FERGUSON-ALLRED FIGHT FORGOTTEN IN RELIEF ACTION

Charge Hopkins with Planning to Keep Dole System

AUSTIN, Sept. 6. (U.P.)—Marshaled forces for the fight to determine whether Governor Ferguson or James Allred shall name the member for the new relief commission were held in leash today when the house voted to take up the $9,500,000 bond bill section by section. The section dealing with make up of the commission was number 12 on the list.

The senate resumed the relief investigation. Relief Commissioner Earle Adams charged that Federal Administrator Harry Hopkins was seeking to perpetuate the dole system, that his rules hampered the state administration and that his agents put "thumbscrews on us, rendering relief policies ineffectual."

Park Acreage in Texas Is Increased

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. (U.P.)—Texas park acreage has been increased from 22,000 to more than 258,000 acres through the emergency conservation program in a year, a report to Robert Pechner, director, said today.

OIL NOTES

Humble No. 1 J. S. Means, south offset to the Humble No. 1 R. M. Means, Andrews county discovery, is straight-roaming at 930 feet. The well is about 100 feet from the 1278 feet in red beds, is 1980 feet from the north line and 660 feet from the east line of section 2, block A-35, public school land survey.

Humble's most recent Andrews county location, Humble No. 2 R. M. Means, 1930 feet from the south line and 1487 feet from the west line of section 6, block A-19, public school land survey, which finished rigging up rotary this week, is drilling red beds at 325 feet.

Harry Walker, independent operator of Wichita Falls, is here on business.

Moore et al No. 1 Daniels, interesting Glasscock county test, has drilled to 2925 feet in hard lime with no shows reported. The well is in section 16, block 34, township 5 south, T. & P. survey.

Moore's other Glasscock county test, the No. 1 McDowell, seeking Ordovician pay, is drilling below 3908 feet in blue shale. The McDowell is in section 22, block 34, township 2 south.

Tools have not yet been recovered from the hole of the Tex-Mex No. 1 Netterville, Pecos county test. The well is about 2,500,000 cubic feet of gas per day and from 5 to 7 barrels of oil. Location is 330 feet from the south and west lines of the north half of section 59, block 8, T. & P. survey. Bottom of the hole is at 2210 feet.

After progressing to 517 feet in lime, the Grisham & Hunter No. 1 test, in section 10, block 50, township 8, T. & P. survey, Reeves county, is shut down for repairs to boiler.

No gauge has been made yet on the Skelly No. 1 Hally, new Winkler county discovery. The well, with total depth of 3112 feet, headed every hour and twenty minutes and was flowing about 550,000 cubic feet of gas before being shut in. The delay in gauging this wildcat has been due to the installation of pipes and storage tanks. Location is 440 feet north and east of the center of section 25, block B-11, public school land survey.

Seventy-five feet of salt water encountered at 3805 to 3825 feet is reported in the Broderick & Calvert No. 1 Homer National bank, 1986 feet from the north line and 2038 feet from the east line of section 23, block 43, township 4 south, T. & P. survey, Upton county. The test is bottomed at 3885 feet in anhydrite with the hole reported caving.

R. H. Durward, geologist for the Plymouth Oil company, is in Midland.

Humble No. 1 Walker, Andrews county wildcat in section 6, block A-43, is drilling below 1765 feet in anhydrite. Top of the anhydrite has not been announced.

Last reports from the Honolulu No. 1 Parker, closely watched Andrews county wildcat, located in section 7, block A-44, are that it is drilling below 441 feet in lime.

Report of the acid treatment in the Gulf No. 1 Snodgrass is as follows: 65 barrels of hot oil were pumped in through the 2 inch tubing, followed by 2000 gallons of hot acid. This was given a hot oil load of 40 barrels. Thirty-five barrels of cold oil were pumped in through the casing. The well is in section 11, block B-25, Crane county.

Miss Sands Holds Open House Daily

Paradoxically, Miss Annie Sands of London, England, has a house-keeper, but no house. She was evicted from the large home in which she lived for years. So she and Sims (at right), have set up house-keeping on a park bench, sleeping in doorways when it rains. Miss Sands has sufficient income to provide her housekeeper and herself with food.

6 ROTARY "YALLERHAMMERS" HAILED

"True" Bill Alleges All Are Incurables INTO COURT; "MA" ISSUES PARDONS

Six Rotarians, absent from the meeting a week ago, were tried, found guilty, sentenced and then pardoned by "Ma" in a mock trial held in district court room today, immediately following the club's luncheon.

Defendants Ralph M. Barron, Clarence Scharbauer, R. L. Miller, Joe Pyron, Sam R. Weaver and Elliott H. Barron, defended by an array of legal talent in the person of Addison Wadley, Percy J. Minns, Harvey H. Conger, John R. Crump, Dr. W. E. Ryan, John P. Howe and T. Paul Barron, were successfully prosecuted by Clinton W. Lackey and Fred Wemple.

Miss Derryberry's Automobile Taken

Miss Genavieve Derryberry, former Midland county home demonstration agent and now associated with the extension department of Texas A. & M. college in Clay county, reported to police at Archer City her automobile had been stolen, according to Fort Worth short wave police cables.

FT. WORTH, Sept. 6. (U.P.)—District Attorney Jesse Martin said today he would not prosecute Henry Methvin, pardoned Texas convict arrested at Shreveport, for alleged connection with the killing of two highway patrolmen near Grapevine on Easter Sunday, despite reports from Shreveport that suspicion pointed to Methvin.

Odessa Girl is Sought by Mother

PORT WORTH.—Mrs. W. J. Price of Odessa has sought the aid of The Star-Telegram in locating her daughter, Maurette Price Lewallen, whom she has not heard from for five months.

The daughter married Jess Lewallen and Mrs. Price would like to communicate with either of them. When last heard from the daughter was near Port Arthur.

Mrs. Lewallen is 24 years old; six feet tall and slender. She has dark brown hair, blue eyes and has a small scar at the corner of her left eye.

Any one knowing the whereabouts of either Mrs. Lewallen or her husband is asked to communicate with Mrs. Price at Box 301, Odessa.

Would Stage Rodeo At Midland Soon

Olle Cox and wife, owners of the Double-Heart ranch near Sweetwater, were here Wednesday afternoon, conferring with Midland citizens about the possibility of staging a rodeo here. They own a string of broncos and Brahma cattle and furnished the livestock for the legion rodeo at Big Spring Labor day.

Farmers Urged to Keep Milch Cows

ABILENE.—Farmers who would sell their milch cows for $12 to $20 offered by the government in the emergency drought cattle-buying program have been asked by County Agent C. Metz Herald to give serious thought to the matter before parting with them.

Several farmers with only one cow, and that the source of family milk supply, have listed them for sale. "We are doing all possible to discourage that sort of thing," said Herald. "If a farmer has only one cow, he should think of it as a family cow, and hold on to it."

In several years now, one of the county's chief programs has been to stock farms with high grade milch cows. If these are sold, it means an immediate shortage and next year farmers will find themselves forced to purchase high priced cattle, to replace animals that should not have been sold this fall," the agent pointed out.

Leon Shield, appraiser for Taylor county, and Dr. Allen, inspector, have confined their purchases for the government to dairies calling. He was stated, carrying out the purpose of the program as a relief measure in drought areas.

The final day of the county with won by Bennett in 21 seconds. Homer Woods, with time of 22 2-5 seconds, was second, and Amey Gamblin with time of 24 seconds was third.

W. A. Puckett's red bull remained supreme over all corners, losing riders who challenged him afternoon and night. Whitley Stewart, a leader in bronco and steer riding, made the closest approach to a full ride on the bull when he stayed six seconds.

49 ARMY CRAFT LAND AT PORT; ONE PILOT KILLED IN MERTZON CRASH

Thirty-nine army planes took off for Sloan field, Midland, Wednesday from Kelly field, San Antonio, one of them, a pursuit, falling near Mertzton and fatally injuring William Leint, Robert Allen Brunt, West Point graduate. The others, save for two that failed to arrive, landed at the port. No other casualties were reported.

Minimum Gas Rate Allowed For Santa Anna

AUSTIN, Sept. 6. (U.P.)—Gas rate wars will not be permitted in Texas, the railroad commission ruled today. It set 50 cents as the gas rate for Santa Anna, Coleman county, where rival concerns have cut the rates.

"I believe it is the duty of the commission to prevent rate wars between competing companies," the commission said in the order.

The ruling affects the small city of 2,000 people, but sets a precedent in supporting the right of a city to fix a minimum as well as a maximum utility rate.

HOLDER SECOND IN ABILENE SHOW

ABILENE, Sept. 6. (Sp.)—Hugh Bennett, rugged ex-Abilenian who now calls Arizona his home, last night was crowned champion cowboy of the annual Abilene legion-labor rodeo in a program that brought the three-day show to a close.

A handsome saddle, valued at $250, was the tangible reward attached to the honor, in addition to the money which netted him $133.33 and $100, in two events and day money throughout the rodeo. Bennett was rodeo champion in both calf roping and bulldogging, accomplishments which netted him $133.33 and $100, respectively, besides day money.

Second in the race for all-round honors was Allen Holder of Midland, who received a pair of riding boots; Homer Wood of Mertzton ran third and received a pair of silver spurs.

Bronc riding champion of the meet was Whitley Stewart, Fred Alford of Elgin and Jack Cooper of Calgary, Canada, finished in the place and show spots. Cash prizes of $100, $80, and $40 went to them besides the money paid for daily events. Cooper lost first place, which he had held comfortably, when given a nasty fall by Desperado last night.

Bennett, bulldogging at night, was clocked in 15 seconds. Roy Ross was third for the day with time of 16 seconds.

The condition of Jean Hines, injured in a car accident last week, is very satisfactory, hospital reports today said.

Louis Richards, who lost an arm as the result of a car collision is doing well.

Louis Patterson is improving after undergoing an appendix operation several days ago.

Misses Vera Hefner and Louise Rippe arrived this morning for the approaching school term. Both are teachers in the public schools. They finished in order to get ready for six weeks, Miss Hefner then going to her home at Cuero and Miss Rippe to Grandview.

At 11:15, planes taking off at five-minute intervals so as to give cadets, members of the October graduating class, problems in navigation without aid from their flying mates. The last plane touched the Midland field at 1:20.

Lili's Hand Won by Rancher

The heart and hand of Lili Damita, exotic French film star, above, sought vainly by several Europeans of royal blood, have been won by an Australian rancher. The actress has confirmed the report that she will be the bride of Hugo Brassey, a millionaire from the Antipodes, early in October. Lili won headlines several years ago when she danced for two hours with Prince George of England in Hollywood.

Mother's Wise If She Knows Meaning Of the Nicknames

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON "Names" is the subject today. Perhaps there is a new baby—perhaps not. It doesn't matter, because after all we are going to "nick" him anyway.

A mother has three children, let us say—Elizabeth, Margaret and Edward. But before long she begins to wonder what their names really are. Elizabeth's father calls her Bess, her grand-mother insists on Eliza, the girls call her Beth. The doctor calls her Betty, her aunt calls her Lib and her uncle teases her with Bridget and Lizzie.

As for Margaret, the child has to answer to almost anything—the usual string attached to "Margaret"—Peg and Mary and Gretta and Maggie and Mer.

And Ed Even More So. Edward gets Ted, and Ed, and Ned and Red or Slim or Butch or Pie Face. The nice old lady at the corner calls him Edwin, and Mr. Smith calls him Edgar. He even gets Edson or Edsel at times.

The result is that their mother tries hard to avoid all nicknames so the public will know her children are fit for a passport and not traveling with a dozen aliases.

Bobbie, according to police charges, by his own confession, spun a triangular web about himself. He killed his childhood sweetheart in order to be free to continue another romance.

Theodore Dreiser's novel "An American Tragedy" was re-enacted in almost every detail, police say, by the 23-year-old mining engineer, although the youth contends he never has read the story.

VIOLENCE GOES FORWARD; PEACE FARTHER AWAY

Adamant Orders Tell All Employes to Cease Work

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. (U.P.)—Textile strike leaders turned down presidential peace overtures today and ordered that the uprising continue until all mills are closed.

No arbitration was planned until all are shut down, Leader Francis Gorman ordered. Meanwhile violence continued, the toll of dead reaching ten and the injured 33.

HOUSING ACT IS EXPLAINED

BIG SPRING, Sept. 6.—The federal housing commission act will be explained to bankers, chambers of commerce managers, county judges, and newspapermen in a public meeting to be held here today at the City Auditorium. The meeting is being called by the West Texas chamber of commerce and the act will be explained by R. A. Stuart, supervising director of the national housing act in West Texas.

The act provides for improvement of residential and commercial property through a modernization credit plan.

The Big Spring chamber of commerce directors have authorized the appointment of a committee to administer the act in Big Spring. Delegations are expected from Pecos, Odessa, Sterling City, San Angelo, Coalinga, Colorado, Sweetwater, McCamey, Ft. Stockton, Big Lake, Barstow, Lamesa, Midland, Roscoe, Lorraine, Stanton and Rankin.

OKLA. FUGITIVES TO BE RETURNED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 6. (U.P.)—Oklahoma officers will claim today two Fortson county jail breakers captured in Texas after a gun battle with officers near Edgewood, Texas.

Sheriff W. A. Roberts of Shawnee, Okla., whose machine gun the bandits had left from Antlers with several deputies when informed that Ted Roberts, alias Millard Bunch, was in a Dallas hospital, and Maloy Kurkendall, alias Red Marlor, was in jail at Canton, Texas.

Late News

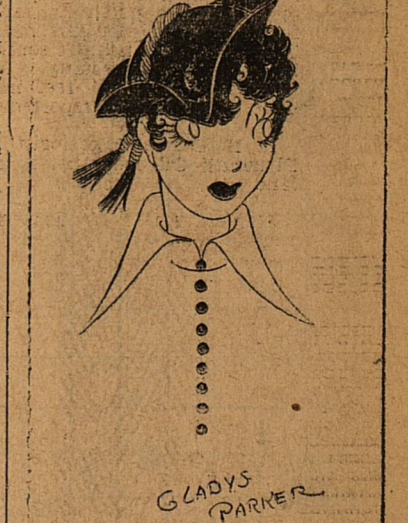

HONOLULU, Sept. 6. (U.P.)—Kilauea, only active volcano on the Hawaiian islands, flared today, presaging a strong eruption. The crater was bubbling violently.

AUSTIN, Sept. 6. (U.P.)—Energy six times greater than all the electric power used in Texas is wasted annually in gas fields, the senate investigating committee was informed by gas engineers today.

The waste, centered in the Panhandle, could be stopped if striping plants would return the residue gas to the ground, the engineers said.

HIGH COST OF STRIKES

If you have ever doubted that the strike is the most expensive way of settling labor difficulties, you might scan the figures presented by the Minneapolis Junior Chamber of Commerce, dealing with the recent truck strike in that city.

The truck drivers themselves, in wages, lost $575,000.

Employers lost, in diminished business, $20,000,000. Taxpayers, through the calling of the national guard, had to foot a bill of $450,000.

In addition there were deaths, injuries, much property damage, wage losses to thousands of workers not directly involved in the dispute, and the loss of much business, some of which will never return.

All this makes a pretty heavy bill for a community to pay. Almost any kind of peaceful settlement would have been cheaper than that, in the long run.

Hard knocks may be good for all of us, but the baseball pinch hitter is the one they really help.

The Town Quack

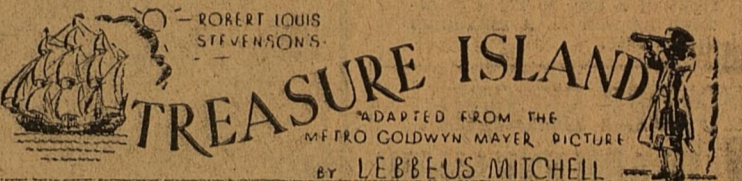

(Reserves the right to "quack" about everything with taking a stand on anything).

Soon it will be time for school to open and the town will come alive. It takes kids to wake up the older folks. I've always noticed that when school is out the town takes on a sort of half-vacation attitude, waiting for school to reopen.

The editor of this sheet says he may not be getting old, but he distinctly remembers it was thirty years ago today when he started to the public school and twenty years ago this month when he started to college.

A local man told me he checked up on himself the other day and by 10 o'clock in the morning he had made ten statements and could substantiate only four of them. At that rate, substantiating four out of every ten statements, what would that make him. Just a plain liar. But before we call him a liar, let us all check up on how many of our own statements can be substantiated.

CHAPTER V THE VOYAGE OF THE HISPANIOLA

The crew of the Hispaniola was waiting, the ship supplied with provisions and ready to hoist anchor when Captain Smollette arrived to take command. A day later and the eventful voyage was under way. Jim was so enchanted with everything about the vessel, with his duties as cabin boy and with the friendship of Long John Silver, that he had quickly dried his tears at the parting from his mother, and noticed nothing that appeared at all unusual.

But Captain Smollette, a seasoned commander, knowing the ways of crews, soon sensed there was something out of the way. Being a forthright man of action, he went at once to the owner, who was sipping mulled wine, sent with Long John Silver's compliments, with Dr. Livesey in the after-cabin.

"Ha, Captain! All well, I trust?" said the Squire.

"I better speak plain, sir, at the risk of offense. I don't like 'this cruise'."

"Explain yourself, sir," said Trelawney, shortly.

"I was engaged on sealed orders to sail this ship where you should bid me. But I've about concluded that every man before the mast knows more than I do! I don't call that fair, now, do you?"

"Certainly not," said Dr. Livesey. "What do the men know?"

"That we're going after treasure, and so has my officer, Mr. Arrow."

Dr. Livesey looked accusingly at Trelawney and the latter blurted out in an injured tone: "Livesey, I never uttered a word! It must have been you or Jim Hawkins."

"Squire Trelawney, sir," spoke up Jim, "upon my honor, I never—"

"So treasure it is," Captain Smollette interrupted Jim, brusquely.

"Now treasure is ticklish work, gentlemen. I don't like treasure voyages on any account. If I'd known—"

"Denme, sir," spluttered the Squire, much upset, "do you wish to relinquish your command?"

"I signed to sail her," replied Smollette, doggedly, "and I never go back on my articles."

"You mean you don't trust the crew?" asked Livesey.

"British naval heroes, all of them," cried Trelawney.

"They may be honest for all I know," continued the Captain, "but treasure in the hold is fire in the forecastle and as I'm responsible for the ship and the life of every man aboard, I'm taking a few precautions, and I ask you gentlemen to help me. I ask you to lay forward on the quarter at once."

On the quarter deck, he ordered Mr. Arrow to pipe all hands up, and then began a systematic search of every seaman for knives. It was an ugly looking lot of weapons that were collected. Smollette handed each knife to Job Anderson to be "dipped," that is to have the point of the blade broken off, after which they were interrupted. The crew kept impassive faces toward their commander, but exchanged secret, murderous glances.

"Captain," said Long John in a pleasant, accommodating sort of manner, "I've several knives in the galley for peeling and slicing. Would you like for me to get them?"

"Unnecessary, Silver," answered Smollette, brusquely, and held out his hand. "But I'll hold the key to the grog on 'this voyage."

Silver took the key from his pocket. "Thank 'e, Captain, that leaves me greatly!" he said cheerfully, ignoring the look of consternation which Israel Hands cast in his direction.

But Gray and Henry, who were among the members of the crew engaged by the Squire before Long John Silver's appearance, were resentful of their commander's summary proceeding.

"Captain, sir, what are we to make of this?" asked Gray. "Why me and Dick and Allen—"

Henry broke in: "I've never had my knife broke a-fore."

Smollette turned on them, a hard gleam in his eyes. "A habit o'mine on long voyages! Sometimes hands gets restless." He turned to Job Anderson, his bosom: "Take the barboated watch, bos'un, and move the powder from the forehold in under the after-cabin."

Silver protested mildly: "But, Captain, that'll mean I'll have to move my provisions forward. I stowed 'em aft special like, sir. The forehold's liable to get bilged."

"My orders, man. Get to your galley! The hands'll want dinner." Silver touched his forelock respectfully. "Aye, aye, sir!"

Mr. Arrow, the first officer, returned from searching the crew's quarters for arms and reported that he had found none. At Smollette's orders, Jim Trelawney's servants—Gray, Henry and Allen—were ordered to bunk at where the officers had their quarters. Jim was disgruntled and later complained to Long John.

"The Captain ordered us to move our bunks aft, and I wished to be forward with you."

"How's this?" said Silver in mock seriousness. "Suppose I ask the Cap'n to change bunks with me?" and laughed so uproariously that the joke that Smollette barked at Jim:

"You, ship's boy! Get along with what you're doing and then come back to the galley and find work. I'll have no favorites on my ship!"

"Well," said Dr. Livesey, amused but admiring their Captain's attitude. "If there's one honest man aboard it's Captain Smollette!"

The voyage proceeded smoothly and uneventfully for a time. Mr. Arrow, it developed, had a taste for drink and by some means when Captain Smollette was unable to fathom, was able to get a supply of grog apparently whenever he wanted it.

Long John Silver developed a certain fondness for Jim during the eight weeks of the voyage, and taught him to hold the wheel and steer the ship. He once pointed out to Jim an enormous shark which followed in the wake of the Hispaniola.

"That's Nicodemus," said Silver. "He'll follow us until he gets what he wants."

"We've given him plenty of potatoes," said Jim.

"Nothing for a shark like old Nic," rejoined Silver. "He's probably used to following the slave ships. He wants meat, Nic does. Lay to that. Black or white—he ain't fussy about the color."

At the end of eight weeks the ship was in Caribbean waters and Captain Smollette announced that they would raise the island on the following day.

Arrow appeared on deck very drunk and refused to tell Smollette where he got the grog—insisted he wasn't drunk, just sick. Arrow was seen later that evening entering the cook's galley where with a sickly smile he asked Silver for a cup of tea. He was not seen after that.

When Captain Smollette sent for him the next morning, he could not be found. Silver reported that Arrow had passed his galley during the night, apparently for fresh air, and that he appeared to have been drinking.

Jim, changing to glance overboard, noticed that old Nic was no longer following the ship, and announced that fact in a sacred voice.

"Arrow must have lurched overboard," said Dr. Livesey. "That'll leave you short-handed, Cap'n," said Silver, respectfully. "And Mr. Arrow was so loyal to you, sir."

Smollette ordered Anderson to take in the top-royal sails and went to enter Arrow's strange disappearance in the ship's log.

As Anderson piped all hands aloft, Silver came out his galley with Henry, one of the Squire's servants. Henry was saying loudly to Long John: "So why should I join up with what?"

"Why, Henry, look 'ee—" said Dandy Dawson, but Henry drew away.

"Astern of me, you little runt! I don't like you and others of your kind as have come aboard this ship!"

As he left, O'Brien and Dandy gave Silver a short look. The latter nodded, and said softly to O'Brien: "William, Henry don't seem happy aboard this ship."

O'Brien returned the nod and followed Henry up into the shrouds.

"You won't fall, Henry," he said. "I'm here below you."

Jim Hawkins was watching a porpoise leaping about the bow of the ship, and listening to Silver's statement that porpoises meant good luck, when there came a horrible scream from up in the sails and a man's body came hurtling down through the shrouds, spinning like a pinwheel as it struck a spar, and

Miss Bagley and Mr. Kelly Say Wedding Vows at Home of Bride's Mother Today

Miss Mollie B. Bagley became the bride of Mr. R. G. Kelly of Odessa in a ring ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Pearl Currie, 700 S. Lorraine, at 7 o'clock this morning. The Reverend Shuttleworth of the First Christian church, Big Spring, read the vows before an altar decked with roses and ferns. The bride was accompanied by Miss Drotha Johnson, maid of honor. The groom was attended by his brother, Lenn Kelly, as best man. A reception was held at the Currie home after the ceremony.

The bride wore a suit of midnight blue gowns, trimmed in silver thread, with accessories to harmonize. Her going away suit was of wine moire with matching accessories.

Miss Johnson wore a black suit with trimmings of gold. The couple will motor to El Paso and Ruidoso for their honeymoon after which they will be at home at Odessa.

The bride is a graduate of Midland high school and attended Sul Ross college at Alpine and the San Angelo business college, and has been employed by the Emco Derrick and Equipment company and the Continental Supply company of Midland. She is a popular member of Midland society and has been prominent in school and social affairs here.

She was sweetheart of the high school band and runner-up in the contest for high school queen. She was a member of the high school quartet and this year was chosen to be Midland's sponsor at the Cowboy reunion at Stamford.

Mr. Kelly is the son of Mrs. Daisy Kelly of Odessa. He attended school at Sul Ross college at Alpine and the School of Mines in El Paso. While in Sul Ross, he was captain of the football team. He is now associated with the Halliburton Oil Well Cementing company.

Out of town guests included: Mrs. Daisy Kelly of Odessa, mother of the groom, Mrs. Tom Wilbanks of Dalhart, aunt of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Gene Kelly, Miss Vaughan Kelly, Messrs. Lenn and Lewis Kelly of Odessa; Mr. and Mrs. Dick Robertson of Plano; and Mr. Warren Gann of Odessa.

Midland people attending the ceremony besides members of the family were Dr. D. K. Ratliff, Mrs. W. W. Brunson, and Mrs. Charlie Houpt.

Mrs. Kelly was honored with a miscellaneous shower before her marriage.
