SHOTS FIRED IN NEW ORLEANS

Germany's Hero of Tannenberg and of Peace Is Interred

ROAR OF CANYON IS KIEL OF WARRIOR

TANNENBURG, East Prussia, Aug. 7. (UP)—President Paul von Hindenburg was buried today with brilliant military honors in the soil he made historic by the victory of Tannenberg over the great Prussian "steam roller" in 1914.

Over his body Hitler, who became Germany's supreme ruler when Hindenburg died, called him the guardian of the nation's rebirth. He indicated that he would continue without pause the late president's work of remaking a nation shattered by war. He concluded by saying, "Dear War Lord, enter now into Valhalla."

The funeral was marked by the thunder of 101 guns, the traditional death salute to a Prussian king. It was the first time the salute had been accorded anyone in Prussia since 1888.

MILITARY LEADERS ARRIVE BY AIRPLANE

NEUDECK, Germany, Aug. 7. (AP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, Wilhelm Goering, Prussian premier, Col. Oskar von Hindenburg, and military leaders who had attended the memorial service for the late President Paul von Hindenburg at Berlin arrived at Marlenburg near here in three airplanes Monday night.

Crowds saluted solemnly and then Goering motored to Neudeck where he placed a floral tribute from the German government on the coffin of the president.

The officials to whom full leadership of the reich passes arrived a short time before the start of a long funeral procession from Neudeck to Tannenberg, historic battlefield which will be the last resting place of the nation's military leader.

Stars shone in the sky after days of rainfall as the procession formed in front of Neudeck manor. It was an impressive spectacle.

A guard of honor consisting of three reichswehr battalions formed a wide circle around the house. Behind the soldiers stood virtually all the inhabitants of nearby towns and villages.

Flaring torchlights gleamed everywhere. Members of the Von Hindenburg family said their last adieu to the beloved patriarch in his study, where the Rev. Doernit, pastor of the Holy Trinity church in Berlin with the president frequently attended, spoke a few comforting words.

Then the coffin was brought outside and placed near two reichswehr flags. A hand played softly the hymn "Jesus Meine Uversicht."

A gun carriage drawn by six horses pulled up to the door. Six officers lifted the coffin, which was covered with a black and white war flag, onto the limber.

Carry Toggles of Honor
Seven army colonels headed the procession as it started down the long avenue of ash trees. These officers carried the dead field marshal's baton, his war decorations and other tokens of honor which had been bestowed upon him.

Immediately behind the gun carriage rode Col. Von Hindenburg, members of the family, high military officers and all members of the staff of the Neudeck estate. As the procession got under way the refrain of "Jesus Meine Uversicht" was heard again and many in the throng were weeping silently.

The first halt was made about a mile from the estate. The coffin was transferred to this point to a motor gun carriage.

Stationed along the road were army detachments which presented arms as the cortege proceeded. Darkness yielded to the blaze of thousands of torches held aloft by statuesque watchers on the 60-mile route winding through East Prussian fields where wheat and rye is being harvested.

Spurs were buckled on interest surrounding the three day Midland international tennis tournament, Aug. 10-12, when officials in charge announced Monday afternoon nearly $100 in cash had been collected from Midland business men and that trophies for winners and prizes for runners-up will be the finest ever given by Midland sportsmen.

Adding to interest is the assurance that several ranking racketeers of West Texas will enter. Included are Leo Brady and W. B. Clinton of Abilene, finalists in the West Texas invitational tournament at Abilene last week. Brady defeated Willard Foster, Hardin-Simmons freshman in smashing sets, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4, after the collegiate "giant killer" had ousted favorites in both the quarter-finals and semi-finals. A few minutes later, Brady and Foster returned to the court to team with Clinton and M. M. Ballard, respectively, to fight it out for the doubles championship.

Play will be conducted on the beautiful City of Midland courts, which will be in perfect condition for the event.

Totals Keep on Fluctuating in Race for Solon

See-saw race down—
The spelling may be uncertain, but so is the 88th representative's race to which the nursery rhyme in this case refers.

Another day and new totals—with the likelihood of yet another change. Loving county has not turned in its reports officially.

However, upon the reassurance of the Loving county newspaper, it is taken as official that the 13-county total has placed Willis McCutcheon Jr. of Port Davis and Clyde Bradford of Grand Falls into the runoff, with Mrs. Haley of Midland a close third and Hanson Womack of McCamey a badly trailing fourth.

County Democratic Chairman Bell of Reeves county Monday sat him down in the presence of Bradford and McCutcheon and made a final check with county chairman of the other counties and learned that 12 of them were definitely officially reported—and that Loving county apparently was correctly counted.

The revised strength at the polls of the three leading counties now stands:

McCutcheon	3974
Bradford	3814
Haley	3770

It's a rhythmic game of see-saw, all right, this tabulating of returns from the 88th district. First came the information Mrs. Haley had gone into the runoff. Then came news that Bradford, after having congratulated Mrs. Haley on her race, had obtained to the favored position, upon the basis of changed returns—Pecos county having sent in a report that became garbled in transmission or was erroneously written by the one who sent it.

Well, sit tight on the see-saw and don't take a cropper. Maybe it will be known by the time the ballots are to be printed for the runoff just who is who and what his initials are.

If any candidate has misgivings at the slow march of returns he can take a bit of solace from the county judge of Reeves county, who now is representative of the district but who still develops the jittery ague when he recalls the uncertainty attending his getting there.

It was three days before the legislature met, and Stubbsman unofficially led by a comfortable majority his nearest opponent. Unfortunately, unofficial returns do not seat a representative and Stubbsman was faced with the complex quandary of whether he'd have to stand in the spectators' gallery or be legally seated with his peers.

It seems there is a law saying the county judge of Reeves county is the gathering body for the 88th district returns and that official results are to be directed to him by various county chairmen of the 13 counties. Furthermore, it seems most of the county chairmen did not know of the existence of such a law, "and I didn't either until near the time the legislature was called."

Suitable gifts for runners-up will be awarded.

Expressive of the work done by those in charge of arrangements, invitations were sent to 96 players of West Texas and New Mexico after letters had been sent earlier to 56 sports writers asking the names of prominent players of given areas.

Play will be conducted on the beautiful City of Midland courts, which will be in perfect condition for the event.

FARMERS URGED TO SIGN BLANKS

Dead line for signing Bankhead act allotment blanks has been set for Aug. 11, according to E. R. Eudally, chairman of the state allotment board. Only seven contract farmers of Midland county have failed to sign, it was learned at the office of County Farm Agent S. A. Debnam. Those and non-signers of retraction contracts are urged to make their applications immediately.

Reporting that contracts from every cotton county in Texas have been approved and certified to Washington, the state cotton board affecting 4,282,723 bales of 478 pounds net weight; 14,128,746 adjusted base acres, and 5,322,368 rented acres. The contracts show that 37.7 per cent of the base acres were rented to the government. The total rental payments amount to $26,777,260 and the parity payment of one cent per pound will amount to $8,153,513.

In most cases the checks for the first rental payment have been received by the farmers. The second rental payment will be made in early fall after the land has been measured and the compliance certificates sent to Washington. The parity payments will be made in December.

In connection with these final figures it is of interest to note that Texas has about one-fourth of the cotton counties and one-fourth of the contracts in the United States, representing nearly one-third of the lint, and over one-third of the cotton acreage.

County-by-county figures released this week for the first time by the corn-hog board indicate that 32,104 Texas farmers in 228 counties have contracted to participate in the corn-hog reduction program. As cash return for their cooperation $4,895,500 will be coming to these farmers.

The board has now made contract allotments in all but seven counties. Already county committees in 103 counties have made their adjustments within allotments. Midland county being one of the 103. The movement of county contracts to Washington will proceed rapidly. Chairman of the Board Holmgren says, and returning checks will be coming right along as the contracts receive final approval and are passed for payment.

Science Rallies to Protect Lives of Tiniest Babies, Dionne Quintuplets

This story, accompanied by an unpublished picture, is the first of two appearing exclusively in The Reporter-Telegram and other NEA Service newspapers, revealing what goes on behind the scenes in the Ontario home of the famous Dionne quintuplets. The second story will tell the amazing "life story" of the babies, accompanied by other pictures.

Copyright 1934, by NEA Service CORBELL, Ont., Aug. 7.—Oliva Dionne settles herself into a peaceful and efficient stirring. Dionne has to meet the morning train at Callander—it is bringing him a consignment.

Dionne is the father of the most famous babies in the world, the quintuplets whose birth on the night of last May 28 drew the sympathetic eyes of the world to Corbell. And the precious freight that is coming to Callander is a gallon of natural mothers' milk, shipped in special containers from hospitals in Chicago, Toronto, and Montreal.

World Sends Gifts
When he has received the containers, Dionne drives back over the rough and rocky road to Corbell, two and a half miles, to find the day in full swing for his five tiny daughters.

Here, in what had been a plain frame four-room cottage on the edge of the wooded wilderness, is a veritable children's hospital, created for their birth, has already been here.

He will be back again at evening. Twice each day he comes to attend the tiny girl-children whose survival is a modern miracle.

Each One in Incubator
The babies lie in a spare room off the kitchen, each in her wooden, glass-covered individual incubator. Every morning at eight they are taken from the incubators and given an oil bath, the oil gently swabbed on skin that is too tender to stand soap and water. The beds in the incubators are given a complete change.

Every three hours the babies are fed with a dropper equipped with a rubber nipple on the end. The nurses gently force the feeding if the babies do not take the prescribed amount of warm mothers' milk which constitutes their ration every 24 hours. The droppers are like an eye-dropper, but with a barrel about the size of a banana.

Mostly the quintuplets sleep. For 16 or 17 hours of the 24, they simply sleep. Even now, after more than two months of life, they are smaller than many a new-born babe. Their premature birth, earlier than normal by nearly two months, started them out under a tremendous handicap which they are only now overcoming. It is this long sleep between feedings that is giving them the chance to build up toward the sought-for normal.

Identical in Looks
They all look alike. Not only are they identical twins, but no one here knows which is the oldest. In the confusion attending their birth, the babies were not marked in order of their delivery, and no one will ever know, probably, which is the oldest.

PLEISTOCENE MAN'S EVIDENCES IN THIS AREA STUDIED BY SCIENTISTS

Whether the visit of Dr. Earnest Antevas and Dr. F. B. Howard to the Monahans sand area to study evidence of the Pleistocene man will be abetted by a skull offered for study by Bill Fritz of Midland, will be determined sometime this fall or winter when Fritz ships the recently found skull to Dr. Howard for a series of corroborated inspections, measurements and classification with Dr. Hooten, head of the anthropological department of Harvard university.

The visitors, archeologists of the Philadelphia Academy museum, were house guests of Hotel Scharbauer last night, driving here from Monahans to inspect the skull which has attracted much attention from amateur archeologists since the Midland geologist unearthed it from a shallow sand formation 11 miles northeast of Monahans.

They are making Carlsbad, N. M., headquarters, and are studying not only the evidences of primal man, but are much interested in studying traces of primordial organisms in the dune area, as well as ancient peoples' camps there, which show marked resemblance to a similar area in New Mexico where the scientists say they made enlightening discoveries.

The archeologists looked over collections of other Midland people while here. They carried with them some of the Hugh Corrigan collection, and were especially interested in a stone ax they believe represents Pleistocene man's workmanship. They took nine specimens of the so-called "Black and White" pottery, products of ancient artisans and believed unusual this far to the east.

Dr. Howard said the chief source of evidence Pleistocene man roamed this country is the occasional unearthing of Folsom points and Yuma knives. Fritz showed the scientists one of the famous knives and one re-worked Folsom point.

The reason for Dr. Howard's request for a loan of the skull was ascribed to his not being a physical anthropologist and his desire to confer with Dr. Hooten in the latter's famous laboratory.

FAMOUS SCIENTIST PUTS COLLECTORS WISE
A thin, leaf-shaped blade with a slightly rounded tip—these are characteristics of a true Folsom point, according to Dr. Frank H. Roberts Jr., archeologist of the Bureau of American Technology of the Smithsonian institution. In an article in the July 28 number of The Literary Digest, typical features of the point are the broadness between the tip and a line across the center of the face and the longitudinal groove extending along each face about two-thirds of the length, producing lateral ridges paralleling the edges of the blade.

Looking at a cross-section of the object, the specimen will have a bi-concave appearance. The base is concave, often with long, sharp base points. Usually there is a fine marginal retouching, a secondary removal of small flakes, between the edge and the lateral ridge of the central groove. Edges around the base are frequently smooth and usually extend about one-third of the length of the blade. Jasper, chert and chalcedony are materials from which the objects are usually made.

These features may be found singly or in various combinations in specimens gathered from different sections of the country, but unless all are present on each individual specimen it cannot be considered a true type. The Digest said, in setting a confused point for collectors.

LONG'S MEN SAY DISCHARGE WAS ACCIDENTAL ONE

One Shot Crashes in Office Window of Walmsley

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 7. (UP)—Two shootings at National Guard billets increased the tension today as city officials failed in an attempt to disperse the militia and jail Senator Huey Long and Adjutant General Ray Fleming for contempt.

One of the shots crashed the window in Mayor T. S. Walmsley's office and city police believed the militia holding the registrar of voters office to be firing on them. A troop commander said the gun was fired accidentally by a soldier (unloading a shotgun). The other shooting occurred during the night when a sentry fired on a prowler at Jackson barracks.

FIRST BALE IS AUCTIONED HERE

The first Midland county land to be planted to cotton came back to assume another historical significance Monday, when it was unofficially considered to have broken all county time records for the first bale of the season.

W. R. Taylor grew the cotton on the S. M. Francis place, five miles southeast of the city, and the Farmer's Cooperative Gln company ginned it before noon. It weighed 451 pounds when ginned, seed and cotton weighing 1294 pounds.

The bale was auctioned on the streets this afternoon at 1:30, the bid of 174 cents submitted by the First National bank getting it. Francis is accepting premiums from the merchants for Taylor this afternoon.

The cotton was planted the early part of April.

Taylor is a personable fellow. The kind whom you know well at a few minutes—and like. "I've got only eight children out at my place," he laughed. "The other four are not at home, so I needed help to get that first bale over a scattered eleven acres."

"Neighbors, and I have the best ones in the state, pitched in and helped me." "Be sure and say that those who helped me gather my crop would like to have broken all county time records for the first bale over a scattered eleven acres."

"No, I haven't even been close to getting out the first bale before. Once, in 1932, I was about No. 15 on the list at one ginn, but there was another gin running and several had ginned there."

"Not old enough to be the father of eleven kids? I'm older than you think." None of the kids were twins, and some of them came two or three years apart."

Taylor has been farming in Midland county for five years, three of which were spent on the Francis farm. He has 65 acres of cotton, allotted him under the government reduction program, and has 80 acres of 'good, well-filled' milo maize.

"No, my cotton is not much good. You don't find much in this county that is."

Taylor likes to farm, and his family is content with farm routine.

A FATHER DOES BEST AS FORGIVING FRIEND

There is something tragically revealing about the plaint of that Oklahoma gentleman whose son is being held in connection with the death of a University of Oklahoma co-ed.

"I was a stern, strict father," says this man. "I told my boys I expected them to stay out of trouble. I see my mistake now. I should have told them to do everything possible to avoid trouble, but if they got in trouble to come first to me."

In this simple and pathetic statement we have a repetition of the cry that parents have been making for generation after generation—a cry born of the wisdom which heartbreak brings too late.

Over and over again, sorrowing human beings have had to learn by bitter experience that there can be no substitute for sympathetic and comradely understanding.

Youth needs wise advice and it needs intelligent discipline; but most of all it needs that taken-for-granted fellowship which is the final refuge when advice has been ignored and discipline has been flouted.

A man has a son, and he would give his very soul to bring the youngster safely past the myriad pitfalls that lie along youth's path. He tells the boy, as clearly as he can, what those pitfalls are, and how they can be avoided, and he lets the young man see how greatly father relies on son to get by them unharmed.

But, because youth is youth, every now and then some youngster comes to grief. And when he sees what he has done, and thinks of the blow that knowledge of it will be to his father, he is appalled; and he says something like this:

"I am in a jam, and if I tell my father he will be heart-broken; or he will be scornful because I have not had the strength to do as he advised me to do. So I will say nothing, and I will try to get myself out of this fix before he finds out what has happened."

And then, all too often, fumbling and panic-stricken youth simply makes a bad matter infinitely worse, and brings the world, at last, down about his ears, and spoils things beyond fixing.

Being a parent brings a person many grave responsibilities. But none is greater than this: To keep, always, above the disciplinarian and the advisor, a friend whose forgiveness and understanding are beyond measure.

For youth will make mistakes in spite of all we do. When that happens the parent's real job begins.

SILLY "JUSTICE"

That Kentucky judge who has been handing out daily jail sentences or fines to the two reporters, who refused to reveal the source of certain information they printed, seems to be bent on bringing his own court into contempt.

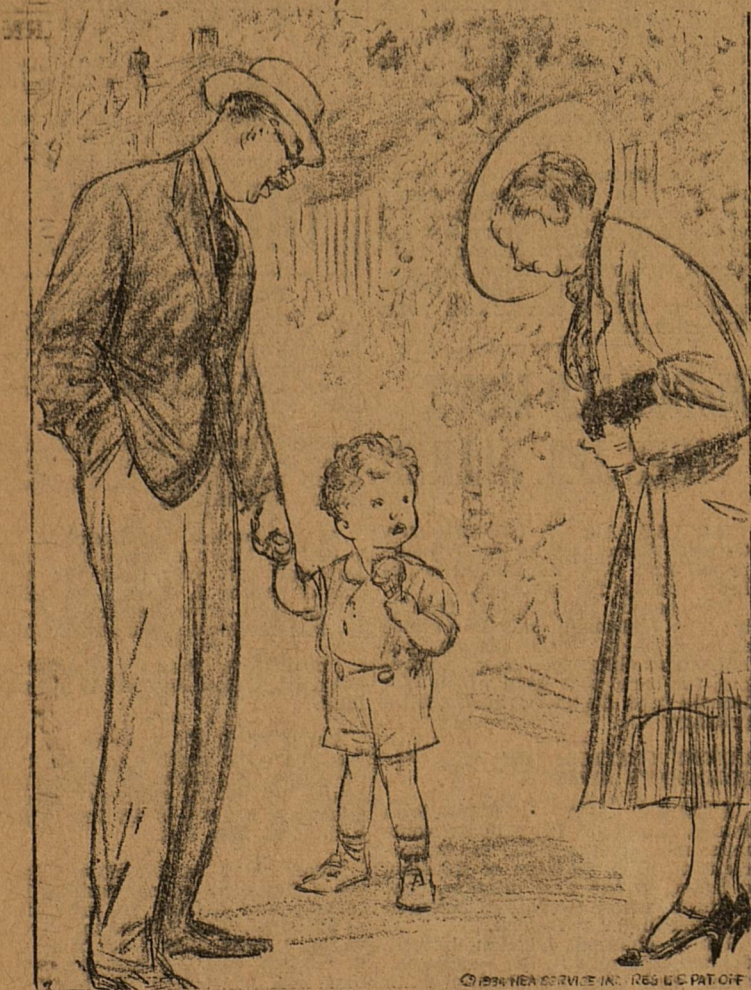

The background of the case is absurdly picaresque. A state representative, who happened to displease his constituents, was hanged in effigy one day—that is, a gang of indignant voters made a dummy of him, labeled it with his name and strung it up by a rope, by way of indicating their displeasure.

These two reporters found out in advance that it was going to happen; and because they won't tell the court who told them, so that the court can get to the bottom of the whole business, the judge has been cracking down on them every day.

In the first place, the judge ought to realize that no reporter worth his salt is ever going to reveal a confidential source of information, no matter how great the pressure. And in the second place, making all of this fuss over a demonstration which is common and harmless enough in a hot election campaign is just downright silly.

The Town Quack

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything with taking a stand on anything).

I read somewhere that a man who carries a knife is more dangerous than a man who carries a pistol. There is more of the world in the man who carries the knife.

The reporter who thought he had a good story when a man bit a dog was way behind the one who came in with a yarn about a bull throwing a congressman.

"The Merry Frinks," a First National picture based on the hilarious comedy by Gene Markey and Kathryn Scola comes to the Ritz theatre tomorrow and Thursday carries a large and impressive cast, with Almie MacMahon in the leading role.

Miss MacMahon, one of the most talented and versatile actresses of the stage or screen, has appeared in such diversified roles as a gold digger in "Gold Diggers of 1933," a wise but very human shop keeper in "Side Streets," and a pioneer farmer's wife in "The World Changes."

Guy Kibbee is the chief clown in this picture as he also was in "Merry Wives of Reno," "Convention City" and many other pictures. Hugh Herbert, who appeared with Kibbee in both of the above named pictures, furnishes the more subtle comedy while Allen Jenkins, who will be remembered for his tough roles in "Jimmy the Gent," "Bedsid," and "Havana Widows," does the rough and tumble part.

Two other feminine members of the Frink family include Helen Lowell, veteran stage star, who made her film bow in "Side Streets," and Joan Wheeler, the Broadway actress who was recently brought to Hollywood by First National. She has appeared in but two pictures besides "The Merry Frinks," these being "Smarty" and "Twenty Million Sweethearts."

Frankie Darro, who appeared in "The Mayor of Hell" and "Wild Boys of the Road," is the seventh member of the merry Frink family.

New Record for Number of Children's Books Issued Set at Library Saturday

A new record for the number of children's books to be checked out was set Saturday when 64 volumes were issued to children within the two and one-half hours the juvenile library was open. Several new prizes awarded in the Doll show follows.

Largest doll—tie between Irene Prime and Joyce Rosenbaum; one was taller, the other fatter.

Next to the largest—Frances Lynn Meeks. All of these dolls were as large as small children, and wore real children's clothes and shoes.

Clearest doll—a baby doll in spotless white, Mary Elizabeth Kerr.

Best dressed doll—girl doll in peach colored tulle dress and hat, Mary Lou Ferrall.

Next to the smallest—unable to decide between Ruth Reeves, Edith Fay Dublin and Geraldine Waldso, so all got prizes. A small black doll was entered by Mary Elizabeth Kerr and was awarded the prize for the best negro doll.

Prettiest doll—lovely girl doll dressed in velvet coat with pink trimming—Mrs. A. J. Braden.

Next to the smallest—unable to decide between Ruth Reeves, Edith Fay Dublin and Geraldine Waldso, so all got prizes. A small black doll was entered by Mary Elizabeth Kerr and was awarded the prize for the best negro doll.

Work of Health Nurse Greatly Appreciated

Miss M. Elizabeth Wilson, county health nurse, left recently with her parents from Rogers to make a tour of the country and to attend the World's fair in Chicago.

Evidence of the appreciation that rural people have for her work is the fact that several of the communities have asked for continued health studies during the summer after completion of the regular health course.

Valley View has two organized clubs which meet alternately every two weeks. Under Miss Wilson's instruction, they have studied diets for convalescent infants and preschool children. The science of feeding a family, different phases of tuberculosis and first aid have also been studied.

Two classes, one at Prairie Lee and one in Midland, completed last month courses begun during the winter.

Motives Behind Praying for Rain Given In Address by the Rev. Winston Borum

A disastrous drought has gripped the nation. Recently, while traveling between Albany and Breckenridge, I broke a fan belt. I stopped at a farm house and asked for water for my radiator and was given a half bucket full with the statement, "We don't have much, but we'll share what we have with you."

It, knows that the affirmative to these questions is true. Many can testify how He comes to the rescue of His children in trouble, and "works all things together for good to them that love the Lord."

AUTO SUPPLY WALLOPS HARDWAREMEN AND HOKUS POKUS TAKES A DECISION

Guardians Appointed

The appointment of guardians for the quintuplets was a step taken by the government to return, asking of each county chairman a certificate of his county's returns. These were taken to the Reeves county judge, who certified the returns to the state secretary and gave Stubbeman a signed copy.

Well, what will we do about it? What can we do about it? Certainly a people with as much industry and energy and resourcefulness as the Americans will not fold their hands and sit idly by bemoaning conditions, if anything can be done about it.

To the above quoted promise there is this condition, as we continue to read the same verse, "that the Father may be glorified in the son."

For instance, is it a proper recognition of God for our president, having just returned from a trip abroad, to call the nation to listen to him while all the churches in the land are holding their accustomed services?
