MIDLAND INVESTIGATES PUNA GRAFT

6,000 BARRELS DAILY ADDED TO BASIN POTENTIAL

Eleven Completions, All Producers, Recorded

By PAUL OSBORNE
Comparative quietness characterized the oil week in the Permian Basin, with the many interesting wildcat tests of the latest crop all drilled ahead but not yet sufficiently deep to put them in the closely watched class.

Eleven completions, all of them field wells, were recorded, however, their initial gauges showing an increase of nearly 6,000 barrels daily for the West Texas potential. No tests were written off as failures during the week. New locations numbered 12, ten in proven territory, one definitely a wildcat, and one in between.

In Andrews county, no wells reached the final verdict, and no new locations were made. Humble No. 2 J. S. Means, at the south end of the pool in the north central part of the county, was shot and three hours later started flowing, gauging 190 barrels during the second 24-hour test. The operation was last reported cleaning out.

At the north end of the field, the same company's No. 3 R. M. Means had reached total depth of 2,840 feet. Actual drilling has not yet started on the No. 2 J. S. Means, although rig is standing.

Northeast of the pool, York and Harper's wildcat test, in League 315, Farmer county school land, has drilled to 1,165 feet in red rock and total depth in the Stogner et al No. 1 Richards & McWhorter, wildcat in the northwest part of the county, is 500 feet, like the red rock, Humble No. 2-B Bonner, field well, topped anhydrite at 1,710 feet, and is drilling the formation below 1,935 feet. Editor count likewise does not share in the location or completions. However, Amerada No. 1 Holt, field well in the north part of the North Cowden pool, drilled into the test, estimated to be about a thousand barrels with oil in the hole, indicating completion during the coming week or two.

In the south end of the same pool, Atlantic No. 1 Klor, is drilling below 2,750 feet, and top of Yates said should be reported soon. Nearby, Empire No. 1 Wight is waiting on test, estimated to be about a thousand barrel well. Stanford No. 13 Cowden is coring in lime stone below 4,171 feet.

In Midland No. 5 E. F. Cowden, northwest outpost of the Addis pool, is reported to have encountered sulphur water at total depth of 4,447 feet, indicating a limit of the pool in this direction. Nearby, being plugged back preparatory to shooting upper pays.

International No. 1 Cowden semi-wildcat in the Harper area between Addis and Cowden pools is drilling in red beds below 600 feet, and Phillips No. 1 Schaubauer, northwest extension location of the Connell pool, is drilling below 500 feet. Nearby, Gulf No. 1 Goldsmith nor Petroses et al No. 1 Klor, wildcats, have started drilling yet.

In the Connell proper, Shell No. 1 Connell is cleaning out at 20 feet off bottom, and Farley et al No. 1 Connell, Gulf No. 6-B Connell and Sun Ray No. 3 Jones are all drilling.

No completions were recorded in Winkler county, but one location was made, this being Humble No. 2-A Walton, 668 feet from the surface and east line of sections 43, block 26 public school land. This is a half mile west and south of the Fox-Butler No. 1 Brown-Alman, recognized as a commercial well although still attempting to drill by tools and liner loss in the hole. Barnsall No. 1 Brown-Alman, east offset to the Fox-Butler, is moving in material.

Maxwell No. 1 Clapp, wildcat, northwest, is drilling below 3,272 feet with little more than a show of oil.

Results of a reported test to be made yesterday in Sid Richardson No. 1 Hill, wildcat east of the Hally area, had not come in late yesterday. Last reported depth on the well was 2,889 feet. Gulf No. 1 Wight, wildcat further east, is drilling below 2,190 feet in anhydrite.

In the Sayre area, Maxwell No. 1 Danberry has run six inches test to 2,714 feet preparatory to drilling into pay horizons. Mid-Continent No. 2 Howe is rigging up. Sayre No. 1 Danberry has encountered gas and is drilling to total depth of 2,700 feet and is running pipe, and Sinclair-Prarie No. 2 Cummings and Magnolia No. 5 Walton are drilling but not close to pay depths yet.

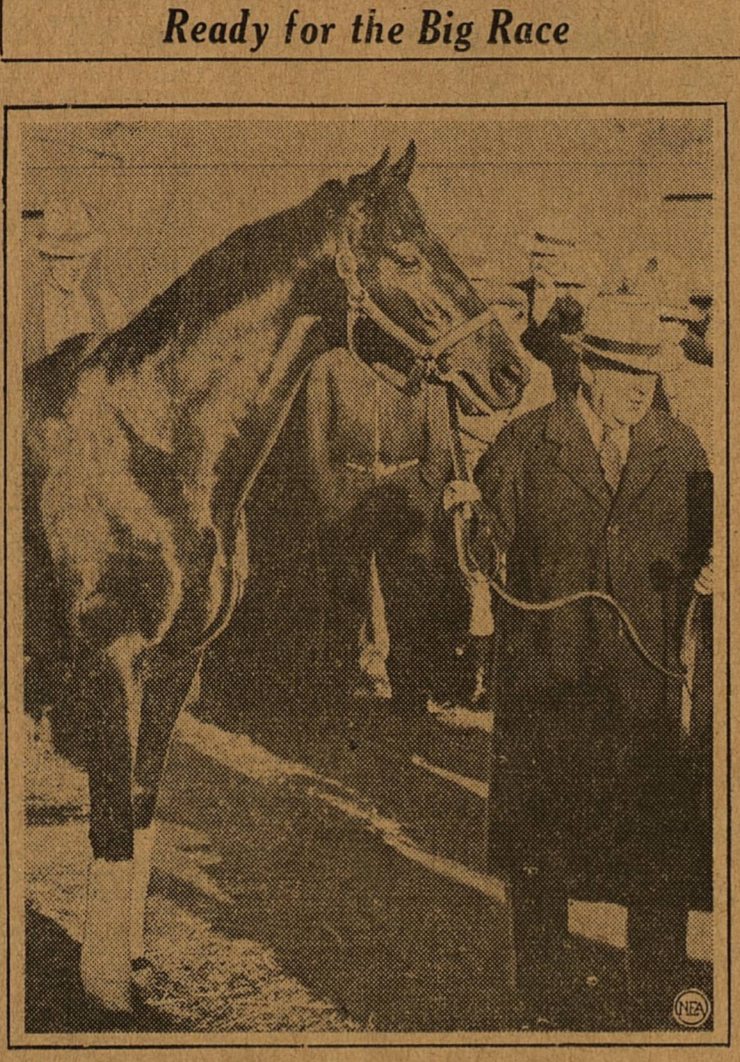

Skelly No. 2 Halley appeared to be near completion as the second producer in the southern area after showing 2,400 feet of oil in the hole at total depth of 2,907 feet. (See COMPLETIONS, page 6)

Only 431 Voters Pay Poll Taxes

Do Midland people want to vote or do they not want to vote? That is the question that members of the tax collector's force are wondering about.

With only four more days left in which to pay poll taxes, only 431 have been paid out of 1397 poll taxes assessed in Midland county, the tax collector's office announced late Saturday afternoon.

Sheriff A. C. Francis urges that all poll taxes be paid promptly as a number of amendments are to be voted on this year which will be of general interest.

"California, we are here," remarked Bob Smith, trainer of Cavaleade, 3-year-old champion of 1934. The above picture shows Smith and the horse just after arrival at Santa Anita track, where Cavaleade will run in the $100,000 handicap next month.

FLEXIBLE REHABILITATION PLAN FOR LANDLORD; TENANT OFFERED BY SPARKMAN IN SPEECH FRIDAY

Outlining a phase of relief so flexible that any type of farmer needing aid may be rehabilitated, Colonel Sparkman, district supervisor of rural rehabilitation work in three counties, addressed a capacity crowd at the district court room Friday night.

The meeting, originally set for the county court room, was moved to the larger auditorium and even then the overflow crowd had to resort to the standing room around the walls.

The plan set forth by Sparkman was that a family, can move on a government tract and, in return, the acreage from the land owner through exchange of labor for equipment and rental or how the equipment itself may be provided by the government, then renting more on thirds and fourths from the land owner.

Sparkman said the rehabilitation program went so far that even a land owner needing equipment to farm his own crop can get such aid advanced from the government.

The rural rehabilitation program goes farther than the other government farm loan agencies, and feed and seed under the production credit systems. It takes care of the tenant or land owner on relief even when other credit is exhausted, if such farmer is willing to work, Sparkman said.

He explained that the average tract to be rented from each land owner here will be 40 acres, the minimum being 10 acres. The minimum term is three years and the average rental is $3 per acre, all three years to be paid to the land owner in advance.

It is required that a house, livable, must be provided, having as much as 400 square feet of floor space, screened doors and windows, a roof that does not leak, a fire proof flue, water, a small outbuilding suitable for storing feed and seed for additional acreage.

With each 40 acres rented, the land owner must furnish five acres of native pasture free. If he does not have such native pasture, the government then will lease five additional acres of farm land, to be used as pasture, at about $1.25 per acre.

Even when the landowner rents his 40-acre tract to the government, he still receives his crop reduction payments and all such benefits, and the tenant receives his pro rata of all such benefits.

The government cannot rent a tract of the land if the landowner has other tenants on the tract. When a land owner signs his tract up for the three year lease, he does not have such native pasture, as on the lease is approved. A tenant is placed there and trades can be made between landlord and tenant for additional acreage.

Girl He Wood Turns on Accused

The girl to whom Maj. Charles A. Shepard is alleged to have written about their anticipated marriage only a few hours before his second wife died will be a star witness when the retired U. S. army officer again goes to trial on a poison murder charge in Topeka federal court Jan. 28. She is Grace Brandon, left, Brooks Field.

Chihuahua Governor's Brothers, Buyers of Bulls Here. Solve Cattle Theft Evil

Three brothers of the Cavarada family of El Paso and Chihuahua, Mexico, and incidentally who are brothers to Governor Cavarada of the state of Chihuahua, spent the latter part of the week here buying pure bred Hereford bulls for their ranch. They were accompanied by Peter Barboglio of El Paso.

They bought one carload, 37 head in all, taking half the car from El Dickinson, a part from Bill Bryant and a part from W. M. Pyle. Dickinson, who brought them here through correspondence with the Chihuahua governor said they originally intended to buy two loads but found the price higher than they expected. He was paid a bonus over a two-car price he originally made when the smaller lot was selected.

Dickenson was told by one of the Cavarada brothers that until the last few years it had not been profitable to buy blooded herd bulls because of the stealing down in Chihuahua state.

"But we have about stopped that," he added.

Asked how the malpractice was stopped, he replied nonchalantly that the thieves, when caught, were lined up against the fence and shot.

"My brother there has shot a lot of them," he said, smiling.

The youngest of the three, a Don Juan in appearance, invited Dickinson, well known bachelor, to come to Mexico.

SPECIAL GRAND JURY SUMMONED TO MEET FEB. 6

Texas Canal Project To Be First Case Examined

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(AP)—A special grand jury, the first called since the Fall-Doherty oil cases, was summoned today to meet February 6 to inquire into charges of graft in the Public Works administration.

United States Attorney Leslie C. Barnett assigned his assistant, John W. Fiechly, to inquire first into the $4,000,000 Texas canal project. It was reported that contract for the Texas project was withdrawn after investigators uncovered evidence of an alleged conspiracy to defraud the United States. It was said that eight or ten persons, including federal officials, were involved.

Public Works administration officials declined to disclose the project on which the alleged graft occurred.

NEW TEACHERS IN MEXICAN SCHOOL

Two new teachers have been installed into the Midland schools this past week, one to fill a vacancy caused by the resignation of Mrs. M. W. Collie, Jr., and Miss Marie Hill, who was married during the Christmas holidays but continued to teach until the end of the first semester in order to give the mid-term exams to her pupils, and the other an addition to the faculty due to greatly increased enrollment in the Mexican school.

Miss Dura Roxburgh is a graduate of the Corsicana high school, and holds the B. S. degree from C. I. A. Texas State College for Women, having majored in art and minored in English. She also has a permanent state teacher's certificate and a Palmer Method Writing Certificate. She has had two years of successful teaching experience, and 4½ months of practice-teaching, rated as twice that amount of teaching experience. She has had 25 hours of education, meeting all the requirements for a permanent state teacher's certificate. She has been assigned to the principalship of the Mexican school in Midland.

Miss Frances Hutchings is a graduate of the Central High School of Fort Worth, and holds the B. A. degree from Texas Christian University, having spent her freshman year in C. I. A. She majored in English and minored in Education, having done 24 semester hours in Education and having met all the requirements for a permanent high school state teacher's certificate. She has also done a great deal of work in music and physical education, being able to sing and play well and to direct plays, games, swimming, and other forms of physical education. Miss Hutchings will be assigned to first primary work in the Mexican school.

Daring Thieves Pry Door Next To Courtroom

Will they break into the jail next? Thieves Friday night took a crowbar and broke into the very room where the records of their trial will be kept, in the event they are apprehended.

The door of Judge Chas. L. Klapperton's office, on the third floor of the courthouse, was pried and a stock of "mint" stamps, approximately $150 worth, was taken from Court Reporter L. F. Boone Saturday morning.

Rep. Thomason Sends Library an Oil Report

R. E. Thomason, representative from the Sixteenth district, recently sent to the county library a copy of the Congressional Investigating committee's report on the petroleum industry. This report will be of interest to oil men in this region and it is hoped that they will make use of the library's copy.

In a letter to the librarian, Rep. Thomason said:

"Recently I have received from men in the oil business at Midland a number of requests for the petroleum report of the Congressional Investigating committee which looked into the situation. I sent several of these reports to Midland but the issue is now exhausted and Congressman Cole, chairman of the committee making the investigation, informs me that there are no funds for the purpose of making a reprint.

"I am sending to the library my file copy of this report in order that all to whom I could not send a personal copy may have access to it through the library."

RENEWAL AND CLARIFICATION OF NRA

When President Roosevelt, in his annual message to Congress, emphasized the "renewal and clarification of the general purposes of the National Industrial Recovery Act" as one of the subjects upon which he would consult the National Legislature in the near future, he again gave voice to a conviction already predominant in the national mind that NRA is to become an integral part of American business life.

This assurance from the President will be gratifying to that large and influential body of leaders in business and industry, who from the inauguration of NRA in June, 1933, have welcomed the guidance and support which the Recovery Administration has given to private enterprise under codes of fair competition.

In October 1934 the banking fraternity made a new pledge of cooperation to the President to be followed promptly by chambers of commerce and organizations of business men everywhere. In the light of this new atmosphere of cooperation, the National Industrial Recovery Board invited the counsel of all business men who desired to present views on the future of NRA. The time is now approaching when that future is to be determined by Congress.

While President Roosevelt in his message at the opening of Congress reserved for future presentation his specific recommendations regarding the renewal of NRA, two paragraphs of the message were not without significance.

"No wise man," said President Roosevelt, "has any intention of destroying what is known as the profit motive. By the profit motive we mean the right by work to earn a decent livelihood for ourselves and for our families."

"We have, however, a clear mandate from the people, that Americans must forswear that conception of the acquisition of wealth which, through excessive profits, creates undue private power over private affairs and, to our misfortune, over public affairs as well. In building toward this end we do not destroy ambition nor do we seek to divide our wealth into equal shares on stated occasions. We continue to recognize the greater ability of some to earn more than others. But we do assert that the ambition of the individual to obtain for him and his proper security, a reasonable leisure, and a decent living throughout life, is an ambition to be preferred to the appetite for great wealth and great power."

THE HONOR ROLL

Three cities deserve to have their names written high on a roll of honor for 1934.

They are San Francisco, Pittsburgh, and Milwaukee. The first two because they were the only ones of the dozen largest cities which were able to cut down the number of persons killed by automobiles in 1934 as compared with 1933. And the last because, although it showed a slight increase, it remains at the bottom of the list of 12.

Preliminary estimates of the National Safety Council show that Los Angeles was the most dangerous city regarding auto deaths, with 474 in 1934 compared with 415 in 1933, or 32.7 for every thousand people, the highest in the country.

New York, naturally, led in fatalities, with 1005, yet was second lowest in percentage per thousand, 13.7. Chicago had almost as many fatalities, 986, for a rate of 27.5 per thousand, second highest.

Thirty-five thousand lives were sacrificed in 1934 to the automobile, and about a million were injured in 900,000 accidents.

Reduction of this horrible slaughter is fast becoming a national problem that must be tackled more energetically than we have yet tackled it.

Chicago people are looking ahead to a pleasant winter. They can sit around in the evenings and count up all the relatives they're going to get even with next summer for just dropping in on them while at the world's fair.

PUTTERS PERFORM IN CALIFORNIA

While sportsmen in the north are having their fun on skates, skis, and snowshoes, the boys in California are getting their thrills in outboard motorboats under sunny skies. Exercises Aid in Beauty Quest, Plain Maiden Is Advised

By ALICE HART
Blemishes and other skin imperfections often are caused by poor circulation and improper diet. Any girl with chronic complexion ailments should see her doctor, but one who has nothing organically wrong and who wishes to have a smooth, healthy skin, a pleasant disposition and a certain vivacity should watch her health habits. If your feet and hands are cold a good deal of the time, the chances are that your circulation is bad. Sallowiness is another indication. A warm foot bath, followed by an alcohol rub, is an excellent temporary cure for cold feet, but exercise, fresh air and a sensible diet are more permanent remedies. You may not like to do setting up exercises in the morning and you may detest sports and long walks. However, if you value your appearance and like to feel energetic, you'll remind yourself that they irritate you far less than yellowish cheeks, listless eyes and a run-down feeling. Consequently, you undoubtedly will start some of the things that are good for you. You can, with a little self-discipline, learn to enjoy two glasses of hot water before breakfast (an excellent cure for constipation, which often causes pimples and blackheads), stewed fruit instead of pastry for lunch and a huge serving of green salad at least once a day. In time you'll get to the commendable point where you simply can't do without them. Remember that the best beauty routines are health treatment, really. If your blood circulates properly and your digestive organs are in good working order, the chances are you'll have shiny hair, gay eyes and a complexion that is free from blemishes.

Interest is being shown in reading, one pupil having read eight books since the record booklets were received from the library about two weeks ago.

Boys apparently will be "chief cooks and bottlewashers" at the school this week, as boys head the list of those who are to prepare the hot lunches. If you didn't have time to make the long drive yourself, you would just pass them from neighbor to neighbor, suggesting that they keep the stock moving until they were something like 30 or 40 miles from home pasture.

The next step then would be by the owner of the stock. He would come over and see if they were in your pasture. Of course you wouldn't say anything about them. Neither would your neighbor on the west, so the owner would begin inquiring, advising and hunting until finally, when he did get them located, he would either sell them range delivery to keep from having to bring them so far back or, if he did bring them back, would decide it a better policy to keep them at home.

Tells of Experience In "Little Red," First Sanatorium

An autobiography of Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau, "father of the sanatorium movement" is now in the health library as a gift from the Texas Tuberculosis Association to the Midland County Health Board in recognition of the prompt reporting on the 1934 Christmas seal sale.

This feature story written by A. Schaffer Jr. for The Reporter-Telegram gives the reactions of one of Trudeau's early sanatorium patients to his personality.

in the country today. Dr. Trudeau, who is credited in medical history with being the "father of the sanatorium movement in the United States," is vividly remembered by Mrs. Lindsay. "I can see him today," she says, "stalking through the snow drifts as he approached our cottage. He was usually tall and lanky and, my what long legs he had! He wore very high boots. I think he was the thinnest and frailest looking man I ever saw in my life. His front teeth were rather prominent and he had rosy cheeks. The shape of his head was so unusual that once having seen him, no one could forget him. He wore a seal skin cap, fur lined gloves and a short jacket, so that he looked like a woodsman, and drove a little cutter behind a spirited horse. Everyone loved to see him coming."

Mrs. Lindsay, who lives at 414 Western Avenue, Albany, N. Y., is today an energetic lady with snow white hair, vivacious eyes and rosy cheeks that belie her 67 years. It seems impossible that such a lively person—(she is a leader in club and social work) ever had tuberculosis, but she assures one, with a certain pride in her present health, that such was the case. Mrs. Lindsay chuckled when asked to describe the living conditions that existed when she and her sister were patients in the "Little Red" under Dr. Trudeau's care.

Early Patient

Mrs. Carolyn P. Lindsay, of 414 Western Avenue, Albany, N. Y., the oldest living ex-tuberculosis patient of the late Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau, "father of the sanatorium movement in America." She was cured when she was 20 in the "Little Red" cottage at Saranac Lake, N. Y., the forerunner of all modern tuberculosis sanatoriums in this country. Mrs. Lindsay is shown above as she is today at 67.

"The sanatoriums of today are palatial hotels by comparison," she declared. "They have steam heat, glass sun porches, tray service and electric heating pads and blankets."

The "Little Red" was a one-room cottage that would accommodate only two patients. It was equipped with two beds, two wash stands, two chairs and a dresser. The only heat we had was a square soapstone stove set into a little fireplace. Sanitary equipment was the best of that day—Mrs. Lindsay laughed as she thought of modern steam heated, tiled bathrooms—"we had said toilets. That doesn't seem to mean anything to you," she remarked, as she saw her interviewer's puzzled expression. "Well, the older folks will remember."

"The importance of covering the nose and mouth when sneezing, coughing or expectorating was little understood. There were sputum cups but nothing was thought of the fact that the patients expectorated over the porch railing into the flower beds."

Mrs. Lindsay and her sister Amy, "the Pentland girls," were residents of Philadelphia. Thanks to the vigilance of their mother, the girls were rushed to a doctor after the death from tuberculosis of a sister. The diagnosis showed they had incipient tuberculosis. They were urged to consult Dr. Trudeau, whose successful treatment of the disease at his Saranac Lake sanatorium was just beginning to receive favorable attention from the medical profession of the day. He accepted the two sisters for treatment and they remained under his care from February, 1887 to August, 1888. On the journey north the Misses Pentland were improperly clothed to endure the rigors of Adirondack climate, and weighing less than one hundred pounds each, arrived on February 27, 1887, at the Loon Lake end of the Chateaugay Narrow Gauge Road, in a blizzard that was declared to be the worst for twenty years. They were met by a covered sleigh. The buffalo coats failed to appear as per schedule and the cold was intense.

All traces of the road had been obliterated by the blizzard, so the sleigh often cut straight across the country over lakes, fields and fences, headed toward Saranac Lake. The terrible pitching and tossing of the vehicle made them both sick and they nearly perished with cold before they arrived at the "main building" of the sanatorium. After some hot soup before a huge open fire, and after the effects of their illness had passed, they were taken to the cottage which was to be their home for the next year and a half. The fury of the storm continued unabated during the night and the two girls got no sleep. George, the man around the sanatorium remained in the cottage on guard most of the night.

"We made ourselves at home in the 'Little Red' and settled down to regular housekeeping," Mrs. Lindsay related. "I insisted that we have a kettle that would 'sing' so we went down to the general store in the village and bought a copper kettle. We had a clock. Later a stray cat wandered in and we were allowed to keep it. Life was complete—we had a kettle that sang, a clock and a cat."

"Patients, when able and willing, kept their own cottages in order, and all met at the 'main building' for their meals. There were no individual utensils for each patient, no individual towels and no segregation. Those techniques were unknown then. There were no bath tubs. If we wanted a bath we had to use a wash tub or the china bowl from the washstand. Our stove burned coen cobs and wood, and George kept the wood box outside well filled. He came in every morning early and started the fire before we were up."

"I took us an hour to prepare for the daily sleigh ride that was prescribed for everyone," Mrs. Lindsay said. "We wore muffs, veils, mittens, huge galoshes, and buffalo robes and coats that were part of the sanatorium equipment. Ho-bricks kept our feet warm. In the spring, when the snow began to melt, we noticed black stumps along the sides of the road at regular intervals. Sometimes they ran across the road. Having come from Philadelphia, we were unaware of the rigors of an Adirondack winter and were amazed to learn that the stumps were tops of fence posts! The roads along which we had driven all winter were not the real roads, at all and in some cases we had been driving across fields without knowing it."

"Our life in the spring and summer was pleasant, but we had to fight everything—black flies and mosquitoes especially. Our beds were entirely covered with mosquito netting and we had to get undressed under it or we would have been eaten alive. We literally bathed in citronella. One day we heard from an army man that kerosene was the best so we rubbed it on our hands and face during the mosquito season. That was the only way we could get peace."

"Our greatest enemies were idleness and boredom. Modern occupational therapy would have been a godsend. We had no newspapers and few diversions. We painted, mended our fingers and toes, wrote letters on birch bark, stripped balsam for pillows and gathered berries. Many of us chewed spruce gum because it was believed to possess curative properties. Another diversion was to visit the maple sugar camp, watch them collect the sap and boil it down. It was great stuff. We wandered through the fields gathering violets, water lilies, wild strawberries and 'hookers.' These 'hookers' were the stakes in our wild gambling games."

"The greatest adventure of the day was to go down to the village which consisted of a drug store, a dry goods store, a post office, a church and half a dozen houses. It often required the entire personnel of the sanatorium to buy a spool of thread. Arrival of the stage was exciting. The huge vehicle was drawn by four horses and was a thrilling sight dashing toward us in a cloud of dust. It was our only tie with the outside world.

"One of our regular activities was 'taking the cabinet.' Dr. Trudeau, with his keen mind, was always eager in his search for a cure to give any new theory a trial. Hence 'the cabinet.' It was a glass chamber in which the patient sat for half an hour and inhaled a form of medicated oxygen through a tube. Dr. Trudeau's experience with this form of treatment convinced him that it was valueless, however, so it was dropped."

"You are probably wondering how we rested. As a matter of fact, we did very little else in this carefree life. The cure consisted of milk, eggs, sun and air. There were no nurses to take care of us and enforce rules. Dr. Trudeau would visit each cottage, giving directions and advice, and then leave it to the patient to carry out his instructions. We did little obligatory sitting or reclining because Dr. Trudeau was still feeling his way around to some extent, and had not at that time determined that absolute rest in bed, which is the basis of tuberculosis treatment today, should be enforced upon patients."

Mrs. Lindsay was silent a moment and then sighed with a far away look in her eyes. "Dr. Trudeau was a great man," she said. "The people of this country owe him a tremendous debt for his work in launching the sanatorium movement. It is something of a shock to realize how swiftly the years have passed since my sister and I took the cure in the 'Little Red.' It is my opinion that the cottage should be preserved as a national shrine to the memory of the man who placed in our hand the best weapon with which tuberculosis may be fought successfully—the sanatorium.

"And," added Mrs. Lindsay with her sprightly smile, "I think it is a wonderful and well deserved tribute to Dr. Trudeau that the 'Little Red' was used as the design for the 1934 Christmas Seal."

Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue Gowns

Interest in ballroom styles has reached new heights, because the whole nation will dance at the President's Birthday Ball. And, of course, the gowns selected for this occasion will find frequent use at February's many pre-Lenten parties and dances.

With patriotic fervor the girls in the sketch have chosen dresses for the great occasion in red, white and blue.

The dress of white chiffon at the left is inspired by the Regency silhouette. The low-cut bodice is tucked in a flattering manner, the skirt is softly flowing and red and blue grosgrain ribbons add necessary color.

In the center, blue chiffon forms one of the new long-sleeved evening dresses with yards and yards of narrow self pleating used about the sleeves, waistline, hip yoke and fluttering gaily down the panels of the skirt. Red and white flowers are bunched dramatically on one shoulder. This young lady is using the brand new trick of wearing her bracelets under her sleeve, letting them sparkle subtly through.

White chiffon is used again at the right of the sketch in a dress of slightly Spanish character. Voluminous ruffles are used on the lower part of the skirt in the rumba manner and also border the shoulder cape. Huge red and blue chrysanthemums are scattered hither and yon about the skirt, and one is posed at the throat.

How do you CHOOSE?

EVERY time you make a purchase you make a choice. Buying a certain product may be so much a matter of habit that you don't realize you are choosing. But the fact remains that in accepting one brand of goods you are always rejecting others; and the satisfaction you get from what you buy depends on the knowledge of quality and values that guides your selection.

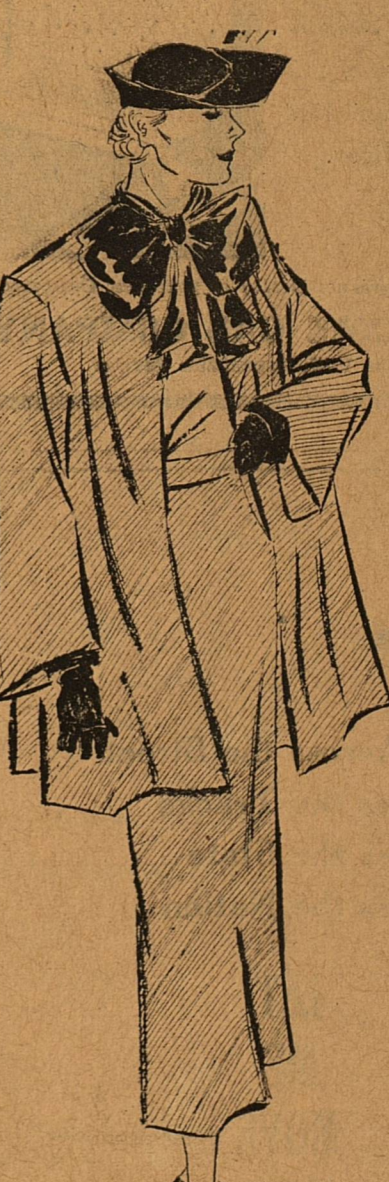

How do you know which bed-sheets, or which roofing material, or which radio will give you service you require? You can't personally test everything you buy and compare it with all the other products in its class. But there is a way to find out which brand fits your needs.

The people who are most successful in their buying—who achieve the highest percentage of satisfaction from the things they own and use—are those who consistently read the advertisement columns, and buy consistently advertised goods.

Choosing isn't just "guessing" when you follow the guidance of the advertisements.

You can depend on advertised goods. It pays to read the advertisements

Plan Sheep-Goat Organization

SAN ANGELO, (AP)—One organization will represent the sheep and goat raisers of Texas if plans made at a recent meeting here are carried out. A committee appointed by the Sheep and Goat Raisers' association and the Texas Wool and Mohair Growers' association recommended the two associations merge that the new organization should have a new set of by-laws and that other differences should be ironed out among the new membership. A joint committee named to write the by-laws consisted of Roger Gillis of Del Rio, Price Maddux of Colorado, Fred Earwood of Sonora, Sol Mayer of San Angelo and Frank Montague of Bandera, representing the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association; J. T. Johnson, of Water Valley, Hershel Upton of San Angelo, C. B. Wardlaw of Del Rio, N. D. Blackstone of San Angelo and Victor Pierce of Ozona, representing the Wool and Mohair Growers' association. After the joint committee acts each will present the by-laws to its organization. BATTLE SALT WATER SAN ANGELO, (AP)—Property owners in the Lake View shallow water irrigated district adjoining San Angelo are raising a fund to plug off salt water in a 20-year-old unsuccessful test for oil. Infiltration of salt water has affected dozens of wells, damaging vegetation and reducing tracts formerly held at high values to the status of dry land farms, property owners declare. A survey within a radius of a mile and a half of the well revealed the salt water has entered 48 wells, only 26 escaping. It will cost around $1,500 to plug the test. Soil erosion affects 75 per cent of all cultivated lands in this country.

WHEN TWO SUCH LADS AS YOU, CAN DRIVE AN AUTOMOBILE FEARLESSLY ONTO THE TRACKS, IN FRONT OF A RUNAWAY LOCOMOTIVE, IT DENOTES BRAVERY OF THE HIGHEST ORDER!

AND BRAVERY IS THE FIRST MARK OF A REAL MAN! A SPIRIT THAT CANNOT BE QUESTIONED! WHAT ARE YOU SHAKING AND TREMBLING FOR?

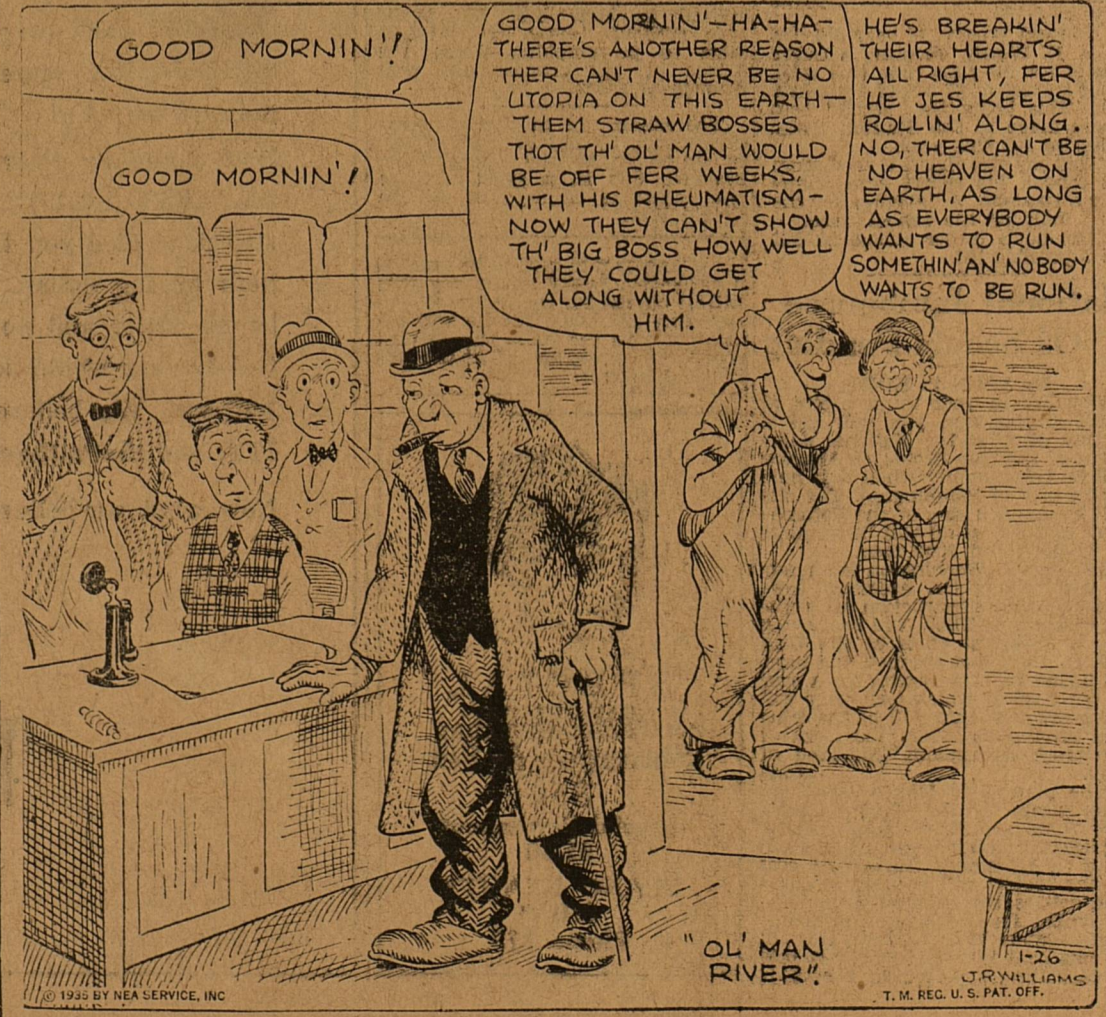

YOU'RE NOT GOING TO ASK US TO SPEAK IN ASSEMBLY, ARE YOU, MR. WILSON?

National Jamboree - Of Scouts Pending

By JOHN P. HOWE Visualize in your mind a city of 36,000 people and you will get a picture of what the National Jamboree of the Boy Scouts of America will be this summer when it is held in the city of Washington. The site will be on each side of the Potomac river and the camp will be in units of 32 boys and four men.

The city of Washington is already at work laying the necessary sewage lines and construction of necessary buildings. There will be moving out in different parts of the USA 600 train loads of 600 men and boys, all bound for the Capitol for a stay of ten days at which time they will see a program that will be inspiring and meet scouts from the forks of the creek throughout this land of ours.

The plan is to take a boy from each troop in the United States and there are 31,000 troops and a sufficient number of men scouts to man it. In money the actual cost of the project will be nearly a million dollars, this amount being raised by the fee of $25.00 on each boy and scout. The railway fare will be one cent per mile which is said to be setting a precedent since it is

There Is No Substitute For QUALITY

You believe may be identical or very different things. We believe the trend is toward QUALITY, and to the TESTING of merchandise to determine its highest standards. We believe implicitly in what Marshall Field once said, "Quality is Remembered Long After Price is Forgotten." And further, we have evidence to prove that more Midlanders are believing likewise. We believe in amplifying the case of QUALITY, so more and more of our customers may become believers for economy's sake, in 1935... and that's the way that is.
