Dear Editor: Just as the farmers of the nation have been warning for the past two years, governemn-tal actions have been taken which have destroyed their nic base. 'Let the market work" has been the cry of the free traders. "Why should agriculture be protected any more by law than any other industry?", parrots those who fail to understand the intricacies of the agriculture markets.

The laws of nature demand that farmers produce a full years supply of their commodities twelve months in advance of the total demand. Consequently, immediately following harvest there is always a twelve months supply available with only a one day demand.

This past year, farmers were told by the government and by the traders that would demand now surpassed world supply. Farmers were convinced plant for that demand, for who would deny food to the hungry of the world while we are capable of producing. Crops were planted fence row. Mother Nature blessed us with good growing conditions, and the harvest was bountiful, bins are now bursting with that produc-

The past few years have seen a marketing system develop based on the demands of foreign customers, and especially the Russian market because Russia has been unable to produce for the growing demands of her people.

Russia had one of its worst droughts in history in 1979, harvesting only 175 million tons of wheat, in relation to 224 million tons in 1978. Hallelujah! The time had come for the American farmer to regain his ecomic losses of the past five years; he produced a bumper crop and has a bumper demand!

During the month of December, news releases from the USDA were programming farmers to be prepared for a better price in 1980 because of this increased demand. Campaign rhetoric by the President was emphasizing that his agriculture policy was working. Wheat prices, at the farm, were slightly above the $4.00 per bushel level, corn prices were slightly above the $5.00 per cwt. level. Of course, what wasn't being said was that in 1974, wheat prices were above the $5.50 per bushel level, and corn prices above the $6.00 per cwt. level, much above the 1979 prices. BANG! January 5th, 1980, the farmers balloon again was busted! President Carter announced an embargo of all grains to the Soviet Union, because of Soviet actions against Afghanistan. Chaos reigned in the grain markets, markets were closed, and farmers could not sell a grain of their bumper crop at any price! Even the Boards of Trade were closed for the first two days of the following week. Why? Because by the stroke of a pen, markets for 17 million tons of American Farmers across the nation, being as patriotic as any other Americans said, "Fine, we aren't too particularly proud of selling grain to our enemies anyway. We only ask that the President implement the pro-tective provisions of our present agriculture laws which were incorporated for just such an emergency as this". That provision states that "in the event of an embargo of grains to any country, the price support loan level will be immediately raised to 90% of parity in order to rotect the nations' farmers." This provision was written into the law because history had proven that past embargos had lways had an extreme adverse effect on farm commodity

However, because 97% of the nations' voters are non-farmers, and because 1980 is a Presidential election year, the President's advisors, advised him that this provision of the farm law should not be implemented. There was a legal loop-hole which could be used, they said, which could not require him to raise the support level. There are six words which prefaced the embargo amendment. These words are "in the event of a shortage".

And so the nations' farmers once again are left holding the bag. Instead of being able to look forward to increased prices in 1980, most forecasters are predicting that prices now will
