Local Women Attend Federated Club Convention

They report a splendid meeting of this the first meeting of the new district. All State officers of the Federation were present. Reports of work on civic improvement, good roads, educational movements, etc., showed "up and doing" clubs in this district. The chief goal of this administration is, "a higher rank for Texas on the scale of education."

The Phebe K. Warner Club, of Tahoka, received the stirring applause of the entire federation when its report was read by its delegate, Mrs. Caveness, and the club was christened the Baby Club of Baby District, being the most recently organized club in the district. This club is anxious to co-operate in any way with Tahoka Chamber of Commerce, City Council, Trustees, in any movement for the upbuilding and progress of Tahoka.

Mrs. Caveness and Weaver cannot say enough for the hospitality of the citizens of Plainview, and drop the hint that if the Tahoka citizens do not wish to miss a great treat they had better attend the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention there next month.

O'Donnell 6; Tahoka 2

In a fast, snappy ball game played on the local diamond yesterday afternoon, the O'Donnell aggregation, under the management of "Shorty" Wright, succeeded in beating out Paul Miller's line-up, by the score of 6 to 2.

Timely hitting on the part of the O'Donnell team and costly errors made by Tahoka, gave O'Donnell the big end of the score. Harley Wells started on the mound for Tahoka, and for a youngster, delivered a wicked ball. He was relieved by the "Old Reliable," Skip Taylor, in the 5th, Robinson, Tahoka's star catcher, also entered the game at this time.

The local team will go to Post for a game Sunday afternoon.

Two-Inch Rain Fall This Week

O Boy! Ain't it a grand and glorious feelin'. Lynn county was the recipient of a two-inch rain, beginning Saturday night and ending Wednesday noon. It was a slow driving rain that soaked the ground thoroughly and was general all over the Panhandle, according to daily newspaper reports. Floods have occurred in different sections of Texas.

A majority of the Lynn county farmers had been busy with their planting, while a few a few had cotton coming up before the rains. Many of the farmers will proceed to plant as soon as possible. The rain came in time to be of great benefit to the wheat crop, of which there is a large acreage planted in the county, and will also aid in keeping up the rapid growth of the range.

More flattering prospects for a banner year in Lynn county were never at hand than at the present time. .20 inches rain fell Saturday night and Sunday; 1.03 inches Tuesday and Tuesday night, and .77 inches Wednesday morning.

J. T. Williams Shot at Wilson

J. T. Williams, general manager of the Wilson Mercantile Company, at Wilson, 12 miles north of Tahoka, in this county, was wounded as the result of a shooting affray, which occurred in that town Monday night near 11:00 o'clock. Messrs. Loy Crouch, Charles Richards, Lynn Smith, Dick Hendricks and Jim Harrison, young men of Wilson, are charged in connection with the shooting and are now out on bond awaiting the action of the grand jury.

The trouble which led up to the shooting affray is said to have started over an attempt on the part of the young men to have a bunch of Mexicans residing in Wilson, leave town, whereupon the Mexicans appealed to the officers and citizens for help. It is reported that the young men had been employed on some construction work under way on the school building in Wilson, and had been turned off and the work given the Mexicans. As a result of the procedure the young men gave them orders to hunt new territory. When Mr. Williams appeared on the scene, it is said he found the boys half masked, and believing them to be highwaymen, began firing his gun, all of the shots going wild. It is then reported that Crouch and Richards returned the firing with shot guns, the shots taking effect in Mr. Williams' left jaw and shoulder. Unless unforeseen complications set up, his injuries are reported as not serious at this writing.

Deputy A. M. Sullivan, of this city, made the arrests in the case, and arraigned the prisoners before Justice of the Peace, where their bond was set and which all five of them made.

FATHER AND MOTHER

SYNOPSIS.—In a preface Mary Marie explains her apparent "double personality" and just why she is a cross-current and a contradiction; she also tells her reasons for writing the diary—later to be a novel. The diary is commenced at Andersonville. Mary begins with Nurse Sarah's account of her (Mary's) birth, which seemingly interested her father, who is a famous astronomer, less than a new star which was discovered at Andersonville. Her name is a compromise, her father insisting on Abigail Jane. The child quickly learned that her home was in some way different from those of her small friends, and was puzzled thereat. Nurse Sarah tells her of her mother's arrival at Andersonville as a bride and how astonished they all were at the sight of the dainty eighteen-year-old girl whom the sedate professor had chosen for a wife.

"At your ma—poor little thing! I didn't think of anything but a doll was thrown in the corner because somebody'd got tired of her. She was meso, an' no mistake. Anybody'd sorry for her, to see her moppin' round the house, nothin' to do. Oh, read, an' sewed with them bright-colored silks an' woosteds; but there wasn't no real work for her to do. There was good help in the kitchen, an' took what care of your grandpa was needed; an' she always gave orders through me, so I practical-ly run the house, an' there wasn't anything there for her to do. An' so your ma just had to mope it alone. Oh, I don't mean your pa was sorry. 'Twas too bad he was busy. An' he kissed her an' patted her. But he always began right away to talk of the comet; an' ten to one he didn't disappear into the observatory within the next five minutes. Then your ma would look so grieved an' sorrow an' go off an' cry, an' maybe not come down to dinner, at all. Well then, one day things got so your grandma took a hand. She was up an' around the house, though she kept mostly to her own rooms. But of course she saw how things was. Besides, I told her—some. 'Twas no more than my duty, as I looked at it. She just worshipped your ma, an' naturally she'd want things to be right for her. So one day she told me to tell her son's wife to come to her in her room.

"An' I did, an' she came. Poor little thing! I couldn't help bein' sorry for her. She didn't know a thing of what was wanted of her, an' she was so glad an' happy to come. You see, she was lonesome, I suppose. 'Me? Want me?—Oh, Mother Anderson she cried. '—'I'm so glad.' When she made it worse by runnin' up the stairs an' bouncin' into the room like a rubber ball, an' cryin': 'Now, what shall I do, read to you, or sing to you, or shall we play games? I'd like to do any of them.' Just like that, she said it. I heard her. Then I went out, of course, an' left them. But I heard 'most everything that was said, just the same, for I was right in the next room dustin', an' the door wasn't quite shut.

"First your grandmother said real polite—she was always polite—but in a cold little voice that made even me shiver in the other room, that she did not desire to be read to or sung to, and that she did not wish to play games. She had called her daughter-in-law in to have a serious talk with her. Then she told her, still very polite, that she was noisy an' childish, an' undignified, an' that it was not only silly, but very wrong for her to expect to have her husband's entire attention; that he had his own work, an' it was a very important one. He was going to be president of the college some day, like his father before him; an' it was her place to help him in every way she could—help him to be popular an' well-liked by all the college people an' students; an' he couldn't be that if she insisted all the time on keepin' him to herself, or lookin' sour an' cross if she couldn't have him.

"Of course that ain't all she said; but I remember this part particular on account of what happened afterward. You see—your ma—she felt awful bad. She cried a little, an' she said a lot, an' said she'd try, she really would try to help her husband in every way she could; an' she wouldn't ask him another once, not once, to stay with her. An' she wouldn't look sour an' cross, either. 'I'd promise she wouldn't. An' she'd she'd try, oh, so hard, to be proper an' dignified.

"She got up then an' went out of the room so quiet an' still you wouldn't know she was movin'. But I heard her in her room cryin' half an hour later, when I stopped a minute at her door to see if she was there. An' she was.

"But she wasn't cryin' by light. What was she doin'? She'd washed her face an' dressed herself up as pretty as could be, an' she never so much as looked as if she wanted her husband to stay with her, when he said he'd go out to the observatory. An' 'twas that way right along after that, I know, 'cause I watched. You see, I knew what she'd said she'd do. Well, she did it.

"Then, pretty quick after that, she began to get acquainted in the town. Folks called, an' there was parties an' receptions where she met folks, an' they began to come here to the house, specially them students, an' two or three of them young, unmarried professors. An' she began to go out a lot with them—skatin' an' sleighridin' an' snowshoelin'.

"Like it? Of course she liked it! Who wouldn't? Why, child, you never saw such a fuss as they made over your ma in them days. She was all the rage; an' of course she liked it. What woman wouldn't, that was gay an' lively an' young, an' had been so lonesome like your ma had? But some other folks didn't like it. An' your pa was one of them. This time 'twas him that made the trouble. I know, 'cause I heard what he said one day to her in the library.

"Yes, I guess I was in the next room that day, too—er—dustin', probably. Anyway, I heard him tell your ma good an' plain what he thought of her givin' livin' 'round from mornin' till night with them young students an' professors, an' havin' them here, too, such a lot, till the house was fairly overrun with them. He said he was shocked an' scandalized, an' didn't she have any regard for his honor an' decency, if she didn't for herself! An' oh, a whole lot more.

"Cry? No, your ma didn't cry this time. I met her in the hall right after they got through talkin', an' she was white as a sheet, an' her eyes was like two blazin' stars. So I know how she must have looked while she was in the library. An' I must say she give it to him good an' plain, straight from the shoulder. She told him she was shocked an' scandalized that he could talk to his wife like that; an' didn't he have any more regard for her honor an' decency than to accuse her of runnin' after any man living—much less a dozen of them! An' then she told him a lot of what his mother had said to her, an' she said she had been merely tryin' to carry out those instructions. She was tryin' to make her husband an' her husband's wife an' her husband's home popular with the college folks, so she could help him to be president, if he wanted to be. But he answered back, cold an' chilly, that he thanked her, of course, but he didn't care for any more of that kind of assistance; an' if she would give a little more time to her home an' her housekeepin', as she ought to, he would be considerably better pleased. An' she said, very well, she would see that he had no further cause to complain. An' the next minute I met her in the hall, as I just said, her head high and her eyes blazin'.

"Yes, I Guess I Was in the Next Room That Day, Too—er—Dustin'."

"An' things did change then, a lot. I'll own. Right away she began to refuse to go out with the students an' young professors, an' she sent down word she wasn't to come when they called. And pretty quick, of course, they stopped comin'.

"Housekeepin'? Attend to that? Well, y-yes, she did try to at first, a little; but of course your grandma had always given the orders—through me, I mean; an' there really wasn't anything your ma could do. An' I told her so, plain. Her days were new an' different an' queer, an' we liked ours better, anyway. So she didn't bother us much that way very long. Besides, she wasn't feelin' very well, anyway, an' for the next few months she stayed in her room a lot, an' we didn't see much of her. Then by an' by you came, an'—well, I guess that's all—too much, you little chatter-box!"

CHAPTER III

The Break Is Made.

And that's the way Nurse Sarah finished her story, only she shrugged her shoulders again, and looked back, first one way, then another. As for her calling me "chatter-box"—she always calls me that when she's been doing all the talking.

As near as I can remember, I have told Nurse Sarah's story exactly as she told it to me, in her own words. But of course I know I didn't get it right all the time, and I know I've left out quite a lot. But, anyway, it's told a whole lot more than I could have told why they got married in the first place, and it brings my story right up to the point where I was born; and I've already told about naming me, and what a time they had over that.

Of course what's happened since, up to now, I don't know all about, for I was only a child for the first few years. Now I'm almost a young lady, "standing with reluctant feet where the brook and river meet." (I read that last night. I think it's perfectly beautiful. So kind of sad and sweet. It makes me want to cry every time I think of it.) But even if I don't know all of what's happened since I was born, I know a good deal, for I've seen quite a lot, and I've made Nurse tell me a lot more.

I know that ever since I can remember I've had to keep as still as a mouse the minute Father comes into the house; and I know that I never could imagine the kind of a mother that Nurse tells about, if it wasn't that sometimes when Father has gone off on a trip, Mother and I have romped all over the house, and had the most beautiful time. I know that Father says that Mother is always trying to make me a "Marie," and nothing else; and that Mother says she knows Father'll never be happy until he's made me into a stupid little "Mary," with never an atom of life of my own. And, do you know? It does seem sometimes, as if Mary and Marie were fighting inside of me, and I wonder which is going to beat. Funny, isn't it?

Father is president of the college now, and I don't know how many stars and comets and things he's discovered since the night the star and I were born together. But I know he's very famous, and that he's written up in the papers and magazines, and is in the big fat red "Who's Who" in the library, and has lots of noted men come to see him.

Nurse says that Grandma Anderson died very soon after I was born, but that it didn't make any particular difference in the housekeepin'; for things went right on just as they had done, with her giving the orders as before; that she'd given them all alone anyway, mostly, the last year Grandma Anderson lived, and she knew just how Father liked things. She said Mother tried once or twice to take the reins herself, and once Nurse let her, just to see what would happen. But things got in an awful muddle right away, so that even Father noticed it and said things. After that Mother never tried again, I guess. Anyhow, she's never tried it since I can remember. She's always stayed most of the time up in her rooms in the east wing, except during meals, or when she went out with me, or went to the things she and Father had to go to together. For they did go to lots of things, Nurse says.

It seems that for a long time they didn't want folks to know there was going to be a divorce. So before folks they tried to be just as usual. But Nurse Sarah said she knew there was going to be one long ago. The first I ever heard of it was Nurse telling Nora, the girl we had in the kitchen then; and the minute I got a chance I asked Nurse what it was—a divorce.

My, I can remember now how scared she looked, and how she clapped her hand over my mouth. She wouldn't tell me—not a word. And that's the first time I ever saw her give that quick little look over each shoulder. She's done it lots of times since.

As I said, she wouldn't tell me, so I had to ask some one else. I wasn't going to let it go by and not find out—not when Nurse Sarah looked so scared, and when it was something my father and mother were going to have some day.

I didn't like to ask Mother. Some way, I had a feeling, from the way Nurse Sarah looked, that it was something Mother wasn't going to like. And I thought if maybe she didn't know yet she was going to have it, that certainly I didn't want to be the one to tell her. So I didn't ask Mother what a divorce was.

"Oh, my baby, my baby—to think I have subjected you to this!"

MECHANISM CARE LENGTHENS LIFE

Average Owner of Car Knows Just About Enough to Put Foot on the Gas.

PROPER INSTRUCTION NEEDED

Course in Driving and in Automotive Mechanics Will Be Money and Time Well Spent—Instruction Book Will Help.

With about 2,000,000 automobiles being produced in this country annually, it can be taken for granted that about 6,000 cars are sold every business day of the year. A lot of purchasers are fairly green when it comes to operating their cars, so say nothing of taking the proper care of them.

Of course the buyer receives a certain amount of instruction as to running the machine from the man who sells it to him. That is to say, the owner when he finds himself alone with his newly acquired possession is apt to steer the thing well enough to keep between the two curbs of the street and to negotiate a corner by some hook or crook. He may know how to stop on the gas, where at least one of the brake apparatus is and something about shifting gears.

Should Know His Car.

But there are a lot of things about a car that he should know, and if he doesn't know them he should get busy at once to acquire some knowledge. The best thing for him to do right off the bat is to take a short course in driving from some experienced man or in some recognized school, and a longer course in automotive mechanics. This will be time and money well spent in the long run.

In any rate, he should take the instruction book that comes with his car and learn it by heart. A good deal of it will be Greek to him, and it will be necessary to consult an expert to get an explanation of some technical information and make it somewhat understandable. This book should be revered next to the Bible. It is indispensable.

Doubtless the owner will find that the manufacturer has, for instance, given certain instructions concerning lubrication, perhaps has specified certain kinds of lubricants. Now, no matter how much you may know about the subject of lubrication, rest assured that the manufacturer has had an engineer study out the lubrication of his car, and what he writes concerning it is the last word, and it should be followed implicitly.

Service Depends on Care.

The same thing is true as to tires, brakes or steering gear, or any other part of the mechanism.

The owner, whether he possesses a low-priced car or an edition de luxe, has about as much money tied up in his auto as he feels he can devote to that particular form of pleasure or to business. It is an investment which will or will not bring commensurate returns in money or moments well spent. It can be made an indispensable aid to both business and pleasure or it may become an insufferable nuisance. The actual value of a car depends not so much upon the amount of the purchase price as upon what can be gotten out of it; its service, its dependability and general reliability; that and the low cost of upkeep and operation.

It is reasonable, therefore, for the owner to give as much thought and study to the machine which propels him and his merchandise as to the machine in the factory which produces the merchandise. He ought to understand how and why and wherefore it propels him—or why not.

TO BUILD COMBINED MUFFLER AND HEATER

Outline of Arrangement Not Easily Damaged.

Device Is Made by Assembling Short Sections of Pipes Such as Are Used for Waste and Fairly Thin-Walled.

Starting a car in cold weather is especially hard on the muffler and sometimes muffler shots demolish the muffler shells. An arrangement that is not easily damaged unless through a collision or accident may be made by assembling short sections of pipe such as are used by plumbers for waste pipes, fairly thin-walled. These can be connected with couplings and secured on the end of the exhaust pipe to replace the muffler. Six or eight sections make a muffler as efficient as the usual type bought.

An advantage afforded by the use of these pipes, as shown in the illustration, is that the heat may be directed into the car through a perforated cover.

This arrangement does not encroach upon the foot room, and in summer the perforated section can be covered with a piece of sheet iron and the sheet-iron box cover about the improvised heater muffler removed to avoid unduly heating the floor.—G. A. L., in Popular Science Monthly.

SCOTLAND YARD PARADES STOLEN CARS TO FIND RIGHTFUL OWNERS

In the yard of the Westchester guildhall, England, recently there was a great parade of stolen motor cars and of motor owners who thought they might find their cars in the crowd.

Elusive motor thieves have been making large hauls of motor cars recently in London and the outlying districts. Many of the cars have been recovered, but none of the culprits. The police of Scotland Yard took the cars out on parade in the hope that some of the cars would be identified by their owners.

Mrs. Gertrude Sell

Houston, Texas—"I was in a terribly run-down condition of health after a siege of ptomaine poisoning, and then the influenza. I could not seem to regain my strength and was really not able to do my housework. I knew I needed a good tonic and builder and remembered how my folks used to regard Dr. Pierce's remedies in my girlhood days, and then I decided to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. After taking the second bottle I found it was doing me a world of good, strength returned rapidly and I felt better in every way. I am glad indeed to recommend the medicine that did me so much good and do not hesitate to give this statement."—Mrs. Gertrude Sell, 1236 Rutland St.

PANHANDLE EDITORS
MEET IN AMARILLO

Last Friday and Saturday the Panhandle Press Association met in the city of Amarillo, and nearly the entire western portion of West Texas and Eastern New Mexico was represented at the meeting. It was the fifteenth annual convention. Amarillo was chosen as the meeting place for the 1923 convention.

During the association three banquets were served to the editors and their wives; they being tendered by the Amarillo Board of City Development; Col. Ernest Thompson, owner of the Hotel Amarillo, and Hon. Marvin Jones of Washington, D. C. These "feasts" were greatly enjoyed by those in attendance and it is the desire of all that Amarillo be made the permanent meeting place of the Panhandle press gang.

New officers elected were: E. A. Carlock of Paducah, president; L. P. Loomis of Canadian, vice president; F. R. Jamison, re-elected secretary.

The Monthly Magazine Section of the Lynn County News will be issued May 5th. Watch for it. Eight full pages of good reading. Note the contents below:

"Battle Between Texas Rangers Lipan Indians," by A. J. Sowell, an old Texas Ranger.

"What is the Balcones Fault?" Geologists trace it as the old shoreline of the Gulf of Mexico, traversing Central East Texas northeast and southwest.

"Current Comment" by J. H. Lowrey.

"What do movie actors earn?" Chaplin receives less money than is generally supposed; Mary Pickford a millionairess.

"A Little Fun," Jokes with pep and punch.

"Auto Hints," they will help to keep your car in order.

"Texas Farm News" just pure news items of the toilers of the soil.

"Stories for Boys and Girls," "Heroic Feats of a Life-Saving Dog" and other good stories.

"Woman's Department," May fashions and patterns; household helps, etc.

THE DITTY OF THE DOLLAR.

An editor has been inspired after looking over his list of delinquent subscribers to compose the following: "How dear to our heart is the old silver dollar, when some kind subscriber presents it to view; the Liberty head without necktie or collar; and all the strange things which to us seem so new. The wide spreading eagle, the arrows below it, the stars and the words with the strange things they tell; the coin of our fathers, we're glad that we know is, for some time or other it will come in right well; the spread-eagle dollar, the star-spangled dollar, the old silver dollar we all love so well."—Troy Times.

Advertising

Here is a convincing proof that the local merchants who do live advertising thereby protect their field against inroads from the big, mail order houses.

Herman Rosenfeld, advertising manager for Sears, Roebuck & Co., is quoted in the current number of the Fourth Estate as follows:

"We have a bureau whose duty it is to read each week the country newspaper from all over the country.

"There is not a paper of any consequence in our trade territory that our bureau does not get. This bureau looks over these papers and when we find a town where the merchants are not advertising in the local papers we immediately flood the territory with our literature. It always brings results far in excess of the same effort put forth in territory where the local merchants are using the local papers"

Wireless telephony is the marvel of the day and hour. It seems that nothing more wonderful could be worked out by the brain and hand of man, but even now restless man is at work on greater things. A great scientist tells us that a brain-to-brain radio will be perfected in the near future. When this promised radio is perfected communication between brain and brain, without speech, will be possible. Briefly stated, one person may think something and another person a thousand miles away will catch the thought. There will be no need of telephones or telegraphs then, and letter writing will become a lost art. We go on the list of doubting Thomases and say it can't be done. But we are the same guy who said ten years ago a flying machine would never be perfected and who laughed at wireless telephony talk five years ago.—Honey Grove Signal.

IN RUSSIAN MODES

Demand Prevails in Paris for Blouses and Sweaters.

Garments Fit Well into the Present Fashion Picture and the Shops Are Busy.

The present influence of Russian styles in all types of dress in France is due to Russian refugees, according to a Paris fashion writer in the New York Tribune. Princesses and grand duchesses, driven from their own country, their lands confiscated, their money and jewels gone, have turned to the occupation which deals with the subject nearest a woman's heart and the one which she naturally knows most about—the designing, making and selling of clothes.

Both sympathetically and artistically these Russian wares have made a great impression in Paris, and a decided Russian vogue prevails, particularly in blouses and sweaters. These garments fit very well into the present fashion picture because even as far back as August there was this tendency toward both the Russian and Polish types in coats and blouses. Jenny, Renee and Patou all showed models distinctly Slavic in feeling. Within the last month the inspiration has been definitely named Russian.

The various ateliers, or workshops, operated in Paris for the benefit of Russian workers, are very busily engaged in executing private orders on blouses of Russian style. Paris manufacturers, catering in a large way to the fashion makers of the world, have taken up the idea, and beautiful new models for export trade are being prepared in the Russian modes.

One of the charming things about the Russian blouse is that it is youthful in style and yet full of dignity. It is becoming to almost every type of figure. With its low waistline belt, its big sleeves and its effective embroideries the Russian blouse fits exactly into the fashion picture of today.

FOR YOUR NEW TUNIC BLOUSE

Put Hand Embroidery Only Around Center of the Sleeve, and on the Sash.

If you want to make a stunning new tunic blouse, put your hand embroidery now in two places only: Around the center of the kimono sleeve, and on the sash. Leave the neckline and the body of the blouse absolutely plain, and let the embroidery on sleeve and sash be as splendid as you can make it. The kimono sleeve should extend below the embroidery almost to the wrist, so that it drapes and flaps about the arm, lifted or lowered—this is fashion's fancy just now.

A stunning tunic blouse is of black satin meteor with broad bands of embroidery—perhaps nine inches wide—around the center of the sleeve and on the ends of the wide sash which is looped over once and falls with heavily fringed ends at one hip. The embroidery is done with darning stitch lines of pale gray and white silk floss and silver threads. Here and there are triangular appliques of gray duvetyne, surrounded with lines of black and white silk floss and silver thread. Another blouse, of black satin, has embroidery of gold thread, gray, magenta and olive green floss.

Make a bateau neckline—if you can stand the severe style—and open the blouse at the shoulder, with an arrangement of invisible snap-fasteners. Or have a rounded neckline with a six-inch slash down the front. Run a very tiny casing around the neckline and draw it up with a cord or velvet ribbon, tying the ribbon at the top of the

THE "KIKI" SCARF AND CAP

One of the latest novelties in feminine toggery is the "Kiki" scarf and cap outfit. Tomato red duvetyne is employed, embroidered attractively. The sets are made in the most brilliant colors.

HANDWORK IS IN HIGH FAVOR

Woman Skillful With Needle May Have Beautiful Clothes at Very Moderate Outlay.

Any sort of handwork is in high favor this season, and this should mean a lot to the woman who makes her own clothes. Ready-to-wear garments that are largely handmade are decidedly expensive, but when a woman is sufficiently skillful with her needle to do her own embroidering, hemstitching, etc., she may have really beautiful clothes at a very moderate outlay.

There is nothing radically different in spring styles from those of the season just ending. The straight silhouette holds good, the low waistline is very much approved, and the uneven hem continues to be a feature. There are many novel and interesting sleeves and some new neck treatments, but on the whole there is comparatively little change. Certainly, however, emphasis is laid on increased skirt length.

DRESS TO MATCH THE COAT

Suit Houses Have Concentrated on Producing Attractive Styles in Three-Piece Garments.

Taking a leaf out of the book of the dress manufacturers, the suit houses have concentrated their efforts on producing attractive styles in three-piece garments. They substitute, however, the coat or jacket for the cape. Underneath this outside garment there is provided a dress of the same material, which follows a tailored design.

According to the manufacturers, this style is just getting into its swing and will see its best season next fall, though quite a few numbers have already appeared and there will be plenty for the late spring.

Colored Collar Ideas

Organdies in lovely shades of color are made into charming collars. Try your hand at them. Try violet collars with a white edge. Wear them on a gray dress. Try some of watermelon pink with a white edge. Wear them on a dark blue dress. Try pink collars with a violet edging. Wear them on a tan dress. Try gray collars with a gray edge. Wear them on a fenna dress. Try some of your own combinations.

Sets of Cretonne

Cretonne collar and cuff sets are the latest thing in New York shops. They come in shades that blend especially well with the new tweeds and are a delightful feminine touch on a man-tailored suit.

Man-Tailored Topcoats; Knitted Bathing Suits

IT IS the fashion to be sensible—that is, when it comes to choosing one's street suit or topcoat. The topcoat patterned after big brother's or hubby's own is woman's pride this season. To be swagger style, these man-tailored cloth togs must be of staunch and sturdy cloth which guarantees outdoor service. Where do you suppose we go to buy the real thing in these coveted coats? Direct to a man's tailoring establishment! It is a fact several leading manufacturers identified hereto-

It was remarked at the sea-coast winter resorts this season that the plain high-quality knitted bathing suit was prime favorite. Of course there were many novelty creations which passed under the title of bathing suit, which are in reality beach costumes of the elaborate sort. If one is not a water fan, this sort of outfit is charmingly in accord with the picture, but when it comes to real sport, genuine healthy hearty playing the waves, or professional swimming, nothing fore the country over as makers exclusively of men's suits and coats are producing strictly tailored garments for women this season.

These coats of masculine type to be correct must have the characteristic neat collar, wide belt, roomy sleeves and deep pockets without a compromise toward any detail which savors of the feminine. The illustration demonstrates this mode.

Melton cloth, which is noted for its light weight and heavy appearance, is the favorite fabric, although tweed is a close rival. The herringbone pattern, which is so well thought of for men's suits and coats, is quite as appealing to sister and mother this season for street wear.

If it isn't the topcoat manishly fashioned then it is the suit, which mildly insists must be built on conventional lines. For the business woman who has no time for frills these new modes are especially appropriate. Yet I think me that a touch of the eternal feminine in the way of a bit of crochet gives the satisfaction of the knitted bathing suit.

It is, however, good economy to buy only the best. There are certain standard makes which guarantee fast color and enduring shapeliness. It is a waste of money to invest in any other.

Some of the new knitted suits are most attractively designed as verified in the accompanying picture. This model is to be had in very interesting color combinations, such as gray with navy, scarlet or orange border. It is of jersey knit and in every line shows that style and becomingness has been thought out by the designer down to the slightest detail.

The attached full skirt is belted and bordered, in a way which adds to the general attractiveness. The refinement of this suit is one of its characteristics.

It is just as essential to wear attractive correct accessories with the bathing suit, as with one's dressiest costume. Bathing caps are becoming lace is sure to reveal itself when the coat is thrown open, although the strictly tailored lingerie shirtwaist is really in keeping with the vogue, which proclaims men's fashions as women's fashions this season.

It is a question whether beige or gray has preference, and many of the lighter two-tone brown effects are noted.

The suit in the picture was developed in gray homespun and it is the type which is ever ready with no wear-out to it.

According to the calendar, anticipation will soon be realization to those looking forward to the season of swimming and sea-bathing. Why not forestall the usual plea of regret, "I have no bathing suit," by preparing aforesaid.

millinery achievements these days The rubber flower caps are great favorites. For instance an ocean blue cap is entirely covered with white petalled rubber daisies. Roman stripe bandanna caps are immensely becoming and it carries out a color mode which is fashionable throughout dress accessory this season.

For beach capes there are creations in rubberized silk in gayest colorings. The three-piece bathing suit with knitted cape to match is meeting with success, not only because of its attractiveness, but also from the standpoint of utility.

CALOMEL GOOD BUT NEXT DOSE MAY SALIVATE

It Is Mercury. Quicksilver. Shocks Liver and Attacks Your Bones.

Calomel salivation is horrible. It swells the tongue, loosens the teeth and starts rheumatism. There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel. It is a pleasant vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Calomel is a dangerous drug; besides, it may make you feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than treacherous calomel your money is waiting for you.—Advertisement.

D. A. PARKHURST IS APPOINTED POSTMASTER
 In the official announcement of postmaster appointments appearing in the daily papers Thursday of last week, appeared the name of Hon. D. A. Parkhurst as newly appointed postmaster for Tahoka. Mr. Parkhurst has not as yet received in official form his appointment, but it is expected that it will only be a matter of a few days until same is in his hands. Mr. Parkhurst will take the place of Miss Amanda Leedy, who is now acting postmaster, having been duly appointed to fill out the unexpired term of J. B. Walker several months ago. Miss Leedy also served as assistant postmaster under Mr. Walker for a number of years. Mr. Parkhurst has been serving Uncle Sam as carrier on route 1 out of Tahoka for a number of years, and when he takes over the reins for the postmaster the job will not be entirely new to him. In conversation with Mr. Parkhurst the early part of the week he stated that he would likely appoint Jack Alley of this city, as his assistant. Miss Leedy, assisted by John Thomas, have given entire satisfaction to the patrons of the local post office during the few months Miss Leedy has had charge. There were a number of applicants for the Tahoka post office.

MAGNOLIA. (Delayed)
 Most every one is in the field this fine weather and thankful for the great season we have to plant feed crops on. The Baptist people begin Wednesday on another 50-acre cotton crop alongside of this one. The Magnolia people have 90 acres for the erection of a place of worship, and the school is talking crop for the building of another much needed room. Some sickness, but our school keeps up a good attendance and much interest. The teachers of the three lower grades in our Union Sunday School entertained the children Saturday afternoon at Mrs. Bailey's with an Easter egg hunt. The children made an Easter offering of hair ribbon to the Buckner Orphan girls. Kilgore Flemings and family have returned home from a two weeks' visit to Munday, Texas. Mrs. Walter Bartlett and little daughter of Electra, are spending a while in her father's home, A. W. Haynes.

The Parent Teacher Association met Tuesday evening for election of officers for the next school term. The fourth grade delighted their parents by their spelling so well. After the business session closed the ladies served gingerbread, coffee and butter-milk.

LAMESA WATER AND SEWER BOND ISSUES CARRY

The result of last Tuesday's election showed a very decided majority of the qualified voters of the city of Lamesa to be in favor of both the waterworks and sewer bond issues. The vote was as follows: For waterworks 165, against 49; for sewer bonds 162, against 54. Now that the people have by such an overwhelming majority expressed themselves in favor of these improvements, let us, one and all, fall in line and work together in harmony and unity for the good of our town.—Dawson County Journal.

POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK IS OBSERVED
May 1 Sees Inaugurated First General Campaign of Kind in Service.

Without the Postal Service, business would languish in a day, and be at a standstill in a week. Public opinion would die of dry rot. Sectional hatred or prejudice only would flourish, and narrow-mindedness thrive. It is the biggest distinctive business in the world and it comes nearer to the innermost interests of a greater number of men and women than any other institution on earth. No private business, however widespread, touches so many lives so often or sharply; no church reaches into so many souls, flutters so many pulses, has so many human beings dependent on its ministrations. "Postal Improvement Week" has been set for May 1, by the Postmaster General. This is the first general campaign of its kind in the Postal Service for several decades. Business men and their organizations, large users of the mail, newspapers, motion pictures, advertisers, and the entire organization of 326,000 postal workers are to be enlisted in this country-wide campaign of interest in postal improvements. Your help is vital. Address your letters plainly with pen or typewriter. Give street address. Spell out name of State, don't abbreviate. Put your return address in the upper left hand corner of envelope (not on the back) and always look at your letter before dropping in the mail to see if it is properly addressed. This care in the use of the mails is for your benefit and speeds up the dispatch and delivery of mail matter. If you have any complaints of poor service make them to your postmaster. He has instructions to investigate them and report to the department.

COURTESY
 It sticks in human relations like postage stamps on letters. The POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT expects it to be used by its postmasters and employees in dealing with the public. Help them in its use beginning with POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK, May 1-6, 1922.

THANK YOU
WITHOUT STREET ADDRESS YOUR MAIL IS DELAYED AT OFFICE OF DELIVERY

The Dead Letter Office has been in existence ever since Ben Franklin started our postal service. Even then people addressed mail to Mr. Ezekiel Smithers, "Atlantic Coast," and expected Ben to know just where Zeke lived. Perhaps they had Zeke's address in letters up in the garret, maybe a chest full of 'em, but then it was easier to let Ben hunt Zeke. Today people are addressing letters to John Smith, New York, N. Y., or Chicago, Ill., thinking Uncle Sam can locate him, which is just as incomplete as was Zeke's address of yore. The Postoffice Department asks you to put the number and street in the address. It helps you.

Trinidad Col.
 How do you expect the Postal Clerk to know whether you mean Trinidad, California, or Trinidad, Colorado? ALWAYS SPELL OUT THE NAME OF THE STATE IN FULL IN THE ADDRESS.

"MORE BUSINESS IN GOVERNMENT"
 This apt phrase was used in President Harding's first message to Congress and applies particularly in postal management where postmasters are being impressed with the fact that they are managers of local branches of the biggest business in the world.

HERE COMES A STRANGER!
 Let's make our post office look neat. Mr. Postmaster. Straighten up the rural letter box, Mr. Farmer. Tidy up some, Mr. Rural Carrier. First impressions are lasting. Maybe Mr. Stranger, taking notice of these improvements, will come back, bringing you benefits. Start these with "POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK" May 1-6.

HUMANIZING THE POSTAL SERVICE
 "There is no unimportant person or part of our service. It is a total of human units and their co-operation is the key to its success. In its last analysis, postal duties are accommodations performed for our neighbors and friends and should be so regarded, rather than as a hired service performed for an absentee employer."—Postmaster General Hubert Work.
