City Seeks To Avoid Airport Project Slash

City and civic leaders Wednesday prepared to make an intensive bid to restore the municipal airport project to its original status after conferences with WPA and CAA officials revealed curtailment to four instead of seven runways.

It was estimated authoritatively that the reduction of the number of runways would cut the $78,000 job by around $300,000.

The Civil Aeronautics Authority had ruled, city officials said, that the work should cover only four principal runways, deleting three parallels. CAA is participating to the extent of $150,000.

Should the curtailment order hold, it would entail the redrafting of plans for the port.

City commissioners, in a special session Wednesday morning, reviewed the port project in which the city has a considerable stake, including $28,000 spent for purchase of additional land.

Mayor Dunham indicated that the acquisition of some 400 additional acres for the airport was made in good faith on the basis of the project which presumably had been given presidential approval.

Those in charge said that final plans, passed by the state WPA and regional CAA offices, had been completed on this basis.

Meanwhile, minor operations, such as clearing the enlarged airport area and fencing the enclosures, were continuing.

City officials and civic leaders were prepared to go into conference, possibly today, to brief a case in support of the local position.

It was understood that the case included reasonable assurances of the extending of the CAA certificate of air navigation facility and necessity to include the three extra runways.

Those in charge said that final plans, passed by the state WPA and regional CAA offices, had been completed on this basis.

Shipyards Are Still Closed By Strike

Machinists Ignore Governor's Plea To Aid In Defense

By The Associated Press
Striking CIO and AFL machinists declined today to return to their jobs at 11 San Francisco shipyards, despite a personal appeal from California's Governor Culbert L. Olson that they lay aside their grievances in the interest of patriotism.

The yards, where the strike has been in progress 12 days, hold $500,000,000 worth of defense orders.

John Frey, head of the metal trades department of the AFL, declared that regardless of the machinists' position, he and other AFL leaders would lead 15,000 shipyard workers back to work today.

Governor Olson appealed to the strikers last night, but they rejected his resume-work proposal by a vote announced by union officials as 1,702 to 355.

The machinists struck for wages of $1.15 an hour and retention of double pay for overtime. Old wages were $1 an hour, while the companies agreed to a new contract scale of $1.12 straight time, but only time and one half for overtime.

The Bethlehem shipbuilding yard declined yesterday to agree to a closed shop, and the machinists said they would not return to work until Bethlehem signed a contract.

At Lorain, Ohio, another shipyard strike came to an end when machinists were given wage increases by the American Ship Building Company.

Federal Conciliator James F. Dewey announced at Detroit that an agreement to end a strike of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) Union against Hudson Motor company had been reached.

The apparent settlement of a month-long dispute between the AFL International Longshoremen's association and Great Lakes shipping firms collapsed at Buffalo, N. Y., when union members rejected an agreement reached yesterday and stopped work.

Battle For Island Developing As A Major Affair

BERLIN, May 21 (AP)—A British naval unit west of Crete was attacked this morning by German warplanes and a "direct hit with the heaviest caliber bomb" was scored on a cruiser, DNB, official German news agency reported tonight.

LONDON, May 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill warned today that the battle of Crete would continue with "increasing severity" as reliable sources declared air-borne Nazi shock troops were still pouring into the invaded Greek island.

The latest total of the German invasion force made known in London—and unofficially—was 4,500 men.

The Germans were delivered by aerial transports and sailed in by glider and parachute, the prime minister informed the house of commons, bringing forward the running account he gave it with first news of the invasion yesterday.

He told of a second assault on Suda Bay which, although available only to shallow draft vessels, is Crete's best anchorage.

Canea, the island capital to which King George II of nascent Greece has shifted his government, is less than five miles from Suda bay. On the northwest corner of the island, it is closest to the southern Greek airdromes from which the Germans are launching their sustained aerial invasion attempt.

Renewed British raids on German aircraft at landing fields in the neighboring French mandate of Syria also were announced.

Coastal Movement Of Oil Is Problem

Southwest Is Cheered By Price Hike

TULSA, Okla., May 21. (AP)—Higher prices for crude oil in seven states buoyed the petroleum industry today as it sought to cope with a threatened bottleneck in the transportation of oil from the Gulf coast to the industrial and thickly populated Atlantic seaboard.

Several companies boosted crude oil prices 10 cents a barrel in Oklahoma, Texas, Illinois, Wyoming, Kansas, New Mexico and Louisiana, and others were expected to follow.

The defense program, itself, produced the cause of the transportation problem, and from present indications may aid in producing the cure—new pipe lines.

About 98 per cent of the crude oil and refined products arrive along the Atlantic seaboard by tanker. The government has requisitioned 25 tankers for British use and has requested 25 more.

Continued requisitioning from the fleet of about 200 tankers would have the effect of shutting off the main flow of oil to the Atlantic seaboard area. Last week defense authorities asked the American Petroleum Institute to appoint a committee to study the situation.

Yesterday, President Roosevelt allied upon congress to give "early and earnest consideration" to a bill to facilitate construction of oil pipe lines along the Atlantic coast.

The dependency of the Atlantic seaboard upon tankers for oil supplies was "potentially perilous," Mr. Roosevelt said, and made "restriction of oil consumption to essential uses a district possibility within a few months."

The oil industry also is reported in the "conversation stage" on a new crude oil line from Texas to the east coast.

While less than two per cent of Atlantic seaboard oil is being shipped by pipe lines at present, executives said that some older lines now being used to ship gasoline westward could be reversed and that the use of barges was being studied as a stopgap.

Tourist Trade Opportunities Described By Speaker Here

Truly, a golden harvest is at hand for Big Spring people if they will but reap it. Lloyd P. Bloodworth, executive secretary of the El Paso chamber of commerce, told around a score local people Tuesday evening at the first of two sessions on tourist trade and area business development.

Stressing particularly the tourist traffic, Bloodworth said

"tonight you have hundreds, perhaps a few thousand dollars, of fresh money in town. These tourists bring in fresh money. That's where you make your money. You can't make it swapping dollars."

Recounting that the tourist trade is El Paso's major industry and amounted to $10,000,000 last year, Bloodworth said on a national scale it was one of the largest, having reached a five billion dollar volume in 1940.

Statistically, he said, it was 11 per cent greater than the clothing industry, 45 per cent more than printing and publishing, 60 per cent more than lumber, 135 per cent more than baking, 238 per cent more than shoes, 318 per cent more than cotton, and equal to steel and iron. Yet—

"We're on the eve of the greatest era of tourism this nation has ever seen," declared Bloodworth, "and you're definitely in it in a big way."

Few things return so much for so little as money spent in boosting tourist traffic, he asserted. San Francisco realized $200 for every $1 spent in advertising the upper bay region last year, according to Bloodworth. New Mexico realized a $16,000,000 volume from $150,000.

Contrary to popular opinion, he continued, the retail merchant shares most heavily in tourist expenditures. Bloodworth quoted Babson's break-down on a tourist dollar as follows: Retail merchant 28 cents, cafes 21, hotel and tourist camps 17, service stations 12, amusements nine cents, transportation companies seven, confectioners five, and miscellaneous three cents.

How to get this business is basically simple, explained Bloodworth.

First, courtesy is essential for it pays big dividends on no cost, gets repeat business. Second is alertness, the idea of giving quick, polite and efficient service. Third is knowledge—the idea of being able to intelligently answer tourist questions about this locality and area. Added to these, he suggested, would be the idea of playing up interesting places and holding tourists for "that extra day."

Bloodworth will give his second and final lecture on "Services" at the Crawford ballroom at 8 p. m. today. J. H. Green was hopeful that the room would be packed. A visitor at the meeting Tuesday evening was Col. Thomas Boles, in charge of the Carlsbad Caverns.

Industry Can Meet Demands Of Defense

TULSA, Okla., May 21. (AP)—The governors of two major oil producing states declared today the oil industry is prepared to meet demands of national defense.

The two governors, Leon C. Phillips of Oklahoma and Payne B. Ratter of Kansas, spoke at a general session luncheon of the mid-year meeting of the Petroleum Institute of America.

"On the whole the oil industry has fulfilled its obligations of conservation," Ratter declared.

"Oil is here, available for use—enough to carry us over the present crisis and any which may lie ahead."

"It was recently stated by competent authority, to mention one contingency that may arise, that America has enough oil to keep pace easily with the production and use of 80,000 or even 100,000 airplanes a year."

Phillips asserted "the petroleum investigating committee of congress, in its preliminary report, has found the oil industry ready to meet any conceivable demand for national defense."

Phillips, chairman of the interstate oil compact commission, said the commission has expanded its membership to nine states.

"We shall continue to urge all the oil producing states to join us in the interstate compact to conserve oil and gas," he said.

Benefactor Of Dallas' Poor Succumbs

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 21 (UP)—Some of the poor of Dallas, Tex., may go cold next Christmas. Their clothing store benefactor, I. Rude, died yesterday.

Rude, 66, who could remember having enough to eat but twice before he came to America from Austria at the age of 14, had given away stacks of clothing from his Dallas store each Christmas for the past 29 years.

Remembering his own hardships abroad and his early struggles in this country, Rude personally handed out suits, overcoats, underwear and other clothing to the queues of destitute, blocks long, which gathered each year at his store.

If his supplies were exhausted he would send to wholesale houses for more.

"I never turn down a person unless I know absolutely that he is not deserving," Rude said last Christmas.

He worked for a time as a youth in New York sweat shops but soon contracted tuberculosis. Friends sent him to Colorado where he recovered.

He opened a small tailor shop in Denver and built it into a good business. From there he went to Dallas in 1911. He started his Christmas parties that year. He came here a few years ago but returned each Christmas to Dallas.

AUSTIN, May 21. (UP)—With emergency oil promotion legislation drawing attention, both houses of the Texas legislature today attacked tangled waiting-session bill calendars. A senate committee, after a hearing last night, recommended passage of a house-approved bill designed to prohibit selective purchasing of crude oil and base proration allocation on statewide demand.

Action on the oil bill by the senate committee on mining, irrigation and drainage came after it had rejected an amendment allowing the railroad commission to allocate proration at its discretion.

Witnesses favoring the proposal asserted it would eliminate selective buying, protect small independent operators, was essential in clarifying the intent of the legislature and would nullify possible damaging results of court action now in process.

Those opposing it contended it would break down proration generally, was unconstitutional, would

Price Advance Means Cash To U. S. Farmers

WASHINGTON, May 21. (AP)—Recent sharp advances in commodity prices have put millions of extra dollars into the pockets of farmers who stored 1940 cotton and wheat under the agriculture department's "ever-normal granary" crop program.

Designed to assure ample reserves for the country and stable prices for farmers, this program permits growers to store crops under government loans with the privilege of redeeming them and selling them in the market should prices advance above loan rates.

Taking advantage of the program, farmers placed 3,168,000 bales of cotton and 278,000,000 bushels of wheat from last year's crops under government loans, which averaged about 33 cents a pound for cotton and 85 cents a bushel for wheat.

These farmers have been able to cash in on tidy profits as a result of recent price advances. With cotton selling around 13 cents a pound at New York and wheat at close to a dollar a bushel at Chicago, growers could redeem loan commodities and sell at the higher prices.

Agriculture department officials said that on the basis of current prices, loan cotton was bringing from $10 to $20 a bale above the redemption cost.

Wheat, likewise, was said to be bringing from 19 to 20 cents a bushel above the redemption cost. Officials said that about 1,850,000 of the 3,168,000 bales of 1940 cotton stored under loans had been redeemed. They estimated approximately 100,000,000 bushels of the 1940 loan wheat also had been redeemed.

Lamesa Edges Wichita Falls With 7-6 Book

LAMESA, May 21 (Sp)—Lamesa's Lobos scored a run in the ninth inning without the aid of a hit to win over the Wichita Falls Spudders 7 to 6 last night in the second of a three-game series.

Sam Sealing led off with a walk, Eddie Guyne also was passed and when Rivera laid down a bunt, Lee tumbled and threw wild to first, allowing Sealing to come all the way from second with the winning score.

The Hicks boys did not fare so well; Jimmy Hicks of the Spudders being driven to the showers in the third stanza and Robert of the Lobos leaving the fray in the seventh. Guyne homered in the third with Sealing on base.

Chapter 4
 "Nothing Just Now"
 It was by now about the middle of September. It was warm enough to wear summer things, but Eileen dressed in her smart little dark suit, fussed longer than usual over all adjustments of make-up, hat, gloves, and walked valiantly

The great building looked formidable. Men and girls, going and coming, talking and laughing easily, downstairs, somehow cheered her as she walked back to the elevator. Her letter from the Westland—her own recordings—had secured her a personal appointment with somebody named Grayson. Somebody with a curt, pleasant voice, whose secretary also had a voice like that.

"People are the same everywhere," she told herself to make her heart stop pounding as she reached the floor where she was to be interviewed. But it didn't seem to do much good.

The pleasant, brisk girl at the reception desk made her wait, sitting in a row among others on the wide hall. Presently her name was spoken and, heart still pounding, she went to her interview with Mr. Grayson.

It was easy to talk to; he had a warm, friendly smile which she was to find as characteristic of all radio people; the immediate, intimate manner of the stage, very nearly. But it was backed by less temperamental. Mr. Grayson was a thin, dark, smiling, inspiring, and wandered about one of the audition rooms—a room of padded gray spray and incredible space—and said, "Yes, we liked your recordings. Of course, you know, we never advise people to come on the New York on the chance of anything here. Still, as you're here, we accept as well get your record—Mary".

Editorial -- Farmers Plan For REAL Contribution To National Defense

National defense, like the yo-yo, has swept the country. We don't mean to minimize the importance of national defense, but merely to call attention to the fact that many wave the flag in its name without the slightest conception of what it means. It is quite impossible now to have a bridge party unless it is said to contribute to preparedness. Similarly, the purchase of long-barreled smokes, we are advised, has its intricate part in fortifying the security of the nation. And so on, ad infinitum, ad nauseum.

Hence, it is refreshing to find some groups with definite proposals for having a constructive part in the defense effort. We have reference in particular to the movement among farmers to help by production of food.

This appeal, being voiced through county agents and others, is placed upon a most sensible basis. Rather than making a blanket request for the ultimate in all food and feed stuffs, those in charge wisely have seen fit to narrow the order to fit localities.

Thus, in this area the importance of egg and meat production is stressed. Certainly, if there is anything that this section can produce with assurance of regular success, it is eggs and meat. Meat production was our first industry in this section and it has continued as a leading one since, thanks to ranchers and breeders. Practicality of raising chickens has been demonstrated conclusively in recent years, and poultry raising has grown by leaps and bounds. To require such small capital, that every farmer can indulge.

Man About Manhattan—Swedish, Austrian, Italian Actor Finds 1941 Good Year

By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—Baron Paul von Herneid is tossing his title into the attic trunk "because it seems a little out of place over here and since I am to become an American I shan't need it."

So he becomes just plain Paul Herneid, late of Trieste, late of Vienna, late of London, now of New York and Los Angeles. But even the "Herneid" may have to undergo alteration shortly as Hollywood, with an eye on the box office, fears it might be a shade too Teutonic should America ever become involved in war. "All this," confesses the ex-baron "makes me laugh, because Herneid is really a Swedish name and I am of Swedish stock."

He says the name Reid was suggested and then discarded because there is already an actor in Hollywood whose name is Reid. He told him Hearn was a name that meant a lot in this country because of Lafayette Hearn. He doesn't know what he will have to do about it but he would be happy if he could remain just Paul Herneid.

Herneid is a very tall, very thin young man who played the Nazi consul in "Flight to the West," an anti-Nazi drama by Elmer Rice, on Broadway this season. He is also the star of a "sleeper" picture called "Night Train" which came to the public without any advance notices and turned out to be one of the best pictures in a long time.

Herneid was very happy about the whole thing. His notices ran like lyric poems. He has a new film contract. For a young man who had a lot of trouble convincing everybody who and what he was, including American immigration authorities, the war year of 1941 has not been too discouraging.

His meeting with the immigration people was worth a double entry in his diary. An Austrian of Swedish extraction, he arrived with a German passport under the Italian quota. Now this may seem involved, but it all fits. Herneid was born in Trieste, a part of Italy. Generations earlier his people had moved to Vienna from Sweden. When the Germans took over Austria they supplanted Austrian passports with their own. So here was a part Swede who was Austrian by an accident of geography who had been born in Italian Trieste and who possessed a German passport. He doesn't know whether the authorities ever got it straight or not, but they let him in, and he intends to remain.

His principal concern at the moment is his father-in-law, who is

Hollywood Sights And Sounds—Ruth Hussey is One Lady That Studios Can't Boss

By BOBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD—There will be leg art on Ruth Hussey in "Our Wife." Just a little, and not the kind she feared when she first hesitantly signed a movie contract nearly four years ago.

Melvin Douglas, the hero, will cry, "Look out, girl—a MOUSE!"

And Ruth and the "other woman" of the plot will react as all women are supposed to do, and there, right on the screen, will be Hussey "leg art."

Ruth Hussey is a smart girl, a looker, and an actress. Lately, after the usual routine of bits and B's, she has been making swift ascent—in "Philadelphia Story," "Susan and Gow," "Flight Command."

After she appeared here in a road company of "Dead End," M-G-M tested her. She wasn't sure she wanted to be in pictures, so far from Providence, R. I., her home town. She asked questions. Would she have to pose for leg art, and could she, any time she wished, get married and have a baby? She wouldn't, said the studio, and she could. She signed.

The movie jewel of Providence was daughter of a jewelry concern's late president; she was schooled in the home town, is a graduate of Pembroke, the women's college of Brown. Interested in art, dramatics, music, she took a secretarial course also to be "ready for anything." People told her acting was a tough game, but at the University of Michigan her college dramatics won her summer stock assignments. Back home again, she became a radio fashion commentator.

On August she went to New York on her vacation, and before it was over she was back in Providence playing in a road company of "The Old Maid." She had made up her mind to use the vacation hunting a part.

The studio wanted to change her name. Miss Hussey said "But why?" with New England directness. She had made up her mind to keep her own name. She kept it.

Part of her reputation as an "intellectual" stems from her college degree—Bachelor of Philosophy. "Bachelor of Arts required five years of Latin and I had only two, so I took the next best thing." The rest of the reputation is hers because she is unusually keen and a good talker—and listener.
