PERSONAL TO THE VOTERS

After careful consideration of a lawmaker's responsibility and difficulties, realizing the vast need of impartial, efficient, enterprising, open-minded, honest and justice-loving men for the place, I have allowed my name to go on the Democratic Ticket for Representative of the 119th District.

I have lived near Crosbyton, in Tahoka, Seminole and Lamesa which is my home at present but I am acquainted with every county in the district and bear high recommendations from all who have known me.

Being slightly under 30 years of age, I have spent more time in training for service than in putting every prospective voter on the back. However I have dealt with the public and with men until I know what to expect.

If elected, I promise, to do my utmost to bring political affairs to a plane where everyone can tell what is going on; eliminate all graft possible; bring greater equality of rights, privileges and prosperity to all.

There is nothing, group, organization, affiliation or personal interest, to prevent the performance of my duty and labor to the interests of the district. The world owes me nothing; but I owe it everything. I propose to pay the first installment now.

Yours for better legislation, Emmett L. Whitaker

Historical Society Doing Big Work

Canyon, Texas, July 8, 1926.—With a field man regularly at work, the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society which has its headquarters here is collecting a great deal of material which is priceless to the student of history.

During a recent visit to Vega, Tascosa, and Channing, J. Everts Haley, the field representative of the society, secured much valuable information from men and women who have resided in the Panhandle for the past forty or fifty years.

Tascosa was known as the "Dodge City of the Panhandle," and there are many stirring tales clustered around the now deserted cow town.

Tascosa's Boothell graveyard is widely known, and the legend has grown that here were buried only those men who died with their boots on.

The many tales clustered about these old settlements are being collected by the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society and will be published as soon as possible.

Mrs. Dan Cole of Channing, Texas, has given the Historical Society a diary kept by her husband when he went up the trail in 1892, and a book which was presented to her husband when he was a small boy in 1863; this book is called "Stories of School Boys" and is of great interest to the student of children's literature and no one would expect to give children this old type of reading matter at the present time.

Judge Wm. Balfour of Vega, Texas, has given the Society two steel Indian Lances which were used by the Indians when they hunted buffalo. They killed the buffalo from their horses; this method was much more sportmanlike than that used by the buffalo hunters of a later day who killed the animals by the score, using high powered buffalo guns; these later hunters were followed by teams of skinners who took care of the hides for the hunter.

Judge Balfour also presented a bayonet which came from the battle in which Custer was killed on the Little Big Horn River.

Among the most valuable finds of the Historical Society are the pictures showing sights during the days of first settlement in the Panhandle. Allen Stag of Vega supplied several pictures of scenes on the XIT and LS ranges during the '90's Al Morris of Tascosa supplied pictures of scenes from Old Tascosa.

Judge L. Gough, president of the Texas Wheat Growers Association, and himself a member of the original T-Anchor outfit has given the society 12 volumes of rare books—some of them animals of the Texas Historical Society for the years 1902-1908.

The Panhandle Plains Historical Society is rapidly acquiring a large and extremely valuable library of books dealing with Texas and the whole southwest.

Many tales have been told of the circuit rider who rode through storm and cold to minister to members of his flock; one of these was the father of Judge Gough and the latter has recently placed in the care of the Historical Society the saddle which his father brought from Illinois to Texas in 1857, and used during his labors until his death in the 80's. Gough preached in Fannin Lamar, and Red River counties which were then far from the centers of civilization.

In the vault of one of the county courthouses in the Panhandle Mr. Haley, found, among the dust of the past and the bootleg of the present, books which are very valuable; among these was the day book of a livery stable which existed during 1890 and 1891 at Tascosa; a very fair story of the town could be constructed from the entries in this book.

The field work of the Panhandle Plains Historical Society will be continued as rapidly as finances will permit; there are hundreds of men and women in the Panhandle who wish to help along this work, but most of them have only a small amount of wealth; the Society hopes to interest those pioneers who have recently acquired wealth from cotton and other sources and so be enabled to properly carry on this work before the time comes when those who were participants in the stirring events of the early days have passed to the other Range.

Dr. E. E. Callaway was called to Fort Worth Tuesday afternoon by the serious illness of his aged father. A telegram received by J. K. Callaway Wednesday morning brought the information that the condition of the sick man was somewhat improved, however, and Dr. Callaway expects to return home about Saturday.

Moody Praised By Former Teacher

Dallas, Texas, July 12.—Declaring that Dan Moody, Attorney General and candidate for governor, was always "the personification of industry as well as the sole of honor and slave of duty" Dr. W. N. Williams, former editor of the Christian Courier for many years, and for ten years at the head of the schools of Taylor, Texas, in a letter just made public, gives interesting sidelights upon Moody's early life.

Writing to the Rev. W. F. Reynolds of Dallas, Dr. Williams stated: "In reply to your letter of June 19th asking me for a statement covering Dan Moody's record as a student in the public schools of Taylor, Texas, while I was superintendent thereof, I beg to say: "As the head of the Taylor public schools for ten years I witnessed Dan's school work in the primary department, grammar school and high school, and wish to say that he was a model pupil in deportment and stood well as a student. And, in memory, I can see him running to school for fear of being tardy nearly every morning, because he had been kept busy to the last minute milking, delivering milk and driving the cows to the pasture. Indeed, when I remember how hard Dan worked before and after school and that he did not get to play as other children, I wonder how he made the good grades he did in school. But he was always the personification of industry, as well as the soul of honor and a slave to duty."

"And I may add that after knowing Dan Moody twenty-eight years I regard him as the finest type of virile young American Christian manhood the Nation has produced. He is clean, capable, courageous and absolutely dependable. I hope to get back to Texas in time to vote for him."

SEMINOLE RAILROAD WILL OPERATE

The citizens of Seminole are highly elated over the prospects of securing the operation of the railroad running from Midland to that place, which road has been abandoned for several years.

The following article is construed to mean that the T & P, owners of the road, will be compelled to operate the line within the next thirty or sixty days.

Austin, July 1.—The Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington today affirmed its previous dismissing of the application of the Texas & Pacific Railroad to abandon the Midland & Northwestern Railroad between Midland and Seminole, a distance of 65 miles, the Attorney General's Department was notified today.

This decision throws the case back to Texas, to be decided in the courts and before the Texas Railroad Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission previous decision being that it had no authority in the case.

This road was constructed in 1916 and 1917 and operated for four years, being taken over by the Texas and Pacific and later operation was suspended.

Ernest May, assistant attorney general, represented the State before the Interstate Commerce Commission to prevent the abandonment and dismantling of the road.—Seagraves Signal.

He will visit the Davis Mountain section and attend the district convention in Marfa August 12th, then will swing west to El Paso, and go into eastern New Mexico to attend the district convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in that district August 16. It is expected that he will open his campaign for equalization of taxes on this tour. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Duggan also manager and Mrs. Wade.

Uncle Jim's Grandson Dies Uncle Jim Nichols, who has contributed numerous communications to the News under the name of "Uncle Jim," was in the News office Saturday and stated that his little grandson, Leonard Denton, of Muleshoe had recently died of appendicitis in a Lubbock sanitarium. An operation was performed but it came too late to save the little fellow's life. The boy became ill on his ninth birthday and died a few days later.

Mr. Nichols asserts that crops out at T-Bar, where he lives, are just as fine as could be desired.

Pecos—The Pecos Valley will celebrate here July 20 with a big day of jollification. The celebration is in honor of the successful fight for the appropriation for Red Bluff Dam on the Pecos River. Congress recently appropriated two million dollars for the project and President Coolidge has signed the bill. This project will reclaim half a million acres of land and is expected to bring a big period of development to the Trans-Pecos country. A barbecue will be prepared for twenty thousand persons and it is expected that many will be here on July 20. Pecos invites West Texas to join in the celebration. Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Coe of Wellington are the guests this week of Thos. H. Speight and family, Mr. Coe being a brother of Mrs. Speight.

Modern Home Aided Byrd Pole Dash; Sugar Cane Fought Cold of North

The House in the Arctic.

Loading Ship for Trip.

Byrd in Aikship and Deighton's Boat.

A MODERN home built in the Arctic defied the death-dealing cold of the Polar Regions and proved an invaluable aid to Lieutenant Commander Richard E. Byrd in his successful flight to the North Pole, which he circled three times in a record breaking flight of 1,000 miles in 15 hours and 30 minutes at an average speed of 64.75 miles an hour.

It was at the Spitzbergen base King's Bay, where this first modern house was constructed amid the snow and ice of the Arctic immediately upon the arrival of Lieutenant Byrd and his companions, as a permanent home and observation station for the explorers. The house, which rose up on the horizon of the frigid north in marked contrast to the igloo of the eskimo, was equipped with a complete radio circuit that made his thrilling dash to the Pole in his speeding Fokker might keep in touch with their chief and the outside world, which they kept informed as to the progress and success of the flight.

It was to this same home that he returned after his hazardous trip and from which some of the first messages were sent to the waiting public, telling them through the lanes of the air that Byrd had circled the pole three times and had returned to his Spitzbergen home in safety, adding one of the most memorable pages to the history of Arctic exploration.

1—To prove that air navigation in the Arctic is feasible and that freight and messenger travel over the top of the world is certain to come.

2—To hunt for new land in the unexplored areas of the Arctic.

3—To conquer the North Pole from the air as a sporting adventure and as a demonstration of what a plane can do—see a geographical study, as the Pole was bagged for all time by Admiral Peary.

Probably no one knows more about Arctic flying than Commander Byrd. From the Greenland base of the MacMillan expedition at Etah last year he flew 3,000 miles over the Arctic, studying the behavior of all motors, compasses and other navigation instruments at great altitudes over the Polar sea.

With him this time Commander Byrd took a noted fuel expert, who is flying Commander G. O. Noble, as it requires great skill and pains to prevent the freezing of lubricating oil and stiffened action of the motors. If forced to work on the plane in the open at great altitudes with the thermometer at 90 to 70 below zero. The points which favored the month of May were that the Arctic for had not begun to rise and heavy snows still covered the land and afforded many good landing places.

A factor of safety pointed out by Commander Byrd in connection with the use of the Fokker machine is that it carries a reserve engine. It has three engines. With a light load one is expected to be sufficient to maintain the plane in flight. With a normal load, two engines will do the work. If two engines break down at one time, when the plane is not too heavily loaded, it may fly with the use of one engine. The Fokker machine has a wing-spread of slightly more than 64 feet. It is said to be a marvel of airship construction.

The other airplane—the Curtiss Octo—was to have been used chiefly in finding landing fields so that if the fliers found their main landing place covered with a fog they might go elsewhere.

The Chantier was equipped with a powerful radio transmitter to send back the news of the expedition. The Fokker also is equipped with a receiving and transmitting set. Commander Byrd not only kept the world informed of the progress of the expedition, but received through the Chantier weather warnings to guide him in his flight.

How Expedition Was Equipped.

Forty-five hundred pounds of whale beef were included in the rations of the Byrd crew of forty-seven men, seamen and technicians. Also four hundred pounds of pemmican (meat fats and raisins), huge quantities of bacon, dried milk, erswertz (pea soup) and other supplies in proportion were carried along. Cod liver oil was included for its healthful properties. Herbert Grieg, who had charge of provisioning Peary's expedition in his famous dash to the Pole, worked out the rations for the Byrd explorers. Two pounds per man per day was the allowance to take care of all emergencies.

No amount of clothing is really sufficient when flying 1,000 or more feet in the air in the Polar regions, but every possible precaution was taken by Commander Byrd against exposure. The men were equipped with the warmest and lightest of redoubt suits and with fur parkas, a garment that reached to the knees and has a hood covering the head. Plenty of goggles were found to be an absolute necessity to protect them against the glare of the snow.

In spite of all the precautions the undertaking was full of unseen danger. None of this equipment would be of the slightest avail against some unexpected and unprecedented situation which might arise. There is always the danger of snowblindness, exhaustion, freezing, some mishap to the engine. Lieutenant Byrd and his companions, however, were particularly fortunate in escaping with practically no ill effects except the exhaustion due to such a perilous trip.

Pick Up Ice Pilot.

The ship Chantier's first stop was at Tromsø, Norway, where an ice skipper was taken on to pilot the Chantier and its crew through the ice-filled waters around Spitzbergen to King's Bay, where preparations for the first flight to the Pole were made. The planes, the instruments and the various oil mixtures used in connection with the airship tests, were carefully examined and tested. Lieutenant Byrd's original plans called for six flights as follows:

- 1—A 400-mile flight from Spitzbergen to a place that looks promising for a landing.
- 2—A 400-mile flight back to Spitzbergen.
- 3—A second 400-mile flight from Spitzbergen to Peary Land base with further food, fuel and equipment.
- 4—An 800-mile flight to and around the Pole and back to the Peary base.
- 5—An 800-mile round trip flight to the northwest over unexplored areas in search of new lands.
- 6—A 400-mile flight from the Peary Land base back to Spitzbergen.

It was his plan in his second flight to attempt to discover new land, but when he received the report of the flight of Amundsen in his dirigible, in which it was stated that the Norge had failed to find any trace of new land, Lieutenant Byrd decided to abandon further flights and the trip over land on which he had planned in his search for new land in unexplored areas. Now he has decided to try to accomplish his airship at the South Pole what he did at the North. As he left the Spitzbergen base he stated that he would have just as well an equipped expedition for his southern flight as he had in his recent adventure in the North.

Amarillo Stands In Second Place In Southern Building

Amarillo standing second in the entire south in building permits for the month of June, considering her population of only 40,000 as compared with cities of 100,000 and over, has set a record never before equaled, it is believed.

Miami, Florida, was the only city to exceed Amarillo in building permits in the south which has been the sensational building section of the United States during the last few years.

Amarillo's total permits for June were $2,642,651; Miami's were $1,953,894; and Louisville was third with $2,415,940.

It remained for Amarillo to uphold the prestige of Texas which has been going to Houston until this last month. However, the state's showing is the sensation of last month's report according to G. L. Miller and Co. Inc., of Atlanta. This city forged ahead of such great cities as Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Dallas, Birmingham, New Orleans and Memphis.

THOMAS JEFFERSON'S GIG EXHIBITED AT SESQUI

The historic gig, in which Thomas Jefferson rode from his home in Monticello to Philadelphia, carrying with him the original draft of the Declaration of Independence which was later adopted by the Continental Congress, has been an official exhibit of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, now being held in Philadelphia.

All that remains of the gig—the spring seat—was brought over the original route traveled by the noted Virginian by a committee named by Governor Byrd of Virginia. The gig was accepted as a part of the Exposition at fitting ceremonies conducted at the base of the Virginia column in the Forum of Founders, in the Fair grounds, United States Senator Copeland, officers of historical societies and State officials of Virginia and Pennsylvania made addresses. The gig was placed in the Thomas Jefferson House in "High Street of 1776." The historic relic will later be housed in the New York building to remain until the close of the Exposition on December 1.

CAR SHORTAGE IS SERIOUS MATTER ON SPEARMAN

As has been predicted all along, the Santa Fe is not furnishing cars in sufficient number to haul away the wheat. The supply of cars ran short the first few days of harvest, and now a million bushels is lying on the ground. This wheat must be scooped to the ground and then scooped back into the trucks when it is shipped. The additional waste and labor is appalling. And the expense is borne by the farmer, who can ill afford to lose it. Sam W. Martin has taken the matter up with the Santa Fe officials and Arthur P. Duggan, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. The Santa Fe promises to furnish cars for this big crop. They are not making good. They have never realized the seriousness of the situation or the bigness of the task they set for themselves.—Spearman Reporter.

LIVER TROUBLE

Louisiana Man Tells How He Keeps "Up and Going."

"It doesn't matter how strong and healthy we think we are," says Mr. W. S. Reynolds, of Arzand, La., "every once in a while, in order to keep up and going, we have to cleanse the system and take a little something for the liver."

"My old standby is Black-Draught. I have used it off and on for 20 years."

"I get bilious and have a bad taste in my mouth. My head feels dull. I just don't feel like getting around and doing my work. I know it isn't laziness, but biliousness, so I take a few doses of Black-Draught and, when it acts, I get up feeling like new, full of pep and ready for any kind of work." I can certainly recommend it.

Black-Draught liver medicine is made from pure, medicinal roots and herbs and contains no harmful, habit-forming mineral drugs. It is an easy, natural way it helps cleanse the system of poisonous impurities and tends to leave the organs in a normal, healthy condition.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC
Any erroneous reflection upon the reputation or standing of any individual, firm or corporation, that may appear in the columns of the News, will be gladly corrected when called to our attention.

Various members of the commissioners' court have explained to the News that no public road has been opened up from Tahoka out to Three Lakes and the country beyond for the reason that the land lines on the proposed route are in dispute, and that commissioner J. B. Miles of O'Donnell has done all that any commissioner could be reasonably expected to do in order to get this road opened. They say that nothing can be done by commissioner's court until these land lines are settled, and they further admit that there seems to be no prospect that there seems to be no prospect of a settlement as to the locus of the lines any time soon, perhaps not for many years. Therefore, the prospect of a public road from Tahoka to Three Lakes any time soon is exactly "nil". We simply state these facts in order that the people interested may know the exact situation.

The City Council has instructed the mayor to publish a statement of the receipts and disbursements of City funds from July 1, 1925 to July 1, 1926. The mayor has stated to the News that such a statement will be prepared and published at an early date. It is to be hoped that this statement will be full and complete, for we believe that in view of the disbursement that has existed among members of the city council for several months and in view of the charges that have been made by one and another of the members of this body, the people are entitled to a clear and complete statement of city finances. It is to be hoped also that this statement will clearly show just how much each of the City's public utilities has been costing the City, so that the citizenship may the more intelligently determine the question as to whether or not it would be advisable to sell these properties to private parties. It would not hurt for this statement to embrace a much longer period of time than that named by the city council.

We have known a few common old clod hoppers who struck a streak of luck and got rich. They were immediately heralded as "successful business men" and given the "chief place at the feasts." On the other hand, we have known a few rich men, with hosts of sycophants kissing their big toe, who by a turn of the wheel of fortune lost all their wealth. They there upon became just common clay like the rest of us. There is not much force with us in the argument that a man ought to be elected to office simply because he has acquired great wealth.

At the same time that we are to elect a governor, we are also to elect Representatives in the legislature, and other district, and county officers. Every man and woman should seek to find out who is the best fitted and qualified for the various offices and vote accordingly. Public office is no place simply to favor a friend or acquaintance. Let's vote for the best interests of our country.

DAN LEADS IN STRAW VOTE

We learned a long time ago that straw votes do not always represent the real sentiment of the people, because they are nearly always participated in by an insignificant portion of the legal voters and often by factions or classes that represent only one side of the proposition submitted. Nevertheless, we give for what it is worth, the result of the balloting in the governor's race conducted under the direction of the Lubbock Avalanche at the Limit in Tahoka for three days last week. A box was placed in this place of business and each voter was invited to write the name of his choice for governor on a slip of paper and drop the same in the box. A total of 158 votes were cast. Of this number, Dan Moody received 101 votes, Lynch Davidson 34, and Mrs. Ferguson 23. Moody had a good lead at the end of the first day's balloting, which increased at about the same ratio with each day's vote. If that is any indication of the result on July 24, Dan will have a walk-over in Lynn county.

Colorado—Work has started on a new five story hotel for Colorado.

Springfield Republican: The general neglect to take official cognizance of perjury by witnesses in civil and criminal trials is discussed by Justice William Harman Black of the New York Supreme Court in an article in the New York Times that deserves the serious attention of lawmakers and administrators of the law. It is a common observation that juries are frequently called upon to weigh conflicting testimony, some of which is manifestly intentionally false and that the virtual decision of the jury that certain witnesses were lying figures no further after the verdict in the case has been rendered. Yet, if the verdict is sound, these witnesses have been guilty of one of the worst offenses recognized by law, an offense calculated to render the law of no avail.

Justice Black vigorously expressed his views of the seriousness of the offense: "Perjury causes more misery, injustice and contempt for the law than all the other crimes listed in the penal code. because, unlike other crimes, it may pervade every trial. We are often morally convinced that the perjury is committed, but detection is almost impossible. Making death the punishment for perjury might not stop it, but the first execution under such a law would probably be the best deterrent that could be prescribed. Certainly it is not too much to ask that perjury in a murder case shall be punished with the same severity meted out to the man who is being tried for murder."

The difficulty of securing convictions in perjury cases, to which the Judge refers, is illustrated by the figures which he gives of the experience of the New York City Courts. In twenty years prior to 1920 there was an average of about nineteen perjury indictments a year and an average of about six convictions. In the four following years the total number of indictments was thirty-eight, or less than ten a year, with a total of only six convictions. The difficulty of obtaining convictions is partly due to the fact that much incorrect testimony is given in good faith and the moral line between truth and falsehood is not easy to draw. It is largely due also to the fact that the courts are insufficiently manned to follow up what is a sort of by-product of the main case. The result obviously is a weakening of the whole machinery of justice. Except in flagrant or spectacular cases—of which the notorious "bathtub case" is a recent conspicuous example—the chances that a witness can deliberately lie and get away with it are greater than there is any reasonable justification for. That lawyers themselves are sometimes guilty of manufacturing testimony for witnesses to recite in court nobody probably would attempt to deny and without reflection on the ethical standards of the profession in general it seems fair to suggest that the point is one to which bar associations might well give special attention.

Rodeos at their best are brutal, having made such a statement we hope that we will not be classed as a mollycoddle. Some of the rodeo contests are inhumane. As an example let us look at a recent rodeo goat roping contest. Goats which an ordinary man could pick up with one hand with all ease were roped by the legs, horns or neck, dragged roughly over the ground until the horse stopped running; thrown to the ground with a thud by the great roper, and tied. Aside from this the goats were subjected to all manner of rough treatment in getting them from the pens to the place from which they were released for the ropers. And to crown the exhibition of cruelty the animals were driven back again and again, until they were literally exhausted. One goat in this contest lost a horn and while the blood continued to flow from the wound the animal was sent back into the game. Such and similar contests at rodeos should be stopped. The editor has no objection to two men getting in a ring and beating each other to a pulp for the entertainment of sportmen, if they desire to do so, but this business of forcing animals to go through such punishment when they are helpless to prevent it goes just a bit against the grain. If the contest could be so arranged that the men in the contest would get the worst of the bargain the greater part of the time it would be only a matter of a short time until such contests would cease.—Wheeler News Review.

We agree with Lynch Davidson on at least one proposition, and that is that "Fergusonism" is practically dead in this state. But Lynch Davidson is not responsible for its death. Dan Moody killed it.

COUSINS OF FAME

Breckenridge American: Nye won the senatorial nomination in North Dakota, and again the Coolidge wing of the administration has lost feather. Hanna failed to turn the trick and Nye will "stay in there." How could anybody have expected a cousin of Mark Hanna to beat a cousin of Bill Nye in a race for an office? Mark Hanna, in his prime, which was twenty-five years ago, was supposed to be typical of big business and a concentration of its evils. We used to see him cartooned every day with dollar marks all over him. Usually the cartoonist armed him with a blacksnake whip, which was his scepter of tyranny over defenseless labor and the great common people. His election to the United States Senate was called a self-election and he was openly accused of having spent thousands of dollars to forward his nefarious candidacy. What it cost to elect Mr. Hanna, however, must have been pocket change in comparison to the expense of electing Mr. Vare recently in Pennsylvania. Bill Nye, on the other hand, never held an elective office. He was post master at Laramie, Wyoming, or somewhere like that, and his letter of resignation was the beginning of his fame. He made millions laugh while Mark Hanna was making other millions howl. That a cousin of each should run for the same office in North Dakota is not astonishing altogether but it is interesting to observe that the humorist's kinsman beat the magnate's kinsman. Bill Nye was never taken seriously while Mark Hanna was the seriousest thing there was—State Press In Dallas, Texas.

Unfortunately, nobody seems to appreciate Lynch Davidson's ability quite as much as he does himself.

Hubert Davis is opening a confectionery and cold drink business in the new post office building.

THRESHOLDERS ON THE JOB

There are still some threshers on the small grain harvest job this year in spite of the advance of the combine," says W. E. Newson, President of the National Association of Brotherhood of Threshers. Nothing has ever quite taken the romance out of the threshing machine and the engine that pulled it for the country boy, says the Research Department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers. There are more "individual" outfits and less big custom machines each year, however.

The harvesting of the wheat crop in the Southwest has been rapidly advanced by the advent of the "combine" reaper-thresher, according to the Research Department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers. One company manufacturing this outfit has doubled its sales this year, and last year its sales equaled all previous year's sales in the U. S. The cost of harvesting, the elimination of the "hole" from the harvest field, and the saving of the heavy hot weather cooking by farm women, has made this machine sell faster than it could be made for the past three years.

THOMAS FOOTE, SIGNER

He rode ten miles to school every day in order to acquire a classical education, and he borrowed money so that he could study law at Annapolis. Such was the foundation of the life of Thomas Stone, one of the Maryland signers of the Declaration of Independence. His name, with those of Samuel Chase, William Paca and Charles Carroll of Carrollton, are inscribed on the Maryland Memorial column, one of the thirteen pylons unveiled at the indication of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition in Philadelphia, on Flag Day.

Stone began the practice of law in Frederick, Maryland, and moved two years later to Charles County, where he purchased a farm near Port Tobacco.

He was one of the first to support the cause of his country in its struggle for self expression, and was elected to the Continental Congress in 1774. The Maryland delegates, notwithstanding their instructions in favor of reconciliation, voted for the resolution declaring the authority of the crown had ceased. Late in June these instructions were recalled leaving them free to vote for the Declaration of Independence.

If the Committee of Confederation appointed in 1774, he was the only member from his province. He was re-elected to Congress in February and honored in this committee. All the articles of Confederation were finally agreed to by vote.

Declining a re-election to Congress Stone entered the Maryland Senate, where his services were of more use to the Maryland cause. Here he opposed a proposition to establish paper currency. He abandoned his legal practice after the death of his wife, and died in 1787.

AMERICAN YOUTH

Elizabeth ("Betty") Clark, 12, of Odessa, Delaware, is one of the state's girl candidates for the American Youth Award, established by the directors of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, to be held at Philadelphia from June 1 to December 1 in observance of 150 years of American Independence. If "Betty" is finally chosen to represent Delaware she will be given a week's trip to the Exposition and to Washington and the White House, where she will receive a medal from the hands of President Coolidge.

East N. Mex. Chamber To Meet At Artesia

Artesia, N. M.—The eastern New Mexico district of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will hold their annual meeting here August 18. Artesia is planning a big event and heavy attendance is anticipated.

Artesia—The greatest wheat crop in years is now being threshed on the plains. The Santa Fe Railway reports that there is a great scarcity of cars to handle the crop despite the fact that they had concentrated eight thousand cars in anticipation of the need. Increasing use of combine harvesters and threshers has sped up the movement of grain and swamped the railway service.

THREE BINDERS MADE IN 1840

Only three binders were manufactured in 1840, 1,000 in 1850, 20,000 in 1860, according to Lloyd S. Denny, Bureau of Agricultural Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in an address before the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, recently. "Hand in hand with the settlement of the world's most fertile areas of tillable land came the most notable of all developments in agricultural production, namely the advent of modern farm machinery. Perhaps there is no more significant nor dramatic chapter than this in all the story of mankind's struggle for food. Into the lifetime of a single generation we managed to crowd technical progress such as fifty previous generations had not even dreamed of. Now, that process is still going on, in degree. During the war we saw an intensification of it. When the pressure of necessity forced farmers to speed up production and the development of the gasoline motor and improved machinery made it possible to do so. Between 1910 and 1920 our crop production per agricultural worker was increased 15 per cent or nearly one-fifth."

—HOW CHILDREN WERE NEST

The agricultural engineering department of most of the state colleges of agriculture are devoting a lot of attention to developing faster means of cultivating crop crops this year, according to the Research Department of the National Association of the Farm Equipment Manufacturers. At Ames, a motorized 8-row outfit has been used successfully in handling 45 acres of corn a day the first time over. Ohio and Illinois institutions are successfully handling 4-row jobs. The rapid advance of the 5-row system of cultivation of corn all over the Corn Belt the past four years has been one of the outstanding man-labor saving operations that has materially added to farm profits.

HOW DO MAKE BOSSY GIRL IS PER CENT MORE MILK

Low Costing Associations in more than 30 states from coast to coast according to the Research Department of the National Association of Farm Equipment Manufacturers, which has surveyed them to learn the progress of "old Bossy" and how the best herds make money. "The individual training cup," says Dexter John J. Gallagher, Donahue-Orma Low Costing Association of Wisconsin, "is the most popular equipment in our dairy herds because it increases the milk yield 15 per cent." Other features include the milking machine because it saves so much man labor and enables one man to increase the size of the herd he handles. The new gas engine turned cream separators, feed graders, ventilation systems, tractor, manure spreaders, and electrically are mentioned by other testers as the most popular because they save time and add to the profits.

Washington, D. C.—The West Texas Chamber of Commerce intervened in the recent hearing of the Department of Agriculture relative to control of the Chrysoba weevil which is ravaging the cotton fields of Arizona. The West Texas organization strongly urged regulatory measures to prevent spread of the pest to West Texas and was instrumental in getting measures passed which it is believed will control the weevil.

State May Sue For $5,000,000 On Lands

Austin, Texas, July 10.—The Attorney General Department is on the eve of filing lawsuits for the recovery of highly valuable oil and gas land in the bed of the Canadian River, which splits the famous Panhandle fields. It is unofficially estimated that the land sought to be recovered is worth approximately $5,000,000.

These facts became known Saturday on the return to Austin of Assistant Attorney General R. J. Randolph, who handles all land and oil and gas lease matters for the Attorney General's Department. Following his return he held a conference with B. F. Williams, State reclamation engineer, and they went over the map and surveys involved.

Mr. Randolph refused to discuss the matter or even intimate what action is to be taken, only admitting that he has been making an investigation along the Canadian River in the oil and gas fields and that suits probably would be filed. His attitude was that of confirmation, but he declined to discuss lawsuits in advance of their filing.

Under the decisions of the courts the State or school fund is the owner of the bed of so-called navigable streams and can issue oil and gas permits in such areas. The law says streams thirty feet or more in width are navigable and, therefore, the beds belong to the State as public lands, that survey for patents extend only to the edge of the stream bed and not to the channel or the middle.

The Canadian River traverses the center of Potter and Hutchinson Counties, rich in gas and oil, and also courses through Roberts, Oldham and Hemphill Counties besides cutting across a corner of Moore County. It extends entirely across the Texas Panhandle it is supposed to be adjacent to rich oil and gas deposits.

Mrs J. O. King of Dixie community brought to the News office Saturday a sample of the onions they are raising this year. This onion weighs eight ounces and Mrs King says they have had some even larger than this one.

The group includes many prominent attorneys, editors, bankers, school superintendents; local and state leaders in Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions' clubs, Federation of Women's Clubs, and the Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers Associations and government officials, merchants, ministers and college presidents.

A CORRECTION

An error occurred in the last stanza of the poem, "A Reminder," by Annie Hornsby Pirtle, published last week, which destroyed the meaning intended to be conveyed and made the verse senseless. The expression "as one man" as written in the poem was printed "a same man" The stanza as written reads as follows:

Oh, No! we'll all together stand,
As one true loyal band.
We'll walk up bravely as one man
And cast the vote for Dan.
The author has asked us to make this correction and we gladly do so.

WHEAT IS MAKING OVER SIXTY BUSHELS PER ACRE

Reports from the harvest fields indicate that the great harvest will be fully up to the most sanguine expectations. Many farmers report a yield of fifty to sixty bushels per acre; forty bushels per acre is common and none report below twenty-five bushels per acre. Elevator row in Spearman is again a seething mass of men, trucks and cars. Up to Wednesday night cars of wheat had been shipped from this point. This number would have been trebled if cars could have been procured.

The weather has been fine most of the time since harvest began, with the exception of a light rain on Tuesday of this week. The work is progressing as rapidly and satisfactorily as could be expected, but the car shortage is causing much trouble. The only safe way to handle a big wheat crop is to store it away in good granaries and haul it to town during the winter. It seems that the car shortage situation will never be successfully ironed out. There seems to be no shortage of harvest help or wheat haulers. The only fly in the ointment is the shortage of cars.—Spearman Reporter

The present high school building will be used as a junior high school when the new building is ready and extensive improvements and additions to ward schools will be made to care for the rapidly increasing enrollment.

PLANE CRASH IN LEVELLAND KILLS BOY

Levelland, July 11.—Priestly Suttle, eldest son of Elder T. P. Suttle of this place was killed instantly when the airplane in which he was riding made a sudden nose dive and fell 75 to 100 feet, breaking the boy's neck.

It is thought the plane struck an air pocket. The plane was demolished.

Clint Breedlove, the pilot, received minor injuries.

Elder Suttle's younger son was killed accidentally last November by his own gun while out hunting.

W. R. Lacey, teacher of vocational agriculture in the Tahoka High School the past two years, left Tuesday. He will visit his sister at Claude for a few days, but has not yet matured his plans for next year. Mr. Lacey was a very popular teacher here and did fine work also with the boy scouts and in other activities. He will be greatly missed in Tahoka.

Will Sutton and family of Killeen, Bell county, were here a short time one day last week, taking a rapid-fire view of the Plains. Mr. Sutton reads the Lynn County News and he stopped in to shake hands with the editor. He reports that crops in his section of the state are very fine this year.

B. R. Tate left Wednesday for the Temple Sanitarium for a physical examination. He expects to be back the latter part of the week.

The commissioner's court was in session the first three days of this week, attending principally to routine matters.
