YOUNG MAN DROWNED NEAR POST MONDAY

Monday afternoon Wayne Ray, son of H. E. Ray, in company with two small girls, went to a small lake in Tom Davis' pasture near Dugger, a switch just north of town, on the Santa Fe, to take a little swim. When they arrived at the lake the young man, who was 19 years, 6 months and 3 days old, jumped in head first and it is supposed he struck bottom which must have added him, so he drowned before he could get out and the little girls run quite awhile and after they had returned with help the body was recovered. He was buried in Terrace Cemetery Thursday morning.—Post City Post.

BRAKEMAN SLAIN IN FIGHT ON SANTA FE

Slaton, Texas, June 29.—In a fight between tramps and the train crew of the Santa Fe freight train, No. 933, at Roundup, about 25 miles west of Slaton on the Seagraves line Jerry Redden, brakeman, was stabbed to death, and conductor J. S. Vaughn received a number of wounds, which are not considered fatal. Authorities are now searching for the guilty parties.

The train had stopped at the round house for water about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Two hobos, who had locked themselves in a car, were ordered to come out. They attacked the conductor with knives and rocks, cutting him from the left temple to under the chin. When he ran to the caboose for his gun they attacked brakeman Redden, killing him. BROWNFIELD LAD SHOOT'S EYE OUT

While playing with an old rifle barrel last Friday, Raymond Boon, the six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Boon, got his eye so badly damaged that it necessitated its removal, which was done at the local hospital and at last accounts the little fellow was doing fine.

It seems that he was trying to put a loaded cartridge in the rusty barrel and it would not go with pressure by hand and he undertook to drive it in with a hammer. The shell exploded and the cap struck him in the eye, penetrating the skull. It is said that the bullet went out of the barrel, or perhaps the accident would have been much worse.

The boy's uncle, M. V. Brownfield, informed us that as soon as the eye was in sufficient condition, he would purchase the boy an artificial eye.—Brownfield Herald.

The Panhandle will produce the best crop in its history this fall.

Old Glory floated in the air from the courthouse flag pole from early morning until late in the evening, placed there by members of the local post of the American Legion.

PHEBE K. WARNER CLUB GIVES SOCIAL

Last Thursday afternoon, being the fifth Thursday, the various members of the Gumps, Jiggs, Mutts and Katzenjammers families assembled themselves together in the ladies rest room at the court house for an informal social. You cannot imagine what an enjoyable time these families have at their family reunions. To start the afternoon's program each family performed a special stunt suited to their own circle, which we are sure none other could have acted.

Then came the National Him contest, which caused some deep thinking in the history channel. Deeper than was necessary caused by a mistake when they asked us to respond with names of presidents instead of heroes. A table was arranged with groups of objects representing several of the nursery rhymes that proved to be a good review. Miss Ollie Clinton and Juanita Haynes favored us with readings and Charline Maddox sang "Piggy O'Neil," accompanied by Misses Leota Knight and Ida Small with their ukuleles.

Applications were then received for membership into the "Boots without Shoes Club." A large number responded to this and Mrs. R. B. Haynes initiated them into this organization.

Mrs. J. C. May, in her charming manner conducted the afternoon exercises, calling on each lady present by their given names, (some had almost forgotten), to speak their first piece or sing their first song.

Red, white and blue brick ice cream and cake was served to Mesdames Weaver, Sanford, Stewart, Dobbins, of Roscoe, Townes, J. H. Edwards, Walker, Tunnell, Slaton, Rogers, Elliott, Stokes, Northcross, May, Weathers, Haynes, Misses Ollie and Anna Belle Clinton, Leota Knight, Ida Small, Charline Maddox, Juanita Haynes, Lucile Slaton, Connie Jean May and Lottie Joe Townes.

CHRISTIAN REVIVAL CLOSED

The Church of Christ, who have been conducting a revival meeting at the city tabernacle, closed the services last Sunday night. Rev. O. M. Reynolds, of Plainview, who did the preaching, returned to his home Monday. Rev. Reynolds is a very strong and forceful speaker and great good was obtained from his sermons delivered to the masses during his stay here. It is hoped that he will return to Tahoka at some future date.

The church in Tahoka has been greatly strengthened from the results of the series of meetings.

Methodist Ladies Stick in Lake

Last week as several car loads of Methodist ladies were enroute from Lubbock to Tahoka, they stuck up in a lake, which is located in Lubbock county, just over the Lynn county line. The following item was clipped from the Methodist, printed by the church at Lubbock, which we are reprinting in order that our readers may know that the bad place referred to is in Lubbock county on the main highway.

"On Tuesday morning about 8:30 o'clock five carloads of our Missionary members, with two husbands as drivers started for Tahoka. It was a fine day after the shower the night before for a trip of this kind. We were all in good spirits and everything was going alright until we were near the Nevels ranch. One of our cars struck a high center and we did not go so well for awhile. We women were equal to the occasion and we got sticks and hoe and worked and dug and pushed, finally by placing two wheels on jacks we were able to back out, and soon we were off to Tahoka. We reached there in time for a part of a good sermon by Brother Hendrix, of Slaton. Bro. Upton, of Tahoka, gave us an interesting talk on the General Conference at Hot Springs. We next came to a very important part of the program—dinner, not lunch, but a real dinner. Everything you could wish for and the very best. The Missionary ladies of Tahoka can do most anything. They served well on the program for several numbers, besides preparing that bountiful spread.

We hope Tahoka liked us well enough to invite us down again.—Reporter in the Methodist.

Jno. A. King, of Brownfield, spent yesterday in town, and handed the News the wherewith to keep the paper coming his way.

SUCCEEDS WHERE DOCTORS FAIL

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Often Does That.—Read Mrs. Miner's Testimony

Churubusco, N. Y.—"I was under the doctor's care for over five years for backache and had no relief from his medicine. One day a neighbor told me about your Vegetable Compound and I took it. It helped me so much that I wish to advise all women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and backache. It is a great help in carrying a child, as I have noticed a difference when I didn't take it. I thank you for this medicine and if I ever come to this point again I do not want to be without the Vegetable Compound. I give you permission to publish this letter so that all women can take my advice."—Mrs. FRED MINER, Box 102, Churubusco, N. Y.

It's the same story over again. Women suffer from ailments for years. They try doctors and different medicines, but feel no better. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you see its value in the case of Mrs. Miner.

That's the truth of the matter. If you are suffering from any of the troubles women have, you ought to try this medicine. It can be taken in safety by young or old, as it contains no harmful drugs.

ART TREASURES NOT INSURED

For One Reason, No Amount of Money Could Replace Those in British Storehouses.

The great national storehouses of art treasures are not insured, writes a correspondent of the London Daily Mail. No compensation would be forthcoming in case of fire or theft. The reason is that the premiums on the millions of pounds' worth of pictures in the National gallery, antiquities in the British museum, and exhibits in the Victoria and Albert museum, for instance, would amount to a very large sum.

"If art galleries and museums insured they would have to pay out far larger sums than they receive in admittance charges," said an official of the National Portrait gallery. "The latest apparatus for preventing and detecting fire is employed, and night watchmen are present."

An official of the British museum said: "We have very thorough systems of patrolling, and special firemen of our town, who formerly served in the London fire brigade."

The amount of smiling we do when paying our taxes is an index to our patriotism.

Are you dull, tired and aching—bothered with a bad back? Do you lack ambition; suffer headaches and dizziness—feel "all worn out"? Likely your kidneys are to blame. A Texas Case

Mrs. L. J. Burnett, Hempstead, Tex., says: "I was troubled with backache. My back hurt constantly and I couldn't rest well. Mornings I was always stiff and lame. My kidneys didn't act right and I felt tired and worn out and lacked ambition. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills so I used them. Every bit of my back-ache disappeared."

LITTLE IMPROVEMENTS MAKE FARM AUTOMOBILE FAR MORE EFFICIENT

It is Combination of Many Small Things That Makes Up a Satisfactory and Complete Whole.

There always seems to be some improvement that can be made on the farm auto, no matter how well equipped the car may be. These improvements are often very small matters, but it is the combination of many small improvements that makes up a satisfactory and successful whole.

Fig. 1 shows an auto clamp vise. How often does the driver mechanic (who is, after all, the only one who can run a car both economically and efficiently), need a vise while away from the garage? Generally, through lack of one at the time, only a makeshift repair can be made and these often cause extra trouble afterwards when the car is in the garage.

The safety first motto applies to the tool kit as well as the driver, writes Arthur White in the Montreal Family Herald. This kit should always be inspected before getting away with the car, especially if going any distance. The most satisfactory and the quickest way to check tools and materials is to make a list of the contents and affix it to the inside of tool box. It is an easy matter, then, to run over and check the items. This, too, is the only way to checkmate the tool borrowing fiend who pounces on your tools, borrows them and neglects to return them for weeks on end.

However, to return to the vise which is intended for light, small parts, holding them rigid while one is working on them. It is affixed to the engine and is held down by the engine head bolts. If these bolts are too short, it would be as well to secure longer ones, only taking care, when tightening them up, not to overstrain them, otherwise a broken stud results. To make the vise two pieces of steel three-eighths or one-half inch will be needed. This is heated in the forge and then bent and formed as in the sketch, holes being drilled to fit the width of the studs. The movable section of the vise has two lugs, filed out at the bottom. These are then fitted into slots which are cut in the fixed portion. The tightening screw is made from any piece of one-half-inch bar fixed up to pass through the holes in the vise. This also is heated and bent as shown. Afterwards a thread is cut, and a suitable nut fitted to it. Fig. 2 shows a method of heating the intake manifold from the exhaust manifold. This increases the efficiency of the gas in cold weather. The idea is to cover the entire manifold with a copper sheet, bending it well around each manifold and making it meet in the rear. This copper jacket is held in place by making holes through it to correspond with the bolts on the engine, slipping it over these bolts, setting the pipe clamps in place and finally tightening up the nuts as usual. The copper conducts the heat from the hot exhaust pipes direct to the intake manifold. After running the engine about ten minutes the intake becomes so hot that the hand cannot be held upon it; thus it preheats the gas, and so raises its explosive power. Fig. 3 shows another fitting for cold weather. This consists of a box-like case for the muffler and is fastened to the underside of the floor. The casing can be made of sheet metal or even of wood. A number of holes should be bored through the floor of the car directly above this deflector; not so close or so numerous as to weaken the floor, of course, but sufficient to permit the heat, from around the exhaust muffler, escaping into the car. This excess heat usually is lost in radiation; but, by being diverted to the interior of the car, it will add greatly to the comfort of the occupants in winter.

RIGHT AIR PRESSURE IS QUITE NECESSARY

Overloading or Underinflation Increases Temperature.

Amount of Heat Generated by Tire Is Due to Flexing and Bending of Fabric and Rubber—Old Tire Most Susceptible.

The heat that is noticeable in a tire after it has been run for a few hours is generated by the tire itself, due to flexing and bending of fabric and rubber. The amount of heat depends upon the rapidity and extent of this action. An overloaded or an under-inflated tire heats more rapidly than a properly inflated and properly loaded tire. Similarly, an old tire, due to weakness, is more susceptible to this heat-producing action than a new tire.

The strength factor built into the standard pneumatic tires of today is far above what the tire is ever called upon to deliver, except under most extraordinary circumstances. Experimental tests have shown that in order to blow out a new first-class tire by additional air pressure it is necessary to exert a force of over thirty times the regular recommended pressure.

Tire experts claim, therefore, that there is absolutely no reason, so far as a blowout is concerned, for a reduction of air pressure before going out on long runs or during hot days. The maximum increase in air pressure that could be expected, under any condition, would not exceed fifteen pounds—the average would not be greater than six pounds. This small increase in pressure will not blow out the casing.

The motorist should not concern himself over making inflation allowances for changes in temperature. The important point to remember is at all times to have enough pressure and that it is very rare that one has too much. Proper air pressure is necessary that full service may be received.

Tax Rather High. Tax on passenger automobiles in Great Britain is $5 per horsepower. In Italy the tax for an average car runs between $2,000 and $3,000 a year.

Stories of GREAT INDIANS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union. CHIEF GALL, A GENERAL OF THE HUNKPAPAS

"PAINFUL as it is to me to look upon the pictured face of an Indian, I never dreamed that there could be so fine a specimen of the warrior in all the tribes as this man," wrote Mrs. Custer of a photograph of Gall (Pia), chief of the Hunkpapa Sioux. Gall was an orphan boy who became a chief by his deeds as a warrior. That he possessed high military talents was shown at the Battle of Little Big Horn.

Although the honors there were about equally divided between Gall and Crazy Horse, the credit for one vital Indian maneuver in the battle belongs to the Hunkpapa alone. When Reno attacked the Indian village, the Indians were thrown into confusion. Into their midst dashed Gall mounted on his black war horse. "Hold hard, men!" he shouted, "Steady, we are not ready yet. Wait for more guns, more horses and the day is yours."

They obeyed him and a few minutes later he led the charge which forced Reno to retreat. With this officer eliminated, Gall led his savage host across the river to join Crazy Horse in overwhelming Custer's five troops. Gall then tried to follow up his advantage by returning to annihilate Reno, besieged on the bluffs, but his warriors who were plundering the fallen soldiers did not care to help him achieve this final master stroke.

Gall followed Sitting Bull to Canada in 1877, but three years later withdrew his support and returned to the United States to surrender. As a fighting man, Gall despised the high pretensions of Sitting Bull and dared to denounce his leader as a fraud and a coward even when Sitting Bull was still a power among his people. He was a proud man, too. After the surrender of the tribe, Col. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) tried to get Sitting Bull and Gall for leading attractions in his Wild West show. Sitting Bull consented. "I am not an animal to be exhibited before the crowd," replied Gall laughingly as he turned away to his lodge.

SITTING BULL WHO WAS THE INDIAN SPHINX

WHEN historians have written the last word about the American Indian, they will be unable to agree in their estimate of Sitting Bull (Tatanka Yotanka) chief of the Hunkpapa Sioux. Perhaps no other Indian ever received so much notoriety; probably none ever deserved it less.

He was not a hereditary chief nor a great war leader. Some who knew him have called him a coward; others say he was brave enough but prudent. In the strictest sense he was not a medicine man, as he frequently has been called, although his personal "medicine" was strong. Who, then, and what was Sitting Bull? He was a keen judge of human nature and he was lucky in his prophecies, notably in predicting the destruction of General Custer. He was a great leader with some mysterious power over his people.

Perhaps they saw personified in him the undying spirit of resistance to the white man. "God Almighty made me an Indian. He didn't make me an agency Indian and I don't intend to be one," he told General Miles in 1877. That was the keynote of his whole career. It resulted in his leading his people to Canada where they remained until 1881, when starvation forced him to return to the United States and surrender.

Sitting Bull had a grim sense of humor. Once a trader at Fort Buford gave him a red shirt with the suggestion that he wear it when he came for war. Sitting Bull accepted the garment with the remark that "right now would be a good time to put it on." He did so and when his band led the trading post, they turned and fired a volley into the building.

The old chief had two wives, and when Bishop Marty tried to persuade him to divorce one, Sitting Bull replied: "The black gown is my friend and I will do this for him. I will put away both my wives and he will get me a white wife." The proposition was not accepted.

In the Sixties Sitting Bull had said: "The whites may get me at last, but I will have a good time until then." He proved a true prophet in saying that. In an effort to quiet the ghost dance excitement, Indian police were sent on December 15, 1890, to arrest Sitting Bull. Some of the Hunkpapa resisted and in the melee that followed Sitting Bull was shot dead. Like King Philip and Pontiac he was killed by members of his own race, out, as he foretold, the "whites got him at last."

A Youthful Logician. Margaret is only seven years old, but sometimes quite naughty. On one of these occasions her mother, hoping to be particularly impressive, said: "Don't you know that if you keep on doing so many naughty things your children will be naughty, too?" Margaret dimpled, and cried triumphantly: "Oh, mother, now you have given yourself away!"—Harper's Magazine.

Made Records for Agents. A prominent insurance executive decided not long ago that he would talk to about 20,000 agents who write policies for his concern. He could not get them all together, so he concluded to use the phonograph. He prepared an address of 400 words and then made a master record. This record was duplicated 20 times and a catchy tune was put on the opposite side of the disk. Then the records were mailed to the agents in the Atlantic to the Pacific in the hope that those who did not have talking machines would take the records to a neighbor or to a music store to hear the message. Agnes Slipped. Kettle—"Poor Agnes slipped on her veranda last night." Doris—"Well, well, did it fit her?"

AN EXAMPLE OF GOODYEAR VALUE

The 30 x 3 1/2 Goodyear Cross Rib Tire shown here alongside its companion, the 30 x 3 1/2 Goodyear All-Weather Tread Clincher, is a conspicuous example of Goodyear value.

The Goodyear Cross Rib has in it the same high grade Egyptian cotton fabric that goes into the All-Weather Tread Goodyear.

It has a differently designed but long-wearing tread, and it sells for considerably less money.

In the past five years more than 5,000,000 of these Goodyear Cross Rib Tires have been sold.

They have everywhere given remarkable service.

Their fine performance and known value have convinced thousands of motorists of the folly of buying unknown and unguaranteed tires of lower price.

Ask your Goodyear Service Station Dealer to explain their advantages.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE MASTERFUL MIND

WHEN a perplexing task confronts you, the very thought of which your poise and seems to paralyze your mental and physical faculties by all means keep cool. You cannot by any other manner master the situation.

By mastering yourself, composing your tingling nerves and going at the task in an orderly fashion, you will find that however serious were your apprehensions, or your fears of getting through on time, there was really nothing to be flustered at all.

A moment of quiet, decisive thought each time is usually all that is needed, but the difficulty with persons is, the mastering of the mind to do their bidding.

The average mind has an inclination to jump and dance in circles and to become so agitated that anything appearing tranquilly appears to be flying out of the question.

Uncommon Sense

EDISON'S QUESTIONS

BACKGROUND of general knowledge is useful, and, in some measure, necessary.

Storing up in your mind a mass of knowledge which can be found by reference to books, merely overloading.

The young man who could answer the questions Mr. Edison recently set down as a test for applicants for jobs, would be a young man with a remarkable memory. But that is all.

The fact that he could answer the questions would be no proof whatever of his ability.

William Lincoln or Gladstone would have answered a quarter of—not even of those whose answers were known in his time.

Other could many another man have been of conspicuous service to the world.

There is so much to know in the world that no man with any purpose has time to know much of it.

He knows, say, 75 per cent of all that is to know about his immediate profession, and has a fair amount of information besides, he is a well-educated man.

Even well-educated men are not usually capable.

But what you put into your mind is what you get out of it that is the record.

When you eat twice as much as a cow or a Guernsey, but she does not get fat.

The processes of your brain do not work on masses of information but on the quality of the information, especially that which applies particularly to your own business.

Edison's test would probably have been made by his institution.

Under Graham Bell, the Wright brothers, Lloyd George and Charles Darwin. But all these men did not do it with the knowledge they had at their own lines of endeavor.

Their memory will be serviceable to you if you do not load it up with information that books can carry just as well.

KIDDIES SIX

THE BRIGHT SIDE

THINGS a-lookin' rather blue?
All the world a bit askew?
Then, my friend, it's up to you
Just to hustle out and do
Something worth the while.
Wipe the tears from out your eye;
Things will get worse if you cry;
Seek the paths where roses lie;
There is every reason why
You should wear a smile.

Though the clouds are dark to view,
Still behind the sky is blue,
And the sun will soon shine through
With his golden gleam on you
If you work away.
Though the day be dark and drear,
What's the use to quake and fear
Wipe away that idle tear,
Look to see the dawning clear
Of a brighter day.

Locked within their icy tomb
Are the flowers of springtime's bloom;
In good time they'll light the gloom,
Scent the air with sweet perfume
As you trudge along.
Life is always what it's made,
Why should you, then, be dismayed?
Keep on going, unafraid,
Every doubt can be played
With a cheerful song.

Keep on working with a will;
Tackle 'em the steepest hill;
Bid each doubt and fear be still
And each day with duty fill—
Duty nobly done.
Try again if once you fail;
At one ill-success don't stall;
Bravely face life's fiercest gale;
Don't sit down and weep and wail—
Thus success is won.

UP AGAINST TOUGH PROBLEM

Small Jane's Scruples Prevented Her From Eating the Candy That Had Been "Lent."

Little Jane's mother brought home a box of candy given to her by an Episcopal friend shortly before Easter, and passed around some of its contents to her children, explaining that Mrs. Cox's children had given up eating candy until after Easter, "so they cannot eat any now, as it is Lent."

Little Jane's brothers promptly ate their pieces, but she stood looking at the candy in her hand with a puzzled air.

"Why don't you eat it, Jane?" her mother asked.

"Because," she explained, "then how could I give it back if it's just lent?"

Complete Removal.
Fat Mother-in-Law—Look, James, dear, here at last I've found something to remove my flesh. It's guaranteed to take off 30 pounds a month. That makes it just right for one who weighs 180 pounds like I do.

Son-in-Law—Yes. Now use it diligently for six months.

CALOMEL IS A DANGEROUS DRUG

Next Dose May Salivate You, Loosen Teeth or Start Rheumatism.

Calomel is mercury; quicksilver. It crashes into your bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dods-on's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dods-on's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Advertisement.

The Illusions.
For years we have been searching high and low for that hero of the movies who appears always at the right moment and boists the villain. The other day we found him selling collars at a shirt place.

We have wanted to meet the villain face to face—that black scoundrel of the plains, sinful, profane, death-defying. We found him the other day, too, carrying out dead dishes in a restaurant.

And the lovely girl, the creature of emotions and eyelashes, the dream of our summers, who is always sitting easily in a magnificent couch chair, taking tea from an obsequious butler. We found her, too. She was selling tickets through the window as we came out from the show.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

A Real Benefit.
"How I envy you your group of children," remarked the bachelor to his long-married friend.
"Children certainly do brighten the home," replied the other, gratified.
"What? Oh, yes, yes, of course. But what I was thinking of—look at the tax exemption you can claim on them."

When you say a thing is impossible, it is, for you.

PE-RU-NA

"I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na and find it a great benefit. I had pains in my stomach and bowels, but by the use of Pe-ru-na and Man-a-tin, I am well and strong again. I always keep a few bottles in the house."
Mrs. DEAN GRAY,
R. F. D. No. 2, Box 19,
Nichols, Iowa

Mrs. Gray's experience is just more evidence that Pe-ru-na is quite as good a remedy for catarrh of the stomach, bowels or other organs as it is for coughs, colds and nasal catarrh. Pe-ru-na is a wonderfully fine medicine to have in the house for everyday use.

Looking Forward.
Mothers take an all-suffering pride in their offspring—want to see their children second to no others in the world. A young matron was massaging her little girl's knees when a friend inquired the reason for that seeming extraordinary care.

"Oh, the girls are showing their knees more and more these days, and when Alice is older I want hers to be as pretty as any."

Watch Cuticura Improve Your Skin.
On rising and retiring gently smear the face with Cuticura Ointment. Wash off Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water. It is wonderful what Cuticura will do for poor complexions, dandruff, itching and red rough hands.—Advertisement.

AND THAT'S HOW IT'S DONE!
No Need for Further Speculation as to Why Some Men Have Received Medals.

"Here is another list of medal recommendations, and I've worn out my blue pencil! What in the world shall I do?" the great official exclaimed in despair.

"I have sharpened another blue pencil for you, sir," the faithful secretary responded promptly.

"You are wonderful; you think of everything!" the great official declared, seizing the new pencil eagerly. "What would I do without you? But your services to your country shall not go unrewarded," he added, his face lighting up with a happy thought, and striking out the first name on the list before him, he wrote in its place that of the faithful clerk.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Damages for Grief.
Measuring human emotions in dollars and cents is the newest problem confronting French juries as a result of a decision of the Paris courts of appeals, promising to revolutionize French procedure in damage cases.

Hitherto, for example, in the case of a person killed in an accident the survivor was allotted damages only upon the basis of actual material loss, such as the depreciation of the family income, but henceforward juries will be asked to grant a supplemental allowance covering grief and physical wear and tear.

About Flies.
"I wonder where all the flies come from," grumbled Mrs. Jones as she swatted around the dining room.

"Well, mom," said the young joker of the family, "the cyclone makes the house fly, the blacksmith makes the fire fly, the jockey makes the horse fly, and I heard you tell pa at supper last night that us children make the butter fly."

Money doesn't make a fool of a man. It merely gives him an opportunity to display his natural talents.

Not so many would tell how to run the government if the government didn't have so much to run.

Cinderella.
"Let's go."
"But you don't know how this play is going to end."
"The Dickens I don't! Didn't the heroine appear in the first act in a shabby gown and didn't a lot of disagreeable people impose on her and order her around in a way that almost made you blood boil?"
"Yes."
"She'll be a fine lady in the last act."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

A Social Deprivation.
Doctor—No, you'll not be able to leave the house for a week at least.
She—Oh, dear! Then I shall see Emily married! I've missed two of her weddings already, and it may be months before she's married again!—Judge.

Too Polite.
"Colonel, do you remember the time you proposed to me and I refused you?"
"Madam, it is the one moment in my life that I remember with the greatest pleasure."
"I have done only one sensible thing in my life; to cultivate the ground."—Voltaire.

WHY?

ARE THERE MORE BALD MEN THAN WOMEN?

BALDNESS, or loss of hair, is usually caused by lack of care for the hair or scalp. Although the majority of people do not realize it, it is as necessary for the hair to have sufficient air and good circulation of the blood as it is for the body. Both must "breathe" and both must be supplied with blood to carry off impurities. In the use of the hair, the blood is, of course, supplied through the tiny veins which are situated around the roots of the hair and any

The Old Carriage Maker Had an Important Truth

"To make each part as strong as the rest," was his way of "building a wonderful, one-horse chaise that wouldn't wear out till judgment day."

This illustrates a fact that is keeping many doctors busy these days—human bodies, like chaises, break down because some part isn't as strong as the others.

Very often it's because of ill-balanced food, lacking in some important element of nutrition. This is especially true of ills developed in childhood, and carried on through life.

Grape-Nuts, that world-famous, ready-to-eat cereal, brings the plan of building each part as strong as the rest—to serve human need. Grape-Nuts contains all the nutriment of those best of the field grains, wheat and barley, including the vital mineral elements, and it is a wonderful food for building and sustaining health and strength.

The delicious flavor and crispness of Grape-Nuts make it a welcome dish whenever you're hungry.

Longer Skirts; Garments Loose

One look at the women who represent the newer modes of dress is convincing proof that the longer silhouette is at last a part of our daily existence, says a fashion writer in the New York Times. There is the greatest divergence in the designs and the lengths of the costumes seen upon the street. But where smart women gather one sees the longer skirt, the obviously bloused waist and the flowing sleeves. Not one of these newer attributes appears alone, but all of them together.

The frocks are an amalgamation of long lines. The smarter ones pile length upon length, and they are so full and ample in proportion, though with drooping lines, that they almost guarantee a straight silhouette to the "widest" woman.

At the "street fair," in the restaurants, private parties—at all of these places the longer silhouette predominates. The short skirt for suits—that is, the conservatively short skirt—still holds good, as it should, in the matter of practicality and good sense. But for her more formal dress, for her more picturesque attire, the modern woman has elected, this season, to be "floppy" in line, full as to material and graceful in the vision that she presents to the world.

Flappers Cling to Short Skirts.

Only the so-called "flappers" are indulging in the ultra-short skirts, and even these begin to look a trifle exaggerated. Their skirts are almost too short, though they still go as part of the general scene. In the fall they probably will be relegated to the background and a more middle-distance point of view as to skirt length will have seized upon even this generation.

There are numbers of capes. There are more long coats. Everything is as loose as it can well be to retain any line at all. The lines really converge into one another, making a series of drooping cascades that become as one, so well thought out is the process.

A good example of the silk cape dress is made of one of those heavily ribbed white silks of which there are any number upon the market today. Of course there must be some relief to the general background of white, and this result has been achieved by the use of steel and red beads embroidered in an all-over design on the top portion of the gown. Then the embroidery is repeated in a fine line about the standing collar of the cape, and the shirring that gives the fullness to the lines of the wrap is further held in place by silken threads of the same coloring.

Some of the very latest last-word dresses seem to be making an attempt to heighten the waistline. That is, those from Paris give hints in this direction. The dress that is slightly visible under this cape is an example of that sort. Although the waistline is a trifle higher than most of those that we have been accustomed to see, it still is conspicuous. In order to make it stand out to the utmost of its powers, there has been placed in the direct center a rosette made up of the same colors as the embroidery. This adds a good deal to the effect of the general design and at the same time serves to establish a new point for the ending of the waistline. Whether this will remain as an accepted thing is yet to be decided. In the interval, it establishes a new line of thought which may carry us on to undiscovered paths.

Silk for Midsummer Frock.
Silk is the fabric for the midsummer dress, and more excellent things are being done with silk in the matter of design than ever have been done in the handling of that material. There are dresses of crepe and taffeta which are lovely to behold. There are silk capes and silk coats and silk hats. In fact, there is no part of the realm of dress where silk has not taken the stand of being the leading fabric and where it has not successfully maintained that lead.

A long coat of heavy crepe silk has been trimmed with monkey fur. But more original, and to some minds more beautiful, is the idea of trimming a heavy silk material with a big, rolling collar of chenille. This has been well done in a long cape coat of exceptionally good line, which had a low set draped belt at the back and long, loose sleeves, to which was added the cape effect that stretched across the back. The chenille collar had long tassels which hung down the back when the collar was draped about the throat.

Another smart costume made of black heavy crepe has appeared, trimmed with silver in Chinese design, with a high collar which served to carry out the prevalent Russian effect. This may seem like too much of a combination of ideas, but the ultimate effect was charming.

Chinese embroidery is appearing on many of the modern gowns in unexpected ways. For instance, there was a frock of soft serge. It had around the sleeves a band of vermilion and yellow Chinese embroidery near the elbows. From these bands hung long and loose sleeve panels which flopped about. Across the front of the bodice and supporting a long front skirt panel there was another band of the same Chinese embroidery, and these little spots of red did a great deal toward giving snap to the dress.

The short cape deserves mention, for many of them are bedecking women who, in past seasons, would have scorned capes as being out of their style. It is astonishing how all sorts and conditions have taken to the cape this season. Most of the smarter short capes are loose and flowing at the back, and in the front they cross or fasten into the belt in some way or other. A short coat that can be worn with little dresses or over the separate skirt has a straight and loose back and front with very wide, hanging sleeves and invisible fastenings. This is made in a light-weight duvetyne that is called summer duvetyne and in a dull almond, green. Over a plaid silk dress it looks particularly well, for this is a combination that is much favored by the French, and that is bound to achieve much success here.

Cloaks Things of Beauty.

The summer cloaks, made regardless of any dresses designed to go with them, are unlike any of their predecessors. They are things of beauty, but at the same time intended as a protection from wind and weather. Certain voluminous gray-blue coats suggest the cloaks of an Italian officer, or there is the cape plaited or gathered into a deep shoulder yoke, which is often a combina-

Ing and undressing to their heart's content.

But vacation, to most of us mortals, means a sight-seeing journey, a visit to the country, or perhaps a retreat to the wilderness, and gladly we leave behind us everything that will not be positively needed.

When the wardrobe is brought down to the irreducible minimum, the tailored suit is its main dependence. Wherever we go the suit goes too, together with blouses, and one may choose a street or sports model for traveling and general vacationing. Examples of these two styles are shown tion of satin and gabardine, either gray and beige or black, or navy blue and black, the yoke and the collar being of satin and the rest of gabardine.

Another style shows flat flounces of gabardine or satin, the flounces graduated, with a wide one at the hem and narrower ones making their way up the expanse of the wrap.

For traveling the shepherd's plaid coat or cloak is common. It is likely to be trimmed with some brilliant bit of kid, either white, green or cherry colored.

An afternoon dress of dark blue serge, made with many points of the newer and more exclusively accepted styles, keeps to that conservative appearance much desired among a large class of women.

"What Shall I Take Along?" Cool Frocks for Summer

THE question that looms up for settlement, now that vacation days are here, is: "What Shall I Take Along?" The average woman has learned the mental and physical refreshment that follow her little summer journeyings and will not allow herself to be burdened with a lot of "things." Besides, the clothes of today are far from bulky and one can go very well equipped and still travel light with no cumbersome luggage.

Some fair vacationists appear to enjoy, above all things, going on dress parade, and there are plenty of places where they can spend their days dress-for the plaited skirt. The coat has only one fastening, at the neck, but is provided with a narrow belt with short hanging ends. Either of these suits, or both of them, will serve for nearly every need of the tourist.

Midsummer calls out, along with satin butterflies and gauze-winged dragon flies, the sheerest and loveliest afternoon dresses that grace the year. They are scattered everywhere, for women find an opportunity in these airy fabrics to indulge their inborn love of daintiness and color.

For several seasons past, as manufacturers have broadcast adorably pretty frocks of organdie, swiss, voile and other sheer materials, they have stimulated a demand for them that is now universal.

Two Clever Models in Tailored Suits.

As the days grow hot, color combinations that are cool-looking come to the fore in these thin dresses. Two of them, as shown here, reveal this bit of welcome artistry on the part of the designers. White organdie and dark blue swiss, dotted with white, is a familiar and well-loved combination—an old friend in a new guise, which appears in the dress at the left of the picture. The dress is made of the swiss with apron overskirt, collar, cuffs and sash of organdie, appliqued and banded.

here. The dark blue model, trimmed with braid, as pictured in the foreground, is a piece of original and good designing. Its short loose coat, with long revers at the front, fastens with three buttons below the waistline and looks very cool. The skirt is plain and short enough to suit the most seasoned globe-trotter. Navy blue twill is a perennial favorite and vindicates its choice everywhere. In the other suit a plain homespun makes the sleeveless coat with a cape, bound with a striped material which is used

To The Friends and Patrons of the Parkhurst Insurance Agency, Greetings:

We wish again to thank you for your co-operation and wish it was possible for us to write each a personal letter. We wish to thank our two banks, each stockholder, and each employee for their financial support, making it possible for us to continue our business where otherwise we would have failed. We wish also to express our gratitude to the Business people and the Citizens of Tahoka for the honor they bestowed upon us in trusting their business to our care. Nor could we close without thanking the Farmers (one of whom we consider ourselves, having been reared mostly on the farm), for their liberal business. And also to our ranchmen, and to each one that has in any way made life's pathway brighter we extend our deepest gratitude.

Now, we wish to introduce to you, Mr. J. B. Lowrie, who will take charge of the Agency. Mr. Lowrie is an experienced Insurance man and knows the business from all angles. He will be able to give you far better service than the agent that has to learn the business as he goes, as it has been with us. We think we have done the town and county one good deed by turning our Agency to a man that knows. Mr. Lowrie has an office in room No. 4, over the First National Bank; he will be glad to talk over any kind of Insurance problems with you. He will specialize on service and will see that no policy expires without Assured being protected with a new policy, whether he is at home or away.

The heaviest rain of the season fell here Saturday morning, July 1. In some places the precipitation was said to be six inches.

Miss Obera Forrester spent the week end with Miss Leola Shelton of the Dixie community.

Mr. Glass and family left Saturday for Brownwood. He has been working on the school building, and has the work underway now so he can leave it and goes to Nacogdoches to begin work on the new Normal building there.

Fourth of July was celebrated in our town with a community picnic. Rev. J. T. McKissick preached in the forenoon, after which the crowd repaired to the new school building, where they spread dinner and partook of the good eats that Wilson is noted for. Then there was singing at the church house in the afternoon and preaching at night.

Rev. J. T. McKissick and daughter Miss Florence, are visiting in the home of J. T. Williams this week.

J. E. Richardson and family have moved back to their home in the north part of town, and Mrs. Nina Wilson has charge of the hotel.
