$55,000 Airport Project Is Nearing Completion

Work is progressing on the $55,000 expansion project on T-Bar Airport just northwest of Tahoka townsite. When completed, the airport will qualify as a Basic Utility I facility, meeting state and national standards, and will be listed in all National airport directories. Runways will be more than adequate for executive-type twin-engine planes as well as for smaller aircraft and crop duster planes, states Dayton Parker, airport board chairman.

and tie-down apron. This runway and the old 2,560 by 36-foot east-west runway which was paved several years ago, will be lighted with permanent type runway lights. A 24-inch rotating beacon that may be seen up to 60 miles away and said to be even better than that at Lubbock Municipal Airport has been acquired for installation here. The old T-handers will be dismantled and rebuilt midway of the north-south runway. The expansion was made possible by cooperation of many people. The State through Texas Aeronautical Commission made a grant of $27,500 from money from the airplane gas tax fund on condition additional land was secured and $27,500 in money and in-kind labor and or equipment would be furnished locally. Tahoka citizens voted $15,000 in bonds in a special election for the project, and the City, Lynn County and individuals furnished labor and equipment.

Twenty-six acres of land was bought from Othel Meeks to extend the north-south runway to meet standard requirements, and Pioneer Natural Gas and Lyntegar Electric Co-op removed their radio towers, located to the south in the approach pattern. Actually, the permanent airport had its inception back in 1956 when Mrs. C.O. (Mollie) Edwards of Fort Worth donated 125 acres of land to the people of Lynn County for the Edwards-Childers Park and T-Bar Country Club. The City and individual aviation enthusiasts built the initial landing strips, and Seth Lewis, who leased the airport, made other improvements. Standards for the local airport have been established by W.O. Karpenko, chief engineer, Texas Aeronautical Commission, who has helped in every way possible, assuring its approval as a Basic Utility I port. In fact, he is responsible for securing from Federal Aviation Agency the 24-inch rotating beacon, surplus property from the Hobbs, N.M., installation.

A.C. Bowden of Lubbock is the consulting engineer, and Billy Miller, City of Tahoka employee, is project overseer. Mayor Meldon Leslie and Councilmen Bob Haney, Alton Cain, Clayton Carter, Edward T. Cloe, and H.B. McCord Jr., have been pushing the project from the start. County Judge V.F. Jones and the Commissioners Court have given their support, and Commissioners "Heavy" Nelson and Dorman Gandy have furnished machines for grading and trucks and men to haul caliche. City employees have also worked and among individuals giving free labor have been Rev. Hugh Daniel, J.E. Nance, Bob Haney, Dayton Parker, W.H. McNeely, Harry Lee Short, and others. Members of the Airport Board in addition to Parker are Garland Thornton, Larry Hagood, J.E. Nance, and Dan Lockaby.

Overseas Parcels Poorly Packed

Reports show that many parcels, including Space Available Mail (SAM) and Parcel Air Lift (PAL) packages, are so poorly packed by the mailers that they are often in broken and damaged condition when they reach the U.S. port from which they are to be dispatched to destination. In addition to the paramount consideration that this results in disappointment to addressees when parcels arrive with the contents broken, it involves delay and expense in reconditioning these parcels. To be acceptable for mailing, overseas parcels may reasonably be expected to reach destination in good condition. A free booklet is available to all post offices giving detailed instructions in the preparation for mailing of the various types of overseas parcels.

LITTLE LEAGUE TOURNAMENT TEAM - The Tahoka Tournament Team of the Little League will play Lamesa tonight at 7:30 at Lamesa. SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS

The extension of the Great Plains Conservation Program for another ten years should be a great asset to the Lynn County Soil and Water Conservation District farmers and ranchers. The Great Plains Program provides an excellent opportunity for the landowner to protect and improve his land at a low cost to himself. Under the Great Plains Conservation Program, the Federal Government will cost-share approved practices with the landowner. Approved practices that can be cost-shared include construction of terrace systems; waterways; diversion; wells for livestock water; enlarging; deepening or sealing dams, pits, and ponds; land leveling; installation of irrigation pipeline; reorganization of irrigation systems; establishment of permanent vegetative cover; improvement of vegetative cover on rangeland by artificial re-seeding; installing pipeline for livestock water and brush control. In return for the cost-share payment the landowner agrees to carry out the following management practices without cost-share: management of a conservation cropping system, use of crop residue on cropland, and proper use of range, and pastureland. Many Lynn County SWCD landowners have realized the need for conserving the soil and water and entered into Great Plains Contracts. Since the Great Plains Program was initiated in 1956 over 140,000 acres of Lynn County Soil and Water Conservation District soil has been protected and improved under this Program. Several Lynn County SWCD Cooperators have completed the conservation plans on their farm. Construction of their practices will begin as soon as their crops are harvested. The estimated cost-share on the farms that have their plans completed is in excess of $100,000. Landowners who have completed their plans include Johnny Ray Ash, B.W. Baker, Era Balch, Dan Curry, C.S. Davis, W.T. Davis, James Gayden, Cecil Hammonds, Buah Rutledge, Ross Smith, Johnny Scott-Odessa Browne, Esther R. Schaefer, Cecil A. Wied, Gilbert Wuensche, and Lillie White. Other District cooperators who have made applications for GPCP and whose conservation plans are being developed include Lyndell Wood, E.C. Houchin, J.B. Greer, Clarence Church, and Leonard Dube. At the present time many cooperators with certified contracts are having their farms grid mapped and all their technical engineering data accumulated so construction can begin on their farms as soon as the crops are removed. These landowners include R.E. McElroy, Welch Flippin, J.B. Greer, Tommy Sterling, Sam Edwards, and Jim Bob Porterfield. Anyone interested in the Great Plains Conservation Program should contact the Soil Conservation Service or your district supervisor as soon as possible. If you would like construction to begin this winter, now is the time to start the preparations! For more information on GPCP come by the Soil Conservation Service office.

If you knew how a fish felt when he got out of bed you'd have a better chance of catching him!

The problem, of course, is to diagnose fish moods. Since most anglers can't converse with them (although some claim this distinction), it's difficult to learn how fish greet the day.

Knowing what factors influence fish behavior can add to your angling success, say the fishing authorities at Mercury outboards. Sky condition, water temperature and water color all determine a fish's disposition. Successful anglers read this mood and match it with the correct casting technique.

Practice a little fish psychology next time you're on the lake, say the Mercury lads. Who knows, maybe one of these days you'll learn to think like they do.

Highway Patrol Records Three Accidents In June

The Texas Highway Patrol investigated three accidents on rural highways in Lynn County during the month of June, according to Sergeant Hal Firtle, Highway Patrol supervisor of this area.

These crashes resulted in two persons injured and an estimated property damage of $7,450.00.

The rural traffic accident summary for this county during the first six months of 1969 shows a total of 34 accidents resulting in three persons killed, 36 persons injured, and an estimated property damage of $38,867.00.

During the first six months of 1969 in Texas there were 1,470 traffic deaths, or two as compared to the 1,472 traffic deaths for the same period of 1968. However, if trends continue the last months will probably far exceed the first six months, as a matter of fact, the last six months of 1968 there were 2,000 traffic deaths.

Linda Huffaker, CHD Agent, Says.....

Green beans are one of our most popular vegetables. Yet they are probably served more often without any imagination than any other vegetable. You can utilize sauces and toppings, as well as herbs and spices to create a real lift in flavor, texture and color of beans.

Fresh snap beans are plentiful during July. Take advantage of the bountiful supply to try something new with green beans.

Snap beans are easy to prepare and so nutritious for you. They are rich in vitamin A -- a good source of iron, calcium and vitamin C -- and a fair source of Vitamin B1 and G. A distinctive dish that the whole family will enjoy is Easy Green Bean Casserole. For four servings, cook 1 1/2 pounds green beans, covered, in 1/2 inch of boiling, salted water until crisp tender -- about 15 to 20 minutes. Drain and mix with 1 cup undiluted mushroom soup. Place in baking dish, top with canned or frozen french-fried onion rings and heat thoroughly in moderate oven.

Select beans that are firm and bright in appearance. Most desirable are small pods that snap smartly. Large pods with mature beans are often tough and woody. One pound, as purchased, makes six one-half cup servings.

To get all the sand and grit out of the beans use two bowls of cold water. Use fingers to lift beans from one bowl to another. Change the water several times. Sand clings to beans if the water is poured off them. Cook snap beans just long enough to make them tender to preserve flavor and the bright green color. This requires from 15 to 30 minutes. Beans like air while they are cooking, so leave them uncovered. Sprinkle in a little salt and have the water boiling merrily before placing them in the pan.

Fresh beans may be prepared in a variety of ways. They may be snapped into irregular pieces -- placed on a board and cut crosswise into one-inch pieces or shredded french-style into long, thin slivers. The latter way requires less cooking time and saves minerals.

For a good-tasting sauce to serve over snap beans, make Cream Sauce

2 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup water
1/2 cup sour cream
1/2 teaspoon horse-radish
1/2 teaspoon thyme
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 tablespoon chopped parsley
Melt butter, stir in flour. Add remaining ingredients and heat. Serve with hot green beans. Makes 1 cup sauce.

For a Spanish touch to give your beans a snappy flavor, serve

Green Beans Spanish Style
2 pounds green beans
1/2 slices bacon, diced
1/2 medium onion, diced
1/2 cup chili sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon allspice
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Wash and trim green beans, cook, covered, in small amount of boiling salted water, until just tender, about 15 - 20 minutes. Fry bacon until crisp, remove from pan and saute onion until golden. Add chili sauce and seasonings and simmer to combine flavor. Pour hot sauce over hot beans and sprinkle with cheese and crumbled bacon. Makes 6 servings.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Beamed by Baggage

Wheeling around a corner, the bus driver cut so sharply that a suitcase fell out of the overhead rack. It landed squarely on the head of an unsuspecting woman passenger, inflicting painful injuries.

In due course, she sued the bus company for damages. At the trial, the company protested that it should not be held responsible for such an unlikely accident.

But the court felt otherwise and ordered the company to pay the woman's claim. The judge said it was part of a driver's job to handle his bus with full regard for the dangers of falling luggage.

As it does on all common carriers, the law imposes substantial responsibility on a bus company for the safety of the travelling public. This responsibility extends not only to the way the driver handles the bus but also to the way luggage is placed—either on the rack overhead or in the seats and aisles.

Consider this case: A passenger set his suitcase on the floor, where it protruded more than two feet into the aisle. Another passenger, coming through, stumbled over the suitcase and suffered a broken leg.

Here, too, a damage suit against the bus company was successful. The victim won his case on the ground that the suitcase had been in that obstructive position long enough for the bus driver—if he had been reasonably alert—to have noticed it and taken action.

Nevertheless, while the law demands due care of the driver, it does not expect the impossible. In another case, the driver did check the position of all luggage—above and below—before starting out. Furthermore, he drove his bus with proper care.

Yet, unbeknownst to him, a satchel on the overhead rack contained a kitten. During the ride the kitten moved, shifting the center of gravity and bringing the satchel crashing down upon a passenger's shoulder.

Under these circumstances, a court could find no basis for holding the bus company liable. The judge said he saw no way by which the driver, no matter how conscientious, could have foreseen and forestalled an accident like this.

Farm Safety Week Is Set

County Judge, V.F. Jones, proclaimed July 20-26, 1969, as FARM SAFETY WEEK in Lynn County, at the request of Howard Moore, Farm Bureau president. The local farm organization is coordinating activities within the county for the special farm safety campaign.

"If this trend is to be reversed and the needless suffering and losses substantially reduced, each of us must have a renewed effort," Mr. Moore continued. He emphasized that farming remains one of the most hazardous occupations in this country today; but added, many of the present losses could be prevented with the use of safety tools such as seat belts, fire extinguishers, SMV emblems, and tractor roll-overs and crush resistant cabs.

United States Apollo Team Gears For Historic Landing on the Moon

Mankind's first step onto the surface of the Moon will not be a bold step like an explorer jumping out of a small boat onto the beach of a newly discovered island.

Rather it will be more like an early morning swimmer gingerly testing the temperature of the water in a spring-fed pond before he decides to jump in.

Apollo 11 Spacecraft Commander Neil A. Armstrong, when he has reached the bottom of the ladder from the lunar module on the Moon at about 2:21 a. m. EDT July 21, will put his left foot on the surface while he retains a grip on the ladder and his right foot on the landing pad at the base of the lunar module's leg.

Once he is satisfied that the surface is safe for walking, Armstrong will bring his other foot to the surface while still maintaining a grip on the spacecraft.

Seen by Millions
All this will be seen by millions of Armstrong's fellow Earthlings on the home planet if a television camera mounted on the lunar module operates as planned.

Armstrong will begin his two-and-a-half-hour walk on the Moon by backing slowly out of the lunar module hatch on his hands and knees. On the second rung from the top of the ladder he will pull a cord that will allow a pallet on the side of the lunar module to swing out to expose and turn on a television camera aimed to show this historic event to the world.

His first step on the surface will come about nine and a half hours after the Apollo lunar module lands at 4:19 p. m. EDT July 20. These intervening hours are devoted to post landing checkout, eating, resting and preparations for the Moon walk.

For the first 20 minutes of his exploration, Armstrong will be alone on the Moon's surface while his fellow explorer Lunar Module Pilot Edwin E. Aldrin observes and photographs him through the lunar module window.

Contingency Sample
Armstrong during this period will familiarize himself with the strange environment, collect a contingency sample of the surface and put it into a pocket on the left thigh of his spacesuit, complete preliminary checks of his life supporting back pack, and erect an American flag on the lunar surface. He then photographs Aldrin as he leaves the spacecraft and climbs down the ladder.

Armstrong also will deploy the television camera on a stand about 30 feet from the spacecraft. The camera will remain on to relay pictures back to earth of the two astronauts throughout their stay on the Moon.

While Aldrin becomes familiar with the Moon's environment Armstrong will inspect the lunar module and, using a special moon shovel, collect about 30 pounds of lunar samples, stow the material in a large "laundry" bag and place the bag into the first of two lunar-sample return containers.

Aldrin then will erect a solar wind experiment. This is a sheet of special aluminum foil which will collect samples of the gases in the solar wind and will be returned to Earth with the crew. The experiment resembles a narrow window shade which is pulled down in the same manner a window shade is.

The two astronauts next will team up to place two additional scientific experiments on the surface. These are a passive seismometer which will detect "moon-quake" phenomena and laser mirrors which will reflect laser beams originating on the Earth back to receivers on the Earth and thus measure the distance very accurately.

If everything is going well, Armstrong and Aldrin then will make a collection of documented samples of Moon material. They will first photograph the sample on the surface, pick it up and put it into a small bag which in turn is dropped into a larger bag, and then photograph where the sample was picked up from. All the time he too will be describing the sample verbally for the benefit of scientists who will later examine the samples in laboratories on Earth. These samples are placed in the second sample container for return to Earth.

Following this collecting the Moon explorers will load the materials back in the cabin of the lunar module and themselves return to the spacecraft for launch back to the command module which has been circling in lunar orbit with the third Apollo crewman, Command Module Pilot Michael Collins, at the controls.

The first Moon exploration will be man's first exposure to working in pressurized space suits under gravity conditions one-sixth that of Earth. For this reason the activities on the Moon are designed to provide frequent periods for rest and evaluations of the work load on the men. The astronauts on the Moon always will be in sight of each other and they will not venture more than 300 feet from the lunar module

Apollo 11 Astronauts Are All Veteran Space Travelers

Three veteran astronauts, all experienced at the critical maneuvers of rendezvous and docking two vehicles in space, will fly Apollo 11 in America's attempt to land men on the Moon.

All are also former jet test pilots, with a total of nearly 12,000 manhours flying time.

NEIL A. ARMSTRONG
Spacecraft Commander Neil A. Armstrong, scheduled to be the first Earthman to set foot on another celestial body, commanded Gemini 8 when it made history's first space docking in March 1966, joining nose-to-nose with an unmanned Agena target vehicle.

When an electrical short circuit caused a thruster to malfunction, Armstrong and his crewmate, David Scott, demonstrated exceptional piloting skill in overcoming the problem and bringing their spacecraft to a safe emergency splashdown.

EDWIN E. ALDRIN, JR.
Lunar Module Pilot Edwin E. Aldrin, Jr., who will descend to the Moon's surface with Armstrong, set a record of 5½ hours of extra-vehicular activity (EVA) as pilot—No. 2 man—of Gemini 12 in November 1966.

While outside the spacecraft, he attached a tether to the Agena docking target vehicle retrieved a micrometeorite detector, and evaluated the use of special body restraints as aids to working in weightlessness.

That 9¼-hour flight, with James Lovell as Commander, included rendezvous and docking with a previously launched Agena, using back-up onboard computations for the first time because of a radar failure.

MICHAEL COLLINS
Command Module Pilot for Apollo 11, Michael Collins, who will remain in lunar orbit while Armstrong and Aldrin descend to the surface and return, was pilot of Gemini 10 in performing complex rendezvous and docking maneuvers in July 1966.

Collins and Command Pilot John Young docked with a separately launched Agena and, using its engine, maneuvered into another orbit for rendezvous with a second, passive Agena. Also using the Agena engine, they propelled the docked spacecraft to an altitude of 475 miles, then a record.

In two periods of EVA, Collins worked a total of 92 minutes outside the spacecraft at tasks that included retrieving a micrometeorite experiment from the passive Agena.

Old Hands in Space

The crew of Apollo 11 has chalked up the following time in space.

	Hrs.	Min.	Sec.
Armstrong	10	42	06
Gemini 8
Aldrin	94	34	30
Gemini 12
Collins	70	46	45
Gemini 10
Total	176	03	21

Good Housekeeping a Must On Return from Lunar Mission

Good housekeeping, a necessity on manned space flights, takes on added importance when the flight is a return from a manned landing on the Moon.

The Apollo 11 astronauts will be sure to wipe their feet before entering their spacecraft as they prepare to leave the Moon, dust themselves off, leave their overshoes behind and vacuum their equipment and spacecraft as they head back to Earth.

The chances of living organisms existing on the Moon are considered remote but "just in case" extra precautions are being taken to insure that no such organisms are introduced to the Earth.

The good housekeeping measures were developed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and approved by the Inter-Agency Committee on Back Contamination as an effective method of reducing the chances of bringing back living lunar material to Earth.

Vacuum Cleaning
Before climbing back into their spacecraft for launching from the Moon, the astronauts will brush themselves off and scrape their feet on the spacecraft ladder. Once inside the lunar module cabin, they pressurize the cabin, remove and vacuum clean their life-support backpacks, overshoes and other equipment to be left on the Moon; put this equipment in bags, depressurize the cabin, open the hatch again, and drop the bags to the lunar surface.

Then the lunar module is launched from the Moon and docked to the command module in lunar orbit. While docked, arrangements are made to make sure that the flow of oxygen between the two spacecraft is always from the command module to the lunar module and then overboard into space. This ensures that no dust is carried from the lunar module to the command module.

Before transferring equipment and lunar sample containers from the lunar module, each item is vacuumed and placed in bags. The crewmen also again vacuum their spacesuits and return to the command module.

Following separation of the lunar module from the command module, the crewmen remove their spacesuits and place them in bags. The suits will not be used again in an emergency.

On the way back to Earth the spacecraft interior equipment will be vacuumed and wiped during "housekeeping periods" and the environmental control system will filter the oxygen to remove all dust in the atmosphere. This will remove essentially all the air-borne dust particles.

Recovery Procedures
After the Apollo 11 spacecraft lands in the Pacific Ocean a helicopter will drop swimmers who attach a flotation collar to the spacecraft. A large seven-man raft is then secured to the flotation collar and biological isolation garments (BIGs) are lowered into the raft.

One swimmer puts on a biological isolation garment and passes the biological isolation garments into the spacecraft where they will be donned by the astronauts before they get out of the spacecraft and onto the raft. Then the astronauts are hoisted into the helicopter where they have been on past missions. The hoist operator of the helicopter will be in a protective suit and mask and the helicopter pilots will be prepared to put on masks if necessary. The recovery physician will be in the helicopter prepared to assist if required.

The helicopter lands and is towed to the hangar deck of the recovery ship and the astronauts and physician enter the mobile quarantine facility where they will stay until arrival at the Lunar Receiving Laboratory at the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston.

The astronauts will remain under quarantine in the facility for 21 days from lunar splashdown to make sure they have not carried back any microbes.

Proclamation

TO ALL TO WHOM THESE PRESENTS SHALL COME:
 I, V.F. Jones, County Judge of Lynn County, do hereby declare the week of July 20-26, 1969 as FARM SAFETY WEEK in Lynn County, for the following reasons:
 WHEREAS, the citizens of Lynn County are proud of our farm families from whom comes our abundance of food and fiber; therefore, our citizens are deeply concerned about the safety and well-being of this segment of our population as they go about the sometimes hazardous task of producing the commodities needed by the entire population; and
 WHEREAS, farm and ranch accidents continue to take more lives annually and cause painful disabling injuries; and
 WHEREAS, the President of the United States and the Governor of Texas have proclaimed the same period as FARM SAFETY WEEK; and
 WHEREAS, during this week, a statewide farm accident prevention education program will be undertaken by the Texas Farm Bureau, the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council, the Texas Safety Association, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas 4-H Clubs, Texas Future Farmers and Future Homemakers of America, Young Farmers and Young Homemakers of Texas and the Lynn County Farm Bureau with the theme, "Manage to Prevent Accidents"; and
 WHEREAS, such a campaign will do much to call to the attention of our rural citizens the need for observing safety precautions which would reduce the tragic toll inflicted by accidents;
 THEREFORE, I urge all citizens to recognize this special period, and especially urge farm families of Lynn County to become more safety conscious, not only during FARM SAFETY WEEK, but every day of the year.
 Signed
 V.A. Jones
 Lynn County County Judge
