Highway Mishap, Drowning Claim Lives Of Two

DEFEAT IS SEEN FOR ROOSEVELT COURT PROGRAM

TWO LONG TERM CONVICTS ARE CAPTURED AFTER BREAK

ANGLETON, May 24 (AP)—Two of nine Retrieve farm prisoners at large in this wooded section after a break by 10 long-term convicts early today were captured near West Columbia this morning.

Names of the convicts captured were not learned immediately, prison officials starting back to Retrieve farm with them at once.

The convicts, captured without a fight, were W. C. Gresham, serving life from Fort Bend county for murder, and J. E. Jurgeson, serving life from Dallas and Harris counties for robbery. The convicts were returned to the farm immediately.

Earlier one of the 10 desperate criminals, Louis Sadler, Cass county robber serving 25 years, was captured about a mile from the farm.

The 10 felons had cut a hole in the dormitory floor and had slipped through before Guard Tipman discovered the plot. He fired at the only two which were still in sight but they escaped without any of the bullets taking effect.

O. J. S. Ellingson, prison system manager, announced the following to have escaped from the farm:

J. D. Hope, serving 50 years for robbery from Gregg, Wharton and Houston counties.

Clifton Davidson, 30, serving 33 years for robbery from Dallas county.

L. R. Giles, 34, serving 18 years for theft and burglary from Ward, Midland and Stephens counties.

Ira Neal Kimmel, 29, serving 22 years for robbery from Dallas and Harris counties.

Lamesa Woman Is Killed, Five Are Injured

Martin County Farm Boy Drowns in Calf Creek On Wilkerson Ranch

A highway mishap and a drowning claimed two lives near here over the week-end.

Mrs. Thelma Odean Harrell, 22, Lamesa, wife of I. T. Harrell, died here shortly after 2 a. m. Monday of injuries received when the car in which she was riding and one driven by James Madding, 21, Forsan, collided seven miles south of here.

I. P. McCaslin, state highway patrolman, said that an investigation indicated that Madding was attempting to pass another car when as he approached the northbound Lamesa car. The cars met almost head on, he said.

Five were injured in the crash. Madding was taken to the Big Spring hospital and Mrs. Harrell's two children, Thama Travis, Jr., 3, and Christine, 1, Edmund D. Harrell, a brother-in-law, and Jack Edwin, all of Lamesa.

It was the third death recorded here due to traffic accidents within Howard county during 1937. A. J. Campbell died here Jan. 9 of injuries received when hit by a car, and J. B. Stone died in Lamesa March 28 of injuries sustained in a crash 10 miles north of here.

Drowns in Calf Creek

Wesley Robinson, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Robinson, Martin county farmer, drowned in the Calf creek tank on the H. H. Wilkerson ranch at 4:30 p. m. Sunday.

He was in swimming with George Powell, a brother-in-law, and Olin Clinton when he attempted to swim a wide place in the creek. His companions retrieved the body from the water and rushed him to Big Spring where he was pronounced dead.

Calf creek, said to be the deepest creek in the county near a dam across it, is located about nine miles northeast of Stanton.

Wesley, a sophomore in the Stanton high school, was outstanding student of that school for the past two years.

Services were held for him at the Salem church, north of here, Monday afternoon with Rev. B. G. Richardson in charge. Burial was in the Salem cemetery beside his sister, Nollie.

Surviving are his parents, three brothers, Garland, Kay and Holland Robinson, and three sisters, Lula, Zelma, and Witte Robinson. He also leaves several uncles, aunts and cousins, both of Martin and Howard counties.

Last rites for Mrs. Harrell were held Sunday.

AFL Launches War Against John Lewis

Executive Council To Ask Local Unions To Double Fees

(By the Associated Press)

The American Federation of Labor launched its war today against John L. Lewis and his Committee for Industrial Organization.

Meeting in Cincinnati, the federation's executive council formulated plans which called for loyal unions to double their monthly dues to fight C. I. O. expansion and approve expulsion of all branches of Lewis unions from city central bodies and A. F. L. officials also discussed enrollment of new members by moving into territory claimed by Lewis unions—the coal fields, textile mills and garment factories.

C. I. O. leaders answered the challenge with continued activity in the automobile and steel industries.

In Detroit, the United Automobile Workers opened its drive to unionize the Ford Motor company's workers.

Peaceful Settlement

The steel workers' organizing committee looked to a peaceful settlement with the Crucible Steel company over demands for "a contract similar to that signed by the United States Steel subsidiaries, calling for bargaining rights for SWOC members only."

The meeting with Crucible today signaled an intensive drive this week on four other companies—Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube company, Inland Steel and Bethlehem Steel.

Tomorrow, 5,000 employees of Sharon Steel corporation, at Sharon, Pa., and Lovellville, O., will vote to determine whether C. I. O. gets exclusive bargaining rights.

The coal miners' sit-down strike in Illinois 350 feet below the surface went on its fourth day today.

Some 6,000 employees of the Studebaker corporation at South Bend, Ind., were to return to their jobs today after officials announced a general wage increase totaling $700,000 annually.

Large Crowd On Hand For Senior Sermon

Thirteen Hundred Throng Municipal Auditorium; Rev. Henckell Speaks

Thirteen hundred people thronged the municipal auditorium Sunday evening to hear the annual senior sermon prelude to a week of commencement activities.

Rev. P. Walter Henckell, pastor of the St. Mary's Episcopal church, told the students that despite historical references to the "golden age" of the past, that the "golden age is always today." He recited the multiple blessings accruing to mankind since the advent of Christianity, citing the emancipation of women and the abolition of slavery as notable examples.

He closed his message by quoting the scripture from the Apostle Paul, urging the students to forget "that which was behind" and to "press forward to the high calling."

Invocation and benediction were pronounced by Rev. W. S. Garnett, pastor of the East Fourth Baptist church. Special music was given by the high school chorus, Dr. C. A. Bickley, pastor of the First Methodist church, gave the scripture reading, and Clarinda Mary Sanders and DeAlva McAlister were heard in a duet.

Seventh grade promotion exercises will be held Thursday evening and the senior commencement Friday evening.

Increased Appropriations Seen For All But 2 City Departments

NOTE—This is the second of a series of articles on the proposed municipal budget for the current fiscal year. A final article will appear in Tuesday's Herald.

It has been shown that the city anticipates an increase in budget appropriations, particularly for its street and water department program of improvements, and for additional bond requirements due to purchase of city owned securities.

This means a total budget outlay, exclusive of two self-sustaining departments, of $272,753.50, of which $208,481 goes to the departmental activities provided for under the general fund.

Here are the appropriations for the departments: Administrative $16,850; police, $20,700; fire, $15,350; health and welfare, $7,171; street, $69,902; water, $47,377; sewer, $3,250; park, $6,500; building $4,190; and airport, $9,025.

Only two of these departments—health and welfare and the airport—show appropriations for less than actual expenditures last year.

$4,000 Salary Increases

The rises in the street and water departments have already been discussed. The administrative department anticipates an approximately $4,000 increase due to a salary hike voted by the commissioners a month ago. The fire department is given $3,000 more appropriation than expenditure for contingencies arising within the year. The $4,000 raise in the sewer department figure is due to the necessity of replacing sewer mains and flushing out the filter unit at the disposal plant during the year.

The $750 rise in the park department appropriation is negligible as is the $900 increase in the building budget. The great reduction in the airport department from $37,218.88 expended last year to $9,025 for 1937-38 is due to the purchase of the property last year. The appropriation is chiefly for the $6,000 city share in a contemplated WPA program to surface three runways and $1,750 to be applied on a maintenance which will be used jointly by the airport and street departments.

Two departments, swimming pool and cemetery, are self-sustaining and are not mentioned in general fund figures. No tax money is required for their operation.

Death Comes Unexpectedly To Rockefeller At Winter Estate

Aged Capitalist Passes Away At "The Casements"

By the Associated Press

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., May 24 (AP)—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., the founder of the world's greatest "dollar dynasty" lay still in death today—just 26 months short of his cherished desire to live to be 100.

He would have been 98 years old July 8.

The aged capitalist died Sunday morning at 4:05 o'clock EST, at his winter home, "The Casements," drifting peacefully off to his final sleep after complaining that he felt "very tired."

His physician, Dr. Harry L. Merryday, attributed death to atherosclerotic myocarditis, a hardening of the heart muscles.

The nonagenarian croesus, who rose from a $450-a-week clerk to mastery of a fortune estimated as high as $2,400,000,000, died a comparatively "poor man."

A family spokesman said he left a "relatively small, very liquid" estate.

Son In Charge Funds

Long ago, since his retirement from active business at the age of 57, he had turned the bulk of his fabulous riches over to his only son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., or spread-clogged it in philanthropic endowments to the far ends of the earth.

In his life-time, out of the golden torrent that gained him the sobriquet of the greatest "money titan" in all history, he had given away the amazing sum of $50,830,000.

Other gifts by his son raised the total to more than $700,000,000.

A special train was ready today to take the elder Rockefeller's body to his home in Pocantico Hills, N. Y., where a simple private funeral will be held Wednesday.

Burial will follow on Thursday in Cleveland, where in 1855 he trudged the streets for six weeks before he landed his first job as a bookkeeper's assistant.

Death came suddenly and unexpectedly to the aged one-time master of millions. No immediate members of his family were present.

Despite his age, he had been in comparatively good health all winter. He had outlived more than 20 physicians who attended him, and was pronounced a "fine physical specimen" for his age when examined last June at his Lakewood, N. J., estate by Dr. Eugene Herberger.

The ravages of nearly a century are seen in a photograph of the aged capitalist.

Director Recently Abolished WPA Office Transferred To Houston

HUNTSVILLE, May 24 (AP)—The bizarre slaying of Alton Crowson 26, convict from China Springs, as he witnessed "The Escape of Tarzan" in the motion picture chapel of the state penitentiary yesterday, had prison officials puzzled today.

Crowson, serving a 33-year sentence from Bosque, McLennan, Hill and Anderson counties for robbery, theft and driving while intoxicated, was stabbed to death with one blow from an eight-inch prison-made dirk.

Warden W. W. Wald said no clue to the identity of the killer had been uncovered after hours of questioning the convicts. Wald said the murder knife had been made from a file and was quite sharp on both edges.

Statements from two convicts sitting on each side of Crowson detailed the killing. Carl Hartel said he thought a riot or fight was taking place in the darkened chapel and that he thought someone hit Crowson with his flat. J. C. Murphy told the warden Crowson suddenly got up from his seat and fell in the aisle without saying a word.

Oil Companies Boost Price East Texas Crude

DALLAS, May 24 (AP)—The Sun Oil company today joined with the Magnolia and Texas companies in posting a new price of $1.35 per barrel for East Texas crude oil.

John G. Pew, assistant manager, said the price is retroactive to 7 a. m. Saturday, the time when the Magnolia's price, the first to be posted, was effective.

These three companies constituted the number of major purchasers which have advanced the price in East Texas thus far. Oil men said that others would follow.

Virtually all of the minor crude purchasers in the East Texas field have met the new price.

Administration Leaders Refuse To Concede The Fight; Justice Cardozo Delivers Decisions

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—The administration's prized social security legislation, intended to protect workers against another depression, and to provide for them in old age, emerged unscathed today from its constitutional test by the supreme court.

In epochal decisions, the tribunal sustained provisions of the federal measure providing unemployment insurance and held state unemployment compensation laws to supplement the federal act.

This major administration victory gave it a clean sweep in its litigation before the high tribunal this term. Promptly some opponents predicted that it meant defeat for President Roosevelt's program to put "new blood" in the court.

Not Ready To Give Up

Administration supporters, however, refused to concede the fight. Justice Stone delivered the 3 to 4 opinion upholding the Alabama unemployment compensation act, similar to those enacted by 45 other states and by the District of Columbia. It was a test case of the legislation.

The provisions of the unemployment insurance provisions of the federal act were upheld by a 5 to 4 vote and those granting old age pensions by a 7 to 2 ballot. Both decisions were delivered by Justice Cardozo.

Early this term, the high tribunal sustained by a 4 to 4 vote a similar law enacted by New York. The evenly divided vote was due to the absence of Justice Stone, then ill.

The four justices who dissented to the federal unemployment insurance and the state unemployment compensation decisions were Van DeVanter, McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler—those generally described by the administration as "conservative." Justice Cardozo delivered the majority opinion in these cases.

Only Justices McReynolds and Butler dissented to the old age pension ruling.

In his opinion Justice Stone asserted that the Alabama law "on its face and as applied to applicants is subject to no constitutional infirmity."

Approximately 27,800,000 workers and 2,700,000 employers are taxed to provide the old age benefits which start in 1942 when the recipient becomes 64.

The vote on the unemployment insurance section was 5 to 4 with Justices Van DeVanter, Sutherland, Butler and McReynolds dissenting. The tribunal upheld the old age pensions provisions by a 7 to 2 ballot, with Justices McReynolds and Butler dissenting on the ground that the legislation was "repugnant to the tenth amendment" and violated the majority opinion in these cases.

Chairman Conroy (D-Mass) of the House labor committee, who introduced today the legislation to implement President Roosevelt's wage and hour program announced a five-man labor standards board would be created to administer it.

"Briefly stated, without regard to qualifying details," Conroy said in a statement, "the bill proposes to bar from the channels of interstate commerce the products of child labor and of workers employed for unduly low wages, unduly long hours, or under conditions which violate the rights of labor by the use of strikebreakers or spies."

Conroy told newsmen the bill would establish 40-cent "floor" below which "the hourly wage ought not to fall" and a 35-40-hour work week beyond which the working week should not be stretched.

Would Have Broad Demand

The labor board would have broad demand to adjust these limitations for individual industries.

Allowing for a few exceptional trades and permitting longer hours on the payment of time and a half for overtime, the president said a "general maximum working week" should not "be difficult to define."

"Allowing for appropriate qualifications and general classifications"

FDR Gives Congress His Labor Ideas

WASHINGTON, May 24 (AP)—President Roosevelt asked congress today for a flexible labor law providing minimum wages, maximum hours and a ban on products of child labor and of employers who exploit unorganized labor.

"All but the hopelessly reactionary," the president said in a special message, "will agree that to conserve our primary resources of man power, government must have some control over maximum hours, minimum wages, the evil of child labor and the exploitation of unorganized labor."

He did not specify any standards in his long awaited substitute for the invalidated national industrial recovery act. He left this for congress to work out.

A tentative draft of a bill was ready, however, for introduction in both houses detailing those standards.

5-Man Labor Board

Chairman Conroy (D-Mass) of the House labor committee, who introduced today the legislation to implement President Roosevelt's wage and hour program announced a five-man labor standards board would be created to administer it.

"Briefly stated, without regard to qualifying details," Conroy said in a statement, "the bill proposes to bar from the channels of interstate commerce the products of child labor and of workers employed for unduly low wages, unduly long hours, or under conditions which violate the rights of labor by the use of strikebreakers or spies."

Conroy told newsmen the bill would establish 40-cent "floor" below which "the hourly wage ought not to fall" and a 35-40-hour work week beyond which the working week should not be stretched.

Solons Enjoy Brief Respite

AUSTIN, May 24 (AP)—Texas legislators enjoyed a brief respite today—even as the machinery was oiled for a renewal of work Thursday to consider repeal of legalized wagering on horse racing.

Before the weary lawmakers dropped the curtain on a 131-day general session early yesterday they had been ordered to meet in special session by Governor James V. Allred.

Disappointed by senate tactics that kept buried on the calendar a repeal measure, approved in the house, the executive asserted he would submit no other subject at the special meeting.

House repealsists already had laid plans for quick action.

The state affairs committee of the lower chamber by a vote of 11 to 5 called a hearing Friday on repeal bill, identical to the one previously approved, on the assumption the bill would be referred to that group.

Anti-repealsists said they would seek to have it referred to the house as a committee of the whole.

YANKEE SWAT CREW ONCE MORE TEEING OFF ON OPPOSITION COLLECTS 42 LICKS IN 3 GAMES

By SID FEDER Associated Press Sports Writer

Connie Mack, who's been pulling rabbits out of hats for years to the astonishment of his American League enemies, is doing it with mirrors now.

After looking over, under and around those amazing Athletics, their batting averages, fielding, and a likely looking set of young pitchers, there doesn't appear any other answer to what's holding them up there.

As a team, they're hitting last in the league, now that the Yankees have started pounding that apple, they're fielding .953, sixth in the loop.

Yet, there they are, up in front in the American league driver's seat. It just doesn't add up, unless that old magician Mack is weaving his spell again.

There may be some sort of explanation in the fact that they've demonstrated an uncanny ability to make their own breaks. But that certainly doesn't account for the fact that they've won 15 of 24 games to date.

Yesterday, however, they didn't fool around. Frankie Hayes (batting average .285) stepped up to the plate in the third inning with two mates aboard, and slapped one of Oral Hildebrand's slants out of the lot, paving the way for a 6-2 win over the striking St. Louis Browns.

The victory left them just a percentage shade over the Yankees, who walloped Cleveland's Indians, 7-3, with George Selkirk scoring his seventh homer, as 59,492 fans, biggest crowd of the season, looked on.

New York's Giants pulled one out of the fire in their opener at Pittsburgh in topping the Bucs 6-6. For eight innings Cy Blanton had them baffled.

Diszy Dean, making his first start since last week's "battle of the century," gave up 11 hits but was still good enough to top the Phillies 6-2, thereby dropping the Quaker City slugger into the National league cellar.

Robbins A nd Company Rout Opponents, 32-8

Stealing a march on the other teams of the Sandbelt golf league, Big Spring's shot artists Sunday accepted Midland's invitation to be their guests on the Midland country club course and then walloped their hosts, 32 to 8, to take a 26-point lead over the rest of the field.

The match, moved up one week due to the West Texas golf tournament, which begins Thursday in Brownwood, was a rout for the locals.

Obie Bristow defeated Fred Dozier, 5 and 4, with his partner, Eddie Morgan, winning over Fred Johnson in a match that ended 5 and 4.

Frank Morgan and Joe Black teamed to score the most decisive victory of the matches. The pair won low ball, 7 and 6, with Morgan winning his match over Don Shilvers, 5 and 5, and Black triumphing over J. Stacey, 5 and 4.

Black shot sensational golf in coping his match. After going two down on the first two holes, Joe snapped out of his doldrums to fire five straight birdies at Stacey and win as many holes. He was never behind following that rally.

Watta triumphed over Jack Doherly, 3 and 1, while Hicks was beating E. B. Dozier, 6 and 5.

The loss was Midland's second in five starts but they retained second place in the league's standings.

Fort Worth's Greer Stops Dallas In Opener, Lose Second

(By the Associated Press) TONIGHT'S SCHEDULE Fort Worth at Dallas, Oklahoma City at Tulsa, Beaumont at Houston (2), San Antonio at Galveston.

The leaders maintained their pace in the Texas League race today, Beaumont's Exporters staying on top with a double-header triumph yesterday over Houston, 6-2 and 4-3, and Oklahoma City crowding the Shippers with the same feat, trouncing Tulsa 2-1 and 4-2.

Fort Worth's Cats lost some ground in third place, splitting a double bill with Dallas, the Panthers taking the first game, 6-2 and the Steers coming back with a 6-3 win in the nightcap.

San Antonio moved into the first division by taking out the Galveston Buccaneers in two games, 9-1 and 8-4.

Frank Secory's homer with the bases full won for Beaumont in the second game. Boots Poffenberger turned in a neat pitching exhibition in the first game to scatter ten Houston hits sufficiently.

Jack Brillhart held Tulsa to six hits in the opening game and kept them scattered. His mates used four to perfection. Paul Easterling pounded a homer with Ash Hill in the second game to decide the nightcap for the Indians.

Slim Kimberlin stopped Galveston with five hits in the first game with Mel Mazzera leading a San Antonio attack that netted enough runs in the first inning to win. A home run barrage paced by Stan Keys and Hal Rhein sped up the second game.

Ed Greer pitched four-hit ball to turn back Dallas in the first game. Dallas used Fort Worth miscues to cash in in the after-piece.

Rebels Snap Losing Streak With Victory Over Shoppers

Continental's Oilers had the better of the argument all the way in their game here Sunday afternoon with Ben Daniel's Anderson Devils, winning their second league game, 16-5, while the Co-Op Rebels broke a losing streak to defeat TP, 8-7, behind Pap Payne's steady pitching in a game played at Knott.

The Oilers, after taking a two-run lead in the second, permitted the Devils to score five runs in their part of the same frame but the Forsan outfit caught on to L. D. Cunningham's heaves in the fourth to regain the advantage.

Led by Loper the Oilers collected 16 base hits off Cunningham and his successor, Pug Hagerman, while Windmill Brooks was scattering seven Devil levers over the route.

A sudden spurt in the eighth stanza gave Co-Op its first victory in five starts. Trailing all the way going into the eighth, the Rebels suddenly put two men on base and Redding and Payne clouted them across to give their mates the lead.

The Shoppers garnered a total of 10 base hits off Payne, including a home run by Gamboa, while Marty Martinez granted eight for the victors.

Mance Kinman had a home run in the opener at Sparenburg, in a game at Sparenburg, in which the Wops won their first game of the league season by defeating Sparenburg, 23-4, with only 12 hits.

Reading AND Writing

CAPTAIN KIDD AND HIS SKELETON ISLAND, by Harold T. Wilkins; (Liveright; $5).

Are you really interested in pirates? If you can answer yes, with no strain on your personal truthfulness, you should read "Captain Kidd and His Skeleton Island." If you cannot, by no means open the book, for it is not for you.

Harold T. Wilkins, who has spent a good deal of time getting the facts together, and putting them on paper, is truly interested in pirates. More than that, he believes he knows approximately where Kidd's fabulous treasure is buried, even though he is not sure whether the treasure actually is Kidd's or belonged to some other ancient privateer.

This is because he, with Hubert Palmer, knows the secret of four Captain Kidd chests. These boxes have turned up, one after another, in a manner which impresses Mr. Wilkins as "fated." As a matter of fact, there also is a bureau and there are other chests and relics—the four mentioned are the ones which contained secret compartments. These compartments were filled with maps, and to understand the secret of the island, one must have had access to all of them.

The treasure is buried on a Pacific island, and Mr. Wilkins believes that, although it is not shown on any current chart, he knows an old sea dog who can take him to the proper bit of land. It is evident, or should be, that Mr. Wilkins is not going to put all his delicious secret on paper in his book, or anywhere else. He only tells enough to make the reader itch to be off on a treasure hunt. Then he shuts up, clam-like.

He has other things to say about Kidd. One of these is that Kidd was not the villain he is supposed to have been. He even traces (somewhat sketchily) Kidd's career through the earlier years when little is known. The people who betrayed the captain, or rather the particular person, is pointed out. Mr. Wilkins makes Kidd a clever leader and good sailor, and perhaps a little too trusting. But the mere fact that Mr. Wilkins can steam himself up to the point of doing this book is proof that there was "something to" Captain Kidd. Quite something.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adierka. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."

—Mrs. Jas. Filler. Adierka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adierka gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous material that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas, pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

—Dr. H. L. Shank, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka greatly reduces bacteria and sulfur bacteria. Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka and see how good your feet. Just one successful reliever GAS and stubborn constipation."

LIVING WITHIN MEANS

Howard county's commissioners court seems to be conducting the affairs of the county upon a time honored but all but forgotten precept for balancing budgets.

Its action in discontinuing five positions with the county to effect a $75 monthly saving demonstrated that the court is trying to live within its means.

The move may work a hardship upon those who will be cut out of the public payroll, and perhaps inconvenience a few of those remaining by additional work, but it remains that this is the most effective way of reducing expenditures where they most need to be reduced.

Since the inception of the salary system, expenditures have consistently outdistanced revenues. Three things contributed to this: Hikes in officials' pay, increase in deputy allotments and other office expenses, and tendency to be lax in fee collections when compensation is not solely dependent upon fees.

Now the court has seized the bull by the horns and elected to remedy the second cause by slashing deputy costs, and then by designating County Judge Charles Sullivan as purchasing agent.

To curtail official salaries is a last and very remote possibility, but this does not alter the fact that the court has taken a right step to bring its officers' salary fund within its means. Officers inconvenienced by the move may well bear in mind that being "poor" naturally has its inconveniences.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It's little things like this that unhinge dressing room doors and cause theatrical managers to put in hurried calls for a horde of backstage carpenters.

Mary Rockwell, blonde comedienne, had just completed the final performance as one of the leads in Ward Morehouse's comedy of a small town drudge, "Miss Quis," and was clearing away the last traces of greasepaint when James Montgomery Flagg, the illustrator, bobbed into her dressing room.

"You were great," he enthused with true artistic exuberance. Hauling out a piece of chalk, he sketched a remarkable likeness of the actress, to her immense satisfaction, on the dressing room door.

"Strike me, but I must have that!" exclaimed Miss Rockwell. "Fred, darling, may I cut the panel out of the door and take it home?"

Fred McKay, the manager, thumbs-downed this suggestion, but he had an idea. "You can't do that, Mary, but I guess the corporation will sell you the door. You can have it for $30. Cash."

Wherefore all hands scurried around until a screwdriver was discovered, and with great gusto the door-dressing room No. 4, in case you want to make a note of the number on your cuff—was taken down.

Then they carted it outside, climbed into a hack and hurried away to a party where this memento of La Rockwell's first starring assignment on Broadway was duly admired until far, far into the night.

Incidentally, about the time the door was coming down off its hinges the first copy of "Miss Quis," published by Random House, was slipping off the press. Ward has autographed it for her so that, a hundred years from now, when she is a nice, reminiscent old lady, she will have a book as well as a door with which to regale her great grandchildren.

South seas vista—green and yellow umbrellas wafting blurs of shade over bamboo chairs and tables while citizens in white linen and duck shoes absorb perspiration from their beady foreheads with soft white handkerchiefs and mumble, "Another tall one, Joe." No, it isn't Joe Horn's store in Pago Pago. It's only the little square of cement in Rockefeller Center, hard by the Prometheus fountain, where the ice rink used to be. Such is the wizardry of our quick-change artists in Manhattan.

Loena Tia is not a theatrical name, as its euphony might imply. Its owner is a Newark girl who makes a living weaving fancy rugs from old neckties.

NEWS

BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLOTT

Copyright, 1937, By Paul MalloTT

WASHINGTON, May 23 — The story behind the Robinson boom for the Van Deventer seat on the supreme court is one on President Roosevelt. A republican senator started it. He told his news friends very confidentially that Senators Harrison and Byrnes had been up to see the president the preceding afternoon and that the president said, of course, the vacancy would go to the senate floor leader.

The idea hit the headlines within 24 hours. Nearly every senator naturally had come out for his Arkansas friend and leader. The fact that his vote for the judges retirement bill possibly disqualified him was laughed off. This could be met, it was said, by a letter from Attorney General Cummings legalizing the appointment. Mr. Cummings, it was pointed out, has legalized everything the supreme court has let him legalize, and a few other things, too.

Everything was fixed. The senate promised to confirm the appointment swiftly, without debate. Everyone said the appointment was in the bag; that is, everyone except Mr. Roosevelt. Apparently he did not know anything about it except what he read in the newspapers.

Force: This does not mean the president will fail to make the Robinson appointment, but only that the senate has been subtly trying to jockey him into a position where he could not select anyone else.

The constitution says the senate shall advise and consent to supreme court nominations, but, in this case, it seems that the senators are putting the emphasis on "advise" for the first time in history. What makes them so enthusiastic is the hope that they can thus prevent Mr. R. from nominating one of his friends, Prof. Felix Frankfurter, Judge Rosenman or someone like that.

Mr. Robinson, they know, is the best they can hope to get out of the president. He used to be a conservative, but he has gone down the line for everything the president wanted and represents the president's legal and executive attitude in its mildest and best form. The president could not do better, and the senate is intent on seeing that he doesn't.

Pull: Papa did not say it, but son James did in the matter of the appointment of W. Creighton Post as secretary of the maritime commission.

It seems White House Secretary James is specializing in secretarial appointments to the various new commissions about town. But he started on his last venture so late that the maritime Chairman Kennedy had to rush up to explain privately to senators why their candidate could not get the job.

Arrangements had been completed for appointment of Senator Sheppard's secretary, Victor Russell, to the post. Mr. Russell had letters of recommendation from nearly everyone. Even the vice president had asked Mr. Kennedy not to make the appointment until a conference could be arranged.

Just as the Russell appointment was about to go through, a stop order came from the White House. Mr. Kennedy personally explained to senators that son James' candidate was an old Harvard classmate and nothing could be done about it.

Senators understood, but they have not forgotten it.

Caution: The president's message on wages and hours has been written for nearly a week. It is supposed to have been prepared by the unofficial attorneys general, Corcoran and Cohen. Mr. R. has been calling in about a dozen lawyers, John Lewis, President Green of the A. F. of L., and interested congressmen. He has let them read the message and make suggestions. That is how the leak developed indicating that he would recommend a 40-hour week and a $16 minimum wage with loopholes. Too many people know about it.

Tough: What the shipping people are saying about the new chairman, Joe Kennedy, of the maritime commission will never be printed in any periodical which goes through the mails.

Mr. Kennedy, it appears, has established himself as a one-man merchant marine oligarchy. He is issued orders barring newsmen and lobbyists from talking with anyone in the commission save himself and his capable publicity man, Harry Stringer.

Somewhat or other, no one here seems to resent it, chiefly because Kennedy is doing it and because everyone realizes the inside news leakage in governmental maritime affairs has approached scandalous proportions in the past. The censorship order has been modified by liberal application, and seekers for information now are permitted to talk to other persons in the commission aside from Kennedy.

Mistake: A sad tale is being told in the

Sights and Sounds By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Here I am, a newspaper man again, and a bit stiff at times too. But I think I'm going to surprise those who see this new picture because in it I'm an old, sedate newspaper man, not a fresh young twerp of the type I was in "Gentlemen of the Press," the production in which I made my palpitating bow to moviegoers ten years ago.

In other words, I'm out of character—in "Exclusive" — somewhat definitely. After seven newspaper roles I'm doing something different. To give you an idea, if you care, I'm the father of Frances Farmer, and pret-

Charles Ruggles to well along in years. Not only that, but I'm a veteran of about 25 years of pencil-planting and typewriter-socking.

As Frances says to me, in the screen play, "You've got enough nerve to make an axe-murderer hold it for a picture, and you'd risk your neck for a two-cent scoop!" But let's get on with it. Here's the big news, to me, at least: I go dramatic for the first time in my screen career.

Everybody thinks I'm a comic. But lurking back somewhere in the Ruggles make-up is a pronounced tragic streak. (Oh, I know about comedians and Hamlet—don't tell me.)

You think I'm kidding? I played several roles on the stage in which I was a pretty serious guy. I was a bullwhacker once, and I got good notices because I took my role seriously.

Before this picture started, Producer Benjamin Glazer, Director Alexander Hall and I went into conference. We decided it was time I got a role with a lot of raw meat in it. This is it. When two newspapers get into a war and I'm one of them, I'm bound to be serious. When I have Frances Farmer for a daughter and Fred MacMurtry for a prospective son-in-law, I really have something to worry about.

A Drunk With Principles: In the first three reels of the picture I'm just an amiable old sinner trying to hold my job. But underneath my sudden exterior I have principles. When my daughter goes to work for a "yellow" rival sheet, I take it seriously.

When she writes a story that causes a man's death, I'm pretty sore, to put it mildly. My wife (Fay Holden) and Frances move out of my house. Then, in the end, I get out of my sickbed to go save daughter. And believe it or not, I get bumped off by Lloyd Nolan's gangsters before the end.

There is something about dying in a picture that makes a part absolutely foolproof. So if the audience doesn't qualify me in the first part of the picture I'm counting on being "tremendous" in the last half.

Chapter IV

By all the rules which govern human nature, Carol and Duke should have become friends in those first days which followed Jim Clayton's death. If they had seen each other, except now and then in passing, if they had said something of the great feelings they felt, the whole story might have been different. But Carol was too grief-stricken to talk to anyone and Duke, with the sensitivity which lay beneath his lighthearted cynical behavior, kept in the background. He spent hours with Grandfather Clayton.

"I don't know what I'd do without you," said the old man one evening. "But, Duke, why don't you try to help Carol over this burden. It's tough going for her."

Duke, knowing the old man as always brusque, always reticent about his emotions, always scornful sentiment, was deeply touched. "I'd like nothing better than to do something for Carol," he said, "but I can't. You see she took a great and instantaneous dislike to me, even before she saw me. I did raze her, I admit. I sized her up as just a pretty, selfish girl who'd gone high-bat. But now I know she is Jim Clayton's daughter, after all. But she thinks me a rough, tough guy and nothing else."

"Well, I don't know. She doesn't think this Hartley Madison that and she made him go away. He wanted to stay, but she insisted she must be alone. Seems kind of queer to me. Wouldn't you think she'd want this man she loves with her now?"

"Maybe she knows best. I'd say she has a good head as well as a strong will."

"She has that. And of course, she did promise to go to his mother's in a week or so and then they're going to be married soon after that. Of course, she'll do just what she wants—always has. And this Madison seems a nice enough chap, but I guess he's still a sucker. Once one—"

"How do you mean he's a sucker?"

"He got that name when he was still in college. Seems he was crazy about a girl, but after a while, he turned his family up. But he settled down after his father died."

"I wonder," mused Duke out loud, "if a person who's really crazy about betting on horses, is ever sane again on that subject."

"Well, this young man'd better be or he'll be minus one wife."

"I wonder," repeated Duke slowly, as if he were talking to himself.

He wished he could follow Grandfather Clayton's suggestion and have a talk with Carol. It was not that he hoped to comfort her in her sorrow. He knew that was impossible as matters stood between them, but he thought he might be of some service to her in untangling her father's affairs. How had they were he didn't know — Jim Clayton talked little of his troubles — but he had a feeling they might be serious. For Carol, herself, it didn't matter much. He knew she had some income from a trust fund and she was to marry one of the richest young men in the country. But there was Grandfather. And also there was pride. He felt that Carol had her full share of that. If her father had left debts which could not be paid—that would hurt.

If only he knew how matters stood. He might be worrying unnecessarily, he knew; it might be that the only large amount outstanding was the seventy-six thousand dollars Jim Clayton had lost to him at the tracks. That was easy enough to handle, he told himself. But he was reckoning without Carol.

He had just ordered his breakfast one morning a week later when Grandfather Clayton phoned to ask him if he could lunch together. Carol was leaving that morning for Newport and he would be lonely. He agreed, of course, and apologized for not talking longer; he had something of immediate importance he must attend to.

From his desk, he turned to Tip O'Brien, his sheet writer who had come in for a business talk.

"Tip," he said, "I want you to go right over and give this to Miss Clayton."

"Give?" gasped Tip.

"That's what I said and that's what I mean."

"You always were too big-hearted, granddad. This is an adored Duke," but, boss, that dame—

"Cut it and beat it," ordered Duke.

The telephone rang and Tip answered.

"It's her," he said expressively if not grammatically. "Shall I wait?" Duke nodded and spoke to Carol. "I would come to the bank to meet you, Miss Clayton," he said politely, "but I'm just sitting down at my private office. I'll be there in about an hour."

There was no answer but the banging of the receiver at the other end of the line. Duke turned toward the breakfast table. If ever he needed strong, black coffee he needed it now. But before he could take the first sip, there was a knock at the door. Tip answered and Carol Clayton walked in.

Duke sprang to his feet. "Fardon this intrusion, Mr. Bradley," said Carol, "but I have only a few minutes. I phoned from the office so when you said you couldn't come for one hour—you must have a tremendous appetite. I decided I must overlook the conventions and come right up."

"Will you join me," he said, "I'll be glad to."

"Thanks, no," she said curtly.

"Miss Clayton, this is Mr. O'Brien," nodding toward the embarrassed young man. "And Tip, would you mind going into the bedroom to work on your sheets. Just give me those papers you're holding before you go. I'll attend to them myself."

Even after Tip had left them, Carol was silent. He asked as to Mr. Madison and was told he was quite well. She was going to his mother's by the next train; they were to be married soon, very quietly.

"That's why I had to see you," Carol said. "We won't be in Brookdale perhaps for a long time."

"I'm sorry. I had hoped—"

"You had hoped, I suppose, to get Hartley to place bets with you?" Her tone was more insulting than her words. "You've heard he is a 'sucker' and you know he's rich."

"It isn't a bad idea," he answered pleasantly. "Don't you think he might as well bet through me as—"

"I do not. I've had enough of you and your dealing, enough for one thing. For another, he is not going to bet on the races any more."

"Does he say so, too?" he asked innocently.

"Mr. Bradley," she said, "I came here for just one thing. I have one question to ask you. What do you intend to do with my father's farm?"

"I hoped you didn't know anything about it. So, he left a memo in his papers, didn't he? I'm sorry. But as you know about it, I'll tell you I had planned—"

"Before you make any final decision—I hate to ask any favor of you — but will you give me a chance to buy it back? And will you please not let grandfather know anything about this whole unfortunate affair? He has no idea of the state of father's affairs. He is old. Will you have the common decency to spare him?"

In all his life, Duke had never been so angry and so hurt. He pressed his lips together; they were thin and white. He tried not to speak, but the look on her face as well as her bitter words would not let him be silent.

"So you thought I would foreclose, did you? Put grandfather out on the road? You have the most poisonous personality I've ever encountered in a young filly. I didn't want your father to do this thing. Why, we were the best friends in the world."

"That friendship paid you very well, didn't it?"

"Miss Clayton, I did not want your father to give me this paper at all—I do not want it now. I shall do nothing about Brookdale."

"Thank you," she said, "but you will. I shall pay you, in full. You'll be good enough to wait a few weeks longer, won't you? Certain formalities to go through with them, then you have your money and Brookdale goes to grandfather."

"Oh, I see—you're marrying a bankroll and—"

"Talk about being poisonous—how about you? Don't you think a girl can marry for love? Hartley is rich, yes—but I love him. And he loves me. So why should he do this? To him, the amount is only a trifle."

"It would be on a race—for him," he said quite at ease again. "So why not let him play along with me. He'll get a square deal with me—no one has ever got anything else, but the law of averages—"

"That matter has been discussed and is closed. I must be going. Will you wait a little while?"

"Forever is none too long a time about the little suggestion of mine seems to me, somewhat a lot de center than what you propose though."

"What?" she said.

"I'll have a lot of fun, you know—sort of relaxation from his finance—might as well lose something on a horse as on a stock of bond—he'd always have a run for his money—"

"I'm not interested, Mr. Bradley, in your high-sounding philosophy about the virtues of horse-racing. I just want you to tell me what you mean by saying it was more decent than what I am going to do?"

"That's easy—probably, and something tells me Hartley Madison would back me up, if he knew all this. It's short and simple and straight—from where I stand, a bride who plans to nick her bridegroom for seventy-six grand," he hesitated a moment, "spacing his words," is awfully full — of larceny."

Carol, without a word, without bending her head, walked to the door.

"Hurry," cried grandfather and Rosetta, from the car waiting for her. "Train leaves in five minutes."

"I would look her place at the wheel and the car sped down the street. Rosetta shrieked: "This ain't the way to the station."

"We're going home," said Carol. "But what about going to Newport? What about getting married?"

"I'll be getting married, all right," said Carol. "But not until I finish a little job—and I'm doing it all by myself."

Carol has met her match in outspoken Duke Bradley. His words have guided her into changing her plans. What is her next course of action? Read tomorrow's thrilling installment.

Buck Hood, managing editor of the Austin Statesman, and Letcher King, assistant attorney general, visited here briefly Saturday, enroute to Midland where King conferred on a case. They were returning to Austin Sunday by the way of Abilene.

Growing Car Fuel Costly

Alcohol Too Expensive To Be Used In Mixture With Gasoline

ATCHISON, Kas., May 24 (UP) - Attempts to find a new market for farm products by manufacturing wheat and corn into alcohol for industrial use have been disappointing, according to officials of the Chemical Foundation here.

Last October the foundation spent $400,000 in building a plant to carry on a search for means to transform wheat and corn into articles which could be used in industry.

Chemists said that gasoline, mixture of experiments, and there was talk of transforming corn and wheat into alcohol to be used as a blend with gasoline for motor fuel.

Now, after seven months of experimentation, chemists at the foundation have found that a bushel of corn annually - 25 per cent of alcohol and bushel of wheat 2.5 gallons. With both corn and wheat selling at high prices, however, the cost of producing the alcohol is prohibitive for its use as a motor fuel.

Chemists said that gasoline, mixed with 10 per cent alcohol, makes a superior motor fuel, and they still hope to discover a cheap way of producing alcohol for fuel - against the future when the country's petroleum reserves may be depleted.

It would take about 700,000,000 bushels of corn annually - 25 per cent of the normal yield - to produce enough alcohol to supply 10 per cent of the motor fuel used in this country, the foundation's chemists reported.

Artichokes, sweet potatoes and other starch-bearing products also can be used to manufacture alcohol, chemists said, and experiments are now being carried out to determine which plants are most suitable for this purpose.

County Agent Bond Says Martin Co. Needing Rain

STANTON, May 24 - Inspections made this week by County Agent Geo. Bond show that the county is beginning to be badly in need of rain.

Possibly all planting has been done in the north one-fourth of the county, he reported, where more rain was received early in the month. Crops are coming up to a good stand there and are not suffering storm damage.

The southern part of the county, he estimated, had planted possibly not more than 10 or 15 per cent of the crops, including a large part of the feed, but not very much cotton.

The desirable planting period for this section is from May 1 to May 20 and this time, he pointed out, had passed without sufficient moisture for planting.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bettie and Mrs. Searcy Whaley are expected to return this evening from Fort Hancock where they spent the week-end with relatives.

Defended Methods
The founder of the Standard Oil company and pioneer of modern American business, Rockefeller once defended his methods in these words:

"We found ourselves engaged, by reason of over-development of the refining industry, in ruinous competition. Probably 80 or 90 per cent of the refiners of the country were either losing money or conducting their business without a profit.

"My idea was to combine all production and collective bargaining for protection. Even in periods of great loss, our firm was able to make some profit, yet every weak refiner struggling to do business in a haphazard fashion, selling his products in a desperate effort to meet pressing obligations, was a source of danger to all others in the business.

"It would be far better, by reducing these men from their dangerous position, to safeguard ourselves by taking them into our organization on the basis of a fair valuation of their plants and goodwill."

ations by administrative action," he added, "it should also be possible to put some floor below which the wage ought not to fall.

"There should be no difficulty in ruling out the products of children from any fair market.

"And there should also be little dispute when it comes to ruling out of the interstate markets products of employers who deny to their workers the right of self-organization and collective bargaining, whether through the fear of labor spies, the bait of company unions, or the use of strikebreakers.

"The causes disclosed by the investigations of the senate must be promptly curbed."

The president said the proposed federal legislation should be "a stimulus and not a hindrance to state action."

Although a good portion of the goods of American industry move in interstate commerce and will be covered by the legislation recommended, he said there were many purely local pursuits and services which no federal legislation could effectively cover.

"No state is justified," he said, "in setting idly by and expecting the federal government to meet state responsibility for those labor conditions with which the state may effectively deal without fear of unneighborly competition from sister states."

"Our problem," he said, "is to work out in practice those employment standards which will permit the maximum but prudent employment of our human resources to bring within the reach of the average man and woman a maximum of good and of services conducive to the fulfillment of the promise of American life.

"Legislation can, I hope, be passed at this session of the congress further to help those who toil in factory and on farm. We have promised it. We can not stand still."

Many Violent Deaths Over Week-End

By the Associated Press

Nineteen lives were claimed in one of the heaviest week-ends of violent deaths of the year in Texas. Traffic accidents took a toll of 17, and there was an equal number in shootings.

Two were stabbed to death, one person died from a fall, another was fatally injured in an explosion and one was drowned.

Stanley McFadden, 24, was killed near Paris when the car in which he was riding struck a wagon. Fred T. Jean, 27, of Dallas, died from injuries received when struck by a hit and run driver Oct. 24, 1936.

Claude Shelly, 58, was fatally injured when hit by an automobile wrecker at Fort Worth. George Roy Miller, 56, of Glade, died in a Dallas hospital from injuries sustained in a truck accident between Grapevine and Carrollton.

Hercules Anderson, 43, of Houston, and Willie Carr, 30, of Orange county, died in a head-on collision of automobiles near Orange. Jerry Burge, 25, of Dallas, was fatally injured when struck by a street car at Dallas.

Born in New York

The son of William Avery Rockefeller, a genial, easy-going farmer and peddler of medicines, with a reputation as a first rate horse trader, John Davison Rockefeller was born in a farmhouse in Richford Village, Tioga county, in the Finger Lake region of upper New York state, July 8, 1839.

Young John made his first business "deal" at the age of eight when he found a hen turkey which had strayed away from the family farm. The boy "bargained" with his mother so that he could keep the hen's brood of little turkeys in return for finding her. He won her consent, raised the turkeys and sold them—at a neat profit.

He got his first job at 16. Forty-one years later, after reaping a bonanza of "black gold" from the hills of Pennsylvania, he retired with a fortune valued at hundreds of millions of dollars.

Only twice did Rockefeller emerge from his long retirement. In 1929, after 20 years of obscurity as far as the business world was concerned, he issued two public statements.

One supported his son's battle to direct the affairs of the Standard Oil company of Indiana. The other, issued jointly with his son, was aimed at tempering the hysteria which followed the crash of the stock market. The oil king, then in his ninetieth year, said he did not believe there was anything that ated state rights.

Opinion Divided

Word of the court's action quickly passed on Capitol Hill where President Roosevelt's court reorganization bill was pending. Some said the courts' rulings would defeat the measure; others took the contrary position.

Speaking for himself and six other justices in ruling on the old age pension section of the security law, Cardozo said:

"The purge of nationwide calamity that began in 1929 has taught us many lessons not the least is the solidarity of interests that may come to have been plainly national in area and dimensions. Moreover, laws of the separate states cannot deal with it effectively. Congress, at least, had a basis for that belief.

"A system of old age pensions has special dangers of its own, if put in force in one state and rejected in another. The existence of such a system is a bait to the needy and dependent elsewhere, encouraging them to migrate and seek a haven of repose. Only a power that is national can serve the interests of all.

Reads Opinions

Before reaching the old age pension section of the act, Cardozo read the opinion of five majority justices upholding unemployment security phases of the law.

"The statute," Cardozo asserted, "does not call for a surrender by the states of powers essential to their quasi-sovereign existence."

The unemployment insurance provisions taxed employers of more than eight persons to assist in caring for the future jobless and to provide a cushion against economic depression.

To induce states to adopt programs of their own and carry out the purpose of the federal act, the legislation provided that employers could deduct up to 90 per cent of the federal tax by paying that amount to the state.

Program in 48 States

Forty-five states and the District of Columbia have adopted programs approved by the federal social security board. Those that did not are Illinois, Missouri and Florida.

Eleven states specified that their program should be dropped if the federal act were held unconstitutional. Twenty-four provided that the program should be suspended to await a decision as to the future by the governor of the legislature. Ten states and the District of Columbia enacted legislation independent of the federal act.

The measure imposed a tax on employment payroll ranging from one per cent in 1938 to three per cent in 1938 and thereafter. It was not applicable to agriculture, labor, domestic service, seamen and employees of the federal and state governments.

"The social security act," Cardozo said, "is an attempt to find a method by which public agencies may work together to a common end."

"Every dollar of the new taxes," he added, "will continue in all likelihood to be used and needed by the nation as long as states are unwilling, whether through timidity or for other motives, to do what they can do for themselves."

"At least the inference is permissible that congress so believed, though retaining undiminished freedom to spend the money as it pleased."

Justice Sutherland dissented only from the requirement of the unemployment insurance plan that states deposit their reserve funds in the United States treasury.

He said he believed the unemployment insurance tax, and other provisions of the plan were valid but said the government would invade state rights in its control of the reserves deposited in the treasury.

Justice Butler's dissent said the tax provision, "if not amounting to coercion in a legal sense, are manifestly designed and intended directly to affect state action in the respects specified."

Cardozo, for the majority, said "the proceeds of the excise when collected, are paid into the treasury at Washington, and thereafter are subject to appropriation like public moneys generally. No presumption can be indulged that they will be misapplied or wasted, x x x"

WEATHER FORCES CHANGE IN PLANS

Dry weather Monday forced a change in plans of the Howard County Marketing association on its weekly ring sales.

J. W. Allen, who has taken a lead in the promotion of the sales and the development of the Sam Green pens east of here, said that it was the tentative plans of the organization to make the sales monthly affairs until September when the weekly schedule will be resumed.

If this is the case, the sales will be held the first Monday of each month.

Volume for the fourth of the weekly series ran approximately $400 Monday. It was estimated. Smaller stock moved more readily, particularly the swine. Good work stock went begging as did some beef steers buyers were reluctant to purchase stuff for feeding.

In the pens were 54 head of two-year-old steers belonging to Kirby "Slick" Miller. He planned to ship them to Fort Worth Monday afternoon. They looked about 900 pounds a head and were in good condition.

GIRL DENIES SHE KILLED HER MOTHER

JERSEY CITY, May 24 (AP)—Gladys MacKnight flatly repudiated today her alleged confession that she killed her mother with a hatchet.

The 17-year-old girl, on trial for murder with her former sweetheart, Donald Wightman, 18, declared the incriminating statement was obtained by Bayonne police through duress. She stuck to her story that Wightman struck the fatal hatchet blows.

On the stand at the opening of the second week of her trial, Gladys asserted she was "shocked" when detectives first told her she was charged with the murder of her mother. It was then, she said, that she sent her father, Edgar MacKnight, this message:

"Tell my father I had nothing to do with it. I loved my mother and couldn't do that to her."
