News Behind The News

THE NATIONAL Whirligig

Written by a group of the best informed newspapermen of Washington and New York. Opinions expressed are those of the writers and should not be interpreted as reflecting the editorial policy of this newspaper.

WASHINGTON BY GEORGE DURNO

The Roosevelt administration is pointing itself for a vast public leading program in the coming twelve months that will be framed to take a sizeable percentage of the unemployed of the direct dole. New Deal best minds are agreed that prolongation of straight-out cash relief for the jobless is impossible on the present scale. An already overtaxed federal treasury just won't stand it.

Therefore, they have decided to go in for underwriting of low-cost housing, improvement of out-of-date industrial plants and general modernization of many facilities for production and distribution.

Administrators are hoping against hope that private capital will suddenly loosen up in such a miscellaneous way as to make all this possible. They aren't overly optimistic.

As a result, the federal financial minds and engineers are busy mapping out the broadest program possible—that will be, theoretically at least, on a self-liquidating basis.

The idea will be to put out government money in a big way for projects that should pay for themselves eventually. Men on relief rolls would be thus given jobs in large numbers. And the money thus put out could be carried as a credit on the national balance sheet.

Choice—

Donald Riehsberg, executive director of the National Emergency Council, has been charged with arousing public enthusiasm for the plan. He is proceeding cautiously. Twice in one day last week he delivered speeches in New York which bordered around it.

Speaking before a luncheon of the Bond Club, Riehsberg pointed out that although it would cost more money to provide work for the unemployed it would be a "wise investment in good citizenship" in that their self-respect and confidence would be preserved. He

Defends Self Against Mail Fraud Charge

Says Power Pool Contributed More To Wealth Than Stockholders Lost

CHICAGO, (AP)—Saul Insull, defending himself against mail fraud charges Thursday, told the jury his middlewestern electric power pool had "contributed more to the wealth of this section" than the stockholders lost in Insull's $2,000,000,000 commercial failure.

CHICAGO, (AP)—Tears slowed Samuel Insull's story to a jury trying him for mail fraud Thursday as the Chicago utility executive recalled kindness he received in youth from Thomas Alva Edison, inventor, and Edison's wife.

Insull, appearing as the first witness in defense against charges of stock swindling, prefaced his testimony with a success story, beginning with his boyhood in London and rise in American business.

Hijacker, Clothed In Halloween Garb Fells Station Man

An apparent case of mistaken identity late Wednesday evening, cost Steve Winter, filling station laborer, a gash in his forehead and $2.70 of his earnings.

Attired in the garb of a filling station attendant, Winter was drawn into the alley between Johnson and Nolan streets just off East Third and slugged when he told his attacker he had no money.

He was found in a semi-conscious condition by two boys, J. H. Dement and Tommy Gage, who were attracted by moans.

"They Dement boy ran to get aid. No less than four persons laughed at him, thinking he was pulling a Halloween prank. Special Officer Bob Fields was called and summoned an ambulance.

Winter kept repeating, "Don't hit me anymore. I haven't got any money."

He was given treatment at the Big Spring hospital and Thursday was resting very well.

Winter told officers he had been working at a nearby filling station and had had cut across the street when a man about 5 feet 10 inches tall, disguised with a Halloween mask, led him into the alley. He said he suspected nothing since it was Halloween night.

According to Winter, his assailant ordered him to hand over "the money."

He replied he had none. "Don't try to kid me," said the hijacker. "I saw you lock up the filling station."

Winter protested he did not have the filling station money. A well aimed blow felled him. The hijacker picked him up and asked him about the money again. He got the same answer. This time he howled much harder. It was a two-inch gash directly in the center of the forehead over the eye.

He told officers he had two one dollar bills and seventy cents in change, all of which was missing.

Winter, a German, had been here only a few days, he told Deputy Sheriff Andrew Merrick. His parents reside in Germany, he said.

Clear Officers In Two Deaths

Coroner Rules Alleged Smugglers Died While Resisting Arrest

EL PASO—U. S. Immigration border patrolmen Wednesday were absolved of responsibility for the slaying late Tuesday night of two alleged liquor smugglers during a pitched battle 300 yards north of the Santa Fe bridge.

Coroner J. M. Goggin returned a verdict holding that Tomas Lopez, 35, Juarez and Manuel Patino, 32, asserted leader of the smuggler band, were slain while resisting arrest.

Lopez was buried in the county's cemetery Wednesday afternoon. The body of Patino was held at the Peak-Hagedorn Morgue while officers attempted to locate relatives in Juarez.

Fingerprints taken of the dead men, officers said, reveal both had long criminal records.

Officers said they were able to recover only 15 gallons of whiskey following the battle. Several of the smugglers managed to return to the Juarez side of the Rio Grande with their loads.

Both Patino and Lopez were armed, officers said they found after firing began when patrolmen charged the smugglers as the band attempted to scale the river bank on the American side of the river. Several of the smugglers fired on the officers, and snipers, hidden behind the levee on the Mexican side, opened fire.

J. B. Pickle left Wednesday evening for Fulton, Kentucky where he has gone to get his father, J. O. Pickle, and return him here.

Profitable Distribution And Retailing To Be Eliminated

TOKYO (AP)—The Manchoukuo government, it was learned Thursday, has already moved to effect an oil monopoly, despite representations by the United States, Great Britain and The Netherlands.

Disregarding foreign charges that the scheme is discriminatory and violates the open door principle, Manchoukuo has instituted steps to assume early possession of extension marketing installations made in Manchoukuo by the Standard Oil of New York and the British Asiatic Petroleum company.

Lou Tellegen's Body Unclaimed

LOS ANGELES, (UP)—The body of Lou Tellegen, once famous marine idol who ended his career in suicide, lay in the county morgue Thursday unclaimed by relatives, friends or any of the four women he married in the days of his reign over stage and screen.

Tellegen, victim of an incurable cancer and unable to find work in his chosen profession, stabbed himself seven times in the chest yesterday and died without speaking.

Mrs. J. P. Cudaby, members of the Chicago packing family and benefactors of the 45-year-old actor, had given him a suite in her Hillside mansion for several months and it was there Tellegen ended his life.

Mrs. Cudaby wired Eve Casanova, Tellegen's fourth wife, in New York for instructions and was informed the actor had once expressed a desire for a simple funeral followed by cremation. She was still waiting orders, however, for dispatching the body to an undertaker and said if she does not hear Thursday she will take charge herself.

The actor sprang to fame in 1919 as leading man for Sarah Bernhardt. He entered pictures, made dozens of them and was acclaimed the handsomest man on stage or screen. He had wealth, fame and the adulation of thousands of women. In later years he lost his fortune.

Under The Dome
At Austin

By GORDON S. SHERAR

AUSTIN, (UP)—Plans for the January inauguration of James V. Allred as governor and Walter Woodall as lieutenant governor already are being discussed here.

No formal or official action will be taken until after the general election Nov. 6, as a matter of courtesy to the rival candidates.

Then Austin citizens will assemble an inaugural committee. Amos Felts, head of the Allred campaign in Travis county, may head the committee.

An inaugural ball and reception at the University of Texas gymnasium will likely be the chief event auxiliary to the formal inauguration on the south capitol steps.

Rep. Augustine Celaya of Brownsville thinks that there is too much money paid for financing when the old car wears out you buy a new one. The "carrying charges" are so heavy, Celaya said, that the finance companies ought to be willing to split the profits with the state. He has prepared a bill giving the state five per cent as a tax.

In order to prevent any concealment of the amount actually charged for financing the deferred payments, he has drafted a form to be filled together with registry of the mortgage. On it there must appear the price of the car bought, the amount allowed on the old car if one is traded in, the amount for insurance, with the name of the insuring company, and other details of the deal.

The Political Anvil

A group of unemployed staged a one-day hunger strike at the state capitol here today, apparently, notified that their leader and supposedly fellow-striker was picking his teeth during the afternoon.

H. L. Davis, field supervisor for the Texas Relief administration, said that he did not expect a noticeable increase in the relief rolls for November. The rolls were decreased to a great extent in September. Reports on November lists now are being gathered. Davis said that the mild October weather will help to keep the list low. Some increases are expected in sections where the end of the cotton-picking season will cause return of unemployment.

Printing for the relief administration hereafter will be done by the same firms that do printing for other state departments. The work will be at the prices bid by the printers for the other state work. Printing for county administrative branches may be done locally but will have to be at the same price as that fixed in the other state contracts.

The centennial tax bill has been designated as an "ombibus bill" though it applies no tax to motor coaches or other vehicles. The name has been given it because of the many subjects included.

President H. Y. Benedict of the University of Texas, opposing a proposed state constitutional amendment, says that an attempt to limit taxation on a population basis is fundamentally wrong. "Texas' wealth," he says, "is increasing five times as fast as its population, and wealth, not the number of people, determines largely the need for taxes and controls almost wholly the ability to pay them."

Gen. W. W. Sterling (Ranger Bill), former president of the Texas A. & M. ex-students' association, has opened war on the proposed constitutional amendment to tax university endowment land for local purposes. If that is done, Sterling said, it will logically lead to taxing the state capitol, state hospitals and the university buildings to support Austin municipal government. Instead, he suggests that the 24 counties where such land is situated tax privately-owned oil leases and surface leases, which now are tax-free.

That's Gratitude
At Ritz Today Only

He gave one girl the chance to marry the man she loved; another (the opportunity to go on the stage) saved a boy from marrying the wrong girl; lost his girl to one man and saved another man's life... and they all gave him a "horse" laugh for his trouble. And "That's Gratitude," says Frank Craven, featured in "That's Gratitude," Columbia film showing today only at the Ritz Theatre.

This hilarious film of family life, which in its stage version made audiences laugh for two years, was adapted for the screen by the author of the original play, Frank Craven. In addition, Craven plays the leading role and handled the direction.

Others in the cast are Mary Carlisle, blonde ingenue, Arthur Byron, stage veteran, Sheila Manors, lovely screen newcomer, John Buckler and Charles Sabin.

OIL INCOME FOR TEXAS
The difference in $1 oil and 60-cent oil is $12,000,000 a month income for Texas. Part of this income the state itself shares in royalties.

A fight, whose significance is just beginning to show itself, was that of the state officials to prevent the drastic cutting of oil prices, as was undertaken by a few minor companies, but which was checked before it spread to the larger purchasers.

The 40-cent cut in oil prices was threatened just at a time when federal agencies were moving in to stop the flow of illegal oil and gasoline interstate—to stop that excess blamed for the threatened collapse—and this at a time when the price of oil should have been ready to appreciate, rather than decline.

Fortunately, state oil production taxes are no longer affected by price reductions below $1 a barrel; but a revenue of $30,000,000 a year to Texas producers is a factor of tremendous importance.

And the efforts of the state to preserve that revenue at the same time preserved an undetermined number of the smaller operators from the squeeze-out of destroyed values.

8 Proposed Amendments To Texas Constitution Before Voters Tuesday

Eight proposed amendments to the constitution of Texas will be before voters in the general election of next Tuesday. The amendments appear at the foot of the ballot, occupying a five-inch deep stretch of the sheet, which is 13 1/2 inches long and 22 inches wide. The amendments, in their order on the ballot, follow:

FOR the amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas providing that taxation of real property shall be equal and uniform; and that all property in this State, other than that owned by municipal corporations, shall be taxed in proportion to its value as may be ascertained as provided by law; and providing that the Legislature may make reasonable classifications of all property, other than real property, for the purpose of taxation; and that the taxation of all property in any class shall be equal and uniform; and providing further that the Legislature may impose poll tax and occupation tax and income tax and exempting from occupation tax persons engaged in mechanical and agricultural pursuits; and exempting from taxation Two Hundred and Fifty ($250.00) Dollars worth of household and kitchen furniture belonging to each family; and providing that the occupation tax levied by any county, city or town shall not exceed one-half that levied by the State for the same period.

AGAINST the amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas providing that taxation of real property shall be equal and uniform; and that all property in this State, other than that owned by municipal corporations, shall be taxed in proportion to its value as may be ascertained as provided by law; and providing that the Legislature may make reasonable classification of all property, other than real property, for the purpose of taxation; and that the taxation of all property in any class shall be equal and uniform; and providing further that the Legislature may impose poll tax and occupation tax and income tax and exempting from occupation tax persons engaged in mechanical and agricultural pursuits; and exempting from taxation Two Hundred and Fifty ($250.00) Dollars worth of household and kitchen furniture belonging to each family; and providing that the occupation tax levied by any county, city or town shall not exceed one-half that levied by the State for the same period.

FOR the amendment to Article IX of the State Constitution, by adding Section 2-A thereto, giving the Commissioners' Court general management and control of county affairs, and authorizing the Legislature to provide more economical forms of county government and different than as now provided by law.

FOR the amendment of Section 3 of Article VIII of the State Constitution, providing for the levying and collecting of taxes and fixing the maximum amount thereof which can be collected and expended each biennium.

AGAINST the amendment of Section 3 of Article VIII of the State Constitution, providing for the levying and collecting of taxes and fixing the maximum amount thereof which can be collected and expended each biennium.

AGAINST the amendment to Section 1 of Article IX of the Constitution of Texas, providing that the Legislature may by a two-thirds vote of both Houses create new counties and change the boundaries of existing counties.

FOR the amendment to the Constitution of the State of Texas adding Section 61 to Article XVI, abolishing the Fee System of compensating all district officers and all county officers in counties having a population of twenty thousand (20,000) or more; and authorizing the Commissioners' Court to determine whether county officers shall be compensated on a fee or salary basis.

legislature as to state senate districts would be a happy method of giving a few defeated candidates a chance to come back by giving them a different constituency.

The scheme is dead, for the present, in its original tracks.

Record Air Express Load Is Three Tons

CINCINNATI—A new world's record for air-express poundage was established here when American Airlines transported from Cincinnati a single consignment of electrotype plates weighing more than three and a half tons.

Parts of the shipment were consigned to major cities throughout the United States and moved from this city in seven planes, four operating on regular schedule and three pressed into special duty. A complete crew of trained express handlers worked for hours loading the planes and getting the shipment under way without delay.

Although American handled the bulk of the through poundage, sizeable shares were turned over to other air lines, members with A. A. of the General Air Express system, for final delivery.

the entire county, in joining an agreement to settle the old New Orleans-Port Arthur highway bridge now, that has been a sore controversy for seven years.

The agreement is on terms beneficial to the county; but healing the old open, destructive conflict will mean even more to the county. The delegation, including both the retiring and the incoming senator, can go home conscious of a constructive service to the county as a whole.

Out of the agreement, there is recognized a policy in the Texas highway department to serve the best interests of the state, not merely local sections; and for the state as a whole a recognition that the 694,000 Texans who want to cross a bridge within a year have some rights to be considered as well as perhaps 1300 commercial steamships. However, the Port Arthur bridge agreement is one that cares for both the shipping industry and the needs of motor traffic; and perhaps its best aspect is that it gets away from the policy of charging tolls for the use of a bridge on an interstate high-

By Raymond Brooks

Such agitation as there is now for a new commission, to be appointed, and to take over oil and gas supervision, is extremely faint at this session, as compared to the determined 1933 drive, which almost reached the goal.

No one may guess for sure what in future will be done as to state supervision of the oil industry; but the remaining 12 days of this special session obviously allowed no time in which the necessary clamor could be built up to secure consideration, or any sort of showing to secure action.

One of the plans suggested for future though is an overlapping statutory agency, embodying the railroad commission for its constitutional powers, and including the railroad commission membership as a majority of the new commission. Additional members would be oil technicians.

This plan has its precedent both in ex-officio membership of state officials on many secondary boards, and in the Graves administrative code bill that proposed to take constitutional officers into broader divisions of the "governor's cabinet."

Jefferson county has a delegation in the legislature which has felt the tug of conflicting interests, between the Beaumont and the Port Arthur sections as keenly as any group in the state. Rep. McDougald and Sen. Cousins from Beaumont stood with the Beaumont folk; Rep. McKee and Rep. Nicholson with the south end of the county. Sen-Elect Allan Shivers from Port Arthur, naturally stood with his home people.

This delegation has now won appreciative thanks of the people of

THREE DISTRICT TEAMS IN ACTION

They say Harry Taylor's Bobcats have been working diligently in an offensive way in preparation for the Steers. Harry has been working his boys on blocking.

Two former district 3 football flashes, Elvie Stegner of Colorado, and Virgil Jones of Sweetwater, are out for Coach Higginbotham's Aggie freshman grid squad.

The Texas Aggies and Arkansas Razorbacks will be playing a "rubber" game when they meet Saturday on Kyle field, as each team has won three of the six earlier Cadet-Porker tilts. The Aggies won the first game 6 to 0 at Houston in 1933, and then won 27 to 0 at Dallas in 1932 and 40 to 6 on Kyle field in 1927. The tides then turned abruptly, and the Razorbacks won 27 to 12 at Fayetteville, Ark. in 1928, 14 to 13 on Kyle field in 1929 and 13 to 0 at Little Rock, Ark. in 1930. The Aggies scored a total of 98 points to the Razorbacks' 60 in six games.

"Red" Cook, back from a trip to San Angelo, says the Concho folk laughed when he told them Big Spring was going to clean up on the Bobcats. Maybe they have something up their sleeves. This Anderson boy who does so many tricks on the Ranger football team, is married and the father of two children. A daughter was born about three weeks ago.

his "Hot Shots" in the Waco paper, picked Ahlene to take Ranger by a wide margin, and like many others, felt that the Eagles would go a long way in the state race.

The Houston Post gives light on that much discussed subject of keeping the athletes at home. "Due largely to the splendid football setup in the Intercollegiate League, the State of Texas each year probably turns out more stellar high school gridsters than any other state. If these boys enroll at Southwest Conference schools, the time is near when the Southwest Conference will play the best football in the country."

"Dominance in football switches from section to section. A few years ago the South was playing the best football; then supremacy shifted to the Far West; and finally back to the Mid-West. The East, after several lean years, is now staging a comeback.

"Texas boys can now be kept here without a struggle. 'I prophesy that within the next two or three years many of Texas' best high school athletes will enter Ohio State University, where Francis Schmidt is head football mentor. Schmidt enjoyed much success with Texas boys at T.C.U., and he'll want some of the best Lone Star huskies at Ohio State."

An example of letting the good ones get away is Boone Magness, the former Breckenridge star, who is now burling signals for Washington State. Another is Tack Dennis, and on a smaller scale, Pete Castello and Curly Hays.

BADGERS HOST TO MUSTANG "ELEVEN"

Three district 3 grid teams will be in action over the week-end. The San Angelo Bobcats will entertain Coach Earle English's San Antonio Tech team Friday night in a non-conference game, and the McCamey Badgers will play host to Ed Hennig's Sweetwater Ponies Saturday.

Both the Badgers and Mustangs are out of the conference race, but the game looms as a hot affair between the two old rivals.

With exception of Carl Bowden, quarterback, who received a broken nose in the McCamey game, the Bobcats will be in good shape for the visitors.

The San Antonio Tech team is built around six lettermen, plugging in with 1933 squad men and junior high grads. The average weight is 147 pounds.

On the hope chart the Ponies are favored to take the Badgers into the camp. But it's doubtful. The Upton county team is just as strong as the Sweetwater aggregation.

Arkansas Razorbacks Next Foes For Aggies

(Special to The Herald)

COLLEGE STATION — Struggling along the comeback trail following a well-nigh disastrous beginning, Coach Homer Norton's Texas Aggies are out to prove on Kyle Field this Saturday to their many critics that they are a good football team after all. If they do come out on top, they will have topped one of the Southwest Conference leaders, for the University of Arkansas Razorbacks have been undefeated in two conference engagements to date this season.

In addition to spending much time on their offensive work, which showed some but not any too much improvement against Baylor the past Saturday, the Cadets are working hard to perfect a defense capable of stopping the Razorbacks' well-balanced running and passing attack. Manning the Razorback grid machine is a group of veterans, the majority of whom are seniors.

The Porker lines from end to end usually average slightly more than 195 pounds, and the backfield, although comparatively light, has speed to burn, which denotes good blocking as well as good running.

Among the Razorback standouts in the backfield are Ralph LaForge, Oliver Criswell, Clark Jordan, Choice Rucker and Elvin Geiser but Coach Fred C. Thomsen also has a number of excellent reserves on whom to call. LaForge and Jordan usually make up the passing element in the Razorbacks' aerial maneuvers, and Paul Rucker and Howard Lake, two husky ends, usually are the principal receivers. Outstanding Porker linemen include Jack Newby at center, Capt. Bill Benton and Jack Haden at tackle, and Charley Black, Bill Spivey and John Menzel, who also plays tackle, at guard. Paul Rucker, LaForge and Newby were among the conference players most prominently mentioned for All-Southwest honors this year.

BY ALAN GOULD

The autumn breezes have been filled with gossip about a wide variety of baseball trades, as well as falling leaves and forward passes, but none of the experts with ears to the ground or eyes to the key-holes were prepared for the sudden announcement that Joseph Edward Cronin had been sold by the Washington Senators to the Boston Red Sox.

The deal comes not only as a complete surprise to those on the sidelines but it is the tipoff on how completely the magnates are willing to shake things up to get what they want—whether it is playing skill and the pennant punch, in Washington. Cronin's sale may be prelude to another succession of winter trades, calculated to strengthen some of the clubs that proved big disappointments in 1934.

From now on it may not be worth while to laugh off some of the seemingly fantastic deals already under discussion, such as the sale of Carl Hubbell by the Giants, the trading of Wild Bill Hallahan by the Cardinals to the Cubs, the purchase of Al Simmons from the White Sox by the Tigers or Red Sox, and the departure of Charley Gehringer from Detroit to Cleveland to replace Walter Johnson as pilot of the Indians. Most of these propositions can be discarded as the products of imaginative minds but the point is that even if they don't materialize, other deals, equally as fantastic, may develop before another spring training call sounds.

What's to prevent Connie Mack from selling Jimmie Fox to the highest bidder, despite the fact James has lately signed a three-year contract with the A's? What's going to happen to Bucky Harris, one of the ablest of American League managers, with his job moved out from under him in Boston? Will Babe Ruth take Cronin's place in Washington?

Cronin's sale at a reported record price of $100,000 gives you an idea of just how valuable Tom Yawkey and Eddie Collins consider the young man from San Francisco who has piloted the Senators for the past two years while keeping his place as the all-America shortstop.

Yawkey refused to say exactly what he paid for Cronin but stated flatly it was in excess of the cash sum of $135,000 which changed hands when the Yankees got title to Babe Ruth from the Red Sox in 1919. All told, Ruppert put up nearly $450,000 in order to get Ruth, the difference being accounted for by the fact he took over from the late Harry Frazee a $300,000 mortgage on Fenway Park, home grounds of the Red Sox. This part of the transaction was, of course, in the nature of an "investment" but it showed to what lengths Ruppert was willing to go on the advice of Miller Ruggles, to get the greatest slugger of all time.

When you consider that Mickey Cochran, Lefty Grove and Al Simmons, key men in Connie Mack's last championship team, each was peddled to other clubs for approximately $100,000, and that the Chicago Cubs paid $125,000 in cash for Chuck Klein, you can gather some notion about Cronin's relative value. Joe is not only the No. 1 shortstop of the majors but he is a champion hitter of the first rank. Always dangerous with men on bases, he is just what the Red Sox batting order needs to turn those one-run defeats into victories.

John N. Kirby Urges Defeat Of School Amendment

HOUSTON—The proposed constitutional amendment to be voted upon next Tuesday would limit state expenditures to $22.50 per inhabitant per biennium, should be defeated because it "would throw a dark shadow across the public schools of Texas", John N. Kirby of Houston, noted student of the constitution declared Tuesday night in a statewide radio address over the Southwest network.

Mr. Kirby suggested it would be safe course to defeat all eight of the proposed amendments, but devoted a section of his speech especially to the so-called tax-limitation proposal, No. 3 on the ballot. "This amendment provides that state expenditures shall never exceed $22.50 per person for any biennium," he said. "In a sense that sounds good; surely we are all for economy, and we do not want waste and extravagance. But the authors of that amendment mistake parsimony for economy."

"Such an amendment would sometime act as an obstruction to education. We don't want waste. But a penurious policy isn't in keeping with the great spirit of Texas. It is cheap statesmanship. A budget that wouldn't meet the need of all children within the scholastic age, that wouldn't carry light and hope to every outlying district, would be too small for Texas. If threatened restriction should come and further reduce the buying power of the dollar, the sum named would not support the requirements of the state. Every father and mother in Texas with children to educate should do his part to defeat the amendment."

Mr. Kirby spoke over KSTA, San Antonio; WACO, Waco; KTAT, Ft. Worth; KTRH, Houston; KNOW, Austin and KRRLD, Dallas.

The day is past when a majority of air line passengers are "first riders" is still large, the majority of air travelers have flown at least once.

BRAND NEW EYES!

Don't let improper light damage them...

Somebody surely ought to be proud of this baby—what a dandy he is. He is perfect to the nth degree. We could talk about him all day but his eyes are what interest us most right now.

Like all babies, his eyesight is perfect now and with proper care—the right kind of lighting for his playing, studying and reading as he grows up—they probably will be for many, many years. But—because of lack of attention to home and school lighting, the boy of today has only a 60-40 chance of finishing college without having to wear glasses.

The excellent services of eye specialists do great things when it comes to correcting eye deficiencies. But when it comes to prevention, proper lighting takes the spotlight. Look your home lighting over—you'll find a great many things wrong that you'll want to correct. Call on us—we'll help you.

Marian Gordon

by JEANNE BOWMAN

Chapter 25
NEW NEIGHBOR
 Lon returned home next day with no livid in his greeting. He had transferred Marian's savings to a joint checking account of their own. The next day was Saturday; they had agreed to let the man work out the week. He would pay them off and there would still be one hundred and eighteen dollars in the bank.

"Wealth, Lon," Marian insisted Saturday night as he showed her the stub with their balance.

The next day, Sunday, a crowd from the Dispatch drove out for dinner. They'd formed a habit of that, sure of a hearty welcome. Marian was amazed at the quantity of food they consumed. A whole ham, two quart jars of jam, a pound of coffee... she checked herself. Did this mean that in the future she would entertain with one eye on the larder?

On the first of the month the maintenance bills rolled in... staked in, Lon corrected her. As he bent over them his face looked as if it had been planed by one of his own tools, so thin was it becoming. The electricity bill was much too high, they decided. Perhaps they'd better turn off the refrigerator. They could keep things in the storage house, it was below ground, cool. Lon said there had been a wood cooking stove in the old farm shack; he could clean that up and they'd use that for cooking.

With the advance of summer the heat became intense. They took to going for long drives on Sundays, and after the gang had come, tired and left unfed, they understood and came no more. And then the drives were stopped; even the price of gasoline must be considered and they walked.

"It would be fun any other time," Marian confided to Lon as they stretched under the coolness of giant redwoods in the Moraga valley.

Lon had said nothing in reply to her confidence but she was becoming accustomed to that. She was even learning to refrain from cheerful comments. His silent reception of them made her feel like a silly, piping bird, the kind they'd seen on the coast during their honeymoon. Funny little things, fussily waddling along the beach on oversized feet, piping, eternally piping. She must sound like that to him.

Sundown and they walked back through the heat of the hills... their home, Lonian Lodge, they had named it. Marian watered the garden while Lon tinkered with the car. He was driving into town in the car.

SOLD IN BASEBALL'S BIGGEST DEAL

When Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, sold his youthful player-manager, Joe Cronin, to the Boston Red Sox, he got in return the biggest sum of money ever received in such a transaction variously estimated from $125,000 to $250,000. Cronin will manage the Red Sox and play in the infield under a five-year contract. Associated Press Photo old fellow who sold us the place was cool... "thank goodness," thought Marian, "I spent some thought and money on my trousers."

Silver laughed. "We're all going down to my place to dinner," she announced to Marian, "go put on your best bib and tucker, we're having a couple of guests in to night."

Marian waited a moment; surely she was to be asked rather than ordered. She looked at Lon. "Hurry," he said impatiently. "My best bib and tucker," Marian repeated, running her hand along the frocks hung in her cedar-lined wardrobe... the ivory and white sweep of his hand was showing to Silver London, Lonian Lodge.

Marian backed into the room. What was it Silver had said to her just before he parted? "I'm going to have that man if it's the last thing I do." And she had told Lon she would see him again "when he had come to his senses." In other words, after the uncertainty of capturing the woman of his choice was over.

Marian's next thought was one of anxious horror... imagine giving Silver London the kind of dinner she had prepared. Silver would see through the pretenses immediately. Marian couldn't do that to Lon. She'd pretend to faint... do anything.

"Jan," called Lon, "come on honey and see whom I found down in Walnut Creek."

"Why Silver," Marian's surprise passed muster with Lon, but brought a crooked curve to the lips of Mrs. London, "what brings you to this part of the country?"

"I live here," Silver answered nonchalantly, "the place my big hearted 'ex' gave me is just over the hills there."

"See, Jan," Lon was pointing downhill to the group of red-tipped roofs just visible through the mass of oak branches. "You know, the the sunset, Silver chatting of the guests they would meet. "There'll be mother and father, of course, they're living with me, a Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wylie we met in the Islands, and Blaine Kelly, a man father would love to have enter the folds of the McSwain family, he has that much money."

They spun along the highway until trees that met overhead, sitting long rays of sunset through their leaves. Then they turned down a side road and came to the village of Spanish homes that made Lonian Lodge look like a toy house.

Oriental servants were everywhere, at the gates, at the door, gliding through the cool, dim interior of the house, meeting Lon to conduct him this way and Marian to conduct her that.

Silver disappeared and Mrs. McSwain appeared, a corpulent figure of the slender figure of her girlhood memory, felt a little sorry for her now. The Wylies were presented, a middle-aged couple with the cosmopolitan mark of the Islands on them, and Blaine Kelly, a man not overly young, and with the plump look of soft living about him.

And then came McSwain. Marian surveyed him with intense interest. This was the man who was willing to sacrifice his son-in-law to save himself. He was... sought for a word... gross, that was it. There was a belligerent line to his jaw, a brutal line to his brow.

asked if private enterprise would undertake the job of immediately re-employing four or five million workers, intimating the government would have to otherwise. That same night, before the Harvard Business School club, Richberg went a little further. He said pointedly that Uncle Sam can not continue to borrow money that does not earn a return. He declared that ample work could be provided through promotion of better housing, improvement and general modernization. Railroads were not mentioned by name.

Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins is saying nothing while Richberg lays the groundwork. He declines to discuss what plans the New Deal may have to take the place of last winter's CWA.

Federal Housing Administrator James Moffett meanwhile is getting set for his big drive to induce the financially-able public to invest in new homes—the government guaranteeing 80 per cent of the mortgage.

President Roosevelt himself has hinted at what is in mind if Moffett's campaign doesn't go over. He has talked—in very general terms—about low-cost housing.

Women—One and a half of surprise, and some criticism, floated back and forth over Washington's tea tables when Mrs. Roosevelt first announced her intention of taking the stump in behalf of the unemployed.

Trouble—Serious labor storms are brewing again in the automobile industry. Here are a few significant clouds now gathering on the horizon.

close and friendly Washington connections foresee a striking change in the political picture when Congress meets. They predict that conservative Democrats and even Republicans will find themselves lined up in a coalition to support the president more often than they will oppose him.

Keen observers stress the point that united conservative sentiment in the nation is undoubtedly the force that will prevail. But the radicals are very likely to get the upper hand on any given piece of legislation unless the conservatives combine.

Matches—Reports are current in high quarters that devaluation to 50 cents is probable before congress convenes.

Bonus—Now that the tumult of the convention is over New Yorkers familiar with American Legion machinery doubt that its skilled lobbyists will press so hard for the bonus as most people think.

Modern air transport planes have nearly a hundred instruments, switches, dials and supplementary controls which in large part are responsible for the United States completing more night flying mileage than all European countries combined.

Obsolescence and not age is the chief reason for retirement of planes and engines by major air lines of the United States. Most equipment thus abandoned is sold to smaller operators and used efficiently for thousands of additional hours.

Cunningham & Philips Observe Its Fifteenth Anniversary In City

Fifteen years ago today Shlne Phillips and C. W. Cunningham joined hands as business partners and opened their first drug store in the location where No. 1 store does business now.

Today they point with pride to three drug stores. That in the Settles hotel is, so the salesmen tell them, one of the finest in the country. The Petroleum building store is equally up to date.

Eighteen employees for this firm, just three more than the number of years they have been in business.

The stores are not celebrating the anniversary with a sale, as is their custom, but Shine says to the public, "Remember how C. & P. have always catered to high class trade and employed first-class prescription clerks, and also that every day is a sale day, so far as value received in the three friendly drug stores."

"Round-Up" Conference To Be Held Friday Night At Coahoma Methodist

The "round-up" quarterly conference of the Methodist churches at Center Point, Coahoma, Richard and Vincent will be held at the Methodist church at Coahoma at 8:45 p. m. Friday (Nov. 2), with Dr. C. A. Long, presiding elder, officiating.

This closes the year's work incident to the opening of annual conference at Abilene Nov. 14. Coahoma is expecting to "go out" on pastor's salary and register about 50 percent on conference benevolences.

At this session the body will elect five stewards for Center Point, six at Coahoma and three at Vincent. Sunday School superintendents and other officers are elected at this session. For that reason it will be a very important session. Dr. C. A. Long will bring a gospel message just preceding the business session.

The present official steward board comprises: Center Point, Wylie Davis, John Davis, G. R. Sewell, J. W. Brigrance, W. M. Fletcher; Coahoma, Lem Dennis, J. C. Neal, Elmer H. Dunn, N. G. Hoover and J. M. Cramer (honorary steward); Vincent, Mrs. R. L. Warren, Mrs. Fern Winters, and M. C. Harris.

During the past twelve months there have been fifty additions to the church, about two-thirds on profession of faith.

At a recent church conference at Center Point the members voted unanimously for the re-election of the pastor, Rev. Hamilton Wright, incumbent at that point. J. M. Cramer has been superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School at Coahoma. Superintendents of Methodist Sunday Schools are elected by the quarterly conference upon the nomination of the pastor.

The pastor, Rev. Hamilton Wright, urges every community to be well represented at this important session.

TWO NEW CHARGES ARE ADDED TO SWEETWATER DIST. NORTHWEST TEXAS METHODIST CONFERENCE

By HAMILTON WRIGHT
Special Correspondent

COAHOMA — The Sweetwater district Northwest Texas Methodist conference, will add two new pastoral charges to its territory at the annual conference at Abilene Nov. 14-18. Garden City, including Chalk church, and Midland, now in the West Texas Conference, has been appointed to the Northwest Texas Conference.

The last general conference, held in Jackson, Miss., early this Spring, made considerable reapportionment of territory among the Central Texas, Northwest Texas and West Texas conferences. The Northwest Texas conference cedes Cross Plains and Dressy charges to the Central Texas conference and acquires the Garden City and Midland charges from the West Texas conference. The latter is compensated for its loss by the acquisition of Bronie and Winters, now in the Central Texas conference.

Pre-conference "dope" intimates that the Stafford district existed since the conference was formed in 1910 will go out of existence, being absorbed for the most part by the Abilene district. However, some of the northern part of that area will probably be allocated to the Lubbock, Vernon and Clearfork districts. The new brick district parsonage built at Stafford will revert to the membership of the St. John's church, Stafford, and be used as a parsonage for its pastor.

There is quite a likelihood that Post, Roby, Roscoe, Rotan, Snyder be attached to the Lubbock district. Until a few years ago both Post and Spangenberg-Ackerly were in the Lubbock district. Dr. G. S. Slover has been presiding elder of the Stafford district for the last four years. A new circuit has been created in the Sweetwater district this year—Three League-Tarzan-Wolcott, in Martin county. At Westbrook the church is erecting a new church edifice following the partial destruction of the old one by a severe windstorm that swept that area a few months ago.

Pumpkin pie, whipped cream and coffee were passed to the three visitors, Mmes. I. E. Eddy, Floyd Wilburn Barcus.
