"BEWITCHED MULE" AMUCK WENT DEEPLY INTO DETAILS

Breaks Down Front Door of a House and Smashes Up the Furniture.

Spartanburg, S. C .- Aroused from their slumber at three o'clock the Harlem bank, at a dinner recently told other morning by a furious battering the following anecdote: Many years on the front door, Charles Chapman. a farmer of near here, and the mem- city in the upper part of the state, he hers of his family had no sooner arisen from their beds than the door fell there he saw a severe-looking woman in with a crash. With a snort Mr. Chapman's mule plunged into the request that a small check be cashed. room and cavorted around. The mule She asked the man in the cage to lunged and pitched about the house. call up the person from whom she had letting fly his heels and kicking furniture into smithereens. The little tify her. children of Mr. Chapman were in constant danger of being struck by the iron-shod hoofs of the rabid beast,

After the family were removed in their night clothing into the frosty the world. She was dressed in the open. Chapman made a desperate attempt to capture the animal. Failing in every attempt, he got his shotgun. At the first shot the mule gave a bellow and plunged about like a whale struck with a harpoon. The fifth shot dispatched the animal.

At daybreak neighbors were summoned and helped drag the carcass out of the Chapman parlor. The mule is said to have been bewitched by a negro "cunjur doctor," who had a grudge against Mr. Chapman.

Perpetual pensioners are to be found In France as well as in this country. August 21, 1755, the dauphin, son of Louis XV., when out rabbeting, accidentally shot Yves de la Boissiere, one of his suite. As a compensation a pension of £240 was conferred on Poissiere, with remainder to his heirs in perpetuity. Despite the many changes in the form of government, this pension has been paid ever since, and no member of the budget committime has ever suggested stopping it.-London Chronicle.

Something to Think About.

Laurence D'Orsay is teiling of a time when a brother comedian and himself were comparing the size of their respective chests and biceps in was practically on the free list, but D'Orsay's dressing-room one evening. "Feel the muscles of my neck," D'Or-"Put your fingers around my Eay said. throat." The other gripped D'Orsay's throat while the latter set his teeth and contracted all the muscles. He seemed much impressed by the display, and D'Orsay says he expected some compliment to his muscular development. All the other said, however. w25, "D'Orsay, they will have a na'am," answered the doctor, gently, ----

The teller called up the man and asked him to describe the woman. He did so in the following manner: "She looked like the crankiest person in fashion of about five years ago. I think she is an old cat. She wore a blue straw hat, but then it may be green, and I think she paints. She wore two fake diamond rings. Goodby, old man."

Tree-Bark Blankets,

They have trees for blankets in Ecuador, and they like them, too. They are foud of the firm touch of the bark against them as they sleep.

We would probably think they were "zero in covering," and we would doubtless wake up in a much bestiffened condition if we slept under a wood covering.

But the native Indians are most enthusiastic, according to J. Jamea traveler and lecturer, who SOB, recently returned from those has parts.

The blankets are made from the bark of a tree which is cut particularly thin. It is pounded and moistened and then pounded some more and put out into the sun to dry. And a most desirable and economical blanket it is, lasting anywheres from two to five vears.

Editor News:

In compliance with our promise, we will endeavor to give your readers a brief sketch of our recent trip to College Station and a few of the wayside scenes as viewed from the car window.

Most of your local readers are familiar with the schedule of our local steam horse and the long "rest" of the wayfairing man in our neighboring town of Slaton. But the old adage that, "Time and tide waits for no man," was true in this instance and the long longed to stand by her grave ance looked for "south bound" came more and view the ground made puffing up to the depot and soon hallowed by her memory, but we our better half and self were being must hasten ou and not dwell upon whirled away from the "waving the sacred scenes of those other grain and pastures green."
