Two Persons Die When Vehicles Collide At Highway Intersection Thursday Night

Two persons died Thursday, May 29 as a result of a two-car accident at the intersection of US 87 and FR 211, 10.9 miles north of Tahoka. The wreck happened at 9:30 p. m.

Michael J. Kelley III was pronounced dead on arrival at Methodist Hospital. George Edward Ashburn, Meadow, died shortly after arriving at Methodist, as a result of internal injuries.

Kelley, an airman stationed at Reese AFB, originally of New Jersey, was driver of a 1968 Rambler, traveling south on US 87, when it struck the 1966 Buick driven by George Ashburn of Meadow. The Buick apparently was traveling north in the northbound lane of US 87 and made a left turn at the intersection.

The Buick then proceeded across the southbound lane and was struck in the right-front fender. After impact, it skidded down the highway, turning around once and coming to rest in the southbound lane, headed northeast. The Rambler skidded south in the lane, striking a culvert and overturned one time. It came to rest in the ditch east of the roadway, sitting upright, facing the north.

Both drivers and passenger in the Buick, Tommie E. Ashburn were transported to Methodist Hospital by White Funeral Home ambulance. Mrs. Ashburn is still in critical condition.

Investigating patrolmen stress that this is the second fatal accident in the county for 1969, resulting in three persons killed, and urge all persons to drive carefully. They need to watch out for the other driver so as not to exceed the 1968 total of six fatal accidents with seven persons killed.

Also, the troopers express their thanks to all persons at the accident scene for their help and cooperation. "We noticed and are proud of the fact that Lynn County drivers were alert and patient while we were in the process of investigation."

June 3, 1969, a 1968 Pontiac sedan, driven by George B. McAllister of Lubbock was struck by a 1967 Ford truck driven by Murry Lawrence Lusk, Lubbock, at the intersection of FR 211 and FR 1730 in New Home.

The accident occurred at 8:30 a. m. when the Lusk vehicle, traveling west on FR 211 struck the Pontiac, traveling south on FR 1730. The intersection is marked with a flashing red signal and stop sign. Driver of the Pontiac started into the traffic lane of the Ford when the accident occurred.

Both drivers escaped injury. Damage was heavy to the Pontiac and light damage to the truck.

DRIVERS of the pictured vehicles, were killed Thursday night at the intersection of U. S. 87-FR 211 north of Tahoka. One passenger in critical conditions is hospitalized. NEWS Photo

Linda Huffaker,
CHD Agent,
Says.....

Spectacular skewer cookery delights guests. Let each person construct and grill his own kabob, suggests Linda.

Make kabobs by alternating chunks of food on skewers. Use meat and vegetables which will cook at the same time. This may mean some vegetables, such as potatoes and onions, have to be cooked partially.

Or give each vegetable its own skewer as each can cook the right time.

Before broiling, season with salt and pepper and brush with barbecue sauce or melted butter and lemon juice. Chunks of meat will cook faster and more evenly if they are not crowded.

To serve, point skewer down and slip the food onto the plate, platter or a hot roll.

Linda suggests interesting kabob combinations:

- Franks, canned pineapple, or apple chunks, bacon squares.
- Luncheon meat, pineapple, banana chunks.
- Ground lamb shoulder, tomatoes, green pepper, onion.
- Beef steak, mushrooms, sliced onions.
- Luncheon meat, quartered tomatoes, small cooked onions.
- Chicken livers, small bacon squares, mushrooms.

Bill Griffin,
County Agent,
Says.....

Weather conditions over the past several weeks haven't been the most favorable for buildups of several insect pests.

Among the pests are corn leaf aphid, yellow sugarcane aphid and greenbug. Populations have increased in many areas of the state until damage is being done to the young grain sorghum plants.

The corn leaf aphid has been around for a long time, notes Griffin and is not particularly damaging insect. Control measures are seldom required, but heavy infestations on very small sorghum, from emergence to about 3-4 inches in height, or heavy whorl infestation just prior to booting or heavy head infestations prior to harvest can be serious enough to warrant control. But greenbugs and the yellow sugarcane aphids are something else, says the county agent.

Both, he adds, are capable of causing extensive damage as experienced last year in different sectors of the state. Because of possible damage to grain sorghum, the county agent suggests that producers who find insects in their fields contact him so positive identification of the insects can be made.

The scholarship entitles the recipient to attend any college of his choice with fees paid for one year. Mike was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luke Coleman of Rt. 2, Wilson.

Teaching Someone to Drive

On the day Margaret got a learner's permit, her boy friend Fred took her out for a driving lesson. As they approached another car, waiting at a stop light, Margaret suddenly "froze." Worse, so did Fred.

Result: a collision, with considerable damage to the other car. In due course, the driver filed a damage suit against Fred.

"I'm not liable," Fred protested in court. "A driving teacher does not guarantee that his pupil will drive carefully."

Nevertheless, the court held him liable—not for Margaret's bad driving but for his own bad teaching. The judge said Fred should have made some effort, either by word or gesture, to avert the crash.

According to law, if you take on the responsibility of teaching someone to drive, you also take on the responsibility of doing so with reasonable care.

However, the law does recognize that a teacher's control has practical limits. In another case, after the driving lesson was supposed to be over, the pupil—acting on impulse—started the car again and jerked forward. The teacher shouted a warning and pulled the emergency brake, but not quickly enough to avoid hitting a pedestrian.

This time a court ruled that, while the teacher did have a special responsibility, he had fulfilled that responsibility by his efforts.

Nor are you held to a teacher's responsibility if you do not, in fact, occupy that role. Thus: When an accident resulted from the improper parking of a car by the roadside, a claim was filed not only against the driver of the car but also against his passenger. It seems that, while the driver was parking the car, the passenger had remarked:

"There, I think you are far enough off the road."

But the court ruled that the passenger could not be held liable for merely giving bad advice. The judge said the occupant of a car does not take over the role—and the responsibility—of a teacher, just by trying to be helpful.

Riddle of the Trunk

Writing her own will, an elderly widow made the following bequest to a neighbor:

"My clothing and the trunk in which it is stored."

But after the widow's death, her trunk was found to contain not only clothing but some valuable jewels as well. Should the jewels go to the neighbor, along with the trunk? After a legal battle, the court finally decided they should not—awarding them instead to the widow's surviving relatives.

The case illustrates how much uncertainty can be wrapped up in words that, at first glance, seem perfectly clear. Literally hundreds of homemade wills have led to lawsuits because of phrases like "the papers in my bottom desk drawer," "the contents of the large pink envelope," or "all the furniture in the basement."

Suppose the language of the will is plain enough in identifying both the container and the contents. Nevertheless, a matter of timing may still raise formidable problems.

Does "everything in my wall safe" mean what was in the safe when the person wrote the will—or what was in the safe when he died, perhaps years later? It would not be unusual for him to put in additional items during the intervening period.

Most courts have decided, in such circumstances, to include

L. D. (Don) Anderson, Crosby County cotton farmer and second-year president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., will leave the U. S. from New York May 31 to attend the annual meeting of the International Cotton Advisory Committee in Kampala, Uganda, Africa. The meeting is set for June 2 through June 11.

The ICAC is an association of 42 countries interested in the production, export, import and consumption of cotton. Literally a "world parliament on cotton," it is designed to promote cooperation in the solution of cotton's problems, especially those of international scope and significance.

Anderson was chosen to serve as the cotton producer advisor to the official U. S. delegation by Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin. Also represented on the U. S. delegation will be other segments of the cotton industry and the departments of Agriculture, State and Commerce.

His trip was authorized by the PCG Board of Directors at its meeting May 5 and will be combined with cotton production studies in three African countries and three other "nearby" countries. It will also include market visits to Hong Kong and Japan. The trip is a part of PCG's export market development efforts and will consume from 30 to 40 days, Anderson said.

This is the third time and the second successive year that the U. S. cotton producer delegate to ICAC has been a representative of Plains Cotton Growers. The organization's Executive Vice President, Donald Johnson, served in that capacity in 1968 when the meeting was conducted in Athens, Greece. In 1963, the late George Pfeifferberger, then executive officer of PCG, was the U. S. producer delegate in Bangalore, India. Anderson's cotton production studies in the various countries will be aimed at assessing their economic potential for continuing or expanding cotton production in competition with U. S. producers for world markets.

He said "It still seems a little strange to me that a West Texas cotton farmer should need to travel so far to look after his business. But sooner or later we will be forced to compete with these countries at world market prices with little or no help from government programs.

"And we need to know now whether or not we can, in fact, compete, and if so how we can best go about it."

Anderson will look at production costs and methods in the area surrounding Kampala, the Mwanza and Tabora sectors of Tanzania, and Nairobi cotton fields of Kenya, all in Africa. Leaving Africa on the return trip, other stops to study cotton production will be made in the areas near Athens, Greece; Ankara, Turkey, and in West Pakistan.

From Pakistan he will make "market calls" in Hong Kong and in Tokyo and Osaka, Japan. In these places he will concentrate on follow-up work with mill representatives who visited U. S. cotton producing areas last fall, including Lubbock, as members of a Cotton Council International trade team.

Anderson said "We made some valuable contacts with mill people in these important export markets last fall when they spent two days with us in Lubbock, and I hope to talk with these folks again to continue and broaden the favorable relationship between spinners in the Far East and West Texas cotton."

While the size of his farming operation near Crosbyton has been considerably reduced since last year, he still farms in excess of 1000 acres.

Traveling with Anderson, at his own expense, will be his 21-year-old son, Robin. Robin is a junior at Texas Tech. He is majoring in marketing and professes a special interest in international marketing.

He will work with his father in "recording" the information gained, and has also been asked by Tech President Dr. Grover Murray and Idris Traylor, Chairman of the Board of Deputy Directors for the International Center for Arid and Semi-Arid Land Studies (ICASALS), to follow up on some of the ICASALS work with people in the countries visited.

The pair will return to the U. S. in early July.

TRIUMPH OVER TROUT

There I was on the banks of Esopus Creek for the trout season's traditional opener, shivering in the feeble rays of an early morning sun and a blustering wind. The temperature was 20 degrees tops, the water was swift and roiled muddy from the spring run-off and patches of snow could be seen everywhere. A typical opener, I thought, more like a crucible which trout fishermen must endure before they're permitted good weather.

The hour and a half drive from home that morning told me I wasn't alone. It seemed every car on the road had rods strapped to roofs or perched length-wise across seat backs. Despite the elements at Esopus, the air was congenial at road side as cars parked and devotees wriggled into waders, wrestled with their tackle and ribbed one another. But no bragging — opening day often humbles the best of fishermen, sending them home cussing with empty creels.

I chose my spot on the creek and with numbed hands began casting up stream with a Mitchell 300C spinning reel balanced on a Conolta Brown 2508 light-action, fast-taper 6 1/2-foot rod. In the cold, muddy water you've got to put a lure down there brightly under a trout's nose. I was using a deep running quarter-ounce spoon on 6-pound mono and not hurrying the retrieve because in this water the trout's sluggish swimmer and doesn't fire out for his food.

The strike came on the sixth cast, just as the lure was swept down in the current abreast of me on the bank. First of the season, and with the sight and sound of line running out and a tugging in my clenched hands the exhilaration of renewing battle with muscular, hard-swimming trout swept over me like a warming breeze. The apprehension of coming away empty this day was gone, and I fastened my attention on the opaque water where the line was disappearing. Short, strong darting runs then a leap—revealing the spotted bluish body of a 15-inch rainbow. Beautiful. In minutes, I was lifting his dripping body from the water and lowering him into the creel.

I went back to work with the spoon, but after a dozen casts and no strikes the thrill of the first rainbow receded and I switched to a night crawler with split shot attached to the leader to play the bottom for the hideouts. In the next hour, I was rewarded with two stubborn sulkers — 15 and 16-inch browns — who ran and fought until they were netted.

While you played a fish you forgot the cold, but in between fish the warmth drained from your body in no time. I retreated to the top of the bank for the thermos of warm coffee. The warmth through the cup brought life back into my clutched hands and the coffee worked its own warming magic from within.

Thus warmed and fortified, I scampered back down the bank to the muddy Esopus with renewed hope and a deadly Abu Reflex lure. It was a good choice. I made three or four long casts, got a bumping on the last one and came right back. The rod tip bowed and I began lifting and cranking — a very good hit, I thought. But, wait, he was leaping — a tough little eight-inch rainbow. I reeled him in and released him. In the next hour the day got bleaker and the Esopus muddier and more reluctant than ever to give up its fish — not another nibble for me.

It was time to leave, and I wasn't disappointed. A rainbow and two browns on opening day — now if I could just keep from bragging to those fellows putting up their tackle.

THE PHILOSOPHER

Scientific Proposal

(Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm thinks he has a method of finding out if life is possible on the moon, his letter this week claims.)

Dear editor:

Like nearly everybody else, I guess I followed the astronauts to the moon last week and am now convinced we can actually put a man on it this summer if the money doesn't run out, but a phase of the project has been bothering me since I read an item in a newspaper day before yesterday.

According to it, great precautions are going to be taken to keep the moon-landing astronauts from picking up possible moon germs and bringing them back to earth.

When they get back with their 30-billion dollars worth of rocks and soil samples, the astronauts as I understand it, as soon as they splash down in the ocean, will be sealed with their loot inside germ-proof bags and, untouched by human hands, flown to their base and let out in a germ-proof room for a few weeks, so that if any moon germs have been picked up they'll die before they get a chance to take hold on earth.

This is no doubt a good idea, certainly we've got all the germs we need on earth now, but I was just thinking: What precautions are we taking not to get any earth germs started on the moon?

Here we've got an unspoiled object that's been floating around up there for centuries and you let an astronaut with a head cold step out and the first rattle out of the box sneeze, and the moon will never be the same again.

Of course if there's no life on the moon and no possibility of any, then no harm will be done, but how do we know something can't grow up there?

This is a question that ought to be answered and I'm proposing a scientific experiment to find out.

All the space scientists have to do is shoot a small rocket full of Johnson grass seed up there, and if that stuff doesn't take root and grow in 30 days, you know the moon is eternally barren.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

CARDS OF THANKS

I hardly know how to begin, as words are to unique for all the things done during my recent surgery and stay in the Methodist Hospital and since I've been home.

First, thanks for the many prayers in my behalf, to the ministers who came while I was in the hospital and since I've been home, all others who visited, also to those who made phone calls of my concern, both there and here, and for the flowers sent and brought.

The many cards and letters received, the large card from "Postex Mill" with so many names signed meant lots, the gifts, encouraging words, to those who asked from time to time, how I was doing. For all the good food brought and sent since we have been home. For my doctor's skill and the nurses not forgetting one needle or pill. When you get down, I hope people are as wonderful to you, as they have been to us. Sincerely thanks, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Henry

We would like to take this opportunity to thank each of you for every expression of sympathy extended to us during the loss of our loved one. You were so gracious in showing how much you loved him to, by the beautiful flowers, the lovely cards, the food you prepared and most of all, the prayers you prayed in his behalf in the months during his illness. May God's richest blessings be with each of you. The family of Jarrell H. Thurman

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Of Beauticians and Barbers

In the average visit to a beauty shop or barber shop, the customer's greatest risk is a curl that won't stay put or a botched sideburn.

But occasionally the hazard may be more serious. Injury may be done not just to the customer's vanity but to his person. When that happens, the law may be called upon to fix responsibility for the harm.

The general rule is that, by opening its doors to the public, a shop promises the kind of service provided by "a reasonably prudent and skillful person engaged in the same business." If its service falls below that standard, the proprietor may be held liable for the consequences. For example:

A woman collected damages from a beauty shop because the operator, washing her hair, doused her head with scalding water.

And in another case, a woman won damages for a skin infection resulting from a facial treatment given without the proper sanitary precautions.

This standard of quality applies not only to the service rendered but also to the equipment used and the condition of the premises. Thus, a woman successfully sued a beauty shop on the basis of a soapy puddle on the floor which caused her to slip, fall, and suffer assorted injuries.

Nevertheless, the management is not held to an ironclad guarantee of safety. If an accident was not reasonably avoidable, the law will not impose liability.

Accordingly, a woman who stumbled while getting out of a chair was denied damages from the beauty shop where it occurred. The judge could see no way the management could fairly be blamed for such a mishap.

In one famous case, a barber wiped his razor against the disposable tissue lying on the customer's stomach. By coincidence, the razor happened to touch an ultra-ticklish spot. The customer yelped, grabbed instinctively, and closed his hand on the razor.

Badly cut, he sued the barber for triggering this woeful chain of events. But the court, unconvinced, turned down his claim. The judge said:

"The plaintiff at most shows a pure accident. In the nature of things, a similar misfortune will not happen again in many a moon."
