.

Eleven of the 17 passes Texas tried clicked for 185 yards and most of those passes paved the way for the Longhorns' three touchdowns in the 19-0 decision.

Chevigny, more so than the man he succeeded, Jack Meagher, present Auburn mentor is a strict disciple of the Rockne system. Against Oklahoma he started his Aggie shock troops, and these boys held the Sooners scoreless in the first quarter.

In the second, Chevigny rushed in his first-string backfield and the boys from Norman, Okla., all set to stop the running of Hilliard, suddenly found Bohn throwing passes, one of them settling in the arms of a teammate across their goal line.

It would be well for the other teams in the Southwestern conference to forget that Bohn Hilliard is a great runner, and the star of the Texas team. If they don't, and concentrate on stopping him, Chevigny has done just a little better.

Irvin Glibbraich, sophomore; Buster Jurecka, fullback; Jimmy Hadlock, quarter, and Hugh Wolfe, halfback.

And the line of Charlie Coates, center; Joe Smart and Woodrow Velt, guards; Jim Toibert and Louis Olivier, tackles, and Jack Collins and Jack Gray, ends, is a tower of strength.

From all indications, Rice is scheduled to be on the short end of

HORSE STUCK WITH MATE

FIGHTS TO BE ON THURSDAYS

MONAHANS.—Fight night in Monahans has been changed back to Thursday nights and, on Oct. 25, the promoters say that a card has been arranged to please all fight fans. The fight will be staged at Tubb Hall at 8:30 p. m. Arrangements are under way to stage a "battle royal" between the dusky boys in and around Monahans.

Bobby Clark of Sweetwater will show punches with Kid Ivey of McCamey for the main event. Bobby has been putting up some good fights lately, at Erickson and Abilene, and is in the pink of condition. Kid Ivey has been meeting with the best of success in all of his fights lately. Last week at McCamey, he got a judges' decision over Jack Irwin of Midland, two weeks before he put Woodie Windham away in the tenth round.

This will be a "battle of the times." The winner will take all.

Jelly Harry will meet Luis Alvarado of Alpine in a six round semi-final. Jelly has been working out real hard lately and says he will be in the best of condition when he meets this tough boy. Alvarado is amateur champion of the CCC camp of Las Vegas, N. M., and from all reports he is a whirlwind, and will give Jelly a go for his money.

Three fast four-round preliminary bouts are being arranged for this card and they will all be fights and not loving matches.

The management is in touch with Howard Scott, state lightweight champion of Texas, and is planning a much better Howard Scott and D. Dock Kitchens of Azle for the evening of Nov. 8.

RATTLER IS STOWAWAY

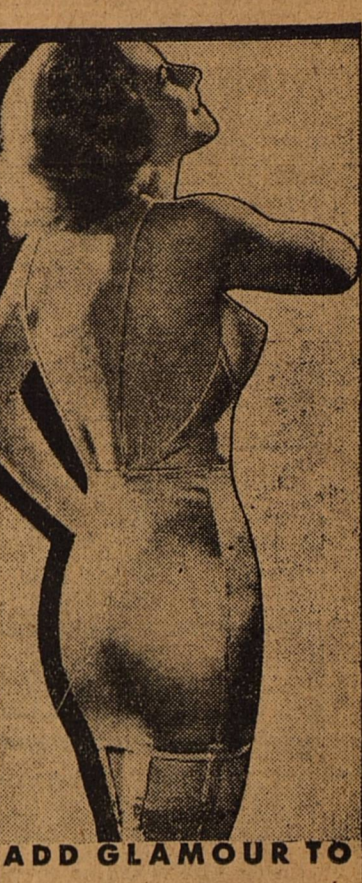

FREMONT, O. (UP)—Four Fremonters, returning recently from a Canadian trip, brought home a rattler which they didn't want. As they started unpacking their golf bags, they heard a whirring noise. Under a rug nearby wriggled a very lively rattlesnake. The four decided it had stowed itself away in one of the bags in the Canadian wilds and had crawled out to make itself at home in its new habitat.

CLEVELAND, (UP)—No home economics, or other conventional studies for Betsy Jane Richey, She's starting for Columbus to enter Ohio State University as a freshman and she'll study veterinary medicine! She is taking along her riding horse, Rex Laonard, and she ranks admits an ambition to be the "most famous horsewoman in the country" and to have the best show horses in the world. The term begins early in October.

a tough battle Oct. 27, and in either event, Arkansas must prepare for a tough game Nov. 10, if Rice wins, and Nov. 24 if the Longhorns are victorious.
