FDR-Landon Parley Set For Thursday

Talk At Des Moines Will Be Confined To Problems Of Drouth

JULESBURG, Colo., Sept. 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt will not only sit in conference with his republican rival for the presidency, in Des Moines Thursday, but will have a tete-a-tete with Gov. Alf M. Landon, it was learned today.

Their talk will be on the drouth situation, however. Governor Landon, with the governors of Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, and Oklahoma meet with the president Thursday—one of a group of conferences the president is having on the drouth situation with state officials. He plans, it was said, to talk to the governors and the United States senators from their states one at a time.

Attends Funeral Putting aside all other considerations, President Roosevelt went to Salt Lake City yesterday to attend the funeral of George H. Dern, late secretary of war. He returned to his train immediately after the service, and left for Des Moines via this point.

The president, because of the solemnity of his mission yesterday, denied himself to callers and to thousands of persons who lined his route from Nebraska, into Wyoming and Utah.

Mr. Roosevelt planned a motor tour today out of Julesburg, where he resumed his drouth-study tour.

Calls Advisers To Lay Groundwork For Talk TOPEKA, Kans., Sept. 2 (AP)—Gov. Alf Landon today discussed with his agricultural advisers the background of Thursday's drouth conference at Des Moines with President Roosevelt.

The republican presidential nominee summoned two of the experts—Prof. L. E. Call and Prof. W. E. Grimes—from Kansas State Agricultural college for a conference at the governor's mansion before they accompany him to Des Moines.

At the same time, attention was called to a letter which Governor Landon wrote President Roosevelt in 1934, and in which he urged legislation for a complete flood control and water conservation program in which the federal and local governments would cooperate.

In some phases, the Landon proposals were not unlike the suggestions which have come from the president although the Kansas governor emphasized the desirability of individual efforts to combat drouth where possible.

VATICAN PUBLICATION CRITICIZES COUGHLIN FOR ATTACKING FDR VATICAN CITY, Sept. 1 (AP)—Observatore Romano, the official Vatican organ, today editorially criticized Father Charles E. Coughlin's speech assailing President Roosevelt as a "liar and traitor."

High sources said the Vatican disapproves of the attack on the president as an attack on constituted authority, but that the priest is free to continue his political activities provided he does not denounce public authority.

Mutilated Body Discovered On California Beach

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 2 (AP)—Chief of Police George Seers said today that all suspects had been released after an all-night grilling in connection with the attack-slaying of Miss Ruth Muir, 48-year-old welfare worker and native of San Antonio, Texas, whose body was found yesterday at La Jolla.

Officers had rounded up more than 20 men for questioning in the brutal murder.

Body Battered The body of Miss Muir, daughter of a San Antonio banker, was found yesterday near La Jolla's surf playground of the vacationing rich, on the outskirts of San Diego. The body, badly battered, was almost unrecognizable. Chief Seers immediately ordered a roundup of all persons arrested recently in San Diego on morals charges. Those taken into custody and later released fell into this class.

Miss Muir, secretary of the Young Women's Christian association at Riverside, Calif., a career girl embarked upon after graduating from Wellesley college, was vacationing here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Muir, of San Antonio.

Blood On Ground Her body was found near a beach bench overlooking the sea. The skull and jaw were broken, underclothing torn, and the ground was spotted with blood marks.

Detective Captain Harry Kelly questioned several men among them E. Carl Eckdahl, 41, who was released and then was picked up again, to be held overnight.

A wisp of hair found clutched in Miss Muir's hand, with locks from the head of several suspects, including Eckdahl, was sent to Pomona college for analysis.

Last night laboratory tests were made of blood and scrapings clotted under the victim's fingernails.

SUSPECTS SIGHTED YREKA, Calif., Sept. 2 (AP)—John and Coke Britte, brothers, sought for the slaying of three men, were seen at Grant's Pass, Ore., apparently seeking to purchase supplies, the sheriff's office here was informed today.

He will return here Thursday afternoon for a brief conference with local scouts. He holds a district meeting here September 15 and only in Sweetwater on the 21st. Registration Gets Under Way At School First registration of high school students for the 1936-37 term was completed today, when junior high graduates of last spring conferred with officials on prospective courses. Other members of this same former junior high school group were to be registered this afternoon.

On Thursday, Principal George Gentry has instructed all pupils who have moved into the district from cities and towns outside of Howard county to report at the school. On Friday and Saturday teachers will confer with students transferring from Howard county rural districts.

Formal opening of school is set for Wednesday of next week, Sept. 9.

Japs To Keep Excess Subs Tonnage Is Above Quota; U. S. And Britain May Do Likewise LONDON, Sept. 2 (AP)—Japan formally notified Great Britain today it intended to retain 15,908 tons of submarines in excess of the London naval treaty allowance.

The move was taken in reply to Great Britain's recent announced intention to retain 40,000 excess tons in destroyers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (AP)—Naval officials said today there was possibility that both the United States and Great Britain would follow Japan's lead in retaining excess submarine tonnage.

The Japanese action was interpreted here as an invocation of the treaty "escalator clause" under which a signatory may disregard naval limitations if it believes its national security threatened.

Rebel Forces Advance Upon City Of Irun

Govt. Announces Air Base Used For Madrid Attacks Destroyed HENDAJE, France, Sept. 2 (AP)—Foreign diplomat accredited to Madrid will appeal for a cessation of hostilities in Spain, Daniel Garcia Mansilla, Argentine ambassador, said tonight.

"To end the conflict is the only way to prevent a world war," he said. He said that both the Madrid and rebel governments have agreed to send delegates to a conference at Saint Jean de Luz, France.

Trenches Captured (By The Associated Press) Rebels captured government trenches outside of Irun today, gaining a clear path to that besieged city. The government, however, announced its fliers had destroyed the secret airfield from which revolutionists had conducted the aerial raids on Madrid.

Diplomats stationed along the Franco-Spanish border announced that communication was established with both rebel and government forces in an effort to check war atrocities.

Seeks French Aid A Spanish woman deputy, La Pasionari, appealed in Paris for French aid, declaring that European neutrality is a sanction against democracy.

The United States decided to ask certain American shipping lines to avoid "dangerous" Spanish ports. Trenches full of government forces were demolished by direct hits of rebel shells in a desperate assault on beleaguered Irun.

Time and time again the fascist rebel artillerymen found deadly success and blasted their enemy countrymen to bits.

Within the besieged city itself the prayers of chained and shackled rebel hostages in the streets mingled with the shriek of shot and shell fired at them by their own comrades.

Driven back to last line trenches of hilltops only a mile from Irun, the government defenders dragged field pieces behind the crumbling walls of the city in readiness for a fight to the death with the city's already bloody streets as the final battlefield.

If the last line trenches fail to hold off the next rebel attack the government defenders will have only surrender as their alternative to a hand-to-hand battle with Irun.

The government men have said time and again they would never surrender.

To Start New Road Project Lateral Road From Chalk To Highway 9 Will Be Surfaced With one stretch of surfaced lateral road completed and another well on the way, WPA officials announced today that the third such major road project would be started within a few days connecting Chalk to highway No. 9.

The five and a half miles of topped road from the cemetery north on the Gall road was finished last week but county road men are blading shoulders. Rock is still being hauled on the Knott to highway No. 9 north job, a five and a half mile segment. Both of these jobs are caliche base and one course top.

Considerably longer and heavier in construction, the third road will run through the heart of the Settles and Chalk pools in southeastern Howard county for a distance of 11.3 miles. Like the other roads, it will have a heavy caliche base but will get a two-course top owing to heavy type of traffic in that area.

WPA officials are planning on making it a sort of model project since it is to be one of the most extensive road projects undertaken by the agency in cooperation with any county in this district.

A. S. Pruitt, director of operations, said that men would be assigned as soon as a starting date could be selected.

VERSIONS OF PRO ISSUE TO BE SETTLED IN SOME STATES Texas On The List, With Monopoly Question Before Voters In November

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (UP)—A pale and shadowy version of the once vigorous prohibition issue has arisen in this campaign year for attention of the voters.

Four states are confronted with the question of alcohol and what to do about it in 1936, the Anti-Saloon League informed the United Press. North Dakota disposed of its problem for the time being in a June ballot which generally is considered to have been a victory for temperance, if not strictly an occasion for prohibition hosannas.

Voting on liquor questions remains to be recorded in Maine, Texas and California. In the presidential campaign, itself, prohibition is not an issue. The question was not raised in either the republican or democratic platforms. Neither President Roosevelt nor Gov. Alf Landon has discussed it.

Mr. Roosevelt is anti-prohibitionist and he engineered repeal. Governor Landon is not precisely on record but his state permits the sale of 3.2 beer and some months ago the governor refused appointment to the Kansas board of the Anti-Saloon League, a responsibility heretofore undertaken by governors of that state. Prohibition figures in the presidential campaign only to the extent to which Dr. Leigh Colvin, prohibition party candidate for president, is a factor in the race, which is not at all.

Last June North Dakota voted 105,583 to 78,337 against a form of municipal local option and prohibitionists variously interpreted the outcome as a triumph or a turning of the tide.

Maine will vote September 14 on three propositions: 1. Shall state stores for sale of liquor be opened by permission of the state commission in any city or town? 2. Shall licenses be granted in any

County Demo Quota Is $844

Contributions Solicited To Boost State's Share In Campaign Howard county democrats have been called upon by the state organization to contribute $844 to the national campaign, it was revealed Tuesday in a communication from Austin headquarters.

While active democratic campaign organizations are being set up in many Texas counties, it appeared doubtful that such a move would be undertaken here. Groves Cunningham, county chairman said Tuesday, however, that contributions to the democratic cause would be accepted by him, to be forwarded to the state office.

Texas' quota for the demo chest is $250,000, this being distributed among counties. The county figures range from $30,000 for Harris county to $100 for a few of the less populous counties. Dallas county's quota is $25,000, that of Bexar $30,000, and Tarrant county's is $15,000.

Contributions are coming in to Austin offices, it was said, gifts ranging from $1 to the $10,000 given by Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier, national committeewoman from Texas.

RUSSIA CALLS NEW RECRUITS TO BOOST ARMY BY 300,000

MOSCOW, Sept. 2. (UP) - Nine hundred thousand recruits were ordered into the army today in a call which, while of routine nature, served to bring the army's strength to 1,600,000, a net increase of 200,000.

The entire class of 1914 - men born in that year - was called to the colors, as a regular seasonal measure.

In addition, in keeping with the decree for increase which was issued August 11, half of the class of 1915 was called up.

The 600,000 men in the 1914 class will replace an equal number of the last class, who will be released. The 300,000 men of 1915 will provide the increase.

The official newspaper, Izvestia, commenting on the call, warned that recruits must be selected carefully to keep out "class enemies" who might try to carry out subversive work.

Mrs. Hussell had an idea that if she used animal decorations around the house the children might take more interest. She tried it out with this buffet set and she believes it works. She says she hasn't heard nearly as many reasons why they shouldn't help with the dishes since these terriers have made their home on the buffet.

To obtain this pattern, send for No. 323 and enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to cover service and postage. Address Big Spring Herald, Needlework Dept., P. O. Box 200, Station D, New York, N. Y. (Copyright, 1936, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

TEXAS HONORS O. HENRY SITE

A plaque had been placed on the corner of a local building, which marked that spot as the site of the building in which Editor O. Henry worked. It was placed there by the freshman class of the University of Texas in 1930. Many Texas writers disagreed.

Others said that the plaque should have been placed on the Bruekerhoff Building just across the street. As proof they cited that one issue of the paper was marked "Published in the Bruekerhoff Building."

Dean T. U. Taylor, retiring head of the College of Engineering and oldest member of the faculty in years of service, upholds the claim. He says that he knows it is correct because he collects receiving the paper in a building on that site from the hand of O. Henry.

'Star For A Night' Is Attraction At The Queen Theatre

"Star For a Night," with Claire Trevor, Jane Darwell, Arthur Judge, Evelyn Venable, J. Edward Bromberg, Dean Jagger, Alan Dinehart, and Joyce Compton in the cast, is the feature at the Queen for Wednesday and Thursday.

Misses Trevor and Venable and Dean Jagger are panic-stricken when they learn that their mother is coming to pay them a visit. The mother, Jane Darwell, has lost her sight and has been led to believe that her children are famous and successful. They manage to keep up the pretense until it is learned that an operation can restore their mother's sight.

Then the mother wants to see the show in which Miss Trevor is a chorus girl—believing her daughter is the star of the production. With the help of the other chorus girls, Claire plans a madcap scheme to abduct the star of the show so that she can step into her place for the one night. How her plan works out and the astonishing results climax a delightful story.

NEW TEXAS SPIRIT

Centennial year seems to have brought a new and finer spirit to Texas. If this has been accomplished then on that score alone would the Centennial and its cost be fully justified. Those who felt that the Centennial would arouse interest only at the central exposition see now that they were mistaken. Cities by the score, throughout the state, have put on Centennial celebrations and more are to come. The smaller cities got in the spotlight at the central exposition and as they witnessed operation of the exposition in Dallas and the Frontier celebration in Fort Worth, they returned home with the feeling that "our town ought to wake up." Newspapers throughout Texas have issued Centennial editions, recording the history of the past and presenting the picture of their community as it is today, and thousands upon thousands of copies have been mailed to other states thus giving all sections of Texas good and favorable publicity.

The little darts of envy that have been exchanged between Dallas and Fort Worth added spice and while it may have advertised the jealousy between those two Texas cities to be more genuine than it really is, both cities have been led to do their best. Together the two have brought to Texas more national celebrities than were ever in Texas during any one year in her 100 years history.

Less stress could have been placed on the entertainment side of the Centennial, but Texas had the advantage of viewing other celebrations of the kind and decided "showmanship" was needed to draw the crowds. The real value of the Centennial is not in the shows, but in the educational exhibits and in the fact that Texans have been brought to a new consciousness of the true greatness of our state. And the net result is that the Texas Centennial has been such a success that people now call it "The World's Fair."

★ Man About Manhattan ★

By George Tucker

Idling at the bar of a major club, I was vaguely puzzled by the antics of a young girl who arose suddenly from her table and fled weeping from the room. Her escort hurried after her, neglecting even to retrieve his bonnet from the hat-check gal who signalled frantically for his attention as he sped past her.

"What on earth happened?" I inquired of the bar captain. "Did her boy friend hit her?" "No, sir," he answered, "the lady has hay-fever, and the flowers here were too much for her."

Slightly different was this set-to which transpired at the Sky Gardens of the St. Moritz. The tall, blond girl who sings songs of an operatic quality was having some small talk with a group at her table when one of the male members, a drunk, became exceedingly nasty.

He drew offensive, directing his observations against the well-liked Charlie Wright, whose mission in life is to play an accordion and make people forget their troubles as he airs amusing and slightly risqué ditties.

"To begin with," the sullen one said acidly, "he stole the song from Eddie of Leon and Eddie's, and he sings it lousy (his grammar, not mine). He makes me sick. I can't stand it."

After several additional cracks like this, the blond singer could stand it no longer. My table wasn't as close as it should have been, and so I caught only a part of her remarks, but they were sufficient. She swarmed all over him, lacing him in even, but well-chosen, words, winding up with, "At least, he makes an honest living, doesn't he? And that is more than I can say for some people!"

It was an exhibition of loyalty seldom witnessed on Broadway, where a knife in the dark is the usual thing, and I just thought you'd like to know about it.

Later in the evening, I encountered George K. Arthur, who used to team with the late Karl Dame in those funny silent comedies. Remember "Rookies"? This was the little smiling comic of those days. He looked youthful as ever, unmarked by time or the vicissitudes of a letdown career.

Then one noted that Katharine Cornell had returned from her sojourn abroad—a jaunt prematurely ended by the Spanish civil war. She looked coolly lovely and every inch the great lady as she chatted with her husband, Guthrie McClinton, in "21." She's shortly to produce Maxwell Anderson's "The Wingless Victory."

Still later Wilfred Margets, the insurance man, ambled up with the latest knock-knock.

"Who's there?" "Gorilla."

"Gorilla who?" "Gorilla my dreams, I love you-u-u-u..."

And since one good knock always deserves another, the good Abner Glib, who got his first knock in earliest infancy when his mother accidentally dropped him on his head, came up with this one:

"Knock, knock!" "Who's there?" "Panther."

"Panther what I wear. What do you wear?"

Whereupon Margets and your correspondent collaborated in giving him the quick slug and then went inside for a beer while waiting for the gen darmes. They never got there, but even if they had, it would have been worth it.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—One big Washington mystery is why the president has delayed naming the five-man board to administer the new merchant marine act.

The board has tough jobs to face. Toughest is cleaning up the existing ocean mail contract system which Senator Black's investigating committee revealed to be loaded to the gunwales with scandalous abuses. These sensational disclosures played an important role in forcing the enactment of the new law.

Yet despite the urgent need of a house-cleaning of the existing shipping board, the president has made no move to get the new agency under way.

Two months have passed since Congress acted, but to all inquiries as to when he will appoint the five commissioners the president has given an evasive answer. What makes his attitude extraordinary is that the law fixes October 1 as the deadline on which the shipping lines must file their applications for new subsidies.

With no board functioning to fix the basis of these new grants the ship operators are without formulas on which to do their figuring.

Old Fight
 At the root of the protracted delay is the same bitter fight that held up the passage of the new law for six months.

Backed by the commerce department the shipping lobby violently opposed the act and tried to jam through instead a measure that would have given them a practically free hand with government funds. This scheme was blocked chiefly through the efforts of Karl Crowley, solicitor of the postoffice department, Tom Woodward, former member of the shipping board, and Rep. Edward C. Moran, scrap-iron Maine dealer.

These three men are leading contenders for jobs on the new board and the ship lobby is making heaven and earth trying to prevent their appointment.

Its candidates are reported to be Col. J. M. ("Saliboot") Johnson, second assistant secretary of commerce, Paul Scharrenberg, conservative, Pacific coast sailor's union official, and Marvin McIntyre, appointed secretary to the president. Each of these men is under heavy fire.

Johnson and McIntyre are being attacked as too friendly to shipping interests, and maritime unions in all parts of the country have bombarded the White House with hot protests against Scharrenberg.

Because of this bitter cross-fire, insiders are predicting that in order to avoid antagonizing any of the various groups involved, the president will not name the board until after the November election.

Monkey House
 Langdon Post, chief of the New York housing authority, was telling a group of Washington officials about the construction of Flat Houses, a New York slum clearance project that he supervised.

"How did you answer the attacks of real estate interests that opposed the project?" he was asked.

"Oh, that was easy," Langdon said. "I just pointed out that New York had recently built one of the finest monkey houses in the country. I then asked the realtors why, if they could do so much for monkeys, we could not also do something for human beings."

"There just wasn't any answer to that—and they didn't try to make one."

Brass Beds and Sunsets
 An internal row involving Undersecretary Rex Tugwell's right-hand assistant, 28-year-old Grace Falke, is agitating the Resettlement administration.

The ruckus is over beds, bedspreads, tables and window curtains.

The question is whether the tenants, who next winter will move into the new homes in the Bellville project, near Washington, should be allowed to follow their own taste in household furnishings.

Officials in charge of the project contended that the contract had built the houses they should stay aside and leave interior decoration to the tenants.

But Miss Falke thought otherwise. The mental image of brass bedsteads in the new rooms and trite mottoes on the walls pained her deeply.

She took the matter to Tugwell, and he sided with her. An executive order was issued directing that the homes be completely furnished and decorated. Tenants were to have no choice. They could take it or leave it.

Bellville officials stormed and fumed. They appeared livid.

But they found an out. Miss Falke took a vacation. She went off to Hawaii. While she was gone the project managers wrangled a modification of the order.

New tenants can take their choice. They may have antiques and color schemes if they want them, or they may have mail-order beds and calendar sunsets.

Minister of Agriculture
 Secretary Henry Wallace has an aide whom everybody in the department calls the "minister of agriculture."

He is Negro Edward Crockett, who has pressed the pants and shined the shoes and served the lunches of seven secretaries of agriculture.

Crockett owns an autographed photo of all seven, plus five presidents, two supreme court groups, and three cabinet groups—all bearing his own file signatures of the notables. They form a gallery of his own on the walls of his apartment adjoining the secretary's office.

Latest acquisition is picture of Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, severe critic of AAA.

"I told the secretary," Crockett says, "that I wasn't going to hang Vandenberg here after what he's been saying and doing. But the secretary said, 'Sure, put his right

Banner Year For Railroads

Income Best Since '30; Boom in Other Industries Helps

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (UP)—American railroads are having the best year financially since 1930, the Association of American Railroads reports.

Net railway operating income for class 1 roads, the association said, will total approximately $300,000,000 for the first seven months this year.

Net railway operating income for July, based on advance reports from 113 class 1 roads representing 96.8 per cent of total operating revenues, were estimated at $61,133,129, compared with $26,706,708 for the same month last year.

The boom in railroading was reflected in other industries, the association said. Fuel bills have increased in proportion to increased traffic. More men were employed.

Operating expenses totaled $240,181,721 last month, compared with $210,611,046 in July, 1935. Included was an increase in taxes paid from $19,293,023 in July, 1935, to $27,177,982 last month.

It was problematical whether major eastern railroads would continue their court fight against the interstate commerce commission's order reducing passenger fares from a basic 3.6 cents to 2 cents a mile.

Passenger revenues on eastern roads during the two months the new low fares have been in operation—June and July—were reported from 5 to 20 per cent higher than for the same months last year.

Railroad officials are true that had the fares not been reduced the revenue increase would have been even greater.

No figure on bus revenues were available, inasmuch as the ICC has not promulgated the uniform accounting systems required under terms of the 1935 motor carriers act.

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

Chapter 10 SURRENDER

The mask of mockery slipped a little, and Denis saw a corner of Carol's face behind it. "I think there's too much—and not enough. I think we'd better let well enough alone. Skip it entirely."

"What makes you suppose that?" "Did you ever see a newspaper man that didn't?" "I never saw but one," Ellen admitted, "and I don't know whether he did or not. He didn't say."

"Tell me about this man you've got a date with."

and sparring. Come on, Carol. But she shook her head. "I'm a public servant, Denis. Caesar's wife. We might sit on the terrace and talk Einstein, but it would add up to the same thing."

"Well," Ellen reasoned, "as long as you're forewarned you might as well go ahead and enjoy him. Educators have to have recreation just like anybody else."

"Oh, all right. Tomorrow night, then? Make up your mind, sweet. Ben's heading this way with a prescriptive gleam in his eye."

"I've got an idea that coping with Denis might be as exhausting as plowing, and not half as productive."

He didn't dance with her again, and they both knew why. Saturday afternoon in Ashboro. The streets and sidewalks were clogged, crawling streams of humanity. Farmers in wagons and small cars, with provisions and children spilling over the edges of their vehicles, blocking the way for cars that squawked profanely behind them.

"How're you going with Mack Huggins?" Mack Huggins was a delightfully ingenuous youth who worked in Ben's office, and Ellen had seen him twice in a week. She grinned, and held up two fingers pressed close together.

"Just like that. He's coming again tonight. He's one of these uncomplicated people, like I am."

"Jacky devil!" She said it honestly and without bitterness. To be uncomplicated enough to accept without resentment and without question a complicated world. She pushed her empty glass aside.

"Let's go out and walk in the woods, where it's clean. I want to get these smells out of my nose."

Denis came with eight o'clock, because one didn't call earlier than that, and because he couldn't wait longer than that. He hurried himself from a roadster that gleamed darkly under the street light and ran up Mrs. O'Connor's undorned walk.

From the shadows of the porch Carol's voice checked him. "Is there a fire?"

"Oh," she was a blur of white against the dingy cushions of a swing. He went over and sat down beside her, and his hand folded its wings. "I just wanted to see if you were like I remembered you. A lot of drinks and a sudden enthusiasm can throw you pretty hard."

"I don't. But this seems worse than Meredith, probably because we've only got three cotton mills."

He could say that now, because his voice in the dark had been enough to re-embolden her. He leaned back and took her hand; felt it lie quiet and tentative in his. She didn't ask whether his enthusiasm had thrown him; she knew that the admission implied a negative. He said casually: "Now begin at the beginning, Carol, and tell me how you came."

"Well, he looks like a composite of Valentino and George Raft and all the other Big Menaces of Hollywood. He even wears a mess jacket."

"I don't see anything wrong so far," Ellen said stoutly. "There, isn't it just perfect?" "What does he do?"

"When he does anything he's a reporter. Just now he's at leisure. And of course I suppose he writes."

"Tomorrow there is trouble with Sam Cates."

"I don't see anything wrong so far," Ellen said stoutly. "There, isn't it just perfect?" "What does he do?"

"When he does anything he's a reporter. Just now he's at leisure. And of course I suppose he writes."

Maine Takes The Spotlight In Campaign

State's September Elections Traditionally Point U.S. Trend

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (UP)—As Maine goes, "so goes the nation," according to the old political adage, but the actual partisan advantage from the nation's only September election was a bitterly contested issue today as Maine prepared to go to the ballot box.

Wilson won In 1912, Maine, due to the three-cornered split resulting from Theodore Roosevelt's third party candidacy, gave its electoral vote to Woodrow Wilson.

Upholds Tradition "By and large as Maine goes so goes the country," said Page. An inconclusive result, however, he said, would be election this month of a democratic senator and three republican house members, or of two or three democratic house members and a republican senator.

gave its electoral vote to Herbert Hoover 166,631 to 123,967 for Franklin Roosevelt.

The influence of the Maine September elections, party leaders admit, is mainly psychological. The state is normally a republican state. Should the total democratic vote this month be close to the republican, democratic leaders could obviously try to get some comfort from it, even if the party loses in each major office fight.

In 1912, Maine for the first time in decades gave its November electoral vote to a democratic presidential nominee. The vote that year was Woodrow Wilson, 51,113; William Howard Taft, 26,545; and Theodore Roosevelt, 48,495. In 1916 the state went for Charles Evans Hughes with 69,506 votes to Wilson's 61,127. Since then in presidential elections, republican victories have been comparatively one-sided.

Treasury Appoints Directors In Drive Against Narcotics

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (UP)—The treasury has appointed four regional chiefs who will lead a drive against the illicit narcotics traffic which begins today with the transfer of 570 customs border patrol agents to posts as narcotics agents.

The men had been assigned to the border patrol to stop liquor smuggling but when that traffic fell off, Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., reassigned them to the customs agency service to smash the narcotic traffic.

Landon Trip Through East Is Important

Full Effect Of His First Speeches Cannot Yet Be Gauged

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (UP)—Weeks will elapse no doubt before the full effect of Governor Landon's eastern tour is reflected in tangible clarification of sentiment among the voters.

In his first speech at West Middlesex, Pa., he reiterated his belief in "the American way" as opposed to the new deal, but he left for later speeches any definite detailing of his program such as he promised earlier.

Supplying wants of the people through private enterprise, he forecast, was the "new frontier" ready to absorb the pressure of unemployment. That it would do so was his forecast. The only program evident in connection with it was assurance that he wanted sufficient curbs upon private enterprise to prevent monopoly and unfair practices.

Emanates Neighborness Regardless of the contents of subsequent speeches, that first one left many people puzzled as to Governor Landon's plan of attack.

He came riding into the east emanating neighborliness and good will. The corps of advisors on tour with him smacked of the simplicity of the shaded country lane. It might be that his plan is to impress the public in these early stages with his personality.

The governor may surmise that the principal pressure for him to go into details about his program this early comes from democrats who would appreciate any additional time he will give them to prepare counterattacks.

Whatever his plan, the east's Jeffrey G. O'Donoghue, formerly in charge of the Florida border patrol, will be in charge of the southeastern district with headquarters at Jacksonville.

Garland Williams, formerly customs agent at Galveston, Tex., will head the southwest region, with headquarters at El Paso.

first sight of him may prove decisive. Democrats charge 'No Program' Regardless of how fully his program is stated, he will be subjected to attack from democratic spokesmen eager to accuse him of having no program.

If eastern voters consider his speeches as offering only meagre detail of his program, can they be influenced by his "get-acquainted" tour to suspend judgment until he is prepared to go further into detail?

There are prominent figures in both parties who, differing with Senator Coughs of Michigan, have declared continuation of the new deal would menace the American style of government.

Many others, particularly those professing to speak for certain large farm and labor groups, fear that defeat of the new deal and any restoration of "the order" would incite dangerous unrest.

All of these must consider the Landon tour into the east a most fateful journey.

No Definite Plan Set Up For States In Farm Program

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2 (UP)—States interested in soil conservation legislation will be given aid in drafting such programs but no attempt will be made by the agriculture department to force the states to adopt a model plan, it was learned today.

The federal soil conservation program provides that after January 1, 1938, federal grants for conservation programs will be made to states instead of to individual farmers. States which have adopted conservation programs that comply with the federal act will be given federal funds to be distributed to farmers.

Four states—Mississippi, South Carolina, Louisiana and Alabama—have adopted conservation programs but the AAA has not indicated whether the plans comply with the federal act.

Many states have asked for advice in drafting a conservation program. AAA attorneys have studied some state programs but have not agreed on any one as suitable for endorsement.

Agricultural authorities forecast for 1936 the smallest apple crop since 1921.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning!
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile isn't flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks pink.
Laxatives are only make-shifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes these good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Official Reports

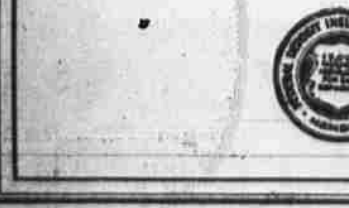

—on banking show an impressive feature of business recovery.

THE report of the Comptroller of the Currency of the United States for instance, shows that there are over 15,800 banks in active operation under the supervision of state or federal banking authorities. Their capital totals more than three and one-half billion dollars and their surplus and reserves amount to over four billion dollars more. Their total deposits have increased in a year to forty-five billion dollars, and their aggregate resources have increased to fifty-six billion dollars.

In reports furnished the American Bankers Association the supervisors of banks in the various states also confirm similar forward trends in their jurisdictions throughout the nation.

These facts and figures show that strong currents of public confidence are aiding the turn toward general business recovery.

answer those three questions and the result will be binding upon that community. Prohibition organizations are instructing their followers to vote "no" on all three. Prevailing now in Maine is a control act which provided the sale of liquor should be legal until Jan. 1, 1937. The town and city referendum will supplant that act.

Texas has a form of local option which is a hangover from a vote in 1919 which left some areas wet and some dry, subject of course to national prohibition which, theoretically, made the entire state a desert. The question before Texas voters is in the form of a constitutional amendment to provide for a state dispensary system which would have exclusive rights to the sale of liquor under local option conditions.

Canifornians are confronted by two proposed amendments to the constitution:

1. An amendment to create an alcoholic beverage commission for three members each appointed for six years to supplant the state board of equalization as the liquor governing body.

2. A local option initiative measure for every city, town and county whereunder each would have authority to regulate or prohibit liquor.

The Anti-Saloon League here said its organization was opposing the amendment to create a new commission but supported the local option proposal.

Two Authors Predict Vast Change In US

Critical Analyses Of The Nation Reveal Dark Forebodings

NEW YORK, Sept. 2. (UP)—America's destiny in the next decade drives toward war, another depression, and social changes whose immensity cannot be forecast, two outstanding political thinkers agreed in new books published today.

Probably Norman Thomas, Socialist presidential candidate, and Ernest K. Lindley, clear-headed Washington correspondent of the Republican New York Herald-Tribune, the writers of these books will be surprised at this comparison of their individual contributions to the book literature of the present political campaign. But the parallel is too obvious to be ignored.

Not that they agree on method or even on the road that will be followed. But each points to the future with misgiving and uncertainty.

Thomas' volume is "After the New Deal What?" published by Macmillan. Lindley's is "Half Way with Roosevelt," with the Viking Press.

Only Escape

Norman Thomas plainly reiterates and clarifies his previous pleadings for Socialism as the only escape from a new and terrible depression of a war, from either of which will emerge fascism. His is strictly campaign material.

But it is unfortunate that Lindley's careful analysis of the Roosevelt era and his cautious penetration of the future, should appear at the beginning of the present campaign. Six months hence, this book would be received for what it really is: an important contemporary United States history, which probably will be more valuable to historians than it is today.

Both Thomas and Lindley analyze Mr. Roosevelt's three and one-half years and reach surprisingly parallel decisions in many instances.

Their conclusions concerning the administration's silver-buying program, for example, and the federal alum clearance projects, are almost paraphrases.

Food Scarce In Berlin As Olympics End

Plentitude For Foreigners Astonished German Shoppers

BERLIN, Sept. 2. (UP)—The recent Olympics were a real Country Fair for German housewives with families to feed. Now that the games are over, the same housewives are finding difficulty in buying what they want in the markets.

Everything was available during the first two weeks in August. There was pork and beef aplenty. Visitors from the German provinces marvelled at the fact that store windows actually displayed whole crates of eggs—a startling event in view of the fact that since last winter's egg shortage Germany's supply of hen fruit had never come back to normal.

The eggs so displayed were Finnish, Swedish and Danish, brought in with the scanty supply of German funds now available for trade in foreign countries.

Eggs Vanish

Now that the Olympic games are over and there is no longer any need to meet the demands of thousands of foreign guests in Germany, eggs are again growing scarce. It has become so that they are invariably unobtainable in parts of the city.

As to meats, butchers who go to central distributing depots to get their day's supply of cuts of beef and other meats are now forced to show what their recent turnover in such products has been—and then they usually are able to purchase only half of what they want. And if their tax papers are not fully in order, they are apt to get nothing whatever.

The army draws a huge supply of meats and other food, and with the domestic supply insufficient and the trade financial situation such as it is today, the general public sometimes gets left.

Prodigious Betterment

First official notice of the meat shortage came last week when newspapers announced that supplies would be better in the fall. Simultaneously, the Nazi farmers' league announced:

"We actually have two million head, or 9 per cent more swine than a year ago, but they are not yet ready for slaughter since we have been unable, as in previous years, to augment our scant domestic fodder with imports. In addition the weather has been bad for the harvest."

The statement predicted that October would see an increase in slaughtering and promised more deliveries of beef with the return of cattle from summer pastures, and concluded that the German people would do well to eat more fruit, vegetables and fish during the interim.

Cut Down on Meat

It is recalled that on several occasions recently Nazi official organs have suggested that Germans "eat too much meat anyway" and that they should reduce the average of 55 kilos per year to half or one-third of that figure.

New Schedule For Oil Fields

State's Daily Production Now Is 1,125,674 Barrels

AUSTIN, Sept. 2. (UP)—Texas oil fields were under a new production schedule today, estimated to allow a daily production of 1,125,674 barrels of oil daily.

Production in the East Texas field is continued on the same factor of 2.32 per cent of hourly potential as a day's production. This results in slightly more than 434,000 barrels daily. On Aug. 29, the computation was 434,000 barrels.

An order subsequent to the general statewide proration order of Aug. 25 (effective today) has been issued for the Texas part of the Rodessa field. It allows production of 40 barrels a day instead of 250 barrels for all wells producing with a gas-oil ratio of 2,000 cubic feet or less. There are 36 wells in the Texas portion of the field. The new order takes cognizance of a Louisiana order reducing the allowable to 240 barrels for wells on the Louisiana side. "It is desirable to approach equal withdrawal rates from a common reservoir," the order said.

Harmonizing of rules for the old Refugio, New Refugio, Refugio Deep, Greta, Greta Deep, Quintana O'Connor and North Quintana fields in Refugio county is being considered, it was announced. A hearing on those fields has been called for Sept. 15 at Austin for the purpose of considering if some of these fields are producing from a common reservoir with different spacing rules and regulations.

QUESTIONS THAT SOME FOLKS ASK ABOUT CARDUI BENEFIT FOR MAL-NUTRITION

Thousands of women testify Cardui has helped them to overcome mal-nutrition and to ease many of the functional pains of menopause.

"What is meant by 'helping to overcome malnutrition?'" Cardui contains extracts of two plants which are classed among the "bitters" in medicine because they are known to increase the flow of digestive juices—to improve digestion—so there is a craving for sufficient food for the body's needs, and by their action more energy (or strength) is obtained from the food eaten. The food, of course, brings the additional strength, but Cardui serves as the means to this end by its good influence on the digestive system.—adv.
