Dizzy Dean Hurls Shutout, As Mates Pound Ball Hard

WASHINGTON By George Durne

Waiting — In the vicinity of Salem, Oregon, where Herbert Hoover spent his youth, a political ploverman pursues the even tenor of his way while the Congressional camelion...

Should the New Deal get a comfortable vote of confidence in November, the bright blue eyes of "Little Charlie" are quite apt to be found dry. They might even be smiling.

Senator McNary took an awful rowdiness last season from his more conservative colleagues for failing to put up an aggressive fight against New Deal legislation.

McNary has his lightning rod up hoping presidential electricity strikes him. Oregon, of course, has comparatively few delegates at Republican conventions and still fewer votes in the Electoral College.

Should a majority of delegates happen to be of similar mind two years hence the Senate floor leader might have a chance of grabbing the nomination.

Incidentally, McNary raises prices which now sell at fancy prices in pretty packages. He also raises nuts. His treatise on "The Cultivation of Filberts" is the last word in that line of money-chasing.

It was the fourth time Governor Ferguson had called a special session of this legislature. The last session adjourned Sept. 25.

The governor's proclamation listed the following matters as subjects for legislative consideration: Remission of penalty and interest on delinquent taxes; development of the Brazos and Colorado rivers projects; provision of funds for the Texas centennial; provision of additional relief money; and other things the governor might submit.

French Foreign Minister Also Dies Of Wounds

MARSEILLE (AP)—Peter Kalesmen, who killed King Alexander of Yugoslavia Tuesday, died a short time later.

MARSEILLE (AP)—King Alexander, Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, foreign minister of France, were assassinated Tuesday as the Yugoslav monarch came to France in an effort to improve the Yugoslav-French relations.

Barthou, shot in the left forearm and one leg, died as surgeons labored toward giving him a blood transfusion.

They were shot down by two assailants as they rode in an automobile through the streets of Marseille. One assassin was killed outright by police. The other was wounded and captured.

First reports indicated Barthou's wound was slight, but that of General Alphonse Joseph Georges, of the French superior war council, also shot, was more serious.

The assassin captured was identified as Petris Kalemán, 35, Yugoslavian, born in Zagreb.

MARSEILLE, France — King Alexander the First of Yugoslavia was assassinated here Tuesday. The king had just arrived here on a good will trip to France and was motoring through streets lined with cheering throngs when about 20 shots were fired from the crowd.

Surgeons announced he was shot three times. The king immediately was carried to a prefecture.

Louis Barthou, French foreign minister, was riding in the automobile with the king. The automobile was spattered with bullets.

The crowd turned upon the assassin with fury. He was a heavy set man about 40 years old and poorly dressed.

Police fought through the crowd, defending the assassin but he was reported dying in a news stand at the stock exchange.

The shooting occurred at 4:30 p. m. as the automobile passed near the stock exchange. Barthou was shot in the left arm. The automobile was riddled by shots.

Teams Prepare For Weeding-Out Process

Initial Title Joust Oct. 12

McCamey Badgers To Play Host To Colorado Wolves

District 3 football teams are down to a steady grind, preparing for the weeding out process which begins Friday of this week when the Colorado Wolves journey to the lair of the McCamey Badgers.

The Badgers have figured in more non-conference battles than have the Wolves, but their performance has not been very impressive. The Wolves have been showing a steady improvement the past two or three weeks, while the McCamey team has been "right" one week and had the next.

McCamey has successfully held the cellar slot for the past few seasons, and a close defeat by Colorado Friday will probably place the Badgers there again.

The following week-end, Oct. 20, will see the three "big" teams of the district in action. Big Spring will entertain the Sweetwater Mustangs and San Angelo the Colorado Wolves.

The Steers have the advantage in more than one respect over the Mustangs and should take them out of the title chase without a lot of trouble.

If the Wolves survive their opener with McCamey, they will no doubt fall before the San Angelo Bobcat attack. The Cats are the Steers most feared foe.

Big Spring and Colorado were the only district teams to win the past week. The Steers defeated the El Paso Borfle Bears and Wolves trounced the Midland Bulldogs. San Angelo lost to Abilene, Sweetwater to Cisco, and McCamey was smothered by Lamesa.

Texas Conference Battles Get Fast

AUSTIN—Three Texas conference games will have plunged eight clubs into the thick of the fight for the 1934 championship this week-end. Abilene Christian, the only exception, will remain on the percentage sidelines until next week.

At the top St. Edward's Saints, and the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets divided honors. The Saints bowled over the Hardin-Simmons eleven Saturday night, 9 to 7, and Howard Payne defeated Trinity, 28 to 0. The only other conference game of the week saw McMurry deadlocked with Austin college, 6 to 6.

Three non-title games saw a win, a defeat and a tie; Southwestern bowed, 6-0, to North Texas; Daniel Baker tied John Tarleton, 6-6, and Abilene Christian lost to Bull Ross, 2 to 0.

The strong Saints are expected to keep their slate clean this week against Southwestern at Austin Friday, and Hardin-Simmons is hoped for an easy win over the light Trinity Tigers at Waxahatchie. Austin college is favored over Daniel Baker at Brownwood. Abilene tests its teeth against the strong North Texas Teachers at Denton, and McMurry goes to Commerce to meet East Texas. Howard Payne will vie with T.M.C. at home.

Mrs. McCue, 79, for 36 years a resident of Del Rio, was a native of Drum King county, Donegal, Ireland, and came to the United States at the age of 16. A widow since 1914, she is survived by four daughters, two sons, eight grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

Women Zionists Plan Annual Convention

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Women's Zionist Organization of America will hold their 30th annual convention of Hadassah here Oct. 14 to 18.

Prime objective of the group will be to further education as a vital factor in combating anti-Semitism and to foster an appreciation of Jewish contributions to civilization.

Mrs. Samuel W. Halprin, national president, anticipated the keynote of the meeting when she declared that American Jews must assume leadership in Jewish life because reactionary forces in Europe have retarded activity there in behalf of Jews.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Jr. will be guests.

Mrs. and Mrs. Shirley Robbins have as guests Mr. and Mrs. Tom Dickey and daughter, Joan, all of New York.

Sings Requiem Mass At Mother's Funeral

MIDLAND—The Rev. Edw. P. Harrison, O. M. I., of St. George's Catholic church, and his brother, Jack Harrison, have returned from Del Rio where they attended the funeral of their grandmother, Mrs. Patrick McCue.

The Midland clergyman sang the solemn requiem high mass for Mrs. McCue at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. He was assisted by priests from Del Rio, San Felipe and Chihuahua.

Mrs. McCue, 79, for 36 years a resident of Del Rio, was a native of Drum King county, Donegal, Ireland, and came to the United States at the age of 16. A widow since 1914, she is survived by four daughters, two sons, eight grandchildren, and one great-grandchild.

ON THE CONSTITUTION RESTS OUR LIBERTY

Among the things that every school child is taught is the fact that the Constitution of the United States is a document of great value and deep wisdom.

This is certainly true enough, and it is a wise and beneficial thing for us to set aside one day every year as "Constitution Day." But the school children and we older folk are alike in one thing— seldom bother to read this document to which we do homage.

Our observance of the day ought to begin with that. For it is only by studying the Constitution, and seeing precisely what it does and does not say, that we can begin to understand what a stalwart bulwark of human liberty it really is.

And after we have read it, it is good mental exercise to go back and have a look at the circumstances under which it was written and adopted.

The colonies had won their independence from England—and they hardly knew what to do with it. They were weak, scattered, beset by a myriad of antagonisms and suspicions. They were divided geographically and socially. Some influential men would not have been sorry to see an American king; others preferred even the loose and inefficient articles of confederation, believing that these at least left the individual secure in his own freedom.

Out of all this confusion and clash of opposing forces came the Constitution; and reading it, with its background in mind, one cannot fail to gain a new admiration for the men who concocted it.

They did their utmost to preserve the people from tyranny and oppression; they wrote the most rigid safeguards they could devise to keep despotism out of the country; they set up the elaborate, and subsequently famous, system of checks and balances to make certain that no one branch of the government would ever become too powerful.

This document has been in effect for nearly 150 years. It is as strong today as when it was adopted—stronger, in fact, for it is buttressed by years of observance. Under it the people of the United States have recorded a great and glorious history.

Today we are passing through one of those times of stress which test any governmental charter. It is up to us to remember the strength which the Constitution has

Favorites To Be On Trial

ABILENE—Thinning of the Oil Belt's hopeful teams will begin at once. In the season's first championship clashes, Eastland will go to Breckenridge, and Brownwood will invade Cisco. The week-end Frank, there is not much hope for Eastland and Brownwood, except that which exists for any entry before the beginning of a race.

Breckenridge appears to have an easier job than Cisco, or rather Breck appears better equipped to do the job than the Lobos. The Eastland team whipped San Angelo three weeks ago, but since has lost to one class B team and nudged another by a single point. On the other hand, the Buckaroos are undefeated, three of their victims having been in class A.

The Brownwood Lions, having failed to score in three games, are not scaring the Ciscoans very much, although it would not take many points to beat any total the Lobos yet have been able to accumulate.

Abilene and Ranger will carry on their campaigns against outside teams. The Eagles will entertain Wichita Falls here, while Ranger goes to San Angelo.

The Eagles and Bulldogs showed more class than the rest of the field last week. Ranger again failed to come through with a victory, but scored 19 points against Central Fort Worth's strong eleven. Central in previous games had beaten Waco, 27 to 0, and Mineral Wells, 28 to 6.

Abilene won its third straight shutout win, over the San Angelo Bobcats, who waited late in the second period to allow two touchdowns, and yielded another in the fourth. Final score was 19 to 0.

Class B rallied in the last inning for two goal crossings to lick Sweetwater, 19 to 6. The Breck Buckaroos eked out a 7-0 verdict against Highland Park, fourth victory for P. E. Shotwell's men. Tully's extra point after one of Johnny Garrison's touchdowns enabled Eastland to trim Olney, 13 to 12. Brownwood was smothered by Fort Worth Polytechnic, 29 to 0. Poly, by the way, may be one of the state's strongest. In earlier games it beat Childress, 26 to 7, and Weatherford 22 to 0.

LET DIPLOMATS PROTEST

It is not exactly surprising that a number of foreign governments have issued protest against the revelations that have been made by the senate munitions investigating committee. Witnesses have shown how statesmen worked hand in glove with munitions firms, how highly placed politicians in various lands took bribes, and how very exalted personages were not above playing the game for the armaments makers.

The protests, then, are only natural; but they are not, after all, any skin off the hides of the senate investigators.

The American people want to know all they can about the devious ins and outs of this rather shocking traffic. The senators are doing a fine job of finding out for them. If the revelations plan important people, at home or abroad—well, that's just too bad.

WHEN HE READS ON THE FLOOR

It is hardly fair—of course boys don't actually wear smoked glasses when they read but they might as well in the average home because the lighting arrangement is such that most reading, studying or playing is done in dim, poorly arranged lighting that certainly gives a smoked glass effect.

If your boy started school this year, his chances of being nearsighted increase with every school year until at the end of his college days he has only a 60-40 chance of escaping wearing glasses. Research proves that proper lighting goes a long way toward keeping vision normal. It is most important to have good lamp bulbs and correct lighting fixtures and portable lamps. Look yours over before the day goes by—you'll see many ways that you can improve your home lighting and give your children a better than average chance.

by JEANNE BOWMAN

Chapter Three
ARMY HONOR

"We are to you all here," Tony unfolded a canvas stool and placed it beside the stand.

Marian sat. She sat because she felt her knees would no longer support her, the who had covered her, who had covered the emergency hospital tent and assisted the attendants in rushing her, without even pausing, was suddenly weak because a mere man had literally walked out on her.

There on the canvas stool, the post-war traffic edging about her, the street lights flaring down

Lidlessly she pushed through the crowded court-house corridors where interested spectators were smoking and talking to pass the time away. She passed the balliff at the door and surveyed the interior. A drab place. Pale light overhead spreading a ghastly light over blue walls, plain oak bench and jury box. The long tables usually occupied by counsel and by the press were deserted as the men entered in groups.

Marian went to the press table, slipped into a chair, drew out the

"Tony," Marian said, "I must go on."

on her, she reviewed her weakness and was amazed. Heretofore, Lon had meant an intoxicating joy that defied the weariness of long days in a stuffy court room, long evenings on the dance floor. Now she realized there was another side to this love business, an unpleasant side bitter with fear of loss. She was being an utter fool.

"Tony," she said arising, "I must go on. Please tell the gentleman I will be at the courthouse until the verdict on the Brown case is in."

Tony was still assuring her of his willingness to relay the message as she started her journey down through town. She stopped at Hansburger Joe's stand for a sandwich and a cup of coffee, but even the aroma of the frying onions could not stimulate the appetites which had been so ravenous before, and was of copy paper and added a wistful Mickey Mouse to her collection.

Brown had said, "Watch Jenny Case." Carefully careless, Marian looked beyond the fenced-in enclosure. Jenny was one of the few spectators who had remained in the room. She sat, leaning forward, thin chin resting in an angular cupped hand.

Jenny removed the hat which had been shading her face and Marian's sympathy cooled. Her hair was the lustrous black of a vulture's wing. Her face was flushed. Her dark eyes, set too closely together for any indication of generosity, were glancing here and there as though anticipating some planning event. Occasionally her small pink pointed tongue would dart out to wet thin, red lips.

"Like Tabby does when she watches me pour cream into a saucer," thought Marian. She added a wide mouthed cat to the collection of rodents.

And then into the gloom of the big room stepped Lon Casad. Marian wondered, hysterically, why everyone in the room didn't stop looking and stare, why the clock over the bench didn't stop ticking, why the flag didn't start waving. Had there ever been anyone finer in that old room?

He was talking to the balliff, dark head bent a little to one side,

FOLEY EXAMINES HAUPTMANN MAP

District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of Bronx county, N. Y., is shown examining the map of the Scourland hill section in New Jersey where the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped and slain. square white teeth, strong shoulders held a little back, even as his head was bent. Marian noticed his amber-hazel eyes searching the room. They focused on her.

Lon was bending over Marian's chair, apologizing, explaining—"It happened this way," he said. "Tony's little Marietta has the measles. Tony's big Marietta told him to be sure to send down some vaccine for Little Marietta's chest, and he had forgotten."

"And you went out, bought it and carried it down," declared Marian, and added, "and what else did you buy and carry down?"

"Candy and a picture book," he admitted.

"Lon, you're a darling," whispered Marian. No use to spoil his pleasure by telling him children with measles weren't allowed to use their eyes, nor to eat candy. She was proud of his generosity, his consideration for other people then . . . later she was to look back on this and wonder if those qualities were commendable.

"What's the big argument going on in the corner?" he inquired, pointing to a group of men.

"Looks as though Lem Southernland, counsel for the defense, was trying to sell something," said Marian. "Listen."

"Honor belongs to the keep-shirt age," Sutherland was saying. "It's yours. Oh, it's yours. There is honor among a few men, there may be honor among thousands, but honor among women . . . never."

"How about it, Lon," called one of the reporters, and the group made their way towards the press table.

"I'd never thought about it," Marian admitted and turned to Lon. "What's your idea of honor?"

"That men are honorable because it's the sporting thing to be and most men are trained to be good sports; that thieves may be honorable; if so it's because they're afraid of being put on the spot if they're not; that women . . . well women act instinctively . . ."

"And you don't believe they are instinctively honorable," interposed Sutherland with satisfaction. "That's right. It's biologically impossible. Their honor usually involves some man and when two women are after the same man as they are in this Brown bribery case—"

"You misunderstand," said Lon firmly. "I believe women are as instinctively honorable . . . that is most women . . . that they are not conscious of it, and therefore don't advertise it."

Marian wished she might hear more of his views, but there was a flurry at one end of the room, a deputy in charge of the jury had appeared to announce the jury had reached a verdict. A messenger was being dispatched to the Judge's chambers to call His Honor to the bench, and Lem Sutherland had disappeared to find his clients.

Statement of Principles The United Forces for Prohibition assembled in statewide mass meeting, make the following Declarations of Principles and Purposes, concerning the prohibition of the traffic in intoxicating liquors both by the states and our national government.

We congratulate all the forces and organizations of every kind that have hitherto, or are now working for the prohibition of the liquor traffic and we would join hands with all of them in making more effective the victories that have been won.

We affirm that the principle of law is right which treats intoxication as voluntary insanity, and therefore holds an intoxicated person responsible for his acts.

We would urge all of the opponents of the traffic in intoxicating liquors to never let up until the stills and breweries are effectively and permanently dried up.

We affirm that the principle of law is right which treats intoxication as voluntary insanity, and therefore holds an intoxicated person responsible for his acts.

put humanity and life above greed and desire on the bench. We honor judges on the bench, policemen, sheriffs, and their deputies, U. S. Marshalls and their deputies, and all peace officers, when they endeavor to enforce faithfully all the laws of the land.

It being necessary for all the forces opposed to the liquor traffic in the United States to work together; we pledge co-operation with other organizations in Nation and States to insure the greatest possible degree of harmonious activity in all the States of the Union.

We call upon all good citizens of all nationalities, all churches and schools, all ministers and laymen, all educators and teachers of childhood and youth, all members of useful trades and professions, all women who love and sacredly cherish worthy homes and want the world safe for childhood, all young people who must live and labor in the world of a few years hence, all patriotic organizations, all organizations for the suppression of evil, all who are connected in any capacity with gainful business of any kind, all who want life to be safe on the highways or among whirling machinery, all who love God, and Home and a peaceful, progressive and prosperous country, to wage the fight every day and night in every possible way to prevent that traffic which is the ally of every evil, and destructive of all good, from ever legally returning to our beloved country.

FORT WORTH—Air passengers who travel the Southern Transcontinental Route are fast making the acquaintance of "Speed," genial colored custodian of the unique food service station just installed in the passenger salon at Meacham Field here.

Our nation has attained to the foremost place among the nations of the earth since it adopted the only right attitude for any government toward the liquor traffic, which is, not regulation for revenue, but prohibition of evil.

We affirm that true temperance is the moderate use of that which is wholesome and right, and the abstinence from that which is harmful and wrong.

We honor all law makers from the State Legislature to the United States Senate who strive to improve the social order, moral standing, economic prosperity and personal efficiency of the people.
