Sauce

The other day this column reported on the determination of organized labor to kick up a concentrated rumpus almost immediately. Stepping over to view the opposite angle of that picture it is apparent the bosses have their backs fully as high in the air as the men who speak for workmen carrying union cards.

A terrific drive is about to start in an effort to prove to the general public that the employers are being sinned against sadly. Reverberations of the debate, pro and con, will shake the U. S. Capitol's walls materially this winter.

Employers are setting themselves to convince Congress that the National Industrial Recovery Act—particularly Section 7a—discriminates against them in the first degree.

The claim will be pressed vigorously that while the law provides no employe may be coerced or intimidated into abstaining from joining a union, there is no similar guarantee in reverse order. Business men will bring proof that union walking delegates and their aides are intimidating and coercing employes to sign up with affiliates of the American Federation of Labor.

On the old theory of sauce for the goose being just so much gravy for the gander, the industrialists intend to demand that union labor shall be restricted from forcible recruiting. A big push is under way to make membership in a so-called company union just as legal as in any of the militant organizations reporting to President William Green.

Tough

The New Deal was having plenty of trouble making its proposed truce between capital and labor stand up when the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company got involved in a labor dispute. This one really gave the inner circle a good case of jitters.

Here is an independent organization as is independent. The 98 per cent family-owned corporation is said to have split about $20,000,000 in annual profits among the lucky few who belong, to say nothing of robust, laid-away reserves that would keep the wolf away from anybody's door. When they put a "closed" sign on their Cleveland stores they could have done likewise in every other town in the country in which they operate. Their egg long since had been warmed up to the proper temperature.

New Dealers would have been much more cheerful if organized labor had leaped on a more vulnerable foe. Yet they know full well that the unions have picked out the A&P as a very tough nut to crack.

Impartial betting here is that the nut is too tough. Representatives of employe and employer fields are hoping so and cheering loudly.

Lotteries

One Congressional election is being run off today that should interest all those citizens who have an urge to gamble and do it despite existing laws.

Rep. Edward A. Kenny, a Democrat, is running for re-election in Bergen county, New Jersey, on a major issue of putting through a national lottery law.

Kenny thinks the federal, state, county and city governments ought to get a little revenue from all the gambling that is going on. He believes further it would be a good idea if the wagering gentry had definite assurance they were getting a square deal. His theory is that you can't legislate the gambling instinct out of the human race so you might as well regulate it and drag down a profit for government.

At the last session of Congress Kenny succeeded in getting a Committee hearing on his bill for a national lottery. This was almost unprecedented but the fact Congress legalized boxing in the District of Columbia and almost did the same for horse racing seemed to indicate the trend of the times.

At the moment Washington's police force is under attack by the local papers because of a murder allegedly committed by hirelings of a gambling ring.

Explosion Of Gas Stove Sets Fire To Home

J. W. Marsh Family Receive Serious Burns As Home Burns

FIREMEN PREVENT SPREAD OF FLAMES

House Virtually Consumed Before Local Firemen Reach Scene

Explosion of a gasoline stove Monday afternoon destroyed a house at 903 West Second street and seriously burned Mrs. J. W. Marsh and her son, James. J. W. Marsh, her husband, was less seriously burned.

The three were rushed to the Bivings hospital and given emergency treatment. Marsh was discharged from the hospital. Mrs. Marsh and James were resting well Tuesday afternoon.

Their burns were described as serious but not dangerous.

Explosion of the stove engulfed the house in flames and it was virtually destroyed before firemen could reach it. An adjacent house caught fire, but it was put out by firemen.

Fire chief Harry Lee brought the injured people to the hospital when an ambulance call carried the same address on East Second street.

The fire alarm was originally turned in to firemen John Hildreth for East Second street, but he succeeded in getting the correct address before starting the run.

An ambulance rushed to the east part of town when advice of the fire was in that section.

The house was demolished. Firemen fought hard to prevent flames from spreading.

Japanese Mandate Violates Art. 19 Of Naval Treaty

LONDON, (AP)—Authoritative quarters said Tuesday that any provision of Japanese mandate in Pacific Islands would be a breach of Article 19 of the Washington naval treaty.

This would automatically bring the question into naval discussions. Officials displayed great interest in the mandate situation at Geneva, where a Japanese diplomat was questioned concerning reports of construction of naval bases on former German islands.

Tie Vote In Senate State Affairs Group

Committee Votes Five-All To Consider Authorization Of Relief Bonds

AUSTIN, (AP)—The vote in the senate state affairs committee Friday resulted in an unfavorable report on a bill by Senator Roy Sandford of Belton, to authorize $3,500,000 of state relief bonds remaining of the $20,000,000 issue.

Vote on a motion to report favorable was five-all. The committee was similarly deadlocked on a motion to report unfavorably. A minority report was ordered, however, assuring floor consideration.

Light Vote In Election Here

Total Of 400 Votes Polled At 2 o'Clock Tuesday

Four Big Spring boxes, which carry approximately two-thirds of the county potential vote, were experiencing a very light vote at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the general election.

The four totaled only 400 votes at that time.

Precinct No. 3 led with 213 votes. Election judges were expecting more spirited voting until the polls close at 7 p. m. Precinct 2 had several voting when the check was made and many were voting in the Big No. 3. The other two boxes were witnessing a quickening of interest.

Indications were that the total county vote would run over 1,000 but would hardly pass 1,500.

No reports as to how voting on one local office, that of county clerk, was going were available.

Observers expressed the belief that the one proposed constitutional amendment which stood the best chance of carrying here was that of taxing university land for school purposes, and that the one most certain of defeat was the so-called "tax shifting" amendment, or amendment No. 3 on the ballot.

J. C. Penney Store Burned At Uvalde

UVALDE, (AP)—The most disastrous fire in the history of this town—the home town of Vice-President John Garner—raged for an hour Monday night and destroyed the stocks of the L. Schwartz and J. C. Penney stores in the business section. Damage was estimated at between $50,000 and $60,000.

The fire originated in the grocery department of the Schwartz store and explosions from several cans of cattle dip sent the flames racing through the building. The stocks of the Schwartz and Penney stores were either destroyed by fire or water damaged beyond use.

Republicans Leading In Two States

Perfect Weather From Coast To Coast; Violence In Some Sections

(By Associated Press)

Scattered returns brought claims of a democratic sweep Tuesday in a nationwide march to the polls for the New Deal's first big ballot box test.

Perfect weather from coast to coast encouraged a heavy vote, but elections were marred by some reports of violence.

Republicans had something to cheer about in leads in Michigan and Kansas.

Political influence of James E. Ferguson, for twenty years dominant figure in Texas politics, subject to a new test in the general election, with more than a million Texans eligible to vote, was the spotlight of interest centered squarely on the fate of eight proposed amendments to the state constitution. All were opposed by Ferguson.

Dr. Joseph King, negro, brother of State Representative William King of Illinois, running for election as state senator, was reported kidnapped in Chicago. His assailants were described as two white men in a car.

Three Dead In Pennsylvania

HAZELTON, Pa. (AP)—Three persons were shot to death and 19 others, including six women, were wounded Monday night when machine gun fire swept a democratic political parade at Kaysville, a mining village five miles south of here.

The crowd surged toward a brick residence from which marchers said the fire was directed. State police battled to keep them from dynamiting the house.

The riot climaxed a year of factional friction in the little town's politics.

The democrats were swinging down Kaysville's main street, banners waving and red fire flaring.

Suddenly shots blazed out from both sides of the street, raking the marchers with a deadly rain of fire. From darkened second floor windows of two homes, said by police to be those of Joseph Bruno, republican leader, and his nephew, Paul, came a spray of bullets.

Wild confusion developed with most of the 600 residents of the mining village crowding the main street.

Sheriff's deputies augmented by a dozen state troopers assisted in carrying the dead and wounded to hospitals and private homes.

Scores of the marchers accompanied the wounded for treatment.

THIS BUREAUCRACY IS ONE WORTH WHILE

This word "bureaucracy" is a very horrid word, indeed, and we do well to fear it. But the particular bureaucracy represented by the Tennessee Valley Authority seems to be an outfit that moves fast and keeps its eyes on the ball every minute.

Within recent weeks there was completed a deal which the city of Knoxville, Tenn., with its environs, receives electric current from the TVA. Terms of this deal are well worth examining.

Knoxville originally planned to build its own distributing system to handle the current, and a PWA loan was lined up for the purpose. Had this been done, the Tennessee Public Service Company, which was supplying Knoxville with electric power, would have faced ruin.

So it was arranged that Knoxville should buy out this company's distribution system, instead.

Knoxville, of course, had to go into debt to make this purchase, and a 10 per cent surcharge had to be placed on the new electricity rates to retire the debt. Even including that surcharge, however, Knoxville consumers will now get their current at rate reductions which—in the case of people who use as much as 240 kilowatt hours

Billy Morrison To Wrestle Here Tonight

The Big Spring Athletic Club should be packed tonight when Eddie O'Shea and Gorilla Pogi go together in the main event.

They bar nothing to win, and choking and gouging is right in their line. Fans have long been hoping to see the two tear each other apart and they will probably come very near doing it in the match which is scheduled to be a finish affair.

Herman Fukker of Big Spring, state and N.B.A. referee, will officiate in the main event. The wild Irishman, Eddie, almost had a mix-up with Benny Wilson a couple of weeks ago when he was refereeing the bout with Charlie Heard, and O'Shea has told local promoters he will not wrestle in any match in which Wilson is an official. Benny tried to prevent Eddie from using illegal tactics.

From a spectacular standpoint the semi-final should be the best. It will be something new to most fans in this section. Mrs. Eddie O'Shea, who uses more legitimate holds than does her husband, will wrestle with the clever Billy Morrison from Amarillo.

A good prelin between two local amateurs is also on the card. O'Shea and Pogi use the pile driver, Boston leg split, and crab holds. The matches start at 8 p. m., 403 Runnels street.

Final Rally Scheduled Tonight For Howard County Game & Fish Protective Ass'n. At Crawford

Everything is all set for the final rally of the Howard county chapter of the Game and Fish Protective association, Tuesday night, at the Crawford Hotel ball room. About 300 invitations have been mailed out to sportsmen of Howard and other counties. The entertainment that will be offered the sportsmen will be the high lights of the evening.

J. Frank Elder, state president of the association, will deliver the principal address of the evening. Mr. Elder will explain in detail the objects of the association. Mr. Elder has traveled all over the state in the past few years in the interest of the wild life of Texas and he is well informed. He will explain the legislative program being sponsored by the association. Texas ranks first in wild game fish resources and yet are spending less money than most any other state in the union. He states that unless Texas is able to get a universal hunting and fishing license, and a better system of conservation, can not hope to improve the hunting and fishing condition of the state. It is estimated that one million persons fish during one calendar year in Texas and less than 30,000 persons pay anything to support the Game and Fish Department to stock lakes and streams. There is only about 30 per cent of the people who hunt wild game that ever pays a hunting license. Mr. Elder states that one crew will eat up at least five dollars worth of feed and other agriculture products each year, saying nothing about the millions of game and song birds that these pest destroy. There are literally hundreds of predatory animals, fowls and ground vermin that are constantly preying on the game life of Texas and not one dime is being spent to exterminate them, except by the U. S. government and this work is confined to large predatory animals, such as the wolf, mountain lions and bobcats. The Cattle and Goat Raisers' association of the state have been spending some money in the extermination of the larger predatory.

Mr. Elder says that the bob white quail will thrive in the northern parts of Howard county, and if the chickens were properly protected, they too, would return to this part of the state. Elder says that east and southeast Texas of which could be shut off painlessly before it really hurt anybody.

Such people might profitably listen to Emma Goldman.

This revolutionary lady describes, in a recent issue of "The Nation" the sad plight of the old-time Russian revolutionaries. She tells how they suffered and fought and endured dire punishment to bring about the overthrow of the czar's government, and how they hailed the 1917 overturn as a new dawn.

Now they dare not enter Russia. The revolution ran right out from under them. They have found that Russia simply swapped one tyranny for another.

Once a revolution starts, it is very apt to get out of all control and to head in a direction which those who worked for it never remotely desired. The wishful talkers in this country might meditate briefly on that fact.

A TIP ON REVOLUTIONS

A number of well-meaning Americans have grown fond of talking about revolution. People who haven't the slightest desire to mount any barricades or face any firing squads will say, glibly, "We need a revolution in this country"—as if a revolution were a pleasant little step in social evolution.

Sweetwater football fans have been doing a lot of figuring. In fact, they think they have it all figured out how they'll get back into the title fray. They say in part: "San Angelo is expected to be much stronger than Big Spring in the district race this year. Sweetwater fans feel certain the Ponies will be able to handle the Colorado Wolves in the next encounter. Such being the case, the fans are primed to see the Ponies enter the Thanksgiving Day battle with San Angelo, despite all dope odds, with a triple tie at stake. In event San Angelo does win over Big Spring, as expected, and Sweetwater should be able to handle an over-confident San Angelo team, the district would go into a triple tie, with the flip of a coin deciding the winner."

Well sir, it's not hard to tell that B. H. McLain figured all that out. When the Steers took the Mustangs out, 19 to 0, the Bitter Creek fans made all kinds of promises about how they were going to help Big Spring win Angelo. But now they've decided the other way around. They're going to leave Big Spring out in the cold.

The Steers are bound to have a hard time for them; the Badgers are down on them; and the Mustangs won't have anything to do with them. That leaves Colorado, and the Wolves haven't had much to say in the title race. Still, it's comforting to know that somebody's on our side.

The big thing in favor of the Cats is the fact that the game is to be played on their own grid. That's bad for the Steers, at least it always has proved rather disastrous for the Herd. There's no denying the fact that Big Spring has the classier backfield combination, but we can't help but believe that the Bobcat forward wall will be plenty scrappy, maybe too scrappy.

The big Brislow apparently feels quite confident of victory. Last night a fan asked him how he thought his team would come out, and Obie said most of the sports writers were picking San Angelo. Obie's words belie his feelings. The Cats have him a bit puzzled, but he doesn't seem very troubled.

Benny Wilson, the wrestler, referee, and what-not, has quit the Abilene Athletic Club. They say there's a little friction between the boys down there.

Jack Dean, the third Dean to enter the baseball world, has a wonderful chance before him. If he makes good with the San Antonio Missions the St. Louis Browns will get him.

The Houston club took Dizzy and Paul away from San Antonio, and they went to the Cardinals. Fred Ankenman made a bid for Jack but it was just a bit too late. Did that tickle the Missions!

A number of the merchants are giving a big pow-wow for the footers the best opportunity for game and fish propagation, due to the splendid food and water conditions of that part of the state. East Texas could and should be made a hunters and fishermen's paradise.

The first thing the Howard county chapter of the association is undertaking is the extermination of the crows and the propagating and protection of quail. Mr. Elder says that in his opinion large quantities of quail are being killed during the open season on doves, and the only way this can be corrected is by having a good warden in each county, and this can be secured when all hunters will have to pay a small hunting license in his home county. He recommends that the one dollar collected for license be left in the county where collected. He also recommends that each county have a free service game commission. This commission would add much strength to the state commission.

All sportsmen should be present sportsmen of this and other counties in helping to make better hunting and fishing in all parts of the state. This can only be done by and through the combined efforts of those that go afield and stream.

Froggies To Meet Wolves

They Don't Believe The Big Bad Wolf Is Dead

(Special To The Herald)

FORT WORTH—The Big Bad Wolf is dead—so they say in certain quarters, but so one connects with the Horned Frog football camp at T. C. U. believes the report so far as it applies to the Wolves of Loyola University at New Orleans.

The Frogs journey to the Crescent City this week-end to meet the Wolves, and are busily engaged in preparing for a tough encounter. When the Wolves went up against the Rice Owls, class of the Southwest Conference to date, in September the Rice eleven came off with the long end of a 12-to-0 score.

Coach R. H. "Doc" Erskine would not look kindly upon another defeat from a Southwest Conference visitor. His squad will have had two weeks rest when the whistle blows for the T. C. U. tilt next Saturday, while the Frogs will have a round with the Baylor Bears and the train trip to New Orleans behind them. So the Christians are making preparations to go up against a tough foe.

Last Saturday, for almost the first time this season, the Frogs came out of a game without a major injury. During accidents in practice sessions, they should present practically their full strength against Loyola, for the first time since the Tulsa contest.

Dutch Kline's hand permitted him to see some action against Baylor. He should be able to go whenever called upon next Saturday. Melvin Diggs, only letter end, finds his ankle sufficiently improved that he again can be in harness. Drew Ellis, guard, who injured a shoulder in the Tulsa fray, is again o. k.

The squad is quite frankly looking ball boys out at the City Park this afternoon. In a way that's all very fine. It shows a spirit of loyalty, cooperation, and support, but in our humble estimation it's not exactly the right time and way to show it. Maybe they're wrong. We hope so.

One of the finest things shown recently is the cooperation of merchants. For several years Big Spring has been known as the poorest football town in West Texas. Unless the boys get a lot of encouragement they're not going to do their best. It's just human nature.

Another very encouraging sign, but in a different line of support, is that of golfing. We venture to say that the number of golfers in Big Spring has increased at least three or four hundred per cent within the past year.

CALLS ALL-BRAN NATIONAL NATURAL LAXATIVE

Delicious Cereal Checked His Constipation

Here is an unsolicited letter from Mr. Daniels:

"For many years I have been habitually constipated, and have used all sorts of laxatives. So, in fairness to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, I heartily claim it to be a most wonderful remedy for constipation.

"Need I tell you that I have long since ceased using laxatives? Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the National Natural Laxative. If it were used by every family in the United States for breakfast, we would have a much healthier race of people."—Mr. John Daniels, 1090 Third St., North Bergen, N. J.

Tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN furnishes "bulk" to exercise the intestines and vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN also supplies iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this food much pleasanter than risking pills and drugs? Two table-spoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

school superintendent. The game usually is played as an Armistice Day event. The holiday falls on Sunday this year, however, and the game originally was set for Saturday.

The game is to be played at 3:30 Friday afternoon at Newman Stadium here. The time for the game is set somewhat later than usual in hope that a larger number will be able to attend at that hour.

Changing of the game from Saturday to Friday afternoon was approved by officials of both schools.

Steer-Bobcat Cards On Sale

Tickets for the Steer-Bobcat football game will go on sale in the principal's office at the high school in the morning. Reserved seats will be $1, while general admission for adults will be 75c and for students 25c.

According to Prin. George H. Gentry the duets will go on sale at a downtown location within a few days or so.

Bronco Squad To Scrimmage

The Big Spring Jr. Bronco football squad will receive its first practice this afternoon in scrimmages with the Devils at Steer stadium.

Coach Bass has had his boys out for practice only a short time, and doesn't expect them to show much against Ben's outfit.

Bass was met by more than eighty boys in the first call for practice, but was forced to cut the number in half because of lack of equipment.

Coach Jones has taken over the quarterback duties for Bass and will do the signal calling as well as most of the leather lugging.

TROOPS INVADE FLORIDA TOWN TO QUELL MOB

Ordered out by Gov. Dave Sholtz, national guardsmen are shown marching into Marianna, Fla., to prevent a mob from storming the county jail in search of an unidentified negro who engaged in a fight with a white man. Civil authorities rescued the negro from the crowd, hid him in jail and held the mob off until the soldiers arrived. The outbreak was the second to disturb the little northwestern Florida town in two days. The night before a mob lynched another negro, Claude Neal, for killing a white girl, and hung his mutilated body to a tree on the courthouse lawn. (Associated Press Photo)

America Suffers Eighty Times Each Year From Major Disasters, Red Cross Reports

RECORDS which date back a quarter of a century listing the disaster relief operations of the American Red Cross show that an average of eighty major catastrophes, menacing life and property, occur each year in the United States.

The type of disaster hazard of greatest frequency is the tornado. Red Cross records show that these dangerous windstorms, originating largely in the hills and mountains of the Middle West, occur most often in the spring months, but also may wreak havoc in southern states in winter months.

During the past year 25 such storms occurred. For the first time in decades the frequency of the tornado was equaled by another type of catastrophe—forest fires. Due to the drought stricken condition of the west, 25 grave forest fires occurred and but for the vigilance of various agencies, including the forest rangers, the Red Cross and the work of the Civilian Conservation Corps, vast acreage of forests would have been denuded by the flames.

Red Cross records show, however, that the two most devastating disasters of the year resulted from a hurricane and tidal wave which struck the Gulf Coast of Texas, taking 28 lives and a freak flood which washed down from the mountains in Los Angeles County sweeping 44 persons to death.

The tornado is the most frequent catastrophe causing loss of life and property. These remarkable photographs show three stages of one of these storms which struck in Oklahoma.

A new record for frequency of hurricanes was established during the year when the Weather Bureau recorded 21 of these tropical cyclones. Five reached the United States mainland, striking between August 4 and September 16, 1933. For the first time in many years one of these tropical disturbances caused devastation as far up the Atlantic Coast as Maryland. In the latter storm the Red Cross aided 1,564 families, of whom 1,049 were in the Chesapeake Bay region.

In all, 32 states suffered some type of disaster during the year. The Red Cross aided 119,000 persons in these states and expended $1,567,048 in relief to them. Of this sum $647,300 was appropriated from the treasury of the national organization.

Serious floods in Idaho, Washington and in Iowa; a malarial epidemic in Louisiana; typhoid in Vermont; a school bus crash in Florida, which killed eleven children; and two explosions—one of oil tanks in Rhode Island and another of a sawmill boiler in Missouri—all required their measures of Red Cross assistance.

An important task undertaken by the Disaster Relief Service of the Red Cross during the year was development of broader preventive measures against catastrophes, through holding 28 training schools in which were assembled more than two thousand persons. They discussed particular hazards of the areas represented, and plans for meeting calls should disaster strike.

All of the Red Cross disaster work is supported through the annual roll call, held from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving. By joining the Red Cross as a member every adult citizen participates in this vital humanitarian work of relief.

Marian Gordon

by JEANNE BOWMAN

Chapter 27 COMPROMISE

"Marian, Ian dear... open your eyes."

Lon was bending over her. He had carried her to the patio, dashed water over her face and now was smoothing her hair back from her brow.

Slowly Marian opened her eyes. She saw the table in all of its birthday glory, the four-tiered cake with its pink roses... she laughed hysterically.

"It's that hot kitchen," Lon declared savagely. "You've worked it there all day. Wouldn't be surprised if you walked home from town... good heavens, Ian, you didn't do that, did you? No wonder you fainted."

"We'll get that electric stove back in running order tomorrow... your lie still, I'll finish dinner... poor kid."

Satisfied she had regained consciousness, he left her in the cool of the patio, while he went to the kitchen.

Marian heard dishes rattling, heard one crash, watched the cleared away she couldn't gather her wits about her. McSwain had told Brown that he had a man in mind for foreman; "just the fellow," he had said. Could he have been thinking of Lon?

Silver hadn't had time to see McSwain after they reached the house. But the valley was small, perhaps she had heard the trader people talking. She might have learned from them that Lon was looking for work.

Perhaps learning these things, Silver had bided her time until she met Lon, alone.

Lon came in from the kitchen with a tray. "Feel better, honey?"

Marian sat up, swinging her slippers to the floor, ran a hand through her rumpled hair and grinned like a rufous child. "So ashamed, Lon," she said.

"You ought to be," he teased. "Here I come home bursting with good news and you faint when you hear it."

Marian tried to smile, but it was a pathetic attempt. How could she tell him his good news was bad news to her? Could she tell him what she knew about McSwain? Could she spill his joy after these weeks of hopeless job hunting? She couldn't just yet... she must have time, and he must enjoy his dinner, his birthday gifts. Later, perhaps she might break it gently. Lon's generosity with the water he had used to bring her out of the faint necessitated another change of dress. She looked in the mirror, her cheeks were like tiger lilies, freckles standing pale gold against their pallor. She dabbed on some rouge, slipped the orange organically over her head, it was cheerful, faintly ruffled, a party frock for a birthday dinner.

Lon enjoyed his dinner. The steaks were burned on one side, but he'd burned them; the potatoes were lumpy, the lettuce had wilted, having been set on the warming oven while Lon rescued the steaks. Marian pretended to eat, pretended to laugh, sipped the sauterne, and nibbled at the cake.

With the twilight came a cool breeze. Marian sat in the circle of Lon's arm while he talked. The presents had been opened. There was a book on wood staining and carving, Lon's hobby, from her brother; a cigarette case of sandalwood from one sister, a hand knit tie from the other, and from her mother and father a check for fifty dollars.

"That will tide us over until I get my first pay check," Lon said.

Marian didn't answer. Lon turned on the radio, tuned into an orchestra program and silently he listened to Mendelssohn's "Fingal's Cave." Listening, Marian thought her mind was like the melody, the ceaseless quest of waves washing up on a rock bound coast. Would she continue beating herself against a destiny that seemed as unrelentless as rock? Or had her habit of battling for principles not related to her becoming so much a part of her life that she would soon cease to regard it as anything but the monopoly of living.

"Ian, Lon confided as the overture ceased, "you haven't lived up to my expectations."

"What?" she asked, startled.

"I expected you to fight my working for McSwain."

"Why?" she asked, alarmed.

"I was forewarned I might expect it."

"Silver?" she questioned.

"No, McSwain. He said you'd been reared to believe that everything his particular political faction sponsored was necessarily wrong; that you couldn't believe him capable of carrying on with honor."

Marian was silent. Did this mean McSwain had taken her warning and was seeking to tell her so through Lon? But if so, why had he mentioned it.

"How about it, Ian?"

"I believe that you will be completely honorable, no matter for whom you work."

"Thanks, dear, but you haven't answered my question. Is that how you feel about McSwain?"

"I feel that McSwain is like the thieves you mentioned that night in the court room. If he is honorable, it's because he's afraid he'll be put on the spot if he isn't."

"Do you think it's right to let your father's political prejudices sway your judgment like that?"

"My father has nothing to do with this," she answered quietly. "I know, and because you are going to work for him, I will tell you this. McSwain did bribe Brown to pass his work."

"Oh now Ian," Lon laughed easily. "You don't think the District Attorney would have let him get off without a conviction if he had been guilty, do you?"

"I don't think the District Attorney's desires had anything to do with it. He knew, but he was hampered by lack of evidence."

"And I suppose my little red-head has this evidence," he returned lightly.

"I have," she answered, "Lon will you drive me in town with you in the morning?"

"Sorry dear, McSwain's picking me up, will the next day do?"

Marian decided it would. She had promised McSwain she would hold her hand until there was reason to do otherwise, and with Lon as foreman he would be forced to build according to specification. Perhaps, she thought, as she lay in bed watching the curtains billow in like sails; perhaps that is why McSwain gave him the work, to prove to me that he can be honest.

Reassured, she saw Lon off in the morning, then turned back to the house. It seemed lonely without Lon. She wondered what it would be like having a husband come into dinner in the evening, going off to work in the morning, leaving millions of men in the world.

He'd be happier.

She spent some time in the garden, and was working there when Hero's bark brought her to a realization that the telephone was ringing insistently.

"Telegram," came the voice, "I want to speak to Mrs. Lionel Casad."

"Speaking."

"I will read this wire relayed to Sacramento from Valley View. Mother dangerously ill, come at once.—Ed. Gordon."

Marian turned from the telephone with a confused memory of having given an answer that she would leave at once. The car was there. She blessed McSwain for taking Lon with him. She'd call the East Brazos, there would be a telephone in the construction office.

She succeeded in reaching Lionel almost immediately.

"Lon," she said, "I've just received word that mother is dangerously ill, for me to come at once. Do you mind if I drive up?"

"Of course not, Ian, I only wish I were there to take you."

"I'll call you tonight if I can reach a telephone. Lon, you'll take good care of yourself for me, won't you?"

"Why certainly, Ian, don't you worry about me. Just a minute," he turned from the telephone, talked to someone, then turned back.

"You'd better take Hero with you. I'll feel better, there are so many men on the roads nowadays, and they won't try to board the car if he's in sight... and Ian, don't drive too fast... when you're tempted remember, you want to get there without having to stop for repairs."

"I'll be careful, good-bye dear."

In ten minutes, with Hero at her side, she was driving out of the tract. Thank heaven, her mother had sent her that money, and she hadn't given the change to Lon. It would carry her home.

(To Be Continued)

Shins Phillips will leave Wednesday for Dallas, where he will attend a meeting of the executive board of the Texas State Druggists' association meeting there to select the site of the 1935 convention. Mr. Phillips is chairman of the board. He stated that either Dallas or San Antonio would be selected, since those two cities have added for the convention.

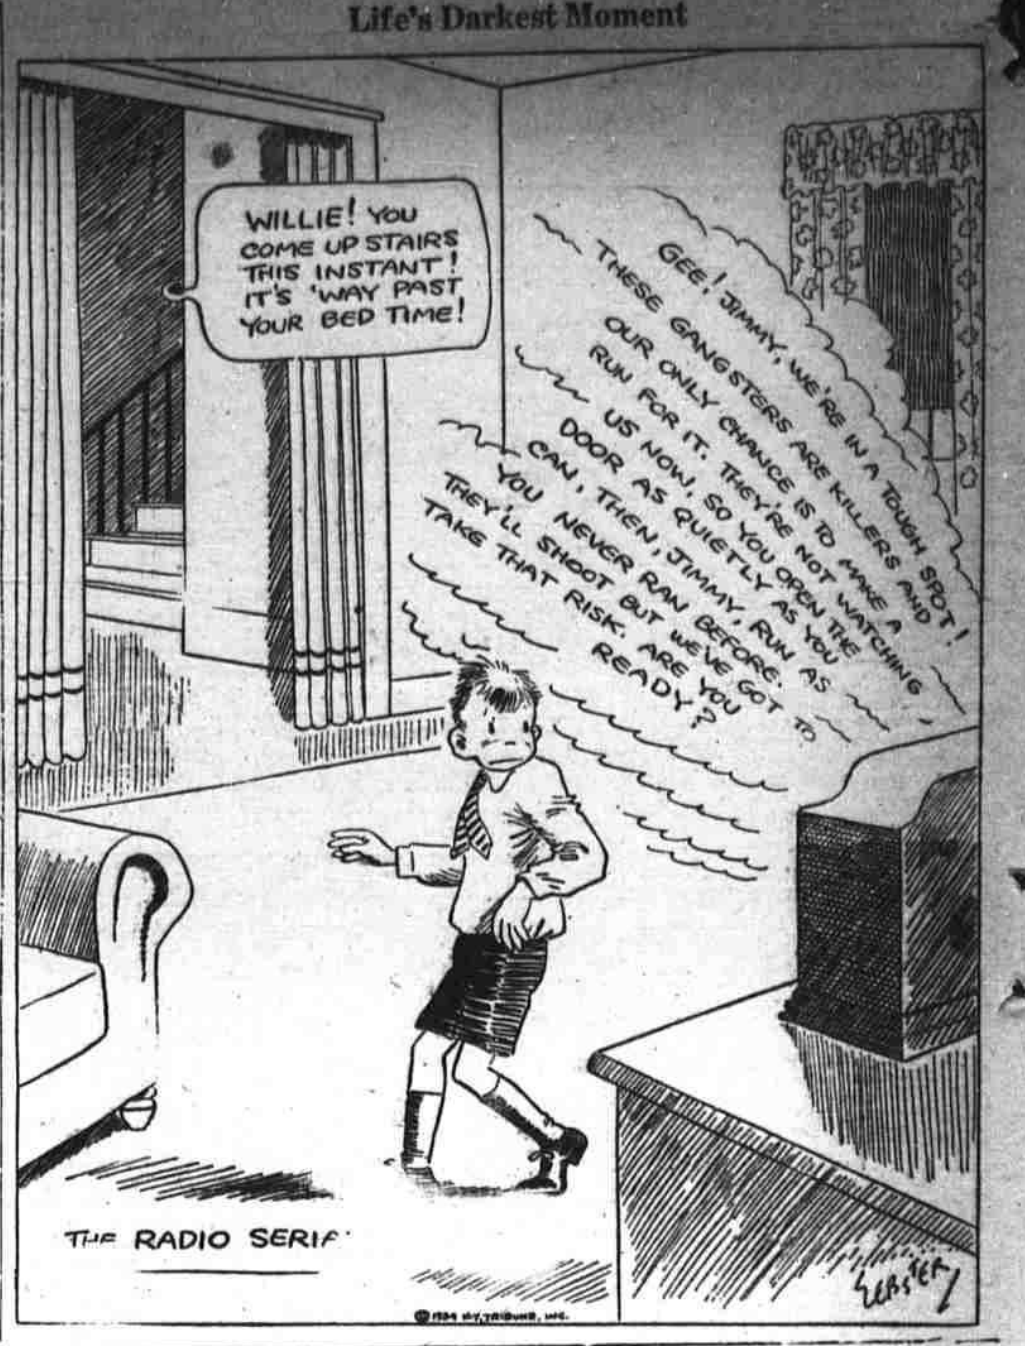

G. I. Derrance, real estate operator of San Angelo, was a business visitor in Big Spring Tuesday.

U. S. Attorney Garnett, on the basis of his inability to stamp out gambling, has publicly stated it should be legalized and controlled.

Ambition— Socialists of the 26th New York District must have a diabolical sense of humor. Otherwise they never would have endorsed Hamilton Fish, leading Republican Communist-baiter in Congress, for reelection.

Fish, according to his intimates is a candidate for President. He represents Dutchess county, in which Franklin Roosevelt happens to live, and the fact it always has gone Republican probably gives him courage. He is 46 years old, helped organize the American Legion and consistently has been active in its affairs.

The Congressional Record has carried many of his doggerel poems kidding the political opposition. His latest contribution to American humor was an All-American lineup for President Roosevelt's much publicized football team. Richberg, Tugwell and Frankfurter were commanding positions but FDR didn't even figure in the substitute list.

Fish's secretary is also secretary-treasurer of America, Inc., an organization which defends the Constitution more ardently even than does the American Liberty League.

Blocked— In the old days a bank examiner used to descend suddenly on some bank in any given town and start appraising its financial condition.

The practice then was for the bank first visited to call all the other banks in town and warn them to get their books out.

Comptroller of the Currency J. F. O'Connor has inaugurated a new system. He sends his examiners into towns in crews. A Treasury agent arrives simultaneously at each financial institution.

Congress conservatives are organizing for a fight based on expected Supreme Court decisions adverse to some parts of New Deal.

Southern protected industries fear tariff slashes. "Build a new home" supplants home modernization program. Higher living costs increase relief burden and encourage demands for higher wages. Anti-monopoly provisions of new NRA law may be strengthened. Federal crime sleuths are required to be expert gunmen.

NEW YORK By James McMullin

Financial circles have about as much interest in the outcome of today's elections as a Fiji Islander has in football. Maine put the crumblers on their hopes of getting anywhere politically this year and since September they've become resigned to the inevitable.

The only political question that stirs even a glimmer of concern is whether enough conservatives will be elected to help the President defeat radical legislative proposals that are sure to be offered in 1935. New York believes the East and South will contribute enough of these to prevent cure-all theorists from running wild.

Even the Sinclair contest in California fails to stir much excitement. Conservatives would like to see him licked on general principles but even if he wins they will console themselves with the thought that his efforts to put a radical political philosophy into practice will probably react in their favor.

This indifference doesn't mean that New York permanently abandoned its hope of regaining political ascendancy. For the present the idea is to string with the President to halt the menace of a rising radical tide. Once this is accomplished it will be a different story. There won't be anything academic about Wall Street's interest in politics two years from now.

State— The Democratic state ticket is almost sure to carry New York but paradoxically both wings of the party may suffer a loss of prestige even in victory. Governor Lehman's majority is almost sure to compare unfavorably with the one he piled up in 1933—which would be something of a black eye for Farley leadership.

That would be O. K. with Tammany except for the probability that the Tiger's pet candidate—Frank Taylor for Comptroller—will take a beating from Fusionist McGoldrick. If the situation develops on these lines it foreshadows a mad scramble for dominance in the state organization between now and 1936.

The Republicans on the other hand will profit from defeat to the extent of unified party leadership under old guard auspices. This will not be true if some miracle elects Bob Moses—because Moses would take pleasure in busting the upstate machine into slivers.

Help— Next to the utilities heavy industry is probably more consistently opposed to the New Deal than any other section of American business. Nevertheless the durable goods companies will be special objects of administration solicitude in the coming months.

They will benefit from every measure the government can think up to haul them out of the rut. Plans to help the railroads are being pushed as much for their sake as for the railroads' own. The increasing emphasis on the housing program is aimed primarily at giving them a boost. If the Securities Act is further amended the main idea will be to promote capital expenditures by making it easier to finance them.

The government's concern is not inspired by affection for U. S. Steel or Baldwin Locomotive. Such companies will get the breaks from Washington chiefly because they hold the master key to reemployment. Experts are unanimous that no appreciable and permanent dent can be made in the ranks of the jobless until heavy industry is back on an even keel.

A keen observer explains the slow progress of the housing program by saying that too many $5,000 houses have been sold for nothing down and $35 a month—including seven per cent interest. This arrangement assures virtually perpetual payments with repairs extra. So he asks how can poor mortals buy more houses?

Copper— Copper circles predict a general curtailment of American production. Kennecott is expected to cut its output 20 per cent. Calumet & Hecla, Consolidated and Phelps Dodge will probably follow suit. NRA price fixing hasn't been effective because of competition from bootleg copper. Insiders believe American copper supremacy is passing.

Alliance— Informed New Yorkers learn of a new line-up in Eastern Europe with Hungary signing a secret military and economic alliance with Germany. Germany appears to be slowly working out of the isolation imposed by France. It looks as if Germany, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Poland will form a combination opposed to France, Italy and Russia.

A sign of the shift in Hungarian policy is General Goemboes' about-face. Hitherto he has tried to keep a balance between Germany and Italy despite a personal preference for the Nazis. Now he has definitely thrown Mussolini over in favor of Hitler.

That would be O. K. with Tammany except for the probability that the Tiger's pet candidate—Frank Taylor for Comptroller—will take a beating from Fusionist McGoldrick. If the situation develops on these lines it foreshadows a mad scramble for dominance in the state organization between now and 1936.

The Republicans on the other hand will profit from defeat to the extent of unified party leadership under old guard auspices. This will not be true if some miracle elects Bob Moses—because Moses would take pleasure in busting the upstate machine into slivers.

Help— Next to the utilities heavy industry is probably more consistently opposed to the New Deal than any other section of American business. Nevertheless the durable goods companies will be special objects of administration solicitude in the coming months.

They will benefit from every measure the government can think up to haul them out of the rut. Plans to help the railroads are being pushed as much for their sake as for the railroads' own. The increasing emphasis on the housing program is aimed primarily at giving them a boost. If the Securities Act is further amended the main idea will be to promote capital expenditures by making it easier to finance them.

The government's concern is not inspired by affection for U. S. Steel or Baldwin Locomotive. Such companies will get the breaks from Washington chiefly because they hold the master key to reemployment. Experts are unanimous that no appreciable and permanent dent can be made in the ranks of the jobless until heavy industry is back on an even keel.

A keen observer explains the slow progress of the housing program by saying that too many $5,000 houses have been sold for nothing down and $35 a month—including seven per cent interest. This arrangement assures virtually perpetual payments with repairs extra. So he asks how can poor mortals buy more houses?

Under cover of the noise, witnesses said several automobiles pulled out from the curb and sped off.

President Motors To Hyde Park Polls HYDE PARK (AP)— President Roosevelt motored through a downpour Tuesday to Old Town Hall and cast his ballot in the biennial national election.

There was little doubt that he voted a straight Democratic ticket headed by a friend, Governor Lehman, and Senator Copeland. Mrs. Roosevelt and the president's mother voted with him.

Missouri Disorders Fatal To Two Men HOLLAND, Missouri (AP)—Two men were shot to death, two critically wounded and several negroes beaten, in election disorders in this area Tuesday.

The disorders supposedly were prompted by attempts of negroes to vote. Race feeling flared elsewhere in Southern Missouri recently.

Horace Ferrell, white man, and an unidentified negro were slain. Ferrell's father, John, and Clarence Posey, a prosperous farmer, were critically wounded.

The Ferrells and Poseys were reported fired on while bringing negroes into town to vote.

Sport Plants BY ALAN GOULD 'ON THE SPOT' Burly Bill Ingram has been 'on the spot' in some quarters this season because his University of California Bears haven't played the kind of football that suits all alumni, but the one-time quarterback star of the U. S. Naval Academy says he learned to "take it as far back as 16 years ago. As Russ Newland relays the story, it was during Coach Ingram's academy days that he became one of the famous "soats" of the gridiron, along with Bill Saunders, now coach at the Colorado School of Mines. "Navy was playing the Great Lakes naval training station team at the Polo Grounds," relates Ingram. "We had the strongest team in the history of the academy, with GH Doble as coach. The game was to determine the mythical championship of the United States. "The training station, coached by Lieutenant McReavy, had a powerful team. On it were such players as Charlie Bachman of Notre Dame, now Michigan State coach, and "Erickson," later with Washington and Jefferson—he played against California in the Tournament of Roses game. "A TOUGH SPOT The first period was close and hard fought. We pushed over a touchdown in the second. The third quarter was scoreless. The training station players seemed to weaken in the fourth period, as the name was drawing to a close. "Navy began to gain ground. After an 83-yard drive we had the ball with first down on the training station team's seven-yard line. At that point I took the ball on a "weak side" play to the defensive left. The opposition was baffled because I traveled the seven yards standing up, without anyone touching me. I fell across the goal line with the upper part of my body with the ball across. "The defense had been faked to the right side. Erickson was standing at the back of the end zone, out of the play. His face was a picture of dejection. But as I fell the ball squirted out of my arms directly to Erickson. A forward pass couldn't have been more perfect. "Erickson caught the ball. For a second he stood there, seemingly thunderstruck. Then he realized it was a free ball and ran for the near sideline. Everyone was out of the play but Erickson and he was sprinting toward the goal. It was a certain touchdown. The Twelfth Man "Just as Erickson ran past the Navy bench, Saunders a substitute leaped to his feet, ran onto the field and dropped Erickson in his tracks. "Pandemonium broke loose. The superintendent of the Naval Academy came on the field and awarded a touchdown to the training station. The training station kicked the extra point. Saunders was barred from further participation in academy athletics but later exonerated on evidence his action was the result of a confused order from the coach. "Ingram and Saunders have been "on the spot" since that fateful day.

This makes the second victory for the team this year, and as yet, they have not been defeated. The boys in the Forsan line-up were: John Camp Adams, Marshall Scudday, Rayford Liles, Bobby Asbury, and James Madding. We hope the Forsan boys will have the same good luck when they meet their next foe.

Daughter of Carl Ramsey Injured

The two year old daughter of Carl Ramsey was seriously injured last week when she ran into a running car. She was crossing the main street of Forsan and, as she was looking at a toy in her hand, she did not see the passing car. If Mrs. Cecil Williams, who was driving Jeff Pike's car, had not been going slow, the child would probably have been killed. The child was rushed to the Big Spring Hospital, where it was found that her hip had been broken. Patsy was reported to be resting some better Sunday.

The Forsan Lower Grades Have Parties and Picnics

The Forsan lower grades were affected by that Halloween spirit too, last week. Mrs. Conger and Miss Nealon entertained their pupils with Halloween parties. Bobbing for apples and other games for the occasion were played. Candies, marshmallows and apples were served. Miss Moore and Miss Turner took their pupils on picnics. I am sure they all had a fine time because the other rooms were disappointed because they didn't have a party or a picnic.

Louise Lightfoot Entertains

Louise Lightfoot of Forsan delightfully entertained a number of her girl friends Wednesday afternoon with a Halloween party at her home. The afternoon was spent in playing Halloween games and stunts. Favors were toy balloons. Candy was served to Ovedia Hartley, Ruby Mae McClesky, Mildred Norman, Inez Reno, Lenodine Pike, Patsy Gene Leatherwood and Jack Lightfoot.

Minnie Lee Campbell Entertains With Dance

Miss Minnie Lee Campbell entertained with a dance at her home in the west Continental Camp Friday evening for the Forsan ball game. At the refreshment hour everyone went to the kitchen where pop corn was popped. Those attending were: Marshall Scudday, Rayford Liles, Woodrow Scudday, Donnell Tucker, George Johnson, Snooks Sandler, John Camp Adams, James Madding, Nova Holloway, Emma Hoard, Anita McDonald, Doris Sandler and Leona Sanver. Those present reported a grand time.

Mrs. Bradham Gives Halloween Party

After prayer meeting Wednesday evening, a number of people went to the Bradham home on the Sun lease, where they were entertained with a real Halloween party. Ghostly stories were told with all lights out. Other Halloween games were played and apples and pop corn balls flowed free and plenty. The following families attended: D. Arvil Moore, Alston, John Butler, Jack Arnold, Paul Pearson, Jess Smith, Shaw, Bill Story, Rude, Grishams and Mrs. Parker and daughter and Mrs. Sterling and son.

W. C. T. U. ACTIVITIES AT ELLIS ISLAND

Though the number of immigrants coming to the United States has diminished, nevertheless, our work has increased, as we have turned our attention also to the needy in the city, the hospitals, and the courts, where we have the opportunity to make ourselves useful.

Aliens are still coming to these shores. Recently because she came as a visitor, a young Greek girl who was to join relatives in Chicago, was detained at Ellis Island. She was much frightened, but I explained the immigration law to her and because the Board of Special Inquiry required a departure bond of $500, I telegraphed the aunt in Chicago to send the money. After the money came, an uncle called for this girl. However, he was a single man, so the Board discharged her to me, as they felt she ought to be protected. Although the uncle came for her, I myself, saw to it that she was put on the train and then telegraphed her aunt the time of her niece's arrival. Shortly after, a letter of appreciation was received thanking me for the help and protection given the girl.

Families separated for years are being united now and they compose the largest number of immigrants at present. A Bulgarian woman with two children came to join her husband in Lackawanna, N. Y. They were sent to Ellis Island because one child had to be placed in the Island hospital. I notified the husband and explained what had happened. He was grateful for he was expecting his family and could not understand why they had not arrived as he did not know that they were at Ellis Island. After ten days they were discharged to me and I helped them to the station and put them on the train. The mother's gratitude knew no bounds.

It is apparent that the great work of our organization is not confined only to the United States. More and more I come to see that it has international ramifications and I believe that the seed we sow here on Ellis Island, the gate through which people of all nationalities pass, will bear its fruit. This is because we are concerned not only with people who come to this country, but also with those who are leaving the United States, namely persons who are being deported to their own countries for having entered the United States without inspection.

ALIENS FIND REFUGE AT ELLIS ISLAND

Since the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, many who know my stand on this question have discussed this matter with me. I have been glad of this opportunity because in this way I could have many heart-to-heart talks with different persons and explain to them the harm of the traffic in liquor. Those who were in the United States during the years of Prohibition find that the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment is proving to be a failure and are convinced that Prohibition will come back before long. Let us hold on to our motto: "Advance, not retreat."

(Contributed by local WCTU).

Kappa Phi's To Stage Fashion-Minrel Show

"The Dixie Blackbirds," to till the ticklebox of Big Spring, will be staged in the Municipal Auditorium, Friday evening, November 16. Members of the Kappa Phi Omega fraternity will stage this negro minstrel show, and they make promises that this will be positively the funniest, peppiest, most entertaining home talent play that has ever been presented in this city. Miss Marguerite Starz, a director from the Wayne P. Sewell Producing Company of Atlanta, Georgia, arrived in Big Spring Saturday afternoon, and completed plans with members of the fraternity for staging this show. Rehearsals began Monday evening. A strong cast is being chosen to take the leading roles, and work on the most unique minstrel show arrangement that you ever heard about has been started.

This entertainment, full of jokes, gags, music and song, consists of six acts, each act filled with black-face comedy, clever dialogue, and catchy negro songs.

The fraternity quartet will forget their dignity for one night and will turn into typical high-stepping, jazz-singing "niggers."

High spots in the show will be a juvenile minstrel, put on by the tiny tots of the town, a little picnic-annies singing, "They Ain't Gonna Be No Rhine"; a womanless Fashion Show, to be staged by prominent business men of the town, dressed in the latest feminine attire; and a negro sermon and a negro wedding climaxing the show.
