FDR Will Seek New Farm Legislation

$200,000 Check From Philadelphia Hikes Demo Fund

Production Control Will Still Be Goal

No Specified Plan Offered; Davis Favors Domestic Allotment

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—President Roosevelt today asserted his responsibility to treat farming as a national problem and re-emphasized his determination for soil conservation and control of production as the answer to the farming situation since the death of AAA.

No Export Subsidy He rejected proposals to provide subsidies for exports. He proposed no specific plan, but gave notice of intention to seek new farm legislation at this session of congress.

Meanwhile, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace told a hundred farm leaders gathered to consider a new farm plan that "we believe a program of using fifty million surplus acres to serve the long-time well fare of the farmer, the consumer and the land" could be devised.

Legal Interpretation of the supreme court's far-reaching decision declaring the whole AAA set-up unconstitutional, was confused. Clarification of the status of $1,200,000,000 paid in taxes by processors was expected when the court decided the eight rice processing tax cases argued recently.

Legal experts in congress said an act of congress would be required if the $970,000,000 in processing taxes paid into the treasury are to be refunded. Disposition of the $300,000,000 processing taxes imposed in federal courts probably will hinge on decision in the rice cases.

The department of justice telegraphed all United States attorneys instructions that "all processing tax injunction suits in which funds were deposited in escrow or impounded in court should be held in status quo until after decision of the supreme court in the rice cases."

If the court rules the amendments invalid those who have filed more than 2,000 suits to avoid payment of the $200,000,000 would be entitled to an injunction against their collection by the treasury and the funds would be returned to the processors immediately.

On the other hand, if the court rules that the section is valid, the $200,000,000 will go to the treasury, where it is likely to remain. All other processing tax payers also would have little chance of collecting their $1,600,000,000.

Payment Wins Approval By 355-59 Vote

Measure Acceptable To FD May Be Reported To Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. A crushing house majority today passed and sent to the senate a bill authorizing immediate cash payment of the bonus to nearly three and one-half million war veterans. Immediate cost of the payment was estimated at from one to two billion dollars.

The vote was 355 to 59. Chairman Harrison of the senate finance committee promised prompt consideration of the measure by his group.

Unless the pressure is too great the committee was considered likely to amend the measure or vote out a less liberal one of its own, realizing that the president is against full payment of the bonus now.

Senator Robinson, majority leader, was believed to have conveyed the president's attitude to all bonus camps. Robinson was hopeful that a bill can be passed which will meet with executive approval.

Today's vote in the house was enough to override a presidential veto.

Just before final passage, the house defeated a motion by Rep. Treadway, Massachusetts republican, to return the bill to committee under instructions to require payment with unexpended relief funds.

The present bill does not specify the manner of bonus payment. Republicans applauded when Chairman Buchanan (D-Tex.) of the appropriations committee voted "no" on the bill; and democrats cheered when Speaker Byrnes voted "yes."

Big Borrowing Seen If Measure Is Enacted

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Government fiscal leaders studied the possibility today of borrowing more than a billion dollars to pay the cash soldiers' bonus should it be enacted into law.

The bonus bill now being considered would call for an immediate drain of slightly more than a billion dollars in cash from the treasury. It now has an unobligated cash or bank deposit credit of $1,250,000,000. But virtually all of these funds are needed to carry on other government functions.

To raise this sum, it probably would offer a billion dollars in new securities at an interest rate of 3 per cent or less judging from present market quotations of federal securities.

Invalidation of the AAA earlier this week knocked out further processing taxes, reduced the government's revenues and may leave the government obligated to make some $500,000,000 of crop reduction payments already contracted for. This would put another unexpected $200,000,000 burden on the 1937 budget.

Hauptmann Denied A Personal Hearing

Attorneys To Offer Arguments Before N. J. Court

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 10. (AP)—Governor Harold Hoffman today denied the last hope of Bruno Hauptmann of appearing personally before the New Jersey court of pardons, when he announced the court would meet tomorrow in the executive offices instead of at the prison.

Hauptmann's fight for life will revolve around an alibi and attacks on credibility of principal state witnesses, it was indicated. His three attorneys are prepared to offer witnesses and new documents to substantiate his claim of innocence.

Hans Kloppenberg, friend of Hauptmann and leader Fisch, from whom Hauptmann asserted he obtained the Lindbergh ransom money, probably will be one of the condemned man's witnesses Saturday.

Hoffman, who spent all of yesterday studying exhibit of Hauptmann's trial, revealed he has been informed Kloppenberg has furnished from Germany recently a Hauptmann's request. He said, too, that he "believed some documents were coming in on the Europa," due from Bremen today.

"You may assume they have to do with leader Fisch," he added.

Loan Assn. To Meet Tuesday

Annual Stockholders Session Will Be Held At Courthouse

Big Spring National Farm Loan association is planning to hold the largest annual stockholders meeting in its history Tuesday at 3 p. m. from the county court room.

The association will be cooperating with others in Texas which will be meeting on the same day and at the same time, said Ira J. Driver, secretary-treasurer of the Big Spring association.

At 3:30 p. m. A. C. Williams, president of the Federal Land bank and general agent of the Farm Credit administration of Houston, will be heard in a radio address. Driver said that a radio would be installed in the county courtroom in order that the 524 Howard county members would hear Williams' address. The message will be broadcast by WHAP, WFAA and WOAL.

"This meeting is to be very important," declared Driver, "and every member of the association can arrange to do so should attend. Members will hear reports of the operations of the association in 1935, will elect directors for the coming year, and will transact other necessary business."

Quaker City Given Convention Starting June 23

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—The democratic party was off to a flying start today toward a well-stocked campaign chest. Complete returns from the Jackson Day dinners were incomplete, but the party treasury had $200,000 cash from Philadelphia, which won the democratic convention.

The Pennsylvania city, never before the scene of a democratic convention, won out over San Francisco and Chicago when its representatives finally waded a certified check for $200,000. Then, to meet higher bids, Philadelphia contributions estimated to raise the total to between $200,000 and $300,000 were offered.

Opens June 23 Party Chairman James A. Farley announced the national convective intended to renominate President Roosevelt, would start June 23. The republican party will meet in Cleveland beginning June 9.

Before the bidding started, Farley, in opening the national committee's meeting, predicted a "campaign of defamation" financed by the "largest slush fund on record."

"Just remember as we go into the campaign," he told the delegates, "that Franklin D. Roosevelt is the hope of every man who suffers and the foe of every man who does wrong."

F. D. May Attend In presenting their case, Philadelphia's spokesmen stressed the fact that Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell are there.

"We'll ring anew the Liberty Bell," shouted Mrs. E. G. Miller, Pennsylvania national committee woman. "This time not only for political freedom but economic freedom."

High party officials said they expected President Roosevelt would go to Philadelphia to accept renomination much as he did when he flew to Chicago to address the 1932 convention.

Vote Against The New Deal Is Increasing

The vote against the new deal increases markedly as over 300,000 ballots are reported in the latest tally of The Literary Digest poll bringing the total vote so far, which appears in the current issue of the magazine, to 1,688,462.

In answer to the poll question of "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt 'New Deal' to date," 643,514 are shown marked "yes," and the balance of 1,044,948, or 61.59 per cent, are tabulated as balloting "no."

The vote in support of the new deal has declined from 46.72 per cent in the first report to 37.11 per cent in this week's tabulation.

Thirty-six states, which represent 89 out of a total of 531 electoral votes, continue to express disapproval of the administration's policies in the latest returns. The other 12, all southern and border states, with the exception of Utah, still voice approval of the president's policies.

The additional ballots tabulated currently indicate a larger affirmative vote for the new deal in 11 states and a decreased percentage in the 27 other states since the previous week's report. The only sharp declines are noted in New York and New Hampshire.

Mississippi and South Carolina give a 70-30 per cent majority for the new deal, while six other states give a 60-70 per cent approval and four more states show a percentage of 50-50 in support of the administration's policies.

Massachusetts is the only state registering more than 80 per cent disapproval of the new deal. The five other New England states and New Jersey are shown voting 70-30 per cent negatively. Fifteen more states are in the 60-70 per cent bracket and the balance of 14 states are balloting 50-50 per cent against the administration's policies.

New England, as a section, votes more than 3 to 1 anti-new deal, so far in the poll.

The Middle Atlantic states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, and West Virginia, which gave the president a combined 51 per cent majority in his 1932 election, are now indicated in the poll as opposed to his new deal policies by more than 2 to 1.

The south, as a section, supports the new deal by nearly 3 to 2. The 12 states in the farin belt show a 3 to 2 majority against the Roosevelt policies.

Texas continues to vote for the new deal by about a 3 to 2 ratio. Of 43,172 ballots cast, the new deal leads 26,246 to 16,926.

New Liquor Law Invoked

Charlie Moore Faces Misdemeanor Charge In County Court

Charlie Moore was charged in county court Friday afternoon with the first liquor law violation under the new statutes imposed by the state legislature.

Charged with possession of intoxicating liquor for sale, Moore faces a misdemeanor charge. If adjudged guilty, he would be subject to a fine of not less than $100 or more than $1,000 and a jail sentence not to exceed 30 days.

Under the law, conviction for the second liquor law violation carries a mandatory jail sentence of not less than 30 days or more than a year with the optional fine provisions.

Formerly possession of intoxicating liquor for purpose of sale was classed as a felony offense. District Attorney Cecil Collins cleared the 70th court docket of the cases when the new statutes went into effect.

"This is just a start," said Sheriff Jess Smither. He said that his department would arrest others caught violating the state liquor laws since Howard county is a dry county. County Attorney Wilburn Barcus had the most difficult job that of drawing up an air-tight complaint.

Morgan Denies Part In Upset Of Money Rates

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (AP)—J. P. Morgan today rapped the charge of Senator Clark (D-Mo.) that his big banking house brought on the foreign exchange panic in 1915 to force President Wilson to permit loans to the Allied powers.

He said the firm "never did such a thing in our lives." Clark asserted that Morgan withdrew support of the British pound, with resultant complications for America's war trade.

County's Oil Income Gets A Big Boost

Price Increase Is Due To Mean $2,000 More In Daily Revenue

New rate schedules for West Texas crude will net producers in the Howard-Glascock and East Howard fields at least $2,000 more per day.

With Shell fixing a flat rate of 80 cents per barrel for Howard and Glascock county production, a 10-cent per barrel increase is assured.

If the Cuden and Col-Tex follow Humble in its return to the gravity basis of fixing prices of crude, some oil may bring as much as 90 cents per barrel.

Crude in the Howard-Glascock field ranges in gravity from 25 to 32. The east Howard pool produces a generally higher gravity oil, some of which runs as high as 35 or 36.

Humble's schedule calls for a flat rate of 75 cents for oil of 27 gravity or under with two cents per barrel more for each additional degree of gravity.

Cuden refinery, a heavy buyer of crude in the local fields, had not posted new prices Friday. E. W. Pottier, superintendent, said that the company would meet the established price but that the basis for payment likely would not be determined before Saturday.

Col-Tex refinery, Color, too, also a good market for East Howard crude, has not posted its basis for pay.

Around And About

The Sports Circuit

MOORE, MAKING plans for a big junior and senior boys' invitation basketball tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week, will draw many good teams from this section.

GEORGE BROWN, worrying over his basketball team, believes Cordill is about the best center he has ever had.

BIG SPRING school authorities and interscholastic league officials are due for a skirmish soon.

FREXY ANDERSON, in his Morning Muse column, stated that R. D. Green of the Abilene schools would like to have Sweetwater and San Angelo in the Oil Belt.

ANDERSON had the right hunch when he wrote this: "I fancy that the Bobcat and Mustang authorities are agreeable, but anticipate a howl from Big Spring at being shunted into a lineup which will turn the Steers' conference contests into inter-sectional strife as far as distances are concerned."

ROY E. Henderson, athletic director of the interscholastic league, will be one of the speakers tonight when the Central Texas Sports Writers' association meets at Waxahatchie.

WALTER MORRIS, veteran baseball man and recently elected president of the East Texas league, may be here soon to discuss with local sportsmen plans for a West Texas league—professional.

JESS RODGERS, writing his Sports Horn column in the Midland Reporter-Telegram, discusses the baseball situation pro and con but is wrong in his contention that Big Spring is a poor baseball town.

Whether a team here would make expenses or not would depend entirely upon the caliber of the team. No team likes a loser, and Midland is tops in that department.

In 1927 (correct us again if we are wrong) Midland supported a semi-pro baseball team in far better style than the team members were accustomed to, solely because it was a winning club.

EDS SUGGEST RULE CHANGES

By HENRY SUPPER (United Press Staff Correspondent) NEW YORK, Jan. 10. (UP)—An open tennis tournament in which professionals and amateurs could compete...

These are the three important rule changes American sport needs today, in the opinion of a majority of the country's sports editors.

For Open Net Meet The open tennis tournament, frowned upon by American tennis officials, would, many editors said, settle once and for all the question of whether professional or amateur stars are better.

One editor solved both problems playing field was able to elicit the second year, in which Midland gained a split in the pennant race, proved to be better for investors of the team, however.

Regardless of all the pro and con arguments over the question, another West Texas league would be a good thing for all concerned.

Al Smith Seen As Active Foe Of Roosevelt

New Yorker's Return To Politics Enlivens The Situation

By BYRON PRICE

(Chief of AP Bureau, Washington)
Al Smith's return to the open arena of politics has enlivened the democratic scene greatly, although opinions differ as to the ultimate importance of the event.

It is beginning to be understood generally that Mr. Smith's objections to Mr. Roosevelt and his policies are fundamental, deep-seated, earnest and tinged with a personal exasperation which almost surpasses the bounds of ordinary language.

The conviction that the break between the two is complete and enduring, on Smith's side at least, arises from several great and small causes.

One is the comparatively minor incident of the rejected White House invitation. Another is Smith's constant devotion to the aims and activities of the Liberty League, now the most active engine of organized effort against Roosevelt. The strongest cause, perhaps, is the now widely-disseminated knowledge of private and semi-private remarks Smith has made about the "new deal."

Putting two and two together, political circles believe they have arrived at a perfect four, denoting clearly that Smith is out to make active and perhaps desperate battle against the administration, and particularly against the head of the administration.

Differ as to Results
What such an opposition may amount to, measured in terms of final results, is a question about which the politicians do not agree.

Talk that Smith may try seriously to head off a Roosevelt renomination, perhaps by becoming a candidate himself, has encountered much skepticism among party leaders.

Those who speak of a possible Smith candidacy must know that experience has shown it virtually impossible to break any president's hold on the machinery of his party.

They must recall that even the astute, virile and popular former President Theodore Roosevelt was beaten decisively in just such a battle by the discredited, politically inept President William Howard Taft.

No one calls the present President Roosevelt inept politically, or without popular appeal; in fact, it is Smith whose recent record is most scarred by defeats. The tradition of his great public following suffered greatly in 1928, when he not only lost his own state, but saw the Republicans break the solid south. Four years later he fought a pitched convention battle with his old friend, Franklin Roosevelt, and lost.

These are among the reasons why it is doubted in so many quarters that Smith intends to become a candidate again, or entertain any serious hope that he can prevent Roosevelt's renomination.

Wily Opponent
What then? Obviously, there are several other courses open to Smith—none of them pleasing to the Roosevelt camp.

While the 1928 nominee may not be the political "strong man" he once was, even his political foes scarcely regard him as a wholly negligible quantity.

They argue that most of the voters who will listen to him already are against Roosevelt anyway, but they concede that he is a wily and dangerous opponent always, and they would rather have him with them than against them.

His personality, his experience, his connection with the important Tammany organization, and his rank in the party as a former presidential nominee all suggest that his dissent cannot exactly be ignored, nor laughed off.

The precise character of his future activities must await further clarification from Smith himself. If he knows just what he will do, and whether he will go the length of bolting the party ticket, he is telling no one.

The one clear conclusion, on the basis of all the facts, is that Smith is capable of making a great deal of trouble of one kind or another for Roosevelt, and evidently intends to.

MARSHMALLOW RECIPES

- Brown Sugar Marlow
12 marshmallows
2-3 cup brown sugar
1 1/2 pints cream
1 teaspoon maple extract.
Dissolve brown sugar in 1/4 cup of the cream. Heat. Add marshmallows and mix, to retain fluffiness. Cook in a pan of cold water, stirring occasionally. Then fold into this mixture, the remainder of the cream, whipped stiff. Freeze in the trays of a mechanical refrigerator, without stirring.
May also be frozen in a mold in a 4 1/2 size pack. The cover of the mold should be sealed with a strip of cloth dipped in melted butter.
- Orange Pudding
16 marshmallows
2 cups diced oranges
1 cup orange juice
1/4 cup diced pineapple
1/4 cup diced bananas
Feel oranges thickly, like apples, then dice into small pieces. Squeeze enough other oranges to yield 1 cup of juice. Add pineapple and bananas and the marshmallows, cut in eighths with scissors dipped in cold water. Chill.
Put in sherbet glasses and grate orange peel over the top of each serving. Serve with crisp, salty wafers.
Serves ten.
- Campfire Casserole
4 marshmallows
2 red apples
4 slices pineapple
1 slice ham, 1/2 inch thick.
4 large sweet potatoes
1/4 cup pineapple juice
Trim first from ham and score edges. Cut into four pieces. Pare potatoes and cut slices off two sides, so it will lie flat. Place in casserole with a piece of ham over each potato, then a slice of pineapple, then half an apple, cored and placed face-down. The skin should be pricked and a clove stuck in each. Pour the pineapple juice over all. Bake about 1 1/2 hours, until ham is tender. Top each apple with marshmallow and brown under broiler flame about 1 minute. Serve hot, a large flat spoon under each potato to make one portion. Serves six.
- Green Pepper Salad
12 marshmallows
2 green peppers
2 fresh tomatoes
1/4 cup cabbage
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1/4 cup crushed pineapple
Few grains salt
Cut the marshmallows in eighths, using scissors dipped in water. Chop peppers and shred cabbage fine. Drain pineapple. Combine all ingredients, except tomatoes, with mayonnaise, mixing lightly. Chill thoroughly.
Place a mound of the salad on each chilled plate, and garnish with tomatoes, cut in eighths, radiating from the mound. Top with a spoonful of mayonnaise or a piece of tomato. No lettuce is needed. Serves six.
- Bushy Pear Salad
12 campfire marshmallows
6-8 halves canned pears
1/4 cup chopped nuts
1/4 cup chopped raisins
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Few grains of salt
Cut marshmallows in eighths, using scissors dipped in water. Chop nuts and raisins separately, then together. Add salt to lemon juice. Combine these ingredients and chill. Add a few drops of pink coloring matter to can of pears and let pears stand in juice just until they are delicately colored. Then place a mound of the other mixture on each chilled salad plate and top with one of the tinted pear halves. Serves 6-8.

CARDUI

Cardui is a purely vegetable medicine for the relief of functional periodic pain, nervousness and weakness due to poor nourishment. It is successful use by thousands of women.

"I suffered with cramping and headaches and would have a chilly feeling. Sometimes I would feel miserable and have pain more than a day, and I would be nervous. I read of Cardui and decided to use it. After taking six bottles of Cardui, I had less pain and was regulated. I feel much better."

When such suffering can be avoided by taking Cardui, isn't that the common-sense thing to do? Of course, if it does not seem to reach the cause of your trouble, consult a physician.—adv.

Read in Bed... If You Have a Good Light

Don't be afraid to read in bed if you have the right kind of light. The old idea that reading in bed is harmful to the eyes was based on the lack of suitable light, free from glare and contrasting shadows.

Read in bed to your heart's content if you have a new Better Sight lamp, either a reading-study lamp or a lounge lamp. The translucent glass bowl removes glare and at the same time throws a portion of the light to the ceiling to give a general illumination throughout the room to make seeing easier and reduce eye strain.

BELGIUM HURRIES DEFENSE AS SENATE APPROVES FUND FOR BORDER FORTIFICATION

BRUSSELS, Jan. 10. (AP)—With an anxious eye on rapidly rearming Germany and mindful of her own tragic fate in 1914, Belgium today is hurrying up her frontier defenses post-haste.

By an overwhelming vote of 111 to 4, the Belgian senate approved a 1936 budget for national defense totaling $66,000,000—an increase of $4,000,000 over the previous budget. In addition, an extraordinary budget for the new year includes $10,500,000 for fortification works (part of a total of $14,000,000) and $5,500,000 for the modernization and re-equipment of the army (part of a total expenditure of some $15,000,000).

King Active in Background
The total amount of "special credits" for the new defensive works and army re-equipment will be approximately $30,000,000.

The Italian-Ethiopian question, in which King Leopold has been credited with playing an active part here and in England, plus German military strength, are seen as the background for this program.

A direct reference to Germany's intensive re-arming, which is regarded in responsible quarters as a threat to Belgium's independence, was made by Senator Fernand Demets who told the senate:

"Our military state must be developed with regard to the necessities of the international situation. The extraordinary credits of the budget are justified by the present international political situation, which necessarily commands our policy in military matters and entails a supplement of expenses of a permanent character."

Flemish Protest Voiced
A virulent attack on France as dictating Belgium's military policy

Leopold III, youthful king of the Belgians, is playing a personal role in the tense European situation.

was launched by Senator F. Lindkens, Flemish extremist, who said: "The Belgian government arms merely at the request of France. Flanders wants her autonomy. She does not want to go through a second Yser ordeal."

Belgium's lack of defensive measures against air raids drew fire from Senator Cateau, of Brussels, but at the same time counter-fire came from Senator Henri Rollin, the Belgian delegate at Geneva. The latter said:

"Such defensive measures are delusive. In pretending to organize ourselves officially against attacks by air, we reduce the world-wide sentiment, now rapidly increasing, which considers the bombing of civilians as an odious act entailing international sanctions."

Pension Plan Being Studied

Carpenter, Thinks 150,000 Will Apply For State Benefits

AUSTIN, Jan. 10. (UP)—Orville S. Carpenter, state auditor who will direct old age assistance in Texas, today took up the prodigious task of comparing Texas' pension system with that of other states and studying approximately 5,000 applications for jobs in pension administration.

Carpenter believed 150,000 of the 300,000 Texans past 60 years of age will apply for $15 a month state aid. Those knowing themselves ineligible were requested not to apply. The books were closed on applications for jobs. From the 5,000 applications, perhaps 200 applicants will be chosen. A civil service system will be used in selecting employees.

"Definite plans for local administration have not been perfected," Carpenter said. "There will be some district or county representatives in each locality to represent the commission and take applications." "There will be some place in each locality where applications may be filed commencing Feb. 14. As soon after that as the applications have been checked, if the money is provided, we will get the first payment to the old people of Texas."

Carpenter, recent visitor in California to study pension administration, said that California's law does not meet requirements of the federal social security act. It is more restrictive than the Texas law. Minimum age limit in California is 70 rather than 65 and pensioners must have lived in the state 15 years, compared to a five-year residence requirement in Texas.

Ford Co. Will Spend Huge Sum At Centennial

DALLAS, Jan. 10.—The Ford Motor company will enter the Texas Centennial exposition when it opens here in June with a building and exhibit investment of $2,500,000. A feature of the Ford plans will be "Roads of the Southwest." This will consist of a series of replicas of historic southwestern roads and trails which will be constructed around an ornamental lagoon near the Ford building. Each section of historic road will be appropriately landscaped and Ford cars will carry exposition visitors across the trails with the compliments of the company.

The Ford exhibit will feature a display of raw materials used in the manufacture of their cars including cotton, mohair, wool, hides, soy beans, resin and rice. The exhibit will be the largest on the grounds of the Texas Centennial exposition, the building occupying 53,000 square feet.

A Happier New Year

The year 1936 dawns with a much happier prospect for Labor than we have faced for a long time. Fewer unemployed, larger payrolls, mean more prosperity for all of us.

The Duncan Coffee Company pointed the way, two years ago, when it replaced all the machines in its packing department with human hands. The number of its plant employees was increased from 80 to 170. During 1935 the number of men and women in the Duncan plant in Houston was increased from 170 to 198. These numbers do not include the sales force maintained outside the plant, which was increased correspondingly.

For seventeen consecutive years the Duncan Coffee Company has paid a bonus to all employees from the porter to the president and has provided vacations with pay to all workers. There has been no reduction in wages.

Labor has shown its approval of the Duncan policy by the whole-hearted acceptance given its two popular brands: "Admiration" and "Bright and Early" coffees. We intend to continue to justify your approval.

WASHINGTON — Although the official business of the democratic national committee meeting here is to arrange for the June convention, the committee's real concern is Governor Gene Talmadge of Georgia. The question is what to do about him if he should appear with credentials and ask to be seated.

Following the death of Major John Cohen, Atlanta publisher and ardent Rooseveltite, Talmadge elected himself and Mrs. Susan T. Moore, one of his followers, to the national committee.

Under party rules only the national committee itself has the power to elect or remove members of the body. Ordinarily, however, when a state committee designates a successor to a deceased member, the national committee approves his credentials as a routine matter.

But with Talmadge and Mrs. Moore, the situation is different. The red-polluted fire-eater of Georgia is one of Roosevelt's bitterest foes. Among organization democrats he is anathema.

Ever since Talmadge set himself up as national committeeman, certain administrationists have been devising schemes to crack down on him.

Their most favored plan is this: When Talmadge presents his credentials, they would be referred to a credentials committee which would promptly bury them on the excuse of giving "careful consideration." By this strategy Talmadge would be "legally" barred from admittance to the present meeting.

Doubtful

While eager to strafe Talmadge, some of the democratic moguls on whom the proposed plan has been strongly pressed are doubtful of its wisdom. They say the spanking would be too obvious, would enable Cohen to raise the cry of "persecution."

What the party chiefs want to avoid above all is the note of disharmony. As much as they hate Talmadge, they prefer to seat him and Mrs. Moore now, for a more opportune occasion to "give him the works."

Election Bet

President Roosevelt and Senator Bill Borah have entered into a "sneak" agreement to take each other for a ride.

"It happened this way," Borah sat one seat from the president at a recent White House dinner. Roosevelt leaned over and joshed the senator about his campaign.

"I'll tell you what I'll do, senator," said Roosevelt. "If you are elected president you take me for a ride on the Potomac (the new presidential yacht). If I am re-elected I promise to take you on a ride."

"It's a deal, Mr. President," said Borah, "only don't forget your part of the bargain."

No Walk-out

Senator Borah's flourishing presidential boom is headed for stormy weather. Far from being dismayed by the seeming tidal wave of rank-and-file enthusiasm for Borah, stand-pat republican leaders are planning to give him a determined battle in every important primary.

At a secret conference held in New York last week, a complete list was drawn up of "favorite son" candidates who could be put into the field with a fair chance against Borah.

In other words, if Borah can't be licked outright, the aim will be to split the delegation, taking as many from him as can be won. By this strategy the anti-Borahites, in addition to holding down his popular support, would be in a position to "bore from within" his delegations during the convention.

In past conventions this boring has frequently been successful. Delegates come to a convention pledged to a certain candidate and wind up voting for someone else.

Under the projected plan, Borah would be opposed in New York State by Representative James Wadsworth, in New Jersey by Governor Hoffman, in Maryland by Governor Nice, and in Pennsylvania by ex-Senator David Reed.

Wadsworth, incidentally, is being privately favored by those around Governor Alf Landon. Coming from New York, a conservative, a militant in contrast to the dry Kansas, they view Wadsworth as a perfect vice presidential running mate on a Landon ticket.

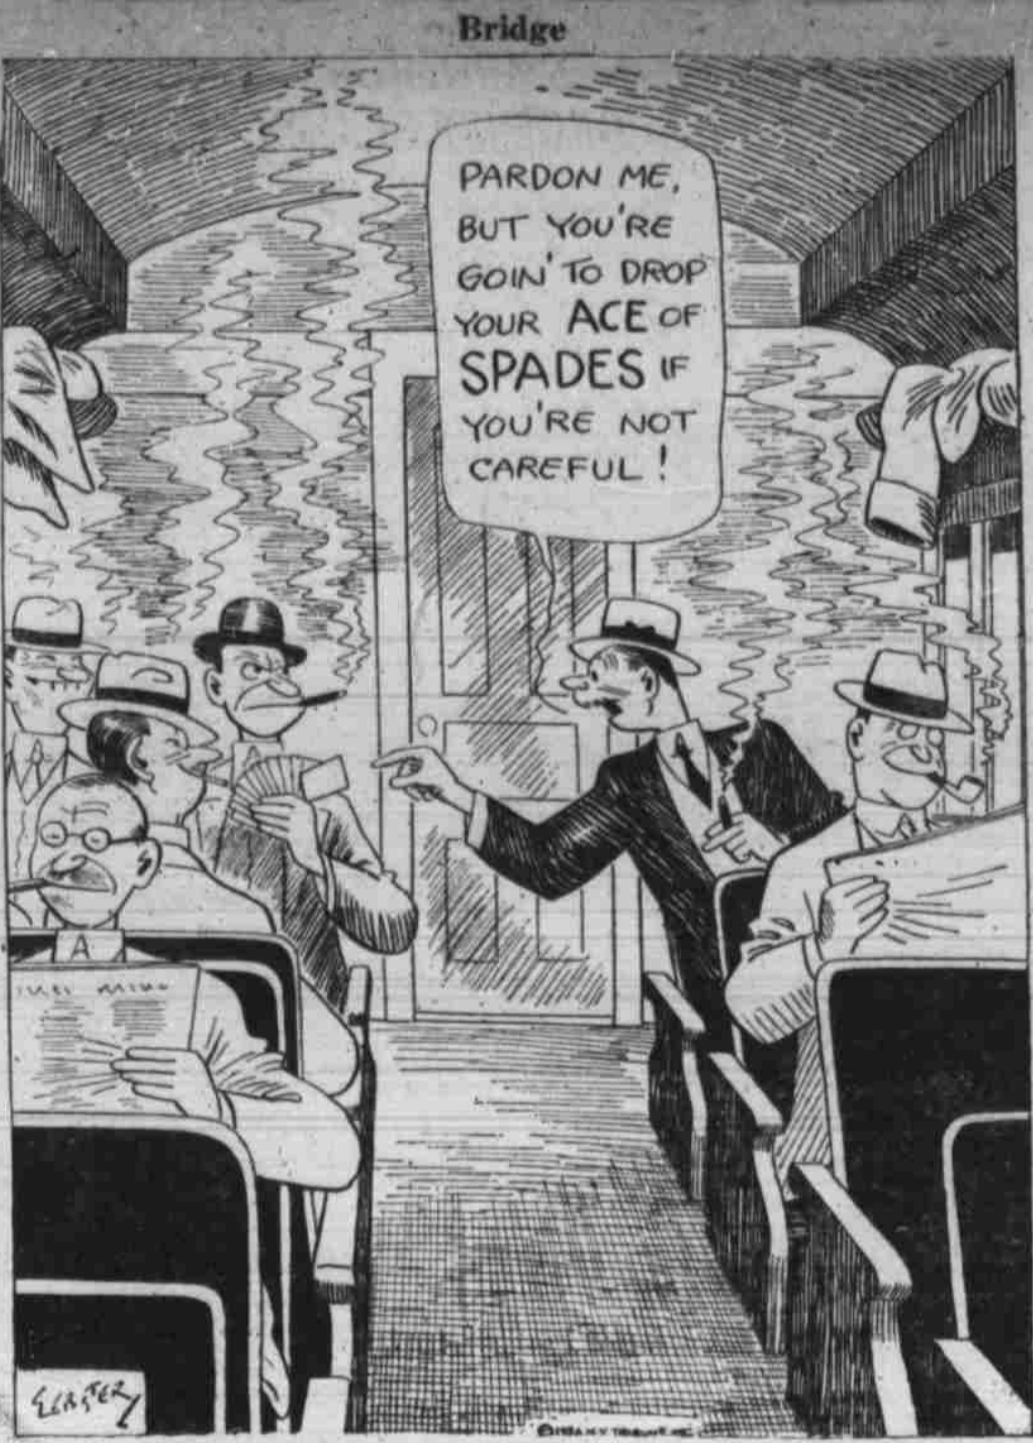

It is even reported that feelers have been put out to Wadsworth and that he has indicated approval.

Much Nicer

Senator Carter Glass and his one-time Virginia colleague, Claude Swanson, now secretary of the navy, were reminiscing about campaign experiences.

"I haven't had any real opposition for a long time," said Glass, who is up for re-election this year. "If a real fight should develop against me I might find myself in a bad way. So few of my people know me personally."

"Well, I had both kinds of election contests," said Swanson, "with opposition and without it. There is no question that a strong opponent will make you get around and become acquainted, but I must say I liked it a lot better when the running was easy."

NEVER MIND THE LADY

Chapter 20
FAST WORK

She scanned him interestedly a moment, beginning to smile.

"Haven't I seen you some place before?"

"If you have you've been in some queer places," Terry answered.

"That's not the right answer, but you're elected anyway. Come on."

"Sure," said the army officer.

"Have a drink with us."

"Thanks, no."

"There was a study in amazement. 'You don't want a drink—?'"

"Not today," said Willett.

"The girl sat down on a small divan and drew up a pair of silken legs under her."

"Then what do you want, Lance?"

"Just a ride to New York," said Terry. "Who owns this work of art?"

"Ray West," said the girl. "We've been over at a house party and we're looking a ride back with him. He's in his stateroom recovering from a bad afternoon."

"She gave him a long slanting glance. Her eyes seemed violet in quality. 'My name's Carolyn Harrington.'"

"Is it?" said Willett.

"Her old man's a Senator," contributed the officer.

"He won't be for long," said the girl nonchalantly. "They are after his scalp."

"She put a cigaret in her mouth and leaned forward for a light, a subdued scent of jasmijn mingled with rye whiskey brushing his nose as he bent to comply. She patted a place on the divan and he dropped down beside her."

Willett was offered a drink again. Again he refused. Too easy to drink on this day when he'd left his father behind for good. The truck up from the Palva hadn't been long enough to make him forget his feeling of numbness and a sense of onus.

The army officer was talking amiably. His name was Denbigh and he informed Terry that he had joined the Army because Puff had told him she could love a man in a uniform and then after he got stuck with the Army, he found she meant a general's uniform.

"He was on leave from Fort Myer, and what good was the cavalry without sabers? That was Congress again. Congress was ruining the Army, but he'd die for his country just the same."

He was very emphatic on that point. He repeated it half a dozen times.

The other man was Steve Perry, very good-looking, with black hair and eyes. He had big shoulders and a sunburned face and was introduced as the objective fort of many a fond mamma's strategy.

Puff said he played polo so well that a strong suspicion prevailed he could probably do nothing else. Steve reminded her that he was a vice-president of a big bank.

Puff asked him if he knew where the bank was, and Steve said he wasn't sure, but his father was president, so what the hell difference did it make?

As for the girl, there was something very intriguing about her. Her mouth was scarlet with too much lipstick, but there was something leisurely and careless, and softly challenging in the way she spoke and lounged innocently on the divan.

She smoked a great deal, looked at him often, and seemed perfectly agreeable to Denbigh and Perry's doing their drinking out on the observation platform.

"You don't say much," she commented, "but I like your style—kind of."

"Thanks," said Willett. "I can see where you have a lot to learn."

She watched him, one hand poised on hip, the other slowly caressing her throat.

"Have you, I wonder, anything to teach me?"

"Who knows? But I'm not going to try."

"You discourage me terribly," she sighed. "You really do."

Scowling she seemed slightly closer to him suddenly. Once again he was conscious of the scent of her hair. He knew she wouldn't mind a bit if he kissed her. She worked fast, Puff Harrington. Maybe that came from riding on fast trains.

"But," she went on, "I like you just the same. You're brown and tall and please smile—more often—Lancelot."

Willett grinned. If Bucky Corriam were here—Bucky worked at a speed approximating airplane velocity.

"One of these days," he commented, "you're going to wake up married."

"Well," she said, considering, "that would be a break for Honor. Lancelot, up, Lancelot. How about yourself?"

"Nothing much," he returned. "The name is Willett. Terry Willett. I've just come from South America and one of these days I'm going back."

"Oh!" Her red mouth formed the word. "How interesting. I knew you'd been places. The dickens!" she said suddenly, sitting back. "Here comes Ray. He would recover now."

Ray West made his initial appearance, coming from a private compartment at the other end of the car. He wore a sports camel's hair and a white silk muffler about his throat.

His gait was a little uncertain past the effects of the train's queer motion, and he had the servant mix him a pickup immediately.

"Ray hello to Terry Willett," Puff requested. "He dropped into our lives at Carteret."

Ray shook hands.

"Haven't seen you before, have you?" he said. "Are you one of Al-laire's friends?"

Willett sat up. Something clicked in his mind. He remembered Puff's introduction to a lovely girl in the Legation Club gardens—

"Whose?"

"That's his daughter," Puff explained. "But don't get him started on the subject. He's peeved."

"Well, why wouldn't I be?" demanded Ray, with the argumentativeness that is rooted in strong waters. "She won't do a thing I want her to. I'm her father and I can't do anything with her. Nobody can."

Puff was vastly bored. She called in Denbigh and Perry and resumed the crap game. Willett rejected an invitation to participate. He sat down next to Ray West. Ray seemed favorably impressed with him.

"Awfully glad to meet you," he said. "You look like a nice young fellow. Did you say you knew Al-laire?"

"I'm not sure whether I do or not," said Terry. "Was she in South America recently?"

"Yes," said Ray. "So was I. Polo again. Again he refused. Too easy to drink on this day when he'd left his father behind for good. The truck up from the Palva hadn't been long enough to make him forget his feeling of numbness and a sense of onus."

Firemen Adopt Resolutions On Member's Death

Resolutions of sympathy were adopted this week by members of the Volunteer Firemen body on the death of Earl Baker, member of the organization.

L. E. Crenshaw, T. W. Morris and J. P. Ferguson, reporting as a resolutions committee, regretted "that the death angel called home one of our dear members and cast gloom and sadness over our meetings and the entire body; and that the dear member's home was made sad and lonely by the passing of this dear father and member. May God's blessings rest on his family."

Baker was supervisor for the city hall building and grounds and assisted the firemen on many occasions when serious blazes occurred.

Kiwanis Aims Presented In Unique 'Skit'

A novel skit in which the aims and purposes of Kiwanis were presented featured the program given at the local club's luncheon session at the Crawford hotel Wednesday. The skit was given by L. A. Eubanks, who had charge of the day's program, and George White.

Eubanks posed as a newcomer, interested in club work, questioned White about what the Kiwanis club offers. Through the series of questions and answers the club's program was explained. Mrs. Eubanks directed the song of the day.

Dr. D. F. McConnell was introduced as a new member. Visitors for the day included Tom Dodge, Dr. Bristow Gray of El Paso, Rev. S. J. McMurry of Garrettsville, Rev. M. Elliott of Colorado, Rev. A. J. Coleman of Midland, J. M. Gordon of Lubbock, Dr. Jack Lewis, K. L. Riggs and Mr. Stevenson of Lubbock and Leroy Echols.

Dr. Fred Cook and A. V. Cook of Acala, Tex., were here Wednesday to be with their brother, Dr.

Troop For Negro Scouts Planned

Steps were taken this week toward the organization of a negro scout troop in Big Spring when John R. Hutto, principal of the Mexican ward school, spoke briefly on the scouting movement.

Hutto had with him one of his Mexican scouts who gave a knot tying demonstration.

A meeting has been called for Sunday at 4 p. m. in the negro church to consider formation of a troop. A prospective scoutmaster Lane B. Cook of Dallas, who was seriously injured in an automobile collision on the west highway Sunday night, Dr. Fred Cook returned to his home this morning, while A. V. Cook remained here to be with his brother. His condition remained about the same late Wednesday.

CONTINUING THE FARM POLICY

One of the many questions being asked since the supreme court tossed out the AAA is "Can farmers show a profit without government benefits?"

There is no definite answer. Many believe that a good many farmers could show a profit if present prices were maintained. Some AAA experts have suggested, however, that with government control removed, farm surpluses would quickly increase to a point where farm prices would again decline.

The fact of the matter is that the AAA decision constitutes a challenge to the American people and the farmers themselves.

There can be no denying that AAA was a boon to the agricultural population. Up to January 3, farmers of this nation had received well over a billion dollars under new deal benefit plans; Howard county alone in three years had received more than $891,000—more than three-quarters of a million of this went to the cotton growers.

If the agricultural industry as a whole can appreciate the results obtained from the AAA program, it would determine to see that the policies set up by that agency are not overturned. In other words, the industry should see to it that farm surpluses are not permitted again to pile up and destroy the price structure.

If the AAA did increase prices—and there is every indication that it was largely responsible for the gains made since 1933—then it appears reasonable that every agricultural interest would want to continue at least the theory as laid down by the AAA.

Neither the supreme court nor any other power has the authority to interfere with voluntary crop control and a farmer's own methods of orderly production. He can himself follow AAA policies and reap the benefits therefrom government farm program or no government farm program.

The nation has seen what happened to farm prices in depression times when there was no regulation; it has seen the good results obtained from orderly production control. There should be a lesson in all this.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—What has mushroomed into Tin Pan ley's newest tune madness is an oofy-gooof succotash of words and half-notes known correctly as "The Music Goes Round and Round." Rivaling the berserk qualities of "Yes, We Have No Bananas," here is a ditty that might have been written by Gertrude Stein in a fog, but wasn't.

It was ground out last July by several of the boys at the Onyx club, a 52nd street nightclub, and has gone begging ever since. That is, until recently. Then it exploded like a Park avenue scandal.

Now nobody is safe from it. Not since "The Peanut Vendor" has any song-virus so attacked honest citizens. People whistle, hum and yodel it from every crack and crevice in New York. Orchestra leaders complain that if they answered all requests they wouldn't have time to play anything else.

At the moment it's all very exciting, but tune experts who follow such things think its success may be too complete. They fear it will burn itself out before its composers realize more than a nominal financial return.

As a meanderer who must get about places, one drops by the Adelphi theater, huge and dark, where Max Reinhardt is directing rehearsals for "The Eternal Road," a new play which probably will be given Broadway towards the end of January.

Here, in a monastic atmosphere of shadows broken by flickering candles, a score of players listen reverently to what the director has to say.

Reinhardt is facing his players, sitting at a table across the footlights with an assistant director and with Franz Werfel, who wrote the play and who is now famous because of his best seller, "The Forty Days of Musa Dagh." A strange contrast shows between author and director. Werfel has wild hair and slightly stooped shoulders and a round forehead and wears thick glasses. Reinhardt is iron gray and tired but with reservoirs of inspirational energies still untapped. His kindly and patient handling of the players reminds of a patriarch ministering to a group of children.

Later, one proceeds towards the Gotham where Helel Gahagan is staying but it is a day of stirring about and one encounters too many interesting people to get very far. Here are Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Henderson, of the rubber and oil millions, enjoying the air on 58th street.

"I have slowed down to a more normal pace," Mr. Henderson tells me. "I can still dance as well as ever, all night if necessary, and I never get tired, but my mind is a little short." Mr. Henderson is 78 years old and used to race horses and yachts and play polo before he gave up all for golf. Mrs. Henderson is a charming woman and a fascinating conversationalist who probably has visited every country in the world at least six times. Her Patou gown at the recent opening of the opera was the talk of style circles. With it she wore a rope of pearls heavy enough to tether an elk.

Very much in the swim sartorially, with his checkered vest, spats, gold chain and beaming countenance, the oil millionaire really despises New York. Apartments cramp his style. Give him some roomy, rambling old place in Texas, or anywhere else, and that's all he asks.

"This morning!" said Willett. "Where is she now?"

"I don't know," said Ray. "Washington, maybe, with Nell. New York, maybe, Havana, maybe. I don't know where she is half the time or what she does."

He fidgeted something into his glass. He was just getting warmed up.

"You'd think her own father would know where she was once in a while," he complained. "Well, I don't unless she chooses to let me know. And she's had a lot of chances to marry nice men and settle down. I don't know what the devil she's waiting for—John the Baptist, maybe, to come down on a snow-white steed."

"That's Jupiter," Ray said. "Puff interrupted lazily to inform him."

Perry asked them please to talk about something else, and then he got up and went on the platform.

"Poor Steve," said Puff. "He's had to take it for once in his life instead of dish it out. He's still bouncing."

"That's a damn shame," said Ray. "Steve's all right."

The train was coming into Union Station. Puff was standing up, pulling on a smart little black hat. She turned to face him.

"This is where I get off," she said. "Ever been in Washington? Lovely city. Give me a break, Lancelot, and I'll show you the town."

"Washington, maybe. That's what her father had said. He stood up. 'I think,' he said, 'I'll get off here myself.'"

TOWNSEND PLAN IS ANOTHER PANACEA, ECONOMIST CLAIMS

(This is the second of two articles giving a pro and con analysis of the Townsend old age revolving pension plan, destined to figure prominently in the year's political picture. Today's article presents arguments against the plan.—Editor's Note.) PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 10. (UP)—The Toy "Old Age Revolving Pension Plan was pronounced just another panacea by Dr. Graham Laing, economics authority and writer of the California Institute of Technology. In the first place, asserted Dr. Laing, the country's factories going full blast could not turn out enough goods for America's old folks to spend their $200 a month at present day prices. The answer is, he said, that prices will soar. This, coupled with high taxes that would be necessary to raise the huge pension payment (he estimates this at equivalent to a 40 to 50 per cent sales tax) would place young and old alike in a worse financial position than today. "One of the principal faults that accompany the usual panacea for our economic evils is the very fact that they are panaceas," he said. "Our economic system is one of extraordinary complexity, and there is more than one thing wrong with it. To attempt to cure the evils by one solution is to attempt the impossible. Charges Vital Omissions "Hence the usual reformer solves his problem by leaving out the difficult parts. "Strangely enough, most of the panaceas seem to be associated with the problems of money, and the reformers seldom take the trouble to understand the money system that we are using. "The Townsend Plan is a case in point. Dr. Townsend has a plan whereby one simple method of distributing money will be sufficient to solve all our economic ills. I understand it the plan is as follows: The government will issue to each person over the age of 60 the sum of $200 a month. But the issue has strings on it. The monthly sum must be spent first, within the month of issue, and second, on consumer goods only. Builds His Thesis "The argument is that this increase in purchasing power, directed solely toward the purchase of consumer goods, will tend to increase production of those goods and increase the amount of labor required to produce them and hence the wage bill, and at the same time increase the profits of capital employed not only in producing consumer goods, but also the capital goods necessary to carry on the production. "Here, according to Dr. Laing, the Townsend Plan meets its first insurmountable hurdle. With the millions of elderly persons rushing to spend their $200 monthly checks, the surplus of goods now piled up would be exhausted at once. Within two months, he argues, the country's industrial machine would be running behind in an effort to produce enough goods to sell to the pension receivers. The inevitable result, explains Dr. Laing, would be that prices would be boosted high enough so that all of the pension-receivers' checks would be used up in buying whatever goods were available. "It may be said at once," he explained, "that there cannot be more goods sold than are produced. The standard of living of any community cannot be higher than its actual production. Hence it follows that the Townsend Plan can only succeed if it secures production to the amount of the increased purchasing power without in the meantime raising prices. "There seems to be no doubt that there is a possibility of tremendously increasing the total of consumer goods produced in a given year. Harold Loeb and his associates have estimated that the amount possible with existing equipment and knowledge, making all allowances for bottlenecks in the productive process, is something around $1,500 worth of goods per family of five. "But it must be remembered that this estimate of productive capacity involves a much more carefully planned and co-ordinated productive system than we know of. Hence, without this co-ordination the possible productive capacity is seriously limited. In other words, the Townsend Plan by itself, is insufficient to raise the production level very seriously. "Dollar purchases would undoubtedly increase, but it is very doubtful whether the volume of goods would be increased materially. We should be getting better not faster, but there would be an appearance of prosperity in monetary terms. "With the psychological effect of

Check Writing Machine Which Does Everything But Think Brought To Stop As Court Halts AAA Payments

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10. (UP)—The world's greatest check-writing factory, equipped with iron engines which ring bells, flash red lights, think, and pay farmers for not raising crops, slowed down and chugged to a final halt Wednesday. The clock said 12:02 a. m. Assistant Disbursing Officer J. M. Palmer of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration pushed the button which halted the machines, which wrote the checks, which paid the farmers, who cooperated in the program, which President Roosevelt built — and the supreme court wrecked. The mental monsters in the old postoffice building were clanking out benefit payments to farmers at the rate of 80,000 a day when the court held the AAA unconstitutional. Palmer pulled the switch as quickly as he could, but there were 250,000 checks for some $2,500,000 still in the machines. The only thing he could do was to catch his breath, turn the electricity back on and let his super-automatic machinery flip out all the checks still in the gears. These vouchers, printed on green cardboard, Palmer piled up, hoping that maybe he'd get to mail them after all.

Last Check The last check we saw pop up from the top of one automatic cashier and slide into another was made out to Ralph Fairless for $2.04, which he may—or may not—receive for not growing hops. Palmer thought Fairless lived in Iowa, but his address still was hidden somewhere within the hot, black interiors of the uncanny devices, which fill out checks, sign, address, and mail them—and keep a record of the whole business, without the aid of human minds. The big question worrying Palmer now is whether the checks mailed during the last few days are any good. He thinks they are, but is disturbed by the fact that one bank in Oklahoma refused to cash one. "It is a pretty pass," he said, "when a bank won't take a check made out by the United States government."

3,500 Checks He was watching the final batch of checks pass through the machinery as he talked. There are 25 of these enormous devices in a long, second-floor room of the ancient granite building on Pennsylvania avenue. The rest of the eight-story structure is jammed with 3,500 clerks who work in three shifts, 24 hours a day—or did until Palmer pressed the switch for the last time. These workers have been engaged in one of the most gigantic book-keeping jobs in all history. During the two and a half years during which the AAA operated they mailed more than 22,000,000 payments to farmers. Multiple records had to be kept of each check. That turned the whole building—all but the check writing department—into one vast filing cabinet. It is almost impossible to walk through the offices, even through some of the corridors, because of steel file cases jammed so close together that a fat man has to slide past them, holding his breath.

Palmer said that everything now is at sixes and sevens, that it would take at least two years of extensive work to bring all the accounting up to date, even if no more payments are made, and that he still doesn't know whether he must fire his helpers. There's no money to pay their wages now, Palmer doesn't know when there will be, and he doesn't dare turn on the machinery, which if gluttering full force, could pay off the staff in about 30 minutes flat.
