Collision In Fog May Cost Life Of Man

Nephew Of Prison Transfer Agent Dying; Another Hurt

ABILENE (AP)—J. H. Russell, thought to be dying and J. V. Fleming of Center was seriously injured as a result of a collision on highway 1 east of Abilene.

Wichita Falls, in the spirit that has given her the right to be called "the city that faith built," celebrates her Golden Anniversary.

Often times since all followed ranching and farming in the section of West Texas that should be in truth Big Spring's trade territory men who have seen Wichita Falls develop from a struggling frontier village to the great city that she is after fifty years have remarked on the similarity of factors existing here with those that were presented to Wichita Falls 20 years or so ago.

Wichita Falls is what she is today because through the years the men up there who had ability to make money were builders in the broadest sense and, having built upon their unflinching faith in potentialities of that territory, constructed a metropolis as well as fortunes and security for themselves.

Of all communities of West Texas Big Spring has been favored by fate and fortune as freely, if not more so than any. Pitted along the Texas & Pacific in 1881 she has since been the most important point across a vast empire on one of the most important railway lines in the southwest.

The compass points north over almost entire expanse of fertile earth, which has been transferred from a grassland Eden to a green fruitful farmland. In lush valleys entwining about perpetually verdant hills another empire, stretching southward and westward and herds and flocks have brought prosperity from season to season, and after the spoils of economic attainment that must come to every land and every people.

To riches bestowed by nature upon the surface of this parcel of earth were added by the omnipotent hand of Creation, riches under the earth and man discovered them.

As was the case for Wichita Falls, derricks arose and precious petroleum flowed through pipelines to blackened refineries and went forth to thousands of other communities as fuel to propel industry and transport men and goods.

Thankfulness for the fullness of blessings that nature has bestowed can best be shown by deep and abiding faith that should be inculcated in the hearts of the people of this section because of those very blessings.

To Faith must be added work. As sure as the sun shines, and the rains descend and our part of the earth begets material blessings of every kind will this country return, after a period of unusual economic distress, to a normal, prosperous state.

For all this distress has been brought on largely by the weaknesses and mistakes of men; the productiveness of the soil, the mineral riches under it, have remained constant and undiminished in quality and quantity as they have been since time began.

The only variable factor now as always, is the people that populate our part of the earth. Natural resources are unchanged, whether the people profit from them depends, in the end, upon the people.

Men Disabled In World War To Meet Here

Disabled American Veterans Officials Call Session

Disabled ex-service men and their dependents of Big Spring, Midland and surrounding towns are urged to attend a special meeting at the Settles hotel Wednesday evening by P. D. Jackson, state adjutant, and Paul Lauderdale, state executive committee member of the Disabled Veterans of the World War.

Jackson and Lauderdale will be in charge of the meeting and will present messages of vital interest to every disabled world war veteran and his dependents. Legislation, rehabilitation, employment and compensation will be discussed at the meeting. Jackson and Lauderdale are working out of state headquarters of the D. A. V. at Dallas, organizing chapters in various cities of the state. Lauderdale was blinded in the Museo Argone battle September 26, 1918, 14 years ago today.

Disabled men needing assistance on their claims with the government will be interviewed by the state adjutant Wednesday from 2 to 5 p. m.

The Disabled American Veterans of the World War is a national organization, formed 12 years ago and is nationally incorporated by a special act of congress and the Texas officials declared it is the only officially recognized spokesmen for the disabled ex-service men. It is the largest and most extensive veterans organization in the world, with three times as many national rehabilitation officers working for benefit of disabled men than any other veterans' organization in the United States.

Officers and members of other recognized veterans organizations, as well as the disabled men, are invited to the meeting Wednesday evening, said Adjutant Jackson.

Dean Pastore, chief of the group here, has under him H. C. Carlson, Miss Ruth Catlett and H. C. Pater, who formerly was stationed here.

GARNER REITERATES HIS BELIEF ALFREDE. SMITH WILL LEND HIS SUPPORT TO NATIONAL TICKET

NEW YORK (AP)—Speaker John Garner, arriving for a conference with Democratic leaders, announced he still "is and believed" Alfred E. Smith would give his "wholehearted support" to the Democratic national ticket.

He said he had "so much confidence" in the former governor that he "could not conceive of it in any other way."

Garner said he was not ready to discuss his own campaign plans before conferring with party leaders. With exception of a possible campaign tour, Garner said he would spend his time until the election in campaign activities here and in Washington.

The national campaign is being financed by selling a medallion of Franklin D. Roosevelt and John Garner for one dollar. When one acquires the medallion he becomes a "Shareholder in America."

Employed by the campaign, the idea is carried along a certificate basis to further the shareholding in America—organized to reclaim the equity of the forgotten man in America—and is pledged to work and vote for Franklin Roosevelt and John N. Garner and to restore fundamental principles of true democracy upon which this country in the past has prospered.

Packed House Hears Sermon

Special 'Rainbow Message' Delivered By Rev. Townsend

A packed house heard Reverend Townsend deliver the Special "Rainbow Message" last night at the First Christian Church. The evangelist spoke as follows: "Tonight the world is overcast. This is a day of clouds and of thick darkness. There are clouds in the economic sky; financial instability, sinking stocks, dwindling dividends, and the great growing cloud of unemployment. There are clouds in the domestic sky; infidelity, disloyalty, parental indifference, divorce, and broken homes. There are clouds on the international horizon; great looming, war clouds. There is hardly a home in his land tonight without some sort of a cloud. For most of us life has lost a lot of its laughter. We are somehow living in the shadows.

"Our text tonight has a dark background. A new civilization was being born. The flood waters had receded. The Ark of Noah rested on Mt. Ararat. God spoke: 'I do set my bow in the cloud.' Noah opened the window of the Ark and looked out. Sure enough it was there—God's first rainbow! God has been hiding his rainbows in the mists ever since. Men need to open the windows tonight and look out.

"Every Christian's cloud today has a silver lining. Thank God, Jesus still turns the dark clouds inside out, and shows us the silver lining of God's eternal love. The darkest cloud in your sky tonight is arched with a rainbow of promise. Remember, it takes the storm clouds to make the rainbow. It takes the night time to show the stars. God is nearest when you need him most.

"The darkest cloud in the world's sky tonight is the old sin cloud. It was the cloud that shut out the sunshine in Eden. Like 'Elijah's cloud' in the beginning it was only a speck. But it has been growing ever since. It is the cloud of shame, sorrow, and sin. No heart, but what some time has felt its sinister shadow. But, praise God, through the rift in this cloud we see the Sun of Righteousness!

"The most beautiful of all rainbows is the rainbow behind the Cross. Mary first saw it in the mist of the resurrection morn. It is the rainbow of the world's greatest hope. The radiant rainbow of immortality! We first find the rainbow in Genesis, finally in Revelation. John in the vision of Simpson had rested 30 minutes and started for Shelby county in connection with oil business.

Kiwanis Club Backs Member For Promotion

Garland A. Woodward Placed In Race For District Governorship

When representatives of Kiwanis clubs of the Texas-Oklahoma district, expected, with their wives to number 1,500, convene in Harlingen for the annual convention October 23, 24 and 25, approximately 20 members of the Big Spring club will be present to lead a campaign for election of Garland A. Woodward to district governor.

Mr. Woodward, local attorney and leader in organization of the Big Spring club in 1929, is now lieutenant governor of division 10 of the district. He is a former president and honorary life member of the Lubbock Kiwanis club and has been one of the most active Kiwanians in West Texas for a number of years.

Because of his wide acquaintance among Kiwanis of Texas and Oklahoma members of the Big Spring club, who are leading the campaign for his selection as governor, already are receiving voluntary offers of support from other clubs.

Former members of the Texas Cavalry Plan Organization Move

HOUSTON—Former members of the Texas Cavalry Plan Organization, which was organized in 1918 for service in the world war, have started a movement here to secure recognition for their part in the war.

Houston members organizing a new association to push the cause, are asking that members in all other parts of the state communicate with them at once. They assert that their rights have been ignored long enough and they want all their fellows to join them at once to make the necessary appeal to the federal government for a recognition as bona-fide veterans of the war.

Their headquarters are at 115 Main Bank Bldg., Houston.

The Texas Cavalry consisted of some 9,000 men who were encouraged and trained at Leon Springs, Texas from April 1918 until disbanded in December, 1918 after the Armistice. The Federal government must supply the equipment and training for this unit, and a considerable number of the men were sent to various parts of the country. However, those men constitute so far as the government records are concerned, a "Lost Battalion."

The purpose of the new organization is to have the members of this unit and their beneficiaries recognized officially by the government as world war veterans, and generally to obtain for them such relief as has been granted by the government to all other veterans, including bonus rights, disability relief and world war insurance.

Fairness Demands It

THE DEMOCRATIC state convention at Lubbock came off with a minimum of fireworks and practically no evidence of a deep schism in the party ranks.

As Franklin D. Roosevelt said of the democratic victory in Maine that is "all for the good".

From all the evidence at hand, the convention was quite right in "going the whole hog" for Ferguson.

There still remains the serious task of determining whether or not there is any foundation for the charges openly made by both sides that there was illegal voting of illegal votes.

The courts are dependent. Both factions should await calmly the outcome of the judicial proceedings.

Foxx Ends Season Two Short Of Ruth's Home Run Record

WASHINGTON — Jimmy Foxx blasted his fifty-eighth home run of the season, two short of Babe Ruth's record in a perfect day at bat, but the Senators licked the Athletics, 2 to 1, Sunday in closing their 1932 rivalry.

The Philadelphia first sacker apparently fell just short of taking the American League batting honors away from Dale Alexander, despite his day's mark of 1,000.

General Alvin Crowder of the Senators took the league lead in games won, chalking up his twenty-sixth of the year and fifteenth straight. Except for Foxx, only two Athletics got as far as second and none to third off his delivery.

CLEVELAND — Cleveland won the first and tied the second game of a double-header with Chicago in the final play of the 1932 baseball season Sunday.

DETROIT — After trailing for most of the game, the Detroit Tigers tied the score in the eighth inning with a pair of home runs Sunday, then won from St. Louis in the ninth, 5 to 4, with six successive singles.

ST. LOUIS — The world champion Cardinals batted to the end Sunday to find themselves tied for sixth and seventh places with the New York Giants, after the Pittsburgh Pirates won the first game of a double-header, 7 to 1, and the Cardinals took the nightcap, 7 to 4.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

Word has been received from Oscar Heblgen, the blonde-haired fullback for the Bovines in 1931.

Heblgen, according to newspaper reports, was in the backfield for John Tarleton against A.C.C. and did very well thank you. In fact the stocky youth was the outstanding star of the 6 to 6 tie with the stronger Christians.

Heblgen, it will be remembered, spent two years as a substitute guard before being shifted to fullback. Immediately he began to star in the ball carrying department, and last season was one of the mainstays of the Steer club during the earlier part of the season.

District 3 should enjoy a profitable week of course excepting the Abilene-Sweetwater game. The Steers will meet the Mustangs with the 1931 state champs without the loss of Sam Beach, who is suffering with an injured hip and will do well to hold the Mayhem to a touchdown or so margin, with the accent on the 'so'.

Other teams, however, will find their first competition of the year among class B clubs. The Springwell, as you've no doubt heard before, meet the Lamesa Tornados in Lamesa and we are very much afraid that the colors will be sadly drooping when the Bovines turn their faces homeward Friday Saturday.

San Angelo meets the Ballinger Bears, and should win but only after a nice scrap. Midland opens against Stanton and there is no reason to doubt that they will score at least equal their 12 to 0 victory of 1931.

Mr. Bruce Cross, the San Angelo sports writer, comes forward with an answer to our inquiry of a day or so ago regarding the source of information that in 1931 Big Spring flagrantly violated more interscholastic league rules than any school in the state.

We thought perhaps it might be a special investigator dispatched from San Angelo with all expenses paid last autumn to pass an opinion upon the status of the Big Spring club. Or is it possible that the San Angelo public has forgotten that incident?

Speegel Woods, the crushing, grinning Sweetwater fullback, will be eligible for competition this fall if Big Spring officials have anything to do with it.

George Gentry, the high school principal who is becoming the most famous man in this portion of the state, said Saturday evening that insofar as he was concerned the Pony star was clearly eligible, and that he would make no protest Saturday afternoon in the district meeting.

Sheridan, however, is still open to dispute and the belief that the Sweetwater red-head will be out of the Mustang lineup this season is growing stronger.

The competition for the Mertz Cup has been postponed on account of the wet going over the San Angelo courses. A new date for the annual affair has not been set.

San Angelo, twice winner of the event, is prepared to defend the home course from the attack of the strongest team ever gathered for play by Captain Bob Scott of Colorado. The all-West Texas roster will include Shirley Robbins and Dale Bristol, Big Spring.

McCamney's new stadium, Badger Field, stands ready to be dedicated. Through the efforts of almost every McCamney citizen, Bill Collins pens, "this new field has risen out of an alkali flat where heretofore nothing but grasswood and cacti have striven, and only scorching have cared to roam."

The field is blanketed by the growth of Bermuda grass and on the west side of the enclosure stands the newly erected stadium capable of seating more than 1,200 people and the entire field is surrounded by a six-foot barbed wire fence. The grandstand, which is made of steel is 140 feet long and 18 feet high with 12 tiers of seats.

Badger Field is now one of the beauty spots of the city. McCamney will dedicate the new playing field on October 22 when the Badgers and the San Angelo Bobcats come together in the first of a two-game series.

Payne Holds Visitors To Four Hits

The Big Spring Tigers took a 4 to 1 decision from the Midland Brown Colts Sunday afternoon in a fast game played on the North Side lot.

"Pap" Payne, Tiger veteran, chalked up his twenty-second win of the year in letting the visitors down with four hits. An error in the first inning brought the only Midland score across the plate.

The locals scored in the third and sixth. Estes, starting Midland hurler, walked three consecutive batters after Fierro and A. Garcia each secured two hits to divide slugging honors.

Three singles and a base on balls off Chino, the second Midland moundman, brought two runs in the sixth.

Gambon, substitute Tiger second-baseman, was the fielding star of the game while Fierro and A. Garcia each secured two hits to divide slugging honors.

Greenberg's Homer Leads Three-Run Rally In Ninth

CHATTANOOGA — The Chattanooga Lookouts Sunday defeated Beaumont, 6 to 4, to win the fourth game of the Dixie baseball championship series and gain a commanding 3 to 1 lead in the series.

The Lookouts, Southern Association champions, were off to a fine start, picking up six runs in the first five innings. Except for a single run in the first inning Beaumont failed to score until the ninth, when the Texans put across three runs, including a homer by Greenberg, the husky who won the first game of the series in Texas with a similar four-base clout.

CHAPTER V

Stan Ball strode through the night, avoiding the roadway and never looking back. He crossed an open stretch of parched yellow "doby" and came to the corral at the back of Seth's place. With an easy lift of his lithe body he vaulted over the top pole and whistled softly. An eager nicker welcomed him and a moment later a black mare slid out of the gloom. She was saddled and her bridle reins dragged on the ground. Stan caught up the reins and leaped into the saddle.

The course he took away from Seth's hotel was not by the main road but through the hills without trail or marker except the stars, shining palely in the white moonlight. He put the mare to a brisk pace and pushed on to ward the rough mountains. His tall form seemed a part of the horse as they swung along. Stan Ball was in a hard mood and he kept his lips grimly closed.

Back in Seth Doby's garden three people were standing in a patch of white light. Dudley was talking eagerly.

"You can't back out now, D!" she pleaded. "I have Rev. Dean here to perform the ceremony."

"I just can't do it, Dud," Dona almost wailed. She was seeing red.

"You are a stubborn little fellow," Dudley said, "but I'll hold her back."

"Here's yer five bucks, stranger. The lady has the say," Sam Dean held out a crisp bill.

Dudley pushed the money back and faced Dona again. "We have already made out the marriage certificate and signed it and you are really married except for saying the ceremony," Dudley was desperate. He held out a folded paper toward her.

Mechanically Dona took it. "It just would not be right, feeling as I do," she persisted.

"What happened while I was gone?" Dudley demanded with sudden suspicion.

"Nothing. I just got to thinking," the girl moved back a little as she spoke.

"This is a mess," Dudley's voice sounded as though he wanted to swear.

"I'll keep the certificate Dud, and if we have to use it I'll promise Reverend Dean that I'll come back and let him marry us," Dona grasped eagerly at the avenue of escape.

Dudley did not reply but kicked deep into the turf.

"In that case I'll keep the five and shove along," Sam Dean grunted and walked away.

Dona cast a glance after the retreating form of the old man. Then she faced Dudley. "I'm so sorry, Dud, but I just couldn't go through with. Can't you be patient?"

"It was trying my best to help you," Dudley said.

Dona could stand the strain no longer. With a little cry she whirled and fled toward the hotel. She stumbled blindly down the road and ran up the steps of the ancient hostelry. Seth Doby rose from a rickety chair to greet her but she only waved a hand and hurried to her room.

The old hotel keeper sat down again. He was troubled and had waited long past his bedtime to have a word with her. He was afraid he had been abrupt when he had refused to help her. He wanted to explain but her evident distress prevented him from calling her from her room. Knocking out the ashes from his old briar pipe, he went inside and shuffled to his room.

Dona threw open the one narrow window that lighted and ventilated her room. She sat down beside it and gazed into the night. She had no need to light one of the smoky lamps that stood on the little stand beside the bed. She wanted to think and the mellow light of the moon aided her and soothed her.

After an hour of watching the shadows in the yard lengthen she realized that she was glad Stanley Black had come out of the night and kissed her. She was glad she had decided before Dudley's rainy cowboy might ride on and never turn, thinking she was married, but he would always be a very warm memory. Somehow she felt that he would appear again. Several times she grasped at the idea of trying to meet him and ask him to help her with her father. If he showed himself at Three Rivers she resolved to tell him her troubles.

Across the hall she heard the doof of Dudley's room scrape shut. She felt sorry for him because she felt that he really loved her. Then she spent another half hour wondering if it was so bad to marry a man you did not love if he were good and would be true.

Finally she lay down on the bed and closed her eyes. After an hour during which she tossed and turned she fell asleep without undressing.

The next morning Dona appeared for breakfast looking fresh and attractive but with a defiant light in her eyes. She had made a decision and she meant to stand by it. The set of her mouth indicated that Asper Delo was in for a rash of will.

Dudley greeted her with a grin. He had made a decision himself. "Sleep soundly, princess?" he hailed her gaily.

"As on a bed of down, sir knight," she answered.

They went into breakfast and nothing was said about the affair of the night before Dudley ate all the eggs and bacon he could hold and would have had more if Dona had not stopped him.

"You have to break in by degrees, Dud. This high air and the sun give you a terrific appetite but you have to keep it down for a week or so. In a week we'll be back on the sidewalks and can get in out of the moment. Then his watery old eyes twinkled. "May do that very thing soon as the boys ketch up Old Prince," he said.

something in the way the man spoke but dismissed it as a quirk of the westerner's type raw to him.

They loaded their bags on the back of the roadster, filled the tank with gas and swung off up the road which had now become little better than a trail.

The miles slid by and neither spoke. Dudley was watching the sharp curves and the bottomless canyons that dropped sheer below the door of the car on his side. He was not accustomed to such a narrow road or one that skirted such heights. They roared up a steep hill and Dona halted the car. Below them spread two valleys, one on each side. Dona waved a gloved hand to the right.

"Three Rivers," she explained, then pointed to the left. "Blind River country."

"What a sight!" Dudley breathed amazed at the size and ruggedness of the wilderness spreading before them.

"Timber down there," Dona pointed toward Three Rivers. "And cattle down there," she nodded toward "Blind River."

"How do they get along to gether?" Dudley asked, more to keep her red lips in motion than for any information he expected to get.

"They don't! This seems to be evidence," Dona stepped on the starter and the roadster swung into Three Rivers valley. A dim trail angled away to the left toward Blind River and Dona noted that there were fresh horse tracks or it eggs I'm going to do a real job of it!" But he took her advice and topped off with a second cup of black coffee.

"A week?" Dona smiled archly. "You are sure of yourself but you forget Dad."

"Oh, we'll settle that today," Dudley assured her. He had made up his mind to handle Asper Delo into the rumble seat.

"In that case we'll be back in a couple of days."

"You forget that we have agreed upon a honeymoon in the cow country," Dudley smiled assuredly.

"We did—if!" Dona met his eyes and her own were wide and deep and told no secrets.

Dudley applied himself to his coffee. Why do folks on ranches where there are thousands of cows use canned milk?" he grumbled as he gazed upon the black liquid in his cup.

"Ranchers never keep milk cows," Dona explained sweetly.

In the lobby Seth Doby met them warmly. He noted at once that Dona had made a decision that satisfied her and decided to wait until she approached him again before he spoke. It was plain a moment later that she had taken him at his word and would not ask him for help. She stepped up to the register and laid a $10 bill on it.

Valilia True And S. J. Davis Are Married

Ceremony Performed At Home Of Bride In Presence Of Relatives

Miss Valilia True and S. J. Davis were united in matrimony Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. G. S. True, in Edwards Heights.

Dr. J. Richard Spann, pastor of the First Methodist Church performed the ring ceremony.

The wedding was kept a secret from most of the bride and groom's friends and only the two families and a few intimate friends were present.

The bride was beautifully gowned in a traveling frock of wool crepe in Massala brown trimmed with black silk. She wore shoes and hat of brown and her accessories were of the same shade. Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for Sweetwater for a week-end honeymoon trip.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. S. True. She was born and reared in this city. After finishing high school she was graduated from Baylor College at Belton in 1929. For the past four years she has been employed in the office of the city Water Department.

The groom is the son of Mrs. Wayne Rice, Miss Irene Knapp and Mrs. C. C. Greer, of Wichita, Kansas.

Light Beginning To Break For Owners Of Yates Pool Property Long Tied Up In Title Litigation

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN - Light is beginning to break for the owners including the State of Texas, of approximately $50,000,000 impounded in major oil companies' treasuries, as the result of a series of lawsuits concerning title to the gigantic Yates oil pool of Pecos county.

The money is being held to be paid to the legally-declared owners, pending outcome of three major suits now on appeal. Early determination of its ownership apparently has been threatened with delay from but one remaining source.

Attorney General James V. Allred officially estimated the amount involved to be $50,000,000. One company alone announced in open court, he recited, that it has on hand $25,000,000 that it can not pay out until the court cases are determined.

One of the famous cases, that of Turner vs. Smith, already is in its supreme court. On motion of Attorney General James V. Allred, the suit was set for trial at the University of Texas law school in Austin.

Several years ago he left the field of oil and was employed by the Marland Refinery at Ponca City, Okla. before he came to this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis are making their home on Park street in Edwards Heights.

The relatives and friends at the wedding were Dr. and Mrs. True, parents of the bride; Mrs. Davis, mother of the groom; Mrs. R. H. Miller and Mrs. Hayden Griffith, sisters of the bride; also Mr. Miller and Mr. Griffith, Miss Portia Davis and Mrs. W. A. Barker, sisters of the groom; and the following friends: Miss Frank Boyce, Wayne Rice, Miss Irene Knapp and Mrs. C. C. Greer, of Wichita, Kansas.

Policy of the supreme court when it resumes after a summer vacation period to work on its old cases rather than new cases, except those of emergency nature, facilitates early adjudication of these Pecos county cases, involving the largest amounts ever at issue and the payment of huge sums impounded to await decision as to their legal owners.

Third civic appeals court indicated in June its purpose to certify questions of the Whiteside case. Recently many of the scores of lawyers representing numerous interests in the massive cases, have been holding their breath for the law questions to be certified up to supreme court.

The Smith Turner-Smith case was filed more than three years ago and it was submitted finally in arguments of counsel before the supreme court on Oct. 21, 1931.

The Whiteside case, more recently tried here, was appealed to third civic appeals court this year. On appeal, the name of this case as Douglas Oil company vs. state. On motion of Attorney General James V. Allred in May, the appellate court advanced and heard arguments before the summer vacation.

This suit involves fixing title to Block 194 in Pecos county, affecting several thousand acres of the Yates pool. Trial court here held with the state on all issues in controversy.

The effect of final court determination of the cases will be to say whether state vacancies lie in the heart of the oil pool, or on the opposite side of the block, thus affecting location of all titles in the area, including the state's claim of public lands, and its leases.

The California company case involves similar issues.

Decision by supreme court on the Turner case will determine part of the issues involved in the others; but the final decision in the Whiteside case apparently is to control all issues, thus freeing from treasuries of the major oil companies the $50,000,000 which belong to oil companies, land owners, royalty owners and the state. An unknown number of Texas citizens, running into the hundreds, have interests at stake in the determination who own the money. There were over 600 parties alone, including many oil companies and hundreds of West Texas land owners, named in the Whiteside and California company cases.
