The fall resulted in breaking his arm and rusting a rusty nail into his chest. He was immediately carried to Lubbock for treatment. The year has proven more profitable than ever that a short crop pays the farmer more than a bumper crop. The reduction in acreage is a deal to do with the present crop. Of course the deterioration of the crop has reduced the yield, but the acreage reduction is as great a factor in the realization of present prices as the yield, if not more. In the planting of the crop this should be foreseen by the farmer, that cotton crop will be more valuable than a big one.—Snyder Sig.

LUBBOCK COUNTY WOMAN KILLS SELF AND 3 CHILDREN

About three o'clock Wednesday morning the officers were called over the phone to come out to the home of A. R. Groves, about eleven miles northeast of Lubbock, the party calling the officers stated that Mrs. Groves had killed herself and children. The Sheriff, County Attorney and Justice of the Peace left at once for the place of the tragedy.

Upon their entering the room they found three small children lying on a pallet, made down on the floor, dead; the mother, Mrs. Groves, lying upon the bed, dead. All parties were shot in the head, children lying on a pallet with their heads to the north; mother lying on her back on the bed in the south-east corner of the room.

After a thorough investigation by the officers it was decided that the mother's mind had suddenly become unbalanced causing her to kill her three small boys, ages, two, four and six years. The husband, mother and children, had come to the Fair here Tuesday, returning home that evening, eating supper and retiring, as usual, but later in the night the mother had taken sick and suffering great pain, so her husband went for his mother to come and assist him in quieting his wife. When they returned they found the door and windows to the room fastened so they could not enter but forcing an entrance they were greatly shocked at the sight that met their eyes.—Lubbock Avalanche.

Mrs. J. L. Sharman and Bobbie were Lubbock visitors the later part of the week.

CHANGES IN REVENUE TAX BILL ACCEPTED

REPUBLICAN AGREEMENT NOW OPENS THE WAY FOR A SPEEDY ENACTMENT.

RADICAL ALTERATIONS MADE

Surtax Rate Would Be Raised and Transportation Levy Repealed by the Plan.

Washington.—The way has been opened for speedier enactment of the revenue bill in the Senate with the acceptance by leaders of changes demanded by the agricultural or agrarian bloc.

The changes will radically alter the bill from the form in which it was presented to the Senate by the Finance Committee. The Senators from farming States have obtained virtually everything for which they asked, and have again demonstrated the power of the group in the Senate and its ability successfully to oppose the will of the established leaders.

The changes to be made on the floor in the form of amendments include:

Repeal of all transportation taxes at the end of the calendar year, including those on express packages and the transportation of oil by pipe line.

Restoration of the capital stock tax. Repeal of the excess profits tax Jan. 1, 1922 as the bill provides, and not as of Jan. 1, 1921, as many wished.

Elimination of the $2,000 exemption of corporations, with adoption of a 10 per cent corporation tax on profits up to $50,000 and 15 per cent above that amount.

Increase in the maximum surtax rate from 32 per cent, as the bill provides, to 50 per cent, with reductions in the tax on incomes between $6,000 and $55,000.

Increased inheritance taxes, making the maximum levy 40 per cent instead of 25.

Increase in the tax on liquor from $2.40 to $4 a gallon. Repeal of all, or nearly all of the nuisance taxes, including those on admissions.

DECREE MAY DELAY TRADE WITH RUSSIA

Soviet Rules No Americans Can Be Admitted On A U. S. Passport.

Riga.—Maxim Litvinoff, chief of Soviet legations abroad, has telegraphed the local Bolshevik legation that Russia will make no exception to the new rule not to admit Americans unless they carry national passports. The State Department at Washington has made a regulation that such passports must be surrendered to American consuls, and Americans bound for Russia on legitimate errands are therefore, facing the choice of either violating the Washington ruling or staying out of the country.

Police officials of Riga claim to have instructions from American authorities to stop any American attempting to carry a national passport into Russia although the Washington regulation for the guidance of American border representatives are said to be of such a nature as neither to facilitate nor hinder the departure of Americans toward Russia.

Loss to Farmer Near Waxahachie Thursday Is Placed At $13,440.

EUROPEAN QUESTIONS UP IN ARMS PARLEY

MOVEMENT ON TO FORCE DISCUSSION OF EUROPE'S ECONOMICS PROBLEM.

Washington.—A movement is developing both in foreign capitals and in influential business and banking quarters of the United States to force the forthcoming arms conference into a discussion of Europe's economic problems.

And, authorities point out, as the number of invited powers it increased—Belgium, Holland and Portugal having just been added to the list—the more certain it is that the predominant European voice to be heard at Washington will draw the conference into Europe's trouble channels.

There have been repeated expressions by spokesmen of the American Government that Europe's financial problems held no place in the forthcoming conference. There have been equally repeated and insistent warning from Europe, now supported by American business leaders, that the success of the conference and the peace of the world must necessarily comprehend a solution of Europe's economic woes.

"Doubtless," said a report of the United States Chamber of Commerce, "it was the realization of our normal as well as of our financial and commercial responsibility in relieving the world's depressed condition that caused the President to call the proposed conference in Washington and to consider the reduction of armaments."

"The United States can not refrain from active participation in the settlement of economic and financial difficulties confronting the world," says the report.

"A chief obstacle to a return to normal conditions throughout the world is found in the armed conflicts in progress and the continued threat of renewed clashes. Business will not resume its forward movement until the menace of recurring warfare is removed."

NEGRO TIES AND ROBS CAMP HOUSE OCCUPANTS

Fort Worth, Texas.—Compelling eight members of a house party at Lake Worth to tie each other, and then torturing the men and women for more than an hour, a lone masked negro Tuesday night escaped with more than $1,200 in jewelry, using a girl whom he attempted to criminally assault, as a shield.

The house party was given at the summer camp of Judge H. E. Calloway at Lake Worth. The members of the party were Judge and Mrs. Calloway, Mandel Kow, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Zuch, Miss Helen Zuch and Miss Grace Zuch.

The negro entered the house about 8 o'clock drawing a revolver, and told the occupants to "stick 'em up," and ordered one after the other of the party to bind the person standing near him. After all but one girl was tied with rags, which the negro found strewn about the house, he released Mrs. M. C. Calloway. He then prodded and kicked the tied victims, ordering them to give him all jewelry, money and valuables which they carried. He lifted the girl into his arms, using her as a human shield to make safe his retreat from the house. After reaching the back porch he dropped the girl on a bed and there attempted to assault her.

In the meantime the mother, screaming, ran to a nearby camp and sounded the alarm to neighbors. The negro, hearing the mother's cries, released the girl and fled into the woods nearby.

The negro obtained $1,200 in jewelry and $21 in cash.

David Bunn, a negro, has been indicted by the Tarrant County grand jury, and lodged in the Dallas County jail for safe keeping.

DETERMINED MOVE IS MADE BY PRESIDENT

Washington.—Efforts to put into effect the recommendations of President Harding's conference on unemployment have been started with the issuance of an appeal to Governors and Mayors by the President, and an attempt to hasten to early passage a bill appropriating $75,000,000 for road building.

The President asked Governors and Mayors to undertake without delay the organization recommended by the conference. This included the establishment of emergency boards to coordinate all relief and charitable organizations and to seek ways of bringing workers in contact with jobs, the speeding up of public building projects, and the establishment of free employment bureaus.

"It is of national importance that every community should at once undertake such organization in order that the Nation may be protected as a whole," said the President.

HOW WOMEN AVOID SURGICAL OPERATION

Some Are Extremely Necessary, Others May Not. Every Woman Should Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Trial First

Chicago, Ill.—"I had a bed with a female inflammation and doctors but none of them any good. They would have to have a woman. A druggist told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I took 22 bottles, missing a dose and one of that time I was very well. I have never had a pain since. I have been so well, I have six room flat and I divide it with my two sisters. I am taking the Compound to my recommendation. I may publish my letter in the gospel truth and will write to any one who means a personal letter. The editor H. HAYDOCK, 634 North Lawrence Ave., Chicago.

A Vermont woman adds her testimony to the long line of fortunate women whose health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, after it had been decided an operation was necessary. Burlington, Vt.—"I suffered with female trouble, and had a number of doctors who said that I would never be any better until I had an operation. I was so bad I could hardly walk across the floor and could not do my work. My sister-in-law induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it certainly has helped me wonderfully. I keep house and do my own work and have a small child. I have recommended Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. H. R. Apple Tree Point Farm, Burlington, Vt.

In hospitals are many women where there for surgical operations, is nothing a woman creates more than the thought of an operation. It is very months of recovery and restoration to strength if it is long. It is very true that female troubles may through neglect reach a point where an operation is the only resource, but most of the common ailments of women are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious ailments, tumors or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same. When disturbing ailments first appear take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious ones. In fact, many letters have been received from women who have been cured and advised by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations had been advised by attending physicians.

"SHALL I SPRING?"

Synopsis.—Jane Harding, respectable and conservative old maid, but never to think of marriage — with more money than brains, is inveigled by a strong-minded spinster, Miss Higlesbury, into financing an expedition to hunt for buried treasure on Lowland island. Her niece, Virginia Harding, undertaking to stop her, gets on the vessel and is unwillingly carried along. By no means concealing her distaste for the expedition and her contempt for its members, Virginia makes the acquaintance of the Honorable Cuthbert Vane. Talking with Dugald Shaw, leader of the expedition, Virginia very frankly expresses her views, practically accusing Shaw and the other members of the party, including a somewhat uncertain personage, Captain Magnus, and a shady "financier," Hamilton H. Tubbs, of being in a conspiracy to defraud Jane Harding. Landing on the island is a matter of some difficulty, Virginia being carried ashore in the arms of Cuthbert Vane. The party gets settled. Miss Brown tells about the treasure. Virginia declares herself out of it. The dead sailor's map is produced. Virginia finds a mysterious dog, Crusoe.

(CHAPTER VI—Continued.)

With the midday reunion my hour of distinction arrived. The tale of ghost-pig was told from the beginning by Cookie, with high tributes to my courage in sailing forth in pursuit of the phantom. Even those hold-over views of the genesis of the little dog were amuzed at his presence on the island. In spite of Cookie's assertions, the creature was no mongrel, but a thoroughbred of points. Not any means a dog which some little American coaster might have abandoned here when it put in for tea. The most reasonable hypothesis seemed to be that he had belonged to the copra gatherer, and was some reason left behind on his master's departure. But who that had owned a dog enough to make it the companion of his solitude would go away and leave it? The thing seemed incredible. Yet here, otherwise unaccounted for, was the corporeal sense of the dog.

Had named the terrier in the first minutes of our acquaintance. Crusoe was the designation by which he presented to his new associates, let tolerated him. Aunt Jane called to a dear weenty pampus love. Captain Magnus kicked him when he thought I was not looking. Cuthbert chummed with him in frankest brotherhood, and Mr. Shaw softened toward him to an extent which made my only murmur, "Love me, love my—only reversed. Not that I in the—wanted to be loved, only you feel in impertinence in a person who so patly does not love you to endeavor to engage the affections of your terrier.

As we neared the beach we saw a figure pacing it. It was Dugald Shaw. And quite unexpectedly my heart began to beat with staccato quickness. Dugald Shaw, who didn't like me and who never looked at me—except just sometimes, when he was perfectly sure I didn't know it—there he was, waiting for us, and splashing into the foam to help Cuthbert beach the boat — he for whom a thousand years ago the skalds would have made a saga—

The b. y. hailed him cheerfully as we sprang out upon the sand. But the Scotchman was unsmiling.

"Make haste after your tools, lad," he ordered. "We'll have fine work now to get inside the cave before the turn."

Those were his words; his tone and his grim look meant, "So in spite of all my care you are being beguiled by a mix—"

It was his tone that I answered. "Oh, don't scold Mr. Vane!" I implored. "Every paradise has its serpent, and as there are no others here I suppose I am it. Of course all lady serpents who know their business have red hair. Don't blame Mr. Vane for what was naturally all my fault."

Not a line of his face changed. Indeed, before my most vicious stabs it never did change.

"To be sure it seems unreasonable to blame the lad," he agreed soberly, "but then he happens to be under my authority."

"Meaning, I suppose, that you would much prefer to blame me," I choked.

"There's logic, no doubt, in striking at the root of the trouble," he admitted with an air of calm detachment.

"Then strike," I said furiously; "strike, you don't you, and not beat about the bush so!" Because then he would be quite hopelessly in the wrong, and I could adopt any of several roles—the coldly haughty, the wounded but forgiving, etc., with great enjoyment.

But without a change in his glacial manner he quite casually remarked: "It would seem I had struck—home."

I walked away.

Fortunately nobody undertook to exercise any guardianship over Crusoe, and the little white dog bore me faithfully companion. More than ever he looked like the island god. Every day he grew more brown and brawny, more superb in his physical vigor.

The cliffs on the north shore of the cove were considerably higher than on the other side. The wreck lay close in, driven high upon the narrow shelf of rocks and sand at the base of the sheer ascent. Sand had heaped up around her hull and flung itself across her deck like a white winding-sheet. Surprisingly, the vessel was a very small one, a little sloop, indeed, much like the fragile pleasure-boats that cluster under the Sausalito shore at home. The single mast had been broken off short, and the stump of the bowsprit was visible, like a finger beckoning for rescue from the crawling sand.

"Poor forlorn little boat!" I said. "What in the world do you suppose brought such a mite of a thing to this unheard-of spot?"

"Perhaps she belonged to the copra chap. One man could handle her."

"What would he want with her? A small boat like this is better for fishing and rowing about the cove."

"Perhaps she brought him here from Panama, though he couldn't have counted on taking back a very bulky cargo."

"Then why leave her strewn about on the rocks? And besides—here the puzzle of Crusoe recurred to me and seemed to link itself with this—then how did he get away himself?"

We rowed in close under the port bow of the sloop, and on the rail I made out a string of faded letters. I began excitedly to spell them out.

"I—s—oh, Island Queen! You see she did belong here. Probably she brought the original porcine Adam and Eve to the island."

"Lucky forgot the snake, though!" remarked the Honorable Bertie with unlooked-for vivacity. For so far Aunt Jane's trembling anticipations had been unfulfilled by the sight of a single snake, a fact laid by me to the credit of St. Patrick and by Cookie to that of the pigs.

"Snakes 'd jes' be oysters on de half shell to dem pigs," declared Cookie.

As we rowed away from the melancholy little derelict I saw that nearly by a narrow gully gave access to the top of the cliff, and I resolved that I would avail myself of this path to visit the Island Queen again. My mind continued to dwell upon the unknown figure of the copra gatherer. Perhaps the loss of his sloop had condemned him to weary months or years of solitude upon the island, before the rare glimmer of a sail or the trail of a steamer's smoke upon the horizon gladdened his longing eyes.

Suddenly I turned to Cuthbert Vane. "How do you know, really, that he ever did leave the island?" I demanded.

"Who—the copra chap? Well, why else was the cabin cleared out so carefully—no clothes left about or anything?"

"That's true," I acknowledged. The last occupant of the hut had evidently made a very deliberate and orderly business of packing up to go.

We drifted about the cove for a while, then steered into the dim murmuring shadow of the treasure-cavern. Mr. Vane indicated the point at which they had arrived in their exploration among the fissures opening from the ledge.

The place held me with its fascination, but we dared not linger long, for as the tide turned one man would have much ado to manage the boat. So we slid through the archway into the bright sunshine of the cove, and headed for the camp.

As we neared the beach we saw a figure pacing it. It was Dugald Shaw. And quite unexpectedly my heart began to beat with staccato quickness. Dugald Shaw, who didn't like me and who never looked at me—except just sometimes, when he was perfectly sure I didn't know it—there he was, waiting for us, and splashing into the foam to help Cuthbert beach the boat — he for whom a thousand years ago the skalds would have made a saga—

But without a change in his glacial manner he quite casually remarked: "It would seem I had struck—home."

I walked away.

Fortunately nobody undertook to exercise any guardianship over Crusoe, and the little white dog bore me faithfully

ful company in my ramblings. Most of these were confined to the neighborhood of the cove. I never ventured beyond Lookout ridge, but there I went often with Crusoe, and we would sit upon a rock and talk to each other about our first encounter there, and the fright he had given me. Everybody else had gone, gazed and admired. But the only constant pilgrim, besides myself, was, of all people, Captain 'tagmus. The captain's unexpected ardor for scenery carried him thither whenever he had half an hour to spare from the work in the cave. Needless to say, Crusoe and I timed our visits so as not to conflict with his.

One day, as Crusoe and I came down from the ridge, we met Captain Magnus ascending. I had in my hand a small metal-backed mirror, which I had found, surprisingly, lying in a mossy cleft between the rocks. It was a thing such as a man might carry in his pocket, though on the island it seemed unlikely that anyone would do so. I at once attributed the mirror to Captain Magnus, for I knew that no one else had been on the ridge for days. I was wondering as I walked along whether by some sublime law of compensation the captain really thought himself beautiful, and sought this retired spot to admire not the view but his own physiognomy.

When the captain saw me he stopped full in the path. There was a growth of fern on either side. I approached slowly, and, as he did not move, paused, and held out the mirror.

"I think you must have dropped this, Captain Magnus. I found it on the rocks."

For an instant his face changed. His evasive eyes were turned to me searchingly and sharply. He took the glass from my hand and slipped it into his pocket. I made a movement to pass on, then stopped, with a faint dawning of discomfort. For the heavy figure of the captain still blocked the path.

A dark flush had come into the man's face. His yellow teeth showed between his parted lips. His eyes had a swimming brightness.

"What's your hurry?" he remarked, with a certain insinuating emphasis. I began to tremble.

"I am on my way back to camp, Captain Magnus. Please let me pass."

"It won't do you no harm if you're a little late. There ain't no one there keepin' tab. Ain't you always a-strayin' off with the Honorable? I ain't so pretty, but—"

"You are impertinent. Let me pass."

"Oh, I'm impertinent, am I? That means fresh, maybe. I'm a plain man and don't use frills on my language. Well, when I meets a little skirt that takes my eyes there ain't no harm in lettin' her know it, is there? Maybe the Honorable could say it nicer—"

With a forward stride he laid a hand upon my arm. I shook him off and stepped back. Fear clutched my throat. I had left my revolver in my quarters. Oh, the dreadful denseness of these woods, the certainty that no wildest cry of mine could pierce them!

And then Crusoe, who had been waiting quietly behind me in the path, slipped in between us. Every hair on his neck was bristling. The lifted upper lip snarled unmistakably. He gave me a swift glance which said, "Shall I spring?"

Quite suddenly the gorilla blandishments of Captain Magnus came to an end.

"Say," he said harshly, "hold back that dog, will you? I don't want to kill the cur."

"You had better not," I returned coldly. "I should have to explain how

Home Town Helps

SEES NEED OF "CITY BOOK"

Writer Points Out How Information of Great Value to Community Could Be Spread.

What are the "points" of cities? How shall we compare one with another, and, allowing for geographic, climatic and economic limitations, describe the curve of possible ascent for the one we love best? Here is where we must establish standards.

Vaguely we recognize these types in our common reference to a "factory town," a "mining town" or a "county seat" and so on. But, as to a factory town or any other kind that we want to know about and improve, how does it compare with others?

We need a little book on "What Is a City?" It should be a cheap little book that everybody can buy, a simple little book that everybody can understand, a sort of civic primer.

Suppose we live, as so many of us do, in an ordinary, medium-sized town. Our "city book" should inform us that a normal town, with the number of inhabitants our town has, should have such and such functions, adding to the simple requirements of the small village those other and more varied functions which the larger population of our town requires and can support. Such a list, for our ordinary medium-sized town, might run somewhat as follows:

Smithy, store, postoffice, school, church, dressmaker, milliner, barber, drug store, moving pictures, court house, jail, fire company, hotel, hall.

These are not placed in any dogmatic order of importance, or arranged with great care.

A "pattern town" should be described suggesting the income that should be derived from legitimate taxation of its number of citizens, and showing just what advantages a town with such an income deserves and requires.—Charlotte Perkins Gilman in the Century Magazine.

MAY BE PROUD OF RECORD

Massachusetts Town Has Shown What Can Be Done When Management is Intelligent.

In contrast with the situation at Block Island, where the town came near bankruptcy, is that of Middletown, Mass.

The entire permanent debt of Middletown at the present time is $7,000, of which $1,600 is due in notes which will soon be paid, leaving a balance of $5,400. Here is what the town has to show for the amount and may be timely:

First, and one of the most important, are excellent schools. There is also a fine, free public library, well equipped with the best of books. There is public water with good hydrant service and with which a large portion of the townspeople can be supplied. Electric lights are in all the central streets and a large number of homes are equipped with them. There are good railroad accommodations. Two new bridges have been built over the Ipswich river. The improvements, with the exception of the schools, have all been made during the last 20 years, and are all paid for with the exception of $5,400.

In addition to the above the state and county have expended on the streets in town, under the small town act, for macadam roads, $150,000.—Boston Globe.

City Library and Farmer.

How pleasant relations are maintained between the farmers in the region of Stockton, Cal., and the attendants at the city library of that place, and how the farmers draw heavily upon the facilities of the library to their pleasure and profit, is told in a bulletin of the Department of Agriculture. The library sends out traveling libraries to communities, and it also encourages the country residents to make direct use of the main library. There are 30 communities and 22 school districts that are receiving county free library service from Stockton, and the main library has a direct country circulation of 6,281 volumes.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Photographing From Airplane.

In view of the facility with which objects many feet under water can be photographed from an airplane it is possible that the navigation of such a river as the Mississippi, with its shifting bars, may hereafter be made safe by monthly or weekly mapping from the air. In earthquake regions, such as southern Italy and Japan, the changing coast lines, shallows and safe harbors can easily be photographed from the air after each fresh shock, thus keeping navigation open and safeguarding the lives of mariners.

Calgary Insures Employees.

Group insurance to the amount of $1,500,000 has been taken out by the city of Calgary to cover employees in case of death, sickness, accident, or any other cause. Calgary is at present the largest city in Canada providing this form of protection for employees. A feature of the group plan is that many otherwise uninsurable persons are thus included.

Juvenile Humor.

The poem under analysis was Tenyson's "The Brook" and the pupil was asked to write a sentence containing the words "coot" and "hern." One small pupil turned in this one: "A little girl I know had an awfully coot doll, but it wasn't hern."

FROM TH' ROCK-BOUND SHORES OF MAINE TO TH' SUN-KISSED VALLEYS OF CALIFORNIA, FROM TH' SKYSCRAPERS OF TH' CITY TO TH' VILLAGE PRINT-SHOP, EDITORS ALL MAKE TH' SAME WISH—THAT READERS'D PAY THEIR SUBSCRIPTIONS WITHOUT BEING ASKED!

THE HOME TOWN

Don't go abroad to buy something when you have a few dollars to spend and then ask your home merchants to sell you on time when you are broke. If you have bills with your home merchant he has given you credit and an extension of time and accepted small payments, and take your cash to another town to spend with a stranger who has no interest in your town, nine times out of ten he will "do" you because he never expects to see you again. The home merchant will save you money with reliable goods, which he guarantees with his reputation.

A town that is large enough and good enough for a man to earn his living in is good enough for him to buy his provisions in. If he does not think so, both he and the town would be better off if his tent were pitched on other prairies.—Ex.

A GOOD WAY TO GROW

A city's taxes cannot be raised too high for the good of the people who reside in it if a proper return is obtained for the money received and expended. Floydada needs the water-works improvements and extensions and your vote for this improvement next month will mean another opportunity to Floydada to grow.—Floydada Hesperian.

Lynn county voted $60,000.00 road bonds and the City of Tahoka voted $30,000.00 light and water bonds this year. School bonds to the amount of $30,000.00 voted to build and equip an auditorium and erect a brick rural school building. If a community expects to grow it pays to raise the taxes.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Howard have moved to Lamesa, where Mr. Howard will have charge of the theatre in that city. Mr. Hoard retains his property near Tahoka and his residence in the Dawson county capitol is only temporarily.

HELP YOUR LOCAL PAPER

Don't make fun of your local paper. It has possibilities of being as big as any in the country—and remember that it reflects the community in which it is published, and it is the one product that goes to far places bearing the town trade mark. It deserves the best you can give of active support and sympathetic understanding.

Give the editor news, whether it benefits you or not.

Don't ask him to print it on the front page and just the exact way you handed it in.

Don't worry lest the editor make too much money. If he's prosperous, he'll be foolish enough to give his community a better paper; that's an editor's ambition—that's why he engages in the publicity business.

Tell him when he has a good paper. You are willing to congratulate your preacher on a good sermon, and your merchant on an attractive display window display. The editor is no less grateful for a word of praise.

Make it a point to visit the print shop and learn of its difficulties and complexities. At least that will give you a more charitable attitude. The paper should not be the product of the editor solely, but of all those who are interested in its friends, contributors, readers or advertisers.—Swiped.

JUDGEMENT.

Lynn County News: We are all prone to form hasty judgment. We form opinions frequently before we have heard both sides of all questions. There are two sides to all questions. One can not render an intelligent decision until he hears the other side of the question, and then not until he has weighed the evidence carefully and prayerfully. If we would wait until we hear both sides to a question we would be able to render just opinions. Be not hasty in forming opinions.

Many of us never form opinions. We merely gather impressions. An impression is something left on the mind by a fleeting circumstance. An opinion is a decision based upon reasoned consideration of evidences. Chief Justice Phillips or Chief Justice Rainey never hands down an impression. But each does hand down opinions. These opinions are thought out, with the law and the testimony as principal guides or circumscriptions. Forming an opinion requires effort. Getting an impression is automatic. This accounts for so many impressions and so few opinions. A gentleman, one well known in the art world recently stated a fear that Japan had serious designs upon the peace of the world. His fear was based upon an impression. In a few well-chosen words, State Press relieved him of his nervousness by citing an opinion. The artist was actuated by the automatic and S. P. by the judicious prompting. It was the artist's impression that Japan means to go to war ere long with some nation. It is S. P.'s opinion that Japan doesn't mean to. The artist got his idea sketchily. State Press got his conviction by deep thinking. Thought is labor, therefore Dr. Arnott as a rule avoids it. To S. P. thought is a pleasure, therefore he thinks sometimes till his head aches fit to burst.—State Press, (Dallas News).

How Better Than Pills?

The question has been asked. In what way are Chamberlain's Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is, they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. They not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion. 54t

"Why did you put that sign over your desk, 'This is my busy day?'"
"It makes a good impression," answered Senator Sorghum, "when an influential constituent calls."
"But it might give offense."
"Not at all. It adds to a visitor's sense of importance when I give him a cigar and tell him I want a long chat with him."

Spoiled His Usefulness.

"Hon. T. J. Twobble doesn't seem interested in the ordinary affairs of life."
"A great misfortune overtook him."
"A private sorrow?"
"No, a public one. About ten years ago he was mentioned for the presidency and ever since he has worn the air of a man who has served two terms in the White House and doesn't know what to do with himself."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Buying Material.

"You got some drawings?"
"Yes."
"What's the other feller got?"
"Poetry," said the other feller.
"Well, it's this way, boys," said the magazine man. "I gotta have something to wedge the prose articles apart. I don't care what it is. You two toss for it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SAFEST WAY, TOO

The Changing Times.

The Spirit of Submission.

"Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "hadn't we better keep a little money and jewelry in the hall?"
"I thought you were afraid of burglars?"
"I am. If one should break in and find no valuables, he might be terribly irritated."

Looks So, Indeed.

"Well, my dear?"
"The cook has issued an ultimatum."
"What about?"
"She says every time she has an afternoon off our car is in the repair shop and it's beginning to look to her like a put-up job."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Best Place, Anyhow.

"Go to the aunt, thou sluggard!"
"He went—she would give him no more. So he had to go to his uncle. Where oft he had been before."

Her Decision.

"So you've decided not to marry him."
"Yes."
"What's the reason?"
"I've thought it all over carefully, and reached the conclusion that he doesn't look like a man for whom I could darn socks."

Improvement Suggested.

"That blowout made a terrific explosion."
"Yes," replied Mrs. Chuggins; "but it didn't last long enough. Tires should be made so that when they burst the noise will last long enough to drown my husband's remarks."

The Exception.

"Are all the men in Crimson Guleh good poker players?"
"All but me," replied Cactus Joe.
"Isn't your ignorance disastrous?"
"No. I'm the feller that gets criticised by the entire assemblage for bein' a winner in spite of the fact that I play my cards all wrong."

Not Enough for Two.

"Why did you quit smoking?" asked Bolt.
"Had to," answered Nut. "Since smoking has become fashionable my wife decided she would have to do it too, and I cannot afford to support two smokers on my salary."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

He Couldn't Have Stood That.
"Remember Job—he was the most patient man who ever lived."
"Yes, but don't forget one thing."
"What is that?"
"He never had to ride ten miles on a flat tire with a quarrelsome wife."

And Served a Cold Lunch.

"Can that girl cook?"
"I cannot say."
"But she claims she once worked for you."
"She did. But she came after breakfast and didn't remain for dinner."

Just Multiply It.

"It is computed that the average man speaks in the course of a year eleven million words."
"And how many does he listen to from the average woman?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

RED CROSS WORKING FOR HEALTHIER U. S.

Thousands Aided by Instruction in Care of the Sick, Food Selection and First Aid.

How the American Red Cross guides thousands of persons to health is shown in a summary of the society's activities in the health field based upon the annual report for the last fiscal year.

The work of the Red Cross during the war in its traditional field of nursing, furnishing the military and naval establishments of the nation with 10,877 nurses, is well known.

In addition to the nurses enrolled by the Red Cross for Government service, the Red Cross itself employed a total of 1,848 public health nurses in the United States and Europe.

Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick classes, giving thorough instruction in the proper care of the sick in instances where the illness is not so serious as to require professional nursing care.

What the Red Cross accomplished in giving proper instruction through its Nutrition Service is indicated by the following table:

New classes formed during year 5,179
Classes completed during year 6,890
New students enrolled 101,068
Students completing course 78,432

In addition to the above, a total of 22,000 children were given instruction in the proper selection and preparation of foods.

Through its 290 Health Centers, the Red Cross reached 90,252 persons. In these Health Centers, 4,015 health lectures were given and 760 health exhibits held.

In the United States last year, 75,432 persons were killed and 3,500,000 injured in industrial accidents. To prevent this enormous waste the Red Cross held 5,100 first aid classes with a total of 104,000 students enrolled.

RED CROSS RESCUED 600,000 FROM DEATH

Spent $1,200,000 for Relief of Famine Sufferers in China Last Year.

To help overcome conditions of acute distress in five famine stricken provinces of Northern China, where millions of persons were affected by an unprecedented shortage of food, the American Red Cross during the last fiscal year spent more than $1,200,000, $1,000,000 of which was contributed directly by National Headquarters and the remainder by various groups interested in the welfare of China.

Through the wide relief operations thus made possible it is estimated that more than 600,000 famine sufferers were saved from starvation.

To the end that similar prompt relief measures by the organization may always be possible the Red Cross is asking continued support by the American people by universal renewal of membership at the Annual Red Cross Roll Call, November 11 to 24.

The method of relief employed by the American Red Cross in its operations in China was particularly effective, for in addition to saving hundreds of thousands of lives it provided China with more than 900 miles of permanent roads that are sorely needed to prevent a recurrence of famine. At one time the Red Cross employed 74,000 Chinese workmen, paying them in food for themselves and dependents, this food being brought in from Manchuria and elsewhere.

BADGITIS—A DISEASE.

"Why do you seek a divorce?" "Your honor, my husband is a victim of badgitis." "Of what?" "Badgitis. Every time a badge is pinned on him he forgets all about his business, his home and his family. He spends so much time attending committee meetings for the public welfare and receiving distinguished visitors to the city he can't earn a living."

Origin of Famous Saying. "Some of the old-fashioned editors still write editorials entitled, 'Whither Are We Drifting?'" remarked Mr. Twobble.

"So they do," said Mr. Gadsper. "I wonder where that phrase originated." "I don't know, but I suspect Noah first said it when there wasn't a scrap of land in sight."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The Fortunate Youth. "And the wedding, you say, was a success?"

"It was. The man got a woman who could cook, the woman got a man who had something to cook, and her father got rid of the eldest of six daughters."

"That's the usual thing; what made it a success beside that?"

"Well, I used to be engaged to the bride!"—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

HIGHER ECONOMY "But your fiance's salary is so small how are you going to live." "Oh, we're going to economize. We're going to do without a lot of things that Jack wants."

Useful Knocking. We would have less woody clamor and more roofs to shield our "domes" if the fellow with the hammer used it in constructing homes.

A Disappointment. "Charley, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "do you understand relativity?"

"No." "I am very much disappointed. Of course, I didn't expect you to understand it, but the way you admit your ignorance shows you don't care nearly as much for my opinion as you used to."

Too Changeable. A mistress said to her maid: "Just look at the barometer, will you, and tell me if it is safe to venture out without an umbrella?" "Oh, ma'am, I wouldn't take any notice of that thing, if I were you. It's as changeable as the weather itself."

Too Good a Shot. "Brown is a good shot, isn't he?" "Very good. We were practicing with our guns at my country place the other day and he hit the bull's eye the first time." "Very clever." "Yes. But he had to pay for the bull."

Following Instructions. The Boss—Funny, they're all gone. Did you post that notice to the employees, "You have work to do here, so be at it?" The Typist—Yes, sir; but I must have left out the space between "be" and "at."

Her First Thought. He—This paper says that Newton's theory of gravitation has been proved false. She—Oh, dear! I wonder if poor Sir Isaac will have his title taken away from him.—Boston Transcript.

Making the Rounds. "This is my fourth tea this afternoon." "You must be a confirmed society man to go to so many." "No, I'm a poet. You have to go to at least four to get enough to eat."

Courtesy on the Road. "A motorist should always be polite." "Always," agreed Mr. Chuggins. "You never know when you may be talking to a speed cop in plain clothes."

STRAIGHT TALK "Are you engaged yet?" "Propose and see."

A Poor Kind of Pleasure. Some people are so obstinate. In keeping a hard hold on hate. That one might think it all they had. Or hoped to have to make them glad.

Wanted to Know. First Actor—I say, Jim, our manager is looking for some one to play the fool. Second Actor—Oh, he is, is he? What's his idea—to sack you or to keep two of 'em?—Boston Transcript.

Annual Roll Call Nov. 11-24, 1921

To bring before the country in visual form the vast problem it is helping to solve, the American Red Cross has prepared for its Annual Roll Call, Nov. 11 to 24, a poster showing how rather than diminishing the total of World War veterans entitled to Federal aid continues to grow. Red Cross Service to these men is costing $10,000,000 a year.

Supplementary Cover. "My friend," said the inquisitive person, "I see you have an arduous of old newspapers." "Your eyes do not deceive you, sir," replied the shabby citizen. "Ahem! What do you get out of them?" "Heat, sir. I sleep under 'em."

Uncommercialized Statesmanship. "Do you think money ought to be used in an election?" "Certainly not," replied Senator Sorghum. "Campaigns have changed. Where a large supply of funds once indicated strength it is now popularly suspected as a confession of weakness."

Emergency Case. "I cannot comprehend your kissing one of your patients, nurse." "But, doctor, it was in my line of duty." "How so?" "This gentleman swore he'd die without it."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

ON A PLATTER "They say his wife fairly worships him." "I guess that's so. I went out there unexpected the other day and noticed she served up a burnt offering."

WITH THE FUNNY MEN

A Mission in Life. "Haven't you more money than you need?" "Yes," admitted Mr. Dustin Stax. "Then why did you take the trouble to break that competitor?" "My friend, when I became wealthy, I resolved to devote my fortune to good works. I recognized the dangers of avarice and I made it my duty to discourage grasping nature."

Not Entirely Eliminated. "Mr. Peckton has sporting proclivities." "Surely not." "He seems to take a great interest in the championship fight."

Growing Up. "That boy of mine is getting entirely too gay."

Deference Due. "You have great respect for the will of the majority."

Tactful. "That young man reads poetry aloud."

IS YOUR HEALTH GRADUALLY SLIPPING?

Interesting Experience of a Texas Lady Who Declares That if More Women Knew About Cardui They Would Be Spared Much Sickness and Worry.

Navasota, Texas.—Mrs. W. M. Peden, of this place, relates the following interesting account of how she recovered her strength, having realized that she was actually losing her health:

"Health is the greatest thing in the world, and when you feel that gradually slipping away from you, you certainly sit up and take notice. That is what I did some time ago when I found myself in a very nervous, run-down condition of health. I was so tired and felt so lifeless I could hardly go at all."

"I was just no account for work. I would get a bucket of water and would feel so weak I would have to set it down before I felt like I could lift it to the shelf. In this condition, of course, to do even my housework was a task almost impossible to accomplish."

"I couldn't rest well at night and was just lifeless."

"I heard of Cardui and after reading I decided I had some female trouble that was pulling me down. I sent for Cardui and began it. . . ."

"In a very short while after I began the Cardui Home Treatment I saw an improvement and it wasn't long until I was all right—good appetite, splendid rest, and much stronger so that I easily did my house work."

"Later I took a bottle of Cardui as a tonic. I can recommend Cardui and gladly do so, for if more women knew, it would save a great deal of worry and sickness."

TOOK HIS BREATH AWAY.

It was a chemistry class and the aged professor, who was anything but a light drinker, was doing a stock experiment, which consisted of blowing vigorously upon some blue crystals, whereupon they turned yellow.

When he had finished he asked the class if they had any questions to ask. "Yes, sir," came a voice from the back of the room. "Will anybody's breath do that?"—Judge.

Getting Down to Realities.

"Father, speaking to you as an experienced quarterback, with a record of four years on the gridiron—"

"We are not using quarterbacks in this business," interrupted the self-made man. "If you can talk to me as a clerk who is ambitious to work his way up to a position of responsibility without any applause from the grandstand, I'll listen."

Previous Training.

"My friend," said the fretful traveler, "our train is two hours late and may be later still, yet you are not at all impatient. How do you manage it, sir?"

"It's this way," said the placid person. "I learned how to wait by living twenty years in a boardinghouse where sixteen other lodgers used the same bathroom."

Something to Think About By F. A. WALKER

EDISON QUESTIONS

THOMAS A. EDISON, who has a very low opinion of the intellectuality of the average college student, has come out with a new set of questions, historical, political, geographical and scientific.

The Wizard is much too honest a man for anybody to suggest that he deliberately got up these posers for the purpose of humiliating his fellow citizens.

So it may be admitted that the wide ground covered by the queries represents his own interest in all sorts of subjects having to do with human activities.

But it is doubtful whether or not ability to answer correctly all or most of these questions could be any test of the intelligence of anybody, in college or out of it. For intelligence and knowledge are very different things.

It was once said of a distinguished man that he had a larger store of useless knowledge than anybody of his time. Mr. Edison would not admit that any knowledge could be useless.

In fact he seems to take the attitude of the late Lord Macaulay who was in the habit of qualifying a statement as to something that nobody knew anything about but himself, by saying "as every schoolboy knows." As a result "Macaulay's Schoolboy" became the proper definition of an in-fact prodigy.

Lord Kelvin was one of the most distinguished men of science of his time. Addressing his students at Glasgow University on one occasion he said that the great thing about the higher mathematics was that it could be of no possible use to anybody.

Yet the fact that Kelvin and a couple of his friends, one in America and another in Europe, used to amuse themselves with these useless investigations, is, in a way, an argument in favor of Mr. Edison. It goes to show that certain things are worth while even if no direct advantage is to be derived from them.

Old-fashioned schoolmasters were great believers in the importance of facts, and a great part of their time was passed in getting them into the minds of the young.

But the modern schoolmaster goes about his business in a different way. He does not try to teach facts. He does try to teach general principles.

It is like the difference between the old geography and the new.

The old dealt with the names of places, rivers, mountains and so on. The new deals with the effect of the physical shape of the earth's surface on the races scattered over it.

A well-trained lawyer is not one who carries all the cases around with him in his head. But he does know how to put his hand on anything he wants.

In the same way it is more important to be able to get at your facts than to know them.

The Second Warning.

Lady (to former cook)—Why, Lena! You had a divorce from your husband a year ago and now you are living together again!

Lena—Yes, ma'am. We're living together in rehashed matrimony now.

THE FIREFLIES

ONE night when the fairies came scampering out to play at the last sound of the last stroke of midnight they found their queen talking with a moonbeam fairy.

Instead of joining in the revels as was her custom, she kept on with her chat with the little silvery fairy who seemed to have much to tell her.

All the heltering, skittering little winds were tumbling over one another in a game of tag with the Dust Fairies, and the Water Fairies were flying hither and thither playing at hide and seek.

But after a while they began to wonder what the Moonbeam Fairy was

"They are very bright little creatures," said the Moonbeam Fairy, "but they are very lonely for you. See even the Moonbeam Fairies run down on the earth at night and they have no one up there to visit."

"So I stopped on my way home last night to chat with them awhile and it was then they asked me if I thought the Queen would take them into her big family and let them run down the Moonbeam path with us each night to the earth."

"What do you say, my children?" asked the Queen. "Shall we welcome the Star Fairies into our family?"

"Oh, yes, dear Queen, let them come," said all the little Fairies, clapping their hands and dancing about their Queen; "and why not send for them tonight while the Moonbeam path is bright and then they will not trip coming along?"

"Very well," said the Queen, "tell the Star Fairies that I will welcome them for the summer months. That is when we have our gayest revels."

So the little Moonbeam Fairy hastened away to tell the lonely little Star Fairies the good news, and down they came flickering and twinkling with joy over their good fortune.

All this happened a very long, long time ago, and if you have any doubt about this story being a really truly true one watch the stars smiling up in the sky as the Star Fairies fly hither and thither during the summer for though we mortals call them fireflies, the Earth Fairies call them their friends from far-away Land, the Star Fairies.

"How would you like some new playmates?" asked the Queen when the fairies gathered around her. "Moon-

Omaha's Aero Congress

OMAHA—Center of the Air Industry. This is Omaha's slogan these days. Why? Because this enterprising Nebraska city of 200,000 people will stage November 3-5 the First International Aero Congress. This congress is Omaha's own idea and the city has carried it out, in spite of many apparently insuperable obstacles, to the point where success is assured. In consequence, Omaha is proudly claiming to be America's most progressive aviation center.

The purposes of the congress are praiseworthy. The congress itself is likely to be of great importance.

One purpose is to bring the flyers together for a big reunion, the first since the World War. Another is to show everything in connection with aviation, in order to interest the people of the nation in flying. A third is to form a national air body for the advancement of aviation in America. The big purpose is: "Aviation supreme for America."

The formation of a national air body appears to be well under way, through preliminary organizations in the states. At this writing twenty-five states are forming state organizations of the congress and will be represented by delegates.

That there is necessity for the formation of such a body seems hardly open to argument. Rudyard Kipling, years ago, wrote of aircraft: "We are at the opening yere of the opening page of the chapter of endless possibilities." We have read far beyond that now and the march of events forces us to keep on turning the leaves, if we would keep our place in the forefront of the procession of the nations.

In the opinion of those who seem best qualified to know, the United States has not kept abreast with other countries in the development of aviation, especially in the matter of development of airways. For example, the best we can show in the way of a transcontinental route is that following the general line of Cleveland, Chicago, Omaha, Reno and San Francisco. The experts declare it to be not more than 40 per cent complete in organization.

An essential of the success of big business is imagination. Imagine, if you can, what the part of aviation in the life of the nation will be five years from now. It is no wonder that men of large affairs want the organization of a national air body and want it now.

Omaha's slogan was inspired by the Aero Club of Omaha, an organization of 100 former pilots and observers of the World War. Nevertheless, all the city is talking aviation these days. Three months ago, of course, it was not so. Omaha was no more enthusiastic over aviation than any other city. When its citizens heard an airplane droning overhead they gazed skyward for a moment. Otherwise they were uninterested.

Then Earl W. Porter, president of the Aero Club of Omaha, conceived the idea of the congress and went to work on it. Now aviation is in the blood of the citizens. They talk of the many phases of air travel with the nonchalance of aces. In other cities the people may call anything that traverses the air an airship. But not so in Omaha; they rightly use the word aircraft. Do you hear blimp in Omaha? Well, hardly. Omaha knows that blimp is not only slang, but obsolete slang, whereas people in other cities are still applying the word indiscriminately to all balloons, rigid and nonrigid airships and lighter-than-air craft. You never catch an Omaha these days saying hydroplane when he means seaplane; he knows that the former never leaves the water. And you find him correctly using airplane, seaplane and airship instead of aeroplane, hydro-aeroplane and dirigible. You may even overhear a conversation about the captive helicopter. In short, everyone in Omaha appears to be enthusiastic about aviation in general and the coming congress in particular.

President Porter went to his fellow clubmen. They indorsed his idea and his plans and pledged their support. They also fixed on him as the logical head of the movement and he was duly made

President of the congress. He accepted the position, turned over his business affairs to his partner and went to work. The first step was to get twenty-five Omaha business men to back the project for $1,000 each. This was easily done.

It was also easy to get the indorsement of all Omaha business and social organizations. A speakers' bureau was formed to educate the citizens. Arrangements to raise funds for financing the congress were made. Attention was then turned to the preparation of a program worthy of the occasion.

Incidentally it became necessary to provide a landing field large enough to stage the program. A little thing like this, however, did not deter the air men, who located a farm of 136 acres showing possibilities as a field, although it was uneven and contained 150 large trees.

A "field day" was duly announced, and the air men and their friends rolled up their sleeves and with the assistance of two Holt caterpillar tractors donated for the occasion, pulled the trees and leveled the land.

An open drainage ditch traversed the center of the field, which lies on the edge of one of the residence districts, only fifteen minutes' ride from the heart of Omaha. The city council was induced to vote unanimously to build a covered sewer through the field at a cost of $21,000. So the problem of a flying field was satisfactorily solved.

In the meantime, an office force was busy mailing thousands of invitations and pamphlets to the air men and celebrities, such as President Harding, Marshal Foch, Orville Wright, Glenn Curtiss and Judge K. M. Landis.

The graduates of Fort Omaha balloon school, the center of America's wartime ballooning, were invited for their first reunion. Squadrons and escadrilles of flyers were asked to hold their first reunions in Omaha. The fifty-two American aces were invited, as well as everyone else interested in aviation.

The aid of Kansas City was enlisted in sending the American Legion convention delegates on to Omaha. The indorsements of national headquarters of the American Legion, of the Aero Club of America, of the World's Board of Aeronautical Commissioners and of the Aircraft Manufacturers' Association were obtained. The co-operation of the Army and Navy air headquarters was asked for and received.

The railroads helped out by offering a fare and a half rate for the round trip from all parts of the country to Omaha. Gutzon Borglum, world-famed sculptor, offered a commemorative medal design symbolical of the work of the American air man during the war, as his "bit." James Hanley, song writer of New York, wrote a special song praising the work of the flyers, to be sung for the first time at the congress.

In preparing its program, Omaha had a piece of rare good luck right at the outset. As everyone knows, the Pulitzer Trophy Race became the world's most famous air event with its first running in November of 1920 at Mitchell Field, New York, under the auspices of the Aero Club of America. There were twenty-five Army, eight Navy, seven Marine Corps and one civilian entrants in the contest. The winner was Lieut. C. C. Mosely of the Army air service, who flew 132 miles in a Verville-Packard machine at an average speed of 178 miles an hour. The Army won seven of the first ten places in the contest and the Navy two. There were 30,000 spectators, including celebrities from all walks of life.

Well, the Pulitzer Trophy Race for 1921 had been scheduled for Detroit, but difficulties had arisen and the Aero Club of America had cancelled the race for the year. Omaha stepped in and offered the necessary funds. In consequence, the first announcement on the program is this:

"The First International Aero Congress announces the second annual aerial contest for the Pulitzer Trophy, in connection with the first contest for the Aero Club of Omaha Trophy and also other aerial events. Sanctioned by the Aero Club of America under the rules of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and those of the First International Aero Congress. To be conducted at Omaha Field, Omaha, Nebraska, U. S. A., November 3, 4 and 5, 1921."

The Pulitzer Trophy Race is a free-for-all contest for high-speed airplanes. The distance is approximately 150 miles, five times around a closed course of 30 miles, from Omaha Field, thence northwest to a captive balloon on railroad track north of Calhoun, Nebraska, thence east to a captive balloon on the southern outskirts of Loveland, Iowa, thence return to Omaha Field. All pilots must hold an aviator's license, issued by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and duly entered upon the competitor's register of the Aero Club of America. All airplanes may compete with pilot only. The Pulitzer Trophy, given by Ralph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World, is a four-foot silver trophy, to be raced for annually. Any flyer winning the trophy two years in succession may keep it. In addition, these prizes are offered: First, $3,000; second, $2,000; third, $1,000.

Event No. 2, set for 3 p. m. Thursday, is an aerobatic contest, with cash prizes as follows: First, $250; second, $150; third, $100. It is a free-for-all contest for all types of airplanes. The contest will be decided on points and the points will be given as follows: Immelman turns, 15; barrel rolls, 15; falling leaves, 20; loops, 20; vertical reversements, 15; tail spin, 15.

Event No. 3, set for Friday at 10 a. m., is a commercial derby for all types of commercial planes. The distance is approximately 250 miles. Starting at Omaha Field, contestants will fly to Des Moines, Iowa, land on Curtiss Field and return to Omaha Field. The prizes are: First, $2,000; second, $1,000; third, $500. The contest will be decided on points.

Event No. 4, set for Friday at 10:45 a. m., is a free-for-all race, with prizes aggregating $475, open to JN's, OX's-Standards, Orioles with Curtiss OX5 motor, Canucks and other planes with a speed of from 60 to 75 miles an hour. The distance is approximately 90 miles.

Event No. 5, set for Friday at 1:30 p. m., is a free-for-all race, with prizes aggregating $475, open to planes with a speed of from 75 to 90 miles an hour. The distance is approximately 90 miles.

Event No. 6, set for Friday at 3:30 p. m., is a parachute jumping contest, with prizes aggregating $350. The jump is from 1,000 feet or more and the winner is the contestant who lands closest to a given mark on the field.

Event No. 7, set for Saturday at noon, is a race for a trophy, with cash prizes aggregating $2,625. It is a closed handicap, open to all machines. The distance is approximately 150 miles.

Event No. 8, set for Saturday at 2:30 p. m., is a bombing contest, open to Army and Navy planes only. The first prize is a gold cup and the second a silver cup.

Inasmuch as the congress is to arouse interest in flying and stimulate the development of commercial flying, the program thus contains events for diversified types of aircraft. The intention is to attract a varied field of entries to compete for prizes to be awarded for desirable airplane performance as well as for high speed.

A feature of the congress will be a half-mile row of various types of airplanes lined up in front of the grandstand, with exhibits of accessories. Actual airplane construction will be shown.

For the entertainment of the crowds the great aerial spectacle, "The Bombing of Courcelay," will be shown, with 100 costumed people in the cast and a model of the French village set up on the field. Parades, banquets, boxing contests and a variety of other functions round out a most attractive program for three days and three nights.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 16

PAUL WRITES TO THE CHRISTIANS AT CORINTH.

LESSON TEXT—1 Cor. 1:10, 11; 13:1-12. GOLDEN TEXT—And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three, but the greatest of these is charity.—1 Cor. 13.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—John 13:34, 35; Rom. 12:9-10. PRIMARY TOPIC—How to Show Our Love.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Love Does. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Letter to the Church at Corinth. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Some Problems of an Early Church.

I. Party Spirit in the Corinthian Church (1:10, 11). In this church rival factions were contending against each other. Some were for Paul, some for Apollos, some for Peter, and some for Christ. The cause of this condition was failure to see that the membership composing His body cannot be divided. By one Spirit all were baptized into the one body (12:13).

II. Love the More Excellent Way (1 Cor. 13:1-13).

All of the Spirit's gifts are good, but the most valuable of all is love. Not all can preach or interpret tongues, but all can have the gift of love. Love in this chapter is the more excellent way of chapter 12:31.

(1) The Pre-eminence of Love (vv. 1-3). It transcends (1) speaking with tongues. For men to possess the loftiest eloquence and be lacking in love is to be as booming brass and clanking cymbal.

(2) The gift of prophecy—the ability to unfold mysteries. To be able to penetrate the mysteries of nature and providence is good, but to love is better.

(3) Faith of the most vigorous kind, even such as to remove mountains, is of less value than love.

(4) Philanthropy of the most generous sort, causing one to surrender all earthly goods for the sake of the poor is praiseworthy, but unless actuated by love is valueless before God.

(5) Heroic devotion which leads to martyrdom is profitless unless backed by love.

2. The Attributes of Love (vv. 4-7).

(1) It is long-suffering and kind.

(2) It is free from envy. Those who love are entirely free from the spirit engendered because of the superior worth and success of others.

(3) It is free from boasting and vanity. Love strives to do good to all and is not careful to seek their admiration and applause.

(4) It is courteous. Love is always polite and mannerly; knows how to behave at all times.

(5) It is unselfish. It is always seeking the good of others and is forgetful of self.

(6) It does not give way to passion. It does not allow itself to be aroused to resentment. It is not quick tempered.

(7) It takes no delight in evil; does not impute evil motives to others; is not suspicious. It is forgiving. Love has no sympathy with that which is evil, but sympathizes with that which is true; has a common joy with it.

(8) It beareth all things. It wraps itself in the gracious mantle of love and shuts all evil out.

(9) Love is trustful; it looks into the future with confidence.

(10) Love is hopeful; it senses the things of the future and brings them into the present, appropriating them for its use.

(11) Love is firm. It is free from vacillation. It intelligently sets its attention to things that are right and with unvarying strength holds fast.

3. The Permanence of Love (vv. 8-13). (1) It outlasts prophecy. Prophecy in the Scriptures means both a foretelling of events and the teaching of the Word of God. Prophecy as prediction shall be fulfilled; prophecy as teaching shall be brought to an end in that day when teaching is not needed (Heb. 8:11; Jer. 31:34).

(2) It outlasts speaking with tongues. The race once spoke the same language, but as a judgment for sin and rebellion God brought confusion and caused the people to speak many tongues. The day is coming when the redemption wrought by Jesus Christ shall have been accomplished in all its fullness; all nations shall be brought back to one tongue.

(3) It outlasts knowledge. The knowledge we now have is only relative, but the day is coming when this relative knowledge shall be done away by the coming in of a wider and nobler intelligence; the twilight shall be lost in maturity, for at Christ's coming we shall see Him face to face as He will be like Him. Love will always be for God is love.

The Search for God.

The search of men for God has been an age-long search, throughout the centuries men have groped in darkness with the cry, "Show us God," the deepest hunger of the heart, and the deepest perplexity of the mind. When Phillips Brooks was called in to give some religious instruction to Helen Keller, spending her life in darkness and isolation, she greeted him with one sentence slowly spelled out. "Please tell me something that you know about God."—Wesleyan Christian Advocate

"THEY SAID I HAD T. B. AND WOULD NOT LIVE THREE MONTHS"

Mr. Harold W. Schmidt, Box 88, Breesee, Clinton Co., Ill., believes he has reason to praise Dr. Hartman's Remedy for Catarrhal conditions.

"I used Pe-ro-na eight months for Chronic Bronchial Catarrh. I do not get tired, feel like a giant, am six pounds over normal weight and able to work every day. In March, 1911, I contracted a severe cold with asthma and took to my bed. They said I had T. B. and would not live three months. After taking a couple bottles of Pe-ro-na and a box of Bio-sin Tablets, could walk around and in seven months went back to work. My trouble was due to Chronic Catarrh of the nose and throat, which I had ten years, extending down into the bronchial tubes. "Pe-ro-na was my life saver."

Profiteer Saw at Once What Was Lacking in Dictionary That Agent Was Offering.

Archer Milton Huntington, the famous author and collector, said at a dinner to Baychester:

"When a war profiteer begins to collect, the spectacle is amusing. A New York profiteer was visited by a book agent who tried to sell him a very elaborate dictionary for his library.

"This dictionary," said the book agent, "has all the latest modern improvements, sir. It includes the newest technical and scientific terms, and there isn't a feature lacking that goes to make a first-class work of the kind."

"Let's have a look at her," grunted the profiteer.

"He examined the dictionary a moment, then he handed it back. 'Young fellow,' he said, 'you can't work that book off on me.'

"What's the matter with the book?" said the agent. "She ain't got no copious index," said the profiteer."

Signs Significant.

The days when camping was a novelty are over, and now camps for children and adults flourish from the Northeast to the far West.

Driving down an Adirondacks road the Mid-Victorian lady noticed two signs within a few miles of each other that warned autoists of nearby camps. The lady wondered if the wording of the signs characterized the real difference between girls' camps and camps for boys.

The first sign proclaimed: "Girls' Camp—Go Slow." The second: "Danger—Boys' Camp Ahead."—New York Sun.

Whose fault is it when your husband is cross at breakfast?

If you hit your thumb with a hammer you wouldn't blame your thumb for hurting.

Then why blame your husband whose nerves may have been pounded by coffee, and whose rest probably has been broken by the irritation of the caffeine it contains?

If you stay awake half the night you don't feel any too cheerful.

The caffeine of coffee and the thein of tea are known drugs. If their use is persisted in, sooner or later the nervous system may give way.

Then you may have insomnia, or disturbed sleep. Your nerves and tissues will be robbed of that stability essential for normal and happy living.

Postum for Health "There's a Reason"

You can avoid this possibility if you'll stop drinking tea and coffee and drink instead, rich, pleasing Postum. Postum is the delicious cereal beverage with a coffee-like flavor. It affords the advantages of a hot drink, without the ill effects of tea or coffee. Order Postum from your grocer today. Try it with the family for a few days, and see what a difference there'll be—how it will permit Nature to bring sound sleep and strong, sturdy, quiet nerves. Sold by grocers. Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.
