Tahoka Plans Big Two-Days Celebration in June

The enterprising citizens of Tahoka and surrounding territory are making plans to give a big two days barbecue and picnic sometime during the month of June or July, and that the plans will be carried out, is practically an assured fact at this time.

Every business and professional man approached on the subject is exceedingly anxious to put on the celebration, and will back the proposition with the long green.

It is planned to make the affair an attraction worth while and events will be staged to royally entertain the thousands of visitors in attendance. Roping, riding, carnivals, baseball, and many other attractions will be had.

A meeting of the business men will be held Monday night, at which time the plans will be further perfected. Every citizen interested is requested to attend the mass meeting Monday night.

Married at Cisco

On Saturday evening May 22, at Cisco, occurred the marriage of Mr. L. D. Nevil and Miss Irene Griffin. Mr. Nevil is well known in Lynn county, having made his home here for many years. His many friends wish for them many happy years as they travel over life's matrimonial seas. The newlyweds will make their home in Cisco.

Miss Pearl Franklin of Anthonis La. arrived Thursday for a visit with her sister Mrs. J. R. Covey.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton Edwards of the Three Lake community, went to Temple Wednesday for the benefit of Mrs. Edwards' health.

T. O. Stark, a prominent merchant of Seminole, was a business visitor in Tahoka the past week. He had been as far north as Lubbock.

Rev. R. F. Dunn of Crosbyton former pastor of the Methodist church here, passed through on his way to attend the district conference at Lamesa.

The people of O'Donnell and surrounding territory are enjoying the entertainments of a big chautauqua company at that place this week.

Slaton 3; Tahoka 2

In one of the best games of baseball played on the local diamond, or any where in the West for that matter, Slaton defeated Tahoka last Friday afternoon by a score of 3 and 2. The contest proved to be intensely interesting from beginning to end and each team was in fine trim for the battle.

Tahoka succeeded in making the first score and stayed in the lead for several innings, when Slaton tied the game 2 and 2. One or two costly errors by the local boys let in the winning run for Slaton in the seventh and Tahoka was never able to put another man across home plate.

Several hundred fans witnessed the game, many Lubbock and Slaton people being among the number. Branch pitched winning ball for Tahoka, as did the left-handed pitcher for Slaton. Other features of the game was two and three base hits by LeMond and Wells for the locals. R. A. Weathers, cashier of the Bank of O'Donnell, umpired the game.

C. M. Fryman Elected Principal of Schools

At a meeting of the trustees held in Tahoka Ind. School District, No. 2, Monday, Mr. C. M. Fryman, of Mt. Enterprise, Texas, was elected principal of the Tahoka schools for the term of 1920-1921. Prof. Fryman is an ex-United States soldier, having served 22 months across the waters during the last war. He and his wife will move to this city before the opening of school in September. A full report of the meeting will be published in the issue of next week.

Another good Rain Falls Sunday

Lynn county received another good rain last Sunday. The rain fell continuously for more than three hours and amounting to nearly an inch and one half in Tahoka and vicinity.

The precipitation was not badly needed at the time as good rains had fallen all over this section a week previous. It was feared by those who had planted cotton that it would necessitate planting over, on account of baking the ground, and in some instances it may become necessary to do so.

An abundant yield of grain crops is now practically assured. Grass is making a wonderful growth since the rains and warm weather. Farmers are jubilant over the flattering prospects and everything points towards prosperity in good old Lynn county during 1920.

Tahoka Young Ladies Attend League Conference at Lockney

Misses Irma Willoughby and Katherine Knoy are attending a League Conference of the Methodist church, at Lockney, Texas, this week, as delegates from the Tahoka church. The young ladies departed for Lockney early Tuesday and will probably return home the latter part of the week.

Mrs. Eva Petty returned Friday from a visit with her brother-in-law, Tom Petty, in Oklahoma City.

W. B. Slaton, cashier of the First National Bank, attended the Bankers' convention at Galveston this week.

J. L. Heare, the local Santa Fe agent, and C. L. Clark, agent at O'Donnell, attended the Agent's and Operators' convention at Amarillo Saturday.

Mrs. A. D. Shook, daughter, Miss Mildred Shook and granddaughter Adella, left Saturday for Eastland where they will visit Charley Shook, thence to San Antonio, where they will be the guests of Mrs. S. D. Sanders. Miss Mildred will attend school at San Marcus during the summer term.

County Judge, C. H. Cain, left the first part of the week for Dallas, where he went as a delegate from Lynn county to the Democratic State Convention, which convened in Dallas this week.

J. S. and W. C. Wells and Marcus Edwards and families, left overland the first of the week, on a fishing trip down on the Concho. They expect to be absent from home about two weeks.

TEACHERS DEPART UPON VACATIONS

Most of the Tahoka Public School faculty left the latter part of last week for various destinations for the summer.

Mrs. "Mother" Bates, formerly Miss Grace Hester, primary teacher, has retired to the peaceful life of a farmer's wife west of town. Mrs. Tom LeMond, principal, accompanied by her newly acquired husband, left Saturday for a few days visit with her parents at Ballinger, after which they will return to Tahoka to make their home. Miss Donnie Winters, teacher of the fifth and sixth grades, returned to her home at Stephenville. Miss Claybough will spend the summer in Austin. Miss Pauline Powers, teacher of the third and fourth grades, will visit a brother in California. Miss Fay Gooch, teacher in the High School, will spend most of the summer at her home on the ranch near O'Donnell. Prof. H. P. Caveness, superintendent, will assist County Tax Assessor, J. N. Thomas, during the next few weeks. Mrs. H. P. Caveness, teacher of the second and sixth grades, will possible visit in the central part of the state sometime during the summer. Miss Leland Means, teacher of music, returned to her home at Belton.

Lynn County Singing Convention Held Sunday

The Lynn County Singing Convention met in the T - community last Sunday, but owing to the big rain, a very small attendance was had during the day. It was a great disappointment to the citizens of this neighborhood as a great day was anticipated, and a big dinner had been prepared for the occasion. A business meeting was held during the morning and the following officers elected: N. C. Rainey, president; W. B. Bishop, secretary-treasurer and H. A. Patterson, Chaplain. The convention will meet in the Draw community on the third Sunday in August.

Grandmother Baldrige of Lubbock returned to her home Monday after several weeks visit with her son, H. E. Baldrige.

Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Hinds, and Messrs. and Mesdames E. S. Davis and John Thomas, are attending the District Conference of the Methodist church at Lamesa, this week. Rev. Hinds will return here to fill his appointment Sunday morning and evening.

Rev. L. L. F. Parker, pastor of the Baptist church, returned the later part of last week from Washington, D. C., where he was in attendance at Southern Baptist General Convention, held in that city. Bro Parker reports a most enjoyable trip and many thousands of visitors in attendance. The next meeting of the convention will be held at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Two Sheriff's Pass Through Tahoka With Prisoner

Last Monday noon, Sheriff Keller, of Plains, Yoakum Co., and the Sheriff of Roswell, N. M., passed through Tahoka with a young man, who had stolen a brand new buick automobile in Roswell, and had succeeded in getting as far as Abilene with the stolen property when caught by the officers. The party stopped a few minutes in Tahoka on the return home.

Local Methodist Church to Show Special Picture

A special six reel motion picture, entitled The World at Columbus, including a brief survey of the pagan "The Wayfarer" will be shown at the Star Theater, Tahoka, Monday night, May 31st under auspices of the local Methodist church.

Rev. Hinds, who was instrumental in securing this famous picture, states that he has seen the film and desires that every person in Lynn county see the wonderful scenes of The Wayfarer and the city beautiful. Don't fail to see this six reel picture at the Star Theater Monday night. Read the synopsis in the advertisement on the last page of this issue.

Miss Leland Means Presents Pupils in Recital

Music lovers of the city enjoyed a rare treat Friday evening at the Star Theatre, the occasion being the presentation by Miss Leland Means, teacher of piano and voice in the Tahoka Public school, of her pupils in recital. The program as rendered by Miss Means and her pupils indicated wonderful talent, the development of which is creditable alike to both teacher and pupils. The vocal as well as the instrumental numbers were splendidly rendered, and compliments were heard on every hand in the wonderful talent displayed.

Fifth Sunday Meeting at Grassland

The Fifth Sunday Meeting of the Brownfield Baptist Association will meet with the Grassland church, beginning next Thursday night and closing Sunday, May 30. A program of the meeting was published in the News some two weeks ago. It is expected that many members from the local church will attend the services Sunday.

Eighteen Planters Run at Once in Farmers Field

On Tuesday of this week, neighbors and friends of Edgar Parks, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis in a sanitarium at Lubbock, met together and proceeded to plant Park's field in cotton, maize, and corn. Eighteen planters were run at once, and seventy-two horses hitched to same. Eighty-five acres were planted to the above crops. The farm lies four miles east of Tahoka.

Mr. Parks, we understand is recovering nicely from the operation, and we are sure will greatly appreciate the kindness of his friends in their neighborly act.

J. A. Carruth, residing 14 miles northeast of town, enrolls as a News subscriber this week.

Dr. and Mrs. Callaway Leave for Galveston This Week

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Callaway left the first part of the week for Galveston, where they expect to spend something like thirty days in the gulf city, after which they will go to New York, where the Dr. will take up a special course in surgery work. Upon their return to Texas it is their intention to locate in Abilene to make their permanent home. Their many friends in this section regret very much to see these people move away from our little city, and wish them every success where ever they may decide to locate. Dr. Callaway sold all his town property to F. E. Redwine, of Tahoka. He still owns considerable land in Lynn, and will no doubt return here quite often to look after his interests.

Tahoka Schools Close Work of Term 1919-20

The Tahoka Public Schools closed their work for the term of 1919 1920 at Thursday noon, May 20th. The graduation exercises were held at the Methodist church Friday night. The baccalaureate sermon was preached by Rev. W. C. Hinds, pastor of the Methodist church, Sunday, May 16th.

Only one graduate, Miss Lilledell Slover, was had from the school this year.

Quite a nice program was rendered by the pupils of the High School. Instrumental and vocal music and speeches composed the program of the evening. Rev. W. C. Hinds in a few well chosen words presented the graduate with her diploma.

Married

County Clerk, B. H. Robinson, issued marriage license to M. M. Johnson and Miss Nora A. Elmore, of the Edith community Friday, May 21st., and a few minutes afterwards County Judge, C. H. Cain, spoke the words that made them man and wife.

The News joins a host of friends in extending heartiest congratulations.

Resolutions

The School Board passed the following resolution at a meeting Monday, May 24th:

WHEREAS, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Crie have in memory of their three children, Jim, Bessie and Richard, tendered to the Tahoka School about 60 volumes of English, History, and general reference books, and,

WHEREAS, these books are very badly needed in our school library, therefore be it

RESOLVED that we, the Board of Trustees of the Tahoka Independent District, hereby accept the above mentioned books, and extend to Mr. and Mrs. Crie our sincere thanks for their generous donation.

J. E. STOKES, Pres. of Board.
H. M. LARKIN, Sec. of Board.

Mr. and Mrs. Crie are to be commended for remembering the school in such a generous way. In dedicating this library to the memory of their children they have taken a step which will cause their children to be remembered by their young friends in the school for many years. Then they are helping the school in a way that it needs badly.

It is to be hoped that other generous friends of the school will follow the example set by Mr. and Mrs. Crie and send to the library volumes that possible they have read and could spare from their library. Or possibly there are a number of friends who would like to donate a new book or set of books, or any good books for school children will be gladly accepted. The library at this time contains no Bible, a book that should be in every library. Who will be the first to send in a good book? Telephone me what books you have, and I shall be glad to call.

H. P. CAVENESS.

GIVEN PRIVILEGE IN WAR

Channel Islanders for Centuries Were Not Forced to Take Part in Britain's Conflicts.

For over two centuries the Channel Islands were allowed to remain neutral in any war that England might undertake. This singular privilege was granted to them by Edward IV, and was not revoked till the reign of William and Mary. It was granted as a reward for the loyalty of the islanders, whose commerce with the neighboring coasts of Brittany and Normandy was constantly being interrupted by the numerous wars. Even the pope joined in enforcing the right, and by a bull dated 1483 Sixtus IV threatened to excommunicate any one who violated the order. On the whole, it was fairly rigidly observed, and when a Guernsey vessel was taken in the channel by a privateer of Morlaix, the islanders with their boat were released, but a few Englishmen on board, with their merchandise, were captured. The privilege does not seem to have been of any great commercial value, for when it was withdrawn the islanders made more money than before by fitting their vessels out as privateers.

IN WORDS THAT APPEALED

Poetically Expressed Offer of Needed Assistance Touched Elderly Spinster's Romantic Heart.

After the "personally conducted" tour abroad a band of English travelers were crossing the channel home. It was very rough, and most of the ladies retired to the cabin. Only one—an elderly little spinster—stayed on deck.

As the vessel pitched and tossed, and heavy showers of spray drenched everything, a fellow tourist came to her.

"Excuse me, Miss Black, but I thought perhaps you feel the need of a strong arm to lean on—something to support you, you know?"

"Oh, Mr. Binks!" sighed the lady, as she lurched toward him and landed her head on his shoulder. "How sweetly and romantically you have expressed it!"

BIG FLOOD RAGING IN TRINITY RIVER

EXPECTED STAGE OF 40 FEET WILL BE SECOND HIGHEST ON RECORD.

Dallas.—One of the greatest floods ever known in the Trinity river is raging. A number of families along the pike in West Dallas have moved to higher ground, one store in the same neighborhood has moved its stock of goods and fixtures.

Joseph L. Cline, meteorologist, of the weather bureau says that the farmers had had ample warning to get their stock out of the bottoms, but that a large acreage of crops would be destroyed by the flood.

The greatest flood ever known in the river was May 25, 1908, when the stage at Dallas was 52.6 feet. The river rose 7.3 feet at Fort Worth in twelve hours Sunday and 7 feet at Carrollton on Elm Fork.

Mr. Cline says that the rise in the river is to some extent being offset by the fall and that unless there should be more rain he did not think the flood would reach more than 40 feet at Dallas. The lowlands between Dallas and Trinidad will be overflowed in the next few days. The crest of the flood will not reach Trinidad before Thursday or Friday. The station at Trinidad has warned farmers to move their stock from the bottoms.

The rainfall at Dallas Sunday night measured 3.10 inches, the heaviest downpour in one rain since last October. Fort Worth reported 2.01 inches Sunday night and Bridgeport 1.13 inches. Heavy rains were also reported at Abilene, Snyder, McKinney, Quanah and Brownwood.

If the river goes to forty feet it will break all records except that of May 8, 1908. Oldtimers say that back in the 60s there was a flood much greater than that of 1908, but that was before records were kept.

Traffic over the Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf was suspended on account of high water at the point where the railroad crosses Elm Fork creek, about four miles from this city.

High water in tributaries of the Trinity river disrupted steam road and electric traffic Monday between Dallas and Fort Worth. Interurban travel was suspended after the arrival of the 8:30 a. m. car, and all passenger trains on the Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf railway between the two cities were destroyed over the Texas & Pacific railway.

Trains over other railroads serving Dallas were reported running without interruption. High water has not interfered with traffic over the lines of the Texas Electric railway.

ARRANGING FOR FUNDS TO BUILD NEW INTERURBAN

Prominent Capitalists Will Confer; Expect Early Agreement

Dallas.—Final arrangements alone stand between the consummation of the deal for the building of the Dallas-Wichita Falls interurban, and it is hoped to make the necessary financial arrangements within the next few days. Owen D. Young, vice president of the General Electric company, who is here to confer with Dallas and Wichita Falls interests, said Monday.

The General Electric company has agreed to put up $1,500,000 to match the sum to be provided by Dallas and Wichita Falls. Mr. Young explained, leaving $4,500,000 to be raised by the issue of first mortgage bonds, the engineer's estimate placing the cost of the road at $6,500,000.

"In ordinary times it would be an easy matter to finance the deal, with $3,000,000 in actual money to back the project," Mr. Young said. "But under present conditions of the money market it will be more difficult."

Storerooms Robbed of Whisky.
Kansas City, Mo.—Five unmasked robbers held up the storerooms of a former saloon here and drove away with two truckloads of whisky, valued at $20,000. The proprietor was forced to operate an elevator while the robbers carried the whisky from the third story to the street and placed it in motor trucks. Then he and a clerk were bound and gagged and the men made their escape.

Wheat Bord Announces Price Boost.
Winnipeg, Man.—The price to mills of all grades of western wheat has advanced 35 cents a bushel and British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec wheat 40 cents a bushel.

Must Form Another Mexican Policy
Washington.—The state department is confronted with the framing of a new Mexican policy following overthrow and capture of Carranza and seizure of Mexico City by revolutionists.

CARRANZA NOW HAS CHANCE TO GET OUT

OBREGON ORDERS GUARD BE REFERRED TO ESCORT HIM TO VERA CRUZ.

Vera Cruz, Mexico.—President Carranza's troops, which had been standing at bay north of San Marcos in the state of Puebla, have been driven from their positions, according to advices received here. Part of the president's small army is advancing north in the direction of the state of Hidalgo, apparently for the purpose of opening a path for the remainder of the troops still loyal to Carranza to make their escape.

Orders have been sent to the officers directing the attack that they notify Carranza that he can go out of the danger zone, in order that his life may be spared, offering him a guard to escort him to Vera Cruz, that he may leave the country and be free to go wherever he wishes.

Washington.—Official confirmation of the occupation of Mexico City by rebel forces Friday, May 7, has been received by the state department from the American embassy. There was no disorder and no foreigners were interfered with, the message said.

Laredo, Texas.—Nuevo Laredo, the Mexican town opposite this city, surrendered to rebel forces Sunday morning after a two hours' battle. The revolutionists attacked from three sides of the town.

General Reynaldo Garza, commander of federal forces in the Nuevo Laredo military district, is a refugee on American soil. Following defeat of his troops and capture of Nuevo Laredo by revolutionists the Carranza officer arrived in Laredo and took refuge in the Mexican consulate.

Nogales, Ariz.—Reports that Venustiano Carranza of Mexico had been captured by forces of General Alvaro Obregon and General Benjamin Hill have been received from Hermosillo, Sonora, at Obregon headquarters at Nogales, opposite here.

MAY 20 IS DATE SET FOR SPECIAL SESSION

Proclamation Is Issued By Governor To Pass Boll-Worm Legislation.

Austin, Texas.—Governor Hobby has issued his informal proclamation convening the legislature in special session in Austin to meet at 10 a. m. Thursday, May 20, three subjects being submitted at the start.

The subjects submitted in the proclamation are described as follows: To enact legislation which will make it possible to establish zones in which the growing of cotton may be effectively prohibited or regulated in areas infested with what is known as the pink bollworm to the end of stamping out such infestation as a menace to the cotton industry of Texas and to the end of preventing a quarantine against the interstate shipment of Texas cotton and cotton products by the horticultural board of the United States government.

To make provisions for maintaining the public schools and the educational institutions of Texas during the next scholastic term.

To make appropriations necessary to supply deficiencies and for the support of the state government.

To consider and act upon such other matters as may hereafter be presented to Section 10, Article 3, of the constitution of the State of Texas.

A number of additional matters have been suggested from time to time, but the governor promises nothing just now outside of those carried in his proclamation.

DEBS CHOSEN AS THE SOCIALIST BANNER BEARER

New York.—The socialist party of America has plunged into the active political warfare of the 1920 presidential campaign with broadside after broadside fired by "the big guns" at the national convention mass meeting in Madison Square Garden.

Enclosed in this fortress, which was surrounded by a strong cordon of New York police, to guard against "anti-radical" demonstrations, the meeting hailed Eugene V. Debs, now serving a ten years' sentence in the Atlanta, Ga., federal prison for violation of the espionage act, as the socialist candidate for president.

"International socialism, to be gained by peaceful means through the reinforcement of political action by industrial action" was declared the aim of the party.

WILSON TOLD NAVY TO WIN BY DARING

PRESIDENT'S INSTRUCTIONS DELIVERED AUG. 11, 1917, MADE PUBLIC.

Washington.—President Wilson's hitherto unpublished war instructions to the officers of the Atlantic fleet, given in person on the quarterdeck of the flagship Pennsylvania on Aug. 11, 1917, and bidding them "throw tradition to the wind," strike the word prudent from their vocabularies and "do the thing that is audacious and the utmost point of risk and daring," were made public here by Secretary Daniels.

The president spoke as commander in chief of the navy and at a time when the German submarine menace was uncurbed. In laying the text of his remarks before the senate naval investigating committee, Secretary Daniels said they showed the "bold and vigorous policy the president has outlined for the navy."

"Do not stop to think what is prudent for a moment," the president said. "You will win by the audacity of method when you can not win by circumspection and prudence."

"I think that there are willing ears to hear this in the American navy and the American army, because that is the kind of folks we are."

"There will have to come a new tradition into a service which does not do new and audacious and successful things."

The president also expressed his dissatisfaction with progress then being made toward curbing the submarine campaign.

"We are hunting hornets all over the farm and letting the nest alone," he said. "I am willing, for my part, and I know that you are willing, because I know the stuff you are made of—I am willing to sacrifice half the navy Great Britain and we together have to crush that nest, because if we crush it the war is won."

The British admiralty had met American suggestions with what amounted to statements that "it never had been done," the president said, adding:

"And I felt like saying, 'Well, nothing was ever done so systematically as nothing is being done now.'"

HIGHWAY MEETING AT HOBERT, OKLAHOMA

Denver - Canadian - Dallas Line Is Logged for 1,500 Miles.

Hobart, Okla.—Despite interrupted train traffic due to torrential rains Monday night more than 250 delegates from Colorado, Oklahoma and Texas attended the annual convention of the Denver-Canadian-Dallas Highway Association here. Governor Robertson opened the convention with a good roads talk, advocating a system of roads connecting all county seat towns in the state.

The association endorsed an entire system of hard surfaced roads as fast as the divisions are able to finance the proposition. In the future all D.-C.-D. stretches must be regularly dragged and all turns must have round corners, according to a definite declaration of policy by the convention.

The D.-C.-D. highway is now logged from Galveston to Denver, a distance of 1,500 miles.

$5,000,000 TO RELIEVE SCHOOLS.

Austin, Texas, May 13.—Miss Annie Webb Blanton, state superintendent of public instruction has asked the state board of control to recommend an appropriation of $5,000,000 by the coming special session of the legislature to meet the crisis in the public school system. The $5,000,000 with the present school fund apportionment of $8.50 per capita, would bring the total allowance to about $12 for each child enumerated within the scholastic age. This money is to aid graded, common rural and high schools.

Fort McHenry Hospital Will Close.

Baltimore, Md.—Almost immediately after receiving orders to leave Fort McHenry and report for duty at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, Colonel Clarence J. Manly, commandant of Fort McHenry since March 4, received a communication from Surgeon General Merritt W. Ireland officially ordering Fort McHenry to close as an army hospital on May 31. Farmer Killed In Storm.

Paris, Texas.—Tuesday afternoon a cyclone passed five miles northwest of Paris, leaving in its wake nearly a dozen wrecked dwellings and barns. Ed Wisely, a farmer, was killed by a flying timber when his home was destroyed. Mrs. Wisely was carried a quarter of a mile in the storm and left in a field, with the exception of a cut on her knee and one on her forehead, was not injured.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have

Have you ever stopped to think that so many people are so tensively advertised, all at once, and are so sure of their reason is plain—their reason applies more particularly to a medicinal preparation of curative value almost without an endless chain system, recommended by those who have benefited, to those who are to be benefited.

A prominent druggist and chemist Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a preparation I have used for almost every case it claims to cure. No other kidney remedy has ever done so much for me.

According to sworn verified testimony of thousands who used the preparation, the Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is the most every wish in removing liver and bladder ailments, many troubles and nervous acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a copy of Swamp-Root by Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents in paper. Large and medium bottles for sale at all drug stores.

In the matter of medicine, well as a living, we are the books cut a paramount fact.

LIKED HIS "BATH"

Rabbit Seemed to Enjoy Powerful Electric Shock.

Experiment Recently Made Shows Great Possibilities in This Form of Treatment for Toning Up the Nervous System.

It is almost sure death to step upon the third rail of an electric road, for he who does it will get a shock of at least 500 volts. But you can jump on a third rail and stand on it with both feet and feel nothing. You must, however, jump off with both feet or you will get the shock. The reason is that when both feet are on the rail there is no circuit.

Watching two boys amusing themselves by jumping on and off a third rail on Long Island recently, H. Gernsback, editor of the Electrical Experimenter, wondered what would happen if he were to stand on the pole of a very powerful Tesla coil. He went to where there is one of the electrical testing laboratories, where there is one of the most powerful high frequency machines in the country, giving 500,000 volts and using 20 kilowatts. This machine throws streams of electric fire six to seven feet long, the noise of which can be heard several blocks away. Mr. Gernsback wanted to stand on the metal plate of the "high" terminal of the transformer, but the managers would not let him, for fear of an accident. He had with him, however, a live rabbit, and they let him put the bunny on that perilous spot.

"At first," writes Mr. Gernsback in the Electrical Experimenter, "he was much frightened and jumped off the plate at about five kilowatts. Long sparks had shot out from his nose and above his eyes and at the ends of the ears. So the writer wetted the platform with water, because he thought that sparks might be jumping into the rabbit's belly and legs which insulated the fur part of his body, giving rise to stinging sparks. An improvement was seen immediately. The rabbit now held perfectly still for about 20 seconds, taking the full charge of 20 kilowatts at 500,000 volts. Long spark streamers, four or five feet long, shot from brer' rabbit's nose, ears and back, and, curious to note, immediately above the eyes, and after that the rabbit took the full charge, never moving once for 20 seconds at a time. After a while the rabbit seemed to enjoy the performance, and right after his seance he was as lively as ever, eating a big carrot at once."

Mr. Gernsback points out that there is a practical value in this experiment, for a charge of electricity such as the one described gives a dry bath which removes every particle of dead skin, dust and dirt and huris them far from the body. Such electric baths also soften hardened arteries, tone up the nervous system and "make the old feel younger and the young younger aggressive."

O'Donnell Defeats Brownfield Wednesday 3 to 6

In a game of baseball at O'Donnell Wednesday afternoon, between that city and Brownfield, O'Donnell won out easily over the Terry county boys by a score of 3 to 6. Owing to the hind wind which came up in the afternoon it was difficult to play clean ball, however the O'Donnell team, with Skip Taylor in the box succeeded in adding another string to their victory belt. Several cars of Tahoka fans witnessed the game.

Memorial Cottages.

The number of lives the war took has not been adequately reckoned. The number of families it broke up is likewise uncounted. Yet right after it we have a greater shortage of housing than ever. There is interest in this connection in a letter to the London Spectator, evidently from one of the sufferers of the war. It contains a suggestion which may or may not be new in this country.

The writer calls attention to an article in the London Chronicle telling of the building of 120 cottages for ex-service men in Westmoreland, called war memorial cottages. It is not clear to him whether these were built by public or private funds, but never mind that. "Would it be possible," he asks, "for individuals to do likewise? What more practical memorial of any fallen hero than to provide a home for a disabled soldier or sailor or for his widow and children?" Though our war widows and orphans and our disabled soldiers are few compared with the losses of Great Britain, we have need enough for more houses, and the memorial cottage idea is not a bad one.

Deserves None.

"Things ain't goin' to suit me in this country," said the seedy citizen.

"Paid your poll tax lately?" asked the brisk old gentleman.

"None."

"How long has it been since you voted?"

"'Bout twelve years, I reckon."

"Umph! You are not going to get any sympathy from me."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The inference seems to be that somebody in Washington club life, woman's club life at that, is graciously giving the wounded soldiers once-used card decks which have somehow been knife-pointed. The war veterans say that they have been shell shocked and otherwise startled, but they are vastly amazed at a phase of society life in Washington.

Probably First Moving Pictures.

America is not the original home of the moving picture. This assumption is disproved by an apparatus of ancient Siamese civilization recently rediscovered. The apparatus consists of a number of ancient movie machines unearthed at the National museum in New York, where they had been hidden away in boxes since their presentation to this country by the king of Siam in 1875.

The cinematic art as practiced hundreds of years ago in Siam was carried on as follows: The proper number of figures, designed from leather by hand, were mounted on rods and projected on the screen by the hand of the operator. The screen was a white cloth hung between the audience and the light. The shadows were manipulated by the operator's pushing the manikins along in a trough. As action advanced through climax and anti-climax, the operator recited in a singsong voice five-reel dramas of the love and wrongs of the kings and queens represented.

Would you sell your house for what it is insured for?

That's one way to determine whether your fire insurance is adequate. Most homes are under-insured not because owners are carrying less protection than formerly, but because values have tremendously increased and additional insurance has not been written to cover the gain in value. Life Was a Misery

Mrs. F. M. Jones, of Palmer, Okla., writes: "From the time I entered into womanhood . . . I looked with dread from one month to the next. I suffered with my back and bearing-down pain, until life to me was a misery. I would think I could not endure the pain any longer, and I gradually got worse. . . Nothing seemed to help me until, one day, . . . I decided to

The Woman's Tonic

"I took four bottles," Mrs. Jones goes on to say, "and was not only greatly relieved, but can truthfully say that I have not a pain. . . ."

"It has now been two years since I took Cardui, and I am still in good health. . . . I would advise any woman or girl to use Cardui who is a sufferer from any female trouble."

If you suffer pain caused from womanly trouble, or if you feel the need of a good strengthening tonic to build up your run-down system, take the advice of Mrs. Jones. Try Cardui. It helped her. We believe it will help you.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. LESSON FOR MAY 23

ISRAEL'S FIRST KING.

LESSON TEXT—1 Sam. 9:15-19:24. GOLDEN TEXT—Only fear the Lord, and serve him in truth with all your heart.—1 Sam. 12:10.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—1 Sam. 8:4; 10:25-27. PRIMARY TOPIC—Saul Visits Samuel. JUNIOR TOPIC—Saul Chosen as King. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Kingly Qualities in Saul. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Selection of Leaders.

I. The People Demand a King (vv. 8:1-9).

1. Their reasons for this demand. (1) Samuel was incapacitated by old age; (2) the unfaithfulness of his sons whom he had appointed as his successors; (3) the desire to be like other nations. The surrounding nations had a king as leader. They wanted a king who would go out and fight their battles (see v. 20). The desire to be like others causes many to depart from the Lord.

2. Samuel's behavior under this trial (v. 9:9). He took the matter to the Lord in prayer. The Lord comforted him by assuring him that this rejection was not merely his rejection, but the rejection of the kingship of God.

II. Samuel Tells of the Manner of the Kings (vv. 10-18).

He shows them that the king will be very exacting and arbitrary in his dealing with them.

1. He will take their sons and make them to serve in the army and do all kinds of hard work on his farm and in his house. He will make slaves of their daughters, also.

2. He will take their lands, even those inherited from their fathers and give them to his favorite officers and servants. Not content with that he will take the tenth part of the produce that remains and give to them.

III. Samuel's Protest Disregarded by the People (vv. 19-22).

Having made up their minds they deliberately shut their eyes to the truth and rushed madly into the experiment. Men today just as deliberately are turning from God's King, going after the lusts of their own hearts, but God makes the wrath of men to praise him.

IV. The King Provisionally Pointed Out (1:10-16).

Saul was sent by his father to search for the asses that had wandered away. While Saul and his father were acting freely in this matter, at the same time God's sovereign purpose was being carried out. Although difficult to understand, God carries forth his sovereign purpose without interfering with man's freedom.

V. The King Chosen at Mizpeh (10:17-27).

The Lord had already pointed out to Samuel who should be king and Saul had been anointed. Let us observe:

1. Why Saul was chosen. If they would have a king the Lord would give them the one best suited to fill the place. He was from Benjamin, a small tribe, which would prevent undue rivalry between Ephraim and Judah, the leading tribes of Israel. He was also chosen because of his personal fitness (v. 24). He had the natural qualifications for his work, namely, self-control, modesty, and a military instinct.

2. How Saul was chosen. The method was by lot. Samuel called them together before the Lord, and before the lot was cast he again remonstrated with them against such action. He showed them the base ingratitude of their rejection of God as their King.

3. How the king was received by the people. Saul knew that the Lord had chosen him, but through modesty and fear he shrank from the responsibility. By inquiry of the Lord his hiding place was made known. When he was brought forth Samuel presented him to the people, assuring them that Saul was the Lord's choice. Some were enthusiastic in their reception and shouted, "God save the king!" Others mocked and refused him allegiance.

VI. The King Confirmed at Gilgal (ch. 11).

Soon after the election at Mizpeh the Ammonites made a desperate demand upon the men of Jabesh-gilead, Saul hearing of it, hastily summoned the tribes together for war and won a remarkable victory. As he thus proved his ability the people wished to punish the sons of Belial, but Saul forbade them. Samuel took advantage of this auspicious situation and called all the people together at Gilgal where they formally crowned him their king.

Growth. All fruits grow—whether they grow in soil or in the soul. No man can make things grow. He can get them to grow by arranging all the circumstances and fulfilling all the conditions. But the growing is done by God.

The Most Insignificant.

The most insignificant people are the most apt to sneer at others. They are safe from reprisals, and have no hope of rising in their own esteem but by lowering their neighbors.—Hazlitt.

Boy Scout's Explanation Somewhat Disconcerting in That It Implied So Much.

One Missionary to Eskimos of Sealskins and Animal Skins Employed Only One

The boy scouts were telling their scoutmaster of some of the good turns they had done during the last week. He was having this done for the benefit of one of the city school teachers who was visiting the meeting. One of the little scouts said, "I helped an old lady across the street."

The next little scout looked at the visiting teacher, who happened to be his teacher, and who also was in the early thirties. "I brought my teacher a pitcher of well water when she was not feeling well," he told the scoutmaster.

The teacher smiled, "Why didn't you say you helped another old lady?" she asked. The retort that came back staggered her. The little scout said sweetly, "A scout is courteous."—Indianapolis News.

LUBBOCK, TEXAS

Library Building, University of Texas, on Left; Typical "Shack," University of Texas, Lower Right Hand Corner.

Physical Plant of the University of Texas

Need of New and Modern Buildings Strongly Shown—Many Dilapidated "Shacks" Dot the Campus—Contents Very Valuable—Constant Fire Menace—Poverty Row.

On account of the great increase of attendance at the University of Texas during the last two years it has been found necessary, in the absence of permanent buildings, to erect a large number of additional shacks to accommodate the students. At this time there are twenty-one of these unsightly and dilapidated buildings upon the campus. These temporary wooden, unpainted structures represent a total cost of approximately $200,000. This money is practically wasted it is claimed by expert builders. On account of the flimsy nature of the construction of the shacks they last but a few years. The older they are the more expensive is their upkeep. Even in the present condition of newness of most of them the annual cost of repair work upon them is approximately $10,000. In the case of the permanent buildings, such as the library and education buildings, which are of the most modern type of construction, the cost of upkeep is practically nothing.

Inflammable Shacks Fire Menace.
It is pointed out also that the twenty-one shacks which are scattered about the campus are a constant fire menace. The contents of some of these frame buildings are very valuable. This is true especially of the mechanical engineering buildings, with machinery valued at $200,000, and the chemical buildings, that of K Hall alone being more than $50,000. The University printing plant in the School of Journalism shack represents a value of about $20,000. State property in these shacks is subject also to damage by leakage of bad roofs and the grinding dust that pours in through the window casings and other openings.

Spoil Otherwise Beautiful Surroundings.

In the lack of financial provision for the erection of permanent buildings at the University these wooden shacks have been increased in number until they now overshadow the otherwise attractiveness of the physical plant of the institution. It is asserted that aside from the unsightliness of these frame buildings they are already out of keeping with the work of both the students and instructors. There is nothing inviting even to the extent of ordinary comfort in the interior class room and office facilities of these buildings.

Many Shacks Overcrowded.
No two pictures of any number of them could adequately portray the contrast between the shacks and permanent buildings of the University. For the purpose, however, of giving some idea of the difference between the architecture and appearance they are shown above a picture of the library building with an inset of one of the shacks that is used as a chemical laboratory. There are three temporary wooden buildings used by the School of Chemistry. When the fact is considered that there are more than one thousand students enrolled in on course of chemistry the crowded condition of these shacks may be somewhat realized.

On the east side of the campus is a long line of shacks that were constructed originally as barracks for the Students Army Training Corps and which are now used for class room and offices. These buildings have been likened to the famous cool lines of South African planters, but they are referred to often as "Poverty Row."

NOT TRUE 'GENIUS'

"Wonder Children" Merely Intellectually Precocious.

In Most Cases They Are Possessors of an Abnormally Retentive Memory—Do Not Necessarily Die Young.

A few days ago there appeared an account of the doings of Samuel Roschewski, a wonderful chess player, eight years old, who is confounding Berlin with his uncanny knowledge and skill.

These "wonder children" always arouse especial interest, and, as many explanations are put forward to account for their apparent genius, there are gloomy forebodings as to their meeting with an early death.

There have been many "wonder children" in the past, and it is strange, though true, that quite a large proportion have lived to the average age.

In recent years there have been a number of child evangelists who have startled the world by their eloquence and theology. In the United States a few years ago a boy nine years old attempted to convert the whole country, and when ten years old he was actually appointed minister of a church in North Carolina.

In Great Britain there are records of a child twelve years old who preached in a Baptist church at Portbeal, and a small boy who, at the tender age of three, began preaching to crowded audiences and continued to do so until well after ten years old.

In the case of such prodigies, their talents consist chiefly in an abnormal, retentive memory and, provided that their temperaments are not emotional, they stand the mental strain exceedingly well, though there is, of course, the danger attached to the excessive physical strain which they frequently undergo.

To this type belong those children who learn rapidly by heart such things as the times, words and numbers of all hymns in the ancient and modern hymn-book. It is such children, with a high development of one faculty, who most often meet with early death, and maybe it was in such cases that old saying, "The wise die young" had its origin.

But the child chess player in Berlin belongs rather to the type of intellectual precocity, such as the learned child of Lubek of the early part of the eighteenth century. This child could recite the whole of the Old and New Testaments before he was two years old, and a little later he was an authority on religious history and dogma. He mastered also ancient and modern geography and history and several languages before his death at the age of four years.

A contemporary of this wonderful child was fluent in five languages before he was five, and translated the Hebrew Bible into Latin and French at the age of eight. He survived until he was nineteen.

Historical and clinical evidence are both definite in showing that "wonder children" are no more liable than other children to die young, nor is it found that children who assimilate knowledge readily and retain it show any undue signs of fatigue.

The great point in the case of children marked by special brilliance is to avoid any attempt at making the brilliance apply to everything, for in so doing the existing brilliance in the one special direction may tend to disappear. In the same way those who are intellectually brilliant must not be forced to become industrious in a practical way, for such interference invariably brings on over-strain and breakdown.

How's This, "Pedestrians?"

It was an inky black night and we were riding along a country road, when we saw a railroad crossing ahead. We stopped about a hundred feet from the tracks and peered through the brush and trees that lined the road. There up the track we saw a light moving toward us. The driver wished to move on, but I, being very nervous, objected loudly, so we waited at least five minutes. The light kept drawing nearer, but the driver in disgust insisted upon crossing, saying it was probably a slow freight. But again I shrieked loudly, for I knew train lights were so deceiving at night and it must be nearly upon us by now. We continued waiting in the darkness for the train to pass, and as the light drew nearer we discovered our locomotive to be nothing more than a man coming down the track with a lantern.—Chicago Tribune.

Psychic! Baffling! Mysterious! Amazing!

It was a mental case that puzzled the brain specialist, Dr. Kirkland. He was quite sure that the man wasn't himself. The man was equally positive that he was. The solution was very hard to guess. At times it looks as if all the characters might be a little daff. The author will finish with a sense of satisfaction in a thoroughly up-to-date story which introduces a new theme, some very odd situations and amusing complications. Will appear serially in these columns.

suppose that has to be the answer. Well—

"I'll tell Embree you didn't accept," and reached for his hat. "And I can't bother you any more this evening; we've both too much to do. I only wanted to see you a moment to tell you the news and get your check. But when Cullen and I come—" His smile was glorious.

They were shaking hands at the door of the ante-room.

"That'll be before the holidays, won't it? We expect you to take Christmas dinner with us, of course. Durant and Carol would never forgive you if you didn't—and neither will I."

Hilliard flushed with pleasure.

"Nothing would please me better than you'll tell Mrs. Durant and how grateful I am . . . and how I am I can't even stop now to good-by, won't you?" As a matter of fact, he wasn't going to stop because he knew that if he did he might get to Montana. And there was a quick action against Harmon's throat partners in New York.

"Surely I will. And I'll also tell them at an altruist you are. I still don't exactly right about it—but the world's the world. . . . And I'm not going to refuse an investment just because there happens to be money in it!"

Good-by! Good luck—my boy!"

CHAPTER XV.

Already at daybreak it was a white Christmas; white underfoot, white ahead, dancing, swirling white of snow in the winter air. Hilliard, lifting himself on his elbow to watch it stream in the car window, was unreservedly thrilled by the appropriateness of it.

Two o'clock . . . on time for dinner to the second! A house hanging with evergreen; a Christmas spirit permeating every nook and cranny; Christmas odors—not all of evergreen—drifted in tantalizing whiffs to meet him.

A joyous interlude; a gay procession; a hush; a gravely spoken blessing—Oh, that Christmas!

There came a time early in the evening when Hilliard found himself alone with Carol. He had a vague recollection that they had been sent to look for something . . . a corn popper, or some other equally futile article . . . and for an instant he marveled at their expecting to find it in the sun-parlor, where they had wandered. But the sun-parlor was happily unoccupied; and there were comfortable chairs in it; and something very green and red and seasonal in all the windows; so that they both delayed prodigiously, and exchanged a number of highly inconsequential remarks about the decorations. Presently, without so much as a transient thought for the corn-popper, they sat down with one accord. From a distance the murmur of cheerful voices in the living room was an adequate accompaniment to their thoughts.

Hilliard's head was dropped low; his reverie was so profound that not even Carol's voice could rouse him—not until she spoke a second time.

"I said—a penny for them," she repeated, amused.

"Oh!" Hilliard's awakening was explosive. "Why, that's queer . . . I was just thinking about that myself! I mean the first Sunday I ever came up here to dinner. You said the same thing then. Remember it?"

"Yes, indeed . . . and they were a wonderful bargain at the price!" He didn't seem to recall that she had ever looked so mischievous.

"They are now, then," he said. "Because it's just as it was before—I was thinking about you." Regarding her, he was transported anew by her love-mind to the individuals who would share in them; Dr. Durant, who, unless he chose, need never keep office hours again—he could devote himself to the research he loved; Cullen, whose blind, bulldog faith had made him forever independent, even Rufus Waring, whose modest contribution, accepted out of spleenless commiseration, had swelled to the dignity of four figures, and given him the means to show the world to Angela. And Hilliard himself had made far more than all the other venturers combined—in money, perhaps, but in dividends payable in the medium of his self-respect.

And yet, as the realities stood, now, he was sensitive to the nothingness of his triumph, until such time as he had some one to divide it with him. For there is little pleasure in a monopoly of happiness; not even a joke is fully established until some one appears to share it; a secret is delectable only when it's repeated, a conquest is empty without the popular acclaim, or the arrival of the historian. He felt this keenly; he reflected that of all the syndicate, he alone was without a beneficiary. And today, when he had steeled himself to speak to Carol . . . Like countless generations of men before him, he began vaguely to wonder what he should do if she refused him.

What would be left? Only the shell of achievement. Would he go back to France? or would he remain in America, and struggle for success by endowing war charities out of his glorious income-to-be? Also . . . and this was enervating . . . what should he say to her? It is given to few men to propose twice, in different characters, to the same girl.

The train plowed and panted through the thickening drifts; Hilliard's watch was coming out of his pocket at five-minute intervals; here was Rochester at last . . . three hours late . . . and there, shining dimly through banked clouds, was the sun! The train seemed warmed to greater effort by its mere appearance; Hilliard, who had measured time by weeks, then by days, and more recently by reluctant hours, began to mark the minutes from his mental calendar.

And then, after an interminable century of impatience, the outlying villages, gray and smoky; the flat wastes of Solway; the road slowly becoming streets; the buildings adding height . . . Syracuse!

His feet were on the platform; he was hurrying forward. Ahead of him . . . and in his excitement he stumbled heavily . . . there, coming toward him . . . Carol and the Doctor, befurred and rosy . . . no question of the welcome they were bringing him!

His own initial remarks were grossly incoherent. There were no words to fit the situation; perhaps he did it greater justice by the disconnected sounds he made. And then he was entering the Doctor's closed car; they were bouncing over the cobbles of the lower city; they were attacking the grade of James street, and he was peering out in an ecstasy of memory at the houses where he had played in boyhood.

Two o'clock . . . on time for dinner to the second! A house hanging with evergreen; a Christmas spirit permeating every nook and cranny; Christmas odors—not all of evergreen—drifted in tantalizing whiffs to meet him.

A joyous interlude; a gay procession; a hush; a gravely spoken blessing—Oh, that Christmas!

There came a time early in the evening when Hilliard found himself alone with Carol. He had a vague recollection that they had been sent to look for something . . . a corn popper, or some other equally futile article . . . and for an instant he marveled at their expecting to find it in the sun-parlor, where they had wandered. But the sun-parlor was happily unoccupied; and there were comfortable chairs in it; and something very green and red and seasonal in all the windows; so that they both delayed prodigiously, and exchanged a number of highly inconsequential remarks about the decorations. Presently, without so much as a transient thought for the corn-popper, they sat down with one accord. From a distance the murmur of cheerful voices in the living room was an adequate accompaniment to their thoughts.

Hilliard's head was dropped low; his reverie was so profound that not even Carol's voice could rouse him—not until she spoke a second time.

"I said—a penny for them," she repeated, amused.

"Oh!" Hilliard's awakening was explosive. "Why, that's queer . . . I was just thinking about that myself! I mean the first Sunday I ever came up here to dinner. You said the same thing then. Remember it?"

"Yes, indeed . . . and they were a wonderful bargain at the price!" He didn't seem to recall that she had ever looked so mischievous.

"They are now, then," he said. "Because it's just as it was before—I was thinking about you." Regarding her, he was transported anew by her loveliness. And it wasn't only her external loveliness that he adored, it was what she had of sympathy, and kindness, and sweetness of disposition. A very womanly girl she was . . . not a flaming character to blaze and die, but a steady and enduring soul . . . such as he craved . . .

She turned her head away.

"I was very angry at you this morning," she said; "I thought you'd forgotten about me entirely."

Hilliard affected alarm. "How could that happen?"

"Not even so much as a little card with 'Merry Christmas' on it," she said. "Father and mother had one from you, but as for me—" She opened her hands in emptiness. "I looked over every one of them twice."

Hilliard felt his pulses quicken.

"Doesn't my coming to you make up a little for it?"

"No, I'm afraid it doesn't—not in that way. I'm still very childish about Christmas. I have to see it—even if it's only in the tiniest little remembrances. I'm very much hurt. I've been telling myself it must be the postman's fault."

He denied it bravely. "It wasn't the postman's—it was mine. Because I didn't intend to send you a remembrance at all—I intended to bring it. I planned to give it to you before dinner, but when I was so late, and everybody was waiting—"

She turned with gratifying quickness.

"Did you bring it?"

"Yes," he said, "I brought it. I'm not quite sure whether you'll like it or not—"

"I'll like anything you brought!" The pronoun had an infinitesimal emphasis all to itself.

Hilliard cleared his throat.

"When I was young—"

"I beg your pardon?"

He laughed at high pressure and began over again.

"When I was young, Mother Grundy had a very small collection to choose from—books and candy and flowers. If I'd send you anything by mail, I think I'd have had to obey the rules. My early training was pretty severe. But I thought if I brought it myself, perhaps I could be more original."

"How original?" she asked, with pretty animation.

His heart was pounding relentlessly; he had lost the elaborate recital which he carefully prepared; and it was gone without a trace. He had to depend on presence of mind.

"Since I couldn't keep to my schedule, I've been saving it up to give you when everything was propitious." He tendered her a package, tied with holly ribbon; it was smaller than a book, and smaller than any orthodox carrier of confection. "Don't open it just yet, please."

She looked at it, pinched it, dropped it in her lap, and laughed softly.

"Is there such a mystery about it?"

"Yes, there is," Hilliard felt himself begin to go with the current of his mood. He sat up awkwardly. "All that you could ever think of asking about me . . . where I've been and what I've done . . . is in that box. It's everything . . . a biography, and a history . . . and it's my gift to you, too. But before you open it—" He had to pause to collect himself. "I'll have to make an explanation. I've fought with it and found his lips strangely sealed.

It's My Gift to You. But Before You Open It.

"Is it so very hard to make?" she asked at length.

"Almost impossible . . ." He was seeing black and red. Even if "everybody" had expected him to do this thing (as Angela had long since assured him) what reason did he have to hope for pardon? "What would you think," he asked, perilously, "of a man who cared enough about you to risk everything he had in the world . . . not his valuables in the sense of money . . . but all his ambitions for everything; all his dreams; all his ideals; all his hopes . . . on a Christmas gift? What would you?"

She frowned adorably.

"And . . . he's not just a little bit quixotic?"

"Not at all . . . suppose he did it deliberately, and after a great deal of thought. Just on the chance that it might please you? When it would either do that—or end their friendship?"

She fingered the small package over and over.

"Why, I should think that if this . . . mythical person were so very anxious to please me he wouldn't take quite so much risk."

"But when I'm the mythical person myself—that's different, isn't it?"

"Why should it be?" She gave him no opportunity to see her face.

"You've forgotten a great deal. I told you once that if you knew all that I've been . . . all that I've done . . . you might not be so willing to have my friendship, anyway."

"No," she said, subdued. "I've not forgotten, but you have! I said that I didn't believe you."

"You're holding it all in your hands," said Hilliard. His expression, as he gazed at her, was infinitely yearning; but his voice was even and low. "I spent a good many hours over this . . . wondering whether it was right for me to take such a risk on this day, above all others . . . and finally, I thought it out this way; if it pleases you, it ought to make the day better yet . . . if it doesn't, it would have been just as unwelcome to you at any other time. Understand, I'll never attempt to excuse anything . . . we're beyond that. All I can do is to wait, I'm giving you . . . will you open it now, please?"

Her fingers bungled with the knot, and he made as though to help her.

"No," she said, holding the package away from him. "I want to open it all myself!"

Hilliard, rigid, watched her. A phrase was beating heavily against his consciousness . . . one of the Proverbs . . . something about the bread of deceit, and ashes . . .

The knot gave way; and the tissue wrapping, falling aside, disclosed an oblong pasteboard box. Carol lifted the lid and Hilliard caught his breath. There were two cabinet photographs; uppermost was a very excellent likeness of Hilliard himself. She looked at him perplexedly; he was getting out his fountain pen. His hand was cold, unsteady.

"It lacks something, doesn't it?" he said, in an undertone. "Let me have it a moment." While she followed his every movement, he wrote, with his left hand and somewhat painstakingly, an inscription and gave back the picture.

"Christmas, 1916," she read, "with love from Henry Hilliard." She flushed hotly.

"Now look!" he said, ignoring her reaction. "The . . . next one." Mechanically she took out the second photograph; it was a duplicate of the picture of Dicky Morgan on the Doctor's desk. Her cheeks were suddenly devoid of color, she stared fearfully at him without speaking.

"That lacks something, too," he said; and his voice was yielding to the tremendous strain upon him. With conspicuous care he shifted the pen to his right hand; held it poised for a moment, gave her a smile of ineffable pathos, closed his teeth hard. "I have a very useful little trait," he said; "I'm ambidextrous." And wrote his message.

She had the evidence before her—the inimitable, unmistakable, ornamental script of another personality. "Christmas, 1916—and love from Dik to Carol."

"The real gift is underneath," he said, and his dictation now was foreign even to himself. "But . . . no, no; go on . . ."

Her uncertain, exploring fingers had touched a smaller box; it sprang open in her palm; within, was a gorgeously flashing, scintillating, living gem, set in platinum. Her hands, unsteady now as were his own, closed over it as though to guard and shelter it. Her eyes sought his, and held them—fright was meeting fright.

"And in my thought," he said, "are all the sweet memories I have of you . . . and all the fragrance of you . . . and in the stone there . . . there's a story for you to read . . . bigger than any book could hold . . ." She still made no answer; she was holding her three gifts tightly, and staring at him, staring . . . not in the revulsion he had imagined, not in the measureless contempt he had feared, but with the wraith of a smile trembling on her pale lips. "Only one of the photographs is to keep," he said thickly. "One of the two . . . I'm giving you the chance to say which it is . . . which one of the two you want to live . . . if you want either of those men to go on loving you . . . or if you want them both to go away—for always!"

In her eyes, there was another miracle; her eyes were soft, and indicative of a great relief, rather than of a great shock; and as he watched, spellbound, he saw that tears were creeping into them, and not of sorrow but of great joy. In that moment his most stupefying discovery was made, and the magnitude of it, the portent of it, set his brain at naught, and left him destitute of reason.

"Carol!" he said, petrified. "Carol!" Mute, she shook her head. Looking him full in the eyes, she flinched suddenly, and a great sob burst in her throat. The photograph of Dicky Morgan was in her hand; she held it a moment, trembling, and then, while her breath came faster and her shoulders quivered, she tore it across and across, finer and finer, until only fragmentary scraps remained—and these she let fall in her lap, unheeded. The likeness of Hilliard, the lying, radiant face of the man nobody knew—this she had seized, and this she had clutched to her breast, spasmodically, as though in fear to have it snatched away from her.

Hilliard was very close to her; and his whole being was concentrated in his eyes.

"Carol!" he said to her again in that stranger's voice. "Carol . . . You . . . you knew!" To him the fact was unbelievable.

Tardily, unwillingly, she raised her head.

"From the very first day," she said brokenly. "Both dad and I . . . and no one else; not even mother . . . your eyes told us both, and we've trusted you so . . . and waited so surely . . . we knew it would come out all right in the end, somehow . . . and . . . and . . . I do like my gift! It does make the day better." And then, in a soft whisper, "Henry!"

She had called him "Henry" and even in the spell of his confusion, he throbbled to the significance of it.

The lover was eager, but the prodigal was startled back from the very threshold of love.

"From the first day!" he breathed, electrified. "And you trusted me like that . . . when you knew what I was doing—"

She was laughing and crying at the same time; his hungry arms went out to her and found her; words were coming tumultuously to him and he said them as they came. Somehow the ring was on her finger; and she had kissed it there. Between them, partnered, a sacred understanding as imperishable as bronze had arisen; they both knew, without the necessity of prolonged speech, what his future was to be. They both knew in what capacity he was to face the world; they knew the brimming fullness of her pardon and the brimming fullness of his regret. These truths were mutually confirmed; their pledges to this end were upon their lips. The world was lying helpless at their feet . . . the wonderful, sensitive, receptive world which had respected and honored and admired him in the days of his regeneration, and would continue, paying the reward of his request.

In an irresistible passion of humility and shame and courage, he tried to tell her the sums of his deceits; her lips prevented him.

"You mustn't!" she murmured.

"Never! You let me choose—I want it this way!"

Dazed, triumphant, he was re-living by-gone incidents, seeing faint clues develop into mighty revelations, comprehending at last the supreme love and supreme faith of the two who had waited for his victory, and kept his secret shut within their hearts, that he might stand the ordeal, and prove triumphant. And now, the reputation that was already his . . . the loftier reputation which he should consecrate himself to build . . . not only for the pleasure of the building, but also because there were those to whom he owed it . . .

Behind them, a firm foothold. Hilliard was on his feet, his arm instinctively protecting Carol. Doctor Durant was smiling on them from the doorway . . . grave, benevolent, paternal. He, too, became a common partner to the understanding; an interchange of glances was sufficient. He came in swiftly; his hands outstretched, his head lifted high in the pride of a father who has looked upon his children, and found them true to each other, and to him.

"What!" he said. "Have you proved it already—my son?"

THE END.

Tunis Agricultural State.

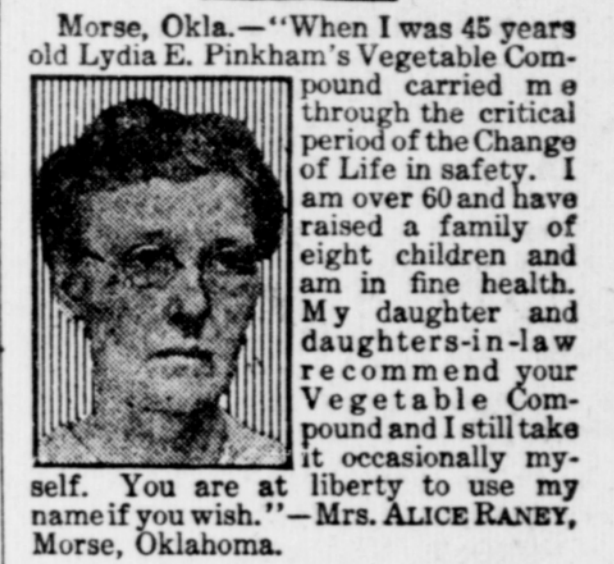

The regency of Tunis, having its northern or Mediterranean limit in the same latitudinal position as the state of North Carolina and, like North Carolina, supporting an estimated population of 2,000,000 on an area of about 50,000 square miles, is essentially an agricultural country, deriving its wealth from farm and mine.

The Sunflower in Russia.

Sunflower cultivation has become an industry in southern Russia, where the people have found the seeds a substitute for olives in making oil. The Russian eats the kernel. An acre of sunflowers yields about 60 bushels of seeds, and these in turn yield more than 90 gallons of oil.

A Word of Help to Women of Middle Age From Mrs. Raney.

Morse, Okla.—"When I was 45 years old Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carried me through the critical period of the Change of Life in safety. I am over 60 and have raised a family of eight children and am in fine health. My daughter and daughters-in-law recommend your Vegetable Compound and I still take it occasionally myself. You are at liberty to use my name if you wish."—Mrs. ALICE RANEY, Morse, Oklahoma.

Change of Life is one of the most critical periods of a woman's existence. This good old-fashioned root and herb remedy may be relied upon to overcome the distressing symptoms which accompany it and women everywhere should remember that there is no other remedy known to carry women so successfully through this trying period as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The death of Mrs. Lee Satterwhite, wife of Representative

Satterwhite, editor of the Herald, Panhandle, Texas, occurred at the home in that city on the 21st inst. Mr. Satterwhite has the deepest sympathy of the newspaper fraternity throughout western Texas, in the loss of his helpmate. Besides the husband, three daughters and one son survive the deceased.

During the Democratic State Convention at Dallas this week, Dwight Lewelling, candidate for Governor of Texas, withdrew his candidacy for financial reasons in favor of Pat M. Neff, of Waco.

Thirty five States will elect governors this year and there are to be thirty-two United States senators elected. It is a hot year in politics.

There has been a lot of land sold in Lynn county within the last few months which will pay for its self with this years crop. And there are still thousands of acres of land that has never been plowed and being used for grazing purposes only. The pasture lands are helping to retard the production of feed and food stuffs that the world is badly in need of. The sooner the greater portion of this vast amount of acreage is cut up into farms, the sooner will this section grow into the richest counties in the state. Lets have more and better farmers.

GOOD OR BAD LUCK

Mark Twain in his early days was editor of a Missouri paper. A superstitious subscriber wrote him saying that he had found a spider in his paper, and asked whether that was a sign of good or bad luck. The humorist wrote this answer and printed it:

"Old Subscriber: Finding a spider in your paper was neither good or bad luck for you. This spider was merely looking over our paper to see which merchant was not advertising, so that he can go to that store, spin his web across the door, and live a life of undisturbed peace ever afterwards.—Inland Printer.

Difference in Situations.

Away out in a remote and snow-drifted draw, separated from the herd, an old cow stands between a fir tree and a bowlder, her calf behind her, desperately defending it against a ring of wolves capable of playing a waiting game through the long night. This is a scene common enough in the West, about which artists painted vivid pictures and authors wrote stirring stories, mighty good press-agent material for the department of agriculture's predatory animal campaign. But who would write a thrilling story or paint a picture about a prairie dog running out of its hole and filling its stomach with grama grass?—Exchange.

"That's right," said the unseen lady. "I want to know when the entries for the autumn races close, as I'd like to enter my gas meter."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

MADE BIG "BAG" OF GERMANS

Raid of Doughboys Within Hun Lines One of the Most Brilliant Exploits of the War.

It was the most audacious night hike of the great war. The infantry brigade of the Second division, American army, was making it. Platoon after platoon of rain-soaked, mud-painted Yank doughboys, in columns of twos, marched silently straight through the strong German line, a distance of four miles—like a huge khaki-colored monster ready to spring at the throat of the German defense. They did.

Joseph Mills Hanson, former American field artillery officer, gives this graphic description in the Home Sector, the ex-soldiers' weekly conducted by the former editorial council of the Stars and Stripes, of how the midnight surprise experts of the A. E. F. floundered and struggled up the hill toward La Tuilerie farm on the night of November 4, 1918, where German officers were living close to Beaumont, thinking that the nearest American soldier was eight kilometers away.

He says: "Silently the Americans, panting from their long march, formed and closed in upon the farm, as old Mosby's men used to close in on some devoted federal outposts in Virginia, or as George Rogers Clark's grim frontiersmen closed in on the British at their ball in the wilderness fort at Vincennes.

"There was a pause as they crept up close. Then a sudden rush, a gust of cries, and through the doors and windows they burst in. Knots of German officers, bending over maps and dispatches, looked up in horror into the muzzles of rifles and the stern, white faces behind them; men curled up in blankets in the corners staggered to their feet and held their hands aloft. This sort of warfare had a tang of the new-world daring in it that the disciples of Von Clausewitz and Ludendorff could not comprehend. It set German logic at naught, but they were obliged to yield to it. La Tuilerie farm, a German headquarters, four miles from the front, had been throttled by a hand reaching out of the darkness. Many of his imperial majesty's trusty officers and men had been made prisoners in a flash, though unfortunately two generals made their escape by darting out of back doors."

Murderer of Judge Burton Given 99 Years

Sam Cates, who murdered Judge J. W. Burton at Crosbyton recently, was tried in the District Court at that place the past week and the jury found him guilty of murder in the first degree and assessed the penalty at 99 years in the penitentiary. Ten of the jury favored assessing capitol punishment, but finally compromised on a life sentence.

USURPATED AUTHORITY RESENTED BY WILSON

DECLARES RIDER TO BIG SUPPLY BILL PUTS CENSORSHIP ON PRINTING OFFICE.

OTHER CASES ARE ALSO CITED

Approves Efforts for Economy, but Advises Action on Broader Lines Be Attempted.

Washington.—President Wilson has pointedly informed congress that in his opinion the legislative branch of the government was showing an increasing tendency to interfere unduly with the exercise of executive functions.

Taking as a vehicle for his admonition a sharply-phrased veto of the annual legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, the president declared that one of the riders of the big supply measure would muzzle executive officers with a "censorship" regulated by the congressional joint committee on printing.

Immediately the president's position, both on the general principle involved and the specific case cited, was challenged by republican leaders of the senate and house.

Whether passage of the bill unchaned will be attempted or whether the feature objected to by the president will be eliminated has not been decided.

The president also cited several other measures proposed in the present congress to support his charge that there had been "an invasion of the province of the executive, calculated to result in unwarranted interference in the processes of good government."

The section of the appropriation bill which led to the veto would prohibit the printing or mimeographing of any government publication except by authority of the joint committee.

"I am in entire sympathy with the efforts of the congress and the departments to effect economies in printing and in the use of paper and supplies, but I do not believe that such a provision as this should become law.

"If we are to have efficient and economic business administration of government affairs the congress, I believe, should direct its efforts to the control of public moneys along broader lines. . . . This can be accomplished by the enactment of legislation establishing an effective budget system, which I have heretofore urged. "The congress and the executive should function within their respective spheres. The congress has the power and the right to grant or deny an appropriation or to enact or refuse to enact a law, but once an appropriation is made or a law is passed the appropriation should be administered or the law executed by the executive branch of the government."

FREIGHT TIED UP AT NANY TERMINAL POINTS

Reports Reach Washington of Serious Congestion of Cars

Washington.—Congestion of freight in the principal railroad terminals, probably the worst since the hard winter of 1917, is beginning to be felt in business and commerce all over the country.

Appeals for relief pouring into Washington to the interstate commerce commission, the railroad administration and to congress picture the big railroad gateways choked with thousands of loaded freight cars unable to move because of shortage of men and motive power. Although the situation has been showing local effects the last two weeks, it is now being shown in its nation-wide aspects and the appeals for relief coming to Washington contain predictions that unless the jam is broken it will be reflected more than ever in decreased production, slowing down industry and probably a tremendous labor turnover.

BAPTISTS AGAIN SELECT TEXAS MAN AS LEADER

Washington.—The Southern Baptist convention, which opened its 75th annual session here Wednesday morning disregarded all precedent when it elected for the fourth term as president Dr. J. B. Gambrell of Fort Worth. His selection was practically unanimous, although Dr. W. W. Landrum of Russellville, Ky., and Dr. J. D. Mell of Athens, Ga., also were nominated. In presenting his name to the convention Dr. W. S. Wiley of Muskogee characterized the Texan as "a young man who, living in the present, hears the billows of the future roll." In seconding the nomination William D. Georgia, referred to Dr. Gambrell as the Baptist Gladstone of America, from the greatest Baptist state in the union.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

AFTER THE COFFEE.

Prof. Puntolini wished to train his son, a high school freshman, to speak Latin, but the boy persisted in making his replies in Italian.

"But why do you not reply in Latin? Is it not your mother tongue?" "Dear father, when I am able to choose between the mother and the daughter I, as a rule, choose the daughter."—Bulletin of Italian Society.

Man of Ability. "So you want a job? What have you been trained to do?" "Dig ditches, keep accounts, drive a horse and automobile, handle money, carpentry, telegraphy, machinist, superintendent construction—" "Oh, efficiency expert, huh?" "No, ex-private." "Hired."—Home Sector.

Experienced. "The court scene in this play is the last word in realism." "The spectators are supernumeraries, though." "Perhaps, but they are professional spectators. I understand they were drafted from a local courtroom where a breach of promise suit was being tried."

His Sacrifice. He hated having his photograph taken, but his wife, indirectly, had forced him to undergo the much dreaded ordeal.

When she saw the photograph she cried out in horror, "Oh, George; you have only one button on your coat!" He—Thank heaven, you've noticed it at last. That's why I had the photograph taken!—London Tit-Bits.

NOT SO FOOLISH. "Jack is telling around that you are worth your weight in gold." "Foolish boy! Who's he telling us to?" "His creditors."

Big Contract. The minds of statesmen must expand in a most wondrous way. Each is supposed to understand what all the others say!—Washington Evening Star.

COUGHED FOR 2 YEARS ORDERED TO DENVER

Doctor said she couldn't get well in Illinois, but she did.

"I had a very bad cough for two years, all the time, day and night. Could sleep but little. I tried everything but got no relief. Finally my doctor said he could do no more for me, that I had better go to Denver, as I couldn't live in Illinois. Then I tried Milks Emulsion. From the very first it helped me. By the time I had taken 15 bottles my cough left me entirely. I have gained in strength and flesh and am now in perfect health."—Mrs. Alice M. Huntley, 182 No. Pearl St., Galesburg, Ill.

Build up your system and give it a chance to fight off disease. Milks Emulsion costs nothing to try and it has done the work for thousands of others.

Milks Emulsion is a pleasant, nutritive food and a corrective medicine. It restores healthy, natural bowel action, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food. As a builder of flesh and strength Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whom sickness has weakened, and is a powerful aid in restoring and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved—usually in one day.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions, and if not satisfied with the results your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

DODSON STOPS SALE OF CALOMEL

"Dodson's Liver Tone" is Taking Place of Dangerous, Sickening Chemical, Say Druggists

Every druggist in town has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it." Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much but if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, just ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day.—Adv.
