FEDERAL EXPERTS FIGHTING PINK

By ROBERT H. MOULTON. N DISCOVERING America,

Columbus not only opened up a vast new home for man but for insect pests of cultivated crops and domestic animals as well. Fully one hundred of these foreigners have made their way to American shores, and incidentally to American gardens and fields, up to the present. They have multiplied so that today their destruction of orchards, gardens and crops is estimated at approximately $500,000,000 a year. Their havoc would be much more than this were it not for the quarantines and control work conducted by the federal government and activities of the states.

The group of federal horticultural experts pictured herewith has just been discussing in Washington an effective method of fighting the pink bollworm which now threatens the cotton of the United States. It came here from Mexico in 1917 and approximately $2,000,000 has been spent to stamp it out. It is estimated that failure to control this insect menace will mean the annual loss of 20 to 40 per cent of the cotton crop-which means a loss of hundreds of millions.

GREAT CHANGES IN AUTOMOBILES

Few persons realize what radical changes have come over the automobile since the days when the youngster yelled "git a horse" Here we have the "one lunger" of fifteen years ago, with its funny steering handle and the exposed radiator, as compared to the modern speed wagon.

PLAIN HINTS TO FOIL CAR THIEF

Cleveland Auto Distributor Gives Some Practical Suggestions to Owners.

Unique and Effective Scheme Is to Have Blind Switch in Ignition System-Other Methods to Discourage Robbers.

Some ingenious yet simple ways to foil the automobile thief, who often or iron, are bent and formed as indiaughs at locksmiths when he begins kering with motorcars, are sug gested by Emil C. Hertz, a Cleveland automobile distributor.

Mr. Hertz's first suggestion is to remove the distributor rotor. Without this rotor there can be no spark, he says, and without the spark no gasoline motor will run. The rotor is one of the easiest things to get at, so its removal by the car owner when he leaves his vehicle parked in some street is all the easier.

As there are several different kinds of rotors, it is all the more difficult for the thief, since he would have to carry almost every type to have the correct one available when needed. Large numbers of Baptists have ar | Even though half of all the automobile rived at the encampment by automo | thieves were equipped with complete bile already and several Dallas parties | sets of rotors, the car stealing hazard

> Unique and Effective Scheme. Perhaps the most unique and effecignition system. Probably nine out of ten thieves would be utterly baffled if the circuit were broken in this way because it is a device they would least expect. They would naturally look for the commoner methods of disabling cars but there is no standard way

> Another simple, though less effectual be detached at either end with little

There is still another way to discourage the motor car thief and that is to cross the spark plug wires to say the fourth and fifth or the fifth and sixth cylinders of a "six." This crossing of the wires causes back firing and resultant heavy artillery when the engine is started will often cause the less hardened thief to flee in dismay, better plan is to put a metal band asserts Mr. Hertz.

Some car owners however, would not approve of this method of thwart ing the thief because of the danger of blowing off the muffler of the car's

Keep Record of Numbers.

Finally, be sure that you record the numbers of your motor and tires in a memorandum book and keep the book where you can always lay your hands upon it, advises Mr. Hertz, who cites an instance of a car which was stolen in Boston, Mass., and recovered and identified four months later by one of the original tires.

CURE FOR RECKLESS DRIVERS

Where Many Accidents Have Occurred Signs Bear Inscription Warning Drivers.

As a warning to reckless drivers, the board of trade of Goshen, N. Y., has erected large signs on each side of the Otterkill bridge, where many accidents have occurred. The signs bear the following inscription: "Private cemetery across the bridge for reckless drivers."

DETERMINING SIDES OF CAR

Always Face in Same Direction Machine Is Headed-It Is Wrong to Stand Facing It.

AUTOMOBLE VISE IS USEFUL FOR REPAIRS

Found Mighty Convenient While Touring in Country.

Device Shown in Illustration for Hold ing Small Parts of Car While Working on Them-Kept Out of Sight by Hood.

Many occasions arise on an automobile tour when a light, fixed vise would be highly convenient. A fixture for holding small parts, while working on them, is shown attached to the engine by the cylinder-head bolts and concealed by the hood.

The movable section of the vise has two lugs fitting into corresponding slots in the fixed part. The screw is made from any suitable 1/2-inch material, with a bent handle and a 1/2inch nut behind the movable jaw .-Popular Mechanics Magazine.

TO TIGHTEN LOOSE VIBRATOR

When Screws Holding Brass Jackets Become Worn It Is Good Plan to Use Metal Band.

In case the screws that hold the small brass jackets to the vibrator box become worn so that they do not grip any more, do not try to remedy the trouble by using longer screws, as this will probably injure the windings of the coil and ruin the vibrator. The clear around the box and attach it to the dash with small bolts.

AUTOMOBILE Gasoline costs $1.40 a gallon in

Western Canada now has one automobile for every fifteen persons. . . . In England, motorists pay a license of one pound per horsepower-nearly $200 for a 45-horsepower car.

The wheels of the car are in alignment if the tire treads wear uniformly and hold the rounding shape originally given the treads.

. . . The average price of gasoline in France at present represents about $1 a gallon, and in England it averages about 75 cents.

In spite of the British duty of 33 per cent and the French 45 per cent American-made automobiles are being shipped to European countries in large numbers. . . .

The 44,065,000 automobile tires manufactured during 1920, piled on top of one another, would reach to a height of 2,784 miles-a distance almost as great as across the continent, . . .

Automobile accidents are found to be caused in many cases by the varying rules of the road in different states fusion of drivers in interstate traffic.

Colds & Headache

"For years we have used Black-Draught in our family, and I have never found any medicine that could take its place," writes Mr. H. A. Stacy, of Bradyville, Tenn. Mr. Stacy, who is a Rutherford County farmer, recommends Black-Draught as a medicine that should be kept in every household for use in the prompt treatment of many little ills to prevent them from developing into serious troubles.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

"It touches the liver and does the work," Mr. Stacy declared. "It is one of the best medicines I ever saw for a cold and headache. I don't know what we would do in our family if it wasn't for Black-Draught. It has saved us many dollars . . . I don't see how any family can hardly go without it. I know it is a reliable and splendid medicine to keep in the house. I recommend Black-Draught highly and am never without it." At all druggists.

You are too big a man to let an Hed difficulty defeat you now," she marked calmly, going back to the siness field. "You are really makra miraculous success. It can be done; and I could do it tht here on the Pioneer Short Line I didn't have to fight so many diferent kinds of devils at the same me," said the boss, scowling down at e fire in the grate. And then with quick jerk of his head to face her: fou sent the major a wire from the pital last night, telling him to perade me not to go to Strathcona. Thy did you do it? And how did you how I was thinking of going?"

For the first time in the whole six onths I saw Mrs. Sheila get a little istered, though she didn't show it mch. only a little more color in her

"Than any man, yes; but for a woman, Graham; wouldn't you allow to come. something for the woman?"

"I thought we had agreed long ago that there is no double standard, either in morals or ethics-one thing for the man and another for the woman. That

She didn't say whether it was or not. She was holding the bit of paper he had given her so that the light likely to lead up to. But Maisie from the fire fell upon it when she said: "I suppose your duty is quite clear. In the slang of the street, you must 'beat Mr. Hatch to it.' You must be the first to denounce this bribery, clearing yourself and letting the ax fall where it will."

The boss was shaking his head a bit doubtfully.

"It isn't quite so simple as that," he objected. "I don't know that I'd have any compunctions about sending Collingwood to the dump. If the half of what they say of him is true, he is a spineless degenerate and hardly worth saving. But to do as you suggest would be open rebellion, you know; while Dunton remains presioblem of bringing the railroads and | dent, I am his subordinate, and if I should expose him and his nephew, the situation here would become simply impossible."

"Well?" she prompted.

"Such a move would rightly and properly bring a wire demand for my resignation, of a nature that couldn't be ignored-only it wouldn't, because I should anticipate it by resigning first. That is a small matter, introducing the personal element. But the results to others; to the men of my staff and the rank and file, and to the public, which, as you say, is just beginning to realize some of the benefits of a real partnership with its principal railroad; these things can't be so easily ignored."

"You have thought of some other expedient?"

"No; I haven't got that far yet. But I am determined that Hatch shall not time upon the people who, are trusting me. I believe in the new policy we are trying out. I'd fling my own fortune into the gap if I had one, and, more than that, I'd pull in every friend I have in the world if by so doing I could stand the Pioneer Short Line upon a solid foundation of honest ownership. That is all that is needed in the present crisis-absolutely all."

He was on his feet now and tramp-At one of this back-turnings I saw ing to be a broken rail-joint set to Mrs. Sheila reach out quickly and lay of a living one." the bit of paper with its accusing That got her in spite of her heaven- scrawl on the glowing coals. Then she said, quite calm again:

"In time to come you will accomplish even that, Graham-this change of ownership that we have talked of and dreamed about. It is the true solution of the problem; not government ownership, but ownership by the people who have the most at stakethe public and the workers. You are

He wheeled quickly, and what he said made me feel as if a cold wind were blowing up the back of my neck, because I hadn't dreamed that he would remember Collingwood well enough to recognize him in that passing moment on the sidewalk.

"That man," he muttered, sort of gratingly: "I had completely forgotten. He was here just a little while ago. I met him as I was coming in. etty soon she said, sort of drearily: Did he come to see your cousin—the major?"

upon the shoulders of a woman."

I guess the boss saw red for a min-

It was out at last, and the boss' poor little house of cards that I knew he had been building all these months had got its knock-down in just those four quietly spoken words. As well as I knew him, I couldn't begin to guess what he would do or say. But he was such a splendid fighter that I might have known.

"I heard, no longer ago than this afternoon, that you were not-that your husband was still living," he said, speaking very gently. "I didn't believe it-not fully-though I saw that there might easily be room for the belief. It makes no difference, Sheila. You are my friend, and you are blameless. But before we go any farther I want you to believe that I wouldn't have been brutal enough to give you that bit of paper if I had remotely suspected that Collingwood was the man."

the didn't make any answer to that, and after a while he said: "Having told me so much, can't you tell me a little more?"

"There isn't much to tell, and even the little is commonplace and-and disgraceful," she replied, with a touch of weariness that was fairly heartbreaking. "Don't ask me why we were married; I can't explain that, simply because I don't know, myself. It was arranged between the two families, and I suppose Howie and I always took it for granted. I can't even plead ignorance, for I have known him all my life."

"Go on," said the boss, still speaking as gently as a brother might have. "Howie was a spoiled child, an only son, and he is a spoiled man. I stood it as long as I could-I hope you will be allowed to work his graft a second | believe that. But there are some things that a woman cannot stand, and--"

"I know," he broke in. "So you came out here to be free."

"It is four years since we have lived together," she went on, "and for a long time I hoped he would never find out where I was. There was no divorce. I had taken my mother's name, and only Cousin Basil and his wife knew that I was not what pering back and forth on the hearth rug. haps every one e'se took me to be,a widow with a dead husband instead

"Did Collingwood try to find you?" "No, I think not. But when he was here last spring with his Uncle Breckenridge he saw me and found out that I was living here with Cousin Basil." "Did he try to persecute you?"

"No, not then. I was afraid of only one thing: that he might drink too much and-and talk. Part of the fear was realized. He saw me that Sunday night in the Bullard. That was why he was trying to fight the hotel people-because they wouldn't let him come up-stairs. I saw what you did, and I was sorry. I couldn't help feeling that in some way it would prove to be the beginning of a tragedy."

"You saw no more of him then?" "No: I neither saw him nor heard of him until about a month ago when he came west with a man named Bullock-a New York attorney. I didn't know why he came, but I thought it was to annoy me."

"And he has annoyed you?" "Until this night he has never missed an opportunity of doing so when he could dodge Cousin Basil. It was his that led me to telegraph Cousin Basil, and Upton Van Britt about your trip to Strathcona. He knew that you were going to the gold camp, and he declared to me that you'd never come back

"But tonight," the boss persisted.

"What did he want tonight?" "He wanted to-to use me. He said that he had 'put something across' for his uncle, that he had gotten into trouble for it, and that-to use his ever arrogant it may be, has been who would try to 'get his goat.'"

"And his object is telling you this?" "Was entirely worthy of the man. He asked me, or rather I should say, commanded me, to 'choke you off.' And of course, he added the insult. He said I was the one who could do ft."

"Without intending to, you have tled my hands," the boss said gravely. "I wasn't meaning to spare Collingwood if there were any way in which I could use him as a club to knock Hatch out of the game."

"I haven't asked you to spare him." fact remains that he is your husband, I--

"Thank you," she whispered back; "you are as big in your friendship as that she was gone.

It was right along in the same halfminute, while the boss was standing with his back to the fire and the major was going in to talk to him, that I lost Maisie Ann. I don't know where she went, or how. She had let go of my wrist, and when I groped for her she was gone. Since I didn't see any good reason why I should stay and spy upon the hoss and the major, I slipped out to the hall and curled up on the big settee beyond the coat rack; curled up, and after listening a while to the drone of voices in the farther room, went to sleep.

It was away deep in the night when the boss took hold of me and shook me awake. The long talk was just getting itself finished, and the major had come to the door with his guest.

"We must manage to pull Collingwood out of it in some way," the major was saying. "I don't love the d-n' scoundrel any betteh than you do, Graham; but that's a reason-a fam'ly reason, as you might say." Then he switched off quickly. "You haven't asked me yet why I ran away from home this evenin' when I was expecting you."

"No," said the boss. "Sheila told me that you had a telephone call to the Bullard."

The old Kentuckian chuckled. "Yes, suh; and you'd nevel guess in a thousand yeahs who sent the call, or what was wanted. It was ouh friend Hatch, and no otheh. And he had the face to offeh me ten thousand dollahs a yeah to act as consulting counsel for him against the railroad company!" "Of course you accepted," said the boss, meaning just the opposite. The major chuckled again. "I talked with him long enough to find out about where he stood. He thinks he's got you by the neck, but, like most men of his breed, he's a paltry coward, suh, at heart."

The boss laughed. "What is he afraid of?"

"He is afraid of his life. He told me, with his eyes buggin' out, that thah was one man heah in Portal City who would kill him to get possession of certain papehs that were locked up in the cash vault of the Security National."

The boss was pulling on his gloves. "I didn't give him any reason to think that I was anxious to murder him," he said.

"Oh, no, my deah boy; it isn't you, at all. It's Howie Collingwood. That's where we land afteh all is said and of finality, Hornack, while Wall Street done. Youh hands are tied, and we've got this heah young maniac to deal with. If Collingwood gets about three fingels of red likkeh under his belt, why, thah's one murder in prospect. And if Hatch has any reason to think that you can still get the underholt on him, why, thah's another. I'm glad you've seen fit to take Ripley's advice at last, and got you a bodyguard.'

"What's that?" queried the boss. But the query was answered a minute later when we hit the sidewalk for the tramp back to town and Tarbell fell in to walk three steps behind us all the way to the door of the railroad club. It sure did look as if things were just about as bad as they could ever be, now. Hatch once more on top, the whole bottom knocked out of the railroad experiment, our good name for political honesty gone glimmering. and, worst of all, perhaps, the boss' big heart broken right in two over taunting boast yesterday at the capital | those four little words that nothing could ever rub out-"he is my husband." I didn't wonder that the boss said never a word in all that long walk down-town, or that he forgot to tell me good-night when he locked himself up in his room at the club.

CHAPTER XV 18

The Dipsomaniac

In a day when bunched money, howpeople were careful not to make any public announcement of the things they were doing or going to do. But bad news has wings of its own. Mr. Norcross was still in the midst of his mail dictation to me the morning after the bottom-all the different bottomsfell out, when Mr. Hornack came bulging in.

"What's all this fire-aiarm that's been sprung about a new elevator trust?" he demanded, chewing on his trying to eat. "It's all over town that C. > "Does he think for one holy half minute that we're going to sit down quietly and let him undo all the good work that's been done?" he rasped. "He does-just that. He's putting

Of course, Hornack blew up at that, and what he said wasn't for publication. For a minute or so the air of the office was blue. When he got

"I don't intend to," was the eventoned rejoinder. But anything we can do will always lack the element owns us. I've said it a hundred times and I'll say it again: the only hope for the public service corporation today lies in a distribution of its securities among the people it actually Hornack's teeth met in the middle of the chewed cigar.

"That's excellent logic-bully good logic, if anybody should ask you! But we're fighting a condition, not a theory. Nobody wants P. S. L. Common even figure."

"I don't know," said the boss, kind of musingly. "You're forgetting the water that's been put into it from time to time by the speculators and reorganizers; there has been a good deal of that, first and last. Nevertheless, value for value, you know, and I know, that the property is worth more than thirty-two, including the bonds. What is said and done, Big Money-Wall I mean is that if anybody would buy Street-still has the call, and any the control at that figure,-the control, mind you, and not merely a minority-and handle the road purely as a dividend-earning business proposition, he wouldn't lose money; he'd make money-a lot of it."

The boss laughed at that, and I'm telling you right now that I was glad to know that he was still able to laugh.

"You've never seen the day when you wanted to renege, Upton, and you know it," he hit back. "Think of the perfectly good technical education you were wasting waen I took hold of you and jerked you out here."

"Huh!" said our millionaire; "Tve just had two enginemen on the carpet for running over an old ranchman's pet cow. They said they couldn't help it; but I told them that under the 'public-be-pleased' policy, they'd got to help it."

The boss chuckled. "I believe you'd joke at your own funeral, Upton. You didn't come here to tell me about the ranchman's pet cow."

"Not exactly. I came to tell you that Citizens' Storage & Warehouse is due to have a strike on its hands. The management-which seems to have got itself consolidated in some wayshot out a let of new bosses all along the line on the through train last night, and this morning the entire works, elevators, packeries, coal yards, us in the nine-hole, Hornack, and up lumber mills, and everything, are posted with notices of a blanket cut in wages; twenty per cent, flat, for everybody. The news has been trickling in over the wires all morning; and the last word is that a general strike of all C. S. & W. employees will go on at noon tomorrow."

> "That is move number one," said the boss. And then: "You have heard that the Hatch people have reached out and taken in the C. S. & W.?" "Hornack was telling me something about it; 'yes." "It is true; and the fight is on. You see what Hatch is doing. At one stroke he gets rid of all the local employees of C. S. & W., who have been drawing good pay and who might make trouble for him a little later on, and fills their places with strike-breakers who have no local sympathizers," "But there will be another result which he may not have counted upon." Mr. Van Britt put in. "The blanket cut serves notice upon everybody that once more the old strong-arm monopoly is in the saddle. The newspapers will tell us about it tomorrow morning. Also, a good many of them will be asking us what we are going to de about it; whether we are going to fight the new monopoly as we did the old, or stand in with the graft, as our predecessors did."

"We needn't go over that ground again-you and I, Upton," said Mr. Norcross. "You know where I stand. But the conditions have changed. We have been knifed in the back." And with that he gave the stocky little operating chief a crisp outline of the new situation precipitated by the Dunton-Collingwood political bribery. Mr. Van Britt took it quietly, as he did most things, sitting with his hands in his pockets and smiling blandly where Hornack had exploded in wrathful profanity. At the wind-up he said:

"Old Uncle Breckenridge is one too many for you, Graham. You can't stand the gaff-this new gaff of Hatch's; and neither can you go bepresident-and hope to hold your job The one thing for you to do is to lock up your office and walk out."

"Upton, if I thought you meant that-but I never know when to take you seriously,"

"The two enginemen who ran over the ranchman's pet cow had no such difficulty, I assure you. And isn't it good advice? You know, as well as I do, that Chadwick is holding you here by main strength; that you can never accomplish anything permanent while Dunton and his cronies are at the steering-wheel. It might be different if you had the local backing of your constituency-the people served by the at thirty-two. You wouldn't advise | Short Line. But you haven't that; up your worst enemy to buy it at that to date, the people are merely interested spectators." "Go on," said the boss, frowning again. "They have a stake in the gamethe biggest of the stakes, as a matter of fact-but it isn't sufficiently apparent to make them climb in and fight for you. They are saying, with a good bit of reason, that, after all twenty-four hours may see the whole thing slump back into graft and crooked politics."

"It is so true that you might be reading it out of a book," was the boss' comment. And then: "What's the answer?"

Mr. Van Britt shook his head. "I

"Only by hearsay. He is what our English friends call a blooming bounder'-fast yachts, fast motor-cars, the fast set generally. It's a pretty bad case of money-spoil, I fancy. They say he wasn't always a total loss."
