MOB SLAYS NEGRO IN HIS CELL

Expert Identifies Hauptmann Handwriting on 14 Notes

OSBORN SAYS ALL CORRESPOND WITH RECORD SAMPLES

Regarded as Strong Prosecution Link In Evidence

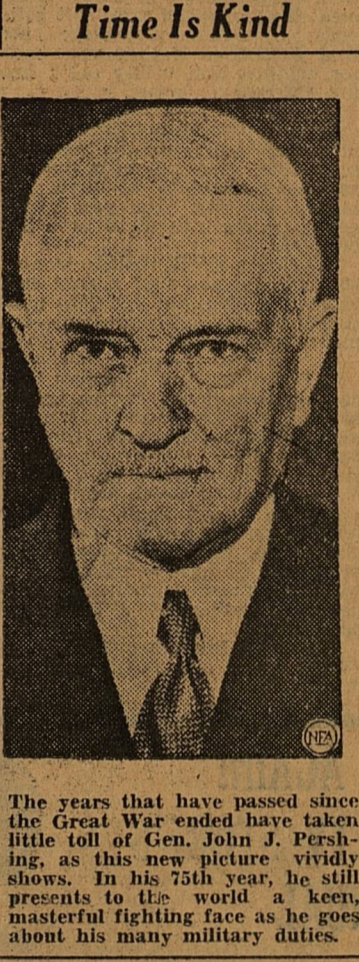

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Jan. 11. (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's handwriting today was identified by Albert S. Osborn Sr., state expert, as that on all of the kidnap ransom notes received by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh after the theft of his twenty-month-old baby.

Identification of the handwriting had been called by the prosecutors of their strongest links in the chain of evidence through which they hope to send Hauptmann to the electric chair for murder of the baby.

When shown a specimen of Hauptmann's handwriting, Osborn stated: "My opinion is that the ransom notes were written by the writer of the various papers signed 'Richard Hauptmann.'"

Examining all of the 14 ransom notes, Osborn said each was written by Hauptmann. This included the note found in the nursery near the empty crib.

The defense closely examined Frank Wilson, special agent in charge of the intelligence department of the United States department of internal revenue, upon the mysterious exchange of the ransom gold notes and the subsequent suicide of J. J. Faulkner.

The years that have passed since the Great War ended have taken little toll of Gen. John J. Pershing, as this new picture vividly shows. In his 75th year, he still presents to the world a keen, masterful fighting face as he goes about his many military duties.

FUND PROPOSED TO RETIRE LAND FROM FARM USE

$675,000,000 Would Be Spread Over 15 Years

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11. (AP)—A huge program to spend $675,000,000 for buying poor land and retiring it from farm production was recommended to President Roosevelt today by the national resources board.

The purchasing would be extended over 15 years, buying 5,000,000 acres yearly at an annual cost of $45,000,000.

This farm land, comprising 450,000,000 acres withdrawn from agriculture, the board said, "in order that the natural and human resources of the nation may be conserved."

SOCIAL SECURITY LAWS ARE OUTLINED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11. (AP)—A broad social security legislative program was outlined to congressional leaders today by President Roosevelt, providing for unemployment, old age pensions and public health aid.

Secretary Perkins explained that direct federal grants were involved only in providing funds to states and in the care of the aged and indigent.

A welcome respite from the strain of the Hauptmann trial comes to the jurors when they are granted the boon of a walk through the quiet side streets of Flemington, N. J., as shown above. Guards stroll at the front and rear of the line and at the end comes an ever-curious youth on roller skates. The trial is the big sensation of their lives to Flemington youngsters, as is evidenced by the scene at the right. It's a little tough on the lad at the bottom, but he'll soon get his turn at the grated window, where the other two are peering in the hope of seeing Hauptmann inside the grim stone structure.

Gwyn, a bachelor, did not make public the name of the person to use the second ticket.

ARREST OF PAIR AT HOBBS FINDS LOOT TAKEN HERE

CARLSBAD, N. M., Jan. 11. (AP)—Solution of a series of robberies in Texas and southeastern New Mexico cities was announced Thursday by Sheriff Dwight Lee of Eddy county after the arrest of two men at Eunice, N. M.

Approximately $2,000 worth of allegedly stolen property, the sheriff said, was found in the hotel room at Hobbs occupied by the men. The loot included a gold watch, a diamond ring, a gold chain, a gold bracelet and all of the Panhandle.

An attendance of approximately 500 Rotarians, with probably 200 in the list of those who are participating in the first district of Rotary International in its annual conference here May 6 and 7, two dozen members of the local club held an informal meeting Thursday night to discuss preliminary plans for staging the event.

The conference voted last May, when it convened at Abilene, to come to Midland in 1935. The district headquarters of the district are in Midland, Texas, and the district is the largest in the world.

A check of goods revealed, Sheriff Lee said, that the loot included a gold watch, a diamond ring, a gold chain, a gold bracelet and all of the Panhandle.

The pair was held pending further investigation. The arrests were made at Hobbs Wednesday night.

Work on Jetties Nears Completion

BROWNSVILLE (AP)—Construction work on the largest single unit of the Brownsville and Port Isabel deep water transportation projects will be completed the middle of January according to announcement of engineers.

This is work on the $2,600,000 jetties which extend into the Gulf of Mexico from Brazos-Santiago pass. The big cranes have only a few hundred feet more to go but a great amount of rock will be dropped to build the jetties that displace as they have reached a depth of about 24 feet. The jetties extend approximately one mile into the Gulf to reach a depth of 25 feet of water so that the channel through the pass will be maintained.

The jetties are constructed of limestone and granite, the rip rap and core being of limestone and the coverstones of granite weighing from six to ten tons each. The jetties are 14 feet wide at the top and stand six feet above mean low tide.

At the extreme depth the jetties are approximately 120 feet wide at the bottom in order to support the tremendous amount of rock necessary to build up a base for the cover stone.

Approximately 8000 carloads of rock have been used so far in Mid-jetty construction, with less than 500 yet to be used.

Meanwhile the U. S. Hopper Dredge Abecomb which for four months has been cutting the channel through the pass, has left after cutting it to a minimum depth of 25 feet. Scouring action of the water during changes in tides has helped to cut the channel.

Foresees Trouble If Stock Law Voted

Harry L. Haight, after making a study of the stock law election to be held in this county January 22, issued a statement today to show his reasons for belief that the measure should be defeated. He pointed out that the present condition is better for both the farmer and the ranchman.

"This matter is coming up and is probably serious. It has to be voted on and anything that has to be voted on is usually serious. The election is about two weeks off and relates to a matter of fences.

"Cattlemen have to drive their selling cattle to the shipping pens in the county and if the fences are torn down the cattle will have an easy time of it getting into the farmers' cotton and feed grounds and damage suits may result.

"This can be avoided if matters are left as they are now and there will be a lot of money saved along with the attendant annoyance of such a proceeding.

"Just by way of argument let us suppose that cattle that have been sold are brought from any of the numerous ranges around this community, and let us suppose the cattle headed toward their destination. What will be the result? The answer is obvious. The cattle will wander into farmers' fields and graze their heads off, destroy the crops, mutilate the ground and keep on repeating that performance until they are in the shipping pens, then will come the damage suits.

"All of which can be avoided by killing this movement. It is un-sound in principle and in action and further it raises questions that should be avoided. At the present time everything is orderly. Cattle are sold, brought to town along well designated lanes or roads and loaded into cars with no damage to anyone, peacefully, efficiently with losses to no one and no unpleasant aftermath. The fences were built to protect the farmer and the rancher and should not be interfered with. Both will suffer if this contemplated change is made."

Pratt Applies "Human Touch" to Happenings of 1934

W. I. Pratt, secretary of the Midland Rotary club, called upon today for his annual report, worked into it his outstanding events of 1934 rather than a detailed statement of activities of the local club. His complete article follows:

By W. I. PRATT

Each succeeding year is an epoch making period in the lives of some individuals and some organizations. At greater intervals the national life of a people is thus affected, and at still greater intervals the world at large is caused to regard the happenings between the dates of Jan. 1 and December 31 as the turning point in some vital and far reaching human relationships. As we review the year 1934, we are led to believe that the events of this period have been such as to have more marked effect on the individual life than any similar period, for a number of years, possibly dating back to the year 1918 at least. It follows quite naturally then that our national economic life can look back upon 1934 as one of change that has been history making, and because of our place of prominence among the nations of the world, we can rightly conclude that the world at large has seen things take place that historians of the future will call epochal.

Readers of the daily press and certain periodicals have had the opportunity of reviewing the "high spots" of 1934 in most any paper or periodical dealing with current events, during the past few days. One daily that is popular in this section, gave their readers the opportunity of naming the most important local, national, and international event of the year. It has been interesting to follow these individual selections. Quite naturally a great number of them have been of self interest, but the majority have shown a recognition of those events that have been of major effect on the masses concerned. Leadership in the promotion of these major events has brought into prominence the names of those little known to the world heretofore. In other instances further glories have been added to already distinguished personalities, while in a few cases names have been brought into the spotlight only because of their active engagement in detrimental actions and influences on human society.

From a representative poll of 240 newspapers located in every section of the country, our own President Roosevelt heads the list by a vote of 236 as being the most outstanding personality of 1934. If it were possible to obtain a vote of all the people, an opinion that this remarkable percentage would be practically maintained. To me the reason for this unprecedented recognition is easy to answer. His every action has proved his interest in the welfare of all humanity and every effort and every agency at his command, has been put forth in an attempt to correct wrongful practices, administer relief, and establish justice in all our distorted economic political and social life. Surely his name can rightly be placed among the truly great personalities, not only of 1934 but of all modern times. Adolf Hitler, dictator of Germany, has been chosen as second on the list by a slightly less majority, but from an entirely opposite viewpoint. His has been a popularity of censure, rather than of praise. His suspension of Constitutional guarantees and persecution of the Jews has brought him world censure. What a pity that the national life of so great a people of the Teutonic race cannot be

Plans Launched For Conference Of Rotary in May

Oil Legislation In Texas Likely

BY WILLIAM VOIGHT JR.
TULSA, Jan. 11. (AP)—This week's important developments in Washington served somewhat to assure the likelihood there will be a lot of legislative action in Texas and Oklahoma in the near future relating to control of the oil industry.

Texas, particularly, is expected to come through with a new law to take the place of the present "market demand" statute under which the railroad commission has ordered industrial operations.

The "Market Demand" law expires next September.

Whether a similar statute will be reenacted was in question, however, as Governor-elect James V. Allred has declared himself positively in favor of a "physical waste" law under which flush areas would be prorated and otherwise controlled without regard to market demand.

Past experience in Texas and Oklahoma has shown that expert petroleum engineers seldom agree on the rate of withdrawal from a pool constitutes "physical waste."

Texas also is expected to discuss a bill designed to permit entrance into a states' compact such as was debated at the recent meetings called in Ponca City by Governor-elect E. W. Marland of Oklahoma.

Oklahoma States' compact measure has been introduced in both houses of the legislature, which convened yesterday.

The oil industry, at the annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute in Dallas in November, expressed itself as favoring a compact between the states rather than strict federal control through new laws, but individually many of the oil men have expressed doubt that a plan can be evolved that will bring unity as between the producing states.

Congress is expected to take early action that will render in effect, immaterial whether the compact idea gets across.

The Cole Committee, which investigated the industry last fall, is suggesting federal legislation and Senator Connally (D. Tex.) has declared his intention of restating in valid form the section 9-C of the recovery act which the Supreme Court Monday declared unconstitutional.

TRUTH IN FICTION

Oscar Wilde, or somebody, once remarked that nature mimics art; by which, of course, he meant that whereas a writer of fiction may invent a happening which sounds utterly improbable and fantastic, if we wait long enough we shall see the happening duplicated in real life.

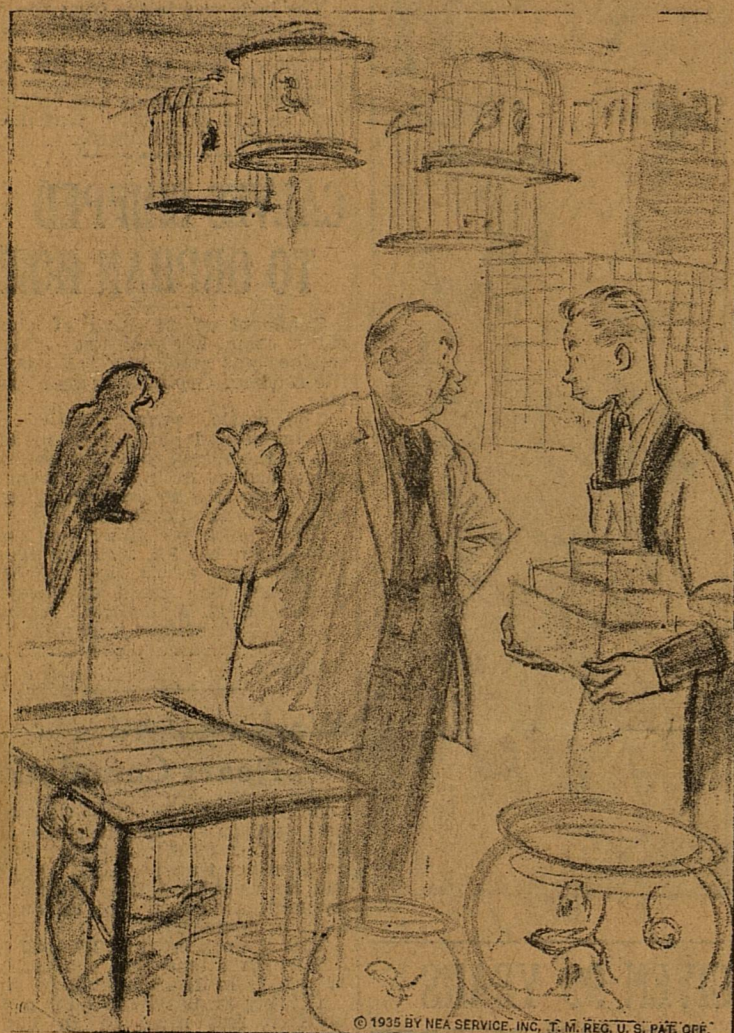

In that sprightly comic strip, "Freckles," there has recently been an episode in which someone dropped revolver cartridges into the coal tender of a railway train. The fireman subsequently shoveled some of these into the fire box along with the coal; they exploded, and a man was shot.

Did it sound somewhat improbable? Perhaps. But just the other day Baltimore police reported that a woman met her death in almost precisely the same way.

In some manner, a loaded cartridge fell into a wastebasket and was tossed into the furnace. When the woman went down to put coal on the fire, the cartridge went off and she was fatally shot.

Once more, life duplicated the seemingly far-fetched invention of the artist.

Nothing but acute normalness was discovered.

Pastor Is Given An Old-Fashioned Pounding Thursday

A number of the membership of the First Christian church gave their new pastor, Rev. J. E. Pickering, and family an old-fashioned pounding at the parsonage Thursday night.

The dining room table was filled with good things to eat, and the parties at the Pastor's home will be filled for several days to come, Mr. Pickering said.

Mr. Rawlins Clark speaking for those present, stated how members can appreciate the enthusiasm of another, whether or not he is a capable of doing the things the enthusiasts do. Gardening, for instance, plants never grow for us.

Even pot plants which are flourishing when we get them, soon die if left in our possession. Cantelepos shrivel up, pepper refuses to surmount its desire to be the best pastor he could for the people. He also stated that he wanted to thank each and every one who had a part in the occasion, and that this was one time a congregation had taken him completely by surprise.

North Ward and South Ward PTA's Hold Program and Social Meetings

FEMININE FANCIES BY KATHLEEN HILAND

Foolish likes and frivolous ones; Fortune telling by any method; perfume; gray eyes; that particular shade of soft blue that fades so easily; cookies with nuts and raisins in them; a sunrise that turns the east into a furnace of molten gold and orange, like the sunrise Thursday morning, finger nails that are always neat (ours never are); white stationery; the feeling that one is looking one's very best. Dislikes, foolish or not: People who are too sure of themselves and their righteousness; dirty jokes; meat that is cooked rare; soft-boiled eggs; ultra-modern poetry; shoes that LOOK as if they were made for comfort and utility only; having to take exercises.

Some one suggested that this column should take up the subject of gardening. We can only say that gardeners seem to be born, not made, and that from past experience, we don't seem to have been born so.

There is a thrill, though, in going through the pages of a seed catalogue and planning just how many things we are going to plant—in a month or so.

It is curious how a human being those present, stated how members can appreciate the enthusiasm of another, whether or not he is a capable of doing the things the enthusiasts do. Gardening, for instance, plants never grow for us.

Even pot plants which are flourishing when we get them, soon die if left in our possession. Cantelepos shrivel up, pepper refuses to surmount its desire to be the best pastor he could for the people. He also stated that he wanted to thank each and every one who had a part in the occasion, and that this was one time a congregation had taken him completely by surprise.

Wasn't it Browning who asked, "What brain and hand went ever paired?"

Both North Ward and South Ward PTA's held meetings Thursday afternoon, the South Ward organization meeting for a program at the school building, the North Ward association holding a social meeting at the home of Mrs. H. G. Bedford, 611 N Marnefield.

Following a discussion of business, at the North Ward meeting, Betty Lou Sims read "Since Mother Joined the PTA" and H. G. Bedford Jr. bade the audience "Take a Tater n' Wait".

Miss Mary Belle Pratt gave a piano number. Mrs. J. S. Schow, in an original composition, raised the suspense of those present by detailing repetition of statements made by various members working up to the point of bursting into tears over the supposed awful statements and turning the whole account into comedy by ending with a parody on the old nursery rhyme:

Mrs. Muffet sat on a tuffet, Eating of curds and whey Along came Mrs. Preston And popped the question, "Why don't you come to the PTA?"

A social hour followed the brief program.

With the County Home Dem Clubs

Mrs. S. Lewellyn believes in starting early on her year's work. Plans for 1935 began to be put into execution by Midland county demonstration club members, immediately after their achievement day programs were held.

Since her club's achievement day in November, Mrs. Lewellyn, of the Willing Workers club, has canned 34 quarts of chow chow, relish, vegetables, and preserves for her 1935 farm food supply pantry.

Fifteen gardens, valued at $17.50, have been made and renovated by Mrs. V. H. Heidelberg, wardrobe demonstrator, class II of McClintic.

One foundation pattern did not satisfy Mrs. S. D. Wimberly, wardrobe demonstrator of Busy Bee club. She kept on until she had helped make 12!

Mrs. Wimberly said: "I find that by using my foundation pattern, my dresses are much easier fitted. I have helped make 12 foundation patterns. I took measurements and cut my husband and two boys shirt patterns and made his apparent disciple Bilboa of Mississippi, or hard-boiled General Hugh Johnson, who early in the year was the bellicose and colorful leader of the NRA, but now that he has been deposed asserts that "the NRA is as dead as a doornail."

Rotary Address--

A statement that attests to the wisdom of the one effecting the change in leadership. Father Time has taken his toll of both national and international figures including William H. Woodin, former Secretary of the Treasury, the famous warrior of Germany, Von Hindenburg, and King Albert I of Belgium who fell to his death while mountain climbing. The bullets of assassins struck down the European dictator Dollfuss while King Alexander of Yugoslavia, and French Foreign Minister Jean Barthou suffered a like fate. Amid it all Dame Cupid lived up to reputation and brought closer together the kingdoms of Great Britain and Greece by sealing in wedlock the Princess Marina and the Duke of Kent. What a break for London society.

But what about the outstanding events of the year. A Rotary club being a cross section of the business and professional life of a community, suppose we let the representatives of the various businesses and professions in this community, as represented in Rotary, tell us what 1934 has meant to their business or profession.

First of all I can hear one of the very newest of our members clamoring for the privilege of being first to get on the floor to tell some of the many agencies that have been set up by the AAA in an endeavor to relieve the sad plight of the farmer, and if Jess Miles stuck to the truth, he would tell you that the crops of the nation were shorter than usual, the average farmer of the nation was in better financial condition than for several years past. He might also add parenthetically, that could

Secretary Wallace and the other powers that be, have possibly inveigled the weather man into letting them in on the secret that an unprecedented drought was to visit the major part of fifteen states, leaving the ground barren and unproductive, there would have been less need for such meticulous figures to properly arrive at a proper balance to supply the need exactly, and thus bring about the much sought after prosperity, by boosting the price of such affected commodities. Incidentally, Jess might tell about reading where some farmer got $4,500 from the government for not raising cotton, who had never raised any cotton before, but he would sure tell us quickly that it was all hearsay with him.

These cattlemen, Bob Hill and Clarence Schreiber might chime in and say something about how the same alphabet organization had stepped in, paid Mr. Cattlemen of the nation a price for more than a million head of cattle that was not warranted by anything other than a desire to be of some assistance in solving their complex problems. Of course, the method might agree with all the methods adopted, and the procedure under which it was carried out, but at least the cowboy cannot lay just claim to being "The Forgotten Man" in 1934.

Ralph Barron, the representative of "banking" would perhaps wax eloquent in telling us all the things that the government has done for his business as a whole, but I can hear Tiffin, the lock-smith, cooing with a comparison of the number of banks that were closed in 1933 and 1934, and incidentally wondering aloud what depression there would have been in his vocation, had something not been done to open and close, lock and unlock these bank doors of the country. My Republican master friend would of necessity have to admit that postal receipts made a gain even though Jim Farley is his Democratic boss, and they would tell us that the source of the fact that retail department store sales have made nice gains and the Ken has not been an entirely unknown term.

If our Catholic priest, our Protestant minister, and our Sunday School missionary were to allow themselves to envisage their summing up, to the local constituency I am not so sure of the note of progress they might sound. But Father Harrison would include I am sure a mention of the 32nd International Eucharistic Congress attended by an estimated one million people, demonstrating an adherence to faith that is truly remarkable in these days of conflicting notions and opinions. If Preacher Borum could remember that he is a Rotarian and not wholly Baptist he would tell us that if there is anything to numbers of church members, that the religious spirit is still on the march, and I believe that missionary Mann would make the testimony unanimous by saying that some ground had been gained in our religious life during 1934, and there is cause for renewed hope, coupled with an urgent call for courageous action.

Arthur Yeager, Harvey Conger, Marshall Crawford, Joe Byron, and John Crump those members who represent some phase of the Petroleum industry from the leasing of the land to the putting of the gas in the car, could not make old 1934 so bad for their industry even if they were to come back in the field of transportation. They actually seem to have awakened from their lethargy and are attempting to bolster the value of all these outstanding bonds that are held as securities by such a far reaching group of individuals and institutions. It is of vital importance that this backbone of our transportation every operator didn't agree with but who expects to please everybody. The consumption of gasoline reached a new high and what better news would Harvey and Marshall want than to tell about that. Trade journals of the oil industry have a conservative optimistic front for 1935.

Bill Simpson and Herbert Collings, retail and wholesale grocery distributors respectively, don't have to tell us about the rise in their products and consequent effect on the cash register. We, of necessity have to visit them most every day.

Of course we wouldn't expect these utility magnates, Bill Riddle, Bob Miller or Clint Lackey to admit that their little concerns made any money in 1934, in fact it has always been a mystery to me how they could make so little money and still grow to such mammoth size, but they will tell you about how many more people talked over the telephone last year than any other year. The operators have to plug in regularly now. And Bob Miller would take pleasure in telling how many more kilowatt hours were paid for last year and how many more individuals they have been able to sell on the Better Illumination idea than last. Clint Lackey, the gas man might show a little ire when discussing the added tax that some states propose to put on natural gas, but at heart he well knows that it would be passed on to the consumer, so he can keep his usual smile, hope for a real cold winter and also pray that the Government will continue to pass on to the consumer, the one out of five of our population, so that the bills will be paid in what is at least legal tender on an first year.

Building materials man Lawrence, Hardware representative Weaver, and retail furniture man Upham might join in a song of praise for the immense advertising campaign put on by the FHA, and for the attendant improvement that naturally comes to their business lives as a result.

Lloyd Mackay could tell us a great deal about how many more new automobiles were on the highway in a song of praise, really means to our industrial life since the automobile industry has taken such a major position in our economic and social life. Of course, on the side, he might admit that Dodge and Chrysler are just a little ahead of the procession with their products but he would let you have a Plymouth and let it go at that.

Dr. Ryan could tell us of the advances made in medical science mentioning the successful transplantation of gland tissue from one individual to another, the announcement of three successful new anesthetics, and a string of progress toward discovering a cause of cancer. His hospital manager Harvey Fryar might not be able to tell us the times were again so good as to cause "my operation" to be the leading parlor subject of conversation, but some of the results of speed, good roads, and incidentally a little "aged in the wood" in some cases, has proved that we still need such institutions.

It is out of season for John Mitchell to boost Ice Manufacturing, so maybe he would tell us about the progress that the railroads have made toward a comeback in the field of transportation. They actually seem to have awakened from their lethargy and are attempting to bolster the value of all these outstanding bonds that are held as securities by such a far reaching group of individuals and institutions. It is of vital importance that this backbone of our transportation system be maintained and if individual management fails there is but one alternative—government ownership and operation. Percy might complain just a little and say that the real estate business had not picked up enough to make the abstract business show a great big improvement, but he could get air minded and mention the new speed records that followers of aviation have made, and what such means for the future of this growing branch of national and international transportation.

Since Jerry Phillips, Wallace Wimberly and Dr. Campbell have again been forced to welcome a New Year in their confined state of bachelorhood, neither could be expected to bubble over with enthusiasm about the year just past, and we would be prone to be sympathetic rather than critical of them for such attitudes.

Ralph Buey might rather make a survey of the effects of the repeal of the 18th amendment, rather than report on the chain surveys that he has made. If he did, I expect he would tell us that it has not proved the panacea for all our ills, as was predicted. In fact, the biggest contribution it had made, was to the number of automobile accidents on our highways and the next morning headlines.

Elliott Barron, being a politician, would not be expected to make any mention of Paul Barron, from whom he might be a little thankful since 1934 was election year.

There would be little need of trying to keep Paul Barron from waxing strong about Cavalcade winning the Kentucky Derby and if he didn't know that we were all reading his paper, he might act as to how thorough bred horse breeding had stepped to the front locally, thru the importation of a carload of Kentucky fillies, by a prominent stockman, who is now repaying the debt of gratitude to that state, by supplying them with a like carload of choice New Mexico broomals.

No one would expect President Fred to mention business, but you might have a hard time keeping him from elaborating on the baseball world. He would also give the Brothers Dean, and telling just how good the Cardinals were when they proved themselves champions of the baseball world. He would also give a bit of deserved praise perhaps to our local football team and the new coach for their good showing, and with a word of praise for the progress of Rotary and an earnest appeal for continued cooperation and interest, he would set 1935 going with an enthusiastic optimism.

Dr. Ryan could tell us of the advances made in medical science mentioning the successful transplantation of gland tissue from one individual to another, the announcement of three successful new anesthetics, and a string of progress toward discovering a cause of cancer. His hospital manager Harvey Fryar might not be able to tell us the times were again so good as to cause "my operation" to be the leading parlor subject of conversation, but some of the results of speed, good roads, and incidentally a little "aged in the wood" in some cases, has proved that we still need such institutions.

They actually seem to have awakened from their lethargy and are attempting to bolster the value of all these outstanding bonds that are held as securities by such a far reaching group of individuals and institutions. It is of vital importance that this backbone of our transportation service as agent of the State in making the mineral leases. In our opinion, the Act when fairly and reasonably construed, also means that the minerals not disposed of go with the title of the land, subject to the provisions of the Act. That when a valid and binding lease or conveyance of the minerals is made by the owner of the land, as the agent of the State, then in that event he receives the foregoing amounts as compensation for his services. His share of the rentals, royalties, and bonuses derived from the leases executed by him become property rights during the period of time for which the lease runs. Prior to the making of the mineral lease the owner of the land has no right to assign or convey any mineral rights in the property. It is the intention of the law that the owner of the land shall be the agent of the State to execute mineral leases, whenever a mineral lease executed by a prior owner terminates, the then owner of the land becomes the agent of the State with authority to sell or lease the oil and gas mineral rights, as provided for in the Relinquishment Act.

This rule is well established that it is not the policy of the law of this State to favor restraints upon alienation of property. The Courts of this State have established the rule that rents or royalties payable under oil and gas mineral leases are severable and separable from the ownership of the surface estate and are property rights, and having established this with respect to such property, we think, under the policy of the law of this State that they are assignable by the owner thereof. Lennar v. Garner, 121 Texas 502, 512, 513, 50 S. W. (2d) 769.

Such a rule could not, without overruling Lennar v. Garner, supra, and the settled law re-affirmed therein, and recapitulated in Waggoner's Estate v. Sigler, supra, prescribe a different rule for the rights of the agent-lessor or his assigns, under lease of the unpatented school land surveys from the rule governing such rights under leases of patented land.

There is another reason which forbids our holding that the interests of the lessors or their assigns are not taxable in Texas as real estate. No one in either case questions the fact that such interests are property. Section 1 of Article VIII of the Constitution plainly provides for the taxation of all property. The entire debate is about whether these interests are taxable as personal property or real property. Our statutes declare:

"Art. 7147, 'Personal Property.' Personal property, for the purposes of taxation, shall be construed to include all goods, chattels and effects, and all moneys, credits, bonds, and other evidences of debt owned by citizens of this State, whether the same be in or out of the State; all ships, boats, and vessels belonging to inhabitants of this State, if registered in this State, whether at home or abroad, and all capital invested therein; all moneys at interest, either within or without the State, due the person, to be taxed over and above what he pays in interest for, and all other debts due such person over and above his indebtedness; all public stock and securities; all stock in turn-pikes, railroads, canals and other corporations (except national banks) out of the State, owned by inhabitants of this State; all personal estate of moneyed corporations, whether the owners thereof reside in or out of this State, and the income of any annuity, unless the capital of such annuity be taxed within this State; all shares in any bank organized or that may be organized under the laws of the United States; all improvements made by persons upon lands held by them, the title to which is still vested in the State of Texas, or in any railroad company, or which have been exempted from taxation for the benefit of any railroad company, or any other corporation whose property is not subject to the same mode and rule of taxation as other property." Art. 7147, R. S. 1925.

These interests cannot come within the definition of money or credits as defined in Article 7149, R. S. 1925.

Brighten up with ALL-BRAN!

You've had days when you've felt discouraged and low. Nothing seemed to go right. Frequently these dreary days can be traced to common constipation, due to lack of "bulk" in your meals.

This ailment may cause headaches and loss of energy. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and food-iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables. It is gentle—and often more effective. Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines—often harmful?

Two tablespoons of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Brighten days with ALL-BRAN! Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
