Near 100 Tahokaites at Plainview

A large delegation of Tahoka men and women, left at 10 o'clock Monday morning for the city of Plainview to attend at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, which convened Tuesday and Wednesday. The local delegation was accompanied by a band of 15 members from Fort Worth, which arrived here Sunday morning. The delegation attracted more attention than any of the twenty-five bands in attendance.

On the arrival of the delegation in Plainview a parade was headed by the band who were mounted on an especially constructed band wagon made for the occasion. Flowing banners and hat bands advertised the little city as "The Axle of the South Plains".

Judge G. E. Lockhart, of this city, who was boosted for vice president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, was elected third on the ballot.

A. B. Spencer, prominent banker of Crosbyton, was elected president.

Mr. Angelo was selected as the next meeting place for the convention. Brownwood was a strong contender and was second. Tahoka cast their vote for Mr. Angelo. The election was held in the new municipal building during the banquet Tuesday night. More than fifteen hundred delegates were dined in the building at one time.

Tahoka maintained headquarters at the McMillan Drug Company during the convention. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce now numbers 6,324 members and Tahoka is represented with 75 members in this organization, now recognized as the largest of the kind in America.

The following dispatches appeared in the daily papers relative to Tahoka attending the convention:

The Tahoka delegates came next with about fifty automobiles. They advertised "The Axle of the Plains." some two hundred delegates and visitors are here from Tahoka."—Plainview Evening Herald.

A riot of laughter and applause greeted the Tahoka delegation when it marched in, headed by a jazz band of old fashioned chocolate colored negroes who played the "Wabash Blues" while the conventions proceedings were stopped.—Ft. Worth Star Telegram.

Mrs. Ida Chitwood made the nominating speech for that city and Judge B. P. Maddox, of Tahoka, made the seconding speech.—Amarillo News.

Besides the bands mentioned, there was a colored orchestra with the Tahoka delegation and the Canton Drum Corps from Amarillo here to attend the convention.—Plainview Herald.

A Negro jazz band from Ft. Worth accompanied the Tahoka delegation. They had plenty of pep and turned out more real jazz than any other band. "Tahoka, the Axle of the Plains," is that city's official slogan.—Plainview Herald.

The Plainview Elks lodge entertained visiting Elks with their ladies last night with a dance at their home. The music was furnished by the colored orchestra from Tahoka.—Plainview Evening Herald.

Judge Maddox, president of the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce, is in receipt of a telegram from the San Angelo chamber which stated in part to bring all Tahoka to Angelo next year.

Good Music Made Popular.

The Ben Nak Trio, appearing both afternoon and evening of the second day, will register with all classes of music lovers. They will play selections from opera and enact them as well. They will also do popular numbers and enact them in the same clever manner. They realize that Chautauqua is a place where people gather for a common interest, that is better entertainment. They will endeavor to do everything just a little better than it is ordinarily done. Real singers and players, playing and singing the songs you love to hear.

C. F. Schrum Shot Saturday

C. F. Schrum, who was shot last Saturday on his farm just over the Lynn county line in Dawson county, is reported to have a fair chance for recovery.

Schrum was shot in the back with a .25 caliber automatic pistol, the bullet puncturing his intestines in several places, according to reports received here.

Austin Campbell, a neighbor, is in jail pending an investigation.

It has not been learned for certain the cause of the difficulty.

LAKEVIEW COMMUNITY GIVES PICNIC FRIDAY

The progressive and prosperous citizens of the Lakeview community, gave a picnic and program last Friday and a good sized crowd from Tahoka attended the celebration, especially was there a good representation of the candidate crop.

Jack White acted as chairman of the festivities. The program began at 12 o'clock noon, with a sumptuous feast, consisting of all the good things known to the inner man.

A couple of songs by the school children, led by Mrs. A. L. Nettles, the teacher, assisted by Mr. White, the principal, was a rare treat enjoyed by the large throngs of people.

Then the county candidates were allowed to explode. Among those present was Prof. C. W. Roberts, candidate for Representative, who delivered a very able address in behalf of his candidacy.

Messrs. F. E. Redwine and E. S. Davis are looking after business matters in Central Texas this week.

Our fellow townsman, W. J. Crouch suffered a painful injury last week, when he was hit on the top of the head by a falling brick, while working on the Brashear residence under construction in the north part of the city.

Mr. Crouch was working on the lower floor, when a workman above accidentally dropped the brick, striking Mr. Crouch squarely on top of the head and inflicting an ugly wound. It was fortunate that the lick did not result more seriously, as he was only slightly stunned by the blow, and continued at his work.

Mrs. E. H. Cunningham left for Abilene Wednesday to visit with her daughter, Miss Nora, who is attending the National Business college in that city.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES HELD FRIDAY EVENING

The commencement exercises of the Tahoka High School was held in the District Court room last Friday evening, and a very interesting and instructive program was rendered.

The graduating class consisted of three young ladies and one young man as follows: Misses Mary and Montie Slater and Montie Draper, and Mr. Conrad Lam.

A large chorus under the direction of Mrs. Frank H. Weaver rendered several selections which was probably the best singing ever heard in Tahoka.

The chorus spent several weeks making special preparations for this special occasion, and their services were indeed appreciated by the large audience that filled the court room and galleries to capacity.

Miss Montie Slater delivered the salutatory, entitled, "We are about to Salute You."

Miss Montie Draper gave the class prophecy, and Miss Mary Slater the Class Will. A piano solo was rendered by Miss Lola Donaldson, teacher of music in the Close City school. Mr. Conrad Lam delivered the Valedictory on "The Value of a College Education."

The audience and graduating class were favored with a splendid address by Dr. J. W. Donald, of Wayland College, Plainview.

Dr. C. B. Townes of this city presented the diplomas. Dr. Townes was selected to take the place of Judge G. E. Lockhart, who was on the program for this part, but was unexpectedly called out of town.

The Seventh grade pupils rendered a program at the First Baptist church Friday afternoon. A large crowd of school patrons were present.

A. J. EDWARDS HAVING FINE RESIDENCE ERECTED

A. J. Edwards has begun the construction of a two-story airplane bungalow in North Tahoka, and when finished will be among the nicest and most convenient dwellings in the city. Mr. Edwards and family recently moved to Abilene, but Tahoka and Lynn county looked too good to them and they are returning here to make their home. Their many friends and acquaintances are glad to welcome them back among us.

Boost Your Home Town Community

The Tahoka Chamber of Commerce Offers Splendid Suggestions About How to Make Your Town and Community a Better and More Prosperous Town and Community.

The success of a community, its upbuilding, moral atmosphere and well being can be no higher than the ideals of its citizenship. Each individual has a responsibility in shaping the ideals of the community in which their lot has been cast.

Divided in feeling, without loyalty, living a selfish life and doing no more than just what the law requires of you, will never make a prosperous and happy community, will never build a city, will never make it possible for you or your children to enjoy the pleasures of a well-ordered and furnished home, will be the cause of the children growing to manhood and womanhood without ambition, for there can be no ambition without ideals.

Being much interested in the betterment, upbuilding and ultimate destiny of our city and community we want to tell you what observation and study of civics, city and community building has taught us as being essential if we would have our surroundings what they should be, and what we as a citizenship are entitled to.

No man or woman has the right to shirk their moral responsibility, but are in duty bound to work for every cause that has to do with civic betterment, community welfare and moral upbuilding.

Remember the shaping of your environment, the success of your business be what it may, devolves on you. You can only hope to reach the pinnacle of success as those around you successful, your merchant, your bankers and the other business men make your market.

As the business of a city grows, competition makes your markets better, gives you greater outlet for what you produce, makes it possible to sell at the best price what you raise.

This being the case, you are entitled to give your market builders, your home builders the fullest support and encouragement.

Keep your money at home. Spent with your local merchants it comes back to you, helps build your schools, your churches, your roads. Every penny spent at home adds to the value of your holdings, both community and personal. Each dollar that you produce and spend with your local merchants will find its way back to you. Not so if sent away to build for others, it never finds its way back; it will never again buy what you have to sell; its power for building your community is forever gone.

Look these issues squarely in the face. Do not be a shirker. Give if you would take. Sow if you would reap. Apply the Golden Rule. HELP BUILD FOR YOUR COMMUNITY, for your community will help build you.

Tailored Suits Have the Call

Three-Piece Outfits Are in the Limelight of Paris Fashions, Correspondent Says.

COATS SHORT AND YOUTHFUL

Abbreviated Garments Provided to Make Women Appear Young—Jacket Looks Like the Blousing Bodice of Dress.

The one-piece dress, like Tennyson's brook, might have gone on forever, writes a Paris fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune, had not the tailors of the world suddenly discovered that the way to secure a large part of the business going to the dress-maker was to make suits and coats with the allure of the one-piece cloth dress; that is to say, the severe lines of the tailored suit of other days must give place to soft drapery, and the strictly tailored coat, when used, must be short and youthful in appearance, for women desire, above all things, to have their clothes make them appear young. The chemise dress did this. Some of the most successful models might have made suitable frocks for little girls.

The tailored suit has been in the height of fashion since prewar days until this season. Such great finesse have tailors shown in this that it has come to pass that the three-piece suit is now the high light of fashion—a thing which no one believed would ever happen again.

Dog Collar Belt of Badger Hair. Even O'Rossen, the tailor, of the Place Vendome, in Paris, who made himself famous almost over night by means of his severely tailored gray suit, has changed his tactics and is now featuring suits with short graceful jackets blousing over a low-placed waistline. He has completely forsaken gray—the color which precipitated him into the limelight—and now uses the soft sand shades. The materials which he favors are English woolsens, serges and tricotines.

It is quite remarkable how coquettish are some of the street coats for spring. Designers have obviously endeavored to make them as becoming as possible that they, too, might rival the very smart one-piece wool dress.

Typical of models of this sort is a coat developed in a brilliant brownish red cloth and trimmed with threadings of black taffeta cut in bias points. This model has the Madeleine Vionnet circular swing and cup-shaped collar standing erect. The floating ends of taffeta are quite unusual on a cloth coat.

The marked feature of another coat is its dog collar belt, exactly like that worn by the smart and much-indulged bulldog. The belt is of raspberry red and black enamel leather bordered with bristling badger hair. The coat itself, which seems almost secondary, is in a raspberry red velours de laine embroidered in black and gray.

Hip-Length Jackets in Combinations. The jackets of the new tailored suits are notably short, some in semi-fitted styles and others with full bias swinging coat just passing the curve of the hips and hanging loose from the shoulders. Sometimes this type of model is belted, but more frequently it hangs loose from the shoulders. Among extreme novelties one often finds a coat in contrast to the skirt. Thus black satin may be combined with red cloth, navy serge with a high color foulard and serge is frequently combined with leather.

Chemise's suits are particularly interesting with their smart, full hip length jackets or the hip-length jacket which is belted. This house uses the hip yoke in many skirts—a revival of a fashion prevalent in 1908.

Many great makers, notably among them Rolande, of Paris, make a feature of the jacket which looks like the blousing bodice of a dress. Several of these are notable for their long, tight-fitting sleeves, so long that they wrinkle in order not to cover the hands.

Tailored suits made from striped materials are very interesting in their detail, transverse stripes being used in opposition to vertical ones to work out the novelty of the design.

There is a note of red on many of the new suits, a bright Chinese red being used as an embroidery, piping or belt trimming in combination with black, with navy blue, castor beige tones and gray.

An interesting feature is the crepe de chine jacket suit, the material being treated as one would use a serge.

The Winsome Black Serge Suit Embroidered in Steel and Red Beads.

All of the tailored suits are shown with most charming little blouses, some of which match, notably in the trimming, and others in distinct contrast to both material and color.

Three-Piece Suits of Two Fabrics.

Worth makes a specialty of crepe de chine three-piece suits, many of which have very fancy sleeves. He combines two materials, such as crepe marocain and crepe de chine. The sleeves, in addition to being very elaborate, are often much embroidered in beautiful combinations of color.

Jean Patou has created a great impression with his smart youthful lines, notably in suits and simple tailored and one-piece dresses. Practically all jackets are short and in distinct tailored style, many being belted like the Russian blouse. He uses lovely tweeds and other interesting materials in mixed grays. As a variety among jacket suits he has models with smart short capes. In nearly every instance a very attractive blouse accompanies the suit, this in itself being quite as much a feature as the suit.

Two materials are often combined; thus he shows one tailored model—Mephisto—with a white serge skirt and a red serge jacket. There is a full line of one-piece afternoon dresses in both wool and in silk. The navy blue serge dress is at its best in this collection. A lovely model called Parisienne is developed from Blanchini's jacquard serge, which seems to have a fine thread embroidery in white thrown to the surface on the blue serge ground.

Yellows and Reds.

Patou makes a complete showing of tailored suits, three-piece suits, afternoon dresses and evening gowns for jeunes filles. He has used perfect taste and discrimination between the youthful models and mature styles.

This house also specializes in sports clothes. Patou shows blazer suits and knitted suits of jersey cloth. He is not afraid to use color, as all his sport garments are in high tones and his youthful models in suits and dresses run toward yellow and red, with strong accent on the former.

Martial et Armand is making a big feature of the woolen tailored suit with jacket and the tailored wool dress with cape or jacket, also the robe manteau, or woolen street dress, having the appearance of a coat. The predominance of such models gives the impression of simplicity and practicality to the showing.

In view of the international interest in out-of-door sports for women Paris is showing her talent in designing novelties for this purpose. Every important house has given this subject some attention, and several houses boldly announce having opened special ateliers for the creation of tennis, golf and other sports wear garments. Knitted suits, coats and sweaters naturally have a large showing in this line, but with true Parisian originality and ingenuity many other interesting new things are shown for sports wear.

The Youthful Hat.

"Patchwork" hats in combinations of pastel or high shades, worn with the typical "flapper" tilt, are quite the rage for young girls.

BLOUSES FOR SUNNY SUMMER; LONG WRAPS FOR SPRING

A LITTLE journey through the blouse shops leaves the impression of a riot of styles, and it is respectfully suggested that the displays would be less confusing if the several types of blouses were segregated in them. The styles are broadly divided into costume blouses, tailored blouses and sports blouses, each one showing many ingenious variations.

The two blouses pictured here belong to the dressier class of suit styles and are made of crepe de chine. Blouses of this fabric and georgette, lead in demand, with white, flesh and they achieve cape effects by their draperies or their sleeves are so amplified that they contrive the flowing lines of the cape. There is nothing monotonous in the mode; with all its preference for capelike lines, it has fostered very great variety of graceful wraps that keep the streets interesting.

The most important rival of the cape appears in long, full garments, bloused below the waistline, like the model shown at the left of the picture. In this wrap the sleeves are extended into long points finished into blisque color the favorites, but they are made in many other colors, and are also worn with the dressier separate skirts. At the left a slip-over model is gathered in at the round neck and opens a little way down the front, fastening with ribbon ties. Its decorative panels may be of figured crepe or of embroidery and it has a girdele of the material, tied at the left side.

Another pretty slip-over style opens at the left side and fastens on the shoulder. It is of white, or light-colored crepe de chine, with bindings and covered buttons in a darker colored crepe. It has ingeniously simulated pockets in which a panel of the darker crepe is used, and its narrow girdele ties in a prim bow at the back.

On the dressier blouses of crepe de chine beading is still much used, crystal beads in the color of the blouse handsome tassels and they lend the admired sweeping lines to this coat. Any of the soft, lightweight coatings are used in these wraps and their linings of crepe or other silks are especially supple. It has a muffer collar which adapts it to cool weather.

The very handsome black wrap at the right of the picture is made of one of those lustrous silk crepes which grow more important as summer draws near. It is shirred to a full ruffled collar and has a narrow scarf to match finished with fringe for tying at the front. Fringes and tassels are important in summer wraps. Wide fringe adds much to the richness and beauty of the model illustrated, placed across each side near its lower edge.

Many summer wraps have fur collars and sometimes are banded with fur, with caracul, in beige tones or or iridescent beads that shade into it, replacing the varied and contrasting colors that preceded them. They are put on in simple designs, as in straight lines at intervals down the length of the blouse, or in small sunburst patterns that any one can do. A very pretty slip-over blouse in periwinkle blue, is made of one length of crepe de chine, cut in very deep, narrow scallops at the bottom. The edges of these, the neck and sleeves, are outlined with long, iridescent beads in blue shading into purple, and lines of beads extend from the neck to the scallops which extend about eight inches below the waist line.

"After you, my dear cape," appears to be the sentiment one gathers from coats as they appear in the procession of spring styles—and they are very closely "after." Either black, and natural squirrel the favorites.

Those who keep their fingers on the pulse of public demand see in the long bloused coats, on Russian lines, the most hopeful rivals of capes and cape-wraps. Quite likely they will forge ahead, and perhaps get the lead by the time that fall styles make their entry. In the meantime the vogue of the cape, and all its kindred, is assured. The new three-piece suits provided with capes instead of coats, are pretty and economical because the capes may be worn with other dresses during the summer months.

wouldn't let me go, she clung to me so, and begged me to forgive her for all she'd brought upon me; and said it was a cruel, cruel shame, when there were children, and people ought to stop and think and remember, and be willing to stand anything. And then, in the next breath, she'd beg me not to forget her, and not to love Father better than I did her. (As if there was any danger of that!) And to write to her every few minutes.

Then the conductor cried, "All aboard!" and the bell rang, and she had to go and leave me. But the last I saw of her she was waving her handkerchief, and smiling the kind of a smile that's worse than crying right out loud. Mother's always like that. No matter how bad she feels, at the last minute she comes up bright and smiling, and just as brave as can be. It was heaps of fun to be grown up and traveling alone! I sat back in my seat and wondered and wondered what the next six months were going to be like. And I wondered, too, if I'd forgotten how to be "Mary."

I was crying now quite a lot. I'd been six months as "most up and down" to go back to Father. And Mother is awfully unhappy. She had a letter last week from Aunt Jane, Father's sister. I read it out loud to Grandpa in the library. It was stiff and cold and dignified, something like this:
"Madam: Dr. Anderson desires to say that he trusts you are well and mind the fact that, according to the decision of the court, his daughter Mary is to come to him on the first day of May. If you will kindly inform him as to the hour of her arrival, he will see that she properly met at the station."
I signed her name, Abigail! (She was named for Grandmother Anderson, same as I wanted them to name me. I'm glad they didn't. "Mary" is enough, but "Abigail Jane"—!)
Mother read the letter aloud, and began to talk about it—how it was, and how awful it was to be giving me up six whole months, and sending her bright little daughter Marie into that tomb with only an Abigail Jane to look after her. And she said that she almost wished Nurse Sarah was there—that she, at least, was sure that she'd properly met, and that she'd have a little choke in her voice. "Oh, I know! Now, if it were a star that I expected, he'd go and sit for hours and hours waiting for it. But when his daughter comes, he'll send John with the horse, like enough, and possibly that Abigail Jane of his. Or, maybe, it's too much to expect. Oh, yes, I can't let her go—I can't, I can't!"
I was in the window-seat around the corner of the chimney, reading; and I know as she knew I was there, and I heard. And I've heard other things, too, all this week. I'm excited. And I can't help wondering how it's all going to be at Father's. Oh, of course, I know it won't be much fun, and I'll have to be "Mary," and all that; but it'll be something different, and I always did like different things. Besides, there's a new love story to watch. Maybe she'll find somebody. Maybe he'll wait a year. Anyhow, if he doesn't find somebody I'm sure he wouldn't be so willing to wait as Mother would. You know Nurse Sarah said she never wanted to wait for anybody. That's why he married Mother so quick in the first place. But if there is somebody, of course I'll find out when I'm there. So that'll be interesting. And, anyway, there'll be the girls. I shall have them.
I'll close now, and make this the end of the chapter. It'll be Andersonville.
When I Am Mary.
"Well, here I am. I've been here two days now, and I guess I'd better write you what's happened so far, before I forget it.
First, about my leaving Boston. Now, dear Mother did take on dreadfully, and I thought she just wouldn't let me go. She went with me to the station where I had to change, and she asked the conductor to look out for me. (As if I needed that—a young girl like me! I've fourteen now. I don't think I thought at the last she just while under your father's roof, it would seem to me very poor taste, indeed, for you to make constant reference to things you may have been doing while not under his roof. The situation is deplorable enough, however you take it, without making it positively unbearable. You will remember, Mary?"

Mary said, "Yes, Aunt Jane," very polite and proper; but I can tell you that inside of Mary, Marie was just boiling.
Unbearable, indeed!
We didn't say anything more all the way home. Naturally, I was not going to, after that speech; and Aunt Jane said nothing. So silence reigned supreme.
Then we got home. Things looked quite natural, only there was a new maid in the kitchen, and Nurse Sarah wasn't there. Father wasn't there, either. And, just as I suspected, 'twas a star that was to blame, only this time the star was the moon—an eclipse; and he'd gone somewhere out west so he could see it better.
He isn't coming back till next week; and when I think how he made me come on the first day, so as to get in the whole six months, when all the time he did not care enough about it to be here himself, I'm just mad—I mean, the righteously indignant kind of mad—for I can't help thinking how poor Mother would have loved those extra days with her.

Aunt Jane said I was to have my old room, and so, as soon as I got here, I went right up and took off my hat and coat, and pretty quick they brought up my trunk, and I unpacked it; and I didn't hurry about it, either. I wasn't a bit anxious to get downstairs again to Aunt Jane. Besides, I may as well own up, I was crying—a little. Mother's room was right across the hall, and it looked so lonesome, and I couldn't help remembering how different this homecoming was from the one in Boston, six months ago.
In the morning I went up to the schoolhouse. I planned it so as to get there at recess, and I saw all the girls except one that was sick, and one that was away. We had a perfectly lovely time, only everybody was talking all at once so that I don't know now what was said. But they seemed glad to see me. I know that. Maybe I'll go to school next week. Aunt Jane says she thinks I ought to, when it's only the first of May. She's going to speak to Father when he comes next week.
She was going to speak to him about my clothes; then she decided to attend to those herself, and not bother him. She doesn't like my dresses. She came into my room and asked to see my things. My! But didn't I hate to show them to her? Marie said she wouldn't; but Marie obediently trotted to the closet and brought them out one by one.
Aunt Jane turned them around with the tips of her fingers, all the time sighing and shaking her head. When I'd brought them all out, she shook her head again and said they would not do at all—not in Andersonville; that they were extravagant, and much too elaborate for a young girl; that she would see the dressmaker and arrange that I had some serviceable blue and brown serges at once.
Blue and brown serge, indeed! But, there, what's the use? I'm Mary now. I keep forgetting that; though I don't see how I can forget it—with Aunt Jane around.
But, listen. A funny thing happened this morning. Something came up about Boston, and Aunt Jane asked me a question. Then she asked another and another, and she kept me talking till I guess I talked 'most a whole half-hour about Grandpa Desmond, Aunt Hattie, Mother, and the house, and what we did, and oh, a whole lot of things. And here, just two days ago, she was telling me that she wasn't interested in Grandpa Desmond, his home, or his daughter, or anything that was his!
There's something funny about Aunt Jane.

"He wheels around and stops short. 'How is—your mother, Mary?' he asks."
Books That Fired Fancy of Dickens.
Though the years (1821-23) which Dickens spent at the house on the brook, Chatham, now for sale, were a time of acute financial embarrassment for his parents, they were not without pleasant memories for the lad himself; for it was there, in a lumber room adjoining his bedroom, that he discovered a number of books, including "Robinson Crusoe," the "Arabian Nights," "Tales of the Gods" and the works of Smollett and Fielding, which first fired his fancy and turned his thoughts to authorship. There, too, he found a helpful friend in the schoolmaster, a Mr. Giles, son of the minister of a Baptist chapel next door to the house on the brook, who seems to have encouraged the boy in the exercise of his genius and who, when his famous pupil was publishing "Pickwick," sent him a silver snuffbox with an admiring inscription to the "Inimitable Boz."
Friendship That Never Fails.
Suppose Jesus were in your company, would it not make life strong and pure and effective, full of power and sweetness and power and joy to have such a Friend always at hand? His is a companionship that never grows wearisome, and His is a friendship that never fails, and it reaches through time and eternity.

LESSON FOR MAY 28. JEREMIAH SPEAKS BOLDLY FOR GOD.

LESSON TEXT.—Jer. 28. GOLDEN TEXT.—Amend your ways and your doings, and obey the voice of the Lord.—Jer. 26:13. REFERENCE MATERIAL.—II Sam. 12:1-14; I Kings 2:17-24; Jer. 7:1-15; Amos 6:1-6. PRIMARY TOPIC.—The Story of a Brave Prophet. JUNIOR TOPIC.—A Brave Prophet's Message. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—Jeremiah Speaks Boldly for God. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—When and How Should Wrong Be Rejected?

I. Jeremiah's Solemn Warning to Judah (vv. 1-7).
The Lord commanded him to stand in a conspicuous place in the temple and proclaim the judgment which was about to fall upon them because of their sins. The object was to provoke them to repentance (v. 3). If they would not repent, God would make the temple as Shiloh (v. 6). Just as Shiloh was once the dwelling place of the Lord and now fallen into decay and abandoned, so will it be with the temple. Jeremiah was sent to speak the words the Lord had told him and not to diminish a word.
II. Jeremiah on Trial (vv. 8-11).
1. Charge of Arrest (v. 8). It was for faithfulness speaking all that the Lord had commanded. The one who speaks boldly what God commands and sets himself against the times and the people will not stand for such a ministry.
2. The Charge (vv. 8, 9). It was a capital crime. They said, "Thou shalt surely die." His guilt according to their charge was twofold: (1) Pretending to speak for God; (2) Speaking against the temple and the city. According to their charge he was guilty of blasphemy and sacrilege.
3. The Princes Sit in Judgment (vv. 10, 11). When the excitement reached the ears of the princes they came to judge of the merits of the case. Matters of state were not entirely in the hands of the priests and elders, but were partly controlled by members of the royal family.

III. Jeremiah's Defense (vv. 12-15).
1. Reiterates His Divine Commission (v. 12). He had nothing to deny, but to repeat what he had said. He plainly told them that in opposing him they were opposing God, for he was God's messenger.
2. His Exhortation (v. 13). He urged them to amend their ways and obey God, and God would not bring upon them judgment. Their threats did not cause him to suppress or soften his message.
3. He Gave Himself Up (v. 14). He did not resist the powers of government (Rom. 13:1). Knowing that he was sent of God he was content to trust God for deliverance. He did not fear what man could do unto him.
4. Warns of Fatal Consequence (v. 15). He frankly told them that God had sent him and if they killed him they would be guilty of defying God. Resistance to God's prophet would be resistance to God. Woe would not only fall upon them, but the nation and city would suffer.

IV. Jeremiah Saved (vv. 16-24).
He was acquitted. God is able to raise up friends and advocates from the ranks of those who oppose us. All hearts are in God's hands.
1. Judgment of the Princes (v. 16). They pronounced him not guilty, as he had spoken in the name of the Lord. Jeremiah's words convinced them that he was speaking the truth.
2. Speech of the Elders (vv. 17-23). As the princes probably represented the king, so the elders represented the people.
The elders plead for Jeremiah and adduced several cases in illustration: (1) Micah (vs. 18, 19). Micah had prophesied against Jerusalem, but the king Hezekiah instead of putting him to death, repented and thus turned aside the punishment which was impending. (2) Urijah (vs. 20-23). Urijah prophesied against the city and land and thus incurred the wrath of Jehoiakim, who brought him back from Egypt whence he had fled and slew him.
Though all this was done, judgment was not thus thwarted. Killing God's prophets does not prevent God's judgment, but intensifies it. In the case of Hezekiah God's judgments were turned aside through heeding the words of the prophet, and in the case of Jehoiakim judgment fell upon the nation because of refusal and mal-treatment of the prophet.

3. Rescued by Ahikam (v. 24). Ahikam must have been a man of influence such as to be able to interfere at such a time.
Friendship That Never Fails.
Suppose Jesus were in your company, would it not make life strong and pure and effective, full of power and sweetness and power and joy to have such a Friend always at hand? His is a companionship that never grows wearisome, and His is a friendship that never fails, and it reaches through time and eternity.
Envy Like a Fly.
Envy is like a fly that passes all a body's sounder parts and dwells upon the sores.—Chapman.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

NATURELAND NEWS
"Extra, extra," called the fairies. "Get the latest copy of Natureland News."
"How much is it?" asked the brownies.
"A hop and a skip and a jump," said the fairies.
So the brownies all gave a hop and a skip and a jump and the fairies handed out the latest copy of Natureland News.
The Fairy Queen was the editor in charge and the Breeze and the Breeze brothers all brought in news.
"Let us see what it has to say," said Billie Brownie.
"I tell you what," said Bennie, "let's each read one item. And then it will be more sociable, reading it aloud that way, than having each of us read to ourselves."
"Good idea," said Billie Brownie.
"You read first," said Bennie.
So Billie Brownie read the first item of news which was:
"Mr. and Mrs. Robin expect to move into their new home at No. 3 Orchard street, this week."
Then Bennie Brownie read:
"Bruce, the dog, who has saved so many lives, added to his record by saving an entire family from fire. Everyone was asleep, but the smell of smoke awoke Bruce, who barked and gave the alarm and awoke every member of the household. When friends congratulated Bruce he wagged his tail with his usual modesty and said, that it was nothing and that it was only the natural thing for a dog to do."
The third brownie read an item which was:
"A costume ball is being given by Miss Springtime next week. It is said that all the trees expect to wear their blossom suits and that the birds are going to furnish the music while Mr. Wind guides the dancing."
The fourth brownie took up his paper after this and read the following:
"The Great Ant-Eater from the Zoo says that in his home in South America he is ate ants, but that in the zoo he is satisfied with eggs and milk. He believes that such simple food keeps an ant-eater from having indigestion."
The fifth brownie began to read now, and laughed as he began, for he had looked at the item before reading it. This was what it said:
"Tommy, the Cat, wishes to announce that he will give a song recital on the Back Fence, the first of next week. All who wish to join the chorus will kindly send word to him and all who wish to come to the concert may bring mice instead of flowers for him."
"That's just like Tommy," said Billie Brownie.
"Just like him," said Bennie Brownie.
"Exactly like him," said the other brownies.

Then the sixth brownie read this statement from the Natureland News:
"Leo Lion expects to celebrate his fifth birthday this week in honor of his great mane which is now full grown and at the height of its beauty. Leo will thank every one who gives him birthday wishes for many happy returns of the day by roaring his best roar."
"That is all," said Billie Brownie, "but it is nice to hear of all the latest happenings in Natureland."
"Do you bring this out any special time?" asked Bennie Brownie of the Fairy Queen.
"Only once in awhile," said the Fairy Queen. "There are so many different things we like to do and we only have time for different ones at different times."
"We can only bring out the Natureland News now and again. But we're glad you like it."
"Sometimes it is fun to read things in the paper that we all know perfectly well have happened and are going to happen. And so I got together the birch bark and the pine needle pencils and with all the help I had it was lots of fun to get it together."
"We'll now give our papers to the elves," said the brownies, after they had once more looked at the Natureland News, "and we'll let every one see it, but we want to keep our papers after everyone has read them."
And the Fairy Queen was as pleased as she could be that the Natureland News was so well liked!

Remesemble Real Estate.
"Why do freemen resemble real estate?"
"Because they're such a vacant lot."

MRS. HATFIELD SABINA, OHIO

In Pitiable Condition when she Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sabina, Ohio.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and irregularity. I was weak and nervous and could hardly stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal. I was this way for about a year and had tried several medicines and had a physician, but to no avail. My sister was taking your medicine and finally induced me to try it. I now feel fine and can do my housework without any trouble at all. You can use this letter for the sake of others if you wish."—Mrs. WELDON G. HATFIELD, R. R. 3, Sabina, Ohio.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so weak and nervous that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken when you first notice such symptoms as nervousness, backache, weakness and irregularity. It will help you and prevent more serious trouble. Give it a fair trial. It surely helped Mrs. Hatfield, just as it has many, many other women.

Changing Figures.
"What is the population of Crimson Gulch at present?"
"No telling," replied Cactus Joe.
"It was eighty-seven last night. But if Cactus Joe is as unforgiving toward Three-finger Sam as he was when the poker game broke up, I reckon maybe by this time it's only eighty-six."

The Lynn County News

The News, together with every member of the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce received a copy of the special edition of the Plainview Herald the past week, containing 28 pages jam full of good reading matter. The publishers of the Herald issued the special edition in honor of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce Convention, which met in Plainview Monday and Tuesday.

THE KNOCKER'S PRAYER

Lord please don't let this town grow. I've been here for thirty years, and during that time I've fought every public movement. I've knocked everything and everybody, no firm or individual has established a business here without my doing all I could to put them out of business. I've lied about them, and would have stolen from them if I had the courage. I have done all I could to keep the town from growing and never have spoken a good word for it. I have knocked hard and often. I've put ashes on the children's slide and I've made the marshal stop the boys playing ball on my vacant lot. Whenever I saw anyone prospering or enjoying themselves I've started a reform to kill the business or spoil the fun. I don't want the young folks to stay in this town and I will do all I can by law, away. It pains me, O Lord, to see that in spite of my knocking it is beginning to grow. Some day I fear I will be called upon to put down sidewalks in front of my property and who knows but what I may have to help keep up the streets that run by my premises? This Lord, would be more than I could bear. It would cost me money. Though all I have was made right here in this town. Then, too, more people might come if the town begins to grow, which would cause me to lose some of my pull. I ask therefore, to keep this town at a standstill, that I may continue to be the chief. Amen.

And another thing, the editor of the Journal does not say a man "should be run out of town" just because he does not see fit to advertise in our paper.—Dawson County Journal.

Live merchants advertise because they want the people to know of the goods they have to sell, especially when more than ordinary values are offered. People read these ads because they want to know where they can buy to the best advantage, and this can only be determined by knowing what the merchants have to offer. The local paper is the only medium between the seller and the buyer. The one should use it, and the other should read it.—Claude News.

It is the desire of the News to print all the news in an impartial manner. This means the church and society notes of interest to its readers. We have never yet been accused of being prejudiced in any manner when it comes to printing news matter, and we want to keep our record clean on this line. If you have an item of interest to the public, tell us about it. Every denomination in Lynn county can feel free to use space in the News in every week's issue. Just phone it in or bring it in person and same will receive our best attention.

Reports from Leveland, Plains and Brownfield last week tell us of pugilistic encounters. The primitive instincts seem to assert themselves occasionally, and good men will engage in fistie encounters and feel ashamed of themselves afterward. It is mighty hard on the pocket book and old clothes, and rarely settles a difficulty.—Meadow Correspondent in Brownfield Herald.

The tourists are beginning to come this way now. Already a few have stopped at the free camping grounds recently completed by the Tahoka Chamber of Commerce located just east of the square. A modern camp house equipped with electric lights, water, tables, etc., are at the disposal of the travelers who stop over in Tahoka. The chamber will put in a shower bath equipment at an early date, which will be quite convenient for the weary traveler.

DRIVERS

Women are just as good as men at driving autos, and just as careful. This is the opinion of Chauncey G. Hubbell, official who has personally examined 60,000 applicants for drivers licenses in Massachusetts. He rides in the car while the applicant demonstrates. Hubbell's opinion will please women until they learn that he adds this: "The fact that women drivers are no worse than the men is a good compliment to either."

Driving a car is a more hazardous occupation than making dynamite. All towns have their knockers. What is a knocker, anyway? Why, he is the fellow that is soured on everybody, including himself. He is a chronic belly-acher, and resembles a carbuncle on the back of progress. The fact of the business is, a knocker won't thrive in a live, wide-awake town. They soon get up and drift to a dead town where they can find conditions suited to their systems.—Ex.

ANTI-KLAN CROWD CANCELS MEETING FOR LANCASTER

Dallas, May 20.—There will be no anti-Klan meeting at Lancaster this afternoon. This was determined after a committee appointed by a mass meeting of citizens called at anti-Klan headquarters and informed officials that it would be dangerous to attempt to hold the meeting in the face of determined protest by the people. The committee told the anti-Klan society that violence might follow if an attempt was made to speak in that city. The meeting was then called off. Last Saturday afternoon anti-Klan speakers were hooted out of Lancaster. It was understood a committee would call on the anti-Klan society from Garland today and urge the proposed speaking for that place this afternoon be called off.

A. M. Sullivan and family left the fore part of the week for points near San Angelo, where they will spend several days fishing on the Concho river.

Several citizens, including the candidates will attend the pie supper this evening (Friday) at the T-Bar school house. The proceeds from the sale of the pies will go toward the purchase of an organ for the school. Everybody is cordially invited to be present.

Why Not Build Now!

The price of building material is in line with the price of the commodities you sell. If you are a farmer see how the price of a two hundred pound hog will compare in purchasing lumber with a two hundred pound hog in 1918, when the price of everything was up.

Don't contemplate Building.—Just build!—Never before was the time better for the builder. Our fine materials priced within the reach of all, makes building costs mighty low, and really for fine building and economical building, our materials cannot be beaten. Figure with us.

IS YOUR HEALTH GRADUALLY SLIPPING?

Interesting Experience of a Texas Lady Who Declares That if More Women Knew About Cardui They Would Be Spared Much Sickness and Worry.

... Nevada, Texas.—Mrs. W. M. Peden, in this place, relates the following interesting account of how she recovered her strength, having realized that she was steadily losing her health:

"Health is the greatest thing in the world, and when you feel that gradually slipping away from you, you certainly sit up and take notice. That is what I did some time ago when I found myself in a very nervous, run-down condition of health. I was so tired and felt so lifeless I could hardly go at all.

"I was just no account for work. I would get a bucket of water and would feel so weak I would have to set it down before I felt like I could lift it to the shelf. In this condition, of course, to do even my housework was a task almost impossible to accomplish.

"I was ... nervous and easily unse-

I couldn't rest well at night and was just lifeless.

"I heard of Cardui and after reading I decided I had some female trouble that was pulling me down. I sent for Cardui and began it.

"In a very short while after I began the Cardui Home Treatment I saw an improvement and it wasn't long until I was all right—good appetite, splendid rest, and much stronger so that I easily did my house work.

"Later I took a bottle of Cardui as a tonic. I can recommend Cardui and gladly do so, for if more women knew, it would save a great deal of worry and sickness."

The enthusiastic praise of thousands of other women who have found Cardui helpful should convince you that it is worth trying. All druggists sell it.

TAX ELECTION RESULTS—SCHOOL BOARD RESIGNS

A great deal of interest was taken in the tax election last Tuesday, in which the proposition was to raise the school tax from 50c to 75c though not more than two-thirds of the qualified voters participated. The figures at the close of the polls stood:

Against	111
For	102

Majority against 9

Tuesday night the School Board met and resigned in a body, believing that the majority people, who believe the school can be run on what money we now have or less, should have charge and demonstrate.

It is now up to the low tax people to give the people of the district a good school and we hope they may. They will at least have the sympathy and co-operation of those who are retiring and have tried it, and they should have the co-operation of the entire patronage.—Brownfield Herald.

BEARING SHOWS RESULTS

Manifolds Are Being Designed to Vaporize Last Drop of Gasoline.

Motor car manufacturer is offering his 1922 product what he calls an excellent device for getting the greatest possible power kick from the kind of gas a car has on these days.

One of the first and most important is to get the front wheels into proper alignment. Bad alignment is one of the principal causes of tire injury. The first symptom of misalignment is rapid wear in the center of the tread. Examination of the alignment should include an investigation to see that there are no loose bearings, for a loose bearing means a wobbly wheel.

Examine the casings of tires for cuts. If cuts are filled with sealant dough the cuts will not grow bigger.

Tubes should receive special attention, for once they have been placed inside the casings they are forgotten. Test the tubes for slow leaks. Put new plungers in the valves, even if the old ones appear satisfactory. The rubber washers in the plunger become stiff and hard after a time and it is good policy to change them at least once a year.

The pump should be tested, especially the rubber tubing and the connections. If the leather piston head in your hand pump has dried up it may be softened by a liberal application of vaseline. If it is gone beyond help you can get a new leather at a supply store. The same advice as to inspection of connections applies in the case of a mechanical pump attached to the engine. See that the pump is well oiled, especially in the cylinder, but avoid excess oil, as it may find its way into the inner tube.

Cracks in hood finish is the uneven expansion of the metal and paint due to the engine's heat. To avoid this, line the hood with asbestos paper, using shellac to hold the paper to the metal.

To eradicate squeaks in the car, try loosening the body bolts and applying oil to all parts where the body of the car touches the frame, then tightening the bolts.

Set hot devices consider another of the stubborn little drop of oil—clinging to the dry wall of the intake manifold and then sneaking into the combustion chamber without being vaporized. The most popular way of off-setting that is to shape the intake manifold so that there is a sharp corner in the internal wall. The seeping drop of gas creeps along the wall until it reaches the corner. There the rush of vaporized gas into the manifold gets a sweep at it. It is as if the gas drop had stepped around the edge of a skyscraper into a windstorm and it is hurled off into space.

Applications of these general principles in this year's cars include a combination manifold and carburetor with dampers for regulating the supply of heat, a corrugated interior surface of a manifold heated from the exhaust, an intake passage surrounded almost entirely by the exhaust, a manifold arrangement controlled by a damper which shuts exhaust heat around the intake, thermostatic carburetor control, a "fuelizer" which heats gasoline and air from the carburetor and makes it enter the combustion chamber as a dry gas, and many other devices.

ANTI-MUD-SPLASHING DEVICE IS NEW INVENTION FOR AUTOMOBILES

The anti-mud-splashing device invented by W. G. # The Movie Publicity Man

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

© 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Howard Cummings had been separated from his wife, Martha, for over a year when he one evening saw her on the screen in a neighborhood movie theater. She looked more beautiful than ever on the screen—she had always been a particularly pretty girl—and seeing her again after so many months, affected Howard deeply.

As Howard gazed at Martha's winsomeness and saw her familiar smile and piquant characteristics, he felt a sudden rush of his old affection for her. The quarrel which had precipitated their separation seemed small and petty; the time since her departure rolled up dull and lonesome and he was possessed of an intense desire to find Martha and make up at once.

But when Martha had left him a year ago she had said she was leaving him for good. And Martha meant what she said. Was there any possible chance of ever getting her back again?

All the longing for Martha which Howard had suppressed during the year of their separation now swept over him in a tidal wave with his candid acknowledgment that he wanted her back again. Everything else in his life now seemed trivial and unimportant. But behind his longing loomed the great fear that he might not be successful in winning her back. And in addition there was another fear—the fear that he might not be able to find her.

However, Howard was a level-headed, practical, successful business man. Though young in years, he had already rolled up quite a fortune, so he had plenty of money with which to push his quest.

The first step in finding his wife was undoubtedly to ascertain the name of the film in which he had seen her and then try to locate her through the manufacturers.

Howard anticipated trouble in finding his wife. He knew that movie actresses are constantly changing companies, and that movie manufacturers themselves are also constantly coming and going. But, to his delight, his task proved to be surprisingly simple. The company making the film in which he had seen his wife was still operating, and his wife was still employed by the company, according to a telegram he received from the publicity manager of the company in response to his wire.

According to this telegram the company was operating at Fort Lee, N. J., a short distance from New York City. Upon receiving this information Howard started at once for New York in the earliest possible train for that city.

The third afternoon found Howard anxiously toiling up the hill at Fort Lee toward a big, glass-covered building—the studio where his wife was employed. At the door of the studio a rather flashily dressed young man was waiting for him.

"You are Mr. Cummings, I presume," queried this young man.

Howard nodded.

"I am the publicity manager for the Mammoth company," explained the young man. "Your wife is one of our most promising actresses. She will probably eventually be starred. Come this way, please."

With beating heart Howard followed his guide into the studio and out upon the huge floor, where furniture, lights and odds and ends were thrown about in apparent confusion. At first Howard was confused; ill at ease. He didn't like the odd gowns cast at him by all the people who were standing around or rushing back and forth. He wanted only to see his wife.

Suddenly Howard's heart skipped a beat. His wife was coming toward him beautifully dressed in an evening gown. Howard looked at her hungrily. Never had she seemed prettier to him. In a moment their eyes met. He saw surprise, then an inscrutable look appear in his wife's eyes before she averted them for a minute or two. Then she came to him and held out her hand cordially.

"How are you, Howard?" she said. "I—I—" stammered Howard.

On the instant he stopped. A great burst of light blinded him for a moment. He heard some one—it sounded like the publicity manager—saying: "That was a bully flash," and then his eyes focused again on his wife to find her looking inscrutable and distant.

"I want to talk to you, Martha," said Howard. "Can't we go somewhere and talk?"

"Not now, Howard," said Martha rather coldly. "I'm due to rehearse some scenes now. But come back tomorrow. Perhaps we can talk tomorrow."

A feeling of resentment swept over Howard.

"I'm at the Consul hotel," he said briefly. "Suppose you phone me there tomorrow when you're not busy."

Without another word Howard turned and hurried from the studio.

Rage and resentment swept over him. What a reception! What treatment when he had come such a distance for the purpose of trying to make up with his wife! He had half a mind to call the whole thing off and go back to his home without making any further attempt at a reconciliation.

Then again the thought of the loneliness of the past year, of his really great love for the wife who had never seemed prettier than now swept over him. He threw back his shoulders.

"Of course she couldn't be anything but distant and cold with all those # people around her," he told himself. "It will be different tomorrow—I'm sure it will."

It was different on the following day, but not in the manner Howard thought.

At breakfast the next morning as Howard was casually glancing through his paper, his eyes suddenly focused in horror at a picture on the theatrical page. The picture was a photo taken in a studio. It showed a man eagerly shaking hands with a brilliantly-dressed, beautiful actress. The woman's face was cold and distant. Over the picture was this caption: "Prominent Midwestern Business Man Seeks Reconciliation With Wife Who Is Becoming Famous in the Movies." The woman was his wife, the man was himself. Now he knew the meaning of that photographic flash while he was at the studio.

Howard went fighting mad at seeing this picture and reading the accompanying paragraphs giving intimate details of his life.

"Of course, Martha was in on it," he told himself. "She's crazy for publicity. No doubt she put up that publicity manager to put the thing across. It's a rotten thing to do and I'm done with her forever!"

Howard packed his grip at once, determined to return to his home forthwith. But to his disgust, there was no train until late in the afternoon and this made it necessary for him to put in the day in New York.

Howard tramped back and forth on Fifth avenue and Broadway, trying to find interest in the glowing show windows and the never-ending crowds. But he couldn't get his mind off the dismal end of his expedition.

At last Howard turned his steps toward the hotel, as it was nearing train time. Not once did he think of going back to the studio or even of calling up his wife.

His heart was exceedingly heavy as he opened the door to his room.

Then, as he stepped into the room, he gave a startled glance toward the window. There, seated in an armchair, was his wife!

"How did you get in here?" Why did they let you in?" demanded Howard.

"I—I showed them that picture in the paper," said Martha. "They couldn't refuse me then."

Howard stepped in the room and closed the door behind him.

"That was a fine piece of publicity!" he answered. "I never thought—"

His wife rushed to him.

"Oh, don't, don't!" she cried. "I didn't know it was going to happen. It was awful! Horrid! I've had that publicity manager fired. There are mighty few film press agents who would do a thing like that. And, oh, Howard—"

Her eyes melted. She held her arms out to him. Suddenly Howard found himself holding her tightly in his arms.

"Really," whispered Martha, "that horrid picture was a good thing!"

"Why?" Howard demanded.

"Because," said Martha, "when you first came I really wanted to make up, but I thought I'd be cold and distant and make you suffer a while. Then, when that picture came out I knew you'd never look me up again, so I rushed right over here. Perhaps we wouldn't have made up except for that picture."

"I'm glad—mighty glad," said Howard. "I was afraid— You know you said you'd left me for good."

"I know," smiled Martha. "But—I've resigned my job. I'm going home with you."

And she snuggled closer in his arms and kissed him.

APPEALED TO HIS DIGNITY

Uncle Jake's Particular Reason for Going Over to That "Yank Plantation" in Texas.

The Yankee invasion of Texas is making things difficult for the native plantation owner. After years of tenantry satisfactory on both sides, and particularly favorable to Uncle Jake, the old negro appeared before his landlord and announced his intention of leaving him.

"Why, what are you going to leave me for?" asked Mr. Harris, who looked upon Uncle Jake as a lifelong pensioner.

"How come? Why, jes' 'cause I is gwine wo'k ovah on the Yank plantation yondah."

"Why, you old sinner you! Haven't I always treated you fair and square? Given you your own garden and a good bit left over from your share each year to send your boy to Tuskegee and to buy Aunt Viny's clothes?"

"You shuah nuff had did all which you say, Mistah Harris."

"Then why do you want to go over there when you can make more here farming my plantation on shares?"

Glimpsing the Future.

The next generation will be that of the eminent village. The son of the farmer will be no longer dazzled and destroyed by the fires of the metropolis. He will travel but only for what he can bring back. Just as his father sends half-way across the continent for good corn or melon-seed, so he will make his village famous by transplanting and growing this idea or that. He will make it known for its pottery or its processions, its philosophy or its peacocks, its music or its swans. . . . There are a thousand miscellaneous achievements within the scope of the great-hearted village. Our agricultural land today holds the plowboys who will bring these benefits.—Vachel Lindsay.

More Quality for Less Money

There never was a time when Goodyear Tires were so good as now.

They are bigger, heavier and stronger today than any earlier Goodyears ever were.

Yet Goodyear prices are lower now than ever.

Not even in those remembered days before the war did Goodyear Tires sell at such low prices as today.

Look at the figures listed below.

They represent an average decrease of more than 60% from Goodyear prices of 1910.

When you can get these better Goodyears at such prices, there is no question of the tire value at your command.

Your Goodyear Service Station Dealer will tell you that never in his experience as a tire dealer has he known the equal of this value. See him today.

Joe Denton of Tahoka won over Olan Stringfield, hitherto undefeated welterweight of Oklahoma, in an eight round bout at the chautauqua tent last night. Denton was awarded the judges decision on rounds, and the referee announced that the decision was very close. Stringfield is a good fighter, and clever. The men were admirable matched.

Lloyd Denton, Joe's older brother, threw up the sponge in the second frame of a ten round bout, just preceding the main event with "whirlwind" Russell Jackson, a full blooded Commanche Indian, the man who swings a wicked left.—Plainview Evening Herald.

Lloyd Denton met Jim Hutchinson of Amarillo, Tuesday night and knocked him out in 52 seconds time.

Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock some little boys were fishing in South Lake, when they got out of bait and one little fellow, Melvin Phillips, age 14 years, attempted to swim across the lower end of the lake to borrow a knife from a fisherman on the other side with which to cut bait when it is supposed he gave out and went under calling for help. The little fellow who was with him started for town with the news that the boy was drowning.

By the time a large crowd gathered at the lake there was no sign of young Phillips and a search was begun.

The body was finally found in five feet of water and the doctors did all they could to restore life but without avail.—Post City Post.
