H.B. 156, the Texas Minimum Wage Act of 1970, was reported out favorably by the State Affairs subcommittee to the full Committee. As amended the bill: 1. Increases the 250 man-day exemption to 300 man-days, and exempts range production of livestock. 2. As amended, the bill does not include the dairy exemption adopted by the Senate. 3. It does include a business exemption for establishments with an annual volume of sales less than $150,000.

S.B. 283, Transportation, a bill providing that permits for hauling agricultural products in their natural state shall be issued by the Railroad Commission to applicants without a finding of public convenience and necessity, was scheduled for hearing and was heard by the Senate Committee on Transportation. Crooked sales pitches via the telephone are on the rise. They trap people into buying things they don't need or into seeing salesmen they don't want to see. Tricks include free gifts, phoney surveys and get-rich-quick schemes.

Here are some tips which may warn you of phonies.

—The caller gives no identification.

—He says he is making a survey and requests a personal interview.

—He assures you he is not selling anything, just wants to interview you as part of an advertising campaign.

—He describes a "special offer" that your common sense tells is too good to be true.

—He reels off prices, costs, offers, and questions so fast that you cannot follow what he is telling you.

What should you do? The Better Business Bureau suggests replying, "Please send me a letter about the matter. I'll consider your offer after I've had a chance to investigate. Thank you for calling. Good-bye."

This way you discourage a spy artist while not cutting yourself off from someone whose business is perfectly legitimate.

Legitimate callers also can be a nuisance, if they call at an inconvenient time or they refuse to take no for an answer. If you aren't interested, just say good-bye and hang up.

SCRATCH PAD

nothing on us, as some rooms were actually "wall to wall bedding."

After some fast shuffling, the situation was somewhat relieved and everyone prepared to bed down. But first, more food and the sponsors hurriedly seeking the coffee shop. At bed check, our fears were eased once more, as the bunch, joking about the cramped quarters, were settling down (we hoped) for a good night's sleep.

PLANS for the next day were hashed out at early breakfast. Scheduled activity was light that morning, so the first cry went up for shopping trips. These were approved and all went well. Much of the afternoon was spent readying uniforms and instruments for the marching contests.

Naturally, in the eyes of the sponsors we really had a spruced up bunch of, not kids, but serious ladies and gentlemen. We were proud to escort them to meet their public. During the marching we saw large and small bands pass by yet our hearts beat a little faster when it came time for the "Pride of Tahoka."

FRIDAY was a full contest day. Once again, "our kids" as we preferred to call them, faced strong competition in the world of music and judging. Sure they were scared, but we knew they would perform doing their best. This was true with each solo and ensemble. The time for play had ended and the serious work at hand had begun.

You talk about work schedules in business, some of these are minor compared to the fast pace set by the contest performances. These kids were shuffled about from room to room before breathing could become normal. Yet, not one complaint was voiced.

ALL work and no play? Well the world of youth is just not made up that way. It was time to give them some extra free time. Time for relaxing, shopping, and making new friends with other band members lodging under the same hectic conditions.

Friday night was most enjoyable as the schedule was tossed to the wind and sponsors and kids went out to enjoy pizza and a round of rinky-tink piano and singing. Bed check was a little later than usual and finally everyone decided to call it a day. Yes, it was quite a day, another day without gripes and major problems.

UP early Saturday morning in preparation for the big Million Dollar Parade. After hurried breakfasts, the buses were loaded to head for the parade route. At about 10:30, the Tahoka Band was on its way along the three-mile route. In our estimation, there was no finer marching unit, (naturally we are inclined to show a little prejudice)

Another hurried lunch and we were on our way to the Tri-State concert. Our group was quite contrasting to other schools represented, as our young ladies were in dresses and slacks and the lads in dress year. Yes, quite a contrast to the shorts, shirttails, and jeans seen in other groups.

THE trip home was soon in sight. Sure enough, the rains came as the buses were being loaded. We really had a soggy looking bunch of kids, but spirits weren't dampened as it was time to go home. The return trip was not without incident, experiencing upset stomachs, wet feet, tired bones, sore throats and one bus running out of diesel.

Yes, with all the little problems and inconveniences, the trip was a success. Crowded doctors visits, and tight schedules will not mar the enjoyment of this exciting trip. I can speak for all sponsors, in saying that we are proud of the youth as they represented their town and school commanding the respect deserved.

SOME of the most enjoyable moments for me were getting a chance to talk with several of the youth. We talked of college, future plans, and the world mess in general. This proves their thoughts are not just gay times, wild music, and a easy living, but they can give some serious thought and answers to the adult way of life.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

But Can You Patent it?

Breathes there the man, with soul so dead,
Who never to his wife hath said:
"I've got a terrific idea for an invention."

A surprising number of inventions do come from sudden, random flashes of inspiration, rather than from the steady, organized search for something better. However, to qualify for patent protection, the invention must include a special element of creativity. It must be "new," as that word is understood in the law of patents.

Suppose, for instance, that you think of a way to combine two products into a single unit for greater convenience. Generally speaking, that would not be considered new—not creative enough to deserve a patent.

One famous case involved the man who first attached a rubber eraser to the end of a lead pencil. Although this was certainly a convenience, the United States Supreme Court decided it was not new—because neither the pencil nor the eraser, when put together, did anything better than they did apart.

By contrast, said the Court, Charles Goodyear did create something new when he combined sulphur with india-rubber. This combination yielded a kind of rubber which, for the first time, could be vulcanized and thereby put to commercial use.

What if your idea is to improve some product by making it out of a better material? If all you add is merely durability, that won't do. Thus, a toymaker who switched from wood to metal, without otherwise changing his toys, was held not entitled to patent protection.

But it is another story if the new material works in a new and different way. Making a garter button out of rubber, instead of metal, was held a patentable invention. The court said this was a truly creative change, because the rubber meant less tearing and better gripping of the hosiery.

Meeting the law's requirements for a valid patent is not easy. But the rewards are so tempting that inventors are obtaining more than 1,000 patents per week.

True, the Patent Office has made the statement that all of the important inventions have already been made. But that statement should not be too discouraging. It was made in the year 1880.

LEGAL NOTICE
 The Beltwide Cotton Producer Committee, formed in February of this year to work for improvements in Commodity Credit Corporation's loan and sales policies, met April 17 in Dallas and voted unanimously to continue its activities.
 Don Anderson of Crosbyton, President of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., and Chairman of the BCPC, said the motion was "That the committee continue its activities in pursuit of the anniversary-date loan proposal and compatible sales policies as described in the booklet 'CCC and Cotton,' enlisting
 the support of any and all agencies and organizations."
 The Committee had earlier proposed to USDA that cotton loans extend 14 months from the month they are made to producers, and that that procedure be made to apply to 1968 crop cotton. But on March 28 USDA announced that 1968 cotton loans would mature on July 31 as in the past. No mention was made of loans on 1969 and future crops.
 In the same announcement it was stated that cotton acquired by CCC on July 31 "will be offered for sale on competitive bid basis at not less than 110 per cent of the loan rate plus carrying charges or current market price, whichever is higher, but in no event at less than 120 points above the loan rate."
 This part of the loan policy to be followed did not make clear whether the minimum "110 per cent of the loan rate" would apply to individual qualities or would apply to the Middling-inch base price.
 The Committee, with representatives from all parts of the Cotton Belt, would like to see this minimum made applicable to all qualities above and below the base rate. A committee was appointed to determine what action should be taken to secure a favorable clarification of the March 28 announcement.

 down a companion crouching in high grass. His excuse that "I thought it was a deer" was held inadequate, since there was sufficient visibility for him to make a more careful identification before pulling the trigger.
 "If he is in doubt," said the judge, "he must not shoot."
 Of course, the presence of danger also places a heavier responsibility on a potential victim. While he is in a hunting environment, he must keep in mind that his own heedlessness may spell disaster.
 In another hunting tragedy, a court put the entire blame on the victim for wandering thoughtlessly into the line of fire—and also for not wearing the traditional red hat
 to give fair warning of his presence. The judge decided that he had, in effect, "asked for it."
 Besides having to pay damages,
 a hunter may even be punished
 on a criminal charge.
 Thus, a hunter was sent to prison for manslaughter after he shot

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"I Thought It was a Deer"
 Thousands of times during the average hunting season, a bullet
 meant for an animal strikes a human being instead. Besides the personal tragedy, there may be important legal consequences as well.
 When is one hunter legally liable
 for shooting another?
 The law's attitude is shaped by one basic truth: that firearms are inherently dangerous. What might be forgiven as minor carelessness,
 under ordinary circumstances, becomes grounds for liability because of the special caution called for
 in the use of guns.
 For example:
 Two duck hunters were sitting in a boat. One laid aside his gun, loaded and with the safety catch
 off. When the boat bobbed and jarred the gun, it fired a charge of bird shot into the other man's
