PRIZED RELIC OF MAYFLOWER

Soup Spoon That Came Over in Famous Vessel Is in Museum in New Orleans.

New Orleans is not generally suposed to possess relics of the Mayflower, but a spoon which does belong to that class of precious souvenirs may be seen in the History building of the State museum on Jackson square (Place d'Armes). The one in question is a soup spoon of heavy silver, dull and almost without ornamentation. The bowl is more shallow, decidedly rounder than those in use today. The handle is broad and flat, with almost square edges, ending in a flowerlike point at the end away from the bowl. To those who study the hallmarks of silver and china nothing could be more charming than this bit of old silver, loaned by Mrs. Strawbridge, who inherited it from the Duffields, who came over in that much-desired vessel, the Mayflower. New Orleans is o rich in silverware of historical nd intrinsic interest that it is hoped

JEWEL ROBBERS KEEP BUSY

Thieves Reaping Rich Harvest in England-Continental and United States Crooks Blamed.

Revival of the hopes of recovering the famous $675,000 pearl necklace which was stolen from the registered mail between Paris and London has concentrated attention on the huge harvest of jewels which thieves have been reaping in England.

Within the last few months jewels valued at close to $2,000,000 have stolen in this countsy. Scarcely a day passes but that Scotland Yard is notified of some new theft of gems. The seaside places at present its origin. are the favorite fields of the thieves.

The officials of Scotland Yard are convinced that a big gang of continental and United States thieves are responsible for the havoc, but they have been unable to obtain the slightest clews, as the thieves are careful not to leave any. Certain men in the west end of London who have the reputation of being jewel "fences" have been carefully watched but without result.

The facility with which the thieves get rid of the jewels on the continent, and particularly at Brussels, is one of the handicaps which the police are working under. Sales are easily effected and no questions asked so long as the price demanded is fairly reasonable.-London Mail.

He then offered the glass for £400 ($2,000) to various collectors and museums, among others the British museum. All the experts said the glass was charming, but rather too

Eventually, however, a German antiquary showed himself more generous and paid $4,600 for the precious relic, on condition that its authenticity was beyond doubt. Three German experts declared it authentic and the price was paid.

OLD SINNER.

CONVICT AN INVENTOR.

There is now at the prison La Sante a criminal who does not occupy his time writing memoirs or in making verses. This is Victor Cras, condemned to death for having assasinated a perfumery girl in the Rue Mozart. He is occupied with aviation and has discovered a new aeroplane system, of which he has made minute drawings. This system would make, he claims, speed of 500 kilometers an hour (about 313 miles), and is destined to revolutionze the aeronautic art. Knowing without doubt, the brutal response given by the president of the revolutionary tribunal to Lavoisier, "The republic has no need of savants," Monsieur Cras will not ask any delay in order to complete his work. He has confided his plans and the continuation and completion of his work to Maitre Emile Doublet, his advocate.--Le Cri de Paris.

WELL THAT EBBS AND FLOWS

Phenomenon Attracts Many to Always Pleasant County of Northern England.

Two miles out from Settle, on the main road between that town and Ingleton, Yorkshire, Eng., there is to be found one of the most curious of natural phenomena in the shape of the famous ebbing and flowing well of Giggleswick.

A small, unpretentious little structure, scarcely to be distinguished from the ordinary trough of water to be seen on many of our country roads, it is yet one of the most quaint and fascinating spectacles one could hope to see. As the name implies, the well has the nature of a tide; it ebbs and flows "Very good," said the prospective continually, though by no means with regularity.

> Sometimes the privileged traveler will see the oblong stone basin filled with clear water; then, even as he gazes into its pellucid depths, the water gradually sinks until the trough is half empty, or it may be more. There is barely time to wonder at this strange thing ere, with a rush and a whirl, the trough is again full. The ebb and flow continues with more or less marked effect, and the water is never at the same level for two consecutive minutes. Sometimes the outflow has scarcely begun before the basin again fills, but at other times the trough is almost emptied .- Wide World Magazine.

ADVERTISERS GUARD PUBLIC

Declared to Be Greatest Force in Protection of the People From Fraud.

"The great body of advertisers in America is today one of the most substantial forces in protecting the public from fraud."

This tribute from Walter Dill Scott professor of psychology in the Northwestern university, becomes tremendously impressive and indicative of the great work ahead when placed side by side with the astounding figures in the annual report of the postmaster-general.

The latter states that in the last two years, swindling promoters have obtained $100,000,000 by insidious advertising!

More than 4,000 cases, involving a fraudulent use of the mails, were investigated last year by the department inspectors; more than 1,000 persons were arrested; and hundreds were convicted.

All reputable publications are doing their utmost to protect the public from the snares of the dishonest advertisers. There are no two ways on this question of honesty-and there need be no splitting hairs over any visionary "fine points."

Clean, honest, wholesome advertising-advertising that benefits both the buyer and the seller- is easily recognizable. It is the only kind of advertising that is worth while and the only kind that you will ever find intentionally admitted to the columns of any publication of character.

City Will Advertise. Pasadena, Cal., will be well advertised, both in the north and south, in the fall and winter months. At a recent meeting of the board of trade directors it was decided to send sets of the latest Pasadena steropticon views to the California development board, for exhibition at the board's lectures in the Ferry building, San Francisco. Similar sets will also be sent the Radnor World's Fair tour at San Antonio, Texas, the lectures being under the supervision of A. L. Eshman, the president, and for the purpose of attracting large numbers of people to visit the Pacific coast during the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Franncisco in 1915.

gress who may have the leisure to study them. Their obvious importance, as constituting the very substance of the business of the government, makes comment and emphasis on my part un-Country Is at Peace. The country, I am thankful to say, tees and of all members of the con-

is at peace with all the world, and many happy manifestations multiply about us of a growing cordiality and sense of community of interest among the nations, foreshadowing an age of settled peace and good will. More and more readily each decade do the nations manifest, their willingness to bind themselves by solemn treaty to the processes of peace, the processes of frankness and fair concession. So far the United States has stood at the front of such negotiations. She will. I earnestly hope and confidently believe, give fresh proof of her sincere adherence to the cause of international friendship by ratifying the several treaties of arbitration awaiting renewal by the senate. In addition to these, it has been the privilege of the department of state to gain the assent, in principle, of no less than 21 nations, representing four-fifths of the population of the world, to the negotiation of treaties by which it shall be agreed that whenever differences of interest or of policy arise which cannot be resolved by the ordinary processes of diplomacy they shall be publicly analyzed, discussed, and reported upon by a tribunal chosen by the parties before either nation determines its course of action.

There is only one possible standard by which to determine controversies between the United States and other netions, and that is compounded of these two elements: Our own bopor and our obligations to the peace of the world. A test so compounded ought easily to be made to govern both the establishment of new treaty oblieations and the interpretation of those already assumed.

Huerta Must Let Go.

There is but one cloud upon our horizon. That has shown itself to the south of us, and hangs over Mexico. There can be no certain prospect of peace in America until General Huerta has surrendered his usurped authority in Mexico; until it is understood on all hands, indeed, that such pretended governments will not be countenanced or dealt with by the government of the United States. We are the friends of constitutional government in America; we are more than its friends, we are its champions; because in no other way can our neighbors, to whom we would wish in every way to make proof of our friendship, work out their own development in peace and liberty. Mexico has no government. The attempt to maintain one at the City of Mexico has broken. down, and a mere military despotism has been set up which has hardly more than the semblance of national author-It originated in the usurpation of Victoriano Huerta, who, after a brief attempt to play the part of constitutional president, has at last cast aside even the pretense of legal right and declared himself dictator. As a consequence, a condition of affairs now exists in Mexico which has made it doubtful whether even the most lementary and fundamental rights of ther own people or of the itizens of other countries resident within her territory can long be sucessfully safeguarded, and which hreatens, if long continued, to imeril the interests of peace, order and usurper had spoceeded in his purposes. in despite of the constitution of the republic and the rights of its people. be would have set up nothing but a precarious and hateful power, which could have lasted but a little while. and whose eventful downfall would have left the country in a more deplorable condition than ever. But he has not succeeded. He has forfeited the respect and the moral support even of those who were at one time willing to see him succeed. Little by little he has been completely isolated. By a little every day his power and prestige are crumbling and the collapse is not far away. We shall not. I believe, be obliged to alter our policy of watchful waiting. And then when the end comes, we shall hope to see constitutional order restored in distressed Mexico by the concert and energy of such of her leaders as prefer the liberty of their people to their own ambitions.

Currency Reform.

I turn to matters of domestic concern. You already have under consideration a bill for the reform of our system of banking and currency, for which the country waits with impatience, as for something fundamental to its whole business life and necessary to set credit free from arbitrary and artificial restraints. I need not say how earnestly I hope for its early enactment into law. I take leave to beg that the whole energy and attention of the senate be concentrated upon it till the matter is successfully disposed of. And yet I feel that the request is not needed-that the members of that great house need no urging in this service to the country.

I present to you, in addition, the urgent necessity that special provision be made also for facilitating the cred; its needed by the farmers of the country. The pending currency bill does the farmers a great service. It puts them upon an equal footing with other business men and masters of enterprise, as it should; and upon its passage they will find themselves quit of many of the difficulties which now hamper them in the field of credit. The farmers, of course, ask and should be given no special privilege, such as extending to them the credit of the government itself. What they need and should obtain is legislation which will make their own abundant and substantial credit resources available as a foundation for joint, concerted local action in their own be half in getting the capital they must use. It is to this we should now address ourselves.

Allowed to Lag.

It has, singularly enough, come to pass that we have allowed the industry of our farms to lag behind the other activities of the country in its nent. I need not stop you how fundamental to the life of the Nation is the production of its food. Our thoughts may ordinarily be concentrated upon the cities and the hives of industry, upon the cries of the crowded market place and the clangor of the factory, but it is from the quiet interspaces of the open valleys and the free hillsides that we draw the sources of life and of prosperity, from the farm and the ranch, from the forest and the mine. Without these every street would be stlent, every office deserted, every factory fallen into disrepair. And yet the farmer does not stand upon the same footing with the forester and the miner in the market of credit. He is the servant of the seasons. Nature determines how long he must wait for his crops, and will not be hurried in her processes. He may give his note, but the season of its maturity depends upon the season when his crop matures, lies at the gates of the market where his products are sold. And the security he gives is of a character not known in the broker's office or as familiarly as it might be on the counter of the banker.

Efficiency in Farming.

The agricultural department of the government is seeking to assist as never before to make farming an efficient business, of wide co-operative effort, in quick touch with the markets for foodstuffs. The farmers and the government will henceforth work together as real partners in this field. where we now begin to see our way considered distribution of its deposits, facilitated the moving of the crops in the present season and prevented the scarcity of available funds too often experienced at such times. We lag behind many other great countries of the modern world in attempting to do this. Systems of rural credit have been studied and developed on the other side of the water while we left our farmers to shift for themselves in the ordinary money market. handicap and embarrassment which have been put upon those who produce our food.

Study Rural Credit. Conscious of this backwardness and neglect on our part, the congress recently authorized the creation of a special commission to study the vari ous systems of rural credit which have been put into operation in Europe, and this commission is already prepared to report. Its report ought to make it easier for us to determine what methods will be best suited to our own farmers. I hope and believe that the committees of the senate and house will address themselves to this matter with the most fruitful results. and I believe that the studies and recently formed plans of the department of agriculture may be made to serve them very greatly in their work of framing appropriate and adequate legislation. It would be indiscreet and presumptuous in anyone to dogmatize upon so great and many-sided a question, but I feel confident that common counsel will produce the results we must all desire.

Let Sherman Law Stand. Turn from the farm to the world of business which centers in the city and in the factory, and I think that all oughtful observers will agree that the immediate service we owe the business communities of the country is to prevent private monopoly more effectually than it has yet been prevented. I think it will be easily agreed that we should let the Sherman antitrust law stand, unaltered, as it is, with its debatable ground about it, but that we should as much as possible reduce the area of that debatable ground by further and more explicit legislation; and should also supplement that great act by legislation which will not only clarify it but also facilitate its administration and make it fairer to all concerned. No doubt we shall all wish, and the country will expect, this to be the central subject of our deliberations during the present session; but it is a subject so many-sided and so deserving of careful and discriminating discussion that I shall take the liberty of addressing you upon it in a special message at a later date than this. It is of capita! importance that the business men of this country should be relieved of all uncertainties of law with regard to their enterprises and investments and a clear path indicated which they can travel without anxiety. It is as important that they should be relieved of embarrassment and set free to prosper as that private monopoly should be destroyed. The ways of action should be thrown wide open.

I mean the method of selecting nominees for the presidency of the United country when I urge the prompt enactment of legislation which will the ceveral parties may choose their nominees for the presidency without the intervention of nominating conventions. I venture the suggestion that this legislation should provide for the retention of party conventions. but only for the purpose of declaring and accepting the verdict of the primaries and formulating the platforms of the parties; and I suggest that these conventions should consist not of delegates chosen for this single purpose, but of the nominees for congress, the nominees for vacant seats in the senate of the United States, the senators whose terms have not yet closed, the national committees, and the candidates for the presidency themselves, in order that platforms may be framed by those responsible to the people for carrying them into ef-

Independence for Philippines.

These are all matters of vital domestic concern, and besides them, outside the charmed circle of our own national life in which our affections command us, as well as our consciences, there stand out our obligations toward our territories over sea. Here we are trustees. Porto Rico, Hawaii, the Philippines, are ours, once regarded as mere possessions, are no longer to be selfishly exploited; they are part of the domain of public conscience and of serviceable and enlightened statesmanship. We must administer them for the people who live in them and with the same sense of responsibility to them as toward our own people in our domestic affairs. No doubt we shall successfully enough bind Porto Rico and the Hawaiian islands to ourselves by ties of justce and affection, but the performance of our duty toward the Philippines is a more difficult and debatable matter. We can satisfy the obligations of generous justice toward the people of Porto Rico by giving them the ample and familiar rights and privileges accorded our own citizens in our own territory and our obligations toward the people of Hawaii by perfecting the provisions of self-government already granted them, but in the Philippines we must go further. We must hold steadily in view their ultimate independence, and we must move toward the time of that independence as steadily as the way can be cleared and the foundations thoughtfully and permanently laid.

Test of Responsibility.

Acting under the authority conferred upon the president by congress, I have already accorded the people of the islands a majority in both houses of their legislative body by appointing sion which will release these resources five instead of four native citizens to the membership of the commission. I I turn to a subject which I hope believe that in this way we shall can be handled promptly and with make proof of their capacity in coun- which need be no less acceptable to sel and their sense of the responsibil ity in the exercise of political power. be sure to clear our view for the steps which are to follow. Step by step we should extend and perfect the system of self-government in the islands. making test of them and modifying them as experience discloses their should more and more put under the control of the native citizens of th archipelago the essential instruments of their life, their local instrumentalities of government, their schools, all the common interests of their communities, and so by counsel and experience set up a government which all the world will see to be suitable to a people whose affairs are under their own control. At last, I hope and believe, we are beginning to gain the confidence of the Filipine peoples. By their counsel and experience, rather than by our ewn, we shall learn how best to serve them and how soon it will be possible and wise to withdraw our supervision. Let us once find the path and set out with firm and confident tread upon it and we shall not wander from it or linger upon it.

Double Duty Toward Alaska.

A duty faces us with regard to Alaska which seems to me very pressing and very imperative; perhaps I should say a double duty, for it concerns both the political and the material development of the territory. The people of Alaska should be given the full territorial form of government, and Alaska, as a storehouse, should be unlocked. One key to it is a system of railways. These the government should itself build and administer, and the ports and terminale it should itself control in the interest of all who wish to use them for the service and to velopment of the country and its pee-

But the construction of railways is only the first step; is only thrusting in the key to the storehouse and throwing back the lock and opening the door. How the tempting resources of the country are to be exploited is another matter, to which I shall take the liberty of from time to time calling your attention, for it is a policy which must be worked out by wellconsidered stages, not upon theory. but upon lines of practical expediency. It is part of our general problem of conservation. We have a freer hand in working out the problem in Alaska than in the states of the Union; and yet the principle and object are the same, wherever we touch it. We must use the resources of the country, not lock them up. There need be no conflict or jealousy as between state and federal authorities, for there can be no essential difference of purpose between them. The resources in question must be used, but not destroyed or wasted; used, but not monopolized upon any narrow idea of individual rights as against the abiding interests of communities. That a policy can be worked out by conference and concesand yet not jeopard or dissipate them, I for one have ne doubt; and it can be done on lines of regulation the people and governments states concerned than to the people and government of the nation at large. whose heritage these resources are. We must bend our counsels to this end. A common purpose ought to make agreement easy.

Three or four matters of special importance and significance I beg that ou will permit me te mention in clos-

Our bureau of mines ought to be equipped and empowered to render even more effectual service than it renders now in improving the conditions of mine labor and making the mines more economically productive as well as more safe. This is an allimportant part of the work of conservation; and the conservation of human life and energy lies even nearer to our interest than the preservation from waste of our material re-

We owe If. in more justice to the railway employes of the country, to provide for them a fair and effective employers' Hability act; and a law that we can stand by in this matter will be no less to the advantage of those who administer the sailroads of the country than to the advantage of these whom they employ. The experience of a large number of the states abundantly proves that.

We ought to devote ourselves to meeting pressing demands of plain fustice like this as earnestly as to the accomplishment of political and economic referms. Social justice comes first. Law is the machinery for its realization and is vital only as it expresses and embidles It.

de lateracidad congres for the safety at sea to now sitting in Landon at the suggestion of our own government. So seen as the conclusions of that congress can be learned and considered we ought to address ourselves. among other things, to the prompt alleviation of the very unsafe. unjust, and burdensome conditions which now surround the employment of sailors and render it extremely difficult to obtain the services of spirited and competent men such as every ship needs if it is to be safely handled and brought to port. May I not express the very real pleasure I have experienced in cooperating with this congress and sharing with it the labors of common service to which it has devoted itself so unreservedly during the past seven months of uncomplaining concentration upon the business of legislation? Surely it is a proper and pertinent part of my report on "the state of the 'inion" to express my admiration for the diligence, the good temper, and the full comprehension of public duty which has already been manifested by both the houses; and I hope that it may not be deemed an impertinent intrusion of myself into the picture if I say with how much and how constant satisfaction I have availed myself of the privilege of putting my time and energy at their disposal like in counsel and in action.

SMOKE AS A DISINFECTANT

Dislodgement of Morbid Germs Not as Serious as Might Be Im-

Morbid germs are deposited every-where. They may be lodged in the bedding, clothing, hangings and walls. Disinfection is absolutely necessary for their destruction. If this operation is easy when one has etuves at hand and pulverizers for sprinkling the walls of habitations with antiseptic liquids. The case is different when these means are lacking. And yet even in the open country, even in the humblest cottage and in the utmost penury, disinfection is still possible, the Paris edition of the New York Herald states.

Numerous experiments have proved that the smoke caused by the combustion of wood is a most efficacious disinfectant, capable of destroying the pathogenic germs floating in the air and fixed on the walls and furniture as well as those held in the meshes of the tissues which form the clothing. Thus wood smoke is a very easy and cheap means for the disinfection of the bedrooms of patients and of other contaminated dwellings.

In order, that the disinfection should be as complete as possible, rather moist wood should be used, in order to obtain a great quantity of smoke. During the combustion care must be taken to seal hermetically the doors and windows of the room. Finally this fumigation should be renewed several times at intervals of twelve hours. Of course, while the fumigation is proceeding no one should occupy the rooms.

The statement of the antiseptic value of wood ought not to cause surprise, in view of the role it has played for so long a time in the preservation of meats. The point was to think of utilizing it for the disinlection of dwellings.

LIKELY HE DID.

There was a traveling man once who found himself short of funds. His first thought, of course, was to wire his firm, which he did. In a night letter he explained the situation and asked:

"How shall I act?"

The next morning he got a day message, which was nothing if not illuminative:

"Act as if you were broke."

NOTHING IN IT-BUT MONEY.

The late Charles Major, author of "When Knighthood Was in Flower," was a sincere if not a very subtle writer, and he had no patience with the literary trickster.

Mr. Major at a dinner in Shelbyville once condemned the literary trickster with the epigram:

"You can fool some of the people all of the time-but when you consider what kind of people they are, does it really seem worth while?"

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

HAVE SPECTACLES ON COWS

Siberian Breeders Find Them Necessary Because of Radiance From Snowy Plains.

Quaint industries thrive in unexpected spots of our great manufacturing areas, says an English paper. One of the strangest is the making of spectacles for cows.

Siberian farmers prove the chief customers. On sunny days in spring their cows are set free to wander over the snowy plains. The reflection of the solar rays from the snow sets up a form of inflammation in the animals.

An enterprising member of a Birmingham firm, while traveling of trade, grasped it, and now his firm are spectacle-makers-in-chief to nearly all the cows in Siberia. The glasses are made of darkened glass, fixed into leather frames, and are round the horns.

Tourists in the east like to secure "real" Indian or Chinese idols to bring home as trophies of their journeys. The wily Oriental has laid M. Bartley, to-wit: himself out to cater for this demand,

The humble potato is put to some surprising uses. Under one process the outer skin is removed, the white flesh is treated with sulphuric acid and other chemicals, pressed by powerful hydraulic machinery into blocks which are cut and carved into various shapes and sizes and sold as "ivory."

The keyboards of cheap pianos and organs are often made from this "ivory," and it thus happens that people actually produce fairly respectable music through the medium of the humble potato.
